to God are like a day or a nightwatch, man's life is like a vapor. (3) Your life is like a particle swept away by a flood. (4) Your life is like a blade of grass that sprouts, fades, withers, and dies in a day. Moses was most qualified to speak of death, since he witnessed an entire generation perish in the wilderness. The third part of the psalm may be described as the condemnation of man (vv. 7–10). Moses speaks here of the wilderness experience. Finally, he concludes with a petition (vv. 11–17) in which he asks the Lord that the Israelites might be given God's work to do one more time, that is, the work of taking the Promised Land.

PSALM 92

Give Thanks to the Lord

A Psalm or Song for the sabbath day.

IT is ^aa good thing to give thanks unto the LORD, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High:

2 To ^ashew¹ forth thy loving-kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night,

3 ^aUpon an instrument of ten strings, and upon the ¹psaltery; upon the harp with a ²solemn sound.

4 For thou, LORD, hast made me glad through thy work: I will triumph in the works of thy hands.

5 ^aO LORD, how great are thy works! and ^bthy thoughts are very deep.

6 ^aA ¹brutish man knoweth not; neither doth a fool understand this.

7 When ^athe wicked ¹spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever:

8 ^aBut thou, LORD, art most high for evermore.

9 For, lo, thine enemies, O LORD, for, lo, thine enemies shall perish; all the workers of iniquity shall ^abe scattered.

10 But ^amy¹ horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an ²unicorn: I shall be ^banointed with fresh oil.

Psalm 91. The key word to describe this psalm is security. There are two distinct voices in the psalm, and each speaks to the trusting believer in the Lord. The first voice assures the faithful of God's protection (vv. 1-13). The second voice is that of the Lord Himself who likewise pledges His watchcare (vv. 14-16). An important caution is necessary here. The great promises of verses 3-13 should not be taken in an absolute sense. One may not be presumptuous in applying them—Satan has already suggested that (Matt. 4:6, 7). Rather, the believer must recall that deliverance still has to be the will of God and that even if harm should come, he can still be secure (cf. Luke 21:16 with 21:18 and Rom. 8:28 with 8:35).

Psalm 92. This is one of the few psalms with a liturgical superscription. Its specific connection with the Sabbath day is not explained, but it probably lies in its picture of the wicked vanquished (vv. 4-9) and the righteous exalted (vv. 10-15), a harbinger of an eternal Sabbath rest (Heb. 4:9-11). The introduction is a call to praise the Lord, both morning and evening (vv. 1-3).

11 ^aMine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me.

The Righteous Shall Flourish

12 ^aThe righteous shall flourish like the palm tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

13 Those that be planted in the house of the LORD shall flourish in the courts of our God.

14 They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be ¹fat and ²flourishing;

15 To shew that the LORD is upright: ^a*he is* my rock, and ^b*there is* no unrighteousness in him.

PSALM 93

The Majesty of the Lord

THE LORD reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the LORD is clothed with strength, ^b*wherewith* he hath girded himself: the world also is stablished, that it cannot be ¹moved.

2 ^aThy throne is established of old: thou art from everlasting.

3 The floods have ¹lifted up, O LORD, the floods have lifted up their voice; the floods lift up their waves.

4 ^aThe LORD on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

5 Thy testimonies are very sure: holiness ¹becometh thine house, O LORD, for ever.

2 ¹Lift up thyself, thou ^ajudge of the earth: ²render a reward to the proud.

3 LORD, ^ahow long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph?

4 How long shall they ^autter and speak ¹hard things? and all the workers of iniquity boast themselves?

5 They break in pieces thy people, O LORD, and afflict thine heritage.

6 They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.

7 ^aYet they say, The LORD shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob ¹regard it.

8 Understand, ye ¹brutish among the people: and ye fools, when will ye be wise?

9 ^aHe that planted the ear, shall he not hear? he that formed the eye, shall he not see?

10 He that ¹chastiseth the ²heathen, shall not he correct? he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he know?

11 The LORD ^aknoweth the thoughts of man, that they are ¹vanity.

12 Blessed is the man whom thou ^achastenest, ¹O LORD, and teachest him out of thy law;

13 That thou mayest give him ¹rest from the days of adversity, until the pit be digged for the wicked.

14 For the LORD will not ¹cast off his people, neither will he forsake his inheritance.

15 But judgment shall return unto righteousness: and all the upright in heart shall follow it.

Psalm 93. This second psalm of the divine kingdom (cf. 47; 96-99) speaks prophetically of the time when the Lord will rule on the earth in the person of the Messiah. The Lord's kingship is described (vv. 1, 2), revealed in nature (vv. 3, 4) and present in His house, the temple (v. 5).

Psalm 94. This psalm is a prayer for God's judgment to fall. It is in the spirit of the petition, "Thy kingdom come," a cry that God's righteous rule be established over all men, especially the wicked. The introduction (vv. 1, 2) briefly sets forth the psalmist's desire; the lament (vv. 3-7) describes how the wicked are acting; the appeal (vv. 8-11) is offered directly to the wicked for their self-correction; and, finally, the confidence section (vv. 12-23) expresses the psalmist's trust and certainty that the Lord will in fact judge.

TELEOLOGICAL ARGUMENT FOR THE EXISTENCE OF GOD

94:9. The existence of God is proven by the order and useful arrangement in the universe. The orderly world in which we live clearly demonstrates that a great mind was behind its arrangement. The Scriptures identify God as that great intelligence. (First Reference, Gen. 1:1; Primary Reference, Ps. 94:9; cf. Heb. 3:4.)

God's Help and Mercy

16 Who will rise up for me against the evildoers? or who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?

17 Unless the LORD had been my help, my soul ¹had almost dwelt in silence.

18 When I said, My foot slippeth; thy mercy, O LORD, held me up.

19 In the multitude of my ¹thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul.

20 Shall ^athe throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which ¹frameth mischief by a law?

21 They gather themselves together against the ¹soul of the righteous, and condemn the ^ainnocent blood.

22 But the LORD is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge.

23 And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the LORD our God shall ¹cut them off.

PSALM 96

The Greatness of the Lord

O ^aSING unto the LORD a new song: sing unto the LORD, all the earth.

2 Sing unto the LORD, bless his name; ¹shew forth his salvation from day to day.

3 Declare his glory among the ¹heathen, his wonders among all people.

4 For ^athe LORD is great, and ^bgreatly to be praised: ^che is to be feared above all gods.

5 For ^aall the gods of the nations are idols: ^bbut the LORD made the heavens.

6 Honour and majesty are before him: strength and ^abeauty are in his sanctuary.

Give Glory to the Lord

7 ^aGive¹ unto the LORD, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORD glory and strength.

Psalms 95. The change of voice in verse 7 may well indicate that this psalm was sung antiphonally. First, the people offer a hymn that serves as a call to worship and prayer (vv. 1-7a); then the priest or prophet answers with a warning that the worshipers must not fall prey to hardness of heart as did their ancestors (vv. 7b-11). This ever-present tendency to harden one's heart is likewise applicable to God's revelation in Christ, as the author of Hebrews observed (Heb. 3:7-11).

Psalms 96. Psalms 96-99 are linked together with the expression the LORD reigneth, except for Psalm 98 which has "the LORD, the King" (v. 6). As such, they conclude the body of the divine kingdom psalms (see also 47, 93) which speak of Messiah's reign over all the earth. The use of a similar expression, "Thy God reigneth," in Isaiah 52:7 shows that the time of fulfillment for this prophecy is when Isaiah's "Servant of the Lord" is exalted. This can take place only during the reign of Christ on the earth. This particular psalm, apart from the description of the King in verses 4-6, is composed of three calls: two calls for universal submission to the Lord's kingship (vv. 1-3, 7-10) and one call to creation to praise the Lord (vv. 11-13).

8 ¹Give unto the LORD the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts.

9 O worship the LORD ^ain the beauty of holiness: ¹fear before him, all the earth.

10 Say among the ¹heathen that ^athe LORD reigneth: the world also ²shall be established that it shall not be ³moved: ^bhe shall judge the people righteously.

11 ^aLet the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad; ^blet the sea roar, and the ¹fulness thereof.

12 Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein: then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice

13 Before the LORD: for he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth: ^ahe shall judge the world with righteousness, and the people with his truth.

PSALM 97

The Righteous Reign of the Lord

THE LORD ^areigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of ¹isles be glad thereof.

2 ^aClouds and darkness are round about him: ^brighteousness and judgment are the ¹habitation of his throne.

3 ^aA fire goeth before him, and burneth up his enemies round about.

4 ^aHis lightnings enlightened the world: the earth saw, and trembled.

5 ^aThe ¹hills melted like wax at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth.

6 ^aThe heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory.

7 ^aConfounded¹ be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: ^bworship him, all ye gods.

Psalm 97. This enthronement psalm reveals the Lord's kingship (vv. 1–6) and enunciates its effect on both the wicked (v. 7) and righteous (vv. 8–12).

Psalm 98. The coming reign of the Lord on the earth is here celebrated as an event of great joy. Therefore, three groups are called upon to rejoice: God's people (vv. 1–3), the whole earth (vv. 4–6), and all of nature (vv. 7–9).

PSALM 99

PSALM 101

Walk with a Perfect Heart

A Psalm of David.

I WILL sing of ¹mercy and ²judgment: unto thee, O LORD, will I ³sing.

2 I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will ^awalk within my house with a ¹perfect heart.

3 I will set no ¹wicked thing before mine eyes: ^aI hate the work of them ^bthat turn aside; it shall not ²cleave to me.

4 A ¹froward heart shall depart from me: I will not ^aknow a ²wicked person.

5 Whoso ¹privily slandereth his neighbour, him will I ²cut off: ^ahim that hath an high look and a proud heart will not I ³suffer.

6 Mine eyes shall be upon the faithful of the land, that they may dwell with me: he that walketh in a ¹perfect way, he shall serve me.

7 He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house: he that telleth lies shall not ¹tarry in my sight.

8 I will ^aearly destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all ¹wicked doers ^bfrom the city of the LORD.

Psalm 99. The final psalm of the divine kingdom is composed of three stanzas, each followed by a call to worship (vv. 3, 5, 9). The first stanza describes the King's greatness (vv. 1, 2); the second, His justice (v. 4); and the third, His forgiveness (vv. 6-8).

Psalm 100. The word praise in the superscription is actually the word thanksgiving or, more specifically, thank-offering. It was one psalm that accompanied a "thank-offering" (Lev. 7:12) that one presented when God had especially answered a prayer or given a great deliverance. The psalm contains a command to serve (vv. 1-3) and a command to praise (vv. 4, 5). Each section is in turn divided into three calls and three causes. There are three calls to serve, make a joyful noise (v.

1), serve the LORD (v. 2), and come before (v. 2); and three causes for serving, the LORD is God, he hath made us, we are his people (v. 3). Likewise, there are three calls to praise, enter his gates, be thankful, bless his name (v. 4), followed by three causes for praise, the LORD is good, his mercy is everlasting, his truth endureth (v. 5).

Psalm 101. This psalm describes the perfect king. It expresses David's own aims but, at the same time, is a picture of Christ, his descendant, who will in fact fulfill this ideal picture. The ideal king sings to the Lord (v. 1), keeps his personal life pure (vv. 2-4), and administers social justice (vv. 5-8).

Psalm 102. Though the author of this psalm is

PSALM 102

The Lonely Soul

A Prayer of the afflicted, ^awhen he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his complaint before the LORD.

HEAR my prayer, O LORD, and let my cry come unto thee.

2 ^aHide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me: in the day when I call answer me speedily.

3 For my days are ^aconsumed¹ like smoke, and my bones are burned as an hearth.

4 My heart is ¹smitten, and withered like grass; so that I forget to eat my bread.

5 By reason of the voice of my groaning my bones ¹cleave to my ²skin.

6 I am like a pelican of the wilderness: I am like an owl of the desert.

7 I watch, and am as a sparrow alone upon the house top.

8 Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that ¹are mad against me are sworn against me.

9 For I have eaten ashes like bread, and mingled my drink with weeping, 10 Because of thine indignation and thy wrath: for thou hast ¹lifted me up, and cast me down.

11 My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.

Mercy on Zion

12 But thou, O LORD, shalt endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations.

13 Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Zion: for the time to favour her, yea, the set time, is come.

14 For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favour the dust thereof.

anonymous, he speaks for the afflicted of all ages who must rely totally on God for relief. The answer to the psalmist's grief is not, in this case, direct divine intervention to alter his situation; rather, the psalmist's own reflection on the unchanging nature of God in His dealings with men soothes his troubled mind. After his introductory petition (vv. 1, 2), the psalmist voices his lament (vv. 3-11). His relief comes when he begins verse 12 dramatically with the words but thou, O LORD, then expounds on the immutability and compassion of the Lord (vv. 12-22). Finally, the remaining section heightens the contrast between frail man and unchanging God by bringing both themes together (vv. 23-28). These statements about God's unchanging nature can just as easily be applied to the Lord Jesus Christ, the believer's refuge today, as the author of the Book of Hebrews applies them (Heb. 1:10-12).

PSALM 104

God's Marvellous Creation

BLESS ^athe LORD, O my soul. O LORD my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty.

2 Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain:

3 ^aWho layeth the beams of his ¹chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind:

Psalm 103. This hymn is one of the greatest praise psalms in the entire collection. The first section (vv. 1–5) finds the psalmist expressing his intention to praise God for all his benefits (v. 2). Then with five verbs he enumerates specifically these benefits: who forgiveth ... who healeth (v. 3), who redeemeth ... who crowneth (v. 4), who satisfieth (v. 5). All of these actions speak of spiritual blessings, though physical benefits may be included. The next section (vv. 6–19), which speaks of God's character, contains a veritable catalog of the benevolent attributes of God: merciful, gracious, slow to anger, plenteous in mercy (v. 8). These are amply illustrated in an attempt to convey their vastness: the greatness of His mercy (as the heaven is high, v. 11), the greatness of His removal of our sins (as far as the east is from the west, v. 12), and the greatness of His compassion (as a father pitieth his children, v. 13). Finally, in the conclusion the psalmist returns to the call that he gave himself at the outset, but this time he widens it to include all created beings and works (vv. 20–22).

Psalm 104. A truly joyful hymn of praise to the Creator, this hymn (along with Job 38 and 39 and Psalms 8 and 29) forms a divine poetic commentary on the Creation. The introduction to the psalm is a brief call to praise (v. 1a). The body of the psalm (vv. 1b–30) expounds on the majesty of God's creative work as few psalms do: He is infinite (vv. 1b–4); He created and established the earth's land and seas (vv. 5–9); He cares for the animal kingdom by giving food and Psalm 105. One of two historical psalms (see ch. 78), this psalm traces the history of Israel for its didactic value in the psalmist's own day. It could also be classified as a hymn of praise since it includes the characteristic threefold content: a call to praise (vv. 1-6), a cause for praise (vv. 7-41), and a conclusion (vv. 42-45). The call to praise is unmistakable with its 11 imperatives directed toward God's people: give thanks, call upon, make known, sing, talk, and so on. The cause for praise constitutes a brief historical survey of what the Lord did for Israel in the past: He made an unconditional covenant with Abraham and reaffirmed it to Isaac and Jacob (vv. 7-11). He protected Joseph and used him to sustain His people (vv. 12-22). He delivered His people from Egypt (vv. 23-38). He provided for them in the wilderness (vv. 39-41). In light of such a faithful, promise-keeping God, the psalmist concludes with a summary of God's blessings (the Abrahamic covenant, the Exodus, and the Conquest) and an appropriate call to praise (vv. 42-45).

Psalm 106. This psalm is one of national lament, though it might also be classified as a historical psalm (cf. chs. 78, 105). Like Psalm 105 it traces the history of Israel, but for a different purpose. In the former psalm the emphasis was on God's grace and faithfulness; in this psalm it is on the people's faithlessness and the Lord's justice. Verse 47 has been interpreted to imply that the setting of the psalm was the Babylonian captivity. This is not necessarily true, however, because the reference is quite general, and there were many periods when the Israelites were oppressed by the heathen. The psalm may be divided into three key sections. First, there is a call to praise (vv. 1-5). Second, a confession of Israel's past sins (vv. 6-46) takes up the bulk of the psalm. In this part, after an introductory identification of present-day sins with the past (v. 6), the psalmist traces a history of rebellion and unbelief on the part of God's people. These occasions of disbelief included the Exodus (vv. 7-12), the wanderings in the wilderness (vv. 13-23), the events at Kadesh-barnea (vv. 24-27, cf. Num. 13:32; 14:41), the encampment at Shittim (vv. 28-31), and occurrences within the Promised Land itself (vv. 32-46). Finally, the psalmist concludes with a twofold petition, save us ... gather us, with a twofold purpose, to give thanks ... and to triumph (v. 47). This last psalm in the fourth book of the Psalms ends with the now familiar doxology (v. 48).

12 ^aThen believed they his words; they sang his praise.

Israel Sinned Repeatedly

13 ^aThey¹ soon forgot his works; they waited not for his counsel:

14 ^aBut lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert.

15 ^aAnd he gave them their request; but ^bsent leanness into their soul.

16 ^aThey envied Moses also in the camp, and Aaron the saint of the LORD.

17 ^aThe earth opened and swallowed up Dathan and covered the ¹company of Abiram.

18 ^aAnd a fire was kindled in their company; the flame burned up the wicked.

19 ^aThey made a calf in Horeb, and worshipped the ¹molten image.

20 Thus ^athey changed their glory into the ¹similitude of an ox that eateth grass.

21 They forgot God their saviour, which had done great things in Egypt;

22 Mondrous works in the land of Ham, and ¹terrible things by the Red sea.

23 ^aTherefore he said that he would destroy them, had not Moses his chosen ^bstood before him in the breach, to turn away his wrath, lest he should destroy them.

Israel Refused to Enter the Land

24 Yea, they despised ^athe pleasant land, they ^bbelieved not his word:

25 ^aBut murmured in their tents, and hearkened not unto the voice of the LORD.

26 ^aTherefore he ¹lifted up his hand against them, ^bto ²overthrow them in the wilderness:

27 ^aTo ¹overthrow their seed also among the nations, and to scatter them in the lands.

Israel Worshipped Idols

Psalm 107. Verses 2 and 3 need not be taken as a reference to the Babylonian exile. They most likely refer to the fact that God's people are viewed as collected from all worldly powers into their present position as His chosen people. The fact that all four directions are mentioned supports this idea, since Babylon itself lay to the east. After an initial call to praise (vv. 1-3), the psalmist lists the various types of distresses from which the Lord rescues His people (vv. 4-32). These include: redemption from wandering (vv. 4-9), from prisons (vv. 10-16), from deathly psychological misery (vv. 17-22), and from stormy seas (vv. 23-32). This survey is punctuated with a refrain intended to epitomize the reaction these acts of redemption should elicit:

Oh that men would praise the LORD (vv. 8, 15, 21, 31). The next section constitutes a miniature survey of Israel's history, though the allusions are admittedly quite vague (vv. 33-41): the desolation of Egypt and the Red Sea (vv. 33, 34), the miraculous provision during the wilderness experience (v. 35), the conquest of Canaan (vv. 36-38), and the vicissitudes of life in the Promised Land (vv. 39-41). The purpose of this section is to drive home the truth that God is faithful and gracious to His people. Finally, the conclusion of the psalm (vv. 42, 43) applies the moral of the story to its readers: a knowledge of God's steadfastness and love will cause rejoicing among the righteous, silence among the wicked, and meditation among the wise.

21 Oh that men would ¹praise the LORD for his ²goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

22 And ^alet them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and ^bdeclare his works with ¹rejoicing.

Deliverance from Storms

23 They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters;

24 These see the works of the LORD, and his wonders in the deep.

25 For he commandeth, and ^araiseth the stormy wind, which lifteth up the waves thereof.

26 They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths: ^atheir soul is melted because of trouble.

27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and ¹are at their wit's end.

28 Then they cry unto the LORD in their trouble, and he bringeth them out of their distresses.

29 ^aHe maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still.

30 Then are they glad because they be quiet; so he bringeth them unto their desired haven.

31 ^aOh that men would ¹praise the LORD for his ²goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!

32 Let them exalt him also ^ain the congregation of the people, and praise him in the assembly of the elders.

5 ^aBe thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth;

Psalm 108. This psalm is composed of fragments from two other psalms. The first section, verses 1-5, is taken from 57:7-11; the second section, verses 6-13, is taken from 60:5-12, with little change in the wording of either fragment. Though taken from psalms of individual lament (ch. 57) and national lament (ch. 60), the present psalm is composed of the most positive sections of confidence in both. The resulting work is a psalm of victory that only briefly alludes to the nation's lament, namely, their ever-present enemies (vv. 12, 13).

Psalm 109. This psalm constitutes the most vivid example of imprecatory prayer found in all the Psalter. Such petitions for retributive justice have posed a theological problem: How can a man who claims to trust in the Lord (vv. 21–31) pray such curses on his enemies as those found in verses 6–20? Several answers may be offered for this problem. First, there is a legitimate righteous indignation against sin. God Himself possesses this attribute and Jesus indirectly commanded it when He instructed the disciples to pray, “Thy kingdom come.” The coming of God’s kingdom includes the destruction of the wicked. Second, the curses used here are actually a prayer that places the matter into the hands of a just and holy God. Third, Peter quotes both Psalm 69 and Psalm 109 in Acts 1:20 and attributes both references to the Holy Spirit. Fourth, the psalmist is so identified with God that he has the mind of God: the psalmist’s enemies are likewise at enmity with God. The content of the psalm may be analyzed as follows: the psalmist’s lament and declaration of innocence (vv. 1–5), the catalog of curses that he prays will fall on his enemies (vv. 6–20), and his plea that God will give mercy and protection (vv. 21–31).

Save Me According to Thy Mercy

21 But do thou for me, O GOD the Lord, for thy name's sake: because thy ¹mercy is good, deliver thou me.

22 For I am poor and needy, and my heart is wounded within me.

23 I am gone ^alike the shadow when it ¹declineth: I am ²tossed up and down as the locust.

24 My ^aknees are weak through fasting; and my flesh faileth of fatness.

27 ^aThat they may know that this is thy hand; that thou, LORD, hast done it.

28 ^aLet them curse, but bless thou: when they arise, let them be ashamed; but let ^bthy servant rejoice.

29 ^aLet mine adversaries be clothed with shame, and let them cover themselves with their own confusion, as with a mantle.

30 I will greatly praise the LORD with my mouth; yea, ^aI will praise him among the multitude.

31 For ^ahe shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those ¹that condemn his soul.

Psalm 110. This royal psalm is also messianic. It is the only messianic psalm with no contemporary reference to David or another. Though assailed by critics, its Davidic authorship, divine inspiration, and messianic interpretation are all assumed by Jesus and the New Testament writers. It ranks as the Psalm most quoted in the New Testament (Matt. 22:44; Mark 12:36; Luke 20:42, 43; Acts 2:34, 35; Heb. 1:13; 5:6; 7:17, 21) with many additional allusions. The content of the psalm may be analyzed under three headings: Sovereign King (vv. 1-3), Eternal Priest (v. 4), and Victorious Warrior (vv. 5-7). The initial double reference to the Lord created interpretive problems in Jesus' day (see Matt. 22:41-45), but only for those who refused to accept His deity. The answer is simple: the first word LORD is in capital letters, indicating that it is a reference to Yahweh, the personal name of God; the second word Lord contains only a capital "L," indicating that it is the Hebrew word Adonai, meaning "Master"; the word

"my" refers of course to David himself. Though the Messiah is David's son (2 Sam. 7:14-16), He is also David's Adonai; therefore, Messiah must be divine as well. The implication of the first three verses is striking: God and Messiah rule the earth as partners. Verse 4 establishes the priesthood of the Messiah, though not until Hebrews 5 and 7 is this office explained. Not only is the Messiah a unique King-Priest, He is also a warrior (vv. 5-7) who will execute judgment and thus lift up the head (v. 7) in conquest.

Psalm 111. An acrostic psalm, this poem uses two clauses for each verse, except for the last verse which has three, for a total of 22 clauses, each beginning with a consecutive letter of the Hebrew alphabet (with its 22 letters). Though such acrostic poems are rarely subject to logical outlining, this one is a psalm of praise and contains the characteristic call to praise (v. 1), cause for praise (vv. 2-9), and a concluding exhortation to praise (v. 10).

Psalm 112. This psalm is another acrostic and is written in the same 10-verse format as the preceding one. The contrast between the righteous man and the wicked man marks this poem out as a wisdom psalm. Almost all of the psalm, however, is taken up with the good fortunes of the righteous man (vv. 1–9), with only one verse dedicated to the observation of the wicked’s destruction (v. 10).

Psalm 113. Psalms 113–118 have been traditionally linked in Jewish worship with the great feasts of Passover and Tabernacles. At Passover, for example, Psalms 113 and 114 are sung before the meal and 115–118 after it. How far back these traditions go is unknown, but the connection of such hymns with the Passover is mentioned in the New Testament (Matt. 26:30; Mark 14:26). The content of Psalm 113 is simple. There is a call to praise the Lord (vv. 1–3) because He is great (vv. 4–6) and because He cares for the poor and needy (vv. 7–9).

odus, this psalm emphasizes both God's power displayed (vv. 3-6) and His provisions supplied (v. 8). The God of Israel's deliverance (vv. 1, 2) is still their God (v. 7), the implication being that He can still unfurl His power. The world must therefore take notice.

Psalm 115. The note of confidence is so strong in this psalm that it should be classified as a psalm of national confidence. The message of the psalm could be aptly summarized in three ideas: honor the Lord, because, in contrast to idols, He alone is God (vv. 1-8); trust the Lord, because He will help you (vv. 9-11); praise the Lord, because He is worthy (vv. 12-18).

Psalm 116. This psalm is one of the most personal of all the thanksgiving psalms (note the many occurrences of the personal pronoun "I"). The psalm is composed of three distinct parts: first, a declaration of the LORD; O LORD, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

5 ^aGracious is the LORD, and ^brighteous; yea, our God is merciful.

6 The LORD preserveth the simple: I was brought low, and he ¹helped me.

praise (vv. 1, 2); next, the psalmist recalls his troubles and how the Lord delivered him from them (vv. 3–11); finally, he concludes with a description of what he will offer in thanksgiving for what the Lord has done (vv. 12–19). Note that his thanksgiving will be given publicly, as the law required.

Psalm 117. Well known as the shortest chapter in the Bible, this little psalm contains a great message. Though some have denied it an independent existence, attaching it to Psalm 116, Psalm 117 has all three elements of the hymn of praise: a call to praise (v. 1), a cause for praise (v. 2a, b), and a conclusion, which, in this case, is a simple praise ye the LORD (v. 2c). The fact that the nations and people (lit., “peoples”) are addressed in verse 1 makes this psalm the only one in the Psalter addressed in its entirety to the Gentile world. Its evangelistic mood was still baffling to some of Paul’s readers. This is one of four passages that Paul quotes from the Old Testament, in Romans 15, to prove that God is interested in saving Gentiles.

Psalm 118. This psalm was a particular favorite of Martin Luther. A national psalm of thanksgiving, it apparently accompanied a procession into the temple, probably that of a thanksgiving offering. The changes of person in the psalm indicate that it may have been recited antiphonally, though the following explanation is admittedly conjectural. First, there is an exchange before the door of the temple (vv. 1–20). The first four verses are a sort of invocation, probably delivered by a priest. Next, in verses 5–18 the king leads the people in worship with himself as the speaker, though interrupted at times by antiphonal refrains offered by the people (vv. 8, 9, 10–12). In verse 19 the king turns to the doorkeeper and asks for entrance. The doorkeeper responds with a description of those who may enter (v. 20, retranslating as a statement: “This is the gate of the LORD”). The remainder of the psalm takes place within the temple (vv. 21–29). Again there are apparently three speakers. First, the king declares that God has saved him (v. 21). The people respond in a joyful manner to this affirmation (vv. 22–24). The employment of the stone imagery to represent the Davidic king is echoed messianically throughout the New Testament (Matt. 21:42; Mark 12:10, 11; Luke 20:17; Acts 4:11; 1 Pet. 2:7). Next, the priests deliver a petition and a blessing (vv. 25, 26). The final three verses portray the presentation of the actual sacrifice: the priests command it (v. 27), the king responds with praise (v. 28), and the people seal the ceremony with the same liturgical formula with which it began (v. 29).

Praise the Lord

19 ^aOpen to me the gates of righteousness: I will go into them, and I will praise the LORD:

PSALM 119

Abide in God's Word

⌘ ALEPH

BLESSED are the ¹undefiled in the way, ^awho walk in the law of the LORD.

2 Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the ^awhole heart.

Psalm 119. Well known as the longest chapter in the Bible, this psalm is one of the acrostics. However, unlike the other acrostics, which contain only one verse for each of the 22 Hebrew letters, Psalm 119 includes eight verses for each letter, making a total of 176 verses! Thus there are 22 stanzas, each containing eight verses beginning with the same Hebrew letter. As with most acrostics, there is no logical outline or flow of thought discernible, either within a stanza or from one stanza to another. The best way to study this type of psalm is by topics. There can hardly be any question as to the major topic of Psalm 119, however, since the Word of God is mentioned in all but three verses (vv. 84, 121, 122)! The multifaceted character of God's Word is revealed by at least eight key synonyms for it in the psalm. (1) Law (tōrah) is the most frequent of the words. It comes from a verb meaning "to teach," and thus came to be applied to a wide range of revelation, from an individual directive to the entire Pentateuch. It emphasizes that God has taught us in His Word what He requires of us. (2) Testimonies (edōt) emphasizes the content of the Word as that which God has testified of Himself and His will. (3) Precepts (piqūdim) refers to instructions from 3 ^aThey also do no iniquity: they walk in his ways.

5 O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes!

6 ^aThen shall I not be ashamed, when I ¹have respect unto all thy commandments.

8 I will keep thy statutes: O forsake me not utterly.

a superior regarding the duties of those under him, in this case, from God to man. (4) Statutes (huqim) is related to a verb meaning “to engrave” and thus implies permanent and unchangeable regulations. (5) Commandments (mitsvot) is a word assuming the authority of the commander and the inherent necessity of obeying the content of the charge. (6) Judgments (mispatim) or ordinances refers to decisions God has made as a judge in order to make earthly behavior conform to His heavenly standard. (7) Word (dabar) is an all-embracing term for God’s revelation in any form. (8) Word (imra) might also be translated “promise,” though the translation does not distinguish it from the preceding term to whose meaning it relates closely. It comes from the verb “to say” and assumes that the content of revelation is from the mouth of God. Other terms that seem to speak of God’s Word include ways (vv. 3, 37), name (v. 55), and faithfulness (v. 90). With these key words to express the substance of God’s revelation, the psalmist explores the entire gamut of human response to the Word of God: praise and thanksgiving for it, petitions that it may be kept, petitions that the psalmist may experience its comfort or conviction, confidence that its promises will be fulfilled, prayer for the ability to understand it, petitions that those who disregard it (the wicked) may be judged, and so on. Because of this exaltation of the Word of God, this psalmist has sometimes been accused of worshiping the Word itself. However, his adoration of the Word always leads to its Author who inspired it. All believers should be accused of this kind of love for the Bible!

ILLUMINATION

119:18. Illumination is the ministry of the Holy Spirit by which He causes Christians to understand the truths of God revealed in Scripture. The word conviction, meaning “cause to see,” is primarily used of the Spirit’s work in revealing sin in the unsaved (John 16:8). The word understanding is used of the Spirit’s work in revealing other truth in Scripture. Illustration: The psalmist recognized the need for supernatural aid in understanding the Scriptures and prayed that his eyes would be opened (v. 18). This would also be a good prayer for Christians today as they approach the Scriptures. Application: Since the Bible was written by holy men of God, inspired by the Holy Spirit, it should also be read by holy men and women of God illumined by the Holy Spirit. (First Reference, Ps. 119:18; Primary Reference, Ps. 119:18; cf. Deut. 29:29.)

PSALM 122

Joy in the House of the Lord

A Song of degrees of David.

I WAS glad when they said unto me, "Let us go into the house of the LORD.

2 Our feet shall stand within thy gates, O Jerusalem.

3 Jerusalem is builded as a city that is "compact together:

4 "Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the LORD, ¹unto ^bthe testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the LORD.

5 "For there are set thrones of judgment, the thrones of the house of David.

6 "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee.

7 Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces.

8 For my brethren and companions' sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee.

9 Because of the house of the LORD our God I will "seek thy good.

Psalms 120. This psalm is the first of 15 that are called in the superscription A song of degrees (better: "A Song of Ascents"). Four suggestions have been made as to the meaning and application of the word ascents. (1) It refers to ascending from Babylon to Jerusalem after the Captivity (cf. Ezra 7:9 for such usage). (2) It refers to 15 steps of the temple on which worshipers sang these hymns. (3) It is a literary reference, that is, these psalms are written in well-denoted ascending moods or thoughts. (4) It refers to the thrice-yearly trip that every male made to Jerusalem for the three great annual feasts of Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles (Deut. 16:16). In this last view the "ascending" is a physical ascension to Jerusalem. This view has the most to commend it, and thus these psalms have become known as the "Pilgrim Psalms," sung by pilgrims on their way to Jerusalem. Psalm 120 itself is a prayer of a man living in spiritual exile (v. 5).

He is a man of peace in a warring community. The psalm includes the prayer of the psalmist (vv. 1, 2), the punishment of the liar who has spoken falsehood (vv. 3, 4), and the predicament of the psalmist (vv. 5-7).

Psalms 121. This psalm fits well against the backdrop of a pilgrimage for it is concerned with the uncertainties one faces on such a journey. It moves naturally from the need for help (vv. 1, 2) to the promise of God's protection (vv. 3-8). Verse 1b should probably be retranslated as a question, which is quite permissible. The psalmist is not looking at the hills as a source of help but as a source of threat or harm. Then he raises the question: From whence cometh my help? Verse 2 is his immediate answer.

Psalms 122. The end of a pilgrimage to Jerusalem was probably the occasion of this psalm. It contains a recollection of the pilgrimage (vv. 1, 2), praise for Jerusalem (vv. 3-5), and a prayer for Jerusalem (vv. 6-9).

2 As the mountains ¹are round

PSALM 126

Sow Tears and Reap Joy

A Song of degrees.

WHEN ^athe LORD ¹turned again the captivity of Zion, ^bwe were like them that dream.

2 Then ^awas our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the ¹heathen, The LORD hath done great

3 The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad.

4 ¹Turn again our captivity, O
LORD, as the streams in the south.

5 ^aThey that sow in tears shall reap in joy.

6 He that goeth ¹forth and weepeth, bearing ²precious seed, shall doubtless come again with ^arejoicing,³ bringing his sheaves with him.

Psalm 123. This psalm expresses first the trusting attitude of the psalmist (vv. 1, 2), then his petition offered from a distressing situation (vv. 3, 4).

Psalm 124. This psalm reflects on deliverance from danger. From a realization of the Lord's help (vv. 1-5), the psalmist moves to the appropriate response to the Lord's help (vv. 6-8).

Psalm 125. Security in the Lord is the keynote of this psalm, an appropriate theme for pilgrims. It includes a description of security (vv. 1-3), a prayer for prosperity (v. 4), and a warning of judgment (v. 5).

Psalm 126. At first glance the setting of this psalm appears to be the return from the Babylonian exile. However, the description is so general that it could refer to any number of events recorded in the historical books in which Israel was under pressure from foreign powers. In fact, two captivities seem to be in view in this psalm: one that was ended by God's intervention (vv. 1-3), and the present one, the subject of the psalmist's petition (v. 4). The psalm may be thus outlined: praise for a past restoration (vv. 1-3), petition for restoration at the present (v. 4), and confidence in restoration in the future (vv. 5, 6).

PSALM 127

Labouring in Vain

A Song of degrees ¹for Solomon.

EXCEPT the LORD build the house, they labour in vain that build it: except ^athe LORD ¹keep the city, the watchman ²waketh but in vain.

² It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late, to ^aeat the bread of sorrows: for so he giveth his beloved sleep.

³ Lo, ^achildren are an heritage of the LORD: and ^bthe fruit of the womb is his ^creward.

⁴ As arrows are in the hand of a ¹mighty man; so are children of the youth.

God's Righteous Power

² Many a time have they afflicted me from my youth: yet they have not prevailed against me.

PSALM 130

Hoping and Waiting for the Lord

A Song of degrees.

OUT ^aof the depths have I cried unto thee, O LORD.

² Lord, hear my voice: let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.

⁴ But there is ^aforgiveness with thee, that ^bthou mayest be ¹feared.

Psalm 127. The principle of this psalm is that all human efforts are in vain unless they have God's blessing. This principle is applied to four areas: building a house (v. 1a), guarding a city (v. 1b), working long hours (v. 2), and having children (vv. 3-5). It is possible to accomplish all of these things without God's blessing, but it is not possible to accomplish them purposefully and with eternal value without God's blessing. The psalm includes, incidentally, two practical reasons for having children: they bring you joy and they protect you (v. 5).

Psalm 128. The message of this psalm is that one is never truly happy until he is truly holy. It begins with a pronouncement of blessing (or happiness) on a certain kind of man—a man who fears the Lord (vv. 1-4). It concludes with a prayer for blessing (vv. 5, 6).

Psalm 129. This psalm grows out of a situation of conflict. The psalmist looks back at the record of the past: though he was afflicted, God delivered him (vv. 1-4). Then he sets forth a prayer for the future: let God confound the enemies and bless His people (vv. 5-8).

Psalm 130. The first four words of this psalm would form an appropriate title: Out of the depths, and that is the title by which it is known in Latin (De Profundis). This is the initial position of the psalmist as he offers his petition to the Lord for deliverance (vv. 1-4). He then quickly moves to an expression of expectation (vv. 5, 6) and ends with an outward focus consisting of exhortation to others to hope in the Lord (vv. 7, 8).

5 ^aI wait for the LORD, my soul doth wait, and ^bin his word do I hope.

6 ^aMy soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning: I say, more than they that watch for the morning.

7 ^aLet Israel hope in the LORD: for ^bwith the LORD there is ¹mercy, and with him is ²plenteous redemption.

8 And ^ahe shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

PSALM 131

A Humble Heart

A Song of degrees of David.

LORD, my heart is not ¹haughty, nor mine eyes ²lofty: ^aneither do I ³exercise myself in great matters, or in things too ⁴high for me.

2 Surely I have ¹behaved and quieted myself, ^aas a child that is weaned of his mother: my soul is even as a weaned child.

3 ^aLet Israel hope in the LORD from henceforth and for ever.

PSALM 132

A Habitation for the Lord

A Song of degrees.

LORD, remember David, and all his afflictions:

2 How he sware unto the LORD, ^aand vowed unto ^bthe mighty God of Jacob;

3 Surely I will not come into the ¹tabernacle of my house, nor go up into my bed;

4 I will ^anot give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids,

5 Until I ^afind out a place for the LORD, an ¹habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

132:18 ^aJob 8:22; Ps. 35:26

133:1 ^aGen. 13:8; Heb. 13:1

Psalm 131. An intensely personal song of humility, this psalm contains David's declaration of humility (v. 1), declaration of trust (v. 2), and call for hope (v. 3).

Psalm 132. The author of this psalm realized that belief in God's promises forms the basis for the saint's prayer. Because he believes in those promises, he prays for the current Davidic king. The psalm may be outlined as follows: a petition to remember David's oath (vv. 1-5), a reference to David's trouble in bringing the ark to Jerusalem; a resolution to worship at the tabernacle (vv. 6, 7), including the recollection of its retrieval; a petition for the ark and present king (vv. 8-10); and a reiteration of the Davidic covenant (vv. 11-18).

Psalm 133. This psalm is all about the preciousness of family unity. Its blessedness is exclaimed (v. 1) and explained (vv. 2, 3). It sanctifies (v. 2) and solidifies (v. 3).

2 It is like the precious ¹ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the ²skirts of his garments;

3 As the dew of ^aHermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for ^bthere the LORD commanded the blessing, even life for evermore.

PSALM 134

Bless the Lord

A Song of degrees.

BEHOLD, bless ye the LORD, all ye servants of the LORD, which by night stand in the house of the LORD.

2 ^aLift up your hands in the sanctuary, and bless the LORD.

3 The LORD that made heaven and earth bless thee out of Zion.

PSALM 135

Praise the Lord

PRAISE ye the LORD. Praise ye the name of the LORD; ^apraise him, O ye servants of the LORD.

2 ^aYe that stand in the house of the LORD, in ^bthe courts of the house of our God,

3 Praise the LORD; for ^athe LORD is good: sing praises unto his name; ^bfor it is pleasant.

4 For ^athe LORD hath chosen Jacob unto himself, and Israel for his ¹peculiar treasure.

5 For I know that ^athe LORD is great, and that our Lord is above all gods.

6 ^aWhatsoever the LORD pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth, in the seas, and all deep places.

PSALM 136

Give Thanks for All God's Mercies

O ^aGIVE thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: ^bfor his ¹mercy endureth for ever.

2 O give thanks unto ^athe God of gods: for his mercy endureth for ever.

Psalm 134. Though the first song of degrees found the psalmist in the dire straits of alien territory, this last one finds God's servants serving Him day and night in His house. The psalm is apparently antiphonal: the people call on the priests to bless the Lord (vv. 1, 2); the priests respond by pronouncing a blessing on the people (v. 3).

Psalm 135. A classic example of the hymn of praise, this psalm contains the three key elements: a call to praise (vv. 1–3), a cause for praise (vv. 4–18), and a conclusion (vv. 19–21). The reasons cited in the cause for praise are instructive in the elements of Israel's theology: because the Lord of Israel is the only true God (vv. 5–7), because He is the Savior of Israel (vv. 8–14), and because He is greater than worthless idols (vv. 15–18).

3 O give thanks to the Lord of lords: for his mercy endureth for ever.

4 To him ^awho alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever.

5 ^aTo him that by wisdom made the heavens: for his mercy endureth for ever.

8 ^aThe sun to rule by day: for his mercy endureth for ever:

9 The moon and stars to rule by night: for his mercy endureth for ever.

10 ^aTo him that ¹smote Egypt in their firstborn: for his mercy endureth for ever:

PSALM 137

The Songs of Zion

BY the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.

2 We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof.

3 For there they that carried us away captive ¹required of us a song; and they that ^awasted² us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion.

4 How shall we sing the LORD's song in a ¹strange land?

5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her ¹cunning.

6 If I do not remember thee, let my ^atongue ¹cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy.

7 Remember, O LORD, ^athe children of Edom in the day of Jerusalem; who said, ¹Rase it, rase it, even to the foundation thereof.

Psalm 136. This psalm is a hymn of praise like the preceding: a call to praise (vv. 1-3), a cause for praise (vv. 4-25), and a conclusion (v. 26). However, this psalm is absolutely unique because its refrain is repeated at the end of each verse: for his mercy endureth for ever. The psalm was no doubt sung antiphonally with the people responding with the refrain. The word mercy is important in the Psalter. It refers to God's loyal love for His people: He is in covenant with them, and He loves to be loyal to that covenant.

Psalm 137. Containing one of the more graphic imprecatory prayers, this psalm was written during the Babylonian captivity, or perhaps shortly afterward. It contains a cry in captivity (vv. 1-4), a vow of remembrance (vv. 5, 6), and a prayer for judgment (vv. 7-9). (On the subject of imprecations, see the note on Ps. 109.) The vividness of the final verse is justified if one remembers a simple fact: baby Babylonians grow up to be big Babylonians. The hope that their babies will die is the prayer that no new Babylonian generation will arise seeking worldwide dominion through cruel oppression.

8 O daughter of Babylon, ^awho art to be destroyed; happy shall he be, ^bthat rewardeth thee as thou hast served us.

9 Happy shall he be, that taketh and ^adasheth thy little ones against the stones.

PSALM 139

Praise to the All-Knowing God

To the chief Musician,

A Psalm of David.

O LORD, ^athou hast searched me, and known me.

2 ^aThou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou ^bunderstandest my thought afar off.

3 ^aThou ¹compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways.

4 For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O LORD, ^athou knowest it altogether.

5 Thou hast ¹beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me.

6 ^a*Such* knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it.

7 ^aWhither ¹shall I go from thy spirit? or whither ¹shall I flee from thy presence?

8 ^aIf I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: ^bif I make my bed in ¹hell, behold, thou art there.

9 If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;

10 Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me.

11 If I say, Surely the darkness shall ¹cover me; even the night shall be light about me.

Psalm 138. This psalm of thanksgiving begins with individual praise (vv. 1-3), but looks forward to universal praise (vv. 4-6). The praise offered to God does not change the contemporary troubles, but the psalmist does expect deliverance from them (vv. 7, 8).

Psalm 139. Certainly one of the grandest psalms in all of the Psalter, it is also one of the richest theologically. It combines an exposition of the greatness of God's character with the reality of human experience. From verses 19-22 we find that David wrote the psalm during a time of opposition. It therefore contains truths that were meaningful to him during these troublesome times. They may be summarized under four key thoughts as David addresses the Lord: You know me (vv. 1-6), You are with me (vv. 7-12), You created me (vv. 13-18), and Your cause is my cause (vv. 19-24).

COMPARATIVE ATTRIBUTES OF GOD

Psalm 139. The comparative attributes of God contrast human abilities with the divine nature. Everyone has some knowledge, but only God has all knowledge (omniscience). Everyone has presence, but only God has presence at all times everywhere (omnipresence). Every person has some degree of power, but only God has unlimited power (omnipotence). Illustration: Psalm 139 lays a foundation for understanding the comparative attributes. The omniscience of God is seen in verses 1-6. The omnipresence of God is seen in verses 7-11. The omnipotence of God is seen in verses 12-16. Application: A Christian's response to the comparative attributes of God should be to surrender to His leadership because He is wise, he is able to protect us, and He knows the true way to life with Himself. (First Reference, Gen. 3:8; Primary Reference, Ps. 139:1; cf. Eph. 1:8.)

12 Yea, ^athe darkness ¹hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee.

13 For thou hast ¹possessed my reins: thou hast ²covered me in my mother's womb.

14 I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth ¹right well.

15 ^aMy ¹substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and ²curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.

16 Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being ¹unperfect; and in thy book all my members were written, ²which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them.

17 ^aHow precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them!

18 If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee.

19 Surely thou wilt ^aslay the wicked, O God: ^bdepart from me therefore, ye ¹bloody men.

20 For they ^aspeak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain.

21 ^aDo not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee? and ¹am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee?

22 I hate them with ¹perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies.

23 ^aSearch me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my ¹thoughts:

24 And see if there be any wicked way in me, and ^alead me in the way everlasting.

PSALM 141

Keep My Heart from Evil

A Psalm of David.

LORD, I cry unto thee: make haste unto me; give ear unto my voice, when I cry unto thee.

2 Let my prayer be set forth before thee ^aas incense; and ^bthe lifting up

Psalm 140. Psalms 140–143 may be linked together since they all portray, though in different ways, the godly response to trials. All four are prayers, and all four are written by David, though only Psalm 142 contains a historical notice in the superscription. The situation underlying Psalm 140 itself is clear from the first verse: David is being threatened by his enemies. They are quite adequately described in his lament (vv. 1–5), but David turns to God with his petition against them (vv. 6–11), confident that he will be heard (vv. 12, 13).

PSALM 143

A Prayer for Guidance and Deliverance

A Psalm of David.

HEAR my prayer, O LORD, give ear to my supplications: in thy faithfulness answer me, and in thy righteousness.

2 And enter not into judgment with thy servant: ^afor in thy sight shall no man living be ¹justified.

3 For the enemy hath persecuted my soul; he hath ¹smitten my life down to the ground; he hath made me to dwell in ²darkness, as those that have been long dead.

4 ^aTherefore is my spirit overwhelmed within me; my heart within me is desolate.

5 ^aI remember the days of old; I meditate on all thy works; I ¹muse on the work of thy hands.

6 I stretch forth my hands unto thee: ^amy soul thirsteth after thee, as a thirsty land. Selah.

7 ¹Hear me speedily, O LORD: my spirit faileth: hide not thy face from me, ^alest I ²be like unto them that go down into the pit.

Psalm 141. The occasion of this psalm may be stated generally as one of sore temptation, both internal (vv. 3, 4) and external (vv. 9, 10). The fact that almost every verse contains the vocabulary of petition adds to the urgency of David's request. Thus he prays for God's attention (vv. 1, 2), for restraint (vv. 3-7), and for refuge (vv. 8-10).

Psalm 142. As the superscription indicates, David's distress this time is the dogged pursuit by his enemies. When he was in the cave could refer to the cave of Adullam (1 Sam. 22:1, 2) or En-gedi (1 Sam. 24:1-7).

After presenting his lament (vv. 1-4), David lifts up his petition (vv. 5, 6) and promises his thanksgiving when God answers (v. 7).

Psalm 143. Again David is beset by enemies, and again he knows to whom he must turn. After addressing the Lord (vv. 1, 2), he pours out his lament (vv. 3-6), recalls God's help in former distresses (v. 5), and offers his petition to the only One who can correct the matter (vv. 6-12). The pressing nature of his request is revealed clearly in the 11 entreaties directed to God in the final six verses.

8 Cause me to hear thy loving-kindness ^ain the morning; for in thee do I trust: ^bcause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I ^clift up my soul unto thee.

9 Deliver me, O LORD, from mine enemies: ¹I flee unto thee to hide me.

10 ^aTeach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: ^bthy spirit is good; lead me into ^cthe land of uprightness.

11 ^aQuicken ¹me, O LORD, for thy name's sake; for thy righteousness' sake bring my soul out of trouble.

12 And of thy mercy ^acut ¹off mine enemies, and destroy all them that afflict my soul: for I am thy servant.

PSALM 145

God's Unsearchable Greatness

David's ^aPsalm of praise.

I WILL ¹extol thee, my God, O king; and I will bless thy name for ever and ever.

Psalm 144. This royal psalm appears to be a compilation from other psalms (8, 18, 33, 102—104, but mainly 18). This is not unusual, since a portion from one psalm may be readily excised and adapted for a different usage. In general, the psalm may be described as the prayer of a king for victory and blessing. The call to God (vv. 1–4) expresses both David's trust (vv. 1, 2) and his human weakness (vv. 3, 4). Having placed himself in a position of dependency, he is then prepared to offer his petition for divine retaliation against his enemies (vv. 5–8), his own promise of thanksgiving (v. 9), his petition for victory (vv. 10, 11), and his petition for the blessing of the people (vv. 12–15).

Psalm 145. This psalm is known for several distinguishing marks: it is the last acrostic psalm, the last Davidic psalm, the only psalm to be called a praise psalm in the superscription, and the first of the six great praise psalms that conclude the collection. While there is no logical flow of argument running from one psalm to another throughout the Psalter, all are agreed that Psalm 1 forms a fitting introduction and that these last six psalms constitute the most appropriate conclusion to the Psalter. After the characteristic call to praise (vv. 1, 2), David offers four key reasons to praise the Lord in the section called the cause for praise (vv. 3–20): the Lord is great (v. 3), He is gracious and merciful (vv. 8, 9), He sustains all who fall (v. 14), and He is righteous in His ways and kind in His deeds (v. 17). The conclusion is a renewal of the call to praise (v. 21).

2 Every day will I bless thee; and I will praise thy name for ever and ever.

3 ^aGreat is the LORD, and greatly to be praised; and ^bhis greatness is ¹unsearchable.

4 ^aOne generation shall praise thy works to another, and shall declare thy mighty acts.

5 I will ¹speak of the glorious ²honour of thy majesty, and of thy wondrous works.

6 And men shall speak of the might of thy ¹terrible acts: and I will declare thy greatness.

7 They shall ¹abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness, and shall sing of thy righteousness.

8 ^aThe LORD is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy.

9 ^aThe LORD is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works.

10 ^aAll thy works shall praise thee, O LORD; and thy saints shall bless thee.

11 They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power;

12 To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom.

13 ^aThy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations.

14 The LORD upholdeth all that fall, and ^araiseth up all those that be bowed down.

15 ^aThe eyes of all ¹wait upon thee; and ^bthou givest them their ²meat in due season.

16 Thou openest thine hand, ^aand satisfiest the desire of every living thing.

17 The LORD is righteous in all his ways, and ¹holy in all his works.

18 ^aThe LORD is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him ^bin truth.

19 He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will save them.

PSALM 147

Sing Praise to the Lord

PRAISE¹ ye the LORD: for ^ait is good to sing praises unto our God; ^bfor it is pleasant; and ^cpraise is ²comely.

Psalm 146. The last five psalms stand out quite conspicuously in the Psalter. Each begins and ends with Praise ye the LORD (Heb. Hallelujah), none contains petition or lament, none contains historical allusion to any large extent, and each strikes a distinct note of praise not found in the others. That note in Psalm 146 is a personal one. It is the only one of the five containing the personal pronoun I (v. 2). Thus, the call to praise (vv. 1, 2) is addressed by the psalmist to himself. Though in the body of the psalm (vv. 3–9) he exhorts other pious Israelites to trust in the Lord's providential care, in the conclusion (v. 10) he envisions an even wider audience.

2 The LORD doth ^abuild up Jerusalem: ^bhe gathereth together the outcasts of Israel.

3 ^aHe healeth the broken in heart, and bindeth up their ¹wounds.

PSALM 148

Praise from the Heavens

PRAISE¹ ye the LORD. Praise ye the LORD from the heavens: praise him in the heights.

2 Praise ye him, all his angels: praise ye him, all his hosts.

3 Praise ye him, sun and moon: praise him, all ye stars of light.

9 ^aMountains, and all hills; fruitful trees, and all cedars:

10 Beasts, and all cattle; creeping things, and flying fowl:

11 Kings of the earth, and all people; princes, and all judges of the earth:

12 Both young men, and maidens; old men, and children:

13 Let them praise the name of the LORD: for his ^aname alone is ¹excellent; his glory is above the earth and heaven.

Psalm 147. If the previous psalm is individualistic, this psalm forms an appropriate contrast with its emphasis on communal praise. The three sections of the psalm are clearly discernible since each is initiated with a call to praise (vv. 1, 7, 12) and then followed by a cause for praise: (1) because the Lord delivers the oppressed (vv. 2-6); (2) because the Lord provides for the faithful (vv. 8-11); and (3) because the Lord especially protects Israel (vv. 13-20).

Psalm 148. Since nothing in heaven above or on earth below is left out in this praise psalm, it may appropriately be designated as the psalm of universal praise. Its structure is quite distinct: there are two calls to praise, each ending with a cause for praise. The psalmist first calls on the heavenly beings and the heavenly bodies to praise the Lord (vv. 1-4) because of His creative power (vv. 5, 6). Then the psalmist issues a second call to praise addressed to the earthly beings and earthly substances (vv. 7-12) because of the glory of the Lord and of His people (vv. 13, 14).

14 He also ^aexalteth the ¹horn of his people, the praise of ^ball his saints; even of the children of Israel, ^ca people near unto him. ²Praise ye the LORD.

PSALM 150

Praise God's Mighty Acts

PRAISE¹ ^aye the LORD. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in ²the firmament of his power.

2 Praise him for his mighty acts: praise him according to his excellent ^agreatness.

3 Praise him with the sound of the ¹trumpet: praise him with the ²psaltery and harp.

4 Praise him with the timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and organs.

5 Praise him upon the loud cymbals: praise him upon the high sounding cymbals.

6 Let every thing that hath breath praise the LORD. ¹Praise ye the LORD.

Psalm 149. The unique aspect of praise highlighted in this psalm is that praise is related to the kingdom of the Lord. Though the psalm begins with the normal call to praise (vv. 1–3), the cause for praise (vv. 4–9) is quite unexpected: it is because the Lord intends to establish His kingdom on the earth. This kingdom involves both the glorification of the righteous (vv. 4–6) and the judgment of the wicked (vv. 7–9). This aspect of judgment is apparently to be carried out by the righteous (vv. 6–9). This passage should be taken in a prophetic sense to refer to the time when God will in fact establish His kingdom on the earth with His glorified saints right behind Him (Rev. 19:11–21). Even in this age of grace, believers are instructed to pray “Thy kingdom come” (Matt. 6:10), a petition that includes not only the glorification of the righteous but the destruction of the wicked.

Psalm 150. The first psalm contains only six verses and speaks of the man who is blessed. The last psalm also contains six verses but speaks of the God who is praised. No more fitting conclusion to the book could have been written. While the other four books of the Psalms end with a brief verse or two of doxology, Psalm 150 in its entirety forms the doxology to consummate the fifth book. As the final song of praise, it appropriately answers four key questions about praise. (1) Where should God be praised? Everywhere, from His sanctuary on earth to His heavenly creation (v. 1). (2) Why should God be praised? For His powerful deeds on behalf of men and for His inherent greatness (v. 2). (3) How should God be praised? With every suitable instrument man can offer with his God-given creativity and artistry (vv. 3–5). (4) Who should praise God? Everything that breathes (v. 6). Though every verse of the psalm is cast in the form of a call to praise, the hymn is certainly prophetic of a day when every creature will in fact bow in praise to the Almighty God (Phil. 2:11; Rev. 5:8–14).

The Book of PROVERBS

Title. The book provides its own title from 1:1, though the Hebrew word (mashal) translated “proverb” has a much broader meaning than our English word. See the note on 1:1.

Authorship. Though Solomon’s name is traditionally attached to the entire book, it is clear from 22:17; 24:23; 30:1; and 31:1 that unidentified wise men, as well as two who are identified (Agur and Lemuel), also shared in the composition of the book. There are three Solomonic collections in the book (1:1; 10:1; 25:1). Since Solomon authored most of the book, the attachment of his name to it is warranted.

Date. Because most of the book was authored by Solomon, its contents should be dated in the middle of the tenth century B.C. On the other hand, the book’s final form could not have existed earlier than the time of Hezekiah (c. 700 B.C.) since Solomon’s proverbs were still being collected at that time (25:1).

Interpretation and Purpose. The purpose of the book is clearly to show the reader how to live life wisely or skillfully. As a matter of fact, the entire structure of the book is arranged to carry out this purpose. In the Introduction (1:1–7) the title, purpose, and motto of the book are clearly spelled out. Beginning in 1:8 there are 10 consecutive exhortations or homilies, each beginning with the words “my son.” In this series of exhortations the father sets before the son what might well be called “the theology of the two ways”: the way of wisdom and the way of folly. These passages do not contain individual proverbs, but consist of brief, logically argued treatises that serve to whet the son’s appetite to apply the actual proverbs, which begin at 10:1. The juxtaposition of such discourses in the same book with the two-line saying is common in the ancient Near Eastern wisdom literature. In 10:1–22:16 there are 375 proverbs of Solomon, each of which represents in some way the choice to be made between wisdom and folly. The remaining 284 verses are divided among several authors, but they likewise carry on the same theme.

There is an ordered flow of thought in the first nine chapters of the book, but this is not true beginning at 10:1. The best way to study the latter section is by topics. A simple perusal of the subjects covered leaves the distinct impression that wisdom is prerequisite to skillful dealing in every area of life. Indeed this is the very aim of the authors! These topics include: the family, death, life, discretion, eating, enemies, the fear of the Lord, the fool, friendship, God, the heart (or mind), the home, the king, knowledge, labor, law, lazy people, love, neighbors, peace, poverty, prayer, pride, riches, righteousness, sex, shame, sin, sleep, soul, spirit, the tongue, trust, the wicked, wine, wisdom, women, and words. If one inculcates into his life the moral discipline commanded in chapters 1–9 and masters the practical application of wisdom expressed in chapters 10–31, he will truly have an abundant and successful life.

8 “My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother:

9 For they shall be an ornament

1:1. The basic meaning of the Hebrew word for proverb is “comparison,” but it came to stand for a wide range of wise pronouncements including the byword (Jer. 24:9), lament (Mic. 2:4), and thought-provoking saying (Ezek. 12:22; 18:2). In the Book of Proverbs the word is used to refer to an aphorism, or concise statement of a principle (10:1ff.), or to a discourse (1:8–9:18).

1:2. Wisdom is the key word of the book and basically means “skill in living.” It is used in the Old Testament to refer to a physical skill such as tailoring (Ex. 28:3), metalwork and woodwork (Ex. 31:3–6), spinning (Ex. 35:26), engraving and designing (Ex. 35:35), and warfare (Is. 10:13). Used metaphorically, as in Proverbs, it refers to the skill to live life successfully. Instruction refers to moral discipline of one’s life, not to classroom instruction. Understanding means the capability to distinguish between true and false, good and bad, what matters most and what does not matter at all.

1:3. Wisdom, a different Hebrew word from that used in verse 2, means “wise behavior,” “wise dealing,” “good sense.” Justice is the same word as righteousness and refers to conformity to God’s law. Judgment is a legal term used of a judge’s verdict and refers to right behavior. Equity is fairness in one’s dealings with others.

1:4. The simple are naive young people open to any influence, among the chief addressees in the book. Knowledge means the apprehension of reality, including an experiential knowledge of God. Discretion refers to the power of formulating and carrying out the right measures.

1:5. The wise as well as the untaught can learn from this book.

1:6. Dark sayings is the term for “riddles,” or those thought-provoking sayings of the wise.

1:7. The fear of the LORD means submission to the Lord and His revelation. When one is afraid of something, he either runs from it or submits to it. The latter idea is in view here. It is a healthy fear, like the fear of electricity or the fear of one’s parents, which causes one to act in an appropriate manner. The beginning does not mean that “the fear of the LORD” is left behind in the course of acquiring wisdom, but that it is the controlling principle of wisdom.

1:8. My son begins the first of 10 similar discourses in which the father appeals to the son to listen to his counsel and choose wisdom over folly. The mention of the mother shows that the original setting of the book was the home, not the court or school.

Walk Not in the Way of Sinners

10 My son, if sinners entice thee, ^aconsent thou not.

11 If they say, Come with us, let us ^alay wait ¹for blood, let us lurk ²privily for the innocent without cause:

12 Let us swallow them up alive as ¹the grave; and whole, ^aas those that go down into the pit:

13 We shall find all precious ¹substance, we shall fill our houses with ²spoil:

1:9. Chains about thy neck, that is, an adornment or thing of beauty in one's life.

1:10. Occasionally the expression my son occurs within a discourse. The wise son rejects the invitation of criminals who promise wealth without work (v. 13). The verse stresses the individual's responsibility to avoid the tempter's snare (cf. James 1:14, 15).

1:20-33. Wisdom is personified here as a prophetess calling in public places to everyone to come to her and learn. Three groups are especially singled out in the appeal: the simple ones, or untaught; the scorners, or scoffers; and the fools, or morally dull (v. 22). The consequences of rejecting wisdom are immense (vv. 26-28).

2:1-22. The conditions for obtaining wisdom are given first: one must earnestly seek it, as a prospector would search for gold (vv. 1-4). It is not an undirected search, however, since the parent's instruction is the basis. The consequences of obtaining wisdom are then listed (vv. 5-22): knowledge of God (vv. 5-8) and right conduct (vv. 9-22).

4 ^aIf thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures;

5 ^aThen shalt thou understand the ¹fear of the LORD, and find the knowledge of God.

6 ^aFor the LORD giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding.

7 He ¹layeth up sound wisdom for the righteous: ^a*he is a* ²buckler to them that walk uprightly.

8 He ¹keepeth the paths of judgment, and ^apreserveth the way of his saints.

9 Then shalt thou understand righteousness, and ¹judgment, and equity; yea, every good path.

Preserved by Discretion

10 When wisdom entereth into thine heart, and knowledge is pleasant unto thy soul;

11 Discretion shall preserve thee, ^aunderstanding shall keep thee:

12 To deliver thee from the way of the evil man, from the man that speaketh ¹froward things;

13 Who leave the paths of uprightness, to ^awalk in the ways of darkness;

14 ^aWho rejoice to do evil, and delight in the ¹frowardness of the wicked;

15 ^aWhose ways are crooked, and they ¹froward in their paths:

17 Which forsaketh the ¹guide of her youth, and forgetteth the covenant of her God.

2:16-19. This is the first of five passages in chapters 1-9 in which the son is warned to avoid sexual sin (cf. 5:1-23; 6:23-35; 7:4-27; 9:13-18). The strange woman means a foreigner, because most often the harlot was an alien.

3:1-12. This passage may be divided into six sections, each containing a command and a reason to obey that command.

3:3. About thy neck: The teachings should be made as much a part of one's adornment as a necklace. The table of thine heart, that is, the mind.

3:5, 6. Three commands are given: trust, meaning "rely on, depend on"; lean not, meaning do not depend on your own native instincts; and acknowledge him, meaning have fellowship and intimacy with God in all of life. The result of such devotion is that God will make the paths straight before you.

3:11, 12. God's correction shows His love (cf. Heb. 12:5, 6).

4 Hear, ^aye children, the instruction of a father, and attend to know understanding.

2 For I give you good doctrine, forsake ye not my law.

3 For I was my father's son, ^atender and only beloved in the sight of my mother.

4 He taught me also, and said unto me, Let thine heart retain my words: ^bkeep my commandments, and live.

Get Understanding

5 Get wisdom, get understanding: forget it not; neither¹ decline from the words of my mouth.

6 Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee: ^alove her, and she shall keep thee.

7 Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding.

8 Exalt her, and she shall promote thee: she shall bring thee to honour, when thou dost embrace her.

9 She shall¹ give to thine head ^aan ornament of grace: a crown of glory shall she deliver to thee.

10 Hear, O my son, and receive

3:19, 20. Wisdom is so important that God Himself used it in creating the world.

3:27-35. The needy neighbor is to be helped (vv. 27, 28); the innocent neighbor is to be respected and left alone (vv. 29, 30); and the wicked neighbor is not to be envied (vv. 31-35).

4:3, 4. Three generations are linked together in the transmission of wisdom. Note that it is transmitted by personal influence, especially in the home.

4:10-19. Here is a good summary of the theology of the entire book: two paths to choose from (cf. v. 16 with Matt. 7:13, 14).

The Lips of a Strange Woman

5 My son, ¹attend unto my wisdom, and ²bow thine ear to my understanding:

2 That thou mayest ¹regard discretion, and that thy lips ^amay keep knowledge.

3 ^aFor the lips of ¹a strange woman ²drop as an honeycomb, and her mouth is ^bsmoother than oil:

4 But ¹her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a twoedged sword.

7 Hear me now therefore, O ye children, and depart not from the words of my mouth.

8 Remove thy way far from her, and come not nigh the door of her house:

9 Lest thou give thine ¹honour unto others, and thy years unto the ²cruel:

10 Lest ¹strangers be filled with thy ²wealth; and thy labours be in the house of a ³stranger;

11 And thou mourn at the last,

4:22. Life in Proverbs often means “full life, abundant life,” and the absence of such life is frequently called “death.”

4:23. Heart could often be translated “mind” in the book. Since the Hebrews had no separate word for “mind,” the word “heart” often served to represent the seat of the intellect. The key to the whole man is his mind. Whatever captures the mind captures the man.

5:1–6. The son must incorporate the values of the father into his life before the temptation described actually occurs. Moral stability prior to the temptation is the prerequisite for successful resistance.

HEART

4:23. The Old Testament word heart often refers to the physical organ of the circulatory system. Both Testaments also see the heart figuratively as the center of the personality or spiritual life. The heart is the seat of intellect, emotions, will, and moral consciousness. It is the personality which has that extraordinary ability to perceive itself. The heart is presented as the seat of conscious life and the fountainhead of life. Illustration: Jesus taught that sin came out of the heart of people, thus defiling them (Mark 7:21–23). Yet after conversion, one of the characteristics of Christians is that they have the law of God written in their hearts (Heb. 8:8–12). Application: Christians should love the Lord with all their hearts (Matt. 22:37). (First Reference, Gen. 6:5; Primary Reference, Prov. 4:23; cf. Rom. 2:15.)

13 And have not obeyed the voice of my teachers, nor inclined mine ear to them that instructed me!

15 Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well.

Surety for a Friend

6 My son, ^aif thou be ¹surety for thy friend, if thou hast ²stricken thy hand with a stranger,

2 Thou art snared with the words of thy mouth, thou art taken with the words of thy mouth.

3 Do this now, my son, and deliver thyself, when thou art come into the hand of thy friend; go, humble thyself, and ¹make sure thy friend.

4 ^aGive not sleep to thine eyes, nor slumber to thine eyelids.

5 Deliver thyself as a ¹roe from the hand of the hunter, and as a bird from the hand of the ²fowler.

Consider the Ways of the Ant

6 ^aGo to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise:

7 Which having no ¹guide, overseer, or ruler,

8 Provideth her ¹meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest.

9 ^aHow long wilt thou ¹sleep, O sluggard? when wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?

10 Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep:

11 ^aSo shall thy poverty come as ¹one that travelleth, and thy ²want as an armed man.

The Wicked Devise Mischief

12 A ¹naughty person, a wicked man, walketh with a ²froward mouth.

5:9-14. The price of unchastity is immense: the loss of wealth (v. 10); the loss of health, a possible reference to venereal disease (v. 11); and self-regret (vv. 12-14). God tells the believer ahead of time what he will say if he gets involved in this sin.

5:15-18. The divine answer to sexual desire is fidelity within the marital bond. Sexual virility is here described as running waters that must be preserved for legitimate relationships.

5:19. Ravished means "intoxicated, exhilarated." This verse shows that the sexual relationship in marriage exists for pleasure as well as procreation.

5:21-23. Another reason for rejecting sexual temptation is that the Lord sees all and will punish the wrongdoer. He shall die does not necessarily mean a physical death, but it refers to an absence of life. The adulterer will miss out on the full and joyous life that God intended.

6:1-5. Surety for thy friend means to put up security for someone else's loan. This is a foolish act that can be remedied only by immediately pleading release by the friend (v. 3).

6:6-11. The sluggard is the habitually lazy person. He is admonished to learn two important lessons from the ant: (1) the ant has no guide, overseer, or ruler (v. 7), meaning that the ant does not have to have a taskmaster standing over it to make it work; it is a self-starter. (2) The ant is wise enough to prepare for predictable circumstances (v. 8). Two questions about sleep are posed to the sluggard (v. 9). His answer is given in verse 10: "Just a little bit more sleep!" The result of such laziness is dire poverty, which will come as suddenly and decisively as a robber (v. 11).

6:12-15. The wicked person winketh with his eyes, and so on. It must be understood that the evil man is winking, shuffling his feet, and pointing with his fingers for evil purposes. Frowardness refers to moral perversity (v. 14).

13 ^aHe winketh with his eyes, he ¹speaketh with his feet, he ²teacheth with his fingers;

14 ¹Frowardness is in his heart, ^ahe deviseth ²mischief continually; ^bhe soweth discord.

15 Therefore shall his calamity come ^asuddenly; suddenly shall he ^bbe broken ^cwithout remedy.

Seven Abominations the Lord Hates

16 These six things doth the LORD hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto ¹him:

17 ^aA ¹proud look, ^ba lying tongue, and ^chands that shed innocent blood,

18 ^aAn heart that ¹deviseth wicked imaginations, ^bfeet that be swift in running to ²mischief, 19 ^aA false witness that speaketh lies, and he that ^bsoweth discord among brethren.

Keep the Father's Commandment

20 ^aMy son, keep thy father's commandment, and forsake not the law of thy mother:

21 ^aBind them continually upon thine heart, and tie them about thy neck.

22 ^aWhen thou goest, it shall lead thee; when thou sleepest, ^bit shall keep thee; and when thou awakest, it shall talk with thee.

23 ^aFor the commandment is a lamp; and the law is light; and re-proofs of instruction are the way of life:

24 ^aTo keep thee from the evil woman, from the flattery of the tongue of a ¹strange woman.

25 ^aLust not after her beauty in thine heart; neither let her ¹take thee with her eyelids.

7 My son, keep my words, and ^alay¹ up my commandments with thee.

2 ^aKeep my commandments, and live; ^band my law as the apple of thine eye.

7:3 ^a Deut. 6:8; Prov. 6:21

6:16-19. The seven things the Lord hates are listed, the first five being described poetically under parts of the body associated with a particular sin: (1) a proud look, (lit., "proud eyes"); (2) an lying tongue; (3) hands that shed innocent blood; (4) an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations; (5) feet that be swift in running to mischief; (6) a false witness; and (7) he that soweth discord among brethren. It is clear from the last two items in the list that God is describing people whom He hates. The word hate should not be taken in an absolute sense, however, because it means "to reject from one's fellowship." These are the kinds of people whom God rejects.

6:20-35. A third warning against adultery.

6:21. Thine heart, better, "mind." The first thing to protect against the adulteress is not the body, but the mind.

6:27-35. Two comparisons are used to demonstrate the folly of adultery: (1) Just as fire burns clothing and coals burn feet, so adultery inevitably brings punishment; and (2) the punishment for adultery is unending in a sense. A thief may satisfy his victim with an appropriate payment, but an offended husband cannot be bought off (v. 35).

7:1-27. A fourth warning against immorality consumes the entire chapter. The victim in this case is

4 Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman:

5 ^aThat they may keep thee from the ¹strange woman, from the ²stranger which flattereth with her words.

The Ways of the Harlot

6 For at the window of my house I looked through my ¹casement,

7 And beheld among the simple ones, I discerned among ¹the youths, a young man ^avoid² of understanding,

8 Passing through the street near her corner; and he went the way to her house,

9 ^aIn the twilight, in the evening, in the black and dark night:

10 And, behold, there met him a woman with the attire of an harlot, and ¹subtil of heart.

11 ^a(She is loud and ¹stubborn; ^bher feet abide not in her house:

12 Now is she without, now in the streets, and ¹lieth in wait at every corner.)

13 So she caught him, and kissed him, and with ¹an impudent face said unto him, 14 I have peace offerings with me; this day have I payed my vows.

15 Therefore came I forth to meet thee, diligently to seek thy face, and I have found thee.

8 Doth not ^awisdom ¹cry? and understanding put forth her voice?

2 She ¹standeth in the top of ²high places, ³by the way in the places of the paths.

3 She ¹crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city, at the ²coming in at the doors.

a young man (v. 7) who is naive and untaught in moral discipline. He is at the wrong place at the wrong time (vv. 8, 9). The description of the harlot is vivid: she has the attire of an harlot (v. 10) which gives her intentions away; her character is loud and stubborn (v. 11); and her movements are all about town (v. 12). She uses shock treatment (v. 13); tells him that the time is ideal, a religious holiday (v. 14); and the place is ideal, a luxurious bedroom (vv. 16, 17). Finally, the goodman (husband) is not at home (v. 19) so there is nothing to fear. The one who so yields is as an ox goeth to the slaughter (v. 22). Since the father realizes that his sons could yield to the same temptation, he admonishes them to protect their heart, or mind (v.

25), before the time of temptation occurs. The destiny of those who commit such a sin is death (v. 27), or else a missing out on the real joy of married love. The real intimacy and pleasure that God intended in the marital act is forfeited in the adulterous relationship.

8:1-36. In contrast to the evil woman of chapter 7, another "woman" is presented: Wisdom personified again as a prophetess whose call the son should heed. After calling to all classes of men to come and be wise (vv. 4, 5), Wisdom praises in the first person her own moral excellence (vv. 6-9) and value (vv. 10-21). Furthermore, the Lord Himself did not begin to create the universe apart from wisdom (vv. 22-31). The climax of the passage is found in verses 32-36: whoso findeth

7 For my mouth shall speak truth; and wickedness is an abomination to my lips.

8 All the words of my mouth are in righteousness; there is nothing ¹froward or perverse in them.

9 They are all plain to him that understandeth, and right to them that find knowledge.

10 Receive my instruction, and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold.

Although some have associated verses 22–31 with the creative work of the preincarnate Christ (cf. John 1:1–3; Col. 1:15–17) who is revealed as the Wisdom of God (1 Cor. 1:24; Col. 2:3), the major emphasis of the context is on God's own use of wisdom in creating the universe. Those who would urge a reference to Christ here sometimes go on to point out that the Hebrew word translated "possessed" (v. 22) is rendered "created" in the Greek translation of the Old Testament, thus inferring that Christ is less than fully eternal God. However, although the Hebrew word (qanah) can at times be pressed to bear such a meaning (e.g., Ps. 139:13), it basically means "acquire," or "possess" (that which has been acquired). The translation "possess" is clearly the meaning elsewhere in Proverbs and best fits the context here. Thus, the point is that in setting out to create the universe, God utilized wisdom as a basic principle of procedure.

36 But he that sinneth against me “wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death.

9:1–18. Chapter 9 serves as an epilogue to the 10 exhortations of the first eight chapters. One last time the father sets before the son the ultimate choice the son must make between wisdom and folly. Wisdom invites the son to her feast (vv. 1–6), but Folly, pictured as the foolish, adulterous woman, likewise invites the listener to her feast (vv. 13–18). The latter passage is the fifth and final warning against sexual immorality. The response to these two invitations can be that of the scoffer or mocker (vv. 7, 8) or that of the wise man (vv. 9–11). To listen to Wisdom is to live (v. 6), or gain abundant life; to listen to Folly is to die (v. 18), or tragically miss out on what life is all about. The father has properly taught the son. It is now the son’s decision as to whom to follow. One way leads to life; the other, to death.

 10:1. The second Solomonic collection begins here and goes through 22:16. It consists of 375 individual proverbs, each of which expresses a complete idea. This is one of the few places in Scripture where context is little or no help. Each proverb represents in a practical way the choice one must make between the way of Wisdom and the way of Folly. Since these proverbs are unconnected, the best way to study them is by topics (see Introduction).
 10:2. A stark contrast in the profits of wickedness and the profits of righteousness: nothing versus life.

WISDOM OF GOD

9:1. The “wisdom of God” is used in three senses in the Scriptures. First, it refers to the higher perspective by which God understands things that man is incapable of understanding (1 Cor. 1:25). Second, it can refer to the understanding which a Christian should have in life (4:7). Also, wisdom is seen as a type of Christ, who is our wisdom (1 Cor. 1:30). Illustration: When David said Abner died as a fool (2 Sam. 3:33), he meant that Abner died because he followed his own intuition, rather than the wisdom of God, which would have saved him. He was killed as he turned aside in the gate of Hebron. Had he entered the city of refuge, as God had instructed, Joab would have been unable to kill him. Application: A wise Christian will obey the wisdom of God. (First Reference, Gen. 2:16, 17; Prima-ry Reference, Prov. 9:1; cf. John 3:16.)

3 ^aThe LORD will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish: but he casteth away the ¹substance of the wicked.

13:20. Wisdom, as well as folly, can be transferred by association.

fense. The rod refers to a branch or switch. It is a small object that stings, but does not inflict serious bodily harm. The use of the rod for spanking is clearly taught in Scripture in preference to spanking with one's hand (cf. 10:13; 22:15; 23:14, 15; 29:15). Hateth is used comparatively. Apply Your Heart to Knowledge 18 For it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them within thee; they shall withal be ¹fitted in thy lips.

19 That thy trust may be in the LORD, I have made known to thee this day, even to thee.

20 Have not I written to thee

21:31. Military preparedness is useless apart from the Lord, who really gives the victory.

22:1. A good reputation is more important than wealth.

22:2. Everybody is equal before God, rich and poor alike.

22:6. Train up a child refers to the total process of molding a child's life. The word train (chanak) comes from the root word meaning to "put into the mouth" and implies the idea of conditioning the palate. Thus, parental training should help children develop a taste for the things of God. The biblical pattern of effective parental training emphasizes a balance of instruction and discipline (cf. Eph. 6:1-4). The ideal parent is to be neither overly authoritarian nor overly permissive.

Rather, he must balance love and discipline so as not to "provoke" his child to rebellion. When he is old means simply, "when he is grown up," or a mature adult. It does not refer to his elderly years. The verse stresses the simple principle that education in the home forms the man throughout his lifetime.

22:13. The slothful man uses preposterous excuses to avoid work.

22:15. Corporal punishment is necessary for children due to inherent foolishness.

22:17. The verse begins a new section called simply the words of the wise. Extending through 24:22, it contains many parallels with an Egyptian wisdom book. This fact is not surprising in light of Solomon's interest in international wisdom (1 Kin. 4:29-34).

5 Take away the wicked from before the king, and his throne shall be established in ^arighteousness.

6 ¹Put not forth thyself in the presence of the king, and stand not in the place of great men:

7 ^aFor better it is that it be said unto thee, Come up hither; than that thou shouldest be put lower in the presence of the prince whom thine eyes have seen.

8 ^aGo not forth hastily to ¹strive, lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof, when thy neighbour hath put thee to shame.

A Word Fitly Spoken

11 A word ¹fitly ^aspoken is like apples of gold ²in pictures of silver.

25:11 ^a Prov. 15:23; Is. 50:4 ¹ spoken at the right time ² in settings

24:23. This verse begins further sayings of unidentified wise men.

24:30-34. The slothful is too lazy to keep thorns and nettles out of his vineyard or to keep his stone wall repaired (v. 31). His laziness is further exhibited in sleeping late when he should be working (v. 33). Therefore, his poverty will come as one that travelleth; that is, a bandit or vagabond. Small surrenders lead to great disasters.

25:1. A third collection of Solomon's proverbs, this one made by Hezekiah.

25:2. God has the prerogative to conceal (cf. Deut. 29:29), but a king's duty is to get to the bottom of things.

25:11. A timely and fitting word is precious and pleasing.

12 As an earring of gold, and an ornament of fine gold, so is a wise reprov-er upon an obedient ear.

13 ^aAs the cold of snow in the time of harvest, so is a faithful messenger to them that send him: for he re-fresheth the soul of his masters.

14 ^aWhoso boasteth ¹himself of a false gift is like ^bclouds and wind without rain.

15 ^aBy long forbearing is a prince persuaded, and a ¹soft tongue breaketh the bone.

16 Hast thou found honey? ¹eat so much as is sufficient for thee, lest thou be filled therewith, and vomit it.

17 ¹Withdraw thy foot from thy neighbour's house; lest he be weary of thee, and so hate thee.

A False Witness

18 ^aA man that beareth false witness against his neighbour is a ¹maul, and a sword, and a sharp arrow.

19 Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble is like a ¹broken tooth, and a foot out of joint.

20 As he that taketh away a garment in cold weather, and as vinegar upon ¹nitre, so is he that ^asingeth songs to an heavy heart.

21 ^aIf thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink:

22 For thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head, ^aand the LORD shall reward thee.

23 The north wind ¹driveth away rain: so doth ²an angry countenance ^aa backbiting tongue.

24 ^a*It is* better to dwell in the corner of the housetop, than ¹with a brawling woman and in a wide house.

25 As cold waters to a ¹thirsty soul, so is ^agood news from a far country.

25:19. Faith is only as good as its object, and an unfaithful man is useless.

25:20. Untimely cheerfulness is unbearable. To 25:22. Coals of fire does not refer to revenge or punishment but to the pangs of shame that will lead to reconciliation.

29:18. Vision refers to the divine revelation received by the prophet. Morality is based on adherence to God's revealed will.

29:21. The meaning of the verse is uncertain, but it seems to teach that a pampered servant will begin to expect the rights of a son.

30:1. Nothing is known of Agur, but he was likely one of the international sages of Solomon's day (cf. 1 Kin. 4:30, 31). The expression unto Ithiel, even unto Ithiel and Ucal may possibly be translated "I have wearied myself, O God, I have wearied myself, O God, and am faint."

30:4. The questions are designed, as God's questions to Job in Job 38–41, to press home the limitations of man's knowledge.

30:7–9. Agur's prayer is for a consistent and lifelong integrity, accompanied by a rejection of lies and riches. His resting in God's provision for him

(v. 8) anticipates the words of our Lord (Matt. 6:11).

30:10–33. The sage leaves to his readers a number of proverbial axioms (vv. 10, 15a, 17, 20, 32, 33) and several sets of wise pronouncements on some of the people, things, and situations that are observable in the ongoing activities of life. These latter thoughts are given in groups of four: four kinds of sinners (vv. 11–14), four insatiable things (vv. 15b, 16), four incomprehensible things (vv. 18, 19), four kinds of intolerable people (vv. 21–23), four irrepressible creatures that are small but mighty (vv. 24–28), and four stately beings (vv. 29–31). Conies (v. 26) are "rock badgers" or "marmots." Spider (v. 28) may be translated "lizard" though the point remains the same. The word greyhound (v. 31) is a nickname for an animal and would be translated literally "girt in the loins." Other suggestions include "rooster," "zebra," and "war-horse."

13 There is a generation, O how lofty are their eyes! and their eyelids are lifted up.

14 There is a generation, whose teeth are as swords, and their jaw teeth as knives, to devour the poor from off the earth, and the needy from among men.

15 The horseleach hath two daughters, crying, Give, give. There are three things that are never satisfied, yea, four things say not, It is enough:

16 The grave; and the barren womb; the earth that is not filled with water; and the fire that saith not, It is enough.

17 The eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it.

Four Things Too Wonderful

18 There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four which I know not:

19 The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid.

20 Such is the way of an adulterous woman; she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no wickedness.

Four Things Which Disquiet the Earth

21 For three things the earth is disquieted, and for four which it cannot bear:

22 For a servant when he reigneth; and a fool when he is filled with meat;

23 For an odious woman when she is married; and an handmaid that is heir to her mistress.

Four Things Which Are Little But Wise

24 There be four things which are little upon the earth, but they are exceeding wise:

26 The conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks;

27 The locusts have no king, yet go they forth all of them by bands;

28 The spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces.

Four Things Which Go Well

29 There be three things which go well, yea, four are comely in going:

30 A lion which is strongest among beasts, and turneth not away for any;

31 A greyhound; an he goat also; and a king, against whom there is no rising up.

32 If thou hast done foolishly in lifting up thyself, or if thou hast thought evil, lay thine hand upon thy mouth.

33 Surely the churning of milk bringeth forth butter, and the wringing of the nose bringeth forth blood: so the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife.

Judge Righteously

31 The words of king Lemuel, the prophecy that his mother taught him.

2 What, my son? and what, the son of my womb? and what, the son of my vows?

3 Give not thy strength unto women, nor thy ways to that which destroyeth kings.

4 It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine; nor for princes strong drink:

5 Lest they drink, and forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted.

6 Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy hearts.

30:32, 33. If you have acted foolishly or wickedly, be silent; to press the matter would only bring strife.

31:1-9. Nothing is known about King Lemuel, except that there was no king of Israel by that name. The advice is actually that of his mother (cf. 1:8). In essence, it is a prohibition against illicit relationships with women (v. 3), against consumption of strong drink (vv. 4-7), as well as a plea for the execution of justice (vv. 8, 9). If anyone drinks wine, it should be those who are perishing, to whom it will serve for medicinal purposes. Poverty (v. 7) can mean misery from sources other than simply financial need.

7 Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more.

8 ^aOpen thy mouth for the ¹dumb in the cause of all such as are ²appointed to destruction.

9 Open thy mouth, ^ajudge righteously, and ^bplead the cause of the poor and needy.

The Price of a Virtuous Woman

10 ^aWho can find a ¹virtuous woman? for her ²price is far above rubies.

11 The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no ¹need of spoil.

12 She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life.

13 She seeketh wool, and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands.

14 She is like the merchants' ships; she bringeth her food from afar.

A Virtuous Woman Cares for Her Family

15 ^aShe riseth also while it is yet night, and ^bgiveth ¹meat to her household, and a portion to her ²maidens.

16 She considereth a field, and buyeth it: with the ¹fruit of her hands she planteth a vineyard.

17 She girdeth her loins with strength, and strengtheneth her arms.

18 She perceiveth that her merchandise is good: her ¹candle goeth not out by night.

The Virtuous Woman Helps the Needy

20 ^aShe ¹stretcheth out her hand to the poor; yea, she reacheth forth her hands to the needy.

21 She is not afraid of the snow for her household: for all her household are clothed with scarlet.

22 She maketh herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing is ¹silk and purple.

23 ^aHer husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land.

24 She maketh ¹fine linen, and selleth ²it; and delivereth ³girdles unto the merchant.

25 Strength and honour are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come.

The Virtuous Woman Speaks Wisdom

26 She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness.

27 She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.

28 Her children arise up, and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her.

29 Many daughters have done ¹virtuously, but thou excellest them all.

30 ¹Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the LORD, she shall be praised.

31 Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates.

31:10-31. The final section of the book occurs in the form of an acrostic, that is, each of the 22 verses begins with a consecutive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. Since it has such a distinctive form, it should not be considered part of Lemuel's words, but taken as an anonymous poem. While verse 10 serves as an introduction to the passage and verses 30 and 31 as a conclusion, there is no logical outline to the poem. It might well be called "22 points about the excellent wife" or "the perfect wife from A to Z." Each verse emphasizes a different quality about the excellent wife: she is rare (v. 10); trustworthy (v. 11); constant in her love (v. 12); industrious (v. 13); thrifty (v. 14); self-starting (v. 15); enterprising (v. 16); willing to do hard work (v. 17); willing to work long hours (v. 18); willing to do monotonous work (v. 19); compassionate (v. 20); prepared for the future (v. 21); a good seamstress (v. 22); married to a leader (v. 23); an entrepreneur (v. 24); not swayed by circumstances (v. 25); wise and kind (v. 26); duty-conscious (v. 27); blessed by her family (v. 28); not satisfied with the mediocre (v. 29); a woman of God (v. 30); and praiseworthy (v. 31). She is a woman of means (vv. 15, 22) and a woman of great skill and ability who lives in an agrarian economy. She is a woman of God who is enterprising and dedicated to her home. Perhaps this acrostic on the excellent wife is placed at the end of the book because she, above all others, will be most able to demonstrate the principles of wisdom in the home.

The Book of ECCLESIASTES

Title. The Hebrew title assigned to the speaker in the book is Qoheleth, “One Who Addresses an Assembly,” and thus “Preacher,” or better, “Teacher.” The Greek translation of the word is ekklēsiastēs, from which the English title is derived.

Authorship. While Solomon is certainly the speaker in the book, he is nowhere identified as the author. This fact has led many, beginning with Martin Luther, to abandon the concept of Solomonic authorship. They allege that the book was written by an unidentified Jew in the postexilic period who assumed the role of Solomon for literary purposes. Nevertheless, both the Jewish and Christian view traditionally is that Solomon was the author. This tradition cannot be lightly dismissed.

Date. If placed within the reign of Solomon, the book would probably fall near the end of his reign just prior to his death in 931 B.C. Among those who reject Solomonic authorship, there is a wide range of suggested dates extending down to the second century B.C. Extremely late dates are highly questionable in light of fragments of Ecclesiastes found at Qumran and dated between 175 and 150 B.C.

Interpretation and Purpose. Within the history of the church there have been two basic views on the theology of the book. On the one hand, some describe the contents of the book as pessimistic, cynical, skeptical, hedonistic, or agnostic, and picture the author as a man of doubt who has wandered far from God. On the other hand, many interpret the book quite positively: the author is a man of faith, a realist, who sees that man simply cannot put the whole of life together. The latter view is favored since the author believes God is good (2:24; 3:13); believes God has a wise plan (3:11, 14; 7:14; 8:17); believes God is just (3:17; 8:11–13); and always exhorts men to fear God (8:12, 13; 12:13, 14).

The thought of the book centers in six key ideas. Three of these are negative and revolve around the problems of life: (1) All is vanity. (2) Man is limited. (3) God is hidden. The other three are positive and give the solution to life’s crises: (1) Fear God and keep His commandments. (2) Enjoy life. (3) Use wisdom properly. All six ideas are scattered throughout the book, but taken together they demonstrate that the purpose of the book is to show men that they should lead godly and joyous lives, though they live in a world of divinely condoned mysteries.

Nothing New Under the Sun

9 ^a"The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.

10 Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already ¹of old time, which was before us.

11 There is ^ano remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

12 I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

13 And I ¹gave my heart to seek and ^asearch out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven: ^bthis ²sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be ³exercised therewith.

1:1. Preacher (Heb. qohleth) means "one who addresses an assembly" as 12:9 reflects. He is identified as the son of David, king in Jerusalem, hence Solomon.

1:2. Vanity is the key word of the book and the refrain all is vanity its theme. There have been many attempts to translate this word (Heb. hevel): "futility," "meaninglessness," "emptiness," "breath," "nothingness," "absurdity," and so on. The word means "that which is futile or worthless, of no value or profit," but it also connotes that which is transitory or passing away. As Solomon observed life, he saw little that exhibited profit and accomplishment. The word all in the expression all is vanity must not be taken to mean everything in the universe for these reasons: (1) The author's observations are clearly limited to what is "under the sun" or observable. (2) The negative conclusions always grow out of observable phenomena as the expressions "I saw," "I have seen," "Again I saw," and so on, exhibit. (3) "Vanity" is never predicated of God, God's work, God's revelation, or man as man. (4) Specific realities are commended by Solomon in such a way as not to be considered vanity (e.g., the fear of God, enjoyment of life, and proper use of wisdom).

1:3. The implied answer to this rhetorical question is that there is no profit for man in his work. This supports the idea that "vanity" refers to a lack of profit, value, or worth. Under the sun is used 29 times in the book and denotes the sphere of Solomon's observations.

1:4–11. The ceaseless cycles of nature illustrate the futility of life. The amazing thing is that the earth goes on, but man, the height of God's creation, passes into eternity with no remembrance (v. 11).

1:12–18. Solomon had, as no other figure in history, the time and means to undertake such a study.

Vexation of Spirit

14 I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

15 That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered.

16 I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem: yea, my heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.

17 And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit.

18 For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

Trying to Prove with Mirth

2 I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity.

2 I said of laughter, It is mad: and of mirth, What doeth it?

3 I sought in mine heart to give myself unto wine, yet acquainting mine heart with wisdom; and to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was good for the sons of men, which they should do under the heaven all the days of their life.

No Profit Under the Sun

4 I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards:

5 I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kind of fruits:

6 I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees:

7 I got me servants and maidens, and had servants born in my house; also I had great possessions of great and small cattle above all that were in Jerusalem before me:

8 I gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces: I gat me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as musical instruments, and that of all sorts.

9 So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained with me.

10 And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labour: and this was my portion of all my labour.

11 Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labour that I had laboured to do: and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun.

Wisdom Excels Folly

12 And I turned myself to behold wisdom, and madness, and folly: for what can the man do that cometh after the king? even that which hath been already done.

13 Then I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness.

14 The wise man's eyes are in his head; but the fool walketh in darkness: and I myself perceived also that one event happeneth to them all.

15 Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity.

Vexation of spirit (v. 14) occurs seven times in the book and contains the idea of fruitlessness or futility. Even Solomon's wisdom (v. 18) did not suffice to solve life's ultimate questions. This is the first of several passages in the book that emphasize wisdom's limitations, whereas Proverbs emphasizes wisdom's benefits.

2:1-11. Solomon pursued fulfillment through pleasure (vv. 1, 2), wine (v. 3), great works (vv. 4-6), wealth

(vv. 7, 8), aesthetic and artistic pleasures (v. 8), and fame (v. 9). All of these failed to bring lasting satisfaction to the wisest man of all time, yet people three thousand years later are still trying them in search of enduring fulfillment. Musical instruments (v. 8) translates an uncertain Hebrew word and possibly refers to a harem or group of concubines.

2:12-16. Wisdom is better than folly (vv. 12-14), but both are useless when one comes to death.

16 For there is ^ano remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? as the fool.

17 Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me: for all is ¹vanity and ²vexation of spirit.

Man's Days Are Filled with Sorrow

18 Yea, I hated all my labour which I had ¹taken under the sun: because ^aI should leave it unto the man that shall be after me.

19 And who knoweth whether he shall be a wise man or a fool? yet shall he have rule over all my labour wherein I have laboured, and wherein I have shewed myself wise under the sun. This is also vanity.

20 Therefore I went about to cause my heart to despair of all the labour which I ¹took under the sun.

21 For there is a man whose labour is ¹in wisdom, and in knowledge, and ²in equity; yet to a man that hath not laboured therein shall he leave it for ³his portion. This also is vanity and a great evil.

22 ^aFor what hath man of all his labour, and of the ¹vexation of his heart, wherein he hath laboured under the sun?

23 For all his days are ^asorrows, and his ¹travail grief; yea, his heart taketh not rest ²in the night. This is also ³vanity.

A Season for Every Thing

3 To every thing there is a season, and a ^atime to every purpose under the heaven:

2 A time ¹to be born, and ^aa time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;

3 A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;

4 A time to ^aweep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance;

5 A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; ^aa time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;

6 A time to ¹get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;

7 A time to ¹rend, and a time to ²sew; ^aa time to keep silence, and a time to ^bspeak;

8 A time to love, and a time to ^ahate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

9 ^aWhat profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he laboureth?

10 ^aI have seen the ¹travail, which God hath given to the sons of men ²to be exercised in it.

2:17–20. Part of the futility of trying to find fulfillment in material accomplishment is the fact that one must leave the fruit of his work to another who may well waste the accrued benefits. I hated life (v. 17) is translated correctly and should not be misunderstood as “I hate life.” It is clearly the temporary conclusion about Solomon’s historical experiment.

2:24–26. This passage is the first of seven that give one of the solutions to life’s problems: enjoy life and work as God’s gifts (cf. 3:12, 13, 22; 5:18–20; 8:15; 9:7–10; 11:7–10). When a man toils in his own strength, he is bound to suffer pain and grief. The answer then is for him to enjoy his work by receiving it as a gift of God. Elsewhere, work is said to be part of God’s curse on man (Gen. 3:17–19), but it can become the sphere of God’s blessing. To eat and drink, used five times in the book, must be understood in a good sense. Solomon always counsels the fear of God, and the concept is used in the Old Testament in a good sense (Deut. 14:26; 1 Kin. 4:20).

3:1–8. As Solomon reflects on all of life, he expresses in a beautiful poem of 14 pairs of opposite events that God has a sovereign design behind all events (cf. Rom. 8:28). To gather stones (v. 5) refers to the process of clearing land for planting or building. To hate (v. 8) means to withdraw from intimacy and should not always be taken in an absolute sense (cf. Mal. 1:2, 3).

God Made Every Thing Beautiful

11 He hath made every thing beautiful in his time: also he hath set ¹the world in their heart, ²so that ^ano man can find out the work that God ³maketh from the beginning to the end.

12 I know that there is ¹no ^agood in them, but for a man to rejoice, and to do good in his life.

13 And also ^athat every man should eat and drink, and enjoy the good of all his labour, it is the gift of God.

14 I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: ^anothing can be ¹put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him.

15 ^aThat which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth ¹that which is past.

The Righteous and the Wicked Judged

16 And moreover ^aI saw under the sun ¹the place of judgment, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that ²iniquity was there.

17 I said in mine heart, ^aGod shall judge the righteous and the wicked: for there is a time there for every ¹purpose and for every work.

18 I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God might ¹manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are ²beasts.

No Comforter for the Oppressed

4 So I returned, and considered all the ^aoppressions that are done under the sun: and behold the tears of such as were oppressed, and they had no comforter; and ¹on the side of their oppressors there was power; but they had no comforter.

3:11. The world is better translated “eternity.” God has given man a desire for eternity and perpetuity; therefore man cannot be satisfied with what is merely temporal. Man’s quest for the eternal, however, is frustrated by his finite limitations.

3:14. Several observations about God’s work may be drawn from this passage: (1) God has an active part in earthly activity (v. 11). (2) God’s work is a unity; the word work, when applied to God, is always singular. (3) God’s work is said to include all events (v. 11). (4) God’s work is eternal (v. 14). (5) God’s work is immutable (v. 14). (6) God’s work cannot be comprehended by man (v. 11). That men should fear is the first of six passages that commend the fear of God as man’s chief response to God (cf. 5:7; 7:15–18; 8:12, 13; 12:13, 14). “To fear God” means to submit to God and to His revelation. In emphasizing this theme, Solomon stays clearly within the boundaries of the Old Testament faith (cf. Job 28:28; Prov. 1:7).

3:16. In the courts, where justice should have prevailed, there was injustice.

3:17. Solomon is sure of God’s justice in spite of the lack of it to the observer.

3:18–22. To the casual observer, man and animals share a common destiny. Both return to dust and no one can tell by observation where the spirit of either goes. However, Solomon does affirm in 12:7 that the spirit of man returns to God for judgment. God does not clearly reveal to man all the events that will occur after him; therefore, man should be happy with the lot assigned to him by God (v. 22).

4:1–3. The author considers the thought that oppression is so great in the world that the oppressed would actually be better off dead.

4:4–6. Neither the envious workaholic (v. 4) nor the lazy fool (v. 5) receives fulfillment in life; working to have enough to get by with is better than either extreme (v. 6).

5 ^aThe fool foldeth his hands together, and ¹eateth his own flesh.

6 ^aBetter is an handful with quietness, than both the hands full with ¹travail and ²vexation of spirit.

7 Then I returned, and I saw ¹vanity under the sun.

8 There is one alone, and there is not a ¹second; yea, he hath neither ²child nor brother: yet is there no end of all his labour; neither is his ^aeye satisfied with riches; ^bneither saith he, For whom do I labour, and ³be-reave my soul ^cof good? This is also ^avanity, yea, it is a ⁵sore travail.

Two Are Better Than One

9 Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labour.

10 For if they fall, the one will lift up his ¹fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up.

11 Again, if two lie together, then they have heat: but how can one be warm alone?

12 And ¹if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

A Poor and a Wise Child

13 Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king, who will no ²more be admonished.

14 For out of prison he cometh to reign; ¹whereas also he that is born in his kingdom becometh poor.

15 I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second ¹child that shall stand up in his stead.

16 There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them: they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is ¹vanity and ²vexation of spirit.

6 ¹Suffer not thy ^amouth to cause thy flesh to sin; ^bneither say thou before the ²angel, that it was an error: wherefore should God be angry at thy ³voice, and destroy the work of thine hands?

4:7–12. The toil of the miser is futile, especially when he toils only for himself. On the other hand, two are better than one because they have a good return (v. 9); they can help each other (v. 10); they can provide mutual warmth (v. 11); and they double their strength (or triple it, as in the case of three friends, v. 12).

5:1–7. The emphasis of the passage is on the folly of an empty religious profession before a sovereign God: God is in heaven, and thou upon earth. God expects sincerity and meaningfulness in worship; He is not impressed with foolish vows. The angel is better translated as “the messenger of God,” referring to the priest who served as mediator between God and man in the Old Testament.

Failure to Enjoy Blessings

6 There ^ais an evil which I have seen under the sun, and it is common among men:

2 A man to whom God hath given riches, wealth, and honour, ^aso that he ¹wanteth nothing for ²his soul of all that he desireth, ^byet God giveth him not power to eat thereof, but a stranger eateth it: this is ³vanity, and it is an evil ⁴disease.

3 If a man beget an hundred children, and live many years, so that the days of his years be many, and his soul be not ¹filled with good, and ^aalso that he have no burial; I say, that ^ban ²untimely birth is better than he.

4 For he cometh in with ¹vanity, and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

5 Moreover he hath not seen the sun, nor known any thing: this hath more rest than the other.

6 Yea, though he live a thousand years twice ¹told, yet hath he seen no good: do not all go to one ^aplace?

7 ^aAll the labour of man is for his mouth, and yet ¹the appetite is not ²filled.

8 For what hath the wise more than the fool? what hath the poor, that knoweth ¹to walk before the living?

The Sight of the Eyes

9 Better is ¹the ^asight of the eyes ²than the wandering of the desire: this is also vanity and ³vexation of spirit.

5:10–12. It is not wealth, but the drive for wealth, that does not satisfy. The rich also have their own set of woes: wealth attracts dependents (v. 11) and causes restlessness (v. 12).

5:13–17. Wealth is easily lost and is therefore an unsure foundation for life.

5:18–20. Enjoyment is a gift of God, and man should be motivated by the brevity of his own life to experience it.

6:1, 2. Prosperity is not necessarily good. Accumulation of wealth does not always result in the use of it.

6:3–6. An untimely birth is better than an unsatisfied life.

6:7–9. Efforts for satisfaction are often frustrated (v. 7). The wise man has no advantage over the fool in this area, nor has the poor man an advantage in his inherently humble estate (v. 8). Therefore, it is better to enjoy present possessions (the sight of the eyes) than the uncertainty of potential possessions (the wandering of the desire).

6:10–12. These verses emphasize one of the keynotes of the book: man is too limited in knowledge to explain the problems of life. Questions like who knoweth occur four times in the book; and the plain statement “Man does not know” is used seven times. These emphasize a distinct deficiency of knowledge.

10 That which hath been is named *a*already, and it is known that it is man: *b*neither¹ may he contend with him: that is mightier than he.

11 Seeing there be many things that increase vanity, what is man the better?

12 For who knoweth what is good for man in this life, ¹all the days of his ²vain life which he spendeth as *a*a shadow? for *b*who can tell a man what shall ³be after him under the sun?

A Good Name

7 A good name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's *b*birth.

2 It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of feasting; for that is the end of all men; and the living will ¹lay it to his *a*heart.

3 ¹Sorrow is better than laughter: *a*for by the sadness of the countenance the heart is made ²better.

4 The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.

5 It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than for a man to hear the song of fools.

6 *a*For as the ¹crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fool: this also is vanity.

7 Surely oppression maketh a wise man ¹mad; *a*and a ²gift ³destroyeth the heart.

8 Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof: and *a*the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.

Wisdom Gives Life

11 Wisdom is good with an inheritance: and by it there is profit *a*to them that see the sun.

12 For wisdom is ¹a defence, and money is a defence: but the ²excellency of knowledge is, that wisdom giveth *b*life to them that have it.

13 Consider the work of God: for *a*who can make that straight, which he hath made crooked?

14 *a*In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider: God ¹also hath set the one over against the other, to the end that man should find ²nothing after him.

15 All things have I seen in ¹the days of my vanity: *a*there is a just man that perisheth in his righteousness, and there is a wicked man that longeth his life in his wickedness.

16 *a*Be not ¹righteous over much; *b*neither make thyself ²over wise: why shouldst thou destroy thyself?

17 Be not ¹over much wicked, neither be thou foolish: *a*why shouldst thou die before thy time?

18 It is good that thou shouldst ¹take hold of this; yea, also from this withdraw not thine hand: for he that *a*feareth God shall ²come forth of them all.

7:1-14. These sayings are much like those in the Book of Proverbs and demonstrate that Ecclesiastes also supports the wise approach to life. Mourning and sorrow are better than feasting and laughter (vv. 1-3) because they cause a man to reflect wisely on the brevity of life. The laughter of the fool is compared to the crackling of thorns (v. 6) since both were characterized by noise, volatility, and transience. To talk about the former days (v. 10), or the "good old days," is not wise. Both good and bad days are the work of God and are used, apart from our ability to understand them, in God's sovereign plan (vv. 13, 14).

7:15-22. Be not righteous over much ... be not over much wicked (vv. 16, 17) does not apply the "golden mean" to morality, nor does it constitute a warning against excessive observance of religious ritual. Rather, it warns against self-righteousness or the idea that one has actually achieved righteousness. Verse 17 does not mean that moderation in wickedness is acceptable! It is an accommodation to human frailty. Solomon is saying, Avoid the extreme of self-righteousness and, at the same time, hold in check your wicked nature (cf. v. 20) so it does not run its natural course to spiritual and moral ruin.

20 “For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not.

21 Also ¹take no heed unto all words that are spoken; lest thou hear thy servant curse thee:

22 For oftentimes also thine own heart knoweth that thou thyself likewise hast cursed others.

23 All this have I ¹proved by wisdom: “I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me.

24 “That which is far off, and ^bexceeding deep, who can find it out?

25 “I applied mine heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness:

26 “And I find more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as ¹bands: ²whoso pleaseth God shall escape from her; but the sinner shall be taken by her.

27 Behold, this have I found, saith “the preacher, ¹counting one by one, to find out the ²account:

The Face of Wisdom

8 Who is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? ^aa man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and ^bthe ¹boldness of his face shall be changed.

2 I counsel thee to keep the king's commandment, ^aand ¹that in regard of the oath of God.

3 ^aBe not hasty to go out of his ¹sight: ²stand not in an evil thing; for he doeth whatsoever pleaseth him.

4 Where the word of a king is, there is power: and ^awho may say unto him, What doest thou?

5 Whoso keepeth the commandment ¹shall feel no evil thing: and a wise man's heart ²discerneth both time and judgment.

6 Because ^ato every ¹purpose there is time and judgment, therefore the misery of man is great upon him.

7 ^aFor he knoweth not that which shall be: for who can tell him when it shall be?

8 “There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death: and there is ^bno discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.

9 All this have I seen, and applied my heart unto every work that is done under the sun: there is a time

7:23—8:1. Solomon is known as the wisest man who ever lived, but even his wisdom was insufficient to understand life fully (7:23). In his search for wisdom Solomon found many sinful people (7:26) but few righteous (7:28; cf. Prov. 31:10). In spite of the failures of wisdom, it is still the most attractive virtue since it helps bring inner happiness (8:1).

8:2-4. Wise behavior before kings is counseled because each subject took the oath of God or oath of loyalty to the king before God (v. 2), and because the king had the power to do his own will (vv. 3, 4).

8:5-8. A large part of being wise is to know both time and judgment (v. 5), the latter word being a reference to the procedure for a matter. Only the wise can discern this time since man does not naturally know what will transpire next (v. 7). Furthermore, humankind is severely limited (v. 8): (1) No one can restrain the spirit (or possibly “wind”). (2) No one can predict or control the day of his death. (3) No one can obtain release in time of war. (4) No one can be released from extensive wickedness, since it becomes like a master ruling over him. These four statements of impossibility powerfully demonstrate Solomon's argument that man is sorely limited in his dominion over life. How much more significant this makes the virtue of wisdom!

8:9-15. The word forgotten is read “praised” in some manuscripts (v. 10). The statement then means that Solomon has observed that the wicked receive an honorable burial and praise after their death. This observation is reinforced by the fact that the fortunes of the righteous and the wicked are often reversed: the righteous sometimes get what the wicked deserve, and the wicked often get what the righteous deserve (v. 14). However, Solomon never counsels his readers to forget God and cast their lot with the wicked, because he knows by faith that it will go well with the righteous who fear God (v. 12), and ultimately it will not go well for the wicked (v. 13). This is clearly a faith position on Solomon's part, since what he observes in life often contradicts it. This puzzling reversal should not deter man from enjoying life under the hand of God (v. 15).

10 And so I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of ¹the holy, and they were ^aforgotten in the city where they had so done: this is also vanity.

11 ^aBecause sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.

12 ^aThough a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that ^bit shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him:

13 But it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God.

14 There is a vanity which is done upon the earth; that there be just men, unto whom it ^ahappeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the ^brighteous: I said that this also is vanity.

Eat, Drink, and Be Merry

15 ^aThen I commended ¹mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry: for that shall abide with him of his labour the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

16 When I applied mine heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth: (for also there is that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes:)

17 Then I beheld all the work of God, that ^aa man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun: because though a man labour to seek it out, yet he shall not find it; yea

The Hand of God

9 For all this I ¹considered in my heart even to declare all this, ^athat the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God: no man knoweth either love or hatred by ²all that is before them.

2 ^aAll things ¹come alike to all: there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not: as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that ²swareth, as he that feareth an oath.

3 This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all: yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead.

4 For to him that is joined to all the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion.

5 For the living know that they shall die: but ^athe dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for ^bthe memory of them is forgotten.

6 Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a ¹portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

Live Joyfully

7 Go thy way, ^aeat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works.

8 Let thy garments be always white; and let thy head lack no ¹ointment.

8:16—9:6. The inability of man to understand God's work is emphasized by the threefold negation of the verb find out (8:17) with the work of God as its object each time. Furthermore, man cannot know God's disposition by observation since the same calamities strike both the wicked and the righteous (9:1, 2). The hope for all men is to stay alive. The lion was highly regarded but the dog was despised; nevertheless, a living dog is better than a dead lion (v.

4) because with life comes knowledge, reward (v. 5), and continued activity on earth (v. 6). Verse 5 is not a pessimistic statement about life after death (cf. 12:7); rather, it affirms that life on earth is the only arena of opportunity for accomplishment and reward.

9:7-10. For the first time in the passages on enjoyment, the key words of the exhortation are put into the imperative mood; eat, drink, live, and so on. Also, a new motivation is expressed: God now accepteth

9 ¹Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of ²the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all the days of thy vanity: ⁴for that is thy portion in this life, and in thy labour which thou ³takest under the sun.

10 ^aWhatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy ^bmight; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

11 I returned, ^aand saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favour to men of skill; but time and ^bchance happeneth to them all.

12 For ^aman also knoweth not his time: as the fishes that are taken in an ¹evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men ^bsnared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them.

Wisdom Is Better Than Strength

13 This wisdom have I seen also under the sun, and it seemed great unto me:

14 ^a*There was* a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great ¹bulwarks against it:

15 Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man.

16 Then said I, Wisdom is better than ^astrength: nevertheless ^bthe poor man's wisdom is despised, and his works are not heard.

Wisdom to Deal with Rulers

5 There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, as an error which proceedeth from the ruler:

6 ^aFolly is set in ¹great dignity, and the rich sit ²in low place.

7 I have seen servants ^aupon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the ¹earth.

8 ^aHe that diggeth a pit shall fall into it; and whoso ¹breaketh an hedge, a serpent ²shall bite him.

9 Whoso ¹removeth stones shall be hurt therewith; and he that ²cleaveth wood shall be endangered thereby.

10 If the ¹iron be blunt, and he ²do not whet the edge, then must he put to more strength: but wisdom is ³profitable to direct.

10:10 ¹ ax is dull ² does not sharpen ³ an advantage giving success

thy works (v. 7), meaning clearly that God approves of the enjoyment of life. His will is that men enjoy life. The idea of enjoyment is further reiterated in verse 8 with two directives. White garments on the body and ointment on the head made life more comfortable in the torrid Near Eastern climates; they serve here to symbolize purity (cf. Rev. 3:4) and the enjoyment of life. Another command concerns the enjoyment of life with one's wife (v. 9). The reasons for these commands are: It is man's portion in this life (v. 9), and there is no working in the grave (v. 10).

9:11, 12. Five statements of unexpected results are followed by an explanation. Man's ability cannot guarantee the results (v. 11) because of the equalizing effects of time and chance.

9:13–16. The story teaches that, in spite of the value of wisdom, it often goes unheeded.

10:1. Just as one would throw out an entire bottle of perfume because of a dead fly in it, so people often reject a prominent man because of one mistake or character flaw.

10:5–7. Many unnatural reversals are the experience of life.

10:8, 9. Everyday activities may result in disasters that no one can predict.

11 Surely the serpent will bite ^awithout¹ enchantment; and a babler is no better.

Gracious Words of a Wise Man

12 ^aThe words of a wise man's mouth are gracious; but ^bthe lips of a fool will swallow up himself.

13 The beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness: and the end of his talk is ¹mischievous madness.

14 ^aA fool also ¹is full of words: ²a man cannot tell what shall be; and ^bwhat shall be after him, who can tell him?

15 The labour of the foolish wearieth every one of them, because he knoweth not how to go to the city.

Curse Not the King

16 ^aWoe to thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes ¹eat in the morning!

17 Blessed art thou, O land, when thy king is the son of nobles, and thy ^aprinces ¹eat in due season, for strength, and not for drunkenness!

18 By ¹much slothfulness the building decayeth; and ^athrough idleness of the hands the house ²droppeth through.

7 Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes ^ato behold the sun:

8 But if a man live many years, and ^arejoice in them all; yet let him ^bremember the days of darkness; for they shall be many. All that cometh is ¹vanity.

Rejoice in Your Youth

9 Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, ^aand walk in the ¹ways of thine heart, and ²in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things ^bGod will bring thee into judgment.

10 Therefore remove ¹sorrow from thy heart, and ^aput away evil from thy flesh: ^bfor childhood and ²youth are vanity.

10:12-15. The fool is characterized by much useless talk (vv. 12-14) and by incompetent behavior (v. 15).

10:20. Careless words have a way of being discovered by those in authority.

11:1-6. These verses contain a series of sayings about the uncertainty of human industry, and are held together by the fourfold occurrence of the expression thou knowest not. Although man cannot comprehend God's work, nor predict success, he needs to be involved in life's activities and trust God for the results.

11:7-10. Once again the exhortation to enjoyment is put in the imperative mood. Here the appeal is particularly addressed to the youth to admonish him to enjoy life before the onset of the feeble years described in 12:1-7. The comparison with light (v. 7) speaks of the enjoyment of life (cf. Ps. 97:11). Verse 8 adds a cautionary note to enjoyment that may be summarized in two ideas: (1) There will be many days of darkness, calamitous days. (2) All that cometh is vanity: That is, joys will not come easily; they must be wrested from a puzzling and futile life. Verse 9 can hardly be taken in a hedonistic sense, because the controlling factor in the youth's enjoyment is said to be God's judgment. Rather, it is a warning against a life misspent in self-indulgence.

Remember Your Creator

12 Remember^a now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, ¹while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, ²when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them;

2 While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:

3 In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall ¹bow themselves, and the grinders ²cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows ³be darkened,

6 Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be ¹broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.

Words of Truth

9 And moreover, because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he ¹gave good heed, and sought out, and ^aset² in order many proverbs.

10 The preacher sought to find out ¹acceptable words: and that which was written was upright, even words of truth.

11 The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails fastened by the masters of ¹assemblies, which are given from one shepherd.

12 And further, by these, my son, be admonished: of making many books there is no end; and ^amuch study is a weariness of the flesh.

The Duty of Man

13 Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: ^aFear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.

14 For ^aGod shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

12:1-7. Though these verses describe old age, they are actually addressed to the youth (v. 1). The gradual darkening of the heavenly bodies represents declining vitality and joy, and the approaching clouds represent the storms of old age (v. 2). The keepers of the house are the arms; the strong men are the legs; the grinders are the teeth; and those that look out of the windows are the eyes (v. 3). Growing old is further compared to the decline of a great estate (v. 4). The almond tree is a reference to the white hair of old age; the crippled grasshopper pictures the halting gait of the elderly; and desire that fails may be the loss of sexual desire (v. 5). Finally, life itself in all its preciousness is cut off. Death is pictured as the irreversible shattering of a golden bowl when cut from the end of a silver cord and the similar smashing of a pitcher or wheel (v. 6). After death the spirit returns to God for judgment and the body returns to dust (cf. Gen. 3:19).

12:9-11. Solomon is described as a wise man who taught what is upright and true, not as a cynic, pessimist, skeptic, and so on. From one shepherd, God, is the origin of the book's teaching.

12:12-14. God has not answered every problem of life, but He has commanded man to live joyfully, responsibly, and wisely. Finally, the controlling factor of all of life should be the fear of God, that is, submission to God and His revelation (cf. Prov. 1:7). The certainty of divine judgment demands it.

SONG OF SOLOMON

Title. Several titles have been suggested for the book, all taken from the first verse: “The Song of Songs,” “The Song of Solomon,” or “Canticles.” The first title is a Hebrew way of expressing the superlative: “The Most Excellent Song”; the second denotes authorship; and the third means “Songs,” being taken from the Latin translation.

Authorship. The first verse of the book may be taken to mean the song written by Solomon or the song about Solomon. However, the Old Testament states that Solomon composed 1,005 songs (1 Kin. 4:32), so one might expect him to be the author. Also, internal evidence points to Solomonic authorship: the geographical locations mentioned in the book imply a unified monarchy, and some details fit well with Solomon’s reign (cf. the reference to the horses in Pharaoh’s chariots at 1:9 with 1 Kin. 10:28, 29). Finally, there is no good reason to reject the traditional view that assigns the book to Solomon.

Date. The book was probably written by Solomon early in his reign, near the middle of the tenth century B.C.

Interpretation and Purpose. Many interpretations of the Song of Solomon have been advanced. Six of the most well-known views are as follows: (1) Allegorical. This view, popular in early Jewish literature, completely denies the literal aspect. The book is treated solely as an allegory; for example, Solomon is said to represent the Lord, and the maiden to represent Israel. No literal romance is allowed. (2) Typological. The early church admitted the literal courtship and marriage but interpreted these as only a type of Christ and the church (cf. Eph. 5:22–33). (3) Anthology of love songs. This view claims that no unified argument or flow of thought can be traced through the book; it is therefore nothing more than a collection of love songs that are not necessarily related to each other. (4) Three-character interpretation. This view claims that the book is an example of “the eternal triangle”: Solomon is the villain who tries unsuccessfully to woo the maiden away from her local shepherd-boyfriend. This view, though held by some fine scholars, is based on the unnecessary separation of the king-shepherd character into two separate individuals. (5) Literal love story. This view sees the book as a highly poetic description of an actual love relationship between Solomon and the Shulamite maiden. In favor of this view is that it takes the book at face value and places it with parallel Egyptian love songs of the era. Therefore, this interpretation is followed in these notes. The purpose of the book, then, is to show the joy of married love as a gift of a good and loving God. A question could rightly be raised how Solomon—who had seven hundred wives and three hundred concubines—was an appropriate representative of godly love. One can only conclude that this romance must have taken place early in his reign, and may very well have been the only true love for a woman he ever experienced.

The book is a love song sung by the two lovers: the shepherd-king and the Shulamite maiden. Solomon appears first as a young shepherd who falls in love with the outcast Shulamite girl.

He promises to come again one day to marry her. In his absence, she dreams about their reunion.

When he returns, to her surprise he appears as King Solomon himself. Accompanied by his entire entourage, he takes her back to Jerusalem in his royal coach to become his bride. The story serves as a beautiful picture of Christ's love for His outcast Gentile Bride, the church, for whom He promises one day to return.

The Shulamite's Love for the Shepherd

5 I am ¹black, but ²comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon.

6 Look not upon me, because I am ¹black, because the sun hath ²looked upon me: my mother's ³children were angry with me; they made me the keeper of the vineyards; but mine own ^avineyard have I not kept.

1:2. The Hebrew is clear that the woman is speaking, but not until 6:13 is she identified as the Shulamite maiden, a country girl. See the note on 6:13.

1:3. The virgins refers to other maidens attached to the royal palace.

1:4b. The switch to the first person plural here indicates that a group is now speaking. From the maiden's response in 1:5 we conclude that the group is to be identified as the "daughters of Jerusalem," a number of maidens who served the royal court. They appear throughout the book as a chorus who reiterate the power and drama of love, in response to the speeches of the main characters.

1:5, 6. I am black refers to her swarthy, deeply tanned appearance, which in verse 5 is attributed to her long hours of work in the vineyard. The tents of Kedar were Arab tents made of black goat's hair. She is as comely ... as the curtains of Solomon which were known for their lavish beauty and exquisiteness.

7 Tell me, O thou whom my soul loveth, where thou ¹feedest, where thou makest thy flock to rest at noon: for why should I be as one ²that turneth aside by the flocks of thy companions?

8 If thou know not, “O thou fairest among women, ¹go thy way forth by the footsteps of the flock, and feed thy ²kids beside the shepherds’ tents.

9 “My beloved is like a ¹roe or a young ²hart: behold, he standeth behind our wall, he looketh forth at the windows, ³shewing himself through the lattice.

10 My beloved spake, and said

1:7. The maiden now addresses her shepherd lover to determine his location. The three-character interpretation seems to make an unnecessary separation of the shepherd and the king who answers in the next verse (cf. 1:12) into two separate individuals.

1:8–10. Solomon begins speaking to the maiden at this point, although some interpreters delay his speech until verse 9 and ascribe verse 8 to the daughters of Jerusalem. Since there is a distinction in the Hebrew verb forms between feminine and masculine, in most cases it is easy to determine the identity of the speaker. However, not all ambiguity is removed as verse 8 attests. Comparing the maiden to a company of horses, like many of the figures of speech in the book, seems quite unflattering to the modern reader. However, in the ancient world it would have been considered a compliment since the horses of the king were known for their beauty, gracefulness, and costly ornamentation.

1:14. My beloved (Hebrew dōd) is used 32 times in the book, always to refer to Solomon. Camphire refers to henna blossoms which come from the henna shrub of northern India.

1:15. Solomon speaks again, and the conversation becomes more intimate. He compares the maiden’s eyes to those of doves because of their beautiful and gentle appearance.

2:1. The maiden modestly compares herself to the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valleys, meaning that, in her view, she is only a common field flower.

2:2. Solomon replies that the maiden, compared to other women, is like a lily among thorns.

2:3. The maiden returns the compliment by comparing Solomon to the cultivated apple tree which stands out among all other trees.

2:5. Flagons: Better, “cakes of raisins.” Sick of love: Better, “lovesick.”

2:7. Till he please may be translated “until it pleases,” or “until it is proper.” This refrain is restated throughout the poem (3:5; 8:4) and serves as a warning not to arouse love (sexual desire) until it is proper.

2:9. The comparison of the beloved to a roe or young hart is symbolic of strength, masculinity, and grace.

11 For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;

2:10-13. Though the maiden speaks here, she is quoting Solomon who invites her to come out of her home and enjoy a beautiful day with him. Turtle refers to the turtle dove.

2:15. The little foxes wrought havoc in the ancient vineyards. They here represent the little things in human relationships that weaken bonds. The verse is a plea for a careful relationship that does not allow little things to ruin it.

2:16. This verse marks the deepening of their relationship, the first indication that they possess each other. There is a definite progression in the maturity of her love. Here she is thrilled that she has captured his love: My beloved is mine; secondarily she realizes that I am his. In 6:3, she reverses her statement acknowledging first that "I am my beloved's" and secondly noting my beloved is mine. Finally in 7:10 she simply states: "I am my beloved's, and his desire is toward me." At this final stage she is totally consumed with his love.

2:17. Bether comes from a verb meaning "to cut in two" and therefore implies separation. The maiden pleads that their "mountains of separation" may be dissolved. It expresses her desire that the marriage should be consummated, a desire not fulfilled until 4:16.

3:1-5. This passage seems clearly to be a dream since it is unlikely that a modest maiden would have gone out in this way at night. It expresses the maiden's fear that she could lose her beloved during his absence.

3:6-11. The passage describes the marriage procession, with Solomon arrayed in all his glory and splendor. Pillars of smoke means columns of incense; the 60 valiant men were Solomon's bodyguard; the bed was the carriage or litter on which Solomon was carried; and the crown was not a royal crown but a wedding crown, given to him by Bathsheba, his mother.

crowned him in the day of his ¹espousals, and in the day of the gladness of his heart.

Covenant of Love

10 How fair is thy love, my sister, my spouse! “how much better is thy love than wine! and the ¹smell of thine ²ointments than all spices!

11 Thy lips, O my spouse, ¹drop as the honeycomb: “honey and milk are under thy tongue; and the ²smell of thy garments is ^blike the ²smell of Lebanon.

13 Thy plants are an orchard of pomegranates, with pleasant fruits; ¹camphire, with spikenard,

14 Spikenard and saffron; calamus and cinnamon, with all trees of frankincense; myrrh and aloes, with all the chief spices:

15 A fountain of gardens, a well of ^aliving waters, and streams from Lebanon.

16 Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. “Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant ^bfruits.

The Second Dream

5 I am come into my garden, my ^bsister, my spouse: I have gathered my myrrh with my spice; I have eaten my honeycomb with my honey; I have drunk my wine with my milk: eat, O ^dfriends; drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved.

2 I sleep, but my heart waketh: it is the voice of my beloved “that knocketh, saying, Open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my ¹undefiled: for my head is ²filled with dew, and my ³locks with the drops of the night.

3 I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on? I have washed my feet; how shall I ¹defile them?

4:1-7. Solomon beautifully describes seven parts of the maiden's body, seven being the number of perfection. Thus, from head to toe, Solomon found his beloved incomparably beautiful.

4:9. My sister expresses endearment and affection; the term was used often in Egyptian love poetry for one's lover.

4:12-15. Solomon describes the maiden's virginity with the imagery of a locked garden where there are all kinds of choice fruits and pleasures. The mention of waters (v. 15) alludes to sexual powers which must, as here, be reserved for the marriage bond (cf. Prov. 5:15-18).

4:16. This is an invitation from the maiden for Solomon to consummate the marriage.

5:1. The marriage is consummated.

5:2-8. These verses introduce concern in the courtship and engagement. There is a separation (v. 6) and a searching (vv. 7, 8). Bowels (v. 4) refers to the seat of the emotions. The conflict is not resolved until Solomon returns (6:4-13).

4 My beloved put in his hand by the ¹hole of the door, and my ²bowels were moved for him.

5 I rose up to open to my beloved; and my hands ¹dropped with myrrh, and my fingers with ²sweet smelling myrrh, upon the handles of the lock.

The Second Search for the Shepherd

6 I opened to my beloved; but my beloved had withdrawn himself, and was gone: ¹my soul failed when he spake: ²I sought him, but I could not find him; I called him, but he gave me no answer.

7 ^aThe watchmen that went about the city found me, they ¹smote me, they wounded me; the keepers of the walls took away my veil from me.

The Shulamite's Commitment Questioned

6 Whither is thy beloved gone, ^aO thou fairest among women? whither is thy beloved turned aside? that we may seek him with thee.

2 My beloved is gone down into his ^agarden, to the beds of spices, to ¹feed in the gardens, and to gather lilies.

3 ^aI am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine: he ¹feedeth among the lilies.

The King Praises the Shulamite's Beauty

4 Thou art beautiful, O my love, as Tirzah, ¹comely as Jerusalem, ²terrible as an army with banners.

5 Turn away thine eyes from me, for they have ¹overcome me: thy hair is ^aas a flock of goats ²that appear from Gilead.

6 ^aThy teeth are as a flock of sheep which go up from the washing, whereof every one beareth twins, and there is not one ¹barren among them.

7 ^aAs a piece of a pomegranate are thy temples ¹within thy locks.

8 There are threescore queens, and fourscore concubines, and ^avirgins without number.

9 My dove, my ^aundefiled ¹is but one; she is the ^{only} one of her mother, she is the choice ^{one} of her that bare her. The daughters saw her, and blessed her; yea, the queens and the concubines, and they praised her.

5:10–16. This passage is the maiden's answer to Solomon's description of her in 4:1–7. In his absence she reflects on her appreciation of his appearance. Among other comparisons she states that his eyes are like the eyes of doves, the only comparison that the two share (see 4:1), a reference to purity and gentleness.

6:2, 3. To the question of verse 1, the maiden replies that her husband has gone down into his garden. She reaffirms her security in their marriage with the same comparison used at 2:16, though with more confidence here.

6:4–12. Solomon speaks again and reiterates his love and appreciation for his wife. The description is much the same as in 4:1–7. Her uniqueness among all of Solomon's women is especially stressed in verses 8 and 9. Like the chariots of Amminadib (v. 12) can be translated "among the chariots of my noble people." The phrase suggests that the maiden is now in Solomon's presence and is completely reconciled to him.

10 Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, ^aand ¹terrible as an army with banners?

The Shulamite Explains Her Abduction

11 I went down into the garden of nuts to see the fruits of the valley, and ^ato see whether the vine ¹flourished, and the pomegranates ²budded.

12 ¹Or ever I was aware, my soul made me like the chariots of ²Amminadib.

13 Return, return, O ¹Shulamite; return, return, that we may look upon thee. What will ye see in the Shulamite? As it were ²the company of ³two armies.

7 How beautiful are thy feet ¹with shoes, ^aO prince's daughter! the joints of thy thighs are like jewels, the work of the hands of a cunning workman.

2 Thy navel is like a round goblet, which ¹wanteth not liquor: thy belly is like an heap of wheat set about with lilies.

3 ^aThy two breasts are like two ¹young roes that are ²twins.

4 ^aThy neck is as a tower of ivory; thine eyes like the ¹fishpools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim: thy nose is as the tower of Lebanon which looketh toward Damascus.

The Shulamite Faithful to the Shepherd

10 ^aI am my beloved's, and ^bhis desire is toward me.

11 Come, my beloved, let us go forth into the field; let us lodge in the villages.

12 Let us get up early to the vineyards; let us ^asee if the vine ¹flourish, whether the ²tender grape appear, and the pomegranates bud forth: there will I give thee my loves.

2 I would lead thee, and bring thee into my mother's ^ahouse, who would instruct me: I would cause thee to drink of ^bspiced wine of the juice of my pomegranate.

3 ^aHis left hand should be under my head, and his right hand should embrace me.

4 ^aI charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, that ye stir not up, nor awake my love, until he please.

6:13. Shulamite: This is the first indication in the book as to where the maiden is from. It may be taken from Shulam, which is unknown, or taken as a variant of Shunem, which is known to have existed near Jezreel (Josh. 19:18). The company of two armies may be taken as the name of a well-known dance. Solomon asks why the daughters of Jerusalem should gaze on the maiden as though watching a joyous dance.

7:1—8:4. The two speeches in this section, one by each partner, speak of the growing maturity and depth of their marriage. To Solomon, the maiden satisfies like food and drink (7:2). She has sparkling eyes and a prominent nose (7:4), the latter being considered in that culture as quite attractive. Carmel (7:5) was a noted comparison for beauty and nobility. To the maiden the marriage is so satisfying that she feels complete freedom to initiate love (7:11–13). Mandrakes (7:13), mentioned only here and in Genesis 30:14–16, were a common plant in ancient Palestine and widely regarded as an aphrodisiac.

5 “Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved? I raised thee up under the apple tree: there thy mother brought thee forth: there she brought thee forth that bare thee.

Vows of Faithfulness

6 “Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave: the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame.

7 Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it: “if a man would give all the substance of his house for love, it would utterly be contemned.

10 I am a wall, and my breasts like towers: then was I in his eyes as one that found favour.

A Vineyard of Her Own

11 Solomon had a vineyard at Baal-hamon; “he let out the vineyard unto keepers; every one for the fruit thereof was to bring a thousand pieces of silver.

12 My vineyard, which is mine, is before me: thou, O Solomon, must have a thousand, and those that keep the fruit thereof two hundred.

13 Thou that dwellest in the gardens, the companions hearken to thy voice: “cause me to hear it.

14 “Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe or to a young hart upon the mountains of spices.

8:6, 7. These verses are clearly the climax to the story. The maiden describes in the most vivid terms the unquenchable nature of true love: it cannot be destroyed by death or the grave; it burns like a blazing fire that cannot be extinguished; and it cannot be bought.

8:8–12. These verses are difficult, but they seem to go back historically to explain how the love described in verses 5–7 came into being. It seems that the brothers of the maiden are the speakers in verses 8, 9. (They are mentioned in 1:6.) They recall when she was their little sister and lived under their protective eye. They determined that if she were a wall (chaste and pure), they would honor her; if she were a door (loose and immoral), they would curtail her liberty. The maiden proclaims her purity (I am a wall, v. 10), her physical maturity, and her emotional maturity (vv. 11, 12).

8:13, 14. The final verses echo the themes of mutual desire and longing which are satisfied only in the joy of married love.

The Book of ISAIAH

Isaiah stands at the peak of the Old Testament as the literary genius of the prophets of Israel. His book has more chapters than any other prophetic book and looks farther into the future than any other Old Testament book. This amazing book includes Isaiah's unique prophecies regarding Immanuel and the Suffering Servant.

Isaiah, the son of Amoz, was one of the most prominent citizens of Jerusalem, having access to both the royal and priestly leadership of the nation of Judah. His Hebrew name, Yēsha'Yahū, means "Yahweh Is Salvation." The significance of his name is revealed in his prophetic ministry, because he came on the scene of Judah's history at a time when it was of the utmost importance for the people to realize that salvation was of the Lord, and not merely by human efforts. Isaiah found himself standing against the threat of Assyria's rising imperialism and the emergence of a spirit of universalism which began to turn the chosen people from the Lord.

Historical Setting. Isaiah's long life spanned the rule of several kings. Born during the reign of Uzziah, Isaiah was called to his prophetic ministry in the year of the king's death (740 B.C.). Uzziah was succeeded by Jotham (752–736 B.C.). He was followed by Ahaz (736–720 B.C.) and finally by Hezekiah (729–699 B.C.). With the accession of Hezekiah to the throne, a new day dawned for Judah. Pursuing a policy of reforms, the new king repaired and cleansed the temple and returned to emphasizing the Mosaic Law in determining national ethics. Isaiah became a prime figure during these years as Hezekiah's chief advisor. How long the prophet lived beyond his association with Hezekiah is unknown. Possibly he lived until 681 B.C., when Sennacherib died. Tradition says that he was sawn in two by Manasseh, the evil king who followed Hezekiah (cf. Heb. 11:37).

Authorship. Modern scholarship has severely challenged the unity and authenticity of the Book of Isaiah since the late eighteenth century. The critical arguments center on the stylistic differences between the first (chs. 1–39) and second (chs. 40–66) portions of the book. They also usually reject the concept of supernatural, predictive prophecy. The critical view argues that two or more "Isaias" wrote this book, suggesting that the last half was written in Babylon during the Captivity or even later.

There is, however, substantial evidence to discount the critical view. While the foreign policy shifts from Assyria in the first half of the book to Babylon in the second half, that fact in no way limits the genuineness of any portion of Isaiah's prophecy. Throughout the second portion of this book, the author shows great familiarity with Palestine, but not with Babylon. In 40:9 he views the cities of Judah as still standing. There are as many stylistic similarities between one part and the other as there are alleged differences. The title "Holy One of Israel" occurs 12 times in the first portion and 14 times in the second. There are also many literary similarities to the writings of the prophet Micah, an eighth-century contemporary of Isaiah.

The New Testament writers clearly regarded the author of the so-called “first” and “second” Isaiah as the same person. (See Matt. 3:3; 12:17, 18; Luke 3:4; John 12:38–41; Acts 8:28–34; Rom. 10:16, 20.) The strongest argument of all is that Christ Himself quoted from both “parts” of Isaiah equally, ascribing all the statements to the prophet Isaiah. Thus there is ample evidence for the unity and authenticity of the book, and absolutely no available external evidence to refute either the historicity of Isaiah the man, or that the book was written in the eighth century B.C. In fact, the oldest existing manuscript of the book is the Dead Sea Scroll 1 Q Isa, dating from at least 100 B.C. It shows absolutely no evidence of disunity or multiple authorship.

That his book should stand at the head of the 17 prophetic works is no mistake. All who have an appreciation for literature must be impressed by Isaiah’s excellence of style, seen in his vivid descriptions and dramatic rhetorical touches. The grandeur and dignity are paralleled by a liveliness of energy and profusion of imagery. He was without doubt the “Prince of Prophets.”

1:1. Vision (chazôn) is the technical term for divine revelation. In this case it refers to the entire prophetic epic that follows. Chapters 1–5 serve both as an introduction to the prophecies that follow and as a summary of them. Uzziah is also known as Azariah. He ruled from 791 to 740 B.C. Jotham ruled as a co-regent with Uzziah (752–740 B.C.), and reigned alone from 740 to 736. Ahaz ruled from 736 to 720 B.C. Hezekiah, one of Judah's greatest kings, ruled as co-regent from 729 to 720 B.C., and reigned alone from 720 to 699 B.C.

1:2–4. Children ... rebelled: Isaiah pictures the southern kingdom of Judah as ungrateful children rebelling against their parents. These verses serve as a "great arraignment" of the chosen people, who have become corrupt and backslidden. The prophet calls them back to obedience to God. The Holy One of Israel is Isaiah's favorite designation for God. It appears throughout the book.

1:5–9. The nation is described after a severe beating and is not merely ill. The desolation described was familiar to the prophet, who lived through several invasions in his lifetime. He pictures the nation as having suffered a brutal assault and being virtually left for dead. The very small remnant refers to the true believers for whose sakes God would yet spare the land (cf. Rom. 9:29).

1:1 Isaiah was a famous Old Testament prophet who predicted the coming of Messiah (7:14; 9:6, 7; 11:1–10; 42:1–9; 49:1–9; 50:4–11; 52:13—53:12). Isaiah's ministry extended from about 740 B.C. to 681 B.C. He was probably born in Jerusalem to a family related to the royal house of Judah. He spent his early years as an official of King Uzziah (Azariah) of Judah (2 Chr. 26:22).

When Uzziah died (c. 740 B.C.), Isaiah received his prophetic calling in a stirring vision of God in the temple (ch. 6). Isaiah was married to "the prophetess" (8:3). They had two sons (7:3; 8:3) whose names along with Isaiah's ("Yahweh Is Salvation") embody the two basic themes of the Book of Isaiah (see 8:18): (1) "A Remnant Shall Return" (Shear-jashub); and (2) "Speed the Spoil, Hasten the Booty" (Maher-shalal-hash-baz). Isaiah's primary work was that of preaching judgment (6:10; Matt. 13:14, 15). Judah would ultimately experience devastation at the hands of the Babylonians in 586 B.C. (6:11; 39:5–8). Isaiah was a writer of considerable skill who was steadfast in his devotion to the Lord. According to popular Jewish tradition, Isaiah met his death by being sawn in two during the reign of the evil King Manasseh of Judah (cf. Heb. 11:37). Certainly he is one of the heroes of the faith "of whom the world was not worthy" (Heb. 11:38). (First Reference, Is. 1:1; Primary References, the Book of Isaiah.)

17 Learn to do well; seek ¹judgment, ²relieve the ³oppressed, ⁴judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.

1:10-15. The prophet addressed the people of Judah as if they were the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah. His criticism of their hypocritical religion should not be taken as a rejection of the divinely ordained sacrificial system. Rather, it is a condemnation of their superficial worship. (See the note on 1 Sam. 15:22, 23.) They were merely going through the ritual of religion with no real heart for God. Vain oblations are worthless offerings. Even the solemn meeting became nothing more than a sinful gathering because of their wrong motives. Appointed feasts probably refers to the three major religious events of the Hebrew calendar: Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles. The very prayers of the unrepentant will be rejected.

1:16, 17. Wash does not indicate that the sinner may cleanse himself. Nor does it refer to mere ritual washing. Rather, it indicates that the sinner must accept the cleansing offered by the Lord, a cleansing of the heart resulting in true repentance.

1:18-20. The prophet's appeal to come and reason together reveals God's gracious invitation to all men. It literally means to be "reasonable" by repenting and turning to God. Their sin is described as scarlet and red like crimson, referring to their bloodguiltiness before God. The term crimson also means "worm," referring to the colorfast red dye of the scarlet worm. The eradication of this stain turns it snowy white and is symbolic of the life-changing grace of God, which delivers men from the guilt and condemnation of sin. Thus the prophet reminds his readers that God stands ready to cleanse and forgive all who will turn to Him.

1:21-31. This concluding passage is supplementary to the rest of the chapter. It looks forward to the millennial kingdom when Jerusalem will again be restored as God's faithful city. Verse 24 uses three different divine names: Lord (Adōn); LORD (Yahweh), and mighty One of Israel (Abir Yisrā'el). All refer to the same person of the Godhead. Converts are literally "turned ones" or "repentant ones."

The Day of the Lord

11 The ¹lofty looks of man shall be ^ahumbled, and the haughtiness of men shall be bowed down, and the LORD alone shall be exalted ^bin that day.

12 For the day of the LORD of hosts shall be upon every one that is proud and lofty, and upon every one that is lifted up; and he shall be brought low:

2:1-5. The word that Isaiah ... saw indicates that this is a separate prophecy from that of chapter 1. The prophetic perfect tense implies that the prophet sees the future as though it had already happened. The passage is repeated in Micah 4:1-4 in similar form. The setting is the millennial age, when the nations of the world will come to the Holy City (Jerusalem) to learn the ways of God. Christ Himself is pictured as the Judge who will direct the affairs of nations during His millennial kingdom. Thus the weapons of war will be turned into tools of peace and economic productivity.

2:6-9. The phrase replenished from the east means that they had become filled with pagan influences from the East, namely, Assyria and Babylon. Soothsayers (Heb. 'anan, "to cloud" or "cover") clouded over the truth rather than shedding any real light on it. The mean man refers to the lower class of society and the great man to the upper class. Both were bowing to idols and in danger of God's judgment.

2:10-22. Isaiah warns his listeners to "run for cover" because of the coming judgment of the day of the LORD. This is a time of universal judgment that will result in the overthrow of all human government (cf. Joel and 2 Thess. 1:7-2:12). Since this day of judgment is coming, when all human government shall collapse into the dust, the prophet urges his readers to trust in God. The ships of Tarshish refers to the fleet of western Europe (Spain) which carried smelted ore. (See the note on 1 Kin. 10:22.) The reference to shaking the earth is similar to Revelation 6:14.

13 And upon all ^athe cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up, and upon all the oaks of Bashan,

14 And ^aupon all the high mountains, and upon all the hills that are lifted up,

15 And upon every high tower, and upon every ¹fenced wall,

16 ^aAnd upon all the ships of Tarshish, and upon all ¹pleasant pictures.

17 And the ¹loftiness of man shall be bowed down, and the haughtiness of men shall be made low: and the LORD alone shall be exalted in that day.

18 And the idols ¹he shall utterly abolish.

The Fear of the Lord

19 And they shall go into the ^aholes of the rocks, and into the caves of the ¹earth, ^bfor ²fear of the LORD, and for the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth ^cto ³shake terribly the earth.

20 In that day a man shall ¹cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats;

3:1-8. The prophet denounces the private sins of the affluent upper class of Judah by warning them that God will take away their leaders and replace them with incompetent ones. Stay and staff are two genders of the same noun and serve as a Hebrew idiom for "all kinds of things." He then lists the kinds of leaders who will fail, beginning with the mighty man (gibōr, heroic leader). In place of these national leaders God warns that He will give them children... and babes to rule over them. This prophecy was literally fulfilled when Manasseh at age 12 began his long and wicked reign, which eventually led to Judah's final downfall. Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen is stated in the prophetic perfect as if this future event were already a fact.

3:9-15. The shew of their countenance means "the look of their faces." Their guilty faces clearly revealed their sinful hearts. Children are their oppressors, and women rule over them indicates the utter failure of male leadership in their society.

3:16-26. The arrogant and fashionable women of Jerusalem are condemned by the prophet for being more interested in the latest fads of fashion than the spiritual well-being of the nation. They are described as haughty, proud, and wanton (suggestive). They walk with heads held high and with mincing steps, tinkling the bangles on their feet; they have flashing, seductive eyes. Cauls, or headbands. Round tires like the moon, or crescent ornaments. Mufflers, or veils. Suits of apparel, or festal robes. Mantles, or tunics. Wimples, or cloaks. Glasses, or mirrors. Thus the prophet predicts that the women of Judah will cease to delight in these feminine accessories and will perish with the men of Judah.

4:1. This verse serves as a summary of the preceding chapter. As a result of the coming devastation of the land, seven women shall take hold of one man, meaning that the male population will be so devastated that there will be seven women for every surviving male.

4:2-6. The branch of the LORD is the Messiah Himself. This same title is used in Jeremiah 23:5, 33:15, and Zechariah 3:8, and 6:12. Thus, in the midst of his warning of judgment, Isaiah reveals a glorious promise of the future hope of the coming of the Messiah. He sees ahead to the millennial kingdom when once again the cloud of glory shall rule them by day and the pillar of fire shall lead them by night. The phrase for upon all the glory shall be a defence should read: "the glory shall be spread over them as a canopy of protection."

5 And the LORD will create upon every dwelling place of mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, ^aa cloud and smoke by day, and ^bthe shining of a flaming fire by night: for ¹upon all the glory shall be a ²defence.

6 And there shall be a tabernacle for a ¹shadow in the daytime from the heat, and ^afor a place of refuge, and for a ²covert from storm and from rain.

The Vineyard of Wild Grapes

5 Now will I sing to my wellbeloved a song of my beloved ^atouching his vineyard. My wellbeloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill:

2 And he ¹fenced it, and ²gathered out the stones thereof, and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and also ³made a winepress therein: ^aand he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes.

3 And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Judah, ^ajudge, I pray you, betwixt me and my vineyard.

4 What could have been done more to my vineyard, that I have not done in ^ait? wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes?

5:1-7. These verses explain a parable of the vineyard, which symbolizes Israel (cf. also Jer. 12:10; Ps. 80:8-19; Matt. 21:33-45). The poem is called the song of my beloved, and resembles the Song of Solomon, but in this passage it becomes a song of lament. The beloved is the Lord, and Israel is the vineyard that has brought forth wild grapes. There is a play on sounds and letters in the Hebrew of he looked for judgment (mishpat) but behold oppression (mispach); for righteousness (tsedaqah) but behold a cry (tse'aqah). The prophet's point is that the judgment of God will bring the opposite of what they expect.

5:8-25. The prophet pronounces a sixfold Woe on the sins of Judah. Join house to house means they are greedy landgrabbers. By foreclosing mortgages, the wealthy landowners acquired all the adjoining land to form huge estates. A bath was a liquid measure equivalent to an ephah of dry measure (about eight gallons). A homer was about 83 gallons. Strong drink (shēkar) refers to fermented drink. Draw iniquity with cords refers to pulling a load of sin with a rope on a cart. Thus the people of Judah are condemned for parading their sin before God.

21 Woe unto them that are ^awise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight!

22 Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink:

24 Therefore ^aas ¹the fire devour-eth the stubble, and the flame consumeth the chaff, so ^btheir root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust: because they have cast away the law of the LORD of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel.

The Holy and Glorious Lord

6 In the year that ^aking Uzziah died I ¹saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and ¹his train filled the temple.

2 Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings; with ¹twain he covered his face, and ^awith ¹twain he covered his feet, and with ¹twain he did fly.

3 And one cried unto another,

5:26-30. Again Isaiah injects a word of hope in the midst of his prophecy of doom. God will raise an ensign (lit., "banner") and will hiss (whistle) at the nations to come and do His bidding. The banner serves as a declaration of war, and the invading nations are coming to destroy Judah at God's request. The first five chapters serve as an introduction or overview of the prophecies of this book.

6:1-4. In chapter 6 Isaiah recounts his original call to the prophetic ministry, dating it from the year that king Uzziah died, 740 B.C. With the death of godly Uzziah, Judah's golden age was fast slipping away. No human leader appeared on the scene to reverse the decadence that had begun during Uzziah's final years of isolation due to leprosy. At this crucial hour, the prophet's attention was turned to God Himself, the true Sovereign in the affairs of men. A throne refers to the throne of heaven (see Rev. 4:2). His train refers to His royal robes. Seraphims ("burning ones") are six-winged angelic creatures that continually fly in the presence of God, declaring His holiness. Holy, holy, holy is a threefold declaration of God's person and may be taken as a suggestion of the Trinity. Note that when God speaks, He uses the plural pronoun us (v. 8).

God's Message to Ahaz

7 And it came to pass in the days of ^aAhaz the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin the king of Syria, and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, went up toward Jerusalem to war against ^bit, but could not ¹prevail against it.

2 And it was told the house of David, saying, Syria ¹is confederate with Ephraim. And his heart was ²moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind.

6:5. Isaiah's Confession: Having seen God in the full glory of His holiness, Isaiah pronounces the prophetic Woe upon himself. This was a legal charge meaning "ruined" or "dead." His self-evaluation was I am undone (from Heb. damah, meaning "to be dumb" or "silent"). Thus, his response was a statement of total self-condemnation: "I am dead ... I am speechless!" Recognizing that he has no legitimate excuse for himself, he further realizes that he is unclean (tamē, "defiled" or "polluted"). This self-evaluation is made in light of the fact that he has seen the King, the LORD of hosts. The heavenly King is identified as Yahweh Himself, who is called "LORD of hosts" 62 times in Isaiah and 261 times throughout the Old Testament. See the note on 1 Samuel 1:3.

6:6, 7. Isaiah's Consecration: Isaiah's confession of his personal sin brought the response of God's cleansing to equip him for service to the Lord. The altar was the place of blood sacrifice, called by later rabbinic writers the paraclete, or place of expiation or intercession. The coal has no redemptive ability of its own but is symbolic of the efficacy of the burnt offering consumed on the altar. Thus Isaiah's sin was purged (cleansed).

6:8. Isaiah's Call: Isaiah states that he heard the voice of the Lord asking whom He should send and who will go for us? The plural pronouns are used here as in Genesis 1:26 to refer to the triune God. The prophet himself is now a changed man. Having his burden of guilt and worry removed, he spontaneously volunteers: Here am I; send me. His consecration by God prepared him to answer God's call to service. Isaiah's response, Here am I is one word in Hebrew (hineni). It also appears in the Hebrew text in 58:9, when God responds to those who call on Him and says, "Here I am" (hineni). Thus, Isaiah connects his response to God's call in the first part of his book to God's response to his call in the second part of the book, emphasizing the unity of the book's authorship.

6:9-13. Isaiah's Commission: God warns Isaiah that his ministry, for the most part, will fall upon deaf ears. The syntax of the sentence indicates that hear ye indeed means "keep on hearing." Thus Judah will continue hearing but not heeding the prophet's warning. Make the heart ... fat ... ears heavy ... shut their eyes indicates that the more he preaches, the more the people will harden themselves to his message until the Babylonian captivity, after which only a tenth ... shall return.

7:1, 2. The Immanuel Prophecy (7:1-12:6) introduces the hope of the future in spite of pending judgment. Ahaz ruled Judah from 736 to 720 B.C. He was an ungodly king who refused Isaiah's words of encouragement. Rezin was the last king of Syria to reign

5 Because Syria, Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah, have ¹taken evil counsel against thee, saying,

A Sign from the Lord

10 Moreover the LORD spake again unto Ahaz, saying,

11 ^aAsk thee a sign of the LORD thy God; ¹ask it either in the depth, or in the height above.

12 But Ahaz said, I will not ask, neither will I ¹tempt the LORD.

13 And he said, Hear ye now, O house of David; Is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also?

14 Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; ^aBehold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear ^ba son, and shall call his name ^cImmanuel. ¹ in Damascus. He was later killed by Tiglath-pileser of Assyria. Pekah was the king of northern Israel from 740 to 732 B.C. He usurped the throne by assassinating his predecessor, Pekahiah, and was later murdered by his successor, Hoshea, the last king of Israel. Syria is confederate with Ephraim refers to the fact that they had formed an alliance against Ahaz to force him into an alliance with them against Assyria. This event is generally dated at 734 B.C. What Ahaz fears is an invasion of Judah by Syria and Israel.

7:3-9. Isaiah is sent by the Lord to warn Ahaz not to form an alliance with Assyria, but to trust Him to rid the land of its enemies. Accompanying the prophet was Shear-jashub ("A Remnant Shall Return"), his son, whose name was indicative of hope. The location at the end of the conduit of the upper pool is the same place that the Assyrian Rabshakeh would later defy Hezekiah (36:2). The invading kings are described as smoking firebrands (lit., "smoldering sticks"). The prophet predicts that the threatened invasion will not succeed and that within threescore and five years (65 years) the northern kingdom will fall into captivity.

7:10-13. As the spokesman of the LORD (Yahweh), Isaiah urges Ahaz to ask thee a sign (ōt, miracle). However, the king responded with a surprising pious ploy announcing that he would not ask for such a sign nor tempt the LORD. Instead, Isaiah announced that God Himself had chosen a miraculous sign addressed to the house of David. Since the Davidic line (and hence the messianic line) was at stake, the prophecy was directed to all generations. It was a prediction of hope: though Israel and Judah may be cut down, a Child will spring forth as a Branch out of its roots.

7:14. Therefore is a transitional word used to connect verse 14 to the preceding statements. The Lord here is Adōnai. Behold is used to call attention to the unusual birth that is about to be announced. (See also Gen. 16:11 and Judg. 13:5.) A virgin is better read "the virgin." The Hebrew definite article ha indicates that a specific woman is in view. The word virgin used here is the unique Hebrew term almah. A comparison of the six other instances where it occurs (Gen. 24:43; Ex. 2:8; Ps. 68:25; Prov. 30:19; Song 1:3; 6:8) shows that it is the most precise term the prophet could have chosen to indicate that the young woman in view was indeed a virgin. The more common word betūlah is used twice to refer to a married woman (Deut. 22:19 and Joel 1:8). Thus the Septuagint translation of almah as parthenos (virgin) is correct, as is Matthew 1:23. Shall conceive is a feminine adjective connected with an active participle ("bearing") and should be translated "is pregnant." Thus the scene is present to the prophet's view, and he sees the pregnant virgin about to bear a Son. That this prophecy must refer to the virgin birth of Christ is obvious since the virgin is pregnant and is still a virgin! Immanuel is a symbolic name, meaning "God with Us." He is the incarnate Son of God who is further pictured as the Child-Prince in 9:6, 7. See the note on Matthew 1:23.

7:15, 16. Butter and honey is a reference to the best food. (See v. 22, "abundance of milk ... and honey.") The phrase indicates that the land will be so desolate of people that the best of food is available to those who remain. Before the child shall know to refuse the evil implies about two years of age. The land that thou abhorrest refers to Syria and Ephraim. In the context the prophet carries the present tense of

Damascus and Samaria to Fall

8 Moreover the LORD said unto me, Take thee a great roll, and “write in it with a man’s pen concerning ¹Maher-shalal-hash-baz.

6 Forasmuch as this people refuseth the waters of “Shiloah that go softly, and rejoice ^bin Rezin and Remaliah’s son;

7 Now therefore, behold, the Lord bringeth up upon them the waters

the prediction into the immediate situation. Though Immanuel would not actually be born for many years to come, His infancy symbolizes the fact that Judah’s present desolation will be short-lived because her enemies will soon be rendered powerless. Thus the prophecy has both immediate significance to Ahaz and ultimate significance to the line of David in predicting the virgin birth of the Messiah.

7:17–25. The day that Ephraim departed from Judah refers to the division of the kingdom between the northern and southern tribes after the death of Solomon in 931 B.C. The king of Assyria is named as the source of the coming destruction of northern Israel, which was fulfilled in 722 B.C. The fly symbolizes Egypt, and the bee symbolizes Assyria. Within two years after Isaiah’s prophecy to Ahaz, Syria fell to Assyria (732 B.C.) and Pekah no longer ruled Israel. Within another 10 years, Israel (Ephraim) had also fallen to Assyria.

8:1–4. Isaiah is commanded to take a great roll (scroll) and write on it the symbolic name of his son

Maher-shalal-hash-baz (meaning “Speed the Spoil, Hasten the Prey”). His name was to symbolize the swift and successful Assyrian conquest of Damascus (Syria) and Samaria (Israel). Uriah is referred to as a faithful witness and may be the priest named in 2 Kings 16:16. Zechariah is one of 28 men so named in the Old Testament. He is here distinguished as the son of Jeberechiah.

8:5–10. The waters of Shiloah refers to the waters of the pool of Siloam, known for their healing powers (cf. John 9:7). Since the people of Israel have refused the Lord in a time of peace, God will bring upon them the waters of the river, which are contrasted to those of the gentle pool. This phrase is used figuratively of the overflowing of the army of the king of Assyria. Thus Isaiah names in advance the nation that will destroy Israel. That this invasion will also pass through Judah, and will overflow even to the neck, indicates that the Assyrian invasion will wipe out the northern kingdom and nearly drown the southern kingdom. Judah’s narrow escape is described in Isaiah 36 and of¹ the river, strong and ²many, even the king of Assyria, and all his glory: and he shall come up over all his channels, and go over all his banks:

8 And he shall pass through Judah; he shall overflow and go over, ^ahe shall reach even to the neck; and the stretching out of his wings shall fill the breadth of thy land, O ^bImmanuel.¹

Seek the Law and the Testimony

19 And when they shall say unto you, ^aSeek unto them that ¹have familiar spirits, and unto wizards ^bthat ²peep, and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? ³for the living ^cto the dead?

20 ^aTo the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word,¹ it is because ^bthere is no light in them.

21 And they shall pass through it, ¹hardly bestead and hungry: and it shall come to pass, that when they shall be hungry, they shall ²fret themselves, and ^acurse³ their king and their God, and look upward.

22 And they shall look unto the earth; and behold trouble and darkness, ¹dimness of anguish; and they shall be driven to darkness.

A Great Light

9 Nevertheless ^athe ¹dimness shall not be ²such as was in her vexation, when at the ^bfirst he lightly ³afflicted the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, and ^aafterward ⁴did more grievously afflict her by the way of the sea, beyond Jordan, in Galilee of the ⁵nations.

37. Thy land, O Immanuel indicates that Immanuel is no ordinary person born in the days of Isaiah. He is the One who owns the land Himself (a claim reserved in Scripture only for God). Thus the invading nations are told that their alliances will not stand against Judah because God is with us. There can be no doubt that the use of these terms is intended to connect this chapter with the prophecy of the virgin birth of Immanuel and to serve as a link to the prediction of His birth as King in chapter 9.

8:11-18. The stone of stumbling and ... rock of offence in verse 14 is quoted in Romans 9:33 and 1 Peter 2:8 as predictively referring to Christ. A gin is a trap. Instead of finding asylum in the Lord, the unbelievers will stumble over Him in disbelief. The prophet closes this section by stating that he and his children are intended to be signs and ... wonders to the nation of Judah. Their symbolic names were to serve as a final warning to the people of Zion.

8:19-22. Familiar spirits refers to witches, and wizards refers to male soothsayers. Peep and ... mutter is better rendered "chirp and whisper." In times of distress people often turn to witchcraft instead of God. The prophet warns them not to seek these mediums for the living to the dead, that is, "Do not consult the dead on behalf of the living." This warning speaks against spiritism and calls the reader back to the law and ... the testimony as the only basis for interpreting a claim to divine revelation.

9:1-5. The dimness of Israel's rejection was especially prevalent in the northern tribal areas of Zebulun and Naphtali, which would suffer greatly under

2 ^aThe people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

3 Thou hast multiplied the nation, and ¹not increased the joy: they joy before thee according to the joy in harvest, and as men rejoice ^awhen they divide the ²spoil.

4 For thou hast broken the yoke of his burden, and the staff of his shoulder, the rod of his oppressor, as in the day of ^aMidian.

5 For every ¹battle of the warrior ²is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; ^abut ³this shall be with burning and fuel ⁴of fire.

The Birth of the Prince of Peace

6 ^aFor unto us a child is born, unto us a ^bson is given: and ^cthe government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called ^dWonderful, Counsellor, ^eThe mighty God, The everlasting Father, ^fThe Prince of Peace.

7 Of the increase of his government and peace ^athere shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The ^bzeal of the LORD of hosts will perform this.

9 And all the people shall know, even Ephraim and the inhabitant of Samaria, that say in the pride and ¹stoutness of heart,

10 The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn stones: the sycomores are cut down, but we will ¹change them into cedars.

11 Therefore the LORD shall set up the adversaries of Rezin against him, and ¹join his enemies together;

12 The Syrians before, and the Philistines behind; and they shall devour Israel with open mouth. For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ¹stretched out still.

13 For the people turneth not unto him that ¹smiteth them, neither do they seek the LORD of hosts.

14 Therefore the LORD will cut off from Israel head and tail, ¹branch and ²rush, ^ain one day.

15 The ¹ancient and honourable, he is the head; and the prophet that teacheth lies, he is the tail.

16 For ^athe leaders of this people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed.

17 Therefore the Lord ^ashall have no joy in their young men, neither shall have mercy on their fatherless and widows: for every one is an hypocrite and an evildoer, and every mouth speaketh ¹folly. ^bFor all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ²stretched out still.

the Assyrian invasion. Galilee is named and identified with the nations (gōyīm, Gentiles). To those in the darkness of the north, God promises to send a great light, which is quoted in Matthew 4:15–16 as being fulfilled in Jesus' ministry in Galilee. The prophet sees these events as though they were already happening. Thus he predicts the future with certainty, as though it had already come to pass.

9:6, 7. The Gift-Child in this passage is the same divine Child as Immanuel. Again, using the prophetic perfect, the prophet sees Him as though He were already born. Wonderful, Counsellor (pele'yō'ēts) is actually one term in Hebrew. A wonder is indicative of a miracle. Counsellor is often used in parallel with king (cf. Mic. 4:9). Thus miraculous counsel is given by this God-like King. The mighty God (El Gibōr) is the strongest of these titles. In Isaiah, El is always used of God and never refers to man. Gibōr means "Hero." Together they describe One who is indeed God Himself. Everlasting Father (abī'ad) literally means Father of Eternity. He alone is the source of eternal life. Prince of Peace (Sar-Shalōm) indicates that the mighty God will be a benevolent ruler bringing eternal peace on earth through the establishment of His kingdom. Thus the obscure figure of Immanuel is now brought to clear light: He is Himself God incarnate!

9:8–12. The prophet warns Ephraim (northern Israel) that she cannot rebuild with the bricks that are fallen down. This refers to the invasion of Israel by Tiglath-pileser in 732 B.C. All hope of rebuilding the northern kingdom will finally be lost. His hand is stretched out still means that God's hand of judgment is still stretched out in anger to punish Israel.

9:13–21. The people turneth not unto him means they refused to repent and turn back to the Lord. To "turn" means to repent (Heb. shūb) with a change of mind that results in a change of direction. Branch and rush means "palm branch and bulrush." The leaders are specifically condemned for misleading the people. Isaiah's words here are reminiscent of his message in chapter 3.

18 For wickedness ^aburneth as the fire: it shall devour the briers and thorns, and shall kindle in the thickets of the forest, and they shall mount up like ¹the lifting up of smoke.

19 Through the wrath of the LORD of hosts is ^athe land ¹darkened, and the people shall be ²as the fuel of the fire: ^bno man shall spare his brother.

20 And he shall ¹snatch on the right hand, and be hungry; and he shall eat on the left hand, ^aand they shall not be satisfied: ^bthey shall eat every man the flesh of his own arm:

21 ¹Manasseh, Ephraim; and Ephraim, Manasseh: and they together shall be ^aagainst Judah. ^bFor all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ²stretched out still.

Woe to the Abusers of Justice

10 Woe unto them that ^adecree unrighteous decrees, and that write ¹grievousness which they have prescribed;

2 To ¹turn aside the needy ²from judgment, and to take away ³the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherless!

3 And ^awhat will ye do in ^bthe day of ¹visitation, and in the desolation which shall come from ^afar? to whom will ye flee for help? and where will ye leave your glory?

4 Under me they shall bow down ¹under the ^aprisoners, and they shall fall ¹under the slain. ^bFor all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ²stretched out still.

10:1–4. A prophetic Woe is pronounced against those administrators who pervert justice. These government officials have abused their power and are now called to God's bar of justice.

10:5–19. Like an offended father dealing with a disobedient son, God used the Assyrian as a rod of ... anger to discipline Israel. Howbeit he meaneth not so indicates that the Assyrians did not intend to cooperate with God, but in the Providence of God they cooperated unwittingly. The cities listed in verse 9 are on a direct line from Nineveh (capital of Assyria) to Jerusalem (capital of Judah). Note that Samaria is already listed as fallen. The prophet's intention is to make it clear that Assyria will not conquer Israel by her own power but by God's permission.

¹Lord of hosts, send among his fat ones leanness; and under his glory he shall kindle a burning like the burning of a fire.

17 And the light of Israel shall be for a fire, and his Holy One for a flame: ^aand it shall burn and devour his thorns and his briars in one day;

18 And shall consume the glory of his forest, and of ^ahis fruitful field, both soul and body: and they shall be as when a standardbearer fainteth.

19 And the rest of the trees of his forest shall be few, that a child may write them.

A Remnant Shall Return to the Lord

20 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of Israel, and such as are escaped of the house of Jacob, ^ashall no more again ¹stay upon him that ²smote them; but shall ¹stay upon the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth.

21 The remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the ^amighty God.

11 And ^athere shall come forth a ¹rod out of the ²stem of ^bJesse, and ^ca Branch shall ³grow out of his roots:

² And the spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the LORD;

10:20-34. The remnant of Israel are those who have come to trust in the Lord. The remnant shall return is reminiscent of the prophet's son, Shear-jashub. The slaughter of Midian at the rock of Oreb occurred centuries earlier in the days of Gideon (Judg. 7:15). It symbolizes the overwhelming power of divine intervention in human affairs.

11:1. The millennial reign of Christ is described in 11:1—12:6. The time of the Messiah's coming was undoubtedly a puzzle in Old Testament times. In this section the prophet indicates that His coming is yet in the distant future. Isaiah predicts that the "tree" of the line of David will be cut down and that a shoot must grow out of the stock of Jesse before it will flourish again. He predicts that a rod (chöter, "shoot" or "sprout") will come forth from the stem (geza, "root" or "stump") of Jesse (David's father and the forefather of the Davidic line). Branch (netser) is used in parallel with rod.

3 And ¹shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the LORD: and he shall not judge ²after the sight of his eyes, neither ³reprove after the hearing of his ears:

4 But ^awith righteousness shall he judge the poor, and ¹reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall ^bsmite² the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked.

5 And righteousness shall be the ¹girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the ²girdle of his reins.

The Wolf and the Lamb

6 ^aThe wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.

11:2-5. The Branch is personalized in verse 2 as the Messiah Himself. The spirit of the LORD refers to the sevenfold Spirit of God (cf. Rev. 4:5) described here in relation to His seven attributes. The words for counsel and might are the same as used in 9:6 to describe the divine Child. Because the Spirit of God is upon Him, the Messiah will not judge after the sight of his eyes, for He will have true spiritual vision and judge the poor with righteousness. He will rule the earth with the rod [shebet, scepter] of his mouth, the power of His spoken word, by which He will slay the wicked with His breath (cf. Rev. 19:15).

11:6-9. Peace and harmony will characterize the Messiah's kingdom. Ravenous predatory animals—wolf, leopard, lion and bear—are set in deliberate contrast to the more defenseless lamb, kid, calf, cow, and ox. That the lion shall eat straw implies a change of diet. Even the asp and the cockatrice (snakes) will be harmless to a small child. Isaiah sees the Messiah ruling the world in righteousness and a peace that extends even to the animal kingdom. During this time the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD. Thus the prophet sees beyond the restoration of Judah to a time when the Messiah will rule the entire world.

11:10. The Messiah is again referred to as a root [shōresh] of Jesse as in verse 1. He is clearly Jewish, for He will stand for an ensign of the people (amim, a term applied to the Jewish people). Yet Isaiah goes on to say that this is the banner the Gentiles seek. Thus Isaiah is predicting a time when salvation will come to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews.

11:11-16. The prophet foresees a time when the hostile enemies of Israel will be at peace with her during the millennial kingdom. Assyria to the north and Egypt to the south are especially in view, as are Pathros in Upper Egypt, Cush (Ethiopia), Elam (the Persian Gulf), Shinar (Babylon), and Hamath on the Orontes River in Syria.

12:1-6. This chapter is a song of triumphant praise and serves as a dramatic climax and doxology to the Immanuel prophecy (7:1-12:6). I will praise thee is an imperfect verb expressing continual action. Behold, God is my salvation literally means, "My salvation is God Himself!" The Lord JEHOVAH is our strength, song, and salvation. The expression is similar to the song of deliverance sung by the people of Israel when they crossed the Red Sea (Ex. 15:12). John 4:14 is reminiscent of the water out of the wells of salvation. Excellent things are majestic things. These great things are to be preached to the whole world and sung and shouted aloud, for great is the Holy One of Israel. With beautiful imagery, Isaiah closes this section of prophecy with a triumphal doxology of praise.

13:1-5. This section of Isaiah's prophecy concerns the message of God's judgment against Israel's neighbors. The prophet's message of judgment begins with the word burden (masa'), which may also be rendered "oracle." The fact that Isaiah did see these events indicates that he saw them in a vision as though they were actually happening. The prophet's first message was delivered against Babylon, the very nation that would eventually carry Judah into captivity. Sanctified ones and mighty ones are the armies of Medo-Persia, which God will raise up against Babylon to fulfill His purpose.

13:6-18. Isaiah's reference to the day of the LORD is both immediate and eschatological. The destruction that he has immediately in view is the fall of Babylon in 539 B.C. But he also saw the ultimate fall of "Babylon" in the last days (cf. Rev. 14:18). The Medes are named in advance in verse 17 (as is Cyrus in chs. 44, 45) since they rose to power before the Persians.

13 "Therefore I will shake the heavens, and the earth shall remove out of her place, in the wrath of the LORD of hosts, and in ^bthe day of his fierce anger.

14 And it shall be as the ¹chased roe, and as a sheep that no man ²taketh up: "they shall every man turn to his own people, and flee every one into his own land.

15 Every one that is found shall be thrust through; and every one that is ¹joined unto them shall fall by the sword.

16 Their children also shall be "dashed to pieces before their eyes; their houses shall be ¹spoiled, and their wives ^bravished.

17 "Behold, I will stir up the Medes against them, which shall not ¹regard silver; and as for gold, they shall not delight in it.

18 Their bows also shall dash the young men to pieces; and they shall have no pity on the fruit of the womb; their eye shall not spare children.

The Desolation of Babylon

19 "And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency, shall be as when God overthrew ^bSodom and Gomorrah.

20 "It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there; neither shall the shepherds make their fold there.

21 "But wild beasts of the desert shall lie there; and their houses shall be full of ¹doleful creatures; and ²owls shall dwell there, and ³satyrs shall dance there.

The Fall of Babylon's King

4 That thou "shalt take up this proverb against the king of Babylon, and say, How hath the oppressor ceased! the ^bgolden^c city ceased!

5 The LORD hath broken "the staff of the wicked, and the sceptre of the rulers.

6 He who ¹smote the people in wrath with a continual stroke, he that ruled the nations in anger, is persecuted, and none hindereth.

13:19-22. Isaiah closes this chapter by predicting that Babylon will be destroyed and will never be rebuilt. Instead it will remain desolate and shall never be inhabited. The reference to wild beasts should be taken literally and not interpreted as demons. Owls, satyrs, and dragons are better rendered ostriches, wild goats, and jackals.

14:1-11. This section is a song of triumph over Babylon. The nation that will one day send Judah into captivity will herself be severely judged by God. In spite of this displeasure with Israel, there is coming a time when He will have mercy on Jacob and will choose Israel. This refers to Israel's future restoration in her own land. Hell (she'ol) is the Old Testament name for the abode of the dead, a fiery place of judgment for the unrighteous. In the proverb used here the king of Babylon is viewed as being welcomed into hell by the kings of the nations (Gentiles), who are astonished that he has become weak as we.

it stirreth up the dead for thee, even all the chief ones of the earth; it hath raised up from their thrones all the kings of the nations.

10 All they shall ^aspeak and say unto thee, Art thou also become weak as we? art thou become like unto us?

11 Thy pomp is brought down to ¹the grave, and the noise of thy ²viols: the ³worm is spread under thee, and the worms cover thee.

The Fall of Assyria

24 The LORD of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it ^astand:

14:12-23. Lucifer most certainly refers to Satan. Now we see the real power behind the Gentile monarchs. Thus Isaiah uses that fall of Satan, which is an assumed fact, to illustrate the fall of the Babylonian king. The name Lucifer is actually the Latin designation for the morning star (lit., "Light-bearer"). The Hebrew (hēlēl) means the "bright one." As the morning star speedily disappears before the rising sun, so Satan, the angel of light, will be banished to outer darkness by the coming of the Son of God.

SATAN

14:12. Originally created as one of God's highest angels, possessing all angelic attributes, Satan ("Adversary") led angels in a rebellion. He is described as the originator and chief practitioner of sin (1 John 3:8), "that wicked one" (1 John 5:18), a thief and destroyer (John 10:10), a deceiver (Rev. 12:9), murderer and liar (John 8:44), and the accuser of the brethren (Rev. 12:10). Illustration: Satan's subtle nature is reflected in the first temptation (Gen. 3:1), and in his titles "angel of light" (2 Cor. 11:14) and him that "deceiveth the whole world" (Rev. 12:9). His present-day activities include opposing the will and work of God, counterfeiting the work of God, and destroying all that is good. Application: A Christian can overcome Satan when he remembers four basic principles: First, though Jesus is greater than the Devil (1 John 4:4), a Christian must still have a healthy respect for the Enemy; even the archangel Michael did not confront Satan except in the name of the Lord (Jude 9). Second, a wise Christian will evaluate his life and avoid those situations where he is most likely to be tempted (1 Thess. 5:22). Third, he should resist the Devil by submitting to God (James 4:7-10). Finally, the Christian should always be prepared by wearing the whole armor of God (Eph. 6:13-17). (First Reference, Is. 14:12-17; Primary Reference, Is. 14:12-17; cf. 1 Tim. 4:1.)

25 That I will break the ^aAssyrian in my land, and upon my mountains tread him under foot: then shall ^bhis yoke depart from off them, and his burden depart from off their shoulders.

26 This is the ^apurpose that is purposed upon the whole earth: and this is the hand that is stretched out upon all the nations.

27 For the LORD of hosts hath ^apurposed, and who shall disannul it? and his hand is stretched out, and who shall turn it back?

28 In the year that ^aking Ahaz died was this ¹burden.

29 Rejoice not ¹thou, whole Palestina, ^abecause the rod of him that ²smote thee is broken: for out of the serpent's root shall come forth ^{3a}a cockatrice, ^band his fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent.

30 And the firstborn of the poor shall feed, and the needy shall lie down in safety: and I will kill thy root with famine, and he shall slay thy remnant.

31 Howl, O gate; cry, O city; ¹thou, whole Palestina, art ²dissolved: for there shall come from the north a smoke, and none shall be alone in his appointed times.

32 What shall one then answer the messengers of the nation? That ^athe LORD hath founded Zion, and ^bthe poor of his people shall ¹trust in it.

A Crying for Moab

5 ^aMy heart shall cry out for Moab; his fugitives shall flee unto Zoar, ¹an heifer of three years old: for ^bby the ²mounting up of Luhith with weeping shall they ³go it up; for in the way of Horonaim they shall raise up a cry of destruction.

6 For the waters ^aof Nimrim shall be desolate: for the hay is withered away, the grass faileth, there is no green thing.

7 Therefore the abundance they have gotten, and that which they have laid up, shall they carry away to the brook of the willows.

8 For the cry is gone round about the borders of Moab; the howling thereof unto Eglaim, and the howling thereof unto Beer-elim.

9 For the waters of Dimon shall be full of blood: for I will bring more upon Dimon, ^alions upon him that escapeth of Moab, and upon the remnant of the land.

David's Throne

16 Send ^aye the lamb to the ruler of the land ^bfrom ¹Sela to the wilderness, unto the mount of the daughter of Zion.

14:24–32. As a part of the same burden (begun in 13:1), the prophet turns his attention to the Assyrian. He promises that God will break the Assyrian upon my mountains (the Judean hills). This promise was later fulfilled during the prophet's own lifetime when the Assyrian army was struck by the Angel of the Lord (37:36). The year that king Ahaz died was 727 B.C. Palestina refers to Philistia. Here the prophet warns Israel's perennial enemies not to rejoice in their plight because they too shall be invaded from the north (i.e., Babylon).

15:1–9. The burden of Moab is aimed at Israel's enemies in the eastern Trans-Jordan. The prophet reminds his readers of the fall of Ar, the capital of Moab, and Kir, their chief fortress. Bajith, Dibon, Medeba, Heshbon, and so on, form a list of Moabite cities that will be overrun by the coming Assyrian invasion. Zoar was the city to which Lot fled after the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. Nimrim was a Moabite oasis near the Dead Sea.

2 For it shall be, that, as a ^awandering bird cast out of the nest, so the daughters of Moab shall be at the fords of ^bArnon.

3 Take counsel, execute judgment; make thy shadow as the night in the midst of the noonday; hide the outcasts; ¹bewray not him that wandereth.

4 Let mine outcasts dwell with thee, Moab; be thou a ¹covert to them from the face of the ²spoiler: for the extortioner is at an end, the ³spoiler ceaseth, the oppressors are consumed out of the land.

5 And in mercy ^ashall the throne be established: and he shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, ^bjudging, and seeking ¹judgment, and ²hasting ^crighteousness.

6 We have heard of the ^apride of Moab; he is very proud: even of his haughtiness, and his pride, and his wrath: ^bbut his ¹lies shall not be so.

7 Therefore shall Moab ^ahowl for Moab, every one shall howl: for the foundations ^bof Kir-hareseth shall ye mourn; surely they are stricken.

11 Wherefore ^amy ¹bowels shall ²sound like an harp for Moab, and ³mine inward parts for ⁴Kir-haresh.

12 And it shall come to pass, when it is seen that Moab is weary on ^athe high place, that he shall come to his sanctuary to pray; but he shall not prevail.

13 This is the word that the LORD hath spoken concerning Moab since that time.

14 But now the LORD hath spoken, saying, Within three years, ^aas the years of an hireling, and the glory of Moab shall be ¹contemned, with all that great multitude; and the remnant shall be very small and feeble.

The Burden of Damascus

17 The ^aburden¹ of Damascus. Behold, Damascus ²is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

2 The cities of ^aAroer are forsaken: they shall be for flocks, which shall lie down, and ^bnone shall make them afraid.

3 ^aThe fortress also shall cease from Ephraim, and the kingdom from Damascus, and the remnant of Syria: they shall be as the glory of the children of Israel, saith the LORD of hosts.

4 And in that day it shall come to pass, that the glory of Jacob shall ¹be made thin, and ^athe fatness of his flesh shall ²wax lean.

5 ^aAnd it shall be as when the harvestman gathereth the ¹corn, and reapeth the ears with his arm; and it shall be as he that gathereth ears in the valley of Rephaim.

16:1-5. Moab's only hope is in making peace with Judah. Send ye the lamb means they must pay tribute to the Davidic dynasty. Sela refers to Petra, the capital of Edom, which was carved out of the rocks and served as a natural hiding place. Let mine outcasts dwell with thee seems to refer to Israel's fleeing to Petra during the last days to escape the invasion from the north (predicted in Ezek. 38, 39). The reference to one sitting on the throne in the tabernacle of David would seem to place this passage in a millennial context.

17:1-14. The burden of Damascus refers to the capital city of Syria. This chapter is contemporaneous with chapter 7 and predicts the downfall of the coalition between Syria and Ephraim. Tiglath-pileser of Assyria destroyed Damascus in 732 B.C., a fulfillment of this prophecy. Jacob shall be made thin refers to the famine that followed the devastation and deportation of the northern tribes by Sargon of Assyria in 722 B.C.

A Man Shall Look to His Maker

6 ^aYet gleaning grapes shall be left in it, as the shaking of an olive tree, two or three ¹berries in the top of the uppermost bough, four or five in the outmost fruitful branches thereof, saith the LORD God of Israel.

7 At that day shall a man ^alook to his Maker, and his eyes shall ¹have respect to the Holy One of Israel.

8 And he shall not look to the altars, the work of his hands, neither shall respect that which his ^afingers have made, either the ¹groves, or the ²images.

9 In that day shall his strong cities be as a forsaken bough, and an uppermost branch, which they left because of the children of Israel: and there shall be desolation.

10 Because thou hast forgotten ^athe God of thy salvation, and hast not been mindful of the rock of thy ¹strength, therefore shalt thou plant pleasant plants, and shalt ²set it with strange slips:

11 In the day shalt thou make thy plant to grow, and in the morning shalt thou make thy seed to flourish: but the harvest shall be a heap in the day of grief and of desperate sorrow.

God Will Rebuke the Nations

12 Woe to the multitude of many people, which make a noise ^alike the noise of the seas; and to the rushing of nations, that make a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters!

13 The nations shall rush like the rushing of many waters: but God shall ^arebuke them, and they shall flee far off, and ^bshall be chased as the chaff of the mountains before the wind, and like a rolling thing before the whirlwind.

14 And behold at eveningtide trouble; and before the morning ¹he is not. This is the portion of them that ²spoil us, and the lot of them that rob us.

Ethiopia's Destruction

18 Woe ^ato the land ¹shadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of ²Ethiopia:

2 That sendeth ambassadors by the sea, even in vessels of ¹bulrushes upon the waters, saying, Go, ye swift messengers, to a nation ²scattered and peeled, to a people terrible from their beginning hitherto; a nation ³meted out and trodden down, whose land the rivers ⁴have spoiled!

3 All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, see ye, ^awhen he lifteth up ¹an ensign on the mountains; and when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye.

4 For so the LORD said unto me, I will take my rest, and I will ¹consider in my dwelling place like a clear heat ²upon herbs, and like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest.

5 For ¹afore the harvest, when the bud is perfect, and the sour grape is ripening in the flower, he shall both cut off the sprigs with ²pruning hooks, and take away and cut down the branches.

6 They shall be left together unto the ¹fowls of the mountains, and to the beasts of the earth: and the ¹fowls shall summer upon them, and all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon them.

The Present to the Lord

7 In that time ^ashall ¹the present be brought unto the LORD of hosts of a people ²scattered and peeled, and from a people terrible from their beginning hitherto; a nation ³meted out and trodden under foot, whose land the rivers ⁴have spoiled, to the place of the name of the LORD of hosts, the mount Zion.

18:1-7. The prophet now pronounces Woe (doom) on the land of Ethiopia (Cush), which rose to such power that it overran all of Egypt in 715 B.C. The Ethiopian dynasty of this period (Egypt's twenty-fifth) was headed by Shabaku (716-701 B.C.) and Shebitko (701-690 B.C.). Sennacherib of Assyria finally crushed the Ethiopian-Egyptian forces at El Tekeh in 701 B.C.

2 And I will ^aset the Egyptians against the Egyptians: and they shall fight every one against his brother, and every one against his neighbour; city against city, and kingdom against kingdom.

3 And the spirit of Egypt shall fail in the midst thereof; and I will destroy the counsel thereof: and they shall ^aseek¹ to the idols, and to the charmers, and to ²them that have familiar spirits, and to the wizards.

4 And the Egyptians will I give over ^ainto the hand of a cruel ¹lord; and a fierce king shall rule over them, saith the Lord, the LORD of hosts.

5 ^aAnd the waters shall fail from the sea, and the river shall be wasted and dried up.

6 And ¹they shall turn the rivers far away; and the brooks ^aof defence shall be emptied and dried up: the reeds and ²flags shall wither.

7 The ¹paper reeds by the ²brooks, by the mouth of the brooks, and every thing sown by the brooks, shall wither, be driven away, and be no more.

8 The fishers also shall mourn, and all they that cast ¹angle into the brooks shall lament, and they that spread nets upon the waters shall languish.

9 Moreover they that work in ^afine flax, and they that weave ¹networks, shall be ²confounded.

10 And ¹they shall be broken in the purposes thereof, all that make ²sluices and ponds for fish.

19:1-10. The burden of Egypt is a message of both judgment and hope for Egypt. Isaiah then pictures the coming Egyptian civil war of the seventh century B.C. The Egyptians fell to Esar-haddon of Assyria in 671 B.C. Idols, charmers, familiar spirits, wizards refer to various aspects of Egyptian religion, which was dominated by the occult. The cruel lord and fierce king are references to the Assyrian overlords who were to dominate Egypt for nearly 20 years.

19:11-17. Isaiah predicts the failure of Egyptian wisdom, the pride of Egyptian culture. Princes of Zoan refers to the capital of Tanis. Noph is Memphis, located at the apex of the Delta. Egypt will fall into utter confusion because the Lord has mingled a perverse spirit among the Egyptians to cause them to err in their discernment. Judah shall be a terror unto Egypt because Egypt is so weakened that even little Judah frightens her.

22 And the LORD shall ¹smite Egypt: he shall smite and ^aheal it: and they shall return even to the LORD, and he shall be intreated of them, and shall heal them.

23 In that day ^ashall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians shall ^bserve with the Assyrians.

19:18-25. The city of destruction comes from a deliberate alteration of the name Heliopolis, "City of the Sun." The prophet Isaiah sees a day when Egypt will be converted to the knowledge of the Lord. The prediction of an altar to the LORD in Egypt was technically fulfilled during the reign of Ptolemy VI by a priest named Onias. However, the saviour, and a great one who brings universal blessing, must refer to Christ Himself ruling over Egypt during the millennial kingdom. The highway running from Egypt to Assyria through Israel pictures a time of international peace when Israel and Assyria will become my people.

20:1-6. This prophecy is dated in the year of the Assyrian invasion of the Philistine coast in 711 B.C. Tartan is an Akkadian military title (cf. 2 Kin. 18:17). He was sent by Sargon to subdue the Philistine city of Ashdod. God then instructs Isaiah to become a living illustration of His coming judgment by walking naked and barefoot like a captive slave. Egypt and Ethiopia would be taken into captivity by Assyria, which was known not only for stripping its captives naked, but in some cases peeling their skin off while they were still alive!

21:1-10. The desert of the sea is unclear but seems to refer to Media and Persia, which lay beyond the desert and the Persian Gulf. Therefore Elam and Media are pictured as going up against Babylon. Thus, in this vision, Isaiah sees the Medo-Persian invasion of Babylon. The reference to the night of my pleasure may well refer to Belshazzar's banquet in Daniel 5, for on that night self-sufficient Babylon fell (539 B.C.). Babylon is fallen, is fallen is repeated twice for emphasis. The same exclamation is used in Revelation 14:8 to refer to the fall of symbolic "Babylon."

21:11, 12. Dumah refers to Edom, which was south of Moab. Seir is another name for the same area where the descendants of Esau settled. Here Edom is pictured as hiding in Seir wondering whether it is safe to come out. Isaiah is called a watchman and warns them of impending judgment unless they return (shûb, repent).

while his son Belshazzar ruled over Babylon. Kedar is a tribe of Ishmaelite descent. The prophet predicts that these desert tribes will be no match for the coming Assyrian invasion.

22:1–14. The valley of vision refers to Jerusalem, located on the hills surrounded by dominating mountain ranges. The gathering storm of judgment will dump its greatest torrents on Jerusalem herself. The coming Babylonian invasion will cause the people to go up to the housetops to observe the siege of the city. Kir and Elam are pictured as mercenaries of

Eliakim's Rise to Power

20 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will call my servant ^aEliakim the son of Hilkiah:

21 And I will clothe him with thy robe, and strengthen him with thy ¹girdle, and I will commit thy ²government into his hand: and he shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah.

22 And the key of the house of David will I lay upon his ^ashoulder; so he shall ^bopen, and none shall shut; and he shall shut, and none shall open.

23 And I will fasten him as ^aa ¹nail in a sure place; and he shall be for a glorious throne to his father's house.

24 And they shall hang upon him all the glory of his father's house, the offspring and the issue, all vessels of small quantity, from the vessels of cups, even to all the vessels of ¹flagons.

25 In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall the ¹nail that is fastened in the sure place be removed, and be cut down, and fall; and the burden that was upon it shall be cut off: for the LORD hath spoken it.

The Burden of Tyre

23 The ^aburden¹ of Tyre. Howl, ye ships of Tarshish; for it is laid waste, so that there is no house, no ²entering in: from the land of ³Chittim it is revealed to them.

2 Be still, ye inhabitants of the ¹isle; thou whom the merchants of ²Zidon, that pass over the sea, have ³replenished.

3 And by great waters the ¹seed of Sihor, the harvest of ²the river, is her revenue; and ^ashe is a ³mart of nations.

Babylon. The choicest valleys, which had known the blessing of prosperity, will then be full of chariots of the invading army. The prophet calls for weeping, mourning, and sackcloth (repentance), but instead the people have developed the attitude of eat and drink; for to morrow we shall die.

22:15-25. Shebna is referred to as the treasurer and apparently was the leader of the pro-Egyptian faction in Jerusalem. Thinking his position was secure, he had already ordered a large sepulchre (tomb) to be raised in his memory. Instead, Isaiah predicts that he will soon be demoted and will eventually die a pauper in a foreign country. Shebna was replaced by Eliakim during the reign of Hezekiah, as indicated in 2 Kings 18:18. The key of the house of David refers to the responsibility of protecting the Davidic line.

4 Be thou ashamed, O ¹Zidon: for the sea hath spoken, even the strength of the sea, saying, I travail not, nor bring forth children, neither do I ²nourish up young men, nor bring up virgins.

5 ^aAs at the report concerning Egypt, so shall they be sorely pained at the report of Tyre.

6 Pass ye over to Tarshish; howl, ye inhabitants of the ¹isle.

7 Is this your ^ajoyous city, whose antiquity is of ancient days? her own feet shall carry her afar off to sojourn.

8 Who hath taken this counsel against Tyre, ^athe crowning city, whose merchants are princes, whose ¹traffickers are the honourable of the earth?

9 The LORD of hosts hath ^apurposed it, ¹to stain the ^bpride of all glory, and to bring into contempt all the honourable of the earth.

10 Pass through thy land as ¹a river, O daughter of Tarshish: there is no more ²strength.

11 He stretched out his hand over the sea, he shook the kingdoms: the LORD hath given a commandment ^aagainst ¹the merchant city, to destroy the strong holds thereof.

12 And he said, Thou shalt no more rejoice, O thou oppressed virgin, daughter of ¹Zidon: arise, ^apass over to ²Chittim; there also shalt thou have no rest.

15 And it shall come to pass in that day, that Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years, according to the days of one king; after the end of seventy years ¹shall Tyre sing as an harlot.

16 Take an harp, go about the city, thou harlot that hast been forgotten; make sweet melody, sing many songs, that thou mayest be remembered.

17 And it shall come to pass after the end of seventy years, that the LORD will visit Tyre, and she shall ¹turn to her hire, and ^ashall commit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth.

18 And her ¹merchandise and her hire ^ashall be ²holiness to the LORD: it shall not be treasured nor laid up; for her merchandise shall be for them that dwell before the LORD, to eat sufficiently, and for ³durable clothing.

The Empty Earth

24 Behold, the LORD maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and ¹turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof.

2 And it shall be, as with the people, so with the ^apriest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; ^bas with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the ¹taker of usury, so with the ²giver of usury to him.

3 The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly ¹spoiled: for the LORD hath spoken this word.

23:1-12. The burden of Tyre focuses the prophet's message on the major coastal city of the Phoenicians to the north. The Greeks called them "purple-folk" because of their famous purple dye. They were the shipping merchants of the Near East. Zidon (Sidon) was another prominent Phoenician coastal city. Isaiah foresees the coming destruction of this great commercial empire. Tarshish is the common designation for the westernmost part of the Mediterranean, as far as Spain. Chittim refers to western lands, especially the island of Cyprus. Thus, the prophet announces that trade with these distant places will cease because of Tyre's destruction. Both Isaiah and Ezekiel (chs. 27, 28) predicted the fall of Tyre. Ezekiel prophesied that the entire city would be thrown into the sea. See the note on Ezekiel 26:1-21.

23:13-18. The Chaldeans refers to the founders of the Neo-Babylonian Empire, including Nebuchadnezzar who besieged and destroyed Tyre. The Assyrian people thought of themselves as being an older people than the Chaldeans, but the Assyrians were conquered by them in 612 B.C. The prophet predicts that Tyre will be laid waste, yet will survive, being forced to sing as an harlot, meaning she would no longer enjoy her independence but would have to pander to the desires of her conquerors.

Glorify the Lord

13 When thus it shall be in the midst of the land among the people, “there shall be as the shaking of an olive tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.

14 They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing for the majesty of the LORD, they shall cry aloud from the sea.

15 Wherefore ^aglorify ye the LORD in the ¹fires, even ^bthe name of the LORD God of Israel in the ²isles of the sea.

16 From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs, even glory to the righteous. But I said, My ¹leanness, my leanness, woe unto me! “the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously; yea, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.

17 “Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth.

18 And it shall come to pass, that he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be ¹taken in the snare: for “the windows from on high are open, and ^bthe foundations of the earth do shake.

24:1–12. This section of Isaiah’s prophecies (24:1–27:13) is often called the Little Apocalypse because it looks beyond the immediate judgment of Israel’s Gentile neighbors to the final judgments of the Tribulation period and the ushering in of the messianic kingdom. These chapters present universal judgments followed by universal blessings. THE LORD moves in cataclysmic judgment upon the earth (erets), not simply on the “land” of Israel. In these verses “land” should read “earth.” The severity of the Tribulation period is indicated by the statement that the LORD maketh the earth empty, and ... waste. Turneth it upside down is better read “distorts.” Thus, through war God empties the earth and leaves it a devastated and distorted wasteland. The cities of the earth are described as desolate and burned as a result of this universal destruction.

24:13–23. The universal nature of this eschatological judgment leaves the people of the earth as the shaking of an olive tree (i.e., empty and retaining only negligible remains). The reference to the uttermost part of the earth emphasizes the universal extent of this prophecy. This devastation will be so great that the foundations of the earth do shake from the aftershock. Thus, the earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard. God’s judgment will rock the very stability of the planet, reminding the people of earth that they have rebelled against Him. The host of the high ones (Satanic powers) and the kings of the earth (earthly powers) will be gathered in the pit ... shut up ... many days. After a period of time shall they be visited (lit., “punished”). Notice the obvious parallel to Revelation 20:1–3, where Satan is bound in the bottomless pit for a thousand years and then loosed for a “little season,” only to be finally cast into the lake of fire.

APOCALYPTIC LANGUAGE

24:1. The eschatological nature of Isaiah’s prophecies in chapters 24–27 and 34–35 have been categorized by most scholars as apocalyptic language, as is found in Daniel 7–12, Ezekiel 38–39, Zechariah 10–12, and Revelation 4–19. Each of these passages is clearly prophetic but also distinctively eschatological, involving predictions of divine interventions in human history. The term apocalyptic comes from the Greek word meaning to “reveal” or “uncover.” Thus, apocalyptic language expresses visions of future events in symbolic language emphasizing God’s sovereign control of history and the promise of His divine intervention to guarantee the final outcome (cf. Matt. 24:33).

The Lord Shall Reign

19 ^aThe earth is ¹utterly broken down, the earth is ²clean dissolved, the earth is ³moved exceedingly.

20 The earth shall ^areel¹ to and fro like a drunkard, and shall ²be removed like a cottage; and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it; and it shall fall, and not rise again.

21 And it shall come to pass in that day, that the LORD shall punish the host of the high ones that are on high, ^aand the kings of the earth upon the earth.

22 And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be ¹visited.

23 Then the ^amoon shall be ¹confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the LORD of hosts shall ^breign in ^cmount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ²ancestors gloriously.

25 O LORD, thou art my God; ^aI will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; ^bfor thou hast done wonderful things; ^cthy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.

2 For thou hast made ^aof a city ¹an heap; of a ²defenced city a ruin: a palace of strangers to be no city; it shall never be ³built.

3 Therefore shall the strong people ^aglorify thee, the city of the ¹terrible nations shall fear thee.

4 For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, ^aa refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.

5 Thou shalt bring down the noise of strangers, as the heat in a dry place; even the heat with the shadow of a cloud: the ¹branch of the terrible ones shall be ²brought low.

26 In ^athat day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah; We have a strong city; ^bsalvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks.

2 ^aOpen ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in.

3 Thou wilt keep him in perfect ^apeace, whose mind is ¹stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.

25:1-12. Chapter 25 begins with a song of exaltation and praise to God for the triumph of His judgment of the world. The survivors of the Great Tribulation lift their voices in praise to God for His protection. The cities of mankind have fallen into ruin and the nations of earth have been brought low (i.e., humbled) before the mighty God who alone has been a refuge from the storm. The veil does not refer to the veil of the temple but to the covering of death that hangs over all nations. Yet God will swallow up death in victory (cf. 1 Cor. 15:54) and the Lord God will wipe away tears (cf. Rev. 7:17). This act of His grace will then bring in the millennial kingdom.

4 Trust ye in the LORD for ever: ^afor in ¹the LORD JEHOVAH is ²everlasting strength:

5 For he ¹bringeth down them that dwell on high; ^athe lofty city, he layeth it low; he layeth it low, even to the ground; he bringeth it even to the dust.

6 The foot shall ¹tread it down, even the feet of the poor, and the steps of the needy.

7 The way of the just is upright-ness: ^athou, most upright, dost ¹weigh the path of the just.

8 Yea, ^ain the way of thy judgments, O LORD, have we ^bwaited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.

9 ^aWith my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.

10 ^aLet ¹favour be shewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness: in ^bthe land of uprightness will he deal unjustly, and will not behold the majesty of the LORD.

11 LORD, when thy hand is lifted up, ^athey will not see: but they shall see, and be ashamed for ¹their envy at the people; yea, the fire of thine enemies shall devour them.

12 LORD, thou wilt ¹ordain peace for us: for thou also hast wrought all our works in us.

19 ^aThy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. ^bAwake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead.

The Lord Punishes Iniquity

20 Come, my people, ^aenter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were ^bfor a little moment, until the indignation be overpast.

21 For, behold, the LORD ^acometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain.

26:1-11. Chapter 26 opens with a great song of praise that will be sung in Judah (lit., "Praise"). The picture is that of the redeemed who enter the millennial kingdom. Notice that the walls and bulwarks are not physical but spiritual. The command Open ye the gates may indicate that the city (New Jerusalem) has never before been occupied. In this fixed moral and spiritual state Israel is promised perfect peace (shalôm, shalôm, lit., "peace, peace"). This emphatic expression indicates a peace that goes beyond human comprehension (cf. Phil. 4:7). To have one's mind ... stayed means to lean on God in total confidence and security. Trust is the ultimate expression of that confidence. Notice that the object of one's faith is as important as the act of trust. Here the object of faith is the LORD JEHOVAH.

26:12-21. Next Isaiah predicts that God will ordain peace for those who trust in Him. Other lords are other gods they may have previously worshiped. Now they must recognize that they are dead. Though the people of Israel have been removed ... unto all the ends of the earth, their dispersion will be reversed and they will be regathered in their land. This section also contains one of the strongest promises of physical resurrection in the Old Testament. Thy dead men shall live ... my dead body shall ... arise. Those who have previously died are called upon to awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust. The prophet further predicts that the earth shall cast out the dead. See the note on Daniel 12:2.

27:1-13. Leviathan is a symbolic monster also referred to here as that crooked serpent ... the dragon, or Satan. The context indicates that Isaiah has in view the final victory of God over Satan (cf. Rev. 20:2). The prophet then bursts into a joyful song of the vineyard (Israel) of the Lord (cf. Is. 5:1-7). Now the vineyard will succeed because I the LORD do keep it. The wandering Israelites will now take root and will blossom and bud during the kingdom age when all the nations will come up to Jerusalem to worship the Lord.

28:1-13. The prophecies of this section (28:1-33:24) each announce a Woe (hōy, "doom") upon Israel and Judah. They probably date from the reign of Hezekiah and the time of the Assyrian threat. Each "Woe" is a legal condemnation of death. The first one is pronounced against the crown of pride ... the

A Precious Corner Stone

14 Wherefore hear the word of the LORD, ye scornful men, that rule this people which is in Jerusalem.

15 Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with ¹hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us: ^afor we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves:

16 Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation ^aa stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste.

17 ¹Judgment also will I ²lay to the line, and righteousness ³to the plummet: and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place.

A Covenant with Death

18 And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with ¹hell shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be ²trod-den down by it.

19 ¹From the time that it goeth forth it shall take you: for morning by morning shall it pass over, by day and by night: and it shall be a ²vexation only to understand the report.

20 For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it: and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it.

drunkards of Ephraim. The reference is to Samaria the capital of Ephraim (the northern kingdom) which was situated on a hill that resembled a crown. The prophet denounces them because they have erred through wine and strong drink. Both priest and prophet have joined the debauchery of the nation. The familiar reference to precept upon precept; line upon line is to be taken negatively, not positively. The prophet is quoting the people who are weary of his prophecies and are complaining that his repetitious message ("rule upon rule") is annoying. Since they will not listen to God's messenger, He will speak to them with another tongue, that of the Assyrians who will take them into captivity.

28:14-19. The prophet turns his attention to the people of Jerusalem, who have made a covenant with death by foolishly thinking that a pro-Assyrian alliance will protect them when Samaria falls. In contrast to their covenant, God promises to lay in Zion ... a precious corner stone. New Testament writers clearly identify that cornerstone as Jesus Christ (cf. Rom. 9:33; 1 Pet. 2:6). Those who believe in Him find Him a sure foundation. To those who reject Him, He becomes a stumbling stone.

28:20-29. Man-made covenants are humorously depicted by the illustration of a bed that is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on or by a covering that is narrower than that he can wrap himself in it. This clever illustration emphasizes the frustration of attempting to sleep in such a manner, and it illustrates the futility of trusting in human alliances. He then turns to an illustration of the plowman who does not plow just for the sake of plowing but that he might reap a crop. Fitches means "black cummin," a plant with black seeds used for seasoning.

21 For the LORD shall rise up as in mount ^aPerazim, he shall be wroth as in the valley of ^bGibeon, that he may do his work, ^chis ¹strange work; and bring to pass his act, his ²strange act.

22 Now therefore be ye not mockers, lest your ¹bands be made strong; for I have heard from the Lord GOD of hosts ^aa ²consumption, even determined upon the whole earth.

Hearken to My Voice

23 Give ye ear, and hear my voice; hearken, and hear my speech.

24 Doth the plowman plow all day to sow? doth he ¹open and break the clods of his ground?

25 When he hath ¹made plain the face thereof, doth he not ²cast abroad the fitches, and scatter the cummin, and ³cast in the principal wheat and the ⁴appointed barley and the ⁵rie in their place?

26 For his God doth instruct him to discretion, and doth teach him.

27 For the ¹fitches are not threshed with a threshing ²instrument, neither is a cart wheel ³turned about upon the cummin; but the fitches are beaten out with a staff, and the cummin with a rod.

28 Bread ¹corn is bruised; because he will not ever be threshing it, nor break it with the wheel of his cart, nor ²bruise it with his horsemen.

29 This also cometh forth from the LORD of hosts, ^awhich is wonderful in counsel, and excellent in ¹working.

religious formality, pointing out that their empty religion will not stop the judgment of God. Therefore, Jerusalem will become as Ariel, meaning that God will turn it into what in fact it is, a place of burnt sacrifice.

29:13–24. Jesus (Mark 7:6, 7) quotes verse 13 as the epitome of Pharisaism. The prophet condemns his own people for honoring God with their mouth and lips but not their heart. He further notes that their fear or reverence was merely an intellectual accommodation taught by the precept of men. True worship must begin with a proper reverence for God and His Word. Isaiah further announces that since the intellectual leaders of Israel will not follow the Lord, the deaf, blind, meek, and poor (i.e., the Gentiles) shall rejoice in Him.

30:1–7. The rebellious children are the people of Judah who are determined to go down into Egypt, that is, to seek an alliance with Egypt against Assyria. Hanes is mentioned in the Bible only here. It was apparently near Zoan (Tanis), the largest Egyptian city near the Israelite border. It served as the capital of the Twenty-first and Twenty-second Dynasties of Egypt.

30:8-17. The prophet is commanded by God to write His message in a table (tablet) and a book (sepher). He is to write down God's message for the time to come (or for succeeding generations to read). He is to note that the people of Judah are a rebellious people, who are telling the prophets See not ... Prophecy not. They have refused the truth and would rather hear smooth things and deceits. Their rebellion and reprobation are so deep that they want the prophets to cause the Holy One of Israel to cease from before us. While the nation was busy sending out emissaries of peace they had failed to make peace with God. Returning and rest refer to repentance and faith, which are necessary to true salvation.

30:18-33. Because God is gracious and has been willing to wait for His people to return to Him, He will certainly bless those who wait for him. "Waiting" is a confident and dependent trust in God. The reference to the bread of adversity, and the water of affliction shows that God teaches us lessons through circumstances when we will not listen to our teachers who call us to walk in the way (i.e., the way of God). Tophet is used as a symbol for the fires of hell where the breath of the LORD, like a stream of brimstone, kindles the flame. See note on Jeremiah 7:31, 32.

24 The oxen likewise and the young ¹asses that ear the ground shall eat ²clean provender, which hath been winnowed with the shovel and with the fan.

25 And there shall be ^aupon every high mountain, and upon every high hill, rivers and streams of waters in the day of the ^bgreat slaughter, when the towers fall.

27 Behold, the name of the LORD cometh from far, burning with his anger, and the burden thereof is heavy: his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire:

28 And ^ahis breath, as an overflowing stream, ^bshall reach to the midst of the neck, to sift the nations with the sieve of ¹vanity: and there shall be ^ca bridle in the jaws of the people, causing them to err.

Woe for Trusting in Egypt

31 Woe to them ^athat go down to Egypt for help; and ^bstay¹ on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, ^cneither seek the LORD!

2 Yet he also is wise, and will bring ¹evil, and ^awill not ²call back his words: but will arise against the house of the evildoers, and against the help of them that work iniquity.

3 Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses flesh, and not spirit. When the LORD shall stretch out his hand, both he that helpeth shall fall, and he that is ¹holpen shall fall down, and they all shall ²fail ^atogether.

4 For thus hath the LORD spoken unto me, ^aLike as the lion and the young lion roaring on his prey, when a multitude of shepherds is called forth against him, he will not be afraid of their voice, nor ¹abuse himself for the noise of them: so shall the LORD of hosts come down to fight for mount Zion, and for the hill thereof.

31:1–9. Isaiah turns his attention again to those who would advocate a pro-Egyptian alliance for the protection of Judah. He observes that they stay [or “lean”] on horses and trust in chariots rather than God who is a spirit. The use of the symbols of a lion and birds flying reflects the national symbol of Assyria—the winged lion. The prophet again calls on his listeners to turn or repent. This is the very heart of his message to the wayward nation.

Preserving Jerusalem

5 ^aAs birds flying, so will the LORD of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it.

6 ¹Turn ye unto him from whom the children of Israel have ^adeeply revolted.

7 For in that day every man shall ^acast away his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which your own hands have made unto you for ^ba sin.

8 Then shall the Assyrian ^afall with the sword, not of ¹a mighty man; and the sword, not of ²a mean man, shall ^bdevour him: but he shall flee from the sword, and his young men shall ³be discomfited.

9 ^aAnd he shall pass over to his strong hold for fear, and his princes shall be afraid of the ¹ensign, saith the LORD, whose fire is in Zion, and his furnace in Jerusalem.

The Righteous King

32 Behold, ^aa king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule ¹in judgment.

2 And a man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and ^aa ¹covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.

3 And ^athe eyes of them that see shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear shall hearken.

4 The heart also of the rash shall ^aunderstand knowledge, and the tongue of the stammerers shall be ready to speak plainly.

A Warning to Careless Women

9 Rise up, ye women ^athat are at ease; hear my voice, ye ¹careless daughters; give ear unto my speech.

10 ¹Many days and years shall ye be troubled, ye ²careless women: for the vintage shall fail, the gathering shall not come.

11 Tremble, ye women that are at ease; be troubled, ye ¹careless ones: strip you, and make you bare, and gird sackcloth upon your loins.

12 They shall ¹lament for the teats, for the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine.

13 ^aUpon the land of my people shall come up thorns and briers; yea, upon all the ¹houses of joy in ^bthe joyous city:

14 ^aBecause the palaces shall be forsaken; the multitude of the city shall be left; the forts and towers shall be for ¹dens for ever, a joy of wild asses, a pasture of flocks;

15 Until ^athe spirit be poured upon us from on high, and ^bthe wilderness be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a forest.

The Effect of Righteousness

16 Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness remain in the fruitful field.

17 ^aAnd the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever.

18 And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in ¹sure dwellings, and in quiet ^aresting places;

32:1-20. The king who shall reign in righteousness is Christ Himself. The prophet foresees a time when government will exist that is totally characterized by righteousness and judgment. Such a description does not fit even Hezekiah, the best of Judah's kings. Rather, Isaiah sees a much greater day coming when the godly character of Judah will be as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. This will be a time when the ignorant will understand knowledge (da'at, moral discernment). He also sees a time of complete national conversion when the spirit will be poured upon us (cf. Joel 2:28).

2 O LORD, be gracious unto us; ^awe have waited for thee: be thou their arm every morning, our salvation also in the time of trouble.

33:1-12. Isaiah's final Woe on Israel and Judah looks beyond the coming Assyrian invasion to the ultimate devastation that will come on the land in the final days. Thee that spoilest and was not spoiled is a reference to the Antichrist and his kingdom. The time of trouble refers to the Tribulation period. The invading army is likened to a horde of locusts that shall cover the land of Israel. He hath broken the covenant ... he regardeth no man is certainly reminiscent of Daniel 9:27, which refers to the Antichrist. Thus both prophets foresee a time when the one who has promised to defend Israel will turn against her during the Tribulation period.

33:13-24. God's judgment is pictured as a devouring fire, which is so awesome that only the righteous will be spared (cf. Matt. 24:22). The king in his beauty is Christ Himself, and the description of the magnitude of His kingdom is reminiscent of the New Jerusalem in Revelation 21:16, 17. Here the prophet foresees the millennial kingdom when Christ will rule the world in peace. All that Israel needs will be fulfilled in the Lord her God, who will be the judge, lawgiver, and king. Thus, in this threefold capacity, he will save us.

34:1-10. This section of Isaiah's prophecy (34:1—35:10) is again apocalyptic in nature. The object of God's wrath will be the nations, the earth, and the world. Here the prophet depicts the worldwide carnage of the Battle of Armageddon when God's indignation and fury are poured out on all nations (gōyim, Gentiles). So great is this destruction that mountains shall be melted and the host of heaven shall be dissolved (i.e., "melt" or "vanish"). So severe is this devastation that the atmospheric heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll. This apocalyptic judgment will be so cataclysmic that it will affect the earth and its atmosphere, and it will usher in "new heavens and a new earth" (65:17). The day of the LORD's vengeance refers to the Battle of Armageddon (cf. Rev. 16:16). This is the final devastation of the world that culminates at the end of the Tribulation period (cf. "day of the LORD": Joel 2:2; Zeph. 1:15; Zech. 14:1; Mal. 4:5; "time of trouble": Dan. 12:1; "time of Jacob's trouble": Jer. 30:7; "the wrath to come": 1 Thess. 1:10; "wrath of the Lamb": Rev. 6:16, 17).

34:11-17. The desolation and depopulation of Idumea (Edom) is symbolic of God's judgment on the entire Gentile world. The depopulation of the

35:1-10. The prophet Isaiah now turns to a message of hope for the future. After the great destruction of the Tribulation period will come the blessings of the millennial age when the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. In the Messiah's kingdom all spiritual evil and physical catastrophe will be reversed and the land and people will be blessed. Carmel and Sharon, the normally fertile regions of Israel, though devastated by the Battle of Armageddon, will once again be fertile and productive. One day they will blossom more beautifully than the cedar forests of Lebanon. The highway is contrasted to the desolate desert and its endless maze of shifting sands. It will be the way of holiness and will be reserved for the ransomed and redeemed of the Tribulation period who will enter the millennial kingdom.

13 Then Rabshakeh stood, and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria.

36:1-3. Standing like a beacon in the middle of Isaiah's prophecies is the Historic Interlude (36:1-39:8), which records the fulfillment of the prophet's predictions concerning the overthrow of Assyria and the rise of Babylon. This section shifts from poetry to prose and is parallel to the accounts recorded in 2 Kings 18-20 and 2 Chronicles 32. Sennacherib ruled Assyria from 705 to 681 B.C. He immediately ousted the usurper Merodach-baladan of Babylon (see Is. 39) and invaded Judah in 701 B.C. His initial campaign against the cities of Judah was completely successful, as the Assyrians swept through the area, with Ashkelon and Lachish suffering the worst. The Chronicle of Sennacherib claims that he captured 46 towns and 200,000 people. From Lachish he sent officers to Hezekiah to demand the surrender of Jerusalem. The archaeological discovery of the Taylor Prism reveals Sennacherib's own description of the siege of Jerusalem: "I shut him [Hezekiah] up like a caged bird within his royal capital." However, the account makes no claim to the actual conquest of Jerusalem or Hezekiah. The conduit of the upper pool is where Hezekiah had dug a new water tunnel to help maintain the water supply for the city.

36:4-10. Rabshakeh (cf. 2 Kin. 18:17) is a title meaning "chief aide" and refers to a high court official. Ironically, he actually came to the very spot where Isaiah met Ahaz 30 years earlier to warn him not to trust in Assyria (see 7:3). The Rabshakeh demands that Hezekiah surrender to the great king ... of Assyria (i.e., Sennacherib). He shows his ignorance of Hebrew theology by assuming that Hezekiah had torn down the high places and ... altars of Jehovah, when in reality Hezekiah had brought about a great spiritual revival and destroyed the altars of Baal. The demand to give pledges means to pay tribute.

36:11-22. Fearful that the words of the Rabshakeh might panic the common people, the Jewish representatives requested that he speak to them in the Syrian language (Aramaic) instead of the Jews' language (Judean or Hebrew). By this period of history Aramaic had become the common language of international diplomacy. Make an agreement with me by a present means to make an alliance to pay tribute to Assyria.

not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

16 Hearken not to Hezekiah: for thus saith the king of Assyria, Make ¹an agreement with me by a ²present, and come out to me: ^aand eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his fig tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his own cistern;

17 Until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of ¹corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards.

Rabshakeh's Blasphemy

18 Beware lest Hezekiah persuade you, saying, The LORD will deliver us. Hath any of the ^agods of the nations delivered his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

19 Where are the gods of Hamath and ¹Arphad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim? and have they delivered ^aSamaria out of my hand?

20 Who are they among all the gods of these lands, that have delivered their land out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?

21 But they ¹held their peace, and answered him not a word: for the king's commandment was, saying, Answer him not.

22 Then came Eliakim, the son of Hilkiyah, that was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Johah, the son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with their clothes ¹rent, and told him the words of Rabshakeh.

3 And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, This day is a day of ^atrouble, and of rebuke, and of ¹blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 It may be the LORD thy God will hear the words of ¹Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to ^areproach the living God, and will ²reprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left.

5 So the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

Fear Not Rabshakeh's Words

6 And Isaiah said unto them, Thus shall ye say unto your master, Thus saith the LORD, Be not afraid of the words that thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will send a ¹blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumour, and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish.

Hezekiah Urged to Surrender

9 And he heard say concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, He is come forth to make war with thee. And when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying,

37:1-13. Horrified by the demand of the Assyrians, Hezekiah rent his clothes (a sign of mourning), went into the house of the LORD (the temple), and sent for Isaiah the prophet. Recognizing that this is a day of trouble, the king went to prayer for the remnant of survivors within the besieged city. When Isaiah arrived he spoke with great confidence, promising a miraculous deliverance by the Lord, who will send a blast (rūach, "spirit") upon the invaders. Thus God promised to send a spirit of confusion upon the invaders by means of a rumour (report) of the advance of the Egyptians led by Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, who was the most famous king of Egypt's Twenty-fifth Dynasty. This may also explain why Sennacherib himself did not come to Jerusalem to demand its surrender. See the note on 2 Kings 19:9.

11 Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by destroying them utterly; and shalt thou be delivered?

12 Have the ^agods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have destroyed, as Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Telassar?

13 Where is the king of ^aHamath, and the king of ¹Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah?

A Prayer to the Lord

14 And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah went up unto the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah prayed unto the LORD, saying,

16 O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou ^aalone, of all the kingdoms of the earth: thou hast made heaven and earth.

17 ^aIncline thine ear, O LORD, and hear; open thine eyes, O LORD, and see: and ^bhear all the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent to reproach the living God.

18 Of a truth, LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations, and their ^acountries, 19 And have cast their gods into the fire: for they were ^ano gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore they have destroyed them.

20 Now therefore, O LORD our God, ^asave us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may ^bknow that thou art the LORD, even thou only.

Hezekiah's Life Is Extended

38 In ^athose days was Hezekiah sick ¹unto death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came unto him, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, ^bSet thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and prayed unto the LORD,

3 And said, ^aRemember now, O LORD, I beseech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth and with a ¹perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy ^bsight. And Hezekiah wept ²sore.

4 Then came the word of the LORD to Isaiah, saying,

6 And I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria: and ^aI will defend this city.

37:33-38. God promised Hezekiah that the king of Assyria ... shall not come into this city because God will defend it for my servant David's sake (i.e., to protect the Davidic line). The angel of the LORD is Christ Himself who had often moved in power on Israel's behalf. (See Gen. 18:1-33; Josh. 5:13-6:5; Judg. 6:11-23.) Just as He had earlier delivered Israel from the Pharaoh of Egypt (Ex. 12:29), so now He delivers Judah from the king of Assyria. He went forth, and smote 185,000 in the camp of the Assyrians. A parallel account is recorded in 2 Kings 19:35, which adds the words "and it came to pass that night" (i.e., the night after Hezekiah had prayed). Hearing of the devastation of his troops at Jerusalem and of the advance of Tirhakah's army, Sennacherib returned to Nineveh, where he was assassinated 20 years later in 681 B.C. by his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer (known in Akkadian as Adad-milki and Shar-usur). Armenia is south of Russia beyond the Ararat mountains. Esar-haddon succeeded Sennacherib and ruled Assyria from 681 to 668 B.C.

38:1-8. The events covered in this section (38:1-39:8) are actually out of order chronologically, chapters 36 and 37 serving as a conclusion to the Assyrian period of Isaiah's ministry, and chapters 38 and 39 forming an introduction to the coming Babylonian captivity, which is pictured throughout chapters 40-66. No indication is given of the nature of Hezekiah's sickness except that he was sick unto death. Deeply broken by Isaiah's stern warning that thou shalt die, Hezekiah prayed and wept sore and was given an extension of fifteen years; God promised that He would deliver Jerusalem out of the hand of the king of Assyria (see chs. 36, 37). In contrast to Ahaz, Hezekiah accepted the offer of a sign (ōt, miracle), requesting that the sun dial of Ahaz be moved ten degrees backward by a supernatural miracle that reversed the falling shadow on the steps (or degree markers) of the sundial.

17 Behold, ¹for peace I had great bitterness: but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption: for thou hast cast all my sins behind thy back.

18 For ¹“the grave cannot praise thee, death can not celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth.

19 The living, the living, he shall praise thee, as I do this day: ¹“the father to the children shall make known thy truth.

20 The LORD was ready to save me: therefore we will sing my songs to the stringed instruments all the days of our life in the house of the LORD.

21 For ¹“Isaiah had said, Let them take a lump of figs, and ¹lay it for a plaister upon the boil, and he shall recover.

22 ¹“Hezekiah also had said, What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the LORD?

Hezekiah's Foolish Sin

39 At ¹“that time ¹Merodach-baladan, the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekiah: for he had heard that he had been sick, and was recovered.

2 ¹“And Hezekiah was glad of them, and shewed them the house of his ¹precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and all ²the house of his armour, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not.

3 Then came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, What said these men? and from 38:9–22. The writing of Hezekiah is a song of deliverance. His healing is described as having been brought about by a lump [cake] of figs, which was to be applied to the boil (shechîn, the same word used for one of the plagues of Egypt).

39:1–8. The incident in this chapter is used by Isaiah to introduce the coming Babylonian captivity. Merodach-baladan ... king of Babylon is known in the Akkadian texts as Marduk-apal-iddina. He conquered Babylon in 721 B.C. with the help of the Elamites and ruled there 11 years before being driven out by Sargon II of Assyria in 710 B.C. After the death of Sargon, he reentered Babylon briefly in 703 B.C. and attempted to rally support against the new Assyrian ruler, Sennacherib. Scholars are divided over whether the Babylonian embassy arrived sometime before 710 B.C. or around 701 B.C., but in either case Merodach-baladan obviously sought support against the Assyrian king. Impressed by the attention of this renegade king, Hezekiah foolishly shewed them ... his treasures. There is no doubt that all this was done in vanity and pride, which the king would live to regret. Thus Isaiah predicts that all these royal treasures shall be carried to Babylon in the future, because news of these great treasures would spread throughout Babylon, provoking the Babylonians to come and take them away.

whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country unto me, even from Babylon.

4 Then said he, What have they seen in thine house? And Hezekiah answered, All that is in mine house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them.

A Prophecy of Babylonian Captivity

5 Then said Isaiah to Hezekiah, Hear the word of the LORD of hosts:

6 Behold, the days come, ^athat all that is in thine house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store until this day, shall be carried to Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the LORD.

7 And of thy ^asons that shall ¹issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

8 Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, ^aGood ¹is the word of the LORD which thou hast spoken. He said moreover, ²For there shall be peace and truth in my days.

40:1-8. The oldest manuscript of Isaiah found among the Dead Sea Scrolls (1 Q Isa A) shows no break in the text between chapters 39-40 as critics have presumed. Looking beyond Judah's imminent captivity, the prophet sees a day of salvation yet coming in the future. This section of Isaiah's prophecy (40:1-48:22) is often called the Book of Consolation. Comfort ye (nachamū) means both "repent" and "console," and implies that true repentance must precede divine consolation. My people (amī) refers to the people of God who are in a covenant relationship with Him. This designation appears 12 times in chapters 1-39 and 15 times in chapters 40-66. The voice that crieth in the wilderness is that of John the Baptist. (See Matt. 3:3; Mark 1:3; Luke 3:4; John 1:23.) By this voice calling from the desert, the people of Judah are called to make the crooked... straight and the rough places plain in preparation for the coming of the Messiah.

40:9-17. O Zion... O Jerusalem calls our attention to the city of David which is to proclaim good tidings to the other cities of Judah. Certainly it was in this city that the "good news" of the gospel was first proclaimed to all the world. Behold your God! refers to the coming of God incarnate in Jesus Christ like a shepherd gathering his sheep. (See John 10.) The questions that follow are reminiscent of those in Job 38-41, and each implies the answer: "None but God!"

13 ^aWho hath directed the Spirit of the LORD, or being his counsellor hath taught him?

15 Behold, the nations are as a drop ¹of a bucket, and are counted as the ²small dust of the balance: behold, he ³taketh up the isles as a very little thing.

40:18-31. In light of the sovereignty of God, human idolatry is pictured as utterly ridiculous. Through another series of rhetorical questions the prophet lifts his readers into the very presence of God. He argues that no graven image (idol) shall compare to the likeness (demüt, "image") of God. The term is the same as that used in Genesis 1:26, where man is created in the image and likeness of God as a personal and moral being.

FREEDOM OF GOD

40:13. God is the only Being in the universe that possesses independence from the Creation. The only limits to God's freedom are in His own nature and attributes. He is unlimited in His existence. Because His existence relates to His nature rather than His will, God will exist forever.

He who exists by reason of His nature rather than His volition must have existed—and must continue to exist—forever. Illustration: When God revealed His name to Moses at the burning bush, He called Himself "I AM" (Ex. 3:13-15). This name emphasizes God's self-existence, the fact that He has always existed and always will. Application: Neither anyone nor any outside force will affect God's relationship to us. He will deal with us according to His nature because He is free from outside influence. (First Reference, Gen. 6:17; Primary Reference, Is. 40:13; cf. Rom 12:1.)

8 But thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have ^achosen, the seed of Abraham my ^bfriend.

12 Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and ¹as a thing of nought.

13 For I the LORD thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.

14 Fear not, thou ^aworm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith the LORD, and thy redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.

15 Behold, ^aI will make thee a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth: thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff.

41:1–7. The righteous man from the east is certainly a reference to Cyrus the Great of Persia (558–529 B.C.), though he is not named until 44:28. He is introduced as the one who is raised up from the East to fulfill the will of God. Both the Hebrew and the Septuagint have “righteousness,” a noun rather than an adjective, as the King James Version. Thus, it is God who raised up righteousness toward His people in the deliverance He provided through Cyrus the Great.

41:8, 9. Thou, Israel, art my servant is the first reference to the Servant of the Lord, here pictured as the believing remnant of Israel. The designation servant (ebed) means a slave or bondman, yet in this context it has honorable connotations that indicate the close intimacy between master and servant. The term is used frequently throughout this section of Isaiah’s prophecy (cf. 42:19; 44:1–2; 45:4; 48:20) and reaches its greatest climax in 52:13–53:12.

41:10–20. In view of the judgment that is coming upon Israel, God reminds her, I am with thee ... I am thy God. The designation thou worm Jacob is a reminder to Israel of her frailty and need for God who is pictured as her redeemer and the Holy One of Israel. The latter designation is Isaiah’s favorite expression for God and appears equally throughout both halves of the book. The prophet then gives a beautiful picture of God’s provision of water to abundantly supply the needs of His people. God promises them rivers, fountains, and springs of water. Because of this supply of water He will also plant various trees in the wilderness: the cedar, shittah (acacia), myrtle, oil tree (ets shemen, wild olive), fir, pine, and box (boxwood). These seven trees, all common to Syria and Israel, would have been especially well known only to an author who lived in that region. They symbolize the perfection of God’s work on behalf of His people.

16 Thou shalt ^afan¹ them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them: and thou shalt rejoice in the LORD, and ^bshalt glory in the Holy One of Israel.

17 When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I the LORD will hear them, I the God of Israel will not ^aforsake them.

18 I will open ^arivers in ¹high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the ^bwilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water.

19 I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the ¹shittah tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree; I will set in the ^adesert the ²fir tree, and the pine, and the box tree together:

20 ^aThat they may see, and know, and consider, and understand together, that the hand of the LORD hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it.

41:21–29. The Lord challenges the gods of the heathen nations to produce your cause (set forth your case) and to bring forth your strong reasons (arguments). The heathen gods are challenged to predict the future and to explain the past. But they can do neither, for they are not gods at all. Thus the fulfillment of predictive prophecy is shown as proof of divine inspiration. The law of Moses (Deut. 18:21, 22) gives the stipulation of exact fulfillment of predictive prophecy as an evidence of the divine authority and genuineness of the prophet's message. Nonfulfillment is an indication of false prophecy. Obviously, Isaiah believed his own prophecies were predictive of future events, and would be literally fulfilled.

42:1–4. My servant is identified here as a person rather than a personification of the nation of Israel. With all the traits of King, Prophet, and High Priest, He is none other than the Messiah, Jesus Christ Himself. He is also called mine elect (bechīrī, “set apart for a definite purpose”) and the One in whom I have put my spirit. The New Testament quotes this prophecy as being fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ (Matt. 12:18–21). The ministry of the Servant of the Lord will be to bring forth judgment [or “justice”] to the Gentiles and in the earth. His kingdom knows no barriers of nationality or race. Of all the Old Testament prophets, Isaiah saw this fact the most clearly. While Jesus' early ministry was to the house of Israel, His ultimate commission extended to the Gentiles as well.

God Calls Israel in Righteousness

5 Thus saith God the LORD, ^ahe that created the heavens, and stretched them out; he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; ^bhe that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein:

6 ^aI the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, ^band give thee for a covenant ¹of the people, for ^alight of the Gentiles;

7 ^aTo open the blind eyes, to ^bbring out the prisoners from the prison, ^{and} them that sit in ^cdarkness out of the prison house.

8 I am the LORD: that is my name: and my ^aglory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images.

9 Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them.

Sing Praise and Glory to the Lord

10 ^aSing unto the LORD a new song, ^{and} his praise from the end of the earth, ^bye that go down to the sea, and all that is therein; the ¹isles, and the inhabitants thereof.

11 Let the wilderness and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit: let the inhabitants of ¹the rock sing, let them shout from the top of the mountains.

12 Let them give glory unto the LORD, and declare his praise in the ¹islands.

The Judgment of God

13 The LORD shall go forth as a mighty man, he shall stir up ¹jealousy like a man of war: he shall ²cry, ^ayea, ³roar; he shall prevail against his enemies.

14 I have long time holden my peace; I have been still, ^{and} ¹re-

17 They shall be ^aturned back, they shall be greatly ashamed, that trust in graven images, that say to the molten images, Ye are our gods.

18 Hear, ye deaf; and look, ye blind, that ye may see.

25 Therefore he hath poured upon him the fury of his anger, and the strength of battle: ^aand it hath set him on fire round about, ^byet he knew not; and it burned him, yet he ¹laid it not to ^cheart.

42:5-16. God the LORD is pictured as the Creator who created the heavens, and stretched them out and spread forth the earth. He also gives both breath and spirit to His people. The ministry of the Messiah is described in verse 6 as a covenant to the Jews and a light to the Gentiles. It foreshadows the twofold purpose of Christ's ministry to both the Jews and the Gentiles.

Redeemed by the Lord

43 But now thus saith the LORD that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: ^afor I have redeemed thee, ^bI have called thee by thy name; thou art mine.

2 ^aWhen thou passest through the waters, ^bI will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou ^cwalkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame ¹kindle upon thee.

4 Since thou wast precious in my sight, thou hast been ¹honourable, and I have ^aloved thee: therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy life.

43:1-13. In spite of Israel's deliberate rejection of the Lord as her rightful king, God reassures them, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee. The theme of redemption appears 22 times in the Servant passages of the Book of Isaiah. It indicates a redemption from physical and spiritual bondage as well as the eschatological redemption yet to come (cf. 43:5-7; 44:22; 49:16, 17). In addition to redeeming Israel, God also announces that all the nations (Gentiles) will be gathered to Him for salvation.

43:14-28. Isaiah here combines the titles redeemer and Holy One of Israel as the One who shall overthrow Babylon ... and the Chaldeans. He predicts that God will judge Babylon after using them to judge Israel. God announces that He will profane the sanctuary (temple). The use of the imperfect verb construction throughout much of the section clearly indicates that the curse of the Captivity and their subsequent deliverance was yet future at the time of Isaiah's writing. For dragons and owls (v. 20), see the note on Isaiah 13:19-22.

23 ^aThou hast not brought me the ¹small cattle of thy burnt offerings; neither hast thou honoured me with thy sacrifices. I have not caused thee to serve with ²an offering, nor wearied thee with incense.

24 Thou hast bought me no sweet cane with money, neither hast thou ¹filled me with the fat of thy sacrifices: but thou hast ²made me to serve with thy sins, thou hast ^awearied me with thine iniquities.

The Foolishness of Worshipping Idols

9 ^aThey that make a graven image are all of them ¹vanity; and their ²delectable things shall not profit; and they are their own witnesses; ^bthey

44:1-8. This section (44:1-28) contains one of the most amazing prophecies in all of Scripture. In verse 28 Cyrus, the king of Persia, is named as the coming deliverer of the Jews more than 140 years in advance. The structure of the poem in verses 24-28 is arranged deliberately to end with a definite climax, which introduces Cyrus by name. A similar prediction can be found in 1 Kings 13:2, where Josiah is named three hundred years ahead of his time. As the passage opens, Israel is again identified as my servant, who has been chosen from the womb to fulfill God's purposes. In verse 6, the prophet emphasizes the oneness of God by stating that beside me there is no God. Yet, at the same time, the prophet distinguishes between the LORD the King of Israel and his redeemer the LORD of hosts. The personal name Yahweh is used of both the King and His Redeemer, the one referring to God the Father and the other referring to God the Son.

44:9-20. This exposé of idolatry is the most taunting in all of the Bible. The prophet Isaiah, serving as the spokesman of Yahweh, reveals the utter foolishness of polytheistic pagan idolatry. The graven image (carved idol) is called vanity (nothing). Delectable things refers to the adornment of idols with gold, silver, and precious stones. The prophet announces that the idols themselves are their own witnesses. They see not, nor know. Therefore these inanimate objects are profitable for nothing. Isaiah then berates the workmen (artisans) for designing and constructing their idols in the figure of a man. He exposes the basic fallacy of idolatry, a god made in the image of man. Thus the prophet's criticism of one who would worship an idol carved from the same tree that he would use for firewood is that he feedeth on ashes.

see not, nor know; that they may be ashamed.

10 Who hath formed a god, or ¹molten a graven image ^athat is profitable for nothing?

11 Behold, all his ¹fellows shall be ^aashamed: and the workmen, they *are*² of men: let them all be gathered together, let them stand up; yet they shall fear, and they shall be ashamed together.

12 ^aThe ¹smith with the tongs both worketh in the coals, and fashioneth it with hammers, and worketh it with the strength of his arms: yea, he is hungry, and his strength faileth: he drinketh no water, and is faint.

13 The ¹carpenter stretcheth out his rule; he marketh it out with ²a line; he ³fitteth it with planes, and he marketh it out with the compass, and maketh it after the figure of a man, according to the beauty of a man; that it may remain in the house.

14 He heweth him down cedars, and taketh the cypress and the oak, which he ¹strengtheneth for himself among the trees of the forest: he planteth ²an ash, and the rain doth nourish it.

15 Then shall it be for a man to burn: for he will take thereof, and warm himself; yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread; yea, he maketh a god, and worshippeth it; he maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto.

The Maker of All Things

24 Thus saith the LORD, ^athy redeemer, and ^bhe that formed thee

44:21-28. The prophet turns his attention again to Israel to remind them that God has blotted out their transgressions and redeemed them, and urges them to return unto me (i.e., repent). I am the LORD stands at the beginning of the final section of this poem and is the subject of all that follows. Nine times in this section the English word that is used to identify the activity of the Lord. The passage follows in perfect meter, leading up to the identification of Cyrus by name. Thus it is announced that Jerusalem

... shall be inhabited and that the cities of Judah ... shall be built. God will raise up a deliverer of His own to accomplish this astounding deed: Cyrus. Since this is Cyrus II (554-529 B.C.) his name Cyrus was probably an early dynastic throne name. In Persian history he is known as Cyrus the Great. In 539 B.C. he conquered Babylon and decreed the return of the Jews to rebuild Jerusalem and the foundation of the temple (cf. Ezra 1:2). The discovery of the Cyrus Cylinder dating from 536 B.C. further verifies the biblical account.

25 That ^afrustrateth the ¹tokens ^bof the liars, and ²maketh diviners mad; that turneth wise men backward, ^cand maketh their knowledge foolish;

28 That saith of ^aCyrus, He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure: even saying to Jerusalem, ^bThou shalt be built; and to the temple, Thy foundation shall be laid.

The Lord's Anointed

45 Thus saith the LORD to his anointed, to ^aCyrus, whose ^bright hand I have ¹holden, ^cto subdue nations before him; and I will ^dloose the ²loins of kings, to open before him the ³two leaved gates; and the gates shall not be shut;

45:1-4. Isaiah continues to emphasize the origin of his message, stating, Thus saith the LORD. Yahweh Himself has set an open door of conquest before Cyrus. The Persian king is called by the designation anointed (meshiach, messiah). This is the only place in Scripture where a Gentile is so designated. The term originated with the Israelite custom of anointing kings and leaders. Cyrus is given this title only in the sense that he will deliver the Jews from Babylonian bondage. I have even called thee by thy name indicates that Cyrus has been deliberately named in advance to reassure the Jews that the God of Israel indeed is still in control of human events.

45:5-12. The phrase I... create evil refers to physical evil or calamity rather than moral evil. God is in no way pictured in Scripture as the author of sin. Drop down, ye heavens... pour down righteousness is a prayer for God to intervene in human history. Thus righteousness is pictured as coming down from above and springing up from beneath simultaneously.

Idols and Captivity

46 Bel ^aboweth down, Nebo stoopeth, their idols were upon the beasts, and upon the cattle: your carriages were heavy loaden; ^b*they are* a burden to the weary beast.

2 They stoop, they bow down together; they could not deliver the burden, ^abut themselves are gone into captivity.

45:13-19. Cyrus is again addressed as the one who has been raised ... up in righteousness, and who shall build my city, and shall let go my captives. This does not imply that Cyrus himself was a true believer but that God providentially raised him up as an act of His righteousness to Israel. History in fact records that Cyrus did fulfill this prophecy by subsidizing the reconstruction of Jerusalem and its temple.

45:20-25. God calls to His people to assemble themselves from among the nations (Gentiles) and return to Him because He is both a just God and a Saviour to those who will come to Him. Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth is a glorious invitation to all to come to the Lord. On hearing a sermon based on this text, Charles Spurgeon, the famous nineteenth-century English Baptist pastor, was converted to Christ. This invitation is similar to the one given by Jesus when He said: “Come unto me all ye that labour ... and I will give you rest” (Matt. 11:28). This invitation is followed by the absolute statement that unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear (cf. Phil. 2:10). The chapter ends with the sweeping affirmation, In the LORD shall all the seed of Israel be justified, which is quoted by the apostle Paul in Romans 11:26.

46:1-13. Bel and Nebo were two of the most prominent Babylonian deities. The name Bel is derived from Baal and refers to Marduk, the patron deity of Babylon. Nebo (or Nabu) was viewed as the son of Bel (Marduk). His name is found in the name of Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. The idea in this passage is that the Babylonian deities will one day fall before the Lord (cf. Nebuchadnezzar’s confession in Dan. 4). The rhetorical question To whom will ye liken me? implies the obvious answer—no one! I am God, and there is none like me. Yahweh is the unique and incomprehensible God. His uniqueness is found in His declaring the end from the beginning. His singular distinctiveness is His ability to predict the future with complete accuracy. Since He alone knows the future, the salvation of the Lord shall not tarry (cf. Hab. 2:3; Heb. 10:37). In the timetable of God all things are proceeding on schedule.

3 Hearken unto me, O house of Jacob, and all the remnant of the house of Israel, ^awhich are ¹borne by me from ²the belly, which are carried from the womb:

4 And even to your old age ^aI am he; and even to ¹hoar hairs ^bwill I carry you: I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry, and will deliver you.

Idols Cannot Save Man

47:1-15. Isaiah now pictures Babylon as a deposed queen who can do no more than sit in the dust. In spite of its splendor, ancient Babylon was built upon the dust of the desert of Shinar. The Chaldeans were the elite ruling class of the Neo-Babylonian Empire.

In this passage Babylon is pictured as a naked slave girl reduced to sitting in the dust. She is no longer the lady [mistress] of kingdoms. This same imagery is found in Revelation, where Babylon is called the "great whore" (17:1; 19:2; cf. 18:3).

10 For thou hast trusted in thy wickedness: thou hast said, None ^aseeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge, it hath ¹perverted thee; and thou hast said in thine heart, I am, and none else beside me.

11 Therefore shall evil come upon thee; thou shalt not know from ¹whence it riseth: and ²mischiefs shall fall upon thee; thou shalt not be able to ³put it off: and ^adesolation shall come upon thee ^bsuddenly, which thou shalt not know.

12 Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, wherein thou hast laboured from thy youth; if so be thou shalt be able to profit, if so be thou mayest prevail.

48:1-11. This message is addressed to the house of Jacob, which includes both Israel and Judah. Both are criticized for calling on God's name but refusing to live by His laws. I have chosen [tried] thee in the furnace of affliction refers to God's merciful judgment, which has burned away their dross.

48:12-22. Both Jacob and Israel are referred to as my called (chosen) in spite of their failures. He is their LORD, thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel. Go ye forth of Babylon is a promise to the Israelites of their future deliverance. Many have seen in verse 16 a reference to the Trinity.

49:1-12. The servant is a person who shall come forth from the Servant-Nation Israel. He is the Messiah who was formed ... from the womb to be his servant and to bring Jacob again to him. He is further commissioned to be a light to the Gentiles (quoted in Acts 13:47 as being fulfilled in Jesus Christ). The reference to the covenant of the people is to the New Covenant (Testament) by which Christ will gather believers from far.

50:1-11. This chapter begins with an emphasis on the Lord's unbreakable commitment of marriage to His people Judah. The question Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement? is rhetorical, and the implied answer is that there is none. This should be viewed in contrast with Jeremiah 3:8, where the Lord states that He divorced Israel and threatens Judah with the same. In spite of their sins, He never severed Himself from the Davidic line. This chapter also includes a prophecy of Christ's suffering. I gave my back to the smiters is referred to in Matthew 27:26 in relation to the scourging that Christ received. My cheeks to them that plucked off the hair refers to the plucking out of His beard. The reference to spitting is verified in Matthew 26:67. The Servant is again seen as an individual suffering for the sins of the people.

51:1-16. Heavens shall vanish away ... and the earth: Isaiah looks down the corridor of human history to a time when the heavens (atmosphere) and the earth will be no more. He likens the earth to an old ... garment, meaning the earth will one day wear out (a fact borne out by the second law of thermodynamics), and only the ransomed and redeemed shall return with singing unto Zion and experience everlasting joy.

The Nearness of God's Righteousness

4 Hearken unto me, my people; and give ear unto me, O my nation: ^afor a law shall ¹proceed from me, and I will make my ²judgment to rest ^bfor a light of the people.

5 ^aMy righteousness is near; my salvation is gone forth, ^band mine arms shall judge the people; ^cthe ¹isles shall wait upon me, and ^don mine arm shall they trust.

6 ^aLift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for ^bthe heavens shall vanish away like smoke, ^cand the earth shall ¹wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner: but my salvation shall be ^dfor ever, and my righteousness shall not be ²abolished.

7 Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people ^ain whose heart is my law; ^bfear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings.

8 For ^athe moth shall eat them up like a garment, and the worm shall eat them like wool: but my righteousness shall be for ever, and my salvation from generation to generation.

An Everlasting Joy

9 ^aAwake, awake, ^bput on strength, O arm of the LORD; awake, ^cas in the ¹ancient days, in the generations of old. ^dArt thou not it that hath cut ^eRahab, and wounded the ^fdragon?²

10 Art thou not ¹it which hath ^adried the sea, the waters of the great deep; that hath made the depths of the sea a way for the ²ransomed to pass over?

11 Therefore ^athe redeemed of the LORD shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head: they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and ¹mourning shall flee away.

The Cup of Trembling Is Removed

21 Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, ^abut not with wine:

22 Thus saith thy Lord the LORD,

51:17-23. God calls Jerusalem to awake from her spiritual drunkenness. God has made her drunk.

Thus, they are drunken, but not with wine because they are intoxicated by their own sins.

The Exalted Servant

13 Behold, ^amy servant shall ¹deal prudently, ^bhe shall be exalted and ²extolled, and be very high.

52:1-12. The theme of God's deliverance for His people now reaches its greatest expression in the Servant of the Lord who will suffer for the sins of His people. The prophet foresees the Millennium, when Jerusalem will once again be the holy city, and the uncircumcised and the unclean (unrighteous) will no longer enter her gates. The reference to the beau- tiful ... feet of him that bringeth good tidings is repeated in the New Testament (Rom. 10:15; Eph. 6:15). To bring good tidings (mebasēr) means to "preach" or "carry good news." It certainly anticipates the gospel (good news) of the New Testament and results in peace and salvation.

SERVANT OF THE LORD

52:13. Isaiah prophetically uses the title "Servant" to designate Christ, especially concerning His suffering for sin. That suffering is identified as both vicarious (53:4-9) and victorious (53:10-12). The title "Servant of the Lord" emphasizes Christ's faithful obedience to the Father during His earthly ministry (cf. John 5:19). The Servant passages in Isaiah were some of the key texts used in preaching the gospel in the early days of Christianity (cf. Acts 8:32-35). Illustration: In the New Testament, Christians described themselves as servants of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ. This title conveyed their willingness to depend upon and completely obey God (cf. James 1:1). Application: Christians today should also follow the example of the suffering Servant of the Lord, who obeyed the will of God even when it momentarily seemed unjust (1 Pet. 2:21-23). (First Reference, Is. 42:1; Primary Reference, Is. 52:13.)

52:13–15. These verses actually stand as the introduction to the prophecy of the Suffering Servant in chapter 53. The subject of both passages is the servant of the Lord individualized as the Messiah who suffers for our sins. He is the culmination of all of Isaiah’s messianic prophecies. He is the miraculously born Son of the Virgin—Immanuel, “God with Us” (7:14; cf. Matt. 1:23). He is the Branch (11:1) who springs up out of the stump of the Davidic line. He is the new David (9:7) who will bring in a new Exodus and a new redemption for the people of Israel. Further, He is the One who deserves to rule the world because He is the One who suffers redemptively for all humanity. The terms exalted and extolled, and be very high are used only in 33:10 and here, but nowhere else in the prophets. It refers to the ultimate and final exaltation of His spiritual glory. Thus He will not remain in the humiliation which is described here but will rise above it (cf. Phil. 2:9–11). There is a deliberate contrast between the many who are astonied and the kings who will shut their mouths at him. The idea is that both the common man and the potentate will stand speechless in awe of Him. His visage refers to His appearance (or face), which will become so marred (disfigured) by beatings and scourgings that He will be barely recognizable. The verb for shall he sprinkle is a technical term found in the Mosaic Law for the sprinkling of blood in order to cleanse or purify from sin. This reference has nothing to do with water baptism. Here the Servant of the Lord is viewed as our High Priest who offers His own blood for our sins. Before this Suffering Servant, the nations of the world are rendered speechless as they observe this unbelievable demonstration of God’s love.

53:1, 2. In these verses we see the personal Messiah, the Son of God, who alone can atone for sin. His message is rejected (v. 1); His person is refused (v. 2); and His mission is misunderstood (v. 3). Nevertheless, His vicarious suffering provides atonement for our sins (vv. 4–6); and though He suffers (v. 7) death (v. 8) and burial (v. 9), He will ultimately be exalted (vv. 10–12). To miss the fact that Jesus Christ is the central figure in this passage is to stumble in unbelief over the cornerstone and foundation of all the gospel. The rhetorical question Who hath believed our report? is more of an exclamation than an interrogation. Speaking for all the prophets, Isaiah calls attention to the world’s lack of faith in general. The arm of the LORD is the emblem of divine power (cf. 51:9; 52:10). The Servant is described as a tender plant (yōnēq, “suckling” or “shoot”) and a root out of a dry ground, which has already been described as springing from the stump of Jesse (hence the Davidic line). No form nor comeliness denotes His humble origin rather than His personal appearance. Beauty may be read “elegance.” This description does not mean that He will be homely or ugly, but that He will not appear on the scene in the regalia of a king. He will come as one who is common. Nothing could better describe the humble appearance of Jesus as a common rabbi.

53:3–5. To provide a detailed description of His suffering, the prophet uses a series of verbs with an assumed subject (the Servant). Despised (from bazah, “to disdain or scorn”) and rejected [chadal, “abandoned”] of men. He is further described as a man of sorrows (mak’ōbōt, severe pains) and acquainted with grief (chōli, “injuries”). Because of His severe personal suffering we hid as it were our faces from him. The description of Christ’s suffering in the New Testament Gospels clearly indicates the severity of His physical suffering: the agony in the garden, His battered face, the severe scourging, and the torture of the crucifixion itself. His substitutionary atonement is clearly taught. He hath borne our griefs (lit., “spiritual sickness”). The New Testament says that He Himself “bare our sins in his own body on the tree” (1 Pet. 2:24). Thus He was stricken, smitten, and afflicted. We (mankind in general) thought He was judged of God. But he was wounded [or “pierced through”] for our transgressions (sins). The verb bruised translates daka’, meaning “to be utterly crushed.” Our iniquities (awōn) means moral “evils.” Chastisement [mūsar, “correction” or “discipline”] of our peace refers to that which procured our peace with God. With his stripes (or “wounds”) we are healed (rapa’, to mend or cure) refers to our spiritual condition being made whole. In Isaiah the term is always used of spiritual healing and forgiveness. See 19:22 and 57:18.

53:6, 7. All we (lit., "all of us") are compared to sheep ... gone astray to illustrate the desperate condition of mankind, lost, without a Shepherd (Matt. 9:36). All and every are used in parallel, emphasizing the totality of sinful humanity. Laid on him is a causative verb meaning "to strike violently." Thus Christ propitiates the violent wrath of God for us. The fact that He opened not His mouth is illustrated by a lamb being brought to the slaughter. See John 1:29 and Revelation 5:6, 12.

53:8, 9. He was taken from prison and from judgment (justice) refers to the illegitimate trials to which Jesus was subjected. Who shall declare reads better "who has considered." His generation refers to His potential life. The verb was cut off refers here to a violent death. The reference to the Servant making his grave with the wicked was certainly fulfilled in Christ's crucifixion between two thieves. (See Matt. 27:38.) The additional phrase and with the rich in his death refers to Jesus' burial in the tomb of the wealthy Joseph of Arimathea (Matt. 27:57).

53:10-12. It pleased the LORD to bruise [from daka, "to crush"] him refers to the same condition in verse 5. Put him to grief reads "pierce" Him in the Dead Sea Scroll copy of the text (1 Q Is.). His seed refers to those who will come to believe in Him. An offering for sin (asham, "guilt offering") involves the trespass offering described in Numbers 5:5-10. The phrase he shall prolong his days indicates that the Servant's ministry will not end with His violent death, and certainly implies His resurrection. The pleasure of the LORD refers to God's ultimate purposes which will be accomplished by the atoning death and resurrection of the Servant. The chapter ends with the glorification and exaltation of the Servant of the Lord. His intercession refers to His high priestly ministry, by which He makes intercession on the basis of His own substitutionary death.

54:1-4. This chapter portrays the results of the atoning work of the Servant and its universal extent to all nations. The Gentiles are depicted as a barren and desolate woman who breaks forth into songs of praise. The imagery depicts the Israelites as the married wife and the Gentiles as estranged from God.

Thus He is called the God of the whole earth. The reference to the cessation of the waters of Noah (the Noachian flood) is used as an illustration of the cessation of God's universal judgment on the Gentiles.

55:8-13. God's sovereignty and omniscience are extolled by the statement that His thoughts (i.e., purposes or intentions) and ways (derakim, or "directions") are higher than ours. While God may certainly be known by men, He is still incomprehensible in the totality of His person and purposes. The Word of God, therefore, accomplishes His purpose in announcing salvation to all mankind.

The sons of the stranger refer to Gentiles who are willing to love and serve the Lord and thereby partake of His covenant.

57:1-12. The message begun in the previous chapter is continued throughout this chapter. The righteous perisheth refers to the suffering of the godly. Slaying the children refers to the practice of child sacrifice. Cliffs of the rocks is a description unique to Isaiah, appearing only here and in 2:21. Such a description is very appropriate for Israel, but would have been unknown to a supposed Second Isaiah living later in Babylon.

57:13-21. The terminology cast ye up, prepare the way, is a technical term for constructing a highway by heaping up a mound of earth. God is pictured here as inhabiting both eternity and the hearts of those who have a contrite and humble spirit. The chapter ends with the observation that there is no peace ... to the wicked, who are described as a troubled [restless] sea.

20 ^aBut the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt.

21 ^aThere is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.

The Sins of the House of Jacob

2 Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsook not the ordinance of their God: they ask of me the ordinances of justice; they take delight in approaching to God.

God's Way of Fasting

5 Is it ^asuch a fast that I have chosen? ^ba day for a man to afflict his soul? is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and ^cto spread sackcloth and ashes under him? wilt thou call this a fast, and an acceptable day to the LORD?

6 Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to ^aloose the bands of wickedness, ^bto undo the ¹heavy burdens, and ^cto let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?

7 Is it not ^ato ¹deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are ²cast out to thy house? ^bwhen thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from ^cthine own flesh?

8 ^aThen shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine ¹health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; ^bthe glory of the LORD shall be thy ²reward.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the LORD shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the ¹putting forth of the finger, and ^aspeaking ²vanity;

10 And if thou ¹draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in ²obscurity, and thy ³darkness be as the noon day:

11 And the LORD shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in 58:1-14. The closing chapters of Isaiah (chs. 58—66) introduce the reader to the Messiah's program of peace for the world. Here we are lifted beyond His first coming to the time of His second coming as Lord, Judge, and King of the universe. Cry aloud ... shew my people their transgression indicates that Isaiah was to shout against the sins of Israel and Judah. God further warns them that though they delight to seek me daily, they will be judged for making a mere show of their religion. The true fast is contrasted with the false external show of piety. Thus God's fast will loose the bands of wickedness and undo the heavy burdens for those who truly repent.

FASTING

58:6. Fasting is the discipline of abstaining from food for biblical reasons. It is called "afflicting one's soul" (v. 3), and is often practiced to demonstrate the sincerity of our prayers. There are several biblical reasons for fasting. Christians should fast when facing a national crisis (2 Chr. 20:3; Ezra 8:21; Esth. 4:16), for individual needs (Matt. 17:21), during periods of distress (2 Sam. 3:35; Ps. 35:13), when facing spiritual decisions (Matt. 4:2; Acts 13:2), and in anticipation of Christ's return (Luke 5:35).

Illustration: Many people have found that heavy burdens are relieved through fasting (ch. 58), wisdom is obtained through fasting (Dan. 10), revival comes from fasting (v. 6), God's protection from danger is secured by fasting (1 Kin. 21:27-29), recovery of a sick loved one may come after fasting (Ps. 35:13), and the inauguration of a great ministry may follow fasting (Matt. 4:2). Application: When a Christian fasts, he should begin with a short fast—one day from sundown to sundown—and attempt to spend time alone with God during the fast. (First Reference, Judg. 20:26; Primary Reference, Is. 58:6; cf. James 5:14).

¹drought, and ²make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 And they that shall be of thee “shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of ¹paths to dwell in.

Honour the Sabbath

13 If ^athou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the sabbath a delight, the holy of the LORD, honourable; and shalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words:

14 ^aThen shalt thou delight thyself in the LORD; and I will cause thee to ^bride upon the high ¹places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: ^cfor the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.

A Separation from God

59 Behold, the LORD’s hand is not ^ashortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear:

2 But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will ^anot hear.

3 For ^ayour hands are defiled with ¹blood, and your fingers with iniquity; your lips have spoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverseness.

4 None calleth for justice, nor any pleadeth for truth: they trust in ^avanity, ¹and speak lies; ^bthey conceive ²mischief, and bring forth iniquity.

5 They hatch ¹cockatrice’ eggs, and weave the spider’s web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is crushed ²breaketh out into a viper.

6 ^aTheir webs shall not become garments, neither shall they cover themselves with their works: their works are works of iniquity, and the act of violence is in their hands.

8 The way of ^apeace they know not; and there is no ¹judgment in their ²goings: ^bthey have made them crooked paths: whosoever goeth therein shall not know peace.

Israel Walks in Darkness

9 Therefore is ¹judgment far from us, neither doth ²justice overtake us: ^awe wait for light, but behold ³obscurity; for brightness, but we walk in ⁴darkness.

10 ^aWe grope for the wall like the blind, and we grope as if we had no eyes: we stumble at noon day as ¹in the night; we are in desolate places as dead men.

11 We ¹roar all like bears, and ^amourn ²sore like doves: we look for ³judgment, but there is none; for salvation, but it is far off from us.

12 For our ^atransgressions are multiplied before thee, and our sins testify against us: for our transgressions are with us; and as for our iniquities, we know them;

13 In transgressing and lying against the LORD, and departing away from our God, speaking oppression and revolt, conceiving and uttering ^afrom the heart words of falsehood.

14 And ¹judgment is turned away backward, and ²justice standeth afar off: for truth is fallen in the street, and ³equity cannot enter.

15 Yea, truth faileth; and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a ^aprey: and the LORD saw it, and it ¹displeased him that there was no ²judgment.

A Breastplate of Righteousness

16 ^aAnd he saw that there was no man, and ^bwondered that there was no intercessor: ^ctherefore his arm brought salvation unto him; and his righteousness, it sustained him.

59:1-21. Chapter 59 continues the judgments enumerated in chapter 58 regarding Israel’s hypocrisy. God’s hand is not yet beyond the reach of salvation. But their sins separated them from His presence, and they are described in detail throughout the chapter.

17 ^aFor he put on righteousness as a breastplate, and an helmet of salvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance for clothing, and was clad with zeal as a cloke.

18 ^aAccording to their deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adversaries, recompence to his enemies; to the ¹islands he will ²repay recompence.

The Spirit of the Lord's Standard

19 ^aSo shall they fear the name of the LORD from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in ^blike a flood, the Spirit of the LORD shall lift up a ¹standard against him.

20 And ^athe Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the LORD.

21 ^aAs for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the LORD; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

The Lord's Glory Rests on Israel

60 Arise, ^ashine; for thy light is come, and ^bthe glory of the LORD is risen upon thee.

2 For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee.

The Gentiles Are Drawn to Israel's Light

3 And the ^aGentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

4 ^aLift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, ^bthey come to thee: thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side.

7 All the flocks of ^aKedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with ^bacceptance on mine altar, and ^cI will glorify the house of my glory.

11 Therefore thy gates ^ashall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the ¹forces of the Gentiles, and that their kings may be ²brought.

12 ^aFor the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly ¹wasted.

The City of the Lord

13 ^aThe glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the ¹fir tree, the pine tree, and the ²box together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make ^bthe place of my feet glorious.

60:1-12. Isaiah foresees a time when Israel will arise out of her darkness and shine with God's glory. Then the Gentiles shall come to her light. Thus the sons of strangers described in this chapter will come to Jerusalem to worship the Lord.

14 The sons also of them that afflicted thee shall come ^abending¹ unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall ^bbow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the LORD, ^cThe Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

15 Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations.

16 Thou shalt also suck the milk of the Gentiles, ^aand shalt suck the breast of kings: and thou shalt know that ^bI the LORD am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

The Acceptable Year of the Lord

61 The ^aSpirit of the Lord GOD is upon me; because the LORD ^bhath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the ¹meek; he hath sent me ^cto ²bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim ^dliberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

2 ^aTo proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, and ^bthe day of vengeance of our God; ^cto comfort all that mourn;

3 To ¹appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, ^ato give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, ^bthe planting of the LORD, ^cthat he might be glorified.

4 And they shall ^abuild the old ¹wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the ²waste cities, the desolations of many generations.

5 And ^astrangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of the alien shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers.

6 ^aBut ye shall be named the Priests of the LORD: men shall call you the ¹Ministers of our God: ^bye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves.

60:13-22. These verses describe in detail the worship of the nations at Jerusalem where they will bow themselves down at the city of the LORD. In that day her officers (governors) will be peace and her exactors (magistrates, or overseers) will be righteousness. Her walls will be Salvation, her gates will be Praise, and the whole city will be filled with the brightness of the glory of the Lord. See the similar description in Revelation 21:23; 22:5.

61:1-3. In this chapter Isaiah introduces the King who will rule in the glorious kingdom he has just described. After Jesus read from this passage (cf. Luke 4:17-21) in the synagogue, He said, "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." The me on whom the Spirit of the Lord God rests is Christ, the One whom God has anointed ... to preach good tidings (good news) and to proclaim liberty. When Jesus quoted this passage, He stopped at this point, indicating that the day of vengeance (final judgment) had not yet come.

61:4-11. For all her suffering, Israel is promised a double blessing from God. Thus God reaffirms His everlasting covenant with them. The chapter concludes with a song of praise to the Lord. The garments of salvation and the robe of righteousness are synonymous and refer to salvation itself. They are paralleled with the garments of a bridegroom and a bride.

The Everlasting Joy

7 ^aFor your shame ye shall have ¹double; and for confusion they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess the double: everlasting joy shall be unto them.

8 For ^aI the LORD love ¹judgment, ^bI hate robbery ²for burnt offering; and I will direct their work in truth, ^cand I will ³make an everlasting covenant with them.

9 And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, ^athat they are the seed which the LORD hath blessed.

The Robe of Righteousness

10 ^aI will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for ^bhe hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, ^cas a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels.

62:1-12. This chapter outlines the conditions that are preparatory to the deliverance of Zion and the establishment of Christ's kingdom. Righteousness and salvation will burst forth as a light upon the Gentiles.

Moreover, the Gentiles will not merely observe this light, but will receive it. Israel will change so radically that she will be called by a new name.

2 Wherefore ^a*art thou* red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the ¹winefat?

3 I have ^atrodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me: for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment.

4 For the ^aday of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come.

5 ^aAnd I looked, and ^b*there was* none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore mine own ^carm brought salvation unto me; and my fury, it upheld me.

6 And I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunk in my fury, and I will bring down their strength to the earth.

The Lord's Lovingkindness

7 I will mention the lovingkindnesses of the LORD, and the praises of the LORD, according to all that the LORD hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses.

8 For he said, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: so he was their Saviour.

9 ^aIn all their affliction he was ¹afflicted, ^band the angel of his presence saved them: ^cin his love and in his pity he redeemed them; and ^dhe bare them, and carried them all the days of old.

63:1-6. In having listed God's conditions for peace (chs. 58, 59), and by having described the nature of that peace (chs. 60-62), the prophet now describes the consummation of that peace (chs. 63-66). Edom represents all who hate Israel. Bozrah was Edom's capital city. Dyed garments, the color of red, are reminiscent of Revelation 19:13: "And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood: and his name is called The Word of God." The red-stained condition of the garments has been caused by his trampling blood in the winepress of God's judgment. The vengeance of God is further described as a judgment so severe that the very lifeblood of the nations will be poured out on the earth. The entire passage is strikingly similar to Revelation 19, where Christ comes to "judge and make war ... clothed with a vesture dipped in blood ... treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God." The flowing of the blood is similar to the description in Revelation 14:20.

63:7-19. The rest of this chapter and the following one contain a prayer of thanksgiving, confession, and intercession. I will mention can be translated "I will celebrate." Goodness refers to God's beneficent goodness, and mercies refers to His sympathizing tenderness. The angel of his presence refers to the presence of the Lord Himself. (See Ex. 33:14.) The reference to the holy Spirit indicates His activity and ministry on behalf of Old Testament believers.

5 ^aWhich say, Stand by thyself, come not near to me; for I am holier than thou. These ¹are a smoke in my nose, a fire that burneth all the day.

6 Behold, ^ait is written before me: ^bI will not keep silence, ^cbut will recompense, even recompense into their bosom, 64:1-12. In this chapter Isaiah pleads with God to come down and intervene in the affairs of nations. God's presence is described as melting fire that causes the nations to tremble. Yet the prophet realizes we are all ... unclean (tamē', a technical term for legal impurity). All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags describes the total depravity of mankind. In this condition of sinful depravity, there is none that calleth upon thy name. Therefore Isaiah pleads with God not to judge thy people but to extend them mercy.

65:1-16. In response to the prayer of the previous chapter, God speaks to the Gentiles who have come to trust in Him. I am found of them that sought me not refers to the unconditional election of the Gentiles as the bulk of the New Testament church of God. (See Rom. 10:20.) While the Jews themselves are called a rebellious people, God still promises to bring a seed out of Jacob ... mine elect. The language here is reminiscent of Romans 11:1-5, where Paul insists that God has not forsaken His people Israel. The references to the plain of Sharon and the valley of Achor blossoming abundantly look forward to the prosperity Israel will enjoy during the millennial kingdom.

7 Your iniquities, and ^athe iniquities of your fathers together, saith the LORD, ^bwhich have burned incense upon the mountains, ^cand blasphemed me upon the hills: therefore will I measure their former work into their bosom.

A Seed Out of Jacob

8 Thus saith the LORD, As the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not; for ^aa blessing is in it: so will I do for my servants' sakes, that I may not destroy them ^ball.

9 And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains: and mine ^aelect shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there.

10 And ^aSharon shall be a fold of flocks, and ^bthe valley of Achor a place for the herds to lie down in, for my people that have ^csought me.

The Fate of Those Who Forsake the Lord

11 But ye are they that forsake the LORD, that forget ^amy holy mountain, that prepare ^ba table for ¹that troop, and that furnish the drink offering unto ²that number.

12 Therefore will I number you ¹to the sword, and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter: ^abecause when I called, ye did not answer; when I spake, ye did not hear; but did evil before mine eyes, and did choose that wherein I delighted not.

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry: behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty: behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be ashamed:

14 Behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and ^ashall ¹howl for ²vexation of spirit.

15 And ye shall leave your name ^afor a curse unto ^bmy chosen: for the Lord GOD shall slay thee, and ^ccall his servants by another name:

18 But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy.

19 And ^aI will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people: and the ^bvoice of weeping shall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying.

20 There shall be no more thence an infant ¹of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; ^abut the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed.

God's Elect Will Plant and Harvest

21 ^aAnd they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.

22 They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and ^aanother eat: for ^bas the days of a tree are the days of my people, and ^cmine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands.

25 The ^awolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ¹bullock: ^band dust shall be the serpent's ²meat. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith the LORD.

65:17-25. At this point Isaiah saw further into the future than any Old Testament prophet, looking beyond the millennial kingdom to the new heavens and a new earth (cf. Rev. 21). Thus the reader is suddenly thrust into the celestial future of the New Jerusalem. Weeping and crying shall be no more (cf. Rev. 21:4: "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes ... for the former things are passed away").

A Poor and Contrite Spirit

66 Thus saith the LORD, “The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest?”

2 For all those things hath mine hand made, and all those things ¹have been, saith the LORD: “but to this man will I look, ^beven to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word.”

3 “He that killeth ¹an ox is as if he slew a man; he that sacrificeth a lamb, as if he ^bcut² off a dog’s neck; he that offereth ³an oblation, as if he offered swine’s blood; he that burneth incense, as if he blessed an idol. Yea, they have chosen their own ways, and their soul delighteth in their abominations.

4 I also will choose their delusions, and will bring their fears upon them; “because when I called, none did answer; when I spake, they did not hear: but they did evil before mine eyes, and chose ^{that} in which I delighted not.

A Voice of the Lord

5 Hear the word of the LORD, ye that tremble at his word; Your brethren that “hated you, that cast you out for my name’s sake, said, ^bLet the LORD be glorified: ¹but ^che shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed.

Rejoice with Jerusalem

10 Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her:

11 That ye may ¹suck, and be satisfied with the ²breasts of her consolations; that ye may ³milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory.

12 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, “I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream: then shall ye ^bsuck, ¹ye shall be ^cborne upon her sides, and be dandled upon her knees.

13 As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I ^acomfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

14 And when ye see this, your heart shall rejoice, and “your bones shall flourish like ¹an herb: and the hand of the LORD shall be known ²toward his servants, and his indignation ²toward his enemies.

15 “For, behold, the LORD will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire.

16 For by fire and by “his sword will the LORD ¹plead with all flesh: and the slain of the LORD shall be ^bmany.

17 *“They that sanctify themselves, and purify themselves ¹in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine’s flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall ²be consumed together, saith the LORD.*

66:1–16. Isaiah’s final prophecy begins with the assertion, Thus saith the LORD. The passage points to the magnitude and immensity of God, who is greater than the heavens. Thus heaven is His throne and earth His footstool. He is not limited to any house (temple) made by man. The apostle John tells us that in eternity there is no need for a temple, “for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it” (Rev. 21:22). God’s desire is to dwell in men and women who are of a poor and ... contrite spirit. Thus Isaiah foresees the New Testament doctrine of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in the temple of man’s body (1 Cor. 6:19).

22 For as ^athe new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the LORD, so shall your seed and your name remain.

23 And ^ait shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, ^bshall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the LORD.

24 And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me: for their ^aworm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh.

66:17-24. The book ends with a fearful glimpse of final judgment. The prophet foresees a time when those that escape the Tribulation period will be sent unto the nations (Gentiles) to declare God's glory among them. During the millennial kingdom they will come to Jerusalem to worship Him. All flesh refers to the redeemed of the Lord from all nations who will come to worship Him. The book ends with the awesome statement that the redeemed will go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me. Their suffering is described as being in the place where their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched (cf. Mark 9:44; Rev. 20:14, 15). The scene described here is that of the redeemed of heaven in their final glorified state and of those who are lost forever in the lake of fire. Thus Isaiah closes his prophecy with a stern reminder that there is a real heaven to be gained and a real hell to be avoided.

The Book of JEREMIAH

Jeremiah is rightly considered among the major prophets. His book is longer than Isaiah and is also longer than either Ezekiel or the 12 Minor Prophets combined. Its important subject matter includes timely messages to God's people in the closing days of Judah, and prophecies concerning the Messiah and the new covenant. The book customarily appears between Isaiah and Ezekiel in the Old Testament Canon.

Jeremiah's text has come down in differing forms. In the Greek Old Testament (the Septuagint), it is shorter and shows a different arrangement of the material in chapters 46—51. Both the Hebrew and Greek texts of the book have been found among the Dead Sea Scrolls. No compelling reason exists, however, for abandoning the traditional form of the original Hebrew text reflected in our English translations.

Authorship. Jeremiah doubtless was the chief author of the book that bears his name. Its final edition was probably brought together shortly after his death by his scribe, Baruch. Jeremiah was the son of Hilkiah, a priest in the line of Abiathar, who lived at Anathoth. Because he was raised in a Levitical tribe, Jeremiah learned a high regard for the law of the Lord and the importance of the temple and priesthood. The etymology of Jeremiah's name is uncertain, perhaps meaning either "Yahweh Is Exalted," or "Yahweh Will Cast Down."

Jeremiah prophesied during the reigns of Judah's last kings. His prophetic ministry stretched from the days of Josiah (640–609 B.C.) until Jerusalem's fall in the reign of Zedekiah (598–586 B.C.). Following his divine call in 627

B.C., Jeremiah served the Lord and the people of Judah throughout the rapidly changing scenes of the final decades of the southern kingdom and even beyond.

This prophet was a deeply spiritual man. He was wholly dedicated to God so that despite a shy and retiring nature, his fervent love for God and His people never waned. Jeremiah became an object lesson of a man whose commitment to God enabled him, by God's grace, to overcome his natural timidity and live courageously in the face of severe opposition and tragic circumstances. His personal sorrow over the messages that he had to deliver often caused him to weep for his people in a manner unparalleled until the Man of Sorrows would come.

Historical Setting. The time frame of the Book of Jeremiah stretches from the prophet's call in 627 B.C. until his later life among the Judean refugees in Egypt some years after the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. These were trying times for Judah. The nation was caught up in the rapidly changing political events in the Near East during the late seventh and early sixth centuries B.C. Although revival and religious reform followed the finding of the Book of the Law during the repair of the temple in 622 B.C. (cf. 2 Kin. 22:8—23:24; 2 Chr. 34:8—35:19), the effects of Josiah's religious edicts were shortlived.

With the death of the godly Josiah, Judah's apostasy quickly resurfaced. Jeremiah repeatedly warned of resulting judgment, which finally occurred through the events of the shifting Near Eastern political scene.

Nabopolassar of Babylon defeated the Assyrians at Nineveh in 612 B.C. When Pharaoh-nechoh (609–594 B.C.) of Egypt moved to their aid, Josiah withstood Egypt at Megiddo at the cost of his life. Later, the retreating Egyptians took his son Jehoahaz captive (2 Kin. 23:31–33) and installed Josiah’s second son, Jehoiakim (609–598 B.C.), on the throne. He was an apostate who persecuted Jeremiah and other true believers.

He was later succeeded by his brother Jehoiachin, who was captured by Nebuchadrezzar at the same time Ezekiel was taken captive. Zedekiah, Josiah’s third son, was then installed as king (2 Kin. 24:17). He too was an ungodly king who persecuted Jeremiah and rejected his prophecies. Finally in 586 B.C., Nebuchadrezzar totally destroyed Jerusalem, and Zedekiah was blinded and led away in chains to Babylon.

Although Jeremiah’s message was one of inevitable judgment upon Judah, he also delivered news of great consolation. God would yet deal anew with a repentant people (23:1–8; 29:10–19) in a great new covenant (30:1–33:26) through which the promised blessings of old would be realized. Jeremiah’s prophecies thus span the era that was passing away and that which was to come. The returning exiles would constitute a pledge of that great final gathering of God’s people to Himself for the Messiah’s everlasting reign.

1:1. The phrase son of Hilkiah distinguishes Jeremiah from several other people of the same name in the Old Testament: (1) the head of a family from Manasseh (1 Chr. 5:24); (2–4) three of David’s warriors who were with him at Ziklag (1 Chr. 12:4, 10, 13); (5) the father of Hamutal, Josiah’s wife (52:1; 2 Kin. 23:31; 24:18); (6) the father of Jaazaniah, head of the Rechabites (35:3); (7) the head of a priestly family who returned with Zerubbabel from exile (Neh. 12:1, 2); and (8) a priestly head connected with the ceremonies of covenant renewal in Nehemiah’s day (Neh. 10:2; 12:34).

Anathoth had also served as a hometown for two of David’s mighty men: Abiezer (2 Sam. 23:27) and Jehu (1 Chr. 12:3). The exact location of Anathoth is unknown, but it was somewhere in lower Benjamin.

1:5. Jeremiah was foreknown by God and set apart as His messenger to the nations long before his birth. The

God's Protection of Jeremiah

17 Thou therefore ^agird¹ up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I command thee: ^bbe not dismayed at their faces, lest I ²confound thee before them.

1:17 ^a 1 Kin. 18:46; 2 Kin. 4:29; Job 38:3; Luke 12:35; [1 Pet. 1:13] ^b Ezek. 2:6 ¹ prepare thyself ² dismay whole process was carefully watched over by God, so that Jeremiah's existence as a person, as well as his call, had become a reality while he was still in the womb.

1:6, 7. Jeremiah's sense of unworthiness recalls others such as Moses (Ex. 3:4), Barak (Judg. 4:8), Gideon (Judg. 6:15), Saul (1 Sam. 10:22), David (2 Sam. 7:19), Solomon (1 Kin. 3:7), and many others who understood clearly that sufficiency for God's service comes only from God Himself (cf. 2 Cor. 2:16).

The word translated child is sometimes used not only of young children (2 Kin. 2:23), but also of servants (2 Sam. 16:1; 2 Kin. 4:12). It is likewise used of military trainees or young professional soldiers (1 Kin. 20:14, 15). Jeremiah here seems to emphasize his lack of experience more than his youth.

1:11, 12. There is a play on sounds here in the Hebrew text. The word translated almond (shaqēd) has the same root as the word rendered hasten (shōqēd). As the early blossoming almond tree gave promise of the later spring fruit, so God would watch over His word to bring it to fruition.

1:13–15. The nature of the Lord's dealing with Judah and Jerusalem is underscored in the second vision. Like a seething pot (or caldron) ready to spill over, God's judgment was about to descend from the north against His sin-hardened people. Some have suggested that the phrase “seething pot” might better be translated “kindled thorn,” evoking the image of wildfire consuming the land. Either way, the figure of speech suggests imminent judgment. Jeremiah was commanded to deliver a difficult message in critical times. His would be no easy task.

1:17. The expression gird up thy loins, which literally meant tucking in one's long robe while engaged in strenuous activity, conveys the ideas of action and obedience (cf. 1 Kin. 18:46; 1 Pet. 1:13). Jeremiah was being called up for immediate duty, and should be ready to serve his Lord's will.

1:1 Jeremiah was the major prophet during the decline and fall of Judah's southern kingdom. He prophesied during the reigns of the last five kings of Judah. Jeremiah was born in the village of Anathoth, situated north of Jerusalem in the territory of Benjamin (vv. 1, 2). Called to the prophetic ministry in the thirteenth year of godly Josiah's reign, about 627 B.C., Jeremiah's ministry lasted more than 40 years, extending beyond the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. His call actually had been planned by God before his birth (v. 5). The nature of his ministry consisted of tearing down and rebuilding, uprooting and planting (v. 10). Jeremiah was a prophet of doom, who was even forbidden to marry so that he could fully devote himself to the preaching of God's judgment (16:1–13). After the fall of Jerusalem, Jeremiah was taken by some Jewish zealots to Egypt, where he continued to preach (chs. 43, 44). (First Reference, Jer. 1:1; Primary References, the Book of Jeremiah.)

18 For, behold, I have made thee this day ^aa ¹defenced city, and an iron pillar, and brasen walls against the whole land, against the kings of Judah, against the princes thereof, against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land.

19 And they shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee, saith the LORD, to deliver thee.

12 Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very desolate, saith the LORD.

Israel's Two Evils

13 For my people have committed two evils; they have forsaken me

2:2. The word translated kindness is often used in contexts dealing with covenant relationships. (See the note on 1 Sam. 20:14–17.) The word often speaks of that love that God shares with believers as members of His own family. Here the establishment of the family relationship is emphasized by linking God's redemption of His people from Egypt, and the time that followed, to the loving period of early marriage. As the rest of the chapter unfolds, the imagery of the bride is used to catalog Israel's sins: she had been seduced into idolatry (vv. 4–8); she had forsaken the refreshing waters of marriage for the broken cisterns of infidelity (vv. 9–13); she had left her divine husband for a wayward life among the surrounding nations (vv. 14–19); and she had stooped to the level of base spiritual harlotry by worshiping false gods and engaging in false religious practices (vv. 20–28). Even veteran harlots would blush at what God's bride had done (vv. 32, 33). Her prostitution was both flagrant and incurable (vv. 34–37). Accordingly, judgment must come. For further instances of Israel as God's bride, see Isaiah 54:4–17; Ezekiel 16; Hosea 1–3.

2:9. The word translated plead is often used in legal contexts. Like a plaintiff in a court case, God will bring charges against His wayward people. God is both the offended plaintiff and the divine judge before whom Israel has no defense (cf. vv. 29, 30).

2:10. The isles of Chittim indicates the limits of the West, or the Mediterranean world. Kedar, in the northern Arabian Peninsula, refers to the East. Go where one might, no nation could be found as wicked as Israel who had forsaken the living and true God in exchange for gross idolatry.

2:13. The figure of the fountain of living waters emphasizes that God alone can bring the life and refreshment necessary to the thirsty soul (cf. Ps. 36:9; Is. 55:1; John 4:10–14; 7:37–39; Rev. 21:6). Israel had left the purity of the living waters for the pollution of contaminated broken cisterns that offered no water at all.

the ^afountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water.

14 Is Israel ^aa servant? is he a homeborn slave? why is he ¹spoiled?

15 ^aThe young lions roared upon him, and yelled, and they made his land waste: his cities are burned without inhabitant.

16 Also the children of ¹Noph and ^aTahapanes have ²broken the crown of thy head.

17 ^aHast thou not procured this unto thyself, in that thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, when ^bhe led thee by the way?

2:16. Noph (Moph, Hos. 9:6) refers to Memphis, the traditional capital of ancient lower Egypt. Tahapanes is usually associated with the Greek Daphne and lay in Egypt's northeastern delta area (cf. 43:7; 44:1; 46:14). The fertility of the region may be underscored in the literal Masoretic vowel pointing, which reads "will graze upon thy head." The KJV reading here rests upon a suggested difference in Hebrew pointing. In any case, the message is clear: entanglement with Egypt can only spell defeat for Judah.

2:21. The choice vine mentioned here was the Sorek, which was famous for the fine-tasting wine that came from its grapes. For Israel as God's vine, see Isaiah 5:1–7 and Hosea 10:1.

2:22. Neither nitre (soda) nor soap could cleanse the filth of Israel's spiritual harlotry.

2:23. Valley probably meant the Valley of Hinnom. See the note on Jeremiah 7:32.

2:27. Images of stone or wood were often used in the idolatry of the ancient world. The wood may also refer to specific cultic practices associated with the debased Canaanite religion (cf. 1 Kin. 14:23; 2 Kin. 17:10; see the note on Judg. 3:6, 7). For the condemnation of idolatry, see Psalms 115:4–8; 135:15–18; Isaiah 44:6–20; see the note on Judges 2:11–15.

3:1. Attention is called to the Mosaic Law in Deuteronomy 24:1-4, which stipulates that a husband may not remarry a woman he has previously divorced due to some moral indecency. Judah's plight was desperate. Her spiritual harlotry had placed her in danger of legal divorcement. God's message of judgment is proclaimed strongly in chapters 3-6 but is ever accompanied by an invitation for Judah to repent and return to her divine husband (e.g., vv. 12-14). God would still seek to win back His fallen wife (cf. Is. 54:6-8; Ezek. 16:53; Hos. 2:16-3:5).

3:3-5. God's chastisement meant that the life-giving latter [spring] rain had been with- holden. Joel had given the same message (cf. Joel 2:23 with Deut. 11:13-17; Jer. 14:3-6; Amos 4:7, 8). Nevertheless, repentance had not come. Rather, Judah went on in its superficial religiosity without reality. Feigning her faith, Judah kept seeking her pagan lovers—the false gods of the nations around her (cf. 2:33-37).

3:6, 7. Here begins the first of four messages concerning Judah's certain judgment: 3:6-4:4; 4:5-31; 5:1-31; 6:1-30. The first message constitutes a plea to avoid God's judgment by expressing genuine repentance. For Israel and Judah as sisters engaged in spiritual harlotry, see Ezekiel 23.

10 And yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah hath not turned unto me ^awith her whole heart, but ¹feignedly, saith the LORD.

11 And the LORD said unto me, ^aThe backsliding Israel hath ¹justified herself more than treacherous Judah.

The Salvation of Israel

21 A voice was heard upon ^athe ¹high places, weeping and supplications of the children of Israel: for they have perverted their way, and they have forgotten the LORD their God.

3:14. The phrase I am married unto you is particularly instructive. Literally, it means “I took possession of you” (i.e., at the Exodus). The verb here is often used of ruling and serves to remind wayward Judah of God’s rightful headship over her in the marriage relationship. The verb comes from the same root from which comes the name Baal. A play on ideas may be intended here. Did Judah chase after Baal (the pagan god)? Her real “Baal,” that is, her divine owner and Lord is the only true God, her husband. Why should she seek a false master? Despite Israel’s divorce (v. 8), there had been no second marriage and divorce. (See the note on v. 1.) Therefore, a loving and forgiving God would still seek His fallen wife.

3:15. The promise of restoration to a repentant people is a common one in the prophets, and Jeremiah turns to it often. Pastors means Israel’s leadership which, though now false (cf. Ezek. 34:8–10), will yet be composed of men after God’s own heart (cf. 23:4), serving under the Great Shepherd Himself (Ezek. 34:11–31).

3:16. The ark, once the central feature of Israel’s worship, will give way to that which it symbolized—the actual presence of a holy and sovereign God in all

His glory. The ark itself is last mentioned in 2 Chronicles 35:3. It was probably taken away to Babylon at the fall of Jerusalem.

3:18. For the future reunion of Israel and Judah, see Isaiah 11:12; Ezekiel 37:16–28; Hosea 1:11.

3:19. The literary figure changes here from that of husband and wife to a father and his son. The Old Testament portrays Israel as God’s redeemed son (Ex. 4:21–23; Hos. 11:1) from whom He had a right to expect conduct befitting a son (Mal. 1:6; 2:10). Unfortunately, Israel had proved to be a wayward son (Deut. 32:5, 6) whom God must chastise (Is. 63:7–10). However, God still loves His child and longs for his repentance so that after the necessary judgment has been accomplished he might return to the place of blessing (Is. 43:6). Ultimately that will be accomplished through God’s special son, David (Ps. 89:20–27), through whom the Greater Son of David will come with full salvation (Ps. 2:7–12; Ezek. 36:24–32; 37:20–28; Luke 1:68–75; Acts 13:22–24).

3:21–25. Although Jeremiah must pronounce God’s message of judgment, he so longs for his people’s repentance and restoration to favor that in the scene played out in his mind’s eye he joins with them

22 Return, ye backsliding children, and I will ^aheal your backslidings. Behold, we come unto thee; for thou art the LORD our God.

23 ^aTruly in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains: ^btruly in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.

24 ^aFor shame hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth; their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters.

25 We lie down in our shame, and our ¹confusion covereth us: ^afor we have sinned against the LORD our God, we and our fathers, from our youth even unto this day, and ^bhave not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God.

in confession and contrition. Jeremiah gives us a lesson in “speaking the truth in love” (Eph. 4:15), and in feeling concern.

4:1-4. These verses conclude the message begun at 3:6 by using literary figures drawn from Israel’s daily experiences. From agriculture comes the admonition to weed out totally their present practices and break up their fallow ground, and then sow the new seeds of spiritual fruitfulness for God. Repentance and a broken heart must precede renewed spiritual vitality. The second figure comes from religious ceremony. Mere outward conformity to the standards of the covenant were insufficient (cf. Gen. 17:10-14; Deut. 10:16; 30:6; Josh. 5:2-7; Rom. 2:28, 29; 4:9-25).

4:5, 6. The rest of the chapter contains a new message emphasizing the proclamation of God’s judgment. The sounding of the trumpet was a well-known sign of danger in the ancient Near East (cf. Hos. 5:8; 8:1; Joel 2:1; Amos 3:6). It could also mark a time of national self-examination (Joel 2:15-17). The standard (conspicuous flag upon a pole) would point to the appropriate place of refuge (cf. v. 21).

4:7. The descending judgment of Babylon is described as a lion coming up from his thicket.

4:8. Sackcloth was the traditional attire of grief and repentance.

BACKSLIDING

3:22. The word backslide literally means “turning back” or “turning away.” Although it occurs throughout the Old Testament, Moses and Jeremiah especially use it to describe Israel’s failure in their covenant relationship with God. Illustration: Backsliding implied a stubborn and rebellious attitude on the part of ancient Israel and may have referred either to their forsaking the covenant (in whole or in part), or to their failure to grow spiritually according to God’s progressive revelation. Application: The term is often applied today to Christians who have fallen into sin, but it could also apply to those who have failed to grow spiritually (cf. Paul’s use of carnal in 1 Cor. 3:1-3). The cause of backsliding is the desire to do things our way rather than God’s way (Prov. 14:14). Christians should be careful to follow the Lord and grow in grace so as not to backslide. (First Reference, Jer. 3:6; Primary Reference, Jer. 3:22; cf. Lev. 2:11.)

9 And it shall come to pass at that day, saith the LORD, that the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes; and the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall wonder.

10 Then said I, Ah, Lord GOD! surely thou hast greatly deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall have peace; whereas the sword reacheth unto the soul.

11 At that time shall it be said to this people and to Jerusalem, A dry wind of the ¹high places in the wilderness toward the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor to cleanse, 12 Even ^{1a} a full wind from those places shall come unto me: now also will I ²give sentence against them.

19 My ^abowels, my ¹bowels! I am pained at my very heart; my heart maketh a noise in me; I cannot hold my peace, because thou hast heard, O my soul, the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war.

20 Destruction upon destruction is cried; for the whole land is ¹spoiled: suddenly are ^bmy tents ¹spoiled, and my curtains in a moment.

21 How long shall I see the ¹standard, and hear the sound of the trumpet?

22 For my people I am foolish, they have not known me; they are ¹sottish children, and they have ²none understanding: they are wise to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge.

The Desolation of the Land

23 I beheld the earth, and, lo, it was ^bwithout form, and void; and the heavens, and they had no light.

24 I beheld the mountains, and, lo, they trembled, and all the hills moved ¹lightly.

25 I beheld, and, lo, there was no man, and all the birds of the heavens were fled.

26 I beheld, and, lo, the fruitful place was a ^awilderness, and all the cities thereof were broken down at the presence of the LORD, and by his fierce anger.

27 For thus hath the LORD said, The whole land shall be desolate; yet will I not make a full end.

4:10. Many suggestions have been given as to the meaning of this difficult verse. One theory builds upon a textual variant found in a few ancient manuscripts that reads “said they” for said I, attributing the words to Judah’s false leaders. Some lay great stress on Jeremiah’s exhausted emotions. Perhaps it is best to see the verse as an expression of Jeremiah’s realization that God in His sovereign wisdom was allowing Judah and Jerusalem to cause their own destiny by believing their own lies, even though He continued to urge their repentance (vv. 14–18).

4:23–26. Having warned of the winds of destruction (vv. 11–13), Jeremiah gives a prediction of the awesome extent of that coming event (vv. 23–31). That disaster is described in terms of a gigantic cosmic and terrestrial cataclysm. The words without form and void are used of the original conditions at Creation (Gen. 1:2). Therefore, some have suggested that Jeremiah is actually describing the early earth in terms of the effects of a primeval judgment. Similar language is also found in Isaiah 45:18. However, the context of judgment in Isaiah and here are both future. Accordingly, both have merely applied the phraseology of Genesis to emphasize strongly the severity of Judah’s coming judgment for sin.

4:26. Jeremiah often uses the wilderness to represent God’s judgment (cf. 9:10; 12:10–12; 17:6; 22:6; 50:12). For a similar use of this expression, see Isaiah 32:15–20; 51:3.

28 For this ^ashall the earth mourn, and ^bthe heavens above be black: because I have spoken it, I have ^cpurposed it, and ^dwill not ¹repent, neither will I turn back from it.

29 The whole city shall flee for the noise of the horsemen and bowmen; they shall go into thickets, and climb up upon the rocks: every city shall be forsaken, and not a man dwell therein.

30 And when thou art ¹spoiled, what wilt thou do? Though thou clothest thyself with crimson, though thou ²deckest thee with ornaments of gold, ^athough thou ³rentest thy face with painting, in vain shalt thou make thyself fair; ^bthy lovers will despise thee, they will seek thy life.

31 For I have heard a voice as of a woman in ¹travail, and the anguish as of her that bringeth forth her first child, the voice of the daughter of Zion, that bewaileth herself, that ^aspreadeth her hands, saying, Woe is me now! for my soul is ²wearied because of murderers.

4:30, 31. Jeremiah returns to the personification of Judah and Jerusalem as a woman, first as a prostitute (cf. 2:18-34; 3:1, 2), and then as a woman enduring labor pangs alone, and deserted by all.

5:1. In this chapter, Jeremiah records the reasons for Jerusalem's judgment. Her conduct merited divine punishment (vv. 9, 29).

The Lord agreed to spare Sodom and Gomorrah for 10 righteous men (Gen. 18:32). Here, in clear hyperbole, God asks for one man (besides Jeremiah). How great was Jerusalem's sin! Judgment and truth are often put forward as standards of Old Testament righteousness. These were found not only in perfection in God (Deut. 32:4; Hos. 2:19, 20) but were also supposed to characterize the believer's life (Mic. 6:8).

5:3, 4. The eyes of the Lord is a common figure of God's sovereign surveillance over all that happens (cf. Ps. 94:9). He sees the sinner (2 Chr. 21:6) and saint (Ps. 33:18), and deals with all in due righteousness (32:19). This should be an encouragement to believers to walk circumspectly in His presence (Deut. 13:18). However, foolish Judah and Jerusalem continued in impurity. A catalog of the people's sins follows in the chapter.

5:6. The figures of a preying lion (1 Pet. 5:8), wolf (Gen. 49:27; Acts 20:29), or leopard (Hos. 13:7) to represent danger or judgment occur often in the Scriptures.

5:9. The verb translated visit often means divine chastisement in the Old Testament. It can also mean "avenging himself" against sin (cf. Hos. 1:4).

Treacherous Dealings

11 For ^athe house of Israel and the house of Judah have dealt very treacherously against me, saith the LORD.

12 ^aThey have ¹belied the LORD, and said, ^b*It is not he*; neither shall evil come upon us; ^cneither shall we see sword nor famine:

13 And the prophets shall become wind, and the word is not in them: thus shall it be done unto them.

14 Wherefore thus saith the LORD God of hosts, Because ye speak this word, ^abehold, I will make my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood, and it shall devour them.

15 Lo, I will bring a ^anation upon you ^bfrom far, O house of Israel, saith the LORD: it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandest what they say.

16 Their quiver is as an open sepulchre, they are all mighty men.

17 And they shall eat up thine ^aharvest, and thy bread, which thy sons and thy daughters should eat: they shall eat up thy flocks and thine herds: they shall eat up thy vines and thy fig trees: they shall ¹impoverish thy ²fenced cities, wherein thou trustedst, with the sword.

18 Nevertheless in those days, saith the LORD, I ^awill not ¹make a full end with you.

19 And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say, ^aWherefore doeth the LORD our God all these things unto us? then shalt thou answer them, Like as ye have ^bforsaken me, and served strange gods in your land, so ^cshall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours.

5:13. Judah's false prophets were not sent by the Spirit of God. Because the Hebrew word translated wind can also be rendered "Spirit," there may be a play on meanings here. Judah's prophets were not sent by the Spirit (cf. Is. 61:1) but were mere windbags!

5:14. For the term LORD God of hosts, see the note on 1 Samuel 1:3. Even the coming invading enemy is under God's control.

5:19. God's judgment of His apostate people is part of the terms of the Sinaitic covenant as updated in the Book of Deuteronomy (Deut. 29:24–26).

5:23–27. See the note on 3:3. Judah's iniquities (the word is from a root meaning "to twist," hence "pervert"), and sins (the word is part of a word-group meaning "miss the mark") stem from a revolting and rebellious heart. Theirs was a stubborn willfulness that could only be termed utter folly (v. 21). Accordingly, their lives are marked by deceit. Therefore, they have deprived themselves of God's natural blessings (cf. Deut. 28:15–68).

5:30. Judah's sin is so exceedingly evil that it is described as being appallingly horrible and staggering wonderful (wondered at in shocked disbelief).

6:1. The judgment prophesied against Judah and Jerusalem in the preceding chapters is vividly portrayed in chapter 6. The use of signal fires, especially in times of emergency, is well attested in the literature of the ancient Near East. To appreciate the imperative phrase blow the trumpets, see the note on 4:5.

6:6. The erecting of an earth mount (probably a parapet) was a common siege operation in the ancient Near East (cf. 2 Kin. 19:32).

6:11. At times Jeremiah is torn between proclaiming the Lord's righteous anger against His sinful people, and expressing genuine concern and compassion for them (cf. vv. 26-30 with 3:21, 22).

6:12. Jeremiah uses the theme of the outstretched hand several times (21:5; 27:5; 32:17, 21). It is used in the Scriptures to dramatize God's omnipotence (32:17), especially concerning Israel's deliverance (Ex. 6:6) or God's judgment (21:5).

6:14. The false prophets' concept of peace (absence of war or calamity) was a far cry from the Old Testament's teaching. The underlying idea of the Hebrew root and all its associated words is that of wholeness or completeness. Thus to know true peace is both to attain personal fulfillment and to enjoy full and healthy relationships with others. Ultimately, true peace is found in God Himself (33:6; Num. 6:26; Judg. 6:23; Ps. 29:11).

Because Israel stood in covenant relationship to God it could know peace (cf. Deut. 29:9-29). Its spiritual leadership was to be composed of men who knew God's peace (cf. Num. 25:10-13; Mal.

15 Were they ^aashamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither ¹could they blush: therefore they shall fall among them that fall: at the time that I ²visit them they shall be cast down, saith the LORD.

2:1-9). Its citizens could enjoy fellowship with God through that sacrifice known as the peace offering (Lev. 3:1-17; 7:11-38; cf. 22:17-30), which expressed the joy and full communion of the believer with God. Moreover, by this—and by living out God's revealed Word in absolute trust—they could experience genuine peace in their daily lives (Ps. 119:165; Prov. 3:1-4; Is. 26:3, 4).

Someday God will send to Israel the Prince of Peace (Is. 9:6-7), who will bring redemption and restoration to the land under a Covenant of Peace (33:6-9; Is. 54:10; Ezek. 34:24-31; 37:26-28).

6:16. The people's stubborn refusal to walk in the traditional ways of true righteousness is often mentioned by Jeremiah (12:16; 18:15; 23:12; 31:21). Moving in their own paths and following their own way could lead only to Judah's destruction (cf. Prov. 14:12). The contrast of the way of righteousness and life with the way of the ungodly and death is often made in the Scriptures (e.g., Ps. 1; Matt. 7:13, 14).

6:17. The prophets were at times called watchmen for God on behalf of His people (cf. Is. 21:6, 11; Ezek. 3:17; 33:7-9; Hab. 2:1). For other terms relative to the prophet's office, see 1 Samuel 9:6-11.

6:21. To lay stumbling blocks before the blind was forbidden (Lev. 19:14). However, Judah's spiritual blindness had caused them to erect stumbling blocks hewn from greed (Ezek. 7:19) and idolatry (Ezek. 14:4) that the Lord would turn to their own destruction.

6:26. For sackcloth and ashes as marks of mourning, grief, and penitence, see Esther 4:1, 3; Isaiah 58:5; Matthew 11:21; Luke 10:13.

God's Anger and Fury

17 Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem?

7:1, 2. Chapters 7—10 are often called “The Message in the Temple Gate.” Throughout these chapters (and on to ch. 24) runs the theme of the causes for Judah’s judgment. Chapters 7—10 focus on the people’s false standards of life. Scholars disagree as to whether they relate to Josiah’s later reign, or to King Jehoiakim’s early reign.

7:4. Jeremiah’s God-given message was straightforward: the physical presence of the temple was no guarantee that judgment would not come upon Jerusalem. God’s wrath against Judah’s sin could be averted only through a genuine repentance that would be reflected in their total lives (vv. 5, 6).

7:6. The care of the downtrodden and oppressed of society (the widow, the orphan, the poor, and the stranger) was of particular concern to the God of all mercies. This theme appears often in the Book of Deuteronomy, and recurs elsewhere (cf. Job 31:16; Ps. 94:6; 146:9; Is. 1:17; Jer. 22:3; Ezek. 22:7). This dominant theme is a vivid reminder for believers not only to practice righteous standards in their lives but to cultivate a social concern for all men similar to that of God Himself.

7:11. Merely formal religious attendance at God’s house is condemned also by Jesus (Matt. 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46).

7:12. See the note on 26:1.

7:13. The phrase rising up early becomes a frequent expression in Jeremiah. The practice is in harmony with the consistent biblical teaching. Jesus Himself rose up before daybreak to pray (Mark 1:32–35). Many of God’s choice servants had this practice (cf. Gen. 28:16–22; Ex. 24:4–8; 34:4; 1 Sam. 1:19; 2 Chr. 29:20; Job 1:5). The Psalms remind believers that the morning hour spent with God is crucial for spiritual growth (Ps. 88:13). Each morning God’s child has a fresh opportunity to recall His mercy and protection (Ps. 59:16; 92:2) and to find direction and guidance for the tasks of the day (Ps. 143:8). Jeremiah reports that the heavenly Father rose up early to await a meeting with the citizens of Judah (7:25; 11:7, 8; 25:3, 4; 26:5; 29:19; 32:33; 35:14, 15; 44:4, 5). This phrase captures God’s tender seeking of His people—but alas, they neither responded nor met with Him at all (cf. 2 Chr. 36:15, 16). Rather, as Zephaniah sadly reports, “They rose early, and corrupted all their doings” (Zeph. 3:7). How great must be the heartbreak of God who earnestly longs to meet in communion and fellowship with His people, only to find that they do not keep their appointments with Him!

18 “The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, and to ^bpour out drink offerings unto other gods, that they may provoke me to anger.

19 “Do they provoke me to anger? saith the LORD: do they not provoke themselves to the confusion of their own faces?

20 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, mine anger and my fury shall be poured out upon this place, upon man, and upon beast, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground; and it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.

21 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; “Put¹ your burnt offerings unto your sacrifices, and eat flesh.

22 “For I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt offerings or sacrifices:

23 But this thing commanded I them, saying, “Obey my voice, and ^bI will be your God, and ye shall be my people: and walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well unto you.

24 “But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear, but ^bwalked in the counsels and in the ¹imagination of their evil heart, and ^cwent² backward, and not forward.

7:18. The queen of heaven probably relates to Ash-toreth. See the note on Judges 2:11–15.

7:21–23. These verses do not minimize the importance of the Old Testament sacrifices, but call attention to the necessity of the believer living a life of total obedience and devotion to God. The Scriptures consistently teach that religious observances devoid of spiritual reality are worthless (cf. 1 Sam. 15:22, 23; Ps. 40:6–8; Is. 1:10–20; Mic. 6:8).

7:31, 32. The full scriptural picture concerning this Canaanite abomination makes it clear that Tophet was a sacred enclosure in the valley of the son of Hinnom, where the heinous child sacrifice (known as a Molech) to Baal was carried out (cf. 19:5, 6; 32:35; 2 Kin. 23:10; and see the notes at 2 Kin. 16:3, 4 and 2 Chr. 28:3). Archaeological confirmation concerning the nature of the sacrifices carried out in a Tophet comes from the excavations at the Phoenician colony of Carthage.

They Choose Death Rather Than Life

8 At that time, saith the LORD, they shall bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of their graves:

2 And they shall spread them before the sun, and the moon, and all the host of heaven, whom they have loved, and whom they have served, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have sought, and ^awhom they have worshipped: they shall not be gathered, ^bnor be buried; they shall be ¹for dung upon the face of the earth.

3 And ^adeath shall be chosen rather than life by all the ¹residue of them that remain of this evil family, which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, saith the LORD of hosts.

Wise Men Speak Falsely

8 How ¹do ye say, We are wise, ^aand the law of the LORD is with us? Lo, ²certainly in vain made he it; the pen of the scribes is in vain.

9 ^aThe wise men are ashamed, they are dismayed and taken: lo, they have rejected the word of the LORD; and ^bwhat wisdom is in them?

10 Therefore ^awill I give their wives unto others, and their fields to them that shall inherit them: for every one from the least even unto the greatest is given to ^bcovetousness, from the prophet even unto the priest every one dealeth falsely.

11 For they have ^ahealed the hurt of the daughter of my people ¹slightly, saying, ^bPeace, peace; when there is no peace.

12 Were they ^aashamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither ¹could they blush: therefore shall they fall among them that fall: in the time of their ²visitation they shall be cast down, saith the LORD.

13 I will surely ¹consume them, saith the LORD: there shall be no grapes ^aon the vine, nor figs on the ^bfig tree, and the leaf shall fade; and the things that I have given them shall ^cpass away from them.

14 Why do we sit still? ^aassemble yourselves, and let us enter into the ¹defenced cities, and let us be silent there: for the LORD our God hath put us to silence, and given us ^bwater² of gall to drink, because we have sinned against the LORD.

15 We ^alooked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold trouble!

8:8, 9. Judah's wise men show the shallowness of their misdirected wisdom by rejecting their basic commitment to the word of the LORD (cf. 9:12–14 with Ps. 119:9–16, 89–112; Prov. 1:7; 15:33). The office held by the scribes was an old one by Jeremiah's day. It must have existed early in Israel, but seems to be little noted as a particular profession before the time of Hezekiah (2 Kin. 18:18; cf. Prov. 25:1). In Judah scribes appear to have been organized into distinct families or guilds (1 Chr. 2:55) and were certainly active by Jeremiah's time (2 Chr. 34:13). Unfortunately, the mere handling of God's Word is no guarantee of spiritual fidelity. The Word must master its readers and become part of their lives. In New Testament times the scribes were condemned by Jesus for partaking of a corrupt society (cf. Matt. 23:13–36).

8:11. See the note on 6:14.

8:13. The Lord's judgment would include the taking away of the symbols of the benefits of Israel's covenant with God. See the note on 1 Kings 4:21–28.

8:20–22. Jeremiah is overcome with grief for his people. As the passing of a harvest season that failed to produce fruit gives rise to despair for the availability of food, so the passing days without repentance in Judah made destruction inevitable. Jeremiah was dismayed and cried out for relief for his people because their sin wounds were incurable. Gilead was apparently known for its healing balsam (cf. Gen. 37:25).

18 And let them make haste, and take up a wailing for us, that ^aour eyes may run down with tears, and our eyelids gush out with waters.

19 For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion, How are we ¹spoiled! we are greatly ²confounded, because we have forsaken the land, because ^aour ³dwellings have cast us out.

20 Yet hear the word of the LORD, O ye women, and let your ear receive the word of his mouth, and teach your daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation.

24 But ^alet him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the LORD which exercise lovingkindness, ¹judgment, and righteousness, in the earth: ^bfor in these things I delight, saith the LORD.

Learn Not the Way of the Heathen

10 Hear ye the word which the LORD speaketh unto you, O house of Israel:

2 Thus saith the LORD, ^aLearn not the way of the ¹heathen, and be not dismayed at the signs of heaven; for the ¹heathen are dismayed at them.

9:17-22. Funeral ceremonies and processions were often attended by professional mourning women (2 Sam. 14:2; 2 Chr. 35:25; Matt. 9:23), as attested by the evidence throughout the ancient Near East. So severe and widespread will be the death scene, that the female population at large will be needed in order that lamentations may be made for all the dead. Death is pictured here as an unwelcome intruder—the Grim Reaper. So numerous will be the dead that, unlike the situation in harvesting where the gatherers follow the reapers, the number of available men to bury the dead will be insufficient. Therefore, the carcasses of men will lie unburied, a particularly loathsome thought to those in the ancient Near East (cf. 8:2; 16:4, 6; 25:33).

9:23, 24. Having lamented the folly of his faithless people, Jeremiah turns their attention to the true source of wisdom—the Lord Himself (9:23—10:25). True wisdom was to be found in the consistent following of the three central qualities of spiritual life: Lovingkindness (the exercise of true covenant loyalty, cf. the note on 1 Sam. 20:14-17), judgment (the consistent application of true justice for all), and righteousness (the maintenance of what was right in the sight of the Lord in all of life).

10:1-16. The Lord assures His people that the signs of heaven should not frighten them. Such signs only dismay the heathen because of their unbelief and rebellion against God. When prophecies are being fulfilled with divine signs, believers rejoice but unbelievers tremble. Considering the impotence of the false gods and the emptiness of false religion, men surely ought to worship the omnipotent LORD and King of the nations. God's name, which is great, reveals His character and reputation. The term name became a title for God (cf. Dan. 9:18, 19; Amos 2:7; 9:12) and was applied in the New Testament to Christ (Acts 4:12; 5:41; 3 John 7).

3 For the customs of the people are ¹vain: for ^aone cutteth a tree out of the forest, the work of the hands of the workman, with the ax.

4 They ¹deck it with silver and with gold; they ^afasten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not.

5 They are upright as the palm tree, ^abut speak not: they must needs be ^bborne, because they cannot go. Be not afraid of them; for ^cthey cannot do evil, neither also is it in them to do good.

God's Name Is Great

6 Forasmuch as there is none ^alike unto thee, O LORD; thou art great, and thy name is great in might.

7 ^aWho would not fear thee, O King of nations? for to thee ¹doth it appertain: forasmuch as ^bamong all the wise men of the nations, and in all their kingdoms, there is none like unto thee.

8 But they are altogether ^abrutish¹ and foolish: the ²stock is ³a doctrine of vanities.

9 Silver ¹spread into plates is brought from Tarshish, and ^agold from Uphaz, the work of the ²workman, and of the hands of the ³founder: blue and purple is their clothing; they are all ^bthe work of ^acunning men.

The True and Living God

10 But the LORD is the true God, he is ^athe living God, and an ^beverlasting king: at his wrath the earth shall tremble, and the nations shall not be able to abide his indignation.

11 Thus shall ye say unto them, ^aThe gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, even ^bthey shall perish from the earth, and from under these heavens.

12 He ^ahath made the earth by his power, he hath ^bestablished the world by his wisdom, and ^chath stretched out the heavens by his discretion.

Obey God's Voice

11 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

3 And say thou unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel; ^aCursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this covenant,

Evil Against Israel and Judah

15 ^aWhat hath my beloved to do in mine house, seeing she hath ^bwrought¹ lewdness with many, and ^cthe holy flesh is passed from thee?

11:1. Jeremiah's messages in chapters 11–13 will reveal Judah's false loyalties. They have been unfaithful to the covenant of the Lord (11:1–17) and, accordingly, must suffer the course of their infidelity (11:18–12:17). Judah's corruption (13:1–11) had led them to an inordinate pride that will suffer humiliation (13:12–27).

11:11. God's deafness to Judah's cry was ample evidence of their sin. Not only had Judah broken God's covenant (vv. 2–8), but they had gone off into a corrupt paganism (vv. 9, 10). Therefore, their fellowship with God was broken so that He would not hear their requests (cf. Ps. 66:18; John 9:31; James 4:3). Where there is godless living (Is. 56:11, 12), lack of concern for others in their need (Is. 58:6–9), and carelessness with regard to the clear instructions of the Word of God (35:17), God cannot honor the one who prays; rather, such a one stands in danger of divine judgment (Zech. 7:8–14). However, where intimacy of communion exists, God answers the call of His own. See Job 13:22; 14:14, 15; Psalms 22:24, 25; 91:15; 102:1, 2; Isaiah 58:9; 65:24.

when thou doest evil, then thou ^arejoicest.

16 The LORD called thy name, ^aA green olive tree, ¹fair, and of ²goodly fruit: with the noise of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken.

17 For the LORD of hosts, ^athat planted thee, hath pronounced ¹evil against thee, for the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah, which they have done against themselves to provoke me to anger in offering incense unto Baal.

The Plot Against Jeremiah's Life

18 And the LORD hath given me knowledge of it, and I know it: then thou shewedst me their doings.

19 But I was like a ¹lamb or an ox that is brought to the slaughter; and I knew not that they had devised ²devices against me, saying, Let us destroy the tree with the fruit thereof, ^aand let us cut him off from ^bthe land of the living, that his name may be no more remembered.

20 But, O LORD of hosts, that judgest righteously, that ^atriest ¹the ²reins and the heart, let me see thy ^bvengeance on them: for unto thee have I revealed my cause.

21 Therefore thus saith the LORD ¹of the men of ^aAnathoth, that seek thy life, saying, ^bProphecy not in the name of the LORD, that thou die not by our hand:

22 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, Behold, I will punish them: the young men shall die by the sword; their sons and their daughters shall ^adie by famine:

23 And there shall be no remnant of them: for I will bring ¹evil upon the men of Anathoth, even ^athe year of their ²visitation.

Judgment for the Wicked

12 Righteous ^aart thou, O LORD, when I plead with thee: yet let me talk with thee of thy judgments: ^bWherefore doth the way of the wicked prosper? wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherously?

2 Thou hast planted them, yea, they have taken root: they grow, yea, they bring forth fruit: ^athou art near in their mouth, and far from their ¹reins.

3 But thou, O LORD, ^aknowest me: thou hast seen me, and ^btried ¹mine heart toward thee: pull them out like sheep for the slaughter, and prepare them for ^cthe day of slaughter.

4 How long shall ^athe land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, ^bfor the wickedness of them that dwell therein? ^cthe beasts are consumed, and the birds; because they said, He shall not see our ¹last end.

5 If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in ^athe swelling of Jordan?

6 For even ^athy brethren, and the house of thy father, even they have dealt treacherously with thee; yea, they have called ¹a multitude after thee: ^bbelieve them not, though they speak ²fair words unto thee.

God's Forsaken Heritage

7 I have forsaken mine house, I have left mine heritage; I have given the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies.

8 Mine heritage is unto me as a lion in the forest; it crieth out against me: therefore have I ^ahated it.

11:18–23. Here the reader is allowed a glimpse of the recurring hostility that Jeremiah faced. His very life was at stake. The servant of God must be prepared for the possibility of suffering for the Lord's sake (Matt. 10:36; John 15:18–21; 2 Tim. 3:12; 1 John 3:13). However, he must so live as to be certain that his persecution is for Christ's sake, not his own doing (cf. 1 Pet. 2:19, 20; 3:17), and leave the judgment with God (cf. 1 Pet. 4:12–19).

12:1. The problem that the wicked seem to prosper is discussed often in the Scriptures (cf. Job 21:7–16; 24:1–16; Ps. 73:2–14). No definitive answer is given except that, according to God's most wise and holy purposes, all things are under His control (cf. Job 37:5; Is. 46:10; Matt. 5:45; Acts 17:24–28) and that He will deal justly with the wicked in His appointed time and way (cf. v. 13; Job 27:13–23; Ps. 1:3–6; 49:16–20; 73:17–22). It is enough for the believer to leave things in God's hands (Ps. 37) and let Him truly be God of his whole life (cf. Job 34:29; 42:1–6; Ps. 73:28; Is. 26:3–21; Hab. 3:17–19; Rom. 12:1, 2).

9 Mine heritage is unto me as a speckled ¹bird, the ²birds round about are against her; come ye, assemble all the beasts of the field, *come*³ to devour.

10 Many ^apastors¹ have destroyed ^bmy vineyard, they have ^ctrodden my portion under foot, they have made my ²pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.

11 They have made it ^adesolate, and being desolate it mourneth unto me; the whole land is made desolate, because ^bno man ¹layeth it to heart.

12 The ¹spoilers are come upon all ²high places through the wilderness: for the sword of the LORD shall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no flesh shall have peace.

13 ^aThey have sown wheat, but shall reap thorns: they have ¹put themselves to pain, but shall not profit: and they shall be ashamed of your ²revenues because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

14 Thus saith the LORD against all mine evil neighbours, that ^atouch the inheritance which I have caused my people Israel to inherit; Behold, I will ^bpluck them out of their land, and pluck out the house of Judah from among them.

15 ^aAnd it shall come to pass, after that I have plucked them out I will return, and have compassion on them, ^band will bring them again, every man to his heritage, and every man to his land.

The Marred Girdle

13 Thus saith the LORD unto me, Go and get thee a linen ¹girdle, and put it ²upon thy loins, and put it not in water.

2 So I got a ¹girdle according to the word of the LORD, and put *it*² on my loins.

3 And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying,

4 Take the ¹girdle that thou hast got, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go to ²Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock.

5 So I went, and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me.

6 And it came to pass after many days, that the LORD said unto me, Arise, go to Euphrates, and take the ¹girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there.

7 Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the ¹girdle from the place where I had hid it: and, behold, the girdle was ²marred, it was profitable for nothing.

The Marred Pride of Judah

8 Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 Thus saith the LORD, After this manner ^awill I ¹mar the pride of Judah, and the great ^bpride of Jerusalem.

10 This evil people, which ^arefuse to hear my words, which ^bwalk in the ¹imagination of their heart, and walk after other gods, to serve them, and to worship them, shall even be as this ²girdle, which is good for nothing.

12:10. See the note on 10:21.

12:14-17. Jeremiah is assured that although Judah and Jerusalem must be punished, God's judgment will also extend to their evil neighbours. There is in this a strong missionary appeal in that to Gentiles, too, is opened the hope of salvation (cf. 16:19-21; Is. 2:1-4; 19:20-25; 45:22; 66:23; Hos. 12; Obad. 20, 21; Zech. 8:20-23; 14:8, 9, 16).

13:1. The girdle that Jeremiah was to put on has been understood either as a sash worn as a belt, or a linen undergarment that stretched from the waist midway to the thighs.

13:4-11. Jeremiah's journey has been variously understood as a literal trip either (1) to the western portion of the upper Euphrates River, (2) to Ephrata (Bethlehem), or (3) to Perah, three miles northeast of Anathoth. Others consider the events here to have occurred in a vision or in some dramatic presentation. In any case, the lesson of the message is the same: as the girdle was marred, so God will mar (wound) Judah's pride.

11 For as the ¹girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so have I caused to ²cleave unto me the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah, saith the LORD; that ^athey might be unto me for a people, and ^bfor ³a name, and for a praise, and for a ^cglory: but they would ^anot hear.

12 Therefore thou shalt speak unto them this word; Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Every bottle shall be filled with wine: and they shall say unto thee, Do we not certainly know that every bottle shall be filled with wine?

13 Then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, even the kings that sit upon David's throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, ^awith drunkenness.

14 And ^aI will dash them one against another, even the fathers and the sons together, saith the LORD: I will not pity, nor spare, nor have mercy, but destroy them.

The Sin of Pride

15 Hear ye, and give ear; be not proud: is the LORD hath spoken.

16 ^aGive glory to the LORD your God, before he cause ^bdarkness, and before your feet stumble upon the dark mountains, and, while ye ^clook for light, he turn it into ^dthe shadow of death, and make it gross darkness.

17 But if ye will not hear it, my soul shall ^aweep in secret places for your pride; and mine eye shall weep sore, and run down with tears, because the LORD's flock is carried away captive.

13:12-14. No doubt this reference to every bottle being filled with wine reflects a popular saying. The vine (together with the fig tree) symbolized the basic covenant between God and Israel and the attendant blessings of that spiritual relationship (cf. Ps. 80:8-15; Mic. 4:3, 4; Zech. 3:10). Wine, the fruit of the vine, could signify God's blessing on the fruitful life (Is. 55:1; Joel 2:23, 24) and was to be offered in the drink offering. Unfortunately, Israel had become an unfruitful vine (Is. 5:2-6), and her people became drunkards (Is. 5:11, 22; 28:7, 8; 56:11, 12) who must be constantly warned of the dangerous evils of drinking wine (Prov. 20:1; 23:29-35; Hos. 4:11; Mic. 2:11). Jeremiah condemned the drunken habits of the citizens of Jerusalem who had permitted a covenant symbol to be perverted into an evil so typical of the pagan societies around them. In the coming crisis, their drunkenness would dull their reactions when they needed to respond decisively. No wonder, then, that Paul urges the believer to "be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess" (Eph. 5:18).

13:15-17. A third illustration concerns a weary traveler in danger of being overtaken by the falling darkness of night. Such was Judah. It must renounce all pride and give God His rightful glory before the final darkness of national catastrophe engulfs it.

The Cry of Jerusalem

2 Judah mourneth, and ^athe gates thereof languish; they ¹are ^bblack unto the ground; and ^cthe cry of Jerusalem is gone up.

3 And their nobles have sent their ¹little ones to the waters: they came to the ²pits, and found no water; they returned with their vessels empty; they were ^aashamed and confounded, ^band covered their heads.

4 Because the ground is ¹chapt, for there was ^ano rain in the earth, the plowmen were ashamed, they covered their heads.

6 And ^athe wild ¹asses did stand in the ²high places, they snuffed up the wind like ³dragons; their eyes did fail, because there was no grass.

The Hope of Israel

7 O LORD, though our iniquities testify against us, do thou it ^afor thy name's sake: for our backslidings are many; we have sinned against thee.

8 ^aO the hope of Israel, the saviour thereof in time of trouble, why shouldst thou be as a stranger in the land, and as a wayfaring man that turneth aside to tarry for a night?

9 Why shouldst thou be as a man astonished, as a mighty man ^athat cannot save? yet thou, O LORD, ^bart in the midst of us, and we are called by thy name; leave us not.

The False Prophets

13 ^aThen said I, Ah, Lord God! behold, the prophets say unto them, Ye shall not see the sword, neither shall ye have famine; but I will give you ¹assured ^bpeace in this place.

14 Then the LORD said unto me, ^aThe prophets prophesy lies in my name: ^bI sent them not, neither have I commanded them, neither spake unto them: they prophesy unto you a false vision and ¹divination, and a ²thing of nought, and the ^cdeceit of their heart.

15 Therefore thus saith the LORD concerning the prophets that prophesy in my name, and I sent them not, ^ayet they say, Sword and famine shall not be in this land; By sword and famine shall those prophets be consumed.

16 And the people to whom they prophesy shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem because of the famine and the sword; ^aand they shall have none to bury them, them, their wives, nor their sons, nor their daughters: for I will pour their wickedness upon them.

Jeremiah Intercedes

17 Therefore thou shalt say this word unto them; ^aLet mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not cease: ^bfor the virgin daughter of my people is broken with a ¹great breach, with a very ²grievous blow.

14:1. In 14:1–17:18 Jeremiah brings before his hearers several messages dealing with their false lamenting. Chapters 14 and 15 deal with Jeremiah's words and work in the time of a drought caused by a famine.

14:7–10. Jeremiah had been advised not to intercede for his people (11:4); yet he cannot help pleading for them despite their wronging of him (cf. 11:18–23).

He prays for God's mercy on the basis of their being called by thy name. However, God rejects Jeremiah's request (v. 10), reminding him that it is useless to pray for this obdurately sinful people (vv. 11, 12).

14:14. False prophets are easily identified—they speak in God's name, but give a message contrary to His revealed word (cf. Deut. 18:10–22).

18 If I go forth into ^athe field, then behold the slain with the sword! and if I enter into the city, then behold them that are sick with famine! yea, both the prophet and the ^bpriest go about into a land that they know not.

19 ^aHast thou utterly rejected Judah? hath thy soul lothed Zion? why hast thou smitten us, and ^bthere is no healing for us? ^cwe looked for peace, and there is no good; and for the time of healing, and behold trouble!

20 We acknowledge, O LORD, our wickedness, and the iniquity of our ^afathers: for ^bwe have sinned against thee.

21 Do not abhor us, for thy name's sake, do not disgrace the throne of thy glory: ^aremember, break not thy covenant with us.

22 ^aAre there any among ^bthe ¹vanities of the Gentiles that can cause ^crain? or can the heavens give showers? ^dart not thou he, O LORD our God? therefore we will wait upon thee: for thou hast made all these things.

2 And it shall come to pass, if they say unto thee, Whither shall we go forth? then thou shalt tell them, Thus saith the LORD; ^aSuch as are for death, to death; and such as are for the sword, to the sword; and such as are for the famine, to the famine; and such as are for the ^bcaptivity, to the captivity.

Weary with Repenting

5 For who shall have pity upon thee, O Jerusalem? or who shall be-moan thee? or who shall go aside to ask how thou doest?

6 ^aThou hast forsaken me, saith the LORD, thou art ^bgone backward: therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and destroy thee; ¹I am weary with ²repenting.

Encouragement for Jeremiah

10 ^aWoe is me, my mother, that thou hast borne me a man of strife and a man of contention to the whole ¹earth! I have neither lent ²on usury, nor men have lent to me ²on usury; yet every one of them doth curse me.

14:19. Again a burdened Jeremiah pleads with God, vicariously confessing the sins of the people and urging God not to destroy His people for the sake of His own reputation among the nations, because of the temple in Jerusalem, and on the basis of His covenant with His people (v. 21).

15:6. God's repenting is anthropomorphic language. From a human point of view God's relenting of the threatened calamity against Judah may seem to be a change of mind. However, His hand will stretch out in judgment against them. See the note on 6:12.

15:10-21. These verses contain Jeremiah's personal lamentations over his lot in life (v. 10), and over his great loneliness (vv. 15-18). To these very human sorrows the Lord has comforting replies: Jeremiah will be vindicated (vv. 11-14), and God's prophet will be fortified against danger in difficult times (vv. 19-21).

The Grievous Deaths in the Land

16 The word of the LORD came also unto me, saying,

2 Thou shalt not take thee a wife, neither shalt thou have sons or daughters in this place.

3 For thus saith the LORD concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bare them, and concerning their fathers that begat them in this land;

4 They shall die of ^agrievous deaths; they shall not be ^blamented; neither shall they be ^cburied; but they shall be ^aas ¹dung upon the face of the earth: and they shall be consumed by the sword, and by famine; and their ^ccarcasses shall be meat for the fowls of heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.

5 For thus saith the LORD, ^aEnter not into the house of mourning, neither go to lament nor bemoan them: for I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the LORD, even lovingkindness and mercies.

6 Both the great and the small shall die in this land: they shall not be buried, ^aneither shall men lament for them, nor ^bcut¹ themselves, nor ^cmake¹ themselves bald for them:

7 Neither shall men ¹tear themselves for them in mourning, to comfort them for the dead; neither shall men give them the cup of consolation to ^adrink for their father or for their mother.

8 Thou shalt not also go into the house of feasting, to sit with them to eat and to drink.

9 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, ^aI will cause to cease out of this place in your eyes, and in your days, the voice of ¹mirth, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

16:2. Chapters 16 and 17 continue the theme of Jeremiah's life in the light of the coming judgment. In the face of the horrible specter of death, destruction, and deportation, Jeremiah is neither to marry nor to grieve for the objects of God's just judgment.

A Reason for Punishment

10 And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt shew this people all these words, and they shall say unto thee, ^aWherefore hath the LORD pronounced all this great ¹evil against us? or what is our iniquity? or what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?

11 Then shalt thou say unto them, ^aBecause your fathers have forsaken me, saith the LORD, and have walked after other gods, and have served them, and have worshipped them, and have forsaken me, and have not kept my law;

12 And ye have done ^aworse than your fathers; for, behold, ^bye walk every one after the ¹imagination of his evil heart, that they may not hearken unto me:

13 ^aTherefore will I cast you out of this land ^binto a land that ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers; and there shall ye serve other gods day and night; where I will not shew you favour.

God Will Deliver His People

14 Therefore, behold, the ^adays come, saith the LORD, that it shall no more be said, The LORD liveth, that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

15 But, The LORD liveth, that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the ^anorth, and from all the lands whither he had driven them: and ^bI will bring them again into their land that I gave unto their fathers.

16 Behold, I will send for many ^afishers, ¹saith the LORD, and they shall fish them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks.

5 Thus saith the LORD; ^aCursed be the man that trusteth in ¹man, and maketh ^bflesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the LORD.

16:14, 15. God includes a reassuring hope to Jeremiah. After Judah has paid for its sins and the divine purposes have been realized, God will regather His people to the land in a deliverance from the nations that surpasses that of Israel's redemption from Egypt. Nevertheless, Judah must first be judged (vv. 16, 17).

16:19–21. God's name will be vindicated and the Gentiles may even come to know him as LORD. See the note on 12:14–17.

17:2. Judah's idolatry is portrayed and condemned. See the notes on Judges 2:11–15 and 3:6, 7.

8 For he shall be ^aas a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not ¹see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be ²careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit.

Hallow the Sabbath Day

19 Thus said the LORD unto me; Go and stand in the gate of the chil-dren of the people, whereby the kings of Judah come in, and by the which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem;

20 And say unto them, ^aHear ye the word of the LORD, ye kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the in-habitants of Jerusalem, that enter in by these gates:

21 Thus saith the LORD; ^aTake heed to yourselves, and bear no bur-den on the sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem;

22 Neither carry forth a burden out of your houses on the sabbath day, neither do ye any work, but hal-low ye the sabbath day, as I ^acom-manded your fathers.

17:22 ^a Ex. 20:8; 31:13; Ezek. 20:12

17:6. Heath probably means some type of juniper whose roots do not extend to the water table below.

17:9, 10. The heart (cf. Prov. 4:23) means man's innermost being. The bent of man's natural disposition, apart from God's redeeming grace, is described as deceitful (lit., crooked) and desperately wicked (incurably sick). Therefore, man cannot trust his own heart but must leave all to God who alone knows the heart and judges all men fairly. Only a person with a redeemed heart can live in proper fellowship with God (Job 11:13; 1 John 3:18-24).

17:11. This partridge may have been a type of sand grouse. As the hatched offspring soon recognized that another type of bird had been sitting on the eggs and so left the false mother, so a man's ill-gotten gain will leave him and he will be shown to be a fool.

17:14-18. Jeremiah renews his plea for vindication and help. He prays not to be rescued from the persecution but to be delivered through it (cf. James 1:2-4; 1 Pet. 1:3-7; 4:12-19).

17:19. Jeremiah next denounces Judah's false legalism (17:19-20:18).

17:20-27. Because the personal observance of the sabbath recognized God as Creator and Preserver of the world and was a distinct obligation of the revealed law of God (Ex. 20:8-11; Deut. 5:11-15; Ezek. 20:12-24; 22:8, 26; 23:38), its profanation necessitated Judah's judgment (cf. 21:14). Conversely, a future Israel will be blessed for its sabbath-keeping (Is. 56:2; 58:13, 14; 66:22-24; Ezek. 44:24; 45:17; 46:1-4).

23 ^aBut they obeyed not, neither inclined their ear, but ¹made their neck stiff, that they might not hear, nor receive instruction.

24 And it shall come to pass, ^aif ye diligently hearken unto me, saith the LORD, to bring in no burden through the gates of this city on the ^bsabbath day, but hallow the sabbath day, to do no work therein;

25 ^aThen shall there enter into the gates of this city kings and princes sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they, and their princes, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and this city shall remain for ever.

26 And they shall come from the cities of Judah, and from ^athe places about Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from ^bthe ¹plain, and from the mountains, and from ^cthe ²south, bringing burnt offerings, and sacrifices, and ³meat offerings, and incense, and bringing ^dsacrifices of praise, unto the house of the LORD.

27 But if ye will not hearken unto me to hallow the sabbath day, and not to bear a burden, ¹even entering in at the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath day; then ^awill I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, ^band it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, and it shall not be ^cquenched.

The Potter's Vessel of Clay

18 The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

3 Then I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the ¹wheels.

4 And the vessel that he ¹made of clay was ²marred in the hand of the potter: so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it.

12 And they said, ^aThere is no hope: but we will walk ¹after our own devices, and we will every one do the ^bimagination² of his evil heart.

14 Will a man ¹leave the snow of Lebanon which cometh from the rock of the field? or shall the cold flowing waters that come from another place be forsaken?

18:13. Virgin (daughter of) is a set phrase that often refers to certain nations or peoples.

18:14. Various translation problems attend this verse. Some suggest that field should be changed to read a word of closely related Hebrew consonants—"mountain." Likewise, the verb forsaken is taken by some as "cease to flow." In any case, the application is clear. Although the supply of snow and waters is dependable, Judah has been fickle and unfaithful.

Jeremiah's Plea for Vengeance

19 Give heed to me, O LORD, and ¹hearken to the voice of them that contend with me.

20 ^aShall evil be ¹recompensed for good? for they have ^bdigged a pit for my ²soul. Remember that I ^cstood before thee to speak good ³for them, and to turn away thy wrath from them.

21 Therefore ^adeliver up their children to the famine, and pour out their blood by the force of the sword; and let their wives be ^bbereaved of their children, and be widows; and let their men be put to death; let their young men be slain by the sword in battle.

22 Let a cry be heard from their houses, when thou shalt bring a troop suddenly upon them: for they have digged a pit to take me, and hid snares for my feet.

23 Yet, LORD, thou knowest all their counsel against me to slay me: ^aforgive¹ not their iniquity, neither blot out their sin from thy sight, but let them be overthrown before thee; deal thus with them in the time of thine ^banger.

19 Thus saith the LORD, Go and get a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ¹ancients of the people, and of the ¹ancients of the priests;

2 And go forth unto ^athe valley of the son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of the ¹east gate, and proclaim there the words that I shall tell thee,

3 ^aAnd say, Hear ye the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem; Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring ¹evil upon this place, the which whosoever heareth, his ears shall ^btingle.

7 And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place; ^aand I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and their ^bcarcases will I give to be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.

18:18. Jeremiah again lets his readers understand some of the constant persecution he faces (cf. 11:18, 19) and renews his plea for safety and deliverance from the designs of evil men (cf. Ps. 43:1; 59:1, 2).

19:5, 6. See the note on 7:31, 32.

19:9. This gruesome prophecy (cf. Lev. 26:29; Deut. 28:53–57) literally came to pass in each of Jerusalem's great captivities, 586 B.C. (cf. Lam. 2:20; 4:10) and A.D. 70 (see Josephus Wars of the Jews 6.4). This also occurred in an earlier siege of Samaria by the Arameans (2 Kin. 6:26–31).

The Message of the Broken Bottle

10 ^aThen shalt thou break the bottle in the sight of the men that go with thee,

11 And shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^aEven so will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be ¹made whole again: and they shall ^bbury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury.

12 Thus will I do unto this place, saith the LORD, and to the inhabitants thereof, and even make this city as Tophet:

13 And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be defiled ^aas the place of Tophet, because of all the houses upon whose ^broofs they have burned incense unto all the host of heaven, and ^chave poured out drink offerings unto other gods.

The People's Hardened Necks

14 Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood in ^athe court of the LORD's house; and said to all the people,

15 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring upon this city and upon all her towns all the ¹evil that I have pronounced against it, because ^athey have ²hardened their necks, that they might not hear my words.

LORD, heard that Jeremiah prophesied these things.

2 Then Pashur ¹smote Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the high ^agate of Benjamin, which was by the house of the LORD.

3 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Pashur brought forth Jeremiah out of the stocks. Then said Jeremiah unto him, The LORD hath not called thy name Pashur, but ¹Magor-missabib.

4 For thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will make thee a terror to thyself, and to all thy friends: and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, and thine eyes shall behold it: and I will ^agive all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall carry them captive into Babylon, and shall slay them with the sword.

5 Moreover I ^awill deliver all the ¹strength of this city, and all the ²labours thereof, and all the precious things thereof, and all the treasures of the kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, which shall ³spoil them, and ⁴take them, and ^bcarry them to Babylon.

6 And thou, Pashur, and all that dwell in thine house shall go into captivity: and thou shalt come to Babylon, and there thou shalt die, and shalt be buried there, thou, and all thy friends, to whom thou hast ^aprophesied lies.

Jeremiah Ridiculed

7 O LORD, thou hast ¹deceived me, and I was ²deceived: ^athou art stronger than I, and hast prevailed: ^bI am ³in derision daily, every one mocketh me.

20:1, 2. This is not the Pashur of 21:1; 38:1. This Pashur was a priest and chief officer of the temple police. Because another is mentioned later as holding this position (29:25, 26), Pashur either died soon after this or may have been carried away captive in the siege of Jerusalem in 598/597 B.C.

20:3. Pashur is given a name that symbolizes the great terror that will come upon Judah and Jerusalem. The Hebrew Magor-missabib, "Terror on Every Side," is often used by Jeremiah (6:25; 20:3, 10; 46:5; 49:29; Lam. 2:22).

20:7. Jeremiah often allows the reader to see his inner turmoil in the midst of his continuous persecution.

It will not do to attempt to soften the language as some have suggested. The believer is at times so overcome by circumstances that he says things that on more sober reflection are, at best, inadvisable (cf. Ps. 73:1-22). The verb translated deceived is a strong one and can be translated "seduced" (cf. Ex. 22:16; 1 Kin. 22:20-22). Jeremiah complains that God had overpowered him when He called him. But God had warned him of all that he would face right from the start (1:18), and had reassured His prophet on several occasions (cf. 11:18—12:17; 15:10-21; 17:7-18). However black the circumstance, the believer must come to trust in God's abiding presence with him (cf. Josh. 1:5; Heb. 13:5, 6).

8 For since I spake, I cried out, ^aI cried violence and ¹spoil; because the word of the LORD was made a reproach unto me, and a derision, daily.

9 Then I said, I will not make mention of him, nor speak any more in his name. But his word was in mine heart as a ^aburning fire shut up in my bones, and I was weary ¹with forbearing, and ^bI could not ²stay.

10 ^aFor I heard the ¹defaming of many, fear on every side. Report, say they, and we will report it. ^bAll my ²familiaris watched for my ³halting, saying, ⁴Peradventure he will be enticed, and we shall prevail against him, and we shall take our revenge on him.

Persecutors Will Not Prevail

11 But the LORD is ^awith me as a mighty ¹terrible one: therefore my persecutors shall stumble, and they shall not ^bprevail: they shall be greatly ashamed; for they shall not prosper: their ^ceverlasting confusion shall never be forgotten.

12 But, O LORD of hosts, that ^atriest ¹the righteous, and seest the ²reins and the heart, ^blet me see thy vengeance on them: for unto thee have I ³opened my cause.

2 ^aEnquire, I pray thee, of the LORD for us; for ¹Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon maketh war against us; if so be that the LORD will deal with us according to all his wondrous works, that ²he may go up from us.

The Lord Will Fight Against Jerusalem

3 Then said Jeremiah unto them, Thus shall ye say to Zedekiah:

4 Thus saith the LORD God of Israel; Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, wherewith ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against ¹the Chaldeans, which besiege you ²without the walls, and ^aI will assemble them into the midst of this city.

5 And I ^amyself will fight against you with an ^boutstretched hand and with a strong arm, even in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath.

6 And I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast: they shall die of a great pestilence.

21:1. Chapters 21-24 deal with Judah's false leadership. This Pashur is to be differentiated from Pashur ben Immer (20:1-6). The similarity in names may account for the placement of chapter 21 after chapter 20, even though the events of the present chapter occur sometime later in the days of King Zedekiah. Indeed, this chapter must be dated about 589/588 B.C., near to the events described in Jeremiah 37:1-10. Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah is also mentioned in Jeremiah 37:3 and seems less hostile to Jeremiah than were many of the priests (cf. 29:25, 26).

people, and such as are left in this city from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life: and he shall ¹smite them with the edge of the sword; ^bhe shall not spare them, neither have pity, nor have mercy.

8 And unto this people thou shalt say, Thus saith the LORD; Behold, ^aI set before you the way of life, and the way of death.

9 He that ^aabideth¹ in this city shall die by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that goeth out, and ²falleth to the Chaldeans that besiege you, he shall ^blive, and his life shall be unto him ³for a prey.

10 For I have ^aset my face against this city for ¹evil, and not for good, saith the LORD: ^bit shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall ^cburn it with fire.

The Conditions for Obedience

22 Thus saith the LORD; Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and speak there this word,

2 And say, ^aHear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, that sittest upon the throne of David, thou, and thy servants, and thy people that enter in by these gates:

3 Thus saith the LORD; ^aExecute¹ ye judgment and righteousness, and deliver the ²spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor: and do no wrong, do no violence to the stranger, the ^bfatherless, nor the widow, neither shed innocent blood in this place.

4 For if ye do this thing indeed, ^athen shall there enter in by the gates of this house kings sitting upon the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, he, and his servants, and his people.

God's Warning for Disobedience

5 But if ye will not ¹hear these words, ^aI swear by myself, saith the LORD, that this house shall become a desolation.

6 For thus saith the LORD unto the king's house of Judah; Thou art ^aGilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon: yet surely I will make thee a wilderness, and cities which are not inhabited.

7 And I will prepare destroyers against thee, every one with his weapons: and they shall cut down ^athy choice cedars, ^band cast them into the fire.

21:7. All of this came to pass literally (see 39:1-10; 52:1-30; 2 Kin. 25:1-25; 2 Chr. 36:17-21).

21:8. For the theme of the two ways, see the note on 6:16.

21:11, 12. Zedekiah (together with his court) is charged with giving heed to the Lord's words of instruction and warning as the representative of the house of David. Though he was a wicked king who had failed to appropriate the available blessings of the Davidic covenant (see the note on 2 Sam. 7:12-16), still, he was David's descendant and heir, and needed to be reminded of his special God-given responsibilities. Note the similar divine challenge to Ahaz in Isaiah 7:2, 13.

22:1, 2. Chapter 22 is probably placed here because it, like chapter 21, contains messages that were addressed to the house of the king of Judah and concerned the throne of David (cf. 21:11, 12). Several kings appear to be in view in this chapter: Jehoiakim (vv. 1-9, 13-23), Jehoahaz (vv. 10-12), and Jehoiachin (vv. 24-30). Chronologically, the events of this chapter precede those of chapter 21.

11 For thus saith the LORD touching ^aShallum¹ the son of Josiah king of Judah, which reigned instead of Josiah his father, ^bwhich went forth out of this place; He shall not return thither any more:

12 But he shall die in the place whither they have led him captive, and shall see this land no more.

A Righteous Branch

23:6 ^a Deut. 33:28; Jer. 30:10; Zech. 14:11

22:30. Childless means that none of Jehoiachin's seven sons (1 Chr. 3:17, 18) would succeed him on the throne of Judah, nor would any of his natural descendants succeed him. Although Jesus' paternal ancestors through Joseph include Jehoiachin (Matt. 1:11-16), the line of descent is thus recorded only to show Jesus' legal right to the throne of David. Because Jesus was virgin-born (Matt. 1:18; Luke 1:34-36), hence not the natural son of Joseph, the pronouncement against Jehoiachin's line is not contradicted.

Although Jehoiachin's grandson Zerubbabel was governor of Judah (Ezra 3:2; Neh. 12:1), he was never Israel's king. Thus, the human kingship of Israel and Judah ended with the sixth century B.C. Note also that Jesus' human descent is apparently traced through Mary, a descendant of David through his son Nathan (not the prophet), not Solomon (Luke 3:23-31). Therefore, heir to David's throne through both parents, as the virgin-born son of Mary, Christ did not abrogate the prophetic curse against Jehoiachin's line. Rather, the great accuracy and trustworthiness of the Scriptures are again demonstrated.

23:3. That this prophecy looks beyond the returning exiles of Judah to the eschatological scene is clear from the universal scope of the context. The prophets repeatedly predict that God will regather His people in the distant future, that they will turn to the Messiah, and enter into His millennial kingdom (cf. 31:1-14, 23-37; 33:14-26; Is. 10:20-23; Ezek. 36; 37:15-28; Joel 2:32; Mic. 2:12, 13; 4:1-8; 5:7, 8; 7:18-20; Zech. 8:6-8).

23:4. The word shepherds is the same as that translated "pastors" in verse 1. In contrast to Judah's wicked pastors, God will give His people a good One. The whole passage (vv. 1-8) is taken from the imagery of shepherding. God Himself, as a Good Shepherd, will gather together the scattered sheep of Israel and will give them new shepherds who will serve under the Chief Shepherd (cf. 1 Pet. 5:4) of the flock (cf. Is. 10:20-22; Ezek. 34:22-24).

The theme of the shepherd is a familiar one in the Scriptures. It was assumed by God as He led Israel (Ps. 80:1), while seeing to their needs (Ps. 23:1, 2), and protecting and guiding them in accordance with His good purposes for them (cf. Is. 40:9-20 with Ezek. 34:12; Zech. 9:15, 16). As noted previously (see the notes at 3:15 and 10:1), Israel's leaders were charged with the care of God's people as a shepherd would watch over his flock (Num. 27:17); but too often they proved to be false shepherds (cf. 2:8; 10:21; 25:32ff.; Ezek. 34:2ff.; Zech. 10:2ff.; 11:4ff.). Accordingly, God announced through His prophets that He would send His own true Shepherd, the Messiah, who would save and care for His flock (Ezek. 34:22-24). Christ affirmed that He was that Good Shepherd who, as a smitten Shepherd (cf. Zech. 13:7), would lay down His life for the sheep (John 10:11ff.).

The writer of Hebrews (Heb. 13:20, 21) points out that Christ is also that Great Shepherd who sees to the maturing and well-being of His believing flock (cf. 1 Pet. 2:25). Peter affirms that Christ is the Chief Shepherd who has entrusted His work to other "under shepherds" until He Himself shall come again for His flock (1 Pet. 5:4), so that it is no accident that one of the terms for pastor in the New Testament means "shepherd" and that Paul could instruct the Ephesian elders in "shepherding" (Acts 20:17-38).

23:5. The phrase the days come refers to the messianic era (cf. 31:27-40), when the righteous Branch (cf. Zech. 3:8; 6:12 with Is. 11:1) of the Lord (Is. 4:2) will "grow up unto David" (33:15). Jeremiah 23:5-8 looks forward to the time when the Messiah, Israel's Shepherd and King will sit on the throne of David (cf. 33:14-26; Ezek. 34:22-31; 37:22-28) in fulfillment of the promises of the Davidic covenant (see the note on 2 Sam. 7:12-16). His reign will be a time of renewed peace, justice, and righteousness (cf. 32:37-44; 33:10-13; Is. 2:1-4; 11:1-12:6; 35:1-10; Ezek. 34:25-31; 36:26-38; Mic. 4:1-5).

23:6. The Messiah's title THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS will also be given to Jerusalem and Israel ^bshall dwell safely: and ^cthis is his name whereby he shall be called, ¹THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS.

7 Therefore, behold, ^athe days come, saith the LORD, that they shall no more say, The LORD liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

8 But, The LORD liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, ^aand from all countries whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own ^bland.

(33:14-16) because the Righteous One will be there (cf. Ezek. 48:35; Joel 3:17, 21). In the Old Testament, God's name is recorded as being on the temple (7:10-14, 30; 32:34; 34:15; 1 Kin. 8:43; 2 Chr. 6:33), the city of Jerusalem (25:29; 33:14-16; Dan. 9:18), and His people, both Israel (14:9; 2 Chr. 7:14; Is. 4:1; 63:19; Dan. 9:19) and among the Gentiles (Amos 9:12). Jeremiah also identifies himself by the title (15:16). In the New Testament that name becomes particularly identified with God's Son, Jesus Christ (Acts 5:41; 3 John 7; Rev. 2:13; 3:12; 22:4).

Testament as at hand (i.e., near or immanent in earth's activities, especially in relation to Israel's worship, Is. 65:5; or in the experiences of those who are His own, Ps. 85:10; 145:18; Is. 50:8), the remark here stresses that God's nearness to His people is not to be taken as a mere confession with no reality in their lives (cf. 7:4; 12:2). Moreover, we are to be reminded that God is also afar off (i.e., distant or transcendent, Ps. 139:2), One who sovereignly directs the affairs of earth's history in accordance with His wise and holy purposes (cf. Is. 40:21–23; 44:24–45:6; Ps. 103:19–22; Dan. 2:20, 21; 4:34–37). God longs to draw near to His people, but His presence is not to be taken for granted, nor can He be manipulated for selfish gain (cf. 8:8, 9; 18:18).

23:25. In the Old Testament, God usually spoke to His servants directly (cf. 1:4–10; Is. 8:1) or in a vision (1:11, 13; Is. 1:1; 6:1; Ezek. 1:1; Dan. 7:1). God did at times use dreams to reveal His will to His own (Gen. 28:11–17), especially to equip His servants who would labor in foreign cultures where dreams and their interpretations were regarded as particularly important (e.g., Joseph, Gen. 37:5–11; 40:5–22; 41:1–36; and Daniel, Dan. 2:1–45; 4:4–27).

23:33. The Hebrew word translated burden can also mean "oracle." Coming from a root meaning to "lift up," it signifies that which God places upon the prophet's heart to bear. Its message may either be one of judgment (Is. 13:1; 15:1; Ezek. 12:10) or of promise (Zech. 12:1–10). There is a word and thought play here. Apparently Jerusalem's false prophets made a charade of this word, chiding Jeremiah as to the burden of the day. In the Lord's reply, the Hebrew text reads literally, "What burden?" The ancient Greek and Latin versions render this phrase, "You are the burden!" In either case, the Lord goes on to tell the false prophets plainly that they are to stop claiming that they speak the burden of the Lord. They will find their own words to be a burden too heavy to bear, and God will in turn cast them off as a burden that He will no longer carry.

25:11. The seventy years of captivity have been variously reckoned. Some consider the number 70 to be a mere round number of a normal life span (cf. Ps. 90:10; Is. 23:15). Others take the 70 years to be literal, but differ as to the starting point of the period. The two most widely held dates for the years involved in the prophecy are: (1) 605-536 B.C., beginning with the captivity of Daniel and ending with the return under Sheshbazzar and Zerubbabel (cf. Dan. 9:1, 2 with 2 Chr. 36:20-23; Ezra 1:1-3); and (2) 586-516 B.C., from the date of Jerusalem's fall until the rebuilding of the temple by Israel's returning exiles (cf. Hag. 1:1-15).

26 ^aAnd all the kings of the north, far and near, one with another, and all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth: and the king of ¹Sheshach shall drink after them.

Rise No More

27 Therefore thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; ^aDrink ye, and ^bbe drunken, and ¹spue, and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you.

29 For, lo, ^aI begin to bring ¹evil upon the city ^bwhich is called by my name, and should ye be utterly unpunished? Ye shall not be unpunished: for ^aI will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith the LORD of hosts.

31 A noise shall come even to the ends of the earth; for the LORD hath ^aa controversy with the nations, ^bhe will ¹plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the LORD.

Hearken and Turn from Your Evil Ways

26 In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah came this word from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD; Stand in ^athe court of ¹the LORD's house, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, which come to worship in the LORD's house, ^ball the words that I command thee to speak unto them; ^cdiminish not a word:

3 ^aIf so be they will ¹hearken, and turn every man from his evil way, that I may ^brepent² me of the evil, which I purpose to do unto them because of the evil of their doings.

25:26. See the note on 51:41.

25:28. The cup is often used as a symbol of divine judgment (Ps. 75:8; Is. 51:17, 22; Ezek. 23:31–34; Rev. 14:10; 16:19). Christ drank the cup of divine wrath against sin for all men (cf. Mark 10:38; 14:36; John 18:11). For cup as a sign of divine blessing, see Psalms 23:5; 116:13.

26:1. Chapters 26–45 focus on Israel's place among the nations. Scholars disagree as to whether the details of chapter 26 are to be connected with the temple discourse in chapters 7–10. Whether or not this chapter is directly related to the same occasion as those messages, the theme is largely the same: unless the citizens of Jerusalem repent, the mere presence of the temple in their midst will not guarantee their survival. Rather, God's chastening judgment will be as certain as that of Shiloh (v. 6; cf. 7:12), the earlier lodging place of the tabernacle. See the notes on 1 Samuel 4:3; 7:1, 2.

A Curse to All the Nations

4 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD; ^aIf ye will not ¹hearken to me, to walk in my law, which I have set before you,

5 To ¹hearken to the words of my servants the prophets, ^awhom I sent unto you, both rising up early, and sending them, but ye have not hearkened;

6 Then will I make this house like ^aShiloh, and will make this city ^ba curse to all the nations of the earth.

7 So the priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD.

Jeremiah's Death Demanded

8 Now it came to pass, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak unto all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people ¹took him, saying, Thou shalt surely die.

9 Why hast thou prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be ^adesolate without an inhabitant? And all the people were gathered against Jeremiah in ¹the house of the LORD.

10 When the princes of Judah heard these things, then they came up from the king's house unto the house of the LORD, and sat down in the ¹entry of the new gate of the LORD's house.

11 Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes and to all the people, saying, ¹This man is worthy to ^adie; for he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your ears.

Micah and Urijah's Fate

17 ^aThen rose up certain of the elders of the land, and spake to all the assembly of the people, saying,

18 ^aMicah the Morasthite prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and spake to all the people of Judah, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^bZion shall be plowed like a field, and Jerusalem shall become ^cheaps,¹ and the mountain of ²the house as the ³high places of a forest.

20 And there was also a man that prophesied in the name of the LORD, Urijah the son of Shemaiah of Kirjath-jearim, who prophesied against this city and against this land according to all the words of Jeremiah:

26:7. The following verses through chapter 29 deal with Jeremiah's controversy with a corrupt officialdom and priesthood.

26:8. Jeremiah is accused of being a lying prophet who had not only spoken without divine authority but who functioned outside of the will of God.

These charges constituted a capital offense (Deut. 18:20-22). Only the protests of the people (v. 16) and the special interceding of important friends (v. 24) saved Jeremiah from death at this time. Another true prophet did feel the weight of the king's wrath (vv. 20-23).

21 And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death: but when Urijah heard it, he was afraid, and fled, and went into Egypt;

22 And Jehoiakim the king sent men into Egypt, namely, Elnathan the son of Achbor, and certain men with him into Egypt.

23 And they fetched forth Urijah out of Egypt, and brought him unto Jehoiakim the king; who slew him with the sword, and cast his dead body into the graves of the ¹common people.

24 Nevertheless ^athe hand of Ahikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah, that they should not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.

Jeremiah's Yokes and Bonds

27 In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah ^aking of Judah came this word unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD to me; Make thee bonds and yokes, ^aand put them upon thy neck,

3 And send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the Ammonites, and to the king of ¹Tyrus, and to the king of ²Zidon, by the hand of the messengers which come to Jerusalem unto Zedekiah king of Judah;

4 And command them to ¹say unto their masters, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Thus shall ye say unto your masters;

8 And it shall come to pass, that the nation and kingdom which will not serve the same Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and that will not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation will I punish, saith the LORD, with the sword, and with the famine, and with the pestilence, until I have consumed them by his hand.

9 Therefore hearken not ye to your prophets, nor to your diviners, nor to your ¹dreamers, nor to your ²enchanters, nor to your sorcerers, which speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon:

10 For they prophesy a ^alie unto you, to remove you far from your land; and that I should drive you out, and ye should perish.

11 But the nations that bring their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, those will I let remain still in their own land, saith the LORD; and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

A Message to Zedekiah

12 I spake also to ^aZedekiah king of Judah according to all these words, saying, Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live.

13 ^aWhy will ye die, thou and thy people, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, as the LORD hath spoken against the nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?

14 Therefore ^ahearken ¹not unto the words of the prophets that speak unto you, saying, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon: for they prophesy ^ba lie unto you.

26:24. Ahikam had a long record of faithful service at the highest levels. He had been a member of Josiah's delegation to the prophetess Huldah (2 Kin. 22:12).

His continued influence was to be felt through his son Gedaliah, who was appointed governor of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar at the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

15 For I have ^anot sent them, saith the LORD, yet they prophesy a lie in my name; that I might drive you out, and that ye might perish, ye, and the prophets that prophesy unto you.

16 Also I spake to the priests and to all this people, saying, Thus saith the LORD; ¹Hearken not to the words of your prophets that prophesy unto you, saying, Behold, ^athe vessels of the LORD's house shall now shortly be brought again from Babylon: for they prophesy a lie unto you.

17 ¹Hearken not unto them; serve the king of Babylon, and live: wherefore should this city be laid waste?

18 But if they be prophets, and if the word of the LORD be with them, let them now make intercession to the LORD of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of the LORD, and in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, go not to Babylon.

Hananiah's False Prophecy

28 And ^ait came to pass the same year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the ^bfourth year, and in the fifth month, that Hananiah the son of ^cAzur the prophet, which was of Gibeon, spake unto me in the house of the LORD, in the presence of the priests and of all the people, saying,

2 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, I have broken ^athe yoke of the king of Babylon.

3 ^aWithin two full years will I bring again into this place all the vessels of the LORD's house, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ^btook away from this place, and carried them to Babylon:

4 And I will bring again to this place ¹Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, with all the ²captives of Judah, that went into Babylon, saith the LORD: for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

The True Test of Prophecy

5 Then the prophet Jeremiah said unto the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the priests, and in the presence of all the people that stood in the house of the LORD,

6 Even the prophet Jeremiah said, ^aAmen: the LORD do so: the LORD perform thy words which thou hast prophesied, to bring again the vessels of the LORD's house, and all that is carried away captive, from Babylon into this place.

7 Nevertheless hear thou now this word that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people;

27:15–18. Jeremiah's life was often difficult. Not only did he have to deliver an awesome message that left a great burden on his own heart for the people he loved so greatly, but he also had to face the constant opposition of Judah's leadership and the false prophets (e.g., 23:9–40; 28:1–29:9). Here as elsewhere, Jeremiah had to confront these lying prophets and challenge them to produce the fulfillment of their prophecies. One of the tests of true prophecy, especially those that dealt with the near future, was its fulfillment (Deut. 18:21, 22). Other tests required that: (1) the prophecy be in harmony with prior elation (Deut. 13:1–3); (2) both the prophecy and the prophet show evidence of a high moral quality (cf. vv. 8–10 with 23:14–17, 29–40; Ezek. 13:10–16; Mic. 3:5, 8); and (3) the prophecy must sound a confirmative note in the hearts of true believers (cf. Deut. 18:15–19 with Jer. 23:29; Ezek. 2:3–7; John 7:17; 1 John 2:20).

28:5, 6. Jeremiah points out that, humanly speaking, he could wish that Hananiah's prophecy were true. Unfortunately, without repentance and renewed obedience to the terms of the covenant, Judah will know neither peace nor the return of the captured sacred vessels.

8 The prophets that have been before me and before thee of old prophesied both against many countries, and against great kingdoms, of war, and of evil, and of pestilence.

9 ^aThe prophet which prophesied of ^bpeace, when the word of the prophet shall come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, that the LORD hath truly sent him.

10 Then Hananiah the prophet took the ^ayoke from off the prophet Jeremiah's neck, and brake it.

11 And Hananiah spake in the presence of all the people, saying, Thus saith the LORD; Even so will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ^afrom the neck of all nations within the space of two full years. And the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

The Yokes of Iron

12 Then the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah the prophet, after that Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from off the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, saying, 13 Go and tell Hananiah, saying, Thus saith the LORD; Thou hast broken the yokes of wood; but thou ¹shalt make for them yokes of iron.

14 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; ^aI have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; and they shall serve him: and ^bI have given him the beasts of the field also.

The Death of Hananiah

15 Then said the prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the prophet, Hear now, Hananiah; The LORD hath not sent thee; but ^athou makest this people to trust in a ^blie.

16 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, I will cast thee from off the face of the earth: this year thou shalt ^adie, because thou hast taught ^brebellion against the LORD.

17 So Hananiah the prophet died the same year in the seventh month.

Jeremiah's Letter to the Exiles
29 Now these are the words of the letter that Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem unto the ¹residue of the elders which were ^acarried away captives, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon;

2 (After that ^aJeconiah¹ the king, and the ^bqueen,² and the ³eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jerusalem, and the carpenters, and the smiths, were departed from Jerusalem;)

3 By the hand of Elasah the son of ^aShaphan, and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah, (whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon) saying,

4 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, unto all that are carried away captives, whom I have caused to be carried away from Jerusalem unto Babylon;

5 Build ye houses, and dwell in them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them;

6 Take ye wives, and beget sons and daughters; and take wives for your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, that they may bear sons and daughters; that ye may be increased there, and not diminished.

7 And seek the peace of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, ^aand pray unto the LORD for it: for in the peace thereof shall ye have peace.

8 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Let not your prophets and your diviners, that be in the midst of you, ^adeceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cause to be dreamed.

9 For they prophesy ^afalsely unto you in my name: I have not sent them, saith the LORD.

and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to ^breturn to this place.

11 For I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the LORD, thoughts of peace, and not of ¹evil, to give you ²an expected end.

12 Then shall ye ^acall upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will ^bhearken¹ unto you.

13 And ^aye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me ^bwith all your heart.

14 And ^aI will be found of you, saith the LORD: and I will ¹turn away your captivity, and ^bI will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, saith the LORD; and I will bring you again into the place whence I caused you to be carried away captive.

The False Prophets in Babylon

15 Because ye have said, The LORD hath ¹raised us up prophets in Babylon;

16 ^aKnow that thus saith the LORD of the king that sitteth upon the throne of David, and of all the people that dwelleth in this city, and of your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity;

17 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Behold, I will send upon them the sword, the famine, and the pestilence, and will make them like ^avile¹ figs, that cannot be eaten, they are so ²evil.

18 And I will ¹persecute them with the sword, with the famine, and with the pestilence, and ^awill deliver them to ²be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be ^ba curse, and an astonishment, and an hissing, and a reproach, among all the nations whither I have driven them:

19 Because they have not hearkened to my words, saith the LORD, which ^aI sent unto them by my servants the prophets, rising up early and sending them; but ye would not hear, saith the LORD.

Ahab and Zedekiah's Fate

20 Hear ye therefore the word of the LORD, all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon:

21 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, of Ahab the son of Kolaiah, and of Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah, which prophesy a ^alie unto you in my name; Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon; and he shall slay them before your eyes;

22 ^aAnd of them shall be taken up a curse by all the captivity of Judah which are in Babylon, saying, The LORD make thee like Zedekiah and like Ahab, ^bwhom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire;

23 Because ^athey have ¹committed villany in Israel, and have committed adultery with their neighbours' wives, and have spoken lying words in my name, which I have not commanded them; even I ^bknow, and am a witness, saith the LORD.

The Rebuke of Shemaiah

24 Thus shalt thou also speak to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, saying,

25 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, Because thou hast sent letters in thy name unto all the people that are at Jerusalem, ^aand to Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying,

26 The LORD hath made thee priest in the stead of Jehoiada the priest, that ¹ye should be ^aofficers in the house of the LORD, ²for every man that is ^bmad,³ and ⁴maketh himself a prophet, that thou shouldst ^cput him in prison, and in the stocks.

27 Now therefore why hast thou not reproved Jeremiah of Anathoth, which maketh himself a prophet to you?

28 For therefore he sent unto us in Babylon, saying, This captivity is long; build ye houses, and dwell in them; and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them.

29 And Zephaniah the priest read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet.

30 Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

31 Send to all them of the captivity, saying, Thus saith the LORD concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite; Because that Shemaiah hath prophesied unto you, ^aand I sent him not, and he caused you to trust in a ^blie:

32 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, I will punish Shemaiah the Nehelamite, and his seed: he shall not have a man to dwell among this people; neither shall he behold the good that I will do for my people, saith the LORD; ^abecause he hath taught rebellion against the LORD.

The Promise of a Return to the Land

30 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

2 Thus speaketh the LORD God of Israel, saying, Write thee all the words that I have spoken unto thee in a book.

3 For, lo, the days come, saith the LORD, that ^aI will bring ¹again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith the LORD: ^band I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it.

9 But they shall serve the LORD their God, and ^aDavid their king, whom I will ^braise up unto them.

10 Therefore ^afear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the LORD; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed ^bfrom the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid.

11 For I am with ^athee, saith the LORD, to save thee: ^bthough I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, ^cyet will I not make a full end of thee: but I will correct thee ^din ¹measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished.

30:1–3. Chapters 30–33 contain messages of consolation for a troubled people. They will give hope to the righteous remnant of Judah. For the return from captivity, see the note on 23:3.

30:7. Before the future blessing promised to a repentant and righteous people, will come the time of Jacob's trouble. This refers to that great period of Israel's tribulation (Deut. 4:30; Is. 24–27; Dan. 12:1; Matt. 24:15–28; Rev. 12). That affliction in the end times will be associated with the great judgments involved in the day of the Lord. As a day of judgment, "the day of the LORD" is characterized by: (1) desolation and fear (Is. 13:6–16; Joel 1:15; 2:1); (2) darkness and gloom (Joel 2:2, 10; Zeph. 1:15); (3) earthly and celestial phenomena (Is. 13:9, 10, 13; Joel 2:30, 31; 3:14, 15; Amos 5:20; Zeph. 1:15; Zech. 14:1–7; 2 Pet.

3:10); (4) devastation and destruction (Obad. 15, 16; Zeph. 1:14–18; 1 Thess. 5:2ff.; 2 Pet. 3:10, 11); (5) wrath (Zeph. 1:14–18); (6) death (46:10; Is. 13:15, 16; Ezek. 30:2; Zeph. 1:17, 18; Zech. 14:1); and (7) unprecedented warfare (Rev. 16:14). However, when judgment has done its work, Israel shall be saved out of it. Hence, that "day" will also be characterized by: (1) salvation (Joel 2:20, 32; 3:17; Zech. 14:2, 3); (2) righteousness (2 Pet. 3:13); (3) peace and prosperity (Joel 3:18, 20; Zech. 14:8–10); (4) the return of the Messiah (Zech. 14:4–7); and (5) His worship and adoration (Zech. 14:16).

30:11. God is ever with His people even though He may have to chastise them (Heb. 12:5–8). He will not cast off the one who is truly His (Gen. 28:15; Deut. 31:6–8; Josh. 1:5–9; Heb. 13:5, 6).

13 There is none to plead thy cause, that thou mayest be bound up: ^athou hast no healing medicines.

14 All thy lovers have forgotten thee; they seek thee not; for I have wounded thee with the wound ^bof an enemy, with the chastisement ^cof a cruel one, for the multitude of thine iniquity; ^dbecause thy sins were increased.

15 Why ^acriest thou for thine affliction? thy sorrow is incurable for the multitude of thine iniquity: because thy sins were increased, I have done these things unto thee.

The Destruction of Israel's Enemies

16 Therefore all they that devour thee ^ashall be devoured; and all thine adversaries, every one of them, shall go into ^bcaptivity; and they that ¹spoil thee shall ²be a ^cspoil, and all that prey upon thee will I give for a ^dprey.

The Regathering of Israel

7 For thus saith the LORD; ^aSing with gladness for Jacob, and shout

30:21, 22. The coming governor ... from the midst of the restored people of Israel shall be, as the Jewish Targum suggests, the Messiah Himself. This verse makes clear that He will combine in Himself the roles of both priest and king (cf. Ezek. 34:20-24; 37:24-28; Heb. 7:26-8:2; 9:11-15). The phrase from the midst is reminiscent of the earlier promised prophet (Deut. 18:15-19). For being near to God, see the note on 23:23. For the promise that Israel will be my people, see Leviticus 26:12 and Hosea 2:23. For a similar application to the church, see 2 Corinthians 6:16.

31:1-3. God's everlasting love for His people is accompanied by infinite patience. For lovingkindness, see the notes on 1 Samuel 20:14-17 and Jeremiah 2:2.

31:4. For the term virgin of Israel, see the note on 18:13.

31:6. In addition to the natural sense (as here) of being those who were stationed on hilltops and walls, or in watchtowers, or were on duty in city or field, especially to warn of possible danger and give protection to the people, prophets were often called watchmen. See the note on 6:17.

31:7. The remnant here refers to a believing Israel in an eschatological setting (cf. 23:3; Is. 10:20-22; 11:11, 16; Rom. 11:5).

31:10. See the note on 23:4.

31:15. Matthew finds in Herod's killing of the infants (Matt. 2:16-18) an analogy with Jeremiah's depiction of Rahel weeping for those who had been lost at the fall of Samaria and those who would yet face a similar fate in the fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C.

31:18. A first step in repentance is confession of sin and a prayer for the Lord's effective enablement in the believer's life. True repentance involves the work of the whole person in recognizing and sorrowing over sin, and renouncing it so as to turn to God in full heart's devotion to His lordship (cf. Ps. 32; 51).

Man Shall Die for His Own Iniquity

27 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that ^aI will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man, and with the seed of beast.

28 And it shall come to pass, that like as I have ^awatched over them, ^bto pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict; so will I watch over them, ^cto build, and to plant, saith the LORD.

29 ^aIn those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge.

30 ^aBut every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge.

A New Covenant

31 Behold, the ^adays come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah:

31:31-34. The new covenant is the culmination of God's covenant-making with Israel. It may be viewed as a document of God's prophetic program and of His policies of administration. As an administrative document, it renders obsolete and succeeds the old Sinaitic covenant that served as the manual of procedure for carrying out the moral, civil, and ceremonial regulations relative to national Israel in the pre-Christian era (cf. Deut. 7:6-11; Heb. 8:7-13). Some features of the old covenant are carried over into the new covenant: (1) There is in the new covenant a stress on the importance of the unchangeable principles of God's law. However, these will now be written not on stone but in the hearts of God's people—they will become part of their inward code for living, and will conform in all respects to the moral

NEW COVENANT

31:31. In this prophecy Jeremiah foresees the new covenant (“testament”) that God will make with mankind by extending His grace to the Gentiles. Under this new covenant, God will call out a people for Himself from all the nations of the earth to form the bride of Christ (Rev. 21:1-9).

This new and unconditional covenant is better than the old covenant because it rests on the efficacy of Christ's atonement for the sins of mankind (Heb. 8:10-12). (First Reference, Jer. 31:31; Primary Reference, Luke 22:17-20; cf. Eph. 1:10.)

As a document of prophetic promise, like the Abrahamic and Davidic covenants, the new covenant is unconditional. In form, it corresponds to the Royal Grant Treaties of the ancient Near East. As to subject matter, by comparing Jeremiah 31:31-34 with the other formulations of the new covenant (e.g., 32:37-44; 33:14-26; Is. 55:1-3; 61:1-11; Ezek. 34:22-31; 36:22-38; 37:21, 28), it may be seen that the new covenant assimilates the elements of the promises made to Abraham and channeled with progressive light through David (see the note at 2 Sam. 7:12-16), and brings them to full realization.

Thus, the final blessing of Abraham's seed will find fruition in Israel's possession of the Promised Land in perpetuity under the rulership of Christ, the Greater Son of David, the Seed par excellence (cf. 33:26; Ezek. 37:25-27; Mic. 7:19, 20 with Luke 1:68-78; Acts 3:25, 26; Rev. 11:15).

Further, by faith in Christ, Gentile believers also become the spiritual seed of Abraham and members of the family of God (cf. Is. 45:22-25; Rom. 4:18-25; Gal. 3:26-29; Eph. 2:1-3:6; Titus 2:11-14; 1 Pet. 2:9, 10). Although the new covenant is now operative (Matt. 26:27, 28; 2 Cor. 3:6; Heb. 8:6-13) and is attended by the ministry of the Holy Spirit who is resident in believers' lives (Acts 2:14-37; Rom. 8:23; 2 Cor. 1:20-22; 5:1-5; Eph. 1:13, 14; 1 Thess. 5:19), the full realization of the new covenant, as the capstone of all the covenants, awaits the second coming of Christ. He will give to Israel the promises distinctive to that nation, and will rule over the earth in an unprecedented period of universal peace (Is. 2:4; Ezek. 34:25; 37:26), prosperity (Is. 61:7, 8; Ezek. 34:26, 27), and the full knowledge (v. 34) of the abiding presence of God (Ezek. 48:35; Joel 3:21).

32 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that^a I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the LORD:

33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, ^bI will put my law in their ¹inward parts, and write it in their hearts; ^cand will be their God, and they shall be my people.

34 And they shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the LORD: for ^athey shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the LORD: for ^bI will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.

The City Shall Be Built

35 Thus saith the LORD, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which ¹divideth ^bthe sea ²when the waves thereof roar; ^cThe LORD of hosts is his name:

36 If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the LORD, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever.

Jeremiah Is Imprisoned by Zedekiah

2 For then the king of Babylon's army besieged Jerusalem: and Jeremiah the prophet was ¹shut up ^ain the court of the prison, which was in the king of Judah's house.

3 For Zedekiah king of Judah had shut him up, saying, Wherefore dost thou ^aprophesy, and say, Thus saith the LORD, ^bBehold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it;

4 And Zedekiah king of Judah law of the Scriptures. Accordingly, the ideal that the old covenant called for (cf. Deut. 6:6; 10:16; 30:6) in external commandments will be internalized under the terms of the new covenant. (2) With the establishment of the covenant at Sinai, Israel had become nationally God's people (Ex. 6:6, 7; 19:5, 6). As such, they were to be a faithful and obedient people, reflecting His standards in their lives (Deut. 14:1, 2; 26:16-19). In a far greater way, the intimacy of the believer with God makes the realization of God's relation to His people under the terms of the new covenant to be a full and living experience. Moreover, not just Israelites but all believers (those who know God, v. 34) are now called under the new covenant my people. (See 2 Cor. 6:16; Gal. 3:6-9, 15-18, 26-29; Titus 2:14.) These features of vital inwardness and a universality of the knowledge of God stand out as the two great distinctive elements in the new covenant. (3) A third feature that represents continuity with the old covenant, yet superiority under the new covenant, is the matter of forgiveness. Although God is said to forgive their iniquity under the administration of the Sinaitic covenant (Ex. 34:6, 7; Num. 14:18; Deut. 5:9, 10; cf. Ps. 86:15; Joel 2:13), in the stipulations of the new covenant, God will remember their sin no more. This feature is a reminder that men in Old Testament times were saved in anticipation of the finished work of Calvary. Under the old economy, believers approached God in their worship experience through human mediators (Ex. 20:19); but with the completed redemption by Christ, the members of the family of God now have direct access to God (cf. 1 Tim. 2:5, 6; Titus 2:11-14; 3:5-7; Heb. 9:1-10:22). Where full forgiveness has been granted, there is no more remembrance of sin. Positionally and experientially, with the living reality of both God's law in the heart and the indwelling Christ (Col. 1:20-27) in the believer, there is not only full and continuous forgiveness of sin (1 John 1:8, 9), but full provision for faithful and victorious living.

Jeremiah Buys Property in Anathoth

6 And Jeremiah said, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

7 Behold, Hanameel the son of Shallum thine uncle shall come unto thee, saying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth: for the ^aright of redemption is thine to buy it.

8 So Hanameel mine uncle's son came to me in the court of the prison according to the word of the LORD, and said unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin: for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine; buy it for thyself. Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD.

9 And I bought the field of Hanameel my uncle's son, that was in Anathoth, and ^aweighed him the money, even seventeen shekels of silver.

10 And I ¹subscribed the evidence, and sealed it, and took witnesses, and weighed him the money in the balances.

The Ways of Men

20 Which hast set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Israel, and among other men; and hast made thee ^aa name, as at this day;

32:8-15. Apparently Jeremiah was the nearest living relative of his nephew, hence the right of redemption was his (cf. Lev. 25:24 and see the note at Ruth 3:9). Jeremiah's unselfish act at a time (588 B.C.) when Jerusalem's fall seemed imminent constituted a symbolic action. It demonstrated the certainty of his prophecies concerning Israel's return to the land and eventual possession of it forever. Jeremiah had performed other symbolic actions (13:1-11; 18:1-6; 27:1-14; 28:10-13; cf. 43:8-13), but this one is perhaps his greatest display of faith. The prophets were often called upon to dramatize God's purposes (see, for example, Is. 20:2-4; Ezek. 4, 5; 12:3-20; 21:6, 7; 24:15-27; Hos. 1, 3; Zech. 6:9-15). The entire transaction was in a strictly legal manner. Similar documents recovered from the Jewish community at Elephantine on Egypt's Nile River illustrate the accuracy and care with which such transactions were made.

21 And ^ahast brought forth thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs, and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with great terror;

22 And hast given them this land, which thou didst swear to their fathers to give them, ^aa land flowing with milk and honey;

23 And they came in, and possessed it; but ^athey obeyed not thy voice, neither walked in thy law; they have done nothing of all that thou commandedst them to do: therefore thou hast caused all this ¹evil to come upon them:

24 Behold the ¹mounds, they are come unto the city to take it; and the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans, that fight against it, because of ^athe sword, and of the famine, and of the pestilence: and what thou hast spoken is come to pass; and, behold, thou seest it.

25 And thou hast said unto me, O Lord GOD, Buy thee the field for money, and take witnesses; for the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.

26 Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying,

27 Behold, I am the LORD, the ^aGod of all flesh: is there any thing too hard for me?

28 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of ¹Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it:

29 And the Chaldeans, that fight against this city, shall come and ^aset fire on this city, and burn it with the houses, ^bupon whose roofs they have offered incense unto Baal, and poured out drink offerings unto other gods, to provoke me to anger.

23 Moreover the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, saying,

24 Considerest thou not what this people have spoken, saying, The two families which the LORD hath chosen, he hath even cast them off? thus they have ^adespised my people, that they should be no more a nation before them.

Warning of the Coming Captivity

34 The word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, ^awhen Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and all his army, and ^ball the kingdoms of the earth of his dominion, and all the people, fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities thereof, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; Go and ^aspeak to Zedekiah king of Judah, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD; Behold, ^bI will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire:

3 And ^athou shalt not escape out of his hand, but shalt surely be taken, and delivered into his hand; and thine eyes shall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and he shall speak with thee ^bmouth ¹to mouth, and thou shalt go to Babylon.

4 Yet hear the word of the LORD,

33:14-17. The provisions in the Davidic covenant remain in force as they are incorporated into the new covenant. (See the notes on 23:4, 5; 31:31-34; 2 Sam. 7:12-16.) For the title, The LORD our righteousness, see the note on 23:6. For the relationship of the Abrahamic, the Davidic, and the new covenants, see the notes on 31:31-34 and 2 Samuel 7:12-16.

O Zedekiah king of Judah; Thus saith the LORD of thee, Thou shalt not die by the sword:

5 But thou shalt die in peace: and with ^athe ¹burnings of thy fathers, the former kings which were before thee, ^bso shall they burn ²odours for thee; and ^cthey will lament thee, saying, Ah lord! for I have pronounced the word, saith the LORD.

6 Then Jeremiah the prophet spake all these words unto Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem,

7 When the king of Babylon's army fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left, against Lachish, and against Azekah: for ^athese ¹defenced cities remained of the cities of Judah.

Freedom Ordered for the Hebrew Slaves

8 This is the word that came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, after that the king Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people which were at Jerusalem, to proclaim ^aliberty unto them;

9 ^aThat every man should ¹let his manservant, and every man his maidservant, being an Hebrew or an Hebrewess, go free; ^bthat none should ²serve himself of them, to wit, of a Jew his brother.

10 Now when all the princes, and all the people, which had entered into the covenant, heard that every one should let his manservant, and every one his maidservant, go free, that none should ¹serve themselves of them any more, then they obeyed, and let them go.

11 But afterward they ¹turned, and caused the servants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into subjection for servants and for handmaids.

God Reminds Israel of Its Covenant

12 Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,

13 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; I made a ^acovenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondmen, saying, 14 At the end of ^aseven years let ye go every man his ¹brother an Hebrew, which hath ²been sold unto thee; and when he hath served thee six years, thou shalt let him go free from thee: but your fathers ³hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear.

15 And ¹ye were now turned, and ²had done right in my sight, in proclaiming liberty every man to his neighbour; and ye had ^amade a covenant before me ^bin the house which is called by my name:

16 But ye ¹turned and ^apolluted² my name, and caused every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom he had set at liberty at their pleasure, to return, and brought them into subjection, to be unto you for servants and for handmaids.

The Covenant Breakers' Fate

17 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour: ^abehold, I proclaim a liberty for you, saith the LORD, ^bto the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will ¹make you to be ^cremoved into all the kingdoms of the earth.

Twenty-one ostraca (inscribed bits of pottery) have been recovered from the fortress at Lachish, 25 miles southwest of Jerusalem, and furnish supplemental details of the conditions described here. Ostrakon IV reports the following situation at Lachish shortly before its fall: "And he [Ya'ush] would know, concerning the beacons of Lachish, that we are watching, according to the instructions that my lord has given, for we do not see [the signals of] Azekah!"

34:8, 9. The Hebrew laws concerning slavery and the liberation of slaves (Ex. 21:1-11; Lev. 25:39-55; Deut. 15:1, 12-18) had apparently not been kept in force. Zedekiah's proclamation went beyond freeing slaves after six years' service and gave liberty to all. However, unless people enter into the freedom that the truth supplies (cf. John 8:32-36), there can be no liberty. Hence, the liberated slaves were quickly reenslaved (v. 11).

22 ^aBehold, I will command, saith the LORD, and cause them to return to this city; and they shall fight against it, ^band take it, and burn it with fire: and ^cI will make the cities of Judah a desolation without an inhabitant.

Jeremiah to Record the Words of the Lord

The Reading of the Book

4 Then Jeremiah ^acalled Baruch the son of Neriah: and ^bBaruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD, which he had spoken unto him, upon a ¹roll of a book.

5 And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, I am ¹shut up; I cannot go into ²the house of the LORD:

6 Therefore go thou, and read ¹in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the LORD in the ears of the people in the 36:4. Baruch was Jeremiah's scribe. This verse indicates that he had a large part in recording Jeremiah's prophecies (cf. 45:1). Baruch remained faithful to the Lord and Jeremiah, and was rewarded by being spared during the fall of Jerusalem (45:5). He subsequently accompanied Jeremiah into Egypt where he disappears from the canonical record. Doubtless because of his long association with Jeremiah, several ancient books, whose true authors are unknown, bear his name.

36:4 Baruch was the son of Neriah (45:1) and brother of Seraiah, King Zedekiah's quartermaster (51:59). He was the devoted friend (32:12), the amanuensis (secretary) (vv. 4, 32), and faithful attendant (v. 10) of the prophet Jeremiah. He seems to have been of noble family (51:59). He was apparently aware that he might have risen to a high position, but under Jeremiah's influence (45:5) he repressed his ambition, contented to follow the great prophet. Jeremiah dictated his prophecies to Baruch, who read them to the people (ch. 36). The king (Jehoiakim) was greatly angered at hearing these, and had Baruch arrested and the scroll burned. Baruch was taken with Jeremiah to Egypt (43:6). A bulla (clay seal) bearing the name of Baruch son of Neriah (Berek yahu ben Neriyahu) was found in 1975 bearing the very seal of Jeremiah's scribe.

LORD's house upon ^athe fasting day: and also thou shalt read them in the ears of all Judah that come out of their cities.

7 It may be they will present their supplication before the LORD, and will ¹return every one from his evil way: for great is the anger and the fury that the LORD hath pronounced against this people.

8 And Baruch the son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

9 And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, that they proclaimed a fast before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem.

10 Then read Baruch in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the ¹higher court, at the ^aentry² of the new gate of the LORD's house, in the ³ears of all the people.

The Book Read to the Princes

11 When Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, had heard out of the book all the words of the LORD,

12 Then he went down into the king's house, into the scribe's chamber: and, lo, all the princes sat there, even ^aElishama the scribe, and Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, and ^bEl-nathan the son of Achbor, and Gemariah the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes.

13 Then Michaiah declared unto 14 Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, Take in thine hand the ¹roll wherein thou hast read in the ²ears of the people, and come. So Baruch the son of Neriah took the ¹roll in his hand, and came unto them.

15 And they said unto him, Sit down now, and read it in our ears. So Baruch read it in their ears.

The Princes Go to the King

16 Now it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, they ¹were afraid both one and other, and said unto Baruch, We will surely tell the king of all these words.

17 And they asked Baruch, saying, Tell us now, How didst thou write all these words ¹at his mouth?

18 Then Baruch answered them, He pronounced all these words unto me with his mouth, and I wrote them with ink in the book.

19 Then said the princes unto Baruch, Go, hide thee, thou and Jeremiah; and let no man know where ye be.

20 And they went in to the king into the court, but they ¹laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the ²ears of the king.

The King Burns the Scroll

21 So the king sent Jehudi to ¹fetch the roll: and he took it out of Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes which stood beside the king.

22 Now the king sat in ^athe

36:21-23. Unlike the godly Josiah who repented at the hearing of the Lord's message on a scroll (2 Kin. 22:10, 11), the godless Jehoiakim destroyed the roll. However, the message was rewritten with additional prophecies. The extent of the material in the earlier scroll is not known. Jehoiakim's action and Jeremiah's dictation of his message again may have had something to do with the final arrangement of Jeremiah's prophecies.

24 Yet they were ^anot afraid, nor ^brent¹ their garments, neither the king, nor any of his servants that heard all these words.

25 Nevertheless Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah had made intercession to the king that he would not burn the ¹roll: but he would not ²hear them.

26 But the king commanded Jerahmeel the son of ¹Hammelech, and Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, to take Baruch the scribe and Jeremiah the prophet: but the LORD hid them.

Baruch Rewrites the Scroll

27 Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after that the king had burned the ¹roll, and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah, saying, 28 Take thee again another ¹roll, and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll, which Jehoiakim the king of Judah hath burned.

29 And thou shalt say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, Thus saith the LORD; Thou hast burned this ¹roll, saying, "Why hast thou written therein, saying, The king of Babylon shall certainly come and destroy this land, and shall cause to ^bcease from thence man and beast?"

PRESERVATION OF SCRIPTURE

36:27. God, who inspired the Scripture, has throughout the years protected His Word from the attacks of evil men so as to preserve its content and existence. While the autographs (the original manuscripts) have long since disappeared, ancient copies and quotations from early Christian leaders demonstrate the preservation of Scripture. If there were no manuscripts, a complete copy of the Scriptures could be reproduced simply from the many quotations found in the writings of the church fathers. Illustration: God's preservation of Scriptures was demonstrated in the ministry of Jeremiah. When the king destroyed the first scroll of his prophecy, God had it reproduced to ensure its preservation (v. 27). Application: As we read the Scriptures, the fact that God has preserved them for us over the years should emphasize their importance. (First Reference, Jer. 30:2; Primary Reference, Jer. 36:27-32; cf. 2 Chr. 33:19.)

the Chaldeans that besieged Jerusalem heard ¹tidings of them, they departed from Jerusalem.

Egypt Will Return to Its Own Land

6 Then came the word of the LORD unto the prophet Jeremiah, saying,

7 Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; Thus shall ye say to the king of Judah, ^athat sent you unto me to enquire of me; Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to help you, shall return to Egypt into their own land.

The Chaldeans Will Return

8 ^aAnd the Chaldeans shall come again, and fight against this city, and take it, and burn it with fire.

9 Thus saith the LORD; Deceive not yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans shall surely depart from us: for they shall not depart.

10 ^aFor though ye had ¹smitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight against you, and there remained but wounded men among them, yet should they rise up every man in his tent, and burn this city with fire.

Jeremiah Is Imprisoned

11 And it came to pass, that when the army of the Chaldeans ¹was broken up from Jerusalem for fear of Pharaoh's army, 12 Then Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, to ¹separate himself thence in the midst of the people.

13 And when he was in the gate of Benjamin, a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he ¹took Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Thou ²fallest away to the Chaldeans.

14 Then said Jeremiah, It is ¹false; I ²fall not away to the Chaldeans. But he ³hearkened not to him: so Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes.

Zedekiah Seeks a Word from the Lord

17 Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took him out: and the king asked him secretly in his house, and said, Is there any word from the LORD? And Jeremiah said, There is: for, said he, thou shalt be ^adelivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.

Jeremiah's Supplication

18 Moreover Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, What have I offended against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have put me in prison?

19 Where are now your prophets which prophesied unto you, saying, The king of Babylon shall not come against you, nor against this land?

20 Therefore hear now, I pray thee, O my lord the king: let my ¹supplication, I pray thee, be accepted before thee; that thou cause me not to return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.

21 Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they should commit Jeremiah ^ainto the court of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread out of the bakers' street, ^buntil all the bread in the city ¹were spent. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

God's Message to Jerusalem

38 Then Shephatiah the son of Mattan, and Gedaliah the son of Pashur, and ^aJucal¹ the son of Shelemiah, and ^bPashur the son of Malchiah, ^cheard the words that Jeremiah had spoken unto all the people, saying, 37:5. Help from the Egyptian forces probably came as a result of a request from Zedekiah (cf. Ezek. 17:11-21). The Egyptian Pharaoh was Apries (588-568 B.C.). Hope for permanent help from this Pharaoh was foolish, for he had political difficulties that led to his overthrow.

37:15. Cisterns or abandoned wells were frequently used as places of imprisonment or for the disposal of slain bodies in the ancient Near East (cf. 38:6, 13; 41:9; Gen. 37:24).

2 Thus saith the LORD, ^aHe that remaineth in this city shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live; for he shall have his life ¹for a prey, and shall live.

3 Thus saith the LORD, ^aThis city shall surely be ^bgiven into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, which shall take it.

Jeremiah's Death Requested

4 Therefore the princes said unto the king, We beseech thee, ^alet this man be put to death: for thus he ¹weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking such words unto them: for this man seeketh not the ²welfare of this people, but the ³hurt.

5 Then Zedekiah the king said, Behold, he is in your hand: for the king is not he that can do any thing against you.

6 ^aThen took they Jeremiah, and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah the son of ¹Hammelech, that was in the court of the prison: and they let down Jeremiah with ²cords. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire: so Jeremiah sunk in the mire.

Ebed-melech's Plea for Jeremiah's Life

7 ^aNow when Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, one of the ¹eunuchs which was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon; the king then sitting in the gate of Benjamin;

The King's Command

10 Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying, Take from hence thirty men with thee, and ¹take up Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die.

11 So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took thence old ¹cast clouts and old rotten rags, and let them down by ²cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah.

12 And Ebed-melech the Ethiopian said unto Jeremiah, Put now these old ¹cast clouts and rotten rags under thine ²armholes under the ³cords. And Jeremiah did so.

13 So they drew up Jeremiah with ¹cords, and took him up out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained ^ain the court of the prison.

14 Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into the third entry that is in ¹the house of the LORD: and the king said unto Jeremiah, I will ^aask thee a thing; hide nothing from me.

Jeremiah Bargains for His Life

15 Then Jeremiah said unto Zedekiah, If I declare it unto thee, wilt thou not surely put me to death? and if I give thee counsel, ¹wilt thou not hearken unto me?

16 So Zedekiah the king sware secretly unto Jeremiah, saying, As the LORD liveth, ^athat made ¹us this soul, I will not put thee to death, neither will I give thee into the hand of these men that seek thy life.

17 Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, Thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; If thou wilt assuredly ^ago ¹forth ^bunto the king of Babylon's princes, then thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burned with fire; and thou shalt live, and thine house:

18 But if thou wilt not ¹go forth to the king of Babylon's princes, then shall this city be given into the hand

38:8. Ebed-melech's concern for the Lord and His prophet was duly rewarded at the time of Jerusalem's fall (39:16-18). In this dramatic account, the Ethiopian came to the rescue of the prophet, whereas in Acts 8:26-39 the prophet Philip brought salvation and deliverance to the Ethiopian official.

of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and ^athou shalt not escape out of their hand.

19 And Zedekiah the king said unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews that ¹are ^afallen to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they ^bmock² me.

20 But Jeremiah said, They shall not deliver thee. Obey, I beseech thee, the voice of the LORD, which I speak unto thee: so it shall be ^awell unto thee, and thy soul shall live.

The Fate of the King's Family

21 But if thou refuse to go forth, this is the word that the LORD hath shewed me:

22 And, behold, all the ^awomen that are left in the king of Judah's house shall be ¹brought forth to the king of Babylon's princes, and those women shall say, ²Thy friends have ³set thee on, and have prevailed against thee: thy feet are sunk in the mire, and they ⁴are turned away back.

23 So they shall ¹bring out all thy wives and ^athy children to the Chaldeans: and ^bthou shalt not escape out of their hand, but shalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon: and thou shalt cause this city to be burned with fire.

Jeremiah and Zedekiah's Bargain

24 Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, Let no man know of these words, and thou shalt not die.

25 But if the princes hear that I have talked with thee, and they come unto thee, and say unto thee, Declare unto us now what thou hast said unto the king, hide it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; also what the king said unto thee:

28 So ^aJeremiah abode in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken: and he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

Jerusalem's Fall

39 In the ^aninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and all his army against Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

2 And in the ^aeleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, the city was ¹broken up.

3 ^aAnd all the princes of the king of Babylon came in, and sat in the middle gate, even Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim, Rab-saris, Nergal-sharezer, Rab-mag, with all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon.

Zedekiah's Flight and Capture

4 ^aAnd it came to pass, that when Zedekiah the king of Judah saw them, and all the men of war, then they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate ¹betwixt the two walls: and he went out the way of ²the plain.

39:3. The names given here are those of various Babylonian officials. They apparently include: Nergal-sharezer, the governor of the district of Samgar-nebo (or Sinmagir); Nebushazban, the Rab-saris (see the note on 2 Kin. 18:17); another Nergal-sharezer; plus the Rab-mag (high military official). The first Nergal-sharezer was probably the brother-in-law of Nebuchadnezzar's son Amel-marduk (562–560 B.C.), who subsequently became king in 559 B.C.

39:1 Jerusalem. The destruction of Jerusalem has been verified by excavations of the city of David (1982–present) which have now uncovered the destroyed remains of the Judean royal palace identified by Eliat Mazar. Several details in chapter 39 are paralleled in other accounts of Jerusalem's fall. Thus, for the siege of Jerusalem, the breaching of its walls, and Zedekiah's flight (vv. 1–7), see 52:4–11 and 2 Kings 25:1–7. For the looting of the city and the capture of its citizens (vv. 8–10), see 52:12–23; 2 Kings 25:8–17; 2 Chronicles 36:18, 19.

5 But the Chaldeans' army pursued after them, and ^aovertook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to ^bRiblah in the land of Hamath, where he ¹gave judgment upon him.

The Death of Zedekiah's Sons

6 Then the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his ^aeyes: also the king of Babylon slew all the ^bnobles of Judah.

7 Moreover ^ahe ¹put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him with ²chains, to carry him to Babylon.

8 ^aAnd the Chaldeans burned the king's house, and the houses of the people, with ^bfire, and brake down the ^cwalls of Jerusalem.

9 ^aThen Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive into Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that ^bfell¹ to him, with the rest of the people that remained.

10 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left ¹of the ^apoor of the people, which had nothing, in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and fields ²at the same time.

The Kind Treatment of Jeremiah

11 Now Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon gave charge concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, saying, 12 Take him, and ¹look well to him, and do him no ^aharm; but do unto him ²even as he shall say unto thee.

13 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard sent, and Nebushasban, Rab-saris, and Nergal-sharezer, Rabmag, and all the king of Babylon's ¹princes;

Ebed-melech's Loyalty Rewarded

15 Now the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying,

16 Go and speak to ^aEbed-melech the Ethiopian, saying, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, ^bI will bring my words upon this city for ¹evil, and not for good; and they shall be ^{accomplished} in that day before thee.

17 But I will deliver thee in that day, saith the LORD: and thou shalt not be given into the hand of the men of whom thou ^{art} afraid.

18 For I will surely deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword, but ^athy life shall be ¹for a prey unto thee: ^bbecause thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the LORD.

Jeremiah Is Given His Freedom

40 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, ^aafter that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him being bound in chains among all that were carried away captive of Jerusalem and Judah, which were carried away captive unto Babylon.

2 And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah, and ^asaid unto him, The LORD thy God hath pronounced this ¹evil upon this place.

3 Now the LORD hath brought ^{it}, and done according as he hath said: ^abecause ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this thing is come upon you.

4 And now, behold, I loose thee

39:11–14. News of Jeremiah's messages advising Judah and Jerusalem to submit to Babylon were doubtless well known to Nebuchadnezzar (Nebuchadnezzar) and his forces (cf. 40:1–4). The Lachish Letters (see the note on 34:7) mention the presence of a prophet who appeared to voice a pro-Babylonian sentiment: "And behold: the words of the [prophet] are not good; they reduce morale; they sap the strength of the country and the city." Another ostracoon also mentions a letter sent by "the prophet": "As for the letter which Tobiyahu, the King's servant, took to Shallum, son of Yaddua, from the prophet, saying, 'Beware!': your slave has sent it to my lord." The sparing of Jeremiah and Ebed-melech (vv. 11–18) is not recorded in the parallel accounts of Jerusalem's fall.

this day from the chains which ¹were upon thine hand. ^aIf it seem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come; and I will ²look well unto thee: but if it seem ill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, ³forbear: behold, ^ball the land is before thee: whither it seemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go.

5 Now while he was not yet gone back, he said, Go back also to ^aGedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, ^bwhom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people: or go wheresoever it seemeth convenient unto thee to go. So the captain of the guard gave him ¹victuals and a ²reward, and let him go.

6 ^aThen went Jeremiah unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to ^bMizpah; and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land.

Gedaliah's Leadership

7 ^aNow when all the captains of the ¹forces which were in the fields, even they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed unto him men, and women, and children, and of ^bthe ²poor of the land, of them that were not carried away captive to Babylon;

8 Then they came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, ^aeven Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and ^bJohanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and ^cJezaniah ¹the son of a ^aMaachathite, they and their men.

10 As for me, behold, I will dwell at Mizpah, to serve the Chaldeans, which will come unto us: but ye, gather ye wine, and summer fruits, and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that ye have taken.

11 Likewise when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan;

12 Even all the Jews ^areturned out of all places whither they were driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah, unto Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits ¹very much.

Johanan's Warning

13 Moreover Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah,

14 And said unto him, ¹Dost thou certainly know that ^aBaalis the king of the Ammonites hath sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah to ²slay thee? But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not.

15 Then Johanan the son of Kareah spake to Gedaliah in Mizpah secretly, saying, Let me go, I pray thee, and I will ¹slay Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no man shall know it: wherefore should he ²slay thee, that all the Jews which are gathered unto thee should be scattered, and the ^aremnant in Judah perish?

16 But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said unto Johanan the son of Kareah, Thou shalt not do this thing: for thou speakest falsely of Ishmael.

40:6. Gedaliah was the son of the godly Ahikam (cf. 26:24; 2 Kin. 22:12-14), son of Shaphan, Josiah's scribe (2 Kin. 22:8). The son of a family with a rich history of faithful participation in governmental service, Gedaliah may have had considerable experience that qualified him for the important post of being Babylon's district governor. Some have suggested that he may be identified with the Gedaliah mentioned on a seal impression found at Lachish: "Belonging to Gedaliah, who is over the house" (i.e., the royal minister).

40:14. The Ammonites were perennial enemies of the Hebrews. Some have suggested that the king, Balay, named on the "Siran Bottle" artifact, is to be identified with the Baalis mentioned here.

Gedaliah Is Slain by Ishmael

41 Now it came to pass in the seventh month, ^athat Ishmael the son of Nethaniah the son of Elishama, of the ¹seed royal, and the ²princes of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to ^bMizpah; and there they did eat bread together in Mizpah.

2 Then arose Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, and ^asmote¹ Gedaliah the son of ^bAhikam the son of Shaphan with the sword, and ²slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made ^cgovernor over the land.

3 Ishmael also ¹slew all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedaliah, at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the men of war.

4 And it came to pass the second day after he had slain Gedaliah, and no man knew it,

5 That there came certain from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, even fourscore men, ^ahaving their beards shaven, and their clothes ¹rent, and having cut themselves, with offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to ^bthe house of the LORD.

6 And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, weeping ¹all along as he went: and it came to pass, as he met them, he said unto them, Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam.

7 And it was so, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah ^aslew¹ them, and cast them into the midst of the pit, he, and the men that were with him.

8 But ten men were found among them that said unto Ishmael, ¹Slay us not: for we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey. So he ²forbare, and slew them not among their brethren.

10 Then Ishmael carried away captive all the ^aresidue¹ of the people that were in Mizpah, ^b*even* the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpah, ^cwhom Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam: and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive, and departed to go over to ^dthe Ammonites.

Johanan Frees the Captives

11 But when ^aJohanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, 12 Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by ^athe great ¹waters that are in Gibeon.

13 Now it came to pass, that when all the people which were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad.

14 So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah ¹cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah.

15 But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

16 Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the ^aremnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, 41:9, 10. See the note on 37:15. The cistern mentioned here had been made in the days of King Asa during the political crisis with Baasha of Israel (1 Kin.

and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought again from Gibeon:

17 And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of ^aChimham, which is by Beth-lehem, to go to enter into ^bEgypt, 18 Because of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had ¹slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, ^awhom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

A Promise to Obey the Lord

42 Then all the captains of the forces, ^aand Johanan the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least even unto the greatest, came near,

2 And said unto Jeremiah the prophet, Let, we ^abeseech thee, our supplication be accepted before thee, and ^bpray for us unto the LORD thy God, even for all this remnant; (for we are left but ^aa few of many, as ¹thine eyes do behold us:)

3 That the LORD thy God may shew us ^athe way wherein we ¹may walk, and the thing that we ¹may do.

4 Then Jeremiah the prophet said unto them, I have heard you; behold, I will pray unto the LORD your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass, that ^awhatsoever thing the LORD shall answer you, I will declare it unto you; I will ^bkeep nothing back from you.

5 Then they said to Jeremiah, ^aThe LORD be a true and faithful witness between us, if we do not even according to all things for the which the LORD thy God shall send thee to us.

6 Whether it be ¹good, or whether it be ²evil, we will ^aobey the voice of the LORD our God, to whom we send thee; ^bthat it may be well with us, when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.

Mercy If the Remnant Stays in the Land

7 And it came to pass after ten days, that the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah.

8 Then called he Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people from the least even to the greatest,

9 And said unto them, Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, unto whom ye sent me to present your ¹supplication before him;

10 If ye will still abide in this land, then ^awill I build you, and not pull you down, and I will plant you, and not pluck you up: for I ^brepent¹ me of the evil that I have ²done unto you.

11 Be not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid; be not afraid of him, saith the LORD: ^afor I am with you to save you, and to deliver you from his hand.

12 And ^aI will shew mercies unto you, that he may have mercy upon you, and cause you to return to your own land.

Death If Egypt Is Entered

13 But if ^aye say, We will not dwell in this land, ¹neither obey the voice of the LORD your God,

14 Saying, No; but we will go into the land of ^aEgypt, where we shall see no war, nor hear the sound of the trumpet, nor have hunger ¹of bread; and there will we dwell:

15 And now therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye remnant of Judah; Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; If ye ^awholly¹ set ^byour faces to enter into Egypt, and go to sojourn there;

16 Then it shall come to pass, that the ^asword, which ye feared, shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine, whereof ye were afraid, shall follow ¹close after you there in Egypt; and there ye shall die.

42:5, 6. Although the Jewish refugees promised to obey God's will, the Lord's message (vv. 7-22) conflicted with their plans (42:19-43:3). Far too often professing believers ask to hear only what pleases them

(cf. 2 Tim. 4:3, 4) and so pray on erroneous grounds (James 4:3), expecting God merely to validate desires that are theirs, not His.

17 So shall it be with all the men that set their faces to go into Egypt to sojourn there; they shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: and ^anone of them shall remain or escape from the evil that I will bring upon them.

18 For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; As mine anger and my fury hath been ^apoured forth upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem; so shall my fury be poured forth upon you, when ye shall enter into Egypt: and ^bye shall be an ¹execration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach; and ye shall see this place no more.

Jeremiah Rebukes the Remnant

19 The LORD hath said concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah; ^aGo ye not into Egypt: know certainly that I have ¹admonished you this day.

20 For ye ¹dissembled in your hearts, when ye sent me unto the LORD your God, saying, Pray for us unto the LORD our God; and according unto all that the LORD our God shall say, so declare unto us, and we will do it.

21 And now I have this day declared it to you; but ye have ^anot obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, nor any thing for the which he hath sent me unto you.

22 Now therefore know certainly that ^aye shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence, in the place whither ye desire to go and to sojourn.

Refusal to Heed the Warning

3 But ^aBaruch the son of Neriah ¹setteth thee on against us, for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they might put us to death, and carry us away captives into Babylon.

4 So Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, obeyed ^anot the voice of the LORD, to ¹dwell in the land of Judah.

5 But Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took ^aall the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations, whither they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah;

43:9. Tahpanhes, a frontier town in the eastern delta area, was the location of a state building or governor's residence used by the Pharaoh on his visits. A paved area in front of the entrance to the official building, discovered by Sir Flinders Petrie, may have been the scene of the activities described here.

43:10, 11. This prophecy was once cited by critics as an example of unfulfilled prophecies in the Bible. However, a text found in the British Museum indicates that Nebuchadnezzar did actually invade Egypt (668–667 B.C.) during the reign of Pharaoh Amasis of Egypt's Twenty-sixth Dynasty (568–525 B.C.).

wickedness, to burn no incense unto other gods.

6 Wherefore my fury and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they ¹are wasted and desolate, as at this day.

7 Therefore now thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; Wherefore commit ye this great evil ^aagainst your souls, to cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, out of Judah, to leave you none to remain;

8 In that ye ^aprovoke me unto wrath with the works of your hands, burning incense unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye be gone to dwell, that ye might cut yourselves off, and that ye might be ^ba curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth?

9 Have ye forgotten the wickedness of your fathers, and the wickedness of the kings of Judah, and the wickedness of their wives, and your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

10 They are not ^ahumbled¹ even unto this day, neither have they ^bfeared, nor walked in my law, nor in my statutes, that I set before you and before your fathers.

The Remnant Shall Fall in Egypt

11 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, ^aI will set my face against you for ¹evil, and to ²cut off all Judah.

12 And I will take the remnant of Judah, that have set their faces to go into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and ^athey shall all be consumed, and fall in the land of Egypt; they shall even be consumed by the sword and by the famine: they shall die, from the least even unto the greatest, by the sword and by the ecration, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a reproach.

13 ^aFor I will punish them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence:

14 So that none of the remnant of Judah, which are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall escape or ¹remain, that they should return into the land of Judah, to the which they ²have a ^adesire to return to dwell there: for ^bnone shall return but such as shall escape.

The Idolatry of Judah

15 Then all the men which knew that their wives had burned incense unto other gods, and all the women that stood by, a great multitude, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered
Jeremiah, saying,

16 As for the word that thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the LORD, ^awe will not ¹hearken unto thee.

17 But we will certainly do ^awhatsoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth, to burn incense unto the ^bqueen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto her, as we have done, we, and our fathers, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem: for then had we plenty of ¹victu-als, and were ²well, and saw no ³evil.

18 But since we ¹left off to burn incense to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto her, we have ²wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword and by the famine.

19 ^aAnd ¹when we burned incense to the queen of heaven, and poured out drink offerings unto her, did we make her cakes to worship her, and pour out drink offerings unto her, without our ²men?

God's Message to Egypt

8 Egypt riseth up like a flood, and his waters are moved like the rivers; and he saith, I will go up, and will cover the earth; I will destroy the city and the inhabitants thereof.

45:5. Baruch's lofty calling was simply to be a faithful minister (cf. Mark 10:45), content with the Lord's appointment (cf. Phil. 4:11). Faithfulness has its own reward (cf. 39:16-18; Heb. 13:5, 6). See the note on 36:4.

46:1. Chapters 46-51 comprise a collection of prophecies against various foreign nations. Like 25:15-38 they deal with a sovereign God's judicial sentence against the rampant wickedness of the Gentile nations. They underscore the fact that all nations are under the power of the God of the universe (cf. Is. 44:24-45:6; Dan. 2:20, 21; 4:3, 34-37). These chapters are arranged in somewhat different fashion in the Greek translation of the Old Testament and are placed after 25:13a, after which follows the material in 25:15-38. These prophecies were received from the Lord and delivered by Jeremiah at various times. They are collected here as a body of texts dealing with God's judgment of the nations. For other such collections, see Isaiah 13-21; 23; Ezekiel 25-32; and Amos 1:3-2:3.

46:2. The messages against Egypt fall into two parts: the first (vv. 2-12) deals with Egypt's defeat at Carchemish in 605 B.C. (see introductory note), and the second refers to Egypt's coming judgment at the hands of Nebuchadrezzar (vv. 13-26).

46:11. See the note on 18:13.

16 He made many to fall, yea, ^aone fell upon another: and they said, Arise, and ^blet us go ¹again to our own people, and to the land of our nativity, from the oppressing sword.

47:1. For other prophecies against the Philistines, see Isaiah 14:29–31; Ezekiel 25:15–17; Amos 1:6–8; Zephaniah 2:4–7. For Philistine-Israelite relations, see the note at Joshua 13:2, 3. The Philistines largely disappear from the pages of history with the conquests of Nebuchadrezzar.

47:4. The Phoenicians are denounced severely by Ezekiel (Ezek. 26–28; cf. Amos 1:9, 10). The Philistines, Phoenicians, and Edomites were guilty of making slaves of the Israelites, and are therefore repeatedly condemned by the prophets (cf. Joel 3:4–8, 19; Amos 1:6–12; Obad. 10–14). For their crimes, the Phoenicians suffered repeated invasions by the Babylonians, Persians, Greeks, and Romans.

13 And Moab shall be ashamed of ^aChemosh, as the house of Israel ^bwas ashamed of ^aBeth-el their confidence.

The Calamity of Moab

14 How say ye, ^aWe are mighty and strong men for the war?

15 Moab is ^lspoiled, and gone up out of her cities, and his chosen young men are ^agone down to the slaughter, saith ^bthe King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.

16 The calamity of Moab is near ^lto come, and his affliction hasteth fast.

17 All ye that are ^labout him, bemoan him; and all ye that know his name, say, ^aHow is the strong staff broken, and the beautiful rod!

18 ^aThou daughter that dost inhabit ^bDibon, come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst; for the ^lspoiler of Moab shall come upon thee, and he shall destroy thy strong holds.

The Pride of Moab

26 ^aMake ye him drunken: for he magnified himself against the LORD: Moab also shall wallow in his vomit, and he also shall be in derision.

27 For ^awas not Israel a derision unto thee? ^bwas he found among thieves? for since thou spakest of him, thou ^lskippedst for ^cjoy.

28 O ye that dwell in Moab, leave the cities, and ^adwell in the rock, and be like ^bthe dove that maketh her nest in the sides of the ^lhole's mouth.

29 We have heard the ^apride of Moab, (he is exceeding proud) his loftiness, and his arrogancy, and his ^bpride, and the haughtiness of his heart.

30 I know his wrath, saith the LORD; but it shall not be so; ^ahis lies ^lshall not so effect it.

31 Therefore ^awill I ^lhowl for Moab, and I will cry out for all Moab; mine heart shall mourn for the men of Kir-heres.

32 ^aO vine of Sibmah, I will weep for thee with the weeping of ^bJazer: thy plants are gone over the sea, they reach even to the sea of Jazer: the ^lspoiler is fallen upon thy summer fruits and upon thy vintage.

33 And ^ajoy and gladness is taken from the plentiful field, and from the land of Moab; and I have caused wine to ^lfail from the winepresses: none shall tread with shouting; their shouting shall ²be no shouting.

48:11, 12. Like wine that had been allowed to settle on its sediments, in order that it might gain strength and flavor before being strained and poured into a new wineskin (cf. Is. 25:6; Zeph. 1:12), so Moab had been allowed to remain in its land. However, the ves- sel of Moab would soon be poured out and be broken by invaders. The Moabite kingdom ceased with the conquest of Nebuchadrezzar. Centuries later the area was occupied by the famed Nabateans, under whom the land flourished once again, perhaps a harbinger of God's gracious restoration of the area in the end times (cf. v. 47).

34 ^aFrom the cry of Heshbon even unto ^bElealeh, and even unto Jahaz, have they uttered their voice, ^cfrom Zoar even unto Horonaim, ¹as an heifer of three years old: for the waters also of Nimrim shall be desolate.

The Derision of Moab

35 Moreover I will cause to cease in Moab, saith the LORD, ^ahim that offereth in the ¹high places, and him that burneth incense to his gods.

36 Therefore ^amine heart shall ¹sound for Moab like ²pipes, and mine heart shall ¹sound like ²pipes for the men of Kir-heres: because ^bthe riches that he hath gotten are perished.

37 For ^aevery head shall be bald, and every beard clipped: upon all the hands shall be ¹cuttings, and ^bupon the loins sackcloth.

38 There shall be lamentation generally upon all the ^ahousetops of Moab, and in the streets thereof: for I have ^bbroken Moab like a vessel wherein is no pleasure, saith the LORD.

39 They shall ¹howl, saying, How is it broken down! how hath Moab turned the back with shame! so shall Moab be a derision and a dismaying to all them about him.

40 For thus saith the LORD; Behold, ^ahe shall fly as an eagle, and shall ^bspread his wings over Moab.

God's Message Against Ammon

49 Concerning ^athe Ammonites, thus saith the LORD; Hath Israel no sons? hath he no heir? why then doth ¹their king inherit ^bGad, and his people dwell in his cities?

2 ^aTherefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will cause an alarm of war to be heard in ^bRabbah of the Ammonites; and it shall be a desolate ¹heap, and her ²daughters shall be burned with fire: then shall Israel be heir unto them that were his heirs, saith the LORD.

3 ¹Howl, O ^aHeshbon, for Ai is spoiled: cry, ye daughters of Rabbah, ^bgird you with sackcloth; lament, and run to and fro by the hedges; for ²their king shall go into captivity, and his ^cpriests and his princes together.

4 Wherefore ^agloriest thou in the valleys, ¹thy flowing valley, O ^bbacksliding daughter? that trusted in her ^ctreasures, ^dsaying, Who shall come unto me?

5 Behold, I will bring a fear upon thee, saith the Lord GOD of hosts, from all those that ¹be about thee; and ye shall be driven out every man right forth; and none shall gather up him that wandereth.

6 And ^aafterward I will bring again the captivity of the children of Ammon, saith the LORD.

49:6. Ammon, like Moab, was descended from Lot (see the note on Judg. 3:12, 13). It shall also know the Lord's mercy in the latter days. Ammon ceased to be an independent state when it was defeated by Nebuchadrezzar. Subsequently its land was overrun by Arab invaders.

Lam. 4:21, 22), and even expanded their territory into southern Judah, thus forming the land of Idumea, Edom proper was eventually overrun by the Nabateans in the fourth century B.C. Thereafter, the Edomites were largely identified with the Idumeans. They became involved in the events of the Maccabean Wars and the political affairs that took place during the Roman occupation of Syro-Palestine. With the fall of Jerusalem they disappear from history. However, Obadiah seems to hold out hope for the area in the last days (Obad. 21).

35 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Behold, I will break ^athe ¹bow of Elam, the chief of their might.

36 And upon Elam will I bring the four winds from the four quarters of heaven, and will scatter them toward all those winds; and there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam shall not come.

37 For I will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies, and before them that seek their life: and I will bring ¹evil upon them, ^{even} my fierce anger, saith the LORD; ^aand I will send the sword after them, till I have consumed them:

38 And I will ^aset my throne in Elam, and will destroy from thence the king and the princes, saith the LORD.

39 But it shall come to pass ^ain the latter days, ^{that} I will bring again the captivity of Elam, saith the LORD.

God's Message Against Babylon

50 The word that the LORD spake ^aagainst Babylon and against the land of the Chaldeans by Jeremiah the prophet.

2 Declare ye among the nations, and ¹publish, and ²set up a standard; ¹publish, and conceal not: say, Babylon is ^ataken, ^bBel³ is confounded, ⁴Merodach is broken in pieces; ^cher idols are ⁵confounded, her images are broken in pieces.

49:27, 28. Damascus, the age-old home of the Arameans, and Kedar, an important Arabian tribe (cf. Is. 21:16, 17; 42:11; 60:7; Ezek. 27:21), as well as Hazor, apparently a center of Arabian concentration, all felt the heels of the conquering Babylonian forces under Nebuchadrezzar.

49:37-39. Elam lay east of Babylon in southwestern Persia. A broken text in the Babylonian Chronicles indicates that Nebuchadrezzar defeated an Elamite invasion of Babylon in about 595 B.C. As in the case of Moab (48:47) and Ammon (49:6), there is also given a note of future hope for Elam.

50:1. Jeremiah devotes two long chapters of divinely given messages to Babylon, the foremost power of his day. It is a prophecy of judgment for the mighty world conqueror, but of restoration for an exiled Israel.

50:2. Merodach is Marduk, the old head of the Babylonian pantheon of their gods. Bel (the west-Semitic Baal) was the Babylonian equivalent of the earlier Sumerian storm god Enlil. Both the name and the powers of Bel became associated with Marduk, but the name Bel became the more common one in the Neo-Babylonian period (cf. Is. 46:1; Jer. 51:44; Dan. 5:1, 9, 22, 29).

50:3. The end of the Neo-Babylonian Empire came with the fall of Babylon to Cyrus the Great in 539 B.C. (cf. 51:28). Babylon was to remain a seedbed of sedition within the Persian Empire. The city later fell to Alexander the Great, who died there in 323 B.C. It remained a center of controversy until its capture by the Parthians in the second century B.C. It never fully recovered; by the end of the second century A.D. it was in great eclipse. Its once proud walls were ultimately pulled down in A.D. 363. The glory of Babylon thus faded, as both Isaiah (Is. 13:19-22) and Jeremiah (v. 34; 51:58) had prophesied. The defeat of proud Babylon stands as a sobering example of the final defeat of the empires of this world at the Messiah's second advent (cf. Is. 13:9-13 with Dan. 2:44; 7:26-28; Zech. 12:2-9; 14:1-4; Rev. 17-19).

46 And lest your heart faint, and ye fear ^afor the rumour that shall be heard in the land; a rumour shall both come one year, and after that in another year shall come a rumour, and violence in the land, ruler against ruler.

47 Therefore, behold, the days come, that I will ¹do judgment upon the graven images of Babylon: and her whole land shall be ²con-founded, and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.

48 Then ^athe heaven and the earth, and all that is therein, shall ¹sing for Babylon: ^bfor the ²spoilers shall come unto her from the north, saith the LORD.

49 As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall, so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all the earth.

50 ^aYe that have escaped the sword, go away, stand not still: ^bremember the LORD afar off, and let Jerusalem come into your mind.

51:41. Sheshach is a cryptogram for Babylon. The literary device employed here is known as "athbash," a process by which the written letters represent the corresponding letters at the opposite end of the alphabet.

52 Wherefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will ¹do judgment upon her graven images: and through all her land the wounded shall groan.

56 Because the ¹spoiler is come upon her, even upon Babylon, and her mighty men are taken, every one of their bows is broken: ^afor the LORD God of recompences shall surely ²requite.

57 And I will make drunk her princes, and her ^awise men, her ¹captains, and her rulers, and her mighty men: and they shall sleep a perpetual sleep, and not wake, saith ^bthe King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.

64 And thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and shall not rise from the evil that I will bring upon her: and they shall be weary. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

Zedekiah's Rebellion

52 Zedekiah was ^aone and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of ^bLibnah.

2 And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

3 For through the anger of the LORD it came to pass in Jerusalem and Judah, till he had cast them out from his presence, that Zedekiah ^arebelled against the king of Babylon.

Jerusalem Besieged by Babylon

4 And it came to pass in the ^aninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and ¹pitched against it, and built ²forts against it round about.

5 So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

6 And in the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, the famine was ¹sore in the city, so that there was no ²bread for the people of the land.

Zedekiah and the Army Flee

7 Then the ¹city was broken up, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden; (now the Chaldeans *were*² by the city round about:) and they went by the way of the³ plain.

8 But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho; and all his army was scattered from him.

Zedekiah's Fate

9 ^aThen they took the king, and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath; where he ¹gave judgment upon him.

10 ^aAnd the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes: he slew also all the princes of Judah in Riblah.

11 Then he ^aput¹ out the eyes of Zedekiah; and the king of Babylon bound him in² chains, and carried him to Babylon, and put him in prison till the day of his death.

Jerusalem Burned

12 ^aNow in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, ^bwhich was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, ^ccame Nebuzar-adan, captain of the guard, which served the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem,

13 And burned the house of the LORD, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses of the great men, burned he with fire:

14 And all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the captain of the guard, brake down all the walls of Jerusalem round about.

15 ^aThen Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive certain of the poor of the people, and the ¹residue of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that ²fell to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the ³multitude.

16 But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard left certain of the poor of the land for vinedressers and for ¹husbandmen.

23 And there were ninety and six pomegranates on a side; and ^aall the pomegranates upon the network were an hundred round about.

The Priests and the Leaders Slain

24 And ^athe captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief priest, ^band Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the door:

25 He took also out of the city ¹an eunuch, which had the charge of the men of war; and seven men of them that were ²near the king's person, which were found in the city; and the principal scribe of the host, who mustered the people of the land; and threescore men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city.

26 So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah.

27 And the king of Babylon ¹smote them, and put them to death in Riblah in the land of Hamath. Thus Judah was carried away captive out of his own land.

29 ^aIn the eighteenth year of ¹Nebuchadrezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem eight hundred thirty and two persons:

LAMENTATIONS

The Hebrew title of the book, Ekah, “How,” comes from the first word of the text. It was often used to introduce laments, as here (cf. Is. 1:21), and stands also at the head of chapters 2 and 4. The Greek title “Tears/Wailings,” is the same in the Latin Vulgate which adds a subtitle “That is, The Lamentations of the Prophet Jeremiah.” From this explanation comes the title in the English versions.

Authorship. Both Jewish and Christian traditions hold that Jeremiah is the author of Lamentations. Internal evidence supports this conclusion: (1) The author was an eyewitness to Jerusalem’s destruction (1:13–15; 2:6–13; 4:10). (2) The language, vocabulary, and sentiment of the prophecy of Jeremiah and Lamentations are often very close (cf. 1:16a; 2:11 with Jer. 9:1, 18; 13:17; Lam. 2:20; 4:10 with Jer. 19:9; Lam. 2:22 with Jer. 6:25; 20:10; Lam. 3:15 with Jer. 9:15; 23:15; Lam. 3:64–66 with Jer. 11:20). (3) In both books Jerusalem’s downfall is ascribed to Judah’s sin (cf. 1:5–18; 3:42; 4:6, 22; 5:7, 16 with Jer. 14:7; 16:10–12) and to its corrupt leadership (cf. 2:14; 4:13–15 with Jer. 2:7, 8; 5:31; 23:11–40). In the light of the external and internal evidence, then, no other person qualifies so well to be the author as the traditional candidate, Jeremiah.

Historical Setting. Lamentations was composed after the author personally witnessed Judah’s downfall and the capture of Jerusalem, with the resultant suffering of his people. In its final form, the book cannot be dated much later than Jerusalem’s fall, 586 B.C. The author thus pens his sorrow over the tragedy that befell his country and city, and over the people’s sin that invoked God’s severe judgment. In response to all that has happened, he urges repentance (cf. 5:21) and leaves his bearers with a note of hope by personally relying on the sure mercies of God (3:22, 23).

Lamentations consists of five poems. Each of the first four is composed as an acrostic of the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet (although it should be noted that chapters 2, 3, and 4 are somewhat irregular since they invert the letters pe and ayin). Chapters 1, 2, 4, and 5 have 22 verses; chapter 3, however, devotes three verses to each letter, yielding 66 verses. This familiar poetic device indicates that the author is covering his material thoroughly (“from A to Z”), in a way easy for his audience to understand and remember. The Jewish people read Lamentations every year on the date commemorating the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem.

20 Behold, O LORD; for I am in distress: my ^abowels¹ are troubled; mine heart is ²turned within me; for I have grievously rebelled: ^babroad³ the sword bereaveth, at home there is as death.

21 They have heard that I sigh: there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard of my trouble; they are ^aglad that thou hast done it: ¹thou wilt bring ^bthe day that thou hast ²called, and they shall be like unto me.

22 ^aLet all their wickedness come before thee; and do unto them, as thou hast done unto me for all my transgressions: for my sighs are many, and my heart is faint.

God's Fierce Anger

2 How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with a ^acloud in his anger, ^band cast down from heaven unto the earth ^cthe beauty of Israel, and remembered not ^ahis footstool in the day of his anger!

2 The Lord hath swallowed up all the habitations of Jacob, and hath ^anot pitied: he hath thrown down in his wrath the strong holds of the daughter of Judah; he hath brought them down to the ground: ^bhe hath ¹polluted the kingdom and the princes thereof.

3 He hath cut off in his fierce anger all the ¹horn of Israel: ^ahe hath ²drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, ^band he burned against Jacob like a flaming fire, which devoureth round about.

4 ^aHe hath bent his bow like an enemy: he stood with his right hand as an adversary, and slew ^ball that were pleasant to the ¹eye in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion: he poured out his fury like fire.

5 ^aThe Lord was as an enemy: he hath swallowed up Israel, he hath

1:15. For virgin as a metaphor of national identity, see the note on Jeremiah 18:13. The winepress at times symbolizes thorough judgment (Is. 63:3; Rev. 14:18-20; 19:15).

1:18. Jeremiah's vicarious confession of sin recognized that Jerusalem's fall was its own fault and not that of God who always acts in strict righteousness (cf. Gen. 18:25).

1:19. As Jeremiah had prophesied (Jer. 2:26-28, 36, 37), Jerusalem's lovers (her false gods and foreign entanglements) could not rescue her in time of peril.

2:3. The right hand, the place of prominence and honor (cf. 1 Kin. 2:19), is often used figuratively to emphasize vigorous action (cf. Ex. 15:6, 12; Ps. 45:4; Hab. 2:16).

swallowed up all her palaces: ^bhe hath destroyed his strong holds, and hath increased in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation.

The Destruction of the Temple

6 And he hath ¹violently ^ataken away his tabernacle, ^bas if it were of a garden: he hath destroyed his places of the assembly: the LORD hath caused the solemn feasts and sabbaths to be forgotten in Zion, and hath ^cdespised² in the indignation of his anger the king and the priest.

7 The Lord hath ¹cast off his altar, he hath ^aabhorred² his sanctuary, he hath ³given up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces; ^bthey have made a noise in the house of the LORD, as in the day of a solemn feast.

The Destruction of Jerusalem

8 The LORD hath ¹purposed to destroy the ^awall of the daughter of Zion: ^bhe hath stretched out a line, he hath not withdrawn his hand from destroying; therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament; they languished together.

9 Her gates are sunk into the ground; he hath destroyed and ^abroken her bars: ^bher king and her princes are among the ¹Gentiles: ^cthe law is no more; her ^dprophets also find no ²vision from the LORD.

10 The elders of the daughter of Zion ^asit upon the ground, and keep silence: they have ^bcast¹ up dust upon their heads; they have ^cgirded themselves with sackcloth: the virgins of Jerusalem ²hang down their heads to the ground.

2:20. Israel's descending to cannibalism during a siege had been prophesied of old. It was a hideous picture of the outworking of self-will, idolatry, and total debasement (cf. Lev. 26:29; Deut. 28:53). See the note on Jeremiah 19:9.

3:1. The man refers to all Israel, viewed here collectively as one person. Similarly, Hosea calls Israel "my son" (Hos. 11:1), and Isaiah calls Israel God's "wife" (Is. 54:6).

3:22, 23. These verses embody the central thesis of the book. When God dealt with His sinful people He exhibited His compassions. The word translated mercies conveys God's love for His covenant people (see the notes on 1 Sam. 20:14-17 and Jer. 2:2). The word faithfulness comes from a root meaning "be permanent, secure, reliable." From this comes the associated idea of genuine faith; hence, the verb can be translated "believe" (Gen. 15:6). The word here is often translated "faith" but literally means "firmness" or faithfulness. Thus, it is used of the faithfulness of God Himself (Ps. 36:5; 40:10; Lam. 3:23), and of the need for the believer likewise to be faithful in his life and in his service to God (2 Chr. 19:9; Ps. 119:30; Prov. 12:22). The word root stresses that real faith is more than inner belief, even more than whole-souled commitment. It is a condition of the soul marked by such a stable character and an attitude of total trust that the believer's whole life is imbued with consistent, responsible service to God (cf. 1 Sam. 26:23; Ps. 37:3-6). From the biblical standpoint, true faith results in faithfulness in one's life.

3:26. Jeremiah's observation resembles those of other saints who have experienced great grief of soul (Hab. 2:20; 3:17-19; cf. Job 40:3-5; Ps. 37:7; 73:23-27; Is. 26:3; 2 Cor. 1:7; 2 Thess. 3:5).

3:30. These words recall Jesus' instructions to forbear bravely in the face of persecution (Matt. 5:39; cf. 1 Pet. 2:19-24; 3:17, 18).

3:38. Jeremiah is simply stating that ultimately all things are under God's sovereign control (cf. Job 2:10; Ps. 33:9; Is. 45:7; Amos 3:6). The verse gives no comfort to slanderous activity, which other Scriptures condemn strongly (Titus 3:2; James 3:9, 10).

The Book of EZEKIEL

Title. The title comes from the name of the author as is characteristic of Old Testament prophetic books.

Authorship. According to 1:3 the author of the book was “Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi.” He was taken captive in 597 B.C. among the 10,000 deported by Nebuchadnezzar during his second campaign against Judah. As one of three priest-prophets in the Old Testament (including Jeremiah and Zechariah), Ezekiel emphasized the concerns of a priest: the glory of the Lord, priestly duties, and both the present and future temples.

Date. Almost all of Ezekiel’s prophecies are in chronological order and are precisely dated (1:2; 8:1; 20:1; 24:1). The commencement of his ministry is said to be “in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month ... which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin’s captivity” (1:1, 2), or 593 B.C. The expression “in the thirtieth year” (1:1) probably refers to Ezekiel’s age when he began to prophesy, which, in this case, was the same age at which priests became qualified to serve (Num. 4:3). The latest dated prophecy in the book was given “in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first day of the month” (29:17). The twenty-seventh year should be dated to Jehoiachin’s exile (as in 1:2), which would terminate Ezekiel’s ministry in 571 B.C. at age 52, or a total of 22 years.

Interpretation and Purpose. The backgrounds of the books of Daniel and Ezekiel are quite similar. Daniel was taken captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar in 605 B.C. during the reign of Jehoiakim (Dan. 1:1). At first, Jehoiakim supported Nebuchadnezzar, but in 601 B.C. he changed allegiance to Egypt (2 Kin. 24:1). As a result, Nebuchadnezzar attacked Jerusalem and captured it in March 597 B.C. Jehoiakim had already died in disgrace and been succeeded by his son Jehoiachin. The latter, feeling that matters were quite hopeless, surrendered to Nebuchadnezzar and was taken captive to Babylon along with Ezekiel and a total of 10,000 of the leaders and skilled craftsmen (2 Kin. 24:8–17; Jer. 22:24–30; Ezek. 19:5–9). Thus, all of Ezekiel’s ministry, except for visionary glimpses of life in Jerusalem, took place in Babylon. Since Ezekiel prophesied both before and after the destruction of Jerusalem during Nebuchadnezzar’s third campaign (586 B.C.), his early prophecies emphasize the impending disaster; his later prophecies stress Israel’s future restoration, especially their glorious new temple.

The purpose of the book is essentially threefold: (1) to explain that Judah must be judged for disobedience; (2) to encourage the remnant of Judah through prophecies of her glorious future restoration; (3) to emphasize the preeminence of God’s glory and character. The glory of God may well be viewed as the theme of the book, because Ezekiel’s ministry begins with a vision of God’s glory and emphasizes it throughout the book (1:28; 3:12, 23; 8:4). Upwards of 75 times God expresses His own concerns in the book as “for my name’s sake” or that “ye shall know that I am the LORD.” All of God’s actions, either in judgment or blessing, emanate equally from His holiness and for His glory.

Ezekiel's Visions of God

1 Now it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I was among the captives by the river of Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

2 In the fifth day of the month, which was the fifth year of king Jehoiachin's captivity,

3 The word of the LORD came expressly unto Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar; and the hand of the LORD was there upon him.

A Whirlwind from the North

Four Living Creatures

5 Also out of the midst thereof came the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance; they had the likeness of a man.

6 And every one had four faces, and every one had four wings.

7 And their feet were straight feet; and the sole of their feet was like the sole of a calf's foot: and they sparkled like the colour of burnished brass.

8 And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four sides; and they four had their faces and their wings.

9 Their wings were joined one to another; they turned not when they went; they went every one straight forward.

The Likeness of Their Faces

1:1, 2. In the thirtieth year refers to Ezekiel's age, the normal age at which priests (v. 3) entered their ministry. The fifth year of king Jehoiachin was 597 B.C., the year Ezekiel was taken captive to Babylon.

1:4-14. In his vision Ezekiel saw four living creatures, the first of four key elements in the revelation. These are identified later as cherubim, an angelic order (Ezek. 10:15, 20). The faces of the beasts were man, ^cand the face of a lion, on the right side: ^aand they four had the face of an ox on the left side; ^ethey four also had the face of an eagle.

11 Thus were their faces: and their wings were ¹stretched upward; two wings of every one ²were joined one to another, and ^atwo covered their bodies.

14 And the living creatures ran ¹and returned ^aas the appearance of a flash of lightning.

²above ³an awesome

the faces of a man, a lion, an ox, and an eagle (v. 10). Some have suggested that these animals represent four aspects of God's character. However, they are most likely to be taken simply as four great examples of God's creative work: man is the only creature made in the image of God; the lion is the sovereign of the animal kingdom; the ox is the strongest domesticated animal; and the eagle is considered by many to be the greatest bird. The fact that the creatures covered their bodies points to their reverence in God's presence.

1:15–21. The second major portion of the vision was the appearance of wheels. There was a wheel in the middle of a wheel (v. 16); the wheels could move in any direction; the wheels touched earth but still reached heaven; and the wheels moved wherever the Spirit led them. The wheels seem to symbolize God's working on the earth. Nothing stopped them, just as nothing stops the sovereign God who controls all events on earth. This truth would have been very encouraging to the weary exiles to whom Ezekiel was called to minister.

1:22–24. The third part of the vision was the firmament. The Hebrew word used here is the same one used in Genesis 1:6, 7 for the expanse created by God on the second day. Its dazzling brilliance was an appropriate reminder of God's holiness and transcendent majesty (cf. the description in Rev. 4:6).

1:3 Ezekiel was a prophet of a priestly family, which was carried captive to Babylon in 597 B.C., who prophesied intermittently until 571 B.C. He was about 25 years old when he was taken to Babylon. Ezekiel was called to the prophetic ministry five years after arriving, and ministered to the captives who dwelt by the river Chebar at Tel Abib. His home was quite often a meeting place (8:1; 14:1; 20:1). Ezekiel was married to a woman who was "the desire of his eyes" (24:16). One of the saddest notes of his life was the death of his wife. The prophet was told that his wife would die as the armies of Babylon laid siege against the holy city of Jerusalem. (See 24:1, 2, 16.) Ezekiel's sadness at the death of his wife was to match the grief of God for the sin of Jerusalem (24:15–22). During his ministry he glimpsed extraordinary visions, and he performed symbolic prophetic acts, which made him somewhat of a curiosity to his contemporaries (3:1–3; 4:1–17; 5:1–3; 33:30–33). Some of the greatest prophecies regarding future events occur in the Book of Ezekiel (chs. 33–48). (First Reference, Ezek. 1:3; Primary References, the Book of Ezekiel.)

23 And under the firmament were their wings ¹straight, the one toward the other: every one had two, which covered on this side, and every one had two, which covered on that side, their bodies.

24 ^aAnd when they went, I heard the noise of their wings, ^blike the noise of ¹great waters, as ^cthe voice of the Almighty, the ²voice of speech, as the noise of an ³host: when they ⁴stood, they let down their wings.

25 And there was a voice from the firmament that was over their heads, when they stood, and had let down their wings.

The Likeness of a Throne

26 ^aAnd above the ¹firmament that was over their heads was the likeness of a throne, ^bas the appearance of a sapphire stone: and upon the likeness of the throne was the likeness as the appearance of a man ²above upon ^cit.

27 ^aAnd I saw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it, from the appearance of his ¹loins even upward, and from the appearance of his ¹loins even downward, I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightness round about.

28 ^aAs the appearance of ¹the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about. ^bThis was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. And when I saw it, ^cI fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one that spake.

A Rebellious Nation

2 And he said unto me, Son of man, ^astand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee.

2 And ^athe spirit entered into me when he spake unto me, and set me upon my feet, that I heard him that spake unto me.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, I send thee to the children of Israel, to a rebellious nation that hath ^arebelled against me: ^bthey and their fathers have transgressed against me, even unto this very day.

4 ^aFor they are ¹impudent children and stiffhearted. I do send thee unto them; and thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God.

5 ^aAnd they, whether they will hear, or whether they will ¹forbear, (for they are a ^brebellious house,) yet ^cshall know that there hath been a prophet among them.

6 And thou, son of man, ^abe not afraid of them, neither be afraid of their words, though ^bbriers and thorns be with thee, and thou dost dwell among scorpions: ^cbe not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their looks, ^dthough they be a rebellious house.

7 ^aAnd thou shalt speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will ¹forbear: for they are most rebellious.

8 But thou, son of man, hear what I say unto thee; Be not thou rebellious like that rebellious house: open thy mouth, and ^aeat that I give thee.

1:25-28. Finally, there was a throne and the likeness as the appearance of a man above upon it. The important reality was that the throne was occupied, signifying that God was in control and judgment proceeded from His throne. Ezekiel did not see God, but the likeness and appearance of God. The mention of the glory of the LORD (v. 28) is one of 16 such references in the book, and doubtless sets forth the favorite theme of Ezekiel (v. 28; 3:12, 23; 8:4; 9:3; 10:4, 18, 19; 11:22, 23; 39:21; 43:2 [twice], 4, 5; 44:4). Ezekiel saw God's glory in his vision; he saw it depart from the temple in chapters 10 and 11; and he saw it return in the future temple in chapters 43 and 44.

2:1. Son of man is used to refer to Ezekiel some 93 times in the book. The use of the title seems to emphasize the humanity of the prophet and all of mankind, who are separated by a great gulf from the holy God.

2:3. Ezekiel's mission was to a rebellious nation. The sobering reality of the Babylonian exile had not yet had its intended effect.

2:4. The Lord God is a title of God used some 217 times in the book (while used elsewhere in the Old Testament only 103 times). The Hebrew expression is Adonai Yahweh. The first word emphasizes God's sovereignty; the second emphasizes His eternal existence and character as the God of covenant, history, and ethics.

2:6. Be not afraid is spoken three times to Ezekiel to encourage him to fulfill God's mission.

2:7, 8. Thou shalt speak my words is an introduction to the content of Ezekiel's message, presented in 2:8-3:11.

9 And when I looked, behold, ^aan hand was ¹sent unto me; and, lo, ^ba ²roll of a book was therein;

10 And he spread it before me; and it was written within and without: and there was written therein lamentations, and mourning, and woe.

The Eating of the Roll

3 Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, eat that thou findest; ^aeat this ¹roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel.

2 So I opened my mouth, and he caused me to eat that roll.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, ¹cause thy belly to eat, and fill thy ²bowels with this ³roll that I give thee. Then did I ^aeat it; and it was in my mouth ^bas honey for sweetness.

Go and Speak

4 And he said unto me, Son of man, go, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak with my words unto them.

5 For thou art not sent to a people of ¹a strange speech and of an hard language, but to the house of Israel;

6 Not to many people of a strange speech and of an hard language, whose words thou canst not understand. Surely, ^ahad I sent thee to them, they would have hearkened unto thee.

7 But the house of Israel will not hearken unto thee; ^afor they will not hearken unto me: ^bfor all the house of Israel are ¹impudent and hard-hearted.

A Voice of a Great Rushing

12 Then ^athe spirit took me up, and I heard behind me a voice of a great ¹rushing, saying, Blessed be the ^bglory of the LORD from his place.

13 I heard also the ^anoise of the wings of the living creatures that touched one another, and the noise of the wheels over against them, and a noise of a great ¹rushing.

14 So the spirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I went in bitterness, in the ¹heat of my spirit; but ^athe hand of the LORD was strong upon me.

15 Then I came to them of the captivity at Tel-abib, that dwelt by the river of Chebar, and ^aI sat where they sat, and remained there astonished among them seven days.

A Watchman

16 And it ^acame to pass at the end of seven days, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3:1. Ezekiel was commanded to eat this roll (or scroll). This depicted the fact that he was first to receive the Word of God. He who would communicate God's Word must first assimilate it (cf. Rev. 10:9-11). The fact that it was "written within and without" (i.e., on both sides, 2:10) is a picture of the extensive content of what God intended to communicate through him.

3:4. Speak with my words unto them sets forth the second aspect of Ezekiel's calling. Not only was he to receive God's Word, but he was also to deliver it faithfully to Israel.

3:7. Ezekiel was warned at the outset of his ministry that the people would not listen to him.

3:14. The hand of the LORD was strong upon me pictures the divine enablement given to Ezekiel to sustain him during his difficult ministry.

3:15. Tel-abib was located in Babylonia and is not to be confused with the modern city of Tel Aviv in Israel.

3:17. The watchman was a familiar figure in the ancient Near East. It was his duty to watch for approaching enemies and to warn the city of danger. In the same way Ezekiel was God's watchman who was called to warn both the "wicked" (vv. 18, 19) and the "righteous" (vv. 20, 21). See the note on Jeremiah 6:17.

Israel: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them ^cwarning from me.

Warn the Wicked

18 When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man^a shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

19 Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity; ^abut thou hast delivered thy soul.

Warn the Righteous

20 Again, When a ^arighteous man doth turn from his righteousness, and commit iniquity, and I lay a stumblingblock before him, he shall die: because thou hast not given him warning, he shall die in his sin, and his righteousness which he hath done shall not be remembered; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

21 Nevertheless if thou warn the righteous man, that the righteous sin not, and he doth not sin, he shall surely live, because he ¹is warned; also thou hast delivered thy soul.

22 ^aAnd the hand of the LORD was there upon me; and he said unto me, Arise, go forth ^binto the plain, and I will there talk with thee.

23 Then I arose, and went forth into the plain: and, behold, ^athe glory of the LORD stood there, as the glory which I ^bsaw by the river of Chebar: ^cand I fell on my face.

24 Then ^athe spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet, and spake with me, and said unto me, Go, shut thyself within thine house.

Ezekiel Is Struck Dumb

25 But thou, O son of man, behold, ^athey shall put ¹bands upon thee, and shall bind thee with them, and thou shalt not go out among them:

26 And ^aI will make thy tongue ¹cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou shalt be ²dumb, and shalt ^bnot be to them ³a reprover: ^cfor they are a rebellious house.

27 ^aBut when I speak with thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them, ^bThus saith the Lord GOD; He that heareth, let him hear; and he that ¹forbareth, let him forbear: for they are a rebellious house.

The Sign of the Tile

4 Thou also, son of man, take thee ^aa ¹tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jerusalem:

2 And ^alay siege against it, and build a ^bfort¹ against it, and ²cast a mount against it; set the camp also against it, and set battering rams against it round about.

3 Moreover take thou unto thee an iron ¹pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city: and set thy face against it, and it shall be ^abesieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it. ^bThis shall be a sign to the house of Israel.

The Years of Israel's Iniquity

4 Lie thou also upon thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it: according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon it thou shalt bear their iniquity.

5 For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, three

3:23. Ezekiel saw the glory of the LORD a second time, resulting in his prostrate submission.

3:24. Shut thyself within thine house refers to limited fellowship with the people in order to maintain his role as leader.

3:26. Thou shalt be dumb was a prophecy that Ezekiel would be unable to speak except by divine permission. This would be a sign to Israel that when Ezekiel did speak his words were certainly from God.

4:1. Beginning with this verse, and continuing through chapter 24, Ezekiel fulfills his divinely appointed task, given in chapter 3, of being a watchman to the house of Israel. Israel's destruction is predicted in these chapters, and the reasons for it are given. Remember that Ezekiel had been taken into captivity in 597 B.C., and prophesied these chapters in Babylon before the destruction of Jerusalem took place in 586 B.C. Four key signs of the certainty of judgment are used in chapters 4 and 5. The first is the sign of the tile, or brick (vv. 1-3). Ezekiel was instructed to draw an outline of the city of Jerusalem on the brick, then build ramps around it as a picture of its inevitable capture. It amounted to a model of Nebuchadnezzar's later destruction of the city.

hundred and ninety days: ^aso shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel.

6 And when thou hast accomplished them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee ¹each day for a year.

7 Therefore thou shalt set thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and thine arm shall be uncovered, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

8 ^aAnd, behold, I will ¹lay bands upon thee, and thou shalt not turn thee from one side to another, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege.

The Defiled Bread

9 Take thou also unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and ¹fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof, according to the number of the days that thou shalt lie upon thy side, three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof.

10 And thy ¹meat which thou shalt eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou eat it.

11 Thou shalt drink also water by measure, the sixth part of an hin: from time to time shalt thou drink.

12 And thou shalt eat it as barley cakes, and thou shalt bake it with ¹dung that cometh out of man, in their sight.

13 And the LORD said, Even thus ^ashall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles, whither I will drive them.

15 Then he said unto me, Lo, I have given thee cow's dung for ¹man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy bread ²therewith.

The Staff of Bread

16 Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, behold, I will ¹break the ^astaff of bread in Jerusalem: and they shall ^beat bread by weight, and with ²care; and they shall ^cdrink water by measure, and with ³astonishment:

17 That they may ¹want bread and water, and be ²astonied one with another, and ^aconsume³ away for their iniquity.

The Shaving of Hair and Beard

5 And thou, son of man, take thee ⁵a sharp ¹knife, ²take thee a barber's razor, ^aand cause it to pass upon thine head and upon thy beard: then take thee balances to weigh, and divide the hair.

2 ^aThou shalt burn with fire a third part in the midst of ^bthe city, when ^cthe days of the siege are fulfilled: and thou shalt take a third part, and ¹smite about it with a knife: and a third part thou shalt scatter in the wind; and I will draw out a sword after ^dthem.

3 ^aThou shalt also take thereof a few in number, and bind them in thy ¹skirts.

4 Then take ¹of them again, and ^acast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire; for thereof shall a fire come forth into all the house of Israel.

4:4-8. A second sign was given when Ezekiel lay on his sides: on his left side for 390 days and on his right side for 40 days. He probably lay in the specified position for only a portion of each day for the period of time commanded by God. The precise reasons for these particular numbers are not given, but they are related, in any case, to Israel's past sin. We do not have enough chronological information to determine their application with accuracy.

4:9-17. The third sign was that of defiled bread (v. 13). It represented the fact that food would be scarce and the people defiled during the siege of Jerusalem. Dried animal dung is still used for fuel in the Middle East, but the use of human excrement would be both repulsive and polluting.

5:1-17. The fourth sign was shaved hair. Ezekiel was commanded to shave his head and beard. Then the pile of hair was weighed and divided into four parts, three equal piles and a few additional strands. The three equal piles were to be burned, chopped up with a sword, and scattered to the wind, respectively. This action represented the people being killed by plague or famine, by the sword, and taken away in exile. The remaining few hairs symbolized a believing remnant. Even some of these would suffer oppression, since some of these hairs were also tossed into the fire.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD; This is Jerusalem: I have set it in the midst of the nations and countries that are round about her.

6 And she hath ¹changed my judgments ²into wickedness more than the nations, and my statutes more than the countries that are round about her: for they have refused my judgments and my statutes, they have not walked in them.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye ¹multiplied more than the nations that are round about you, and have not walked in my statutes, ^aneither have kept my judgments, neither have done according to the judgments of the nations that are round about you;

God Will Diminish the People

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I, even I, am against thee, and will execute judgments in the midst of thee in the sight of the nations.

9 ^aAnd I will do in thee that which I have not done, and whereunto I will not do any more the like, because of all thine abominations.

10 Therefore the fathers ^ashall eat the sons in the midst of thee, and the sons shall eat their fathers; and I will execute judgments in thee, and the whole remnant of thee will I ^bscatter into all the winds.

11 Wherefore, as I live, saith the Lord GOD; Surely, because thou hast ^adefiled my sanctuary with all thy ^bdetestable things, and with all thine abominations, therefore will I also diminish thee; ^cneither shall mine eye spare, neither will I have any pity.

The Fate of the City

12 ^aA third part of thee shall die with the pestilence, and with famine shall they be consumed in the midst of thee: and a third part shall fall by the sword round about thee; and ^bI will scatter a third part into all the winds, and I will draw out a sword after ^cthem.

3 And say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills, to the ¹rivers, and to the valleys; Behold, I, even I, will bring a sword upon you, and ^aI will destroy your ²high places.

cities shall be laid ¹waste, and the ²high places shall be desolate; that your altars may be laid ¹waste and made desolate, and your idols may be broken and ³cease, and your ⁴images may be cut down, and your works may be abolished.

7 And the slain shall fall in the midst of you, and ^aye shall know that I am the LORD.

Some Shall Escape Death

8 ^aYet will I leave a remnant, that ye may have some that shall escape the sword among the nations, when ye shall be ^bscattered through the countries.

9 And they that escape of you shall ^aremember me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives, because ^bI am ¹broken with their ²whorish heart, which hath departed from me, and ^cwith their eyes, which ³go a whoring after their idols: and ^dthey shall lothe themselves for the evils which they have committed in all their abominations.

The Vision of the Glory of God

8 And it came to pass in the sixth year, in the sixth month, in the fifth day of the month, as I sat in mine house, and ^athe elders of Judah sat before me, that ^bthe hand of the Lord GOD fell there upon me.

8:1. Chapters 8—11 are a unit, though the subject matter may be divided. These chapters constitute a vision that the prophet had while transported by the Spirit of God from Babylon to Jerusalem (v. 3).

The first thing Ezekiel witnessed was the presence of loathsome, idolatrous figures and detestable pagan practices within the temple confines itself, “the wicked abominations” (v. 9).

2 ^aThen I beheld, and lo a likeness as the appearance of fire: from the appearance of his ¹loins even downward, fire; and from his ¹loins even upward, as the appearance of brightness, ^bas the colour of amber.

3 And he ^aput forth the form of an hand, and took me by a lock of mine ¹head; and ^bthe spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and ^cbrought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the inner gate that looketh toward the north; ^dwhere was the seat of the ²image of jealousy, which ^eprovoketh³ to jealousy.

4 And, behold, the ^aglory of the God of Israel was there, ¹according to the vision that I ^bsaw in the plain.

5 Then said he unto me, Son of man, lift up thine eyes now the way toward the north. So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and behold northward at the gate of the altar this image of jealousy in the ¹entry.

6 He said furthermore unto me, Son of man, seest thou what they do? even the great ^aabominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should go far off from my sanctuary? but turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations.

7 And he brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall.

8 Then said he unto me, Son of man, dig now in the wall: and when I had digged in the wall, behold a door.

9 And he said unto me, Go in, and behold the wicked abominations that they do here.

Judah Provokes the Lord to Anger

8:14. Tammuz is the Semitic equivalent of the Sumerian Dumuzi whose ill-fated love of Inanna (Semitic Ishtar) the goddess of love is recounted in the Sumerian myths of Inanna’s Descent to the Netherworld and The Death of Dumuzi. Betrayed by Inanna and consigned to the underworld, his demise was limited in the fourth month, which was named after him. Evidently the women of Judah lamented Tammuz on the fifth day of the sixth month. The worship of Tammuz was one of the many fertility cults of the ancient Near East that had several local variations. Weeping for Tammuz was an act of worship intended to bring him back from the netherworld. Thus, these women were worshipping this Assyrian deity.

18 ^aTherefore will I also deal in fury: mine ^beye shall not spare, neither will I have pity: and though they ^ccry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them.

God's Destroying Weapons

9 He cried also in mine ¹ears with a loud voice, saying, ²Cause them that have charge over the city to draw near, even every man with his ³destroying weapon in his hand.

2 And, behold, six men came from the way of the ¹higher gate, which ²lieth toward the north, and every man ³a slaughter weapon in his hand; ^aand one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn ⁴by his side: and they went in, and stood beside the brasen altar.

10:4. The saddest event witnessed by Ezekiel was the departure of the LORD's glory from the temple. The glory moved from the cherubim in the holy of holies to the threshold of the house. Later, "the glory of the LORD departed from off the threshold ... and stood over the cherubims" (v. 18), when the cherubim went and stood "at the door of the east gate" (v. 19). Next, the "glory of the LORD ... stood upon

5 And the ^asound of the cherubim's wings was heard even to the outer court, as ^bthe voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh.

6 And it came to pass, that when he had commanded the man clothed with linen, saying, Take fire from between the wheels, from between the cherubim; then he went in, and stood beside the wheels.

7 And one cherub stretched forth his hand from between the cherubim unto the fire that was between the cherubim, and took thereof, and put it into the hands of him that was clothed with linen: who took it, and went out.

The reluctant departure of God's glory from the temple demonstrates that only with great long-suffering and hesitation did God's Spirit leave His abode. The fact that the Spirit of God was not present in the temple explains how Nebuchadnezzar's men were later, in 586 B.C., able to destroy the temple completely, including the Holy of Holies, without divine judgment. For the scriptural teaching on the shekinah glory, see the note on 1 Kings 8:10-12.

6 ^aYe have multiplied your slain in this city, and ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain.

7 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aYour slain whom ye have laid in the midst of it, they are the flesh, and this city is the caldron: ^bbut I will bring you forth out of the midst of it.

8 Ye have ^afeared the sword; and I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord GOD.

9 And I will bring you out of the midst thereof, and deliver you into the hands of strangers, and ^awill execute judgments among you.

10 ^aYe shall fall by the sword; I will judge you in ^bthe border of Israel; ^cand ye shall know that I am the LORD.

thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?

14 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

15 Son of man, thy brethren, even thy ¹brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far from the LORD: unto us is this land given in possession.

16 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Although I have cast them far off among the ¹heathen, and although I have scattered them among the countries, ^ayet will I be to them as a little ²sanctuary in the countries where they shall come.

17 Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aI will even gather you from the people, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.

18 And they shall come thither, and they shall take away all the ^adetestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence.

19 And ^aI will give them one heart, and I will put ^ba new spirit within ¹you; and I will take ^cthe stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh:

20 ^aThat they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ¹ordinances, and do them: ^band they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

21 But as for them whose heart walketh after the heart of their detestable things and their abominations, ^aI will ¹recompense their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord GOD.

The Glory of the Lord on the Mountain

22 Then did the cherubims ^alift up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was ¹over them above.

23 And ^athe glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city, and stood ^bupon the mountain ^cwhich is on the east side of the city.

24 Afterwards ^athe spirit took me up, and brought me in a vision by the Spirit of God into ¹Chaldea, to them of the captivity. So the vision that I had seen went up from me.

25 Then I spake unto them of the captivity all the things that the LORD had shewed me.

Removed from Thy Place

12 The word of the LORD also came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of ^aa rebellious house, which ^bhave eyes to see, and see not; they have ears to hear, and hear not: ^cfor they are a rebellious house.

3 Therefore, thou son of man, prepare ¹thee stuff for removing, and ²remove by day in their sight; and thou shalt remove from thy place to another place in their sight: it may be they will consider, though they be a rebellious house.

4 Then shalt thou bring forth thy ¹stuff by day in their sight, as ¹stuff ²for removing: and thou shalt go forth at ³even in their sight, as they that go forth into captivity.

5 Dig thou through the wall in their sight, and carry out thereby.

6 In their sight shalt thou bear it upon thy shoulders, and carry it forth in the twilight: thou shalt cover thy face, that thou see not the ground: ^afor I have set thee for a sign unto the house of Israel.

7 And I did so as I was commanded: I brought forth my ¹stuff by day, as stuff for captivity, and ²in the even I digged through the wall with mine hand; I brought it forth in the twilight, and I bare it upon my shoulder in their sight.

9 Son of man, hath not the house of Israel, ^athe rebellious house, said unto thee, ^bWhat doest thou?

10 Say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; This ^aburden ¹concerneth the prince in Jerusalem, and all the house of Israel that are among them.

11 Say, ^aI am your sign: like as I have done, so shall it be done unto them: ^bthey shall ¹remove and go into captivity.

12 And ^athe prince that is among them shall ¹bear upon his shoulder in the twilight, and shall go forth: they shall dig through the wall to carry out thereby: he shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with his eyes.

13 My ^anet also will I spread ¹upon him, and he shall be ²taken in my snare: and ^bI will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans; yet shall he not see it, though he shall die there.

14 And ^aI will scatter toward every wind all that are about him to help him, and all his ¹bands; and ^bI will draw out the sword after them.

15 ^aAnd they shall know that I am the LORD, when I shall scatter them among the nations, and disperse them ¹in the countries.

A Remnant Shall Be Saved

16 ^aBut I will leave a few men of them from the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence; that they may declare all their abominations among the ¹heathen whither they come; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

Eat and Drink with Carefulness

17 Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

12:3. Prepare thee stuff for removing means "prepare your baggage." Later, Ezekiel is commanded to carry the baggage through a hole in the wall (v. 5). The significance of these strange actions is clearly explained: preparing the baggage represents the inhabitants of Jerusalem who must pack their bags and go into captivity (v. 11); the exit through the hole in the wall pictured the vain attempt of King Zedekiah to escape from Nebuchadrezzar (vv. 12, 13). Both of these prophetic actions were literally fulfilled when Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 B.C. The people were taken captive, and Zedekiah's attempted escape was foiled. He was compelled to watch his sons slain before his eyes. His eyes were then blinded, and he was taken to Babylon (2 Kin. 25:1-7; Jer. 52:4-11).

12:18. Eat thy bread with quaking introduces the second sign in the chapter. Ezekiel was to tremble as he ate and drank, as a sign of the terror that would grip the nation back in Judah.

18 Son of man, ^aeat thy bread with ¹quaking, and drink thy water with trembling and with ²carefulness;

19 And say unto the people of the land, Thus saith the Lord GOD ¹of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the land of Israel; They shall eat their bread with ²carefulness, and drink their water with ³astonishment, that her land may ^abe ⁴desolate from all that is therein, ^bbecause of the violence of all them that dwell therein.

20 And the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste, and the land shall be desolate; and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

The Judgment Shall Come Soon

21 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

22 Son of man, what is that proverb that ye have in the land of Israel, saying, ^aThe days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?

23 Tell them therefore, Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will make this proverb to cease, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel; but say unto them, ^aThe days are at hand, and the ¹effect of every vision.

24 For ^athere shall be no more any ^bvain¹ vision nor flattering divination within the house of Israel.

25 For I am the LORD: I will speak, and ^athe word that I shall speak shall come to pass; it shall be no more ¹prolonged: for in your days, O rebellious house, will I say the word, and will ^bperform it, saith the Lord GOD.

26 Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

27 ^aSon of man, behold, they of the house of Israel say, The vision that he seeth is ^bfor many days ¹to come, and he prophesieth of the times that are far off.

28 ^aTherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; There shall none of my words be ¹prolonged any more, but the word which I have spoken ^bshall be done, saith the Lord GOD.

Woe on the Foolish Prophets

13 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, prophesy ^aagainst the prophets of Israel that prophesy, and say thou unto ^bthem that prophesy out of their own ^chearts, ¹Hear ye the word of the LORD;

3 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Woe unto the foolish prophets, that follow their own spirit, and have seen ¹nothing!

4 O Israel, thy prophets are ^alike the foxes in the deserts.

5 Ye ^ahave not gone up into the ¹gaps, neither ²made up the hedge for the house of Israel to stand in the battle in the day of the LORD.

6 ^aThey have seen ¹vanity and lying divination, saying, The LORD saith: and the LORD hath ^bnot sent them: ²and they have made others to hope that they would confirm the word.

7 Have ye not seen a ¹vain vision, and have ye not spoken ²a lying divination, whereas ye say, The LORD saith it; albeit I have not spoken?

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because ye have spoken vanity, and ¹seen lies, therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord GOD.

9 And mine hand shall be ^aupon¹ the prophets that see ²vanity, and that ^bdivine lies: they shall not be in the assembly of my people, ^cneither shall they be written in the ³writing of the house of Israel, ^dneither shall they enter into the land of Israel; ^eand ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

10 Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, ^aPeace; and there was no peace; and one built up a wall, and, lo, others ^bdaubed¹ it with ²untempered mortar:

11 Say unto them which ¹daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall: ^athere shall be ²an overflowing shower; and ye, O great hailstones, shall fall; and a stormy wind shall³rend it.

12 Lo, when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said unto you, Where is the¹daubing wherewith ye have²daubed it?

A Stormy Wind of Fury

13 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; I will¹even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury; and there shall be²an overflowing shower in mine anger, and great hailstones in my fury to consume it.

14 So will I break down the wall that ye have¹daubed with untempered mortar, and bring it down to the ground, so that the foundation thereof shall be discovered, and it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof: ^aand ye shall know that I am the LORD.

15 Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall, and upon them that have¹daubed it with untempered mortar, and will say unto you, The wall is no more, neither they that¹daubed it;

16 To wit, the prophets of Israel which prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and which^asee visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord GOD.

Woe to the Women

17 Likewise, thou son of man, ^aset thy face against the daughters of thy people, ^bwhich prophesy out of their own¹heart; and prophesy thou against them,

18 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Woe to the women that sew¹pillows to all armholes, and make²kerchiefs upon the head of every stature to hunt souls! Will ye^ahunt the souls of my people, and will ye³save the souls alive that come unto you?

and for pieces of bread,²to slay the souls that should not die, and³to save the souls alive that should not live, by your lying to my people that hear your lies?

20 Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against your¹pillows, wherewith ye there hunt the souls²to make them fly, and I will tear them from your arms, and will let the souls go, even the souls that ye hunt²to make them fly.

Idols in Their Heart

14 Then^acame certain of the elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me.

2 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, these men have set up their idols in their heart, and put^athe¹ stumblingblock of their iniquity before their face: ^bshould I be enquired of at all by them?

4 Therefore speak unto them, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet; I the LORD will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols;

13:18. The pillows sewn to the armholes have been interpreted to refer to either amulets placed upon the wrists that supposedly conveyed magical powers to the enchanter, or bonds tied around the wrists of the inquirer that symbolized magically that the accompanying spell or incantation was a binding one.

14:1–3. Certain of the elders of Israel ... sat before me: Much of the content of this chapter is directed against these men because they have set up their idols in their heart. Their idolatry, unlike that back in Jerusalem, was internal.

5 That I may ¹take the house of Israel in their own heart, because they are all estranged from me through their idols.

Repent and Turn from Idols

6 Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Repent, and ¹turn yourselves from your idols; and ^aturn away your faces from all your abominations.

7 For every one of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, which separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to enquire of him concerning me; I the LORD will answer him by myself:

8 And ^aI will set my face against that man, and will make him a ^bsign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; ^cand ye shall know that I am the LORD.

9 And if the prophet be ¹deceived ²when he hath spoken a thing, I the LORD ^ahave ¹deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand ³upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel.

10 And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity: the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that ¹seeketh unto him;

I Will Be Their God

11 That the house of Israel may ^ago no more astray from me, neither be ¹polluted any more with all their transgressions; ^bbut that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord GOD.

12 The word of the LORD came again to me, saying,

A Charred Vine

15 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

5 Behold, when it was whole, ¹it was meet for no work: how much less shall it be ²meet yet for any work, when the fire hath devoured it, and it is burned?

The Fire of God's Judgment

6 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As the ¹vine tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so will I give the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

7 And ^aI will set my face against them; ^bthey shall go out from one fire, and another fire shall devour them; ^cand ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them.

Jerusalem Is Cast Out in a Field

16 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^acause Jerusalem to know her abominations,

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD unto Jerusalem; Thy ¹birth ^aand thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; ^bthy father was an Amorite, and thy mother an Hittite.

4 And as for thy ¹nativity, ^ain the day thou wast born thy ²navel was not cut, neither wast thou washed in water to ³supple thee; thou wast not ⁴salted at all, nor ⁵swaddled at all.

5 None eye pitied thee, to do any of these unto thee, to have compassion upon thee; but thou wast cast out in the open field, ¹to the lothing of thy person, in the day that thou wast born.

God's Covenant with Her

6 And when I passed by thee, and saw thee ¹polluted in thine own blood, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live; yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live.

7 ^aI have caused thee to ¹multiply as the ²bud of the field, and thou ³hast increased and ⁴waxen great, and thou ⁵art come to excellent ornaments: thy breasts are fashioned, and thine hair is grown, whereas thou wast naked and bare.

8 Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, behold, thy time was the time of love; ^aand I spread my ¹skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I ^bsware² unto thee, and entered into a ^ccovenant with thee, saith the Lord GOD, and ^dthou becamest mine.

15:2. What is the vine tree more than any tree?

begins a vivid allegory picturing Israel as a grapevine that is no longer bearing fruit. Since a grapevine is not good for wood or building (vv. 2, 3), once it has ceased to bear fruit, it can only be cast into the fire (v. 4). The point was clear: the nation had ceased to bear the fruit of righteousness and was therefore destined for judgment. For Israel as God's vine, see the note on 19:10-14; see also Isaiah 5:1-7 and Hosea 10:1.

16:1. In this chapter the nation is compared to a foundling, an infant that has been deserted by its parents. The statement "thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother an Hittite" (v. 3) is, of course, not to be taken literally. It is like the statement that Sodom was a sister of Jerusalem (v. 46). Rather, it pictures the idolatrous character of the people in Jerusalem. Though the LORD had compassion on her as one would have compassion on a foundling, Jerusalem still loved her idols (vv. 23-29) and became like a brazen prostitute (vv. 30-34). Therefore, the Lord says, "I will judge thee" (v. 38).

A striking contrast occurs here. Rather than reproaching the character of God who had reclaimed her as an unwanted infant that had been exposed to death (vv. 4-6), Israel had degenerated so far in its pagan practices that it participated in the abominable rites of infant sacrifice (v. 20; see the note on Jer. 7:31, 32).

9 Then washed I thee with water; yea, I thoroughly washed away thy blood from thee, and I anointed thee with oil.

10 I clothed thee also with brodered ¹work, and shod thee with ²'badgers' skin, and I girded thee about with fine linen, and I covered thee with silk.

11 I decked thee also with ornaments, and I ^aput bracelets upon thy hands, ^band a chain on thy neck.

12 And I put a ¹jewel on thy forehead, and earrings in thine ears, and a beautiful crown upon thine head.

13 Thus wast thou decked with gold and silver; and thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and brodered ¹work, ^a'thou didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil: and thou wast exceeding ^bbeautiful, and thou didst ²prosper into a kingdom.

14 And ^athy renown went forth among the ¹heathen for thy beauty: for it was perfect through my ²comeliness, which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord GOD.

She Has Played the Harlot

15 ^aBut thou didst trust in thine own beauty, ^band playedst the harlot because of thy ¹renown, and pouredst out thy ²fornications on every one that passed by; his it was.

16 ^aAnd ¹of thy garments thou didst take, and ²deckedst thy ³high places with divers colours, and playedst the harlot thereupon: the like things shall not come, neither shall it be so.

17 Thou hast also taken thy ¹fair jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and madest to thyself ²images of men, and didst ³commit whoredom with them,

18 And tookest thy brodered garments, and coveredst them: and thou hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.

19 ^a'My ¹meat also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou hast even set it before them ²for a sweet savour: and thus it was, saith the Lord GOD.

The Parable of the Eagles

17 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, put forth a riddle, and speak a ^aparable unto the house of Israel;

3 And say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aA great eagle with great wings, ¹longwinged, full of feathers, which had ²divers colours, came unto Lebanon, and ^btook the highest branch of the cedar:

16:59-62. In spite of the severity of His judgment on Israel, the Lord will not cast His people off forever, because He says, I will remember my covenant. The everlasting covenant mentioned here is the same as Jeremiah's new covenant (Jer. 31:31-34). It will be ratified for Israel at the time when it will know that I am the LORD, which can take place only during the Millennium.

17:1-21. The allegory of the two eagles and the vine is used to show the futility of the nation's dependence on foreign powers. The first eagle, Nebuchadnezzar, had gone to Lebanon, which represented Jerusalem. Though he took the highest branch of the cedar (v. 3), meaning that he took the king and nobles into captivity (597 B.C.), yet he left the seed of the land (v. 5), or a remnant. They, in turn, appealed to another great eagle (v. 7), which was Egypt. This description refers to Zedekiah's vain attempt to get military assistance from Egypt. This alliance forced Nebuchadnezzar to return later to Jerusalem and destroy it.

4 He cropped off ¹the top of his young twigs, and carried it into a land of ²traffick; he set it in a city of merchants.

5 He took also ¹of the seed of the land, and planted it in ^aa ²fruitful field; he placed it by ³great waters, and set it ^bas a willow tree.

6 And it grew, and became a spreading vine ^aof low stature, whose branches turned toward him, and the roots thereof were under him: so it became a vine, and brought forth branches, and shot forth sprigs.

7 There was also another great eagle with great wings and many feathers: and, behold, ^athis vine did bend her roots toward him, and shot forth her branches toward him, that he might water it by the furrows ¹of her plantation.

8 It was planted in a good ¹soil by ²great waters, that it might bring forth branches, and that it might bear fruit, that it might be a ³goodly vine.

9 Say thou, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Shall it ¹prosper? ^ashall he not pull up the roots thereof, and cut off the fruit thereof, that it wither? ²it shall wither in all the leaves of her spring, even without great power or many people to pluck it up by the roots thereof.

10 Yea, behold, being planted, shall it ¹prosper? ^ashall it not utterly wither, when the east wind toucheth it? it shall wither in the furrows where it grew.

11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Say now to ^athe rebellious house, Know ye not what these things mean? tell them, Behold, ^bthe king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem, and hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof, and led them with him to Babylon;

16 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, surely ^ain the place where the king dwelleth that made him king, whose oath he despised, and whose covenant he brake, even with him in the midst of Babylon he shall die.

God's Punishment of Zedekiah

19 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; As I live, surely mine oath that he hath despised, and my covenant that he hath broken, even it will I recompense upon his own head.

20 And I will ^aspread my net upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon, and ^bwill plead with him there for his ¹trespass that he hath trespassed against me.

21 And ^aall his fugitives with all his ¹bands shall fall by the sword, and they that remain shall be ^bscattered toward all winds: and ye shall know that I the LORD have spoken it.

22 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will also take of the highest ^abranch of the high cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the top of his young twigs ^ba tender one, and will ^cplant it upon an high mountain and ¹eminent:

23 ^aIn¹ the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it: and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a ²goodly cedar: and ^bunder it shall dwell all fowl of every wing; in the shadow of the branches thereof shall they dwell.

24 And all the trees of the field shall know that I the LORD ^ahave brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish: ^bI the LORD have spoken and have done it.

The Sinning Soul Shall Die

18 The word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

2 What mean ye, that ye use this proverb concerning the land of Israel, saying, The ^afathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge?

3 As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel.

4 Behold, all souls are ^amine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: ^bthe soul that sinneth, it shall die.

17:22-24. I will also take of the highest branch: The Lord is the speaker, and He here promises to be like an eagle Himself. Yet He will take a branch, one of the Davidic line, and plant it upon an high mountain (i.e., reestablish the kingdom to Israel).

18:2. The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge was evidently a well-known proverb (cf. Jer. 31:29, 30). The point of it is that children suffer for their parents' sins. However, this proverb was not true in the case of Israel, and the Lord tells them that they may not use the proverb anymore. Evidently the people thought they were suffering unjustly for their ancestors' sins. Though there is an element of truth in the statement that the children suffer as a consequence of the parents' sins (Ex. 20:5; 34:6, 7; Deut. 5:9), it could not be applied here. The proverb was being used as a lame excuse for their own sinful condition. Rather, the Lord says, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father" (v. 20). Ezekiel thus preserves in proper balance the tragic consequences of sin and the principle of individual accountability.

17 That hath ¹taken off his hand from the poor, that hath not received usury nor increase, hath executed my judgments, hath walked in my statutes; he shall not die for the iniquity of his father, he shall surely live.

Every Soul Bears Its Own Iniquity

18 As for his father, because he cruelly oppressed, ¹spoiled his brother by violence, and did that which is not good among his people, lo, even ^ahe shall die ²in his iniquity.

19 Yet say ye, Why? ^adoth not the son bear the ¹iniquity of the father? When the son hath done that which is lawful and right, and hath kept all my statutes, and hath done them, he shall surely live.

20 ^aThe soul that sinneth, it shall die. ^bThe son shall not bear the ¹iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the ¹iniquity of the son: ^cthe righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, ^dand the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.

21 But ^aif the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.

22 ^aAll his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be ¹mentioned unto him: in his righteousness that he hath done he shall ^blive.

23 ^aHave I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord GOD: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?

24 But ^awhen the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? ^bAll his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned:

2 And say, What is thy mother? A lioness: she lay down among lions, she nourished her ¹whelps among young lions.

19:1-9. This lamentation (v. 1) is the first of five laments found in the book (26:17, 18; 27:1-36; 28:12-19; 32:1-16). The lament was well known in the ancient Near East as a complimentary song on behalf of a deceased person. Often it is used in the Old Testament in a sarcastic sense. The imagery in this particular lament is a vivid summary of Israel's history relative to Ezekiel's day. The lioness is the na-¹whelps: “it became a young lion, and it learned to catch the prey; it devoured men.

4 The nations also heard of him; he was ¹taken in their pit, and they brought him with chains unto the land of ^aEgypt.

5 Now when she saw that she had waited, and her hope was lost, then she took ^aanother of her ¹whelps, and made him a young lion.

6 And he went up and down among the lions, ^bhe became a young lion, and learned to catch the prey, and devoured men.

7 And he knew ¹their desolate palaces, and he laid waste their cities; and the land was desolate, and the fulness thereof, by the noise of his roaring.

8 ^aThen the nations set against him on every side from the provinces, and spread their net over him: ^bhe was ¹taken in their pit.

9 ^aAnd they put him in ¹ward in chains, and brought him to the king of Babylon: they brought him ²into holds, that his voice should no more be heard upon ^bthe mountains of Israel.

Judgment on the Elders

20 And it came to pass in the seventh year, in the fifth month, the tenth day of the month, that ^acertain of the elders of Israel came to enquire of the LORD, and sat before me.

2 Then came the word of the LORD unto me, saying,

3 Son of man, speak unto the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye come to enquire of me? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ^aI will not be enquired of by you.

4 Wilt thou judge them, son of tion, and her whelps are her kings (v. 2). One of her whelps who became a young lion was Jehoahaz who succeeded the ill-fated Josiah. Jehoahaz reigned only three months when they brought him with chains unto the land of Egypt (v. 4), a reference to his deportation to Egypt by Pharaoh-nechoh II, where Jehoahaz died in humiliation (2 Kin. 23:31-34; Jer. 22:11, 12). Another of her whelps who became a young lion (v. 5) is a reference to Jehoiachin (Jehoiakim, who reigned between Jehoahaz and Jehoiachin, is not mentioned). Like Jehoahaz, Jehoiachin ruled only three months before he was deported, this time to Babylon by Nebuchadrezzar (v. 9; cf. 2 Kin. 24:8-17). The statement that he laid waste their cities (v. 7) refers to the terrifying reign of Jehoiachin.

19:10-14. The picture changes here. Israel is no longer a lion, but a vine. The vine was a product of everyday life in Israel, and was frequently used by the prophets and others to serve as a picture of the nation (Is. 5:1-7; Ezek. 15:1-8; 17:5-10). These verses seem to be addressed to the present king, Zedekiah, as a reminder that in her past Israel was fruitful and full of branches. However, her doom is so certain that it is pictured as completed: she was plucked up in fury (v. 12). The statement that she hath no strong rod is a reference to the fact that Zedekiah was the last king of the nation. Not until the millennial reign of Jesus Christ will Israel have another king.

20:1-44. Ezekiel gives here a panoramic view of the history of Israel. It is in two parts: her rebellious past (vv. 1-31) and her glorious future (vv. 32-44). The first part surveys all that the Lord had done for the nation, and the nation's sorely inadequate response. So wicked had the Israelites become that God gave them over to their own evil practices in the hope that a sense of horror at their own deeds would shock them into repentance (vv. 25, 26; cf. Acts 7:42, 43; Rom. 1:24, 25). The mood changes dramatically at verse 33 where, in a series of the words I will, the Lord promises what He will accomplish on behalf of His people. The final verse summarizes the spiritual changes that will transpire: Ye shall know that I am the LORD (v. 44). This can be fulfilled only in the Millennium, when such spiritual transformations are wrought.

man, wilt thou judge them? ^acause them to know the abominations of their fathers:

5 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day when ^aI chose Israel, and ¹lifted up mine hand unto the seed of the house of Jacob, and made myself ^bknown unto them in the land of Egypt, when I lifted up mine hand unto them, saying, ^cI am the LORD your God;

6 In the day that I ¹lifted up mine hand unto them, ^ato bring them forth of the land of Egypt into a land that I had ²espied for them, ^bflowing with milk and honey, which is ^cthe glory of all lands:

7 Then said I unto them, ^aCast ye away every man ^bthe abominations ¹of his eyes, and defile not yourselves with ^cthe idols of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

Israel's Rebellion

8 But they rebelled against me, and would not ¹hearken unto me: they did not every man cast away the abominations ²of their eyes, neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt: then I said, I will ^apour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt.

14 ^aBut I ¹wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be ²polluted before the ³heathen, in whose sight I brought them out.

Israel's Punishment in the Wilderness

15 Yet also ^aI ¹lifted up my hand unto them in the wilderness, that I would not bring them into the land which I had given them, ^bflowing with milk and honey, which is ^cthe glory of all lands;

16 ^aBecause they despised my judgments, and walked not in my statutes, but ¹polluted my sabbaths: for ^btheir heart went after their idols.

17 ^aNevertheless mine eye spared them from destroying them, neither did I make an end of them in the wilderness.

18 But I said unto their children in the wilderness, Walk ye not in the statutes of your fathers, neither observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols:

19 I am the LORD your God; ^awalk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them;

20 ^aAnd hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the LORD your God.

21 Notwithstanding ^athe children rebelled against me: they walked not in my statutes, neither kept my judgments to do them, ^bwhich if a man do, he shall even live in them; they ¹polluted my sabbaths: then I said, I would pour out my fury upon them, to accomplish my anger against them in the wilderness.

22 Nevertheless I withdrew mine ¹hand, and wrought for my name's sake, that it should not be ²polluted in the sight of the ³heathen, in whose sight I brought them forth.

God's Lifted Hand

23 I ¹lifted up mine hand unto them also in the wilderness, that ^aI would scatter them among the ²heathen, and disperse them through the countries;

24 ^aBecause they had not executed my judgments, but had despised my statutes, and had ¹polluted my sabbaths, and ^btheir eyes were after their fathers' idols.

25 Wherefore ^aI gave them also statutes that were not good, and judgments whereby they ¹should not live;

26 And I ¹polluted them in their ²own gifts, in that they caused to pass ^athrough the fire all ³that openeth the womb, that I might make them desolate, to the end that they ^bmight know that I am the LORD.

27 Therefore, son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Yet in this your fathers have ^ablasphemed me, in that they have ¹committed a trespass against me.

28 For when I had brought them into the land, for the which I ¹lifted up mine hand to give it to them, then ^athey saw every high hill, and all the thick trees, and they offered there their sacrifices, and there they presented the provocation of their offering: there also they made their ^bsweet² savour, and poured out there their drink offerings.

29 Then I said unto them, What is the ¹high place whereunto ye go? And the name thereof is called ²Bamah unto this day.

30 Wherefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Are ye ¹polluted after the manner of your ^afathers? and commit ye ²whoredom after their ^babominations?

31 For when ye offer ^ayour gifts, when ye make your sons to pass through the fire, ye ¹pollute yourselves with all your idols, even unto this day: and shall I be enquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will ^bnot be enquired of by you.

God's Unquenchable Fire

45 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

46 ^aSon of man, set thy face toward the south, and ¹drop thy word toward the south, and prophesy against the ²forest of the ³south field;

47 And say to the forest of the south, Hear the word of the LORD; Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, ^aI will kindle a fire in thee, and it shall devour ^bevery green tree in thee, and every dry tree: the ¹flaming flame shall not be quenched, and all faces ^cfrom the south to the north shall be ²burned therein.

48 And all flesh shall see that I the LORD have kindled it: it shall not be quenched.

God's Judgment Sword

21 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

20:45–49. In this parable God warns that He would judge the nation just as an unquenchable forest fire devours every green tree (v. 47).

21:1–32. Since the people did not seem to understand the parable of the devouring fire (20:49), Ezekiel now explains the impending judgment in terms of a sword. First, the Lord is pictured as a warrior who says, I the LORD have drawn forth my sword out of his sheath (v. 5). Then the sword is sharpened to make a sore slaughter (v. 10) and directed toward Judah (v. 20). Finally, Ammon would likewise be slain by the sword (vv. 28–32). Verse 21 gives interesting in-

2 ^aSon of man, set thy face toward Jerusalem, and ^bdrop ¹thy word toward the holy places, and prophesy against the land of Israel,

3 And say to the land of Israel, Thus saith the LORD; Behold, I am ^aagainst thee, and will draw forth my sword out of his sheath, and will cut off from thee ^bthe righteous and the wicked.

4 Seeing then that I will cut off from thee the righteous and the wicked, therefore shall my sword go forth out of his sheath against all flesh ^afrom the south to the north:

5 That all flesh may know that I the LORD have drawn forth my sword out of his sheath: it ^ashall not return any more.

6 ^aSigh therefore, thou son of man, with ¹the breaking of thy loins; and with bitterness sigh before their eyes.

7 And it shall be, when they say unto thee, Wherefore sighest thou? that thou shalt answer, ¹For the tidings; because it cometh: and every heart shall melt, and ^aall hands shall be feeble, and every spirit shall faint, and all knees shall be weak as water: behold, it cometh, and shall be brought to pass, saith the Lord GOD.

8 Again the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

9 Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the LORD; Say, ^aA sword, a sword is sharpened, and also ¹furbished:

10 It is sharpened to make a ¹sore slaughter; it is ²furbished that it may ³glitter: should we then make mirth? it ⁴contemneth the rod of my son, as ⁵every tree.

11 And he hath given it to be ¹furbished, that it may be handled: this sight into the Babylonian practice of divination. Three distinct ways for determining the will of the gods are mentioned: casting arrows (much like our "drawing straws"), consulting images (perhaps directly or as mediums to departed spirits), and hepatoscopy, or the examination of livers. In the last-named practice a sacrificial animal was slain, its liver was examined, and the particular shape and configuration was compared with a catalog of symptoms and predictions. The point is that no matter how much the Babylonian king foolishly uses his divination, the will of the one true God will be accomplished.

sword is sharpened, and it is ¹furbished, to give it into the hand of ^athe slayer.

12 Cry and ¹howl, son of man: for it shall be upon my people, it shall be upon all the princes of Israel: ²terrors by reason of the sword shall be upon my people: ^asmite³ therefore upon thy thigh.

13 Because it is ^aa trial, and what if the sword ²contemn even the rod? ^bit³ shall be no more, saith the Lord GOD.

The Sword of the Slain

14 Thou therefore, son of man, prophesy, and ^asmite¹ thine hands together, and let the sword ²be doubled the third time, the sword of the slain: it is the sword ³of the great men that are slain, which entereth into their ^bprivy⁴ chambers.

15 I have set the point of the sword against all their gates, that their heart may ¹faint, and ²*their* ruins be multiplied: ah! ^a*it is* made bright, it is ³wrapped up for the slaughter.

16 ^aGo¹ thee one way or other, either on the right hand, or on the left, whithersoever thy ²face is set.

17 I will also ^asmite¹ mine hands together, and ^bI will cause my fury to rest: I the LORD have said it.

The Sword of the King of Babylon

18 The word of the LORD came unto me again, saying,

19 Also, thou son of man, appoint thee two ways, ¹that the sword of the king of Babylon ²may come: both twain shall come forth out of one land: and ³choose thou a place, choose it at the head of the way to the city.

20 Appoint a way, that the sword may come to ^aRabbath of the Ammonites, and to Judah ¹in Jerusalem the defenced.

21 For the king of Babylon stood at the parting of the way, at the head of the two ways, to use divination: he ¹made his arrows bright, he consulted with ²images, he looked in the liver.

the LORD GOD, when the LORD hath not spoken.

29 The people of the land have used oppression, and exercised robbery, and have ¹vexed the poor and needy: yea, they have ^a“oppressed the stranger wrongfully.

The Fire of God's Wrath

30 ^a“And I sought for a man among them, that should ^bmake up ¹the hedge, and ^cstand in the gap before me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none.

31 Therefore have I ^a“poured out mine indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath: ^btheir ¹own way have I recompensed upon their heads, saith the Lord GOD.

Whoredoms in Egypt

23 The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, there were ^a“two women, the daughters of one mother:

3 And ^a“they committed ¹whoredoms in Egypt; they committed ¹whoredoms in ^btheir youth: there were their breasts ²pressed, and there they bruised ³the teats of their virginity.

4 And the names of them were ¹Aholah the elder, and ²Aholibah ^a“her sister: and ^bthey were mine, and they bare sons and daughters. Thus were their names; Samaria is ¹Aholah, and Jerusalem ²Aholibah.

22:23-31. In a veritable catalog of the nation's sins, every guilty party is singled out for judgment: the false prophets who have devoured souls (v. 25); the priests who have violated my law (v. 26); the princes who are like wolves ravens the prey (v. 27); and the people who have used oppression and exercised robbery (v. 29). No one will be left out of the judgment. In one of the saddest verses in the book, the Lord Himself confesses that He found no one who could stand in the gap, to stem the tide that would inevitably bring destruction (v. 30).

23:2. There were two women, the daughters of one mother: With this statement the allegory of the two sisters is introduced. The chapter is actually a re-statement of the unfaithfulness of Judah that Ezekiel presented earlier in chapter 16. The emphasis in the present chapter, however, is on Judah's trusting alliances with other nations, rather than her confidence in idols shown in chapter 16.

23:4. Aholah and Aholibah are the names assigned in Ezekiel's parable to Samaria and Jerusalem, respectively, the capitals of Israel and Judah. Both became spiritual prostitutes. The entire chapter is an exposition of this theme.

6 Which were clothed with ¹blue, captains and rulers, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding upon horses.

7 Thus she committed her ¹whoredoms with them, with all them that were the ²chosen men of Assyria, and with all ³on whom she doted: with all their idols she defiled herself.

8 Neither left she her ¹whoredoms brought ^afrom Egypt: for in her youth they lay with her, and they ²bruised the breasts of her virginity, and poured their ³whoredom upon her.

9 Wherefore I have delivered her into the hand of her lovers, into the hand of the ^aAssyrians, upon whom she ¹doted.

10 These ¹discovered her nakedness: they took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword: and she became ²famous among women; for they had executed judgment upon her.

Judah's Alliance with Assyria

11 And ^awhen her sister ¹Aholibah saw this, ^bshe was more corrupt in her inordinate love than she, and in her ²whoredoms more than her sister in her ²whoredoms.

12 She ¹doted upon the ^aAssyrians her neighbours, ^bcaptains and rulers clothed most gorgeously, horsemen riding upon horses, all of them desirable young men.

13 Then I saw that she was defiled, that they took both one way, 17 And the ¹Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their ²whoredom, and she was ³polluted with them, and ^aher ⁴mind was alienated from them.

18 So she ¹discovered her whoredoms, and ²discovered her nakedness: then ^amy ³mind was ^balienated from her, like as my mind was alienated from her sister.

Judah's Alliance with Egypt

19 Yet she multiplied her ¹whoredoms, in calling to remembrance the days of her youth, ^awherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.

20 For she ¹doted upon their ²par-amours, whose flesh is as the flesh of ³asses, and whose issue is like the issue of horses.

21 Thus thou calledst to remembrance the lewdness of thy youth, ¹in bruising thy teats by the ^aEgyptians for the paps of thy youth.

22 Therefore, O ¹Aholibah, thus saith the Lord God; ^aBehold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee, from whom ²thy mind is alienated, and I will bring them against thee on every side;

23 The Babylonians, and all the Chaldeans, ^aPekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and ^ball the Assyrians with them: all of them desirable young men, ¹captains and rulers, ²great lords and renowned, all of them riding upon horses.

27 Thus ^awill I make thy lewdness to cease from thee, and thy ^bwhoredom ¹brought from the land of Egypt: so that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, nor remember Egypt any more.

Judah's Punishment

28 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them ^awhom thou hatest, into the hand of them ^bfrom whom thy mind is alienated:

29 ^aAnd they shall deal with thee hatefully, and shall take away all ¹thy labour, and ^bshall leave thee naked and bare: and the nakedness of thy ²whoredoms shall be ³discovered, both thy lewdness and thy ²whoredoms.

30 I will do these things unto thee, because thou hast ^agone ¹a whoring after the ²heathen, and because thou art ³polluted with their idols.

Judah to Drink of Israel's Cup

31 Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister; therefore will I give her ^acup into thine hand.

32 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup deep and ¹large: ^athou shalt be laughed to scorn and ²had in derision; it containeth much.

33 Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow, with the cup of ¹astonishment and desolation, with the cup of thy sister Samaria.

34 Thou shalt ^aeven drink it and ¹suck it out, and thou shalt break the ²sheds thereof, and ³pluck off thine own breasts: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

The Sins of Israel and Judah

36 The LORD said moreover unto me; Son of man, wilt thou ^ajudge Aholah and Aholibah? yea, ^bdeclare unto them their abominations;

37 That they have committed adultery, and ^ablood is in their hands, and with their idols have they committed adultery, and have also caused their sons, ^bwhom they bare unto me, to pass for them through the fire, to devour them.

38 Moreover this they have done unto me: they have ^adefiled my sanctuary in the same day, and ^bhave profaned my sabbaths.

39 For when they had slain their children to their idols, then they came the same day into my sanctuary to profane it; and, lo, ^athus have they done in the midst of mine house.

40 And furthermore, that ye have sent for men to come from far, ^aunto whom a messenger was sent; and, lo, they came: for whom thou didst ^bwash thyself, ^cpaintedst thy eyes, and ¹deckedst thyself with ornaments,

41 And satest upon a ¹stately ^abed, and a table prepared before it, ^bwhereupon thou hast set mine incense and mine oil.

42 And a voice of a ¹multitude being at ease was with her: and with the men of the common sort were brought ²Sabeans from the wilderness, which put bracelets upon their ³hands, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

43 Then said I unto her that was old in adulteries, Will they now commit ¹whoredoms with her, and she with them?

44 Yet they went in unto her, as they go in unto a woman that playeth the harlot: so went they in unto Aholah and unto Aholibah, the lewd women.

Lewdness to Cease in the Land

45 And the righteous men, they shall ^ajudge them after the manner of adulteresses, and after the manner of women that shed blood; because they are adulteresses, and ^bblood is in their hands.

46 For thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aI will bring up a company upon them, and will give them to be removed and ¹spoiled.

47 ^aAnd the company shall stone them with stones, and ¹dispatch them with their swords; ^bthey shall slay their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses with fire.

48 Thus ^awill I cause lewdness to cease out of the land, ^bthat all women may be taught not to ¹do after your lewdness.

49 And they shall recompense your lewdness upon you, and ye shall ^abear ¹the sins of your idols: ^band ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

GOD; Woe to ^athe bloody city, to the pot whose scum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it! bring it out piece by piece; let no ^blot fall upon it.

7 For her blood is in the midst of her; she set it upon the top of a rock; ^ashe poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust;

24:1. The date given here is January 15, 588 B.C., the time when Nebuchadrezzar placed Jerusalem under siege. This date became remembered annually as a day of fasting (cf. Zech. 8:19).

24:3. Set on a pot introduces the allegory of the boiling caldron. The picture is that of Jerusalem as a pot. Those who were in that pot thought they were safe (cf. ch. 11), but in Ezekiel's story they are destroyed, just as choice pieces of meat are chopped up and put into the pot. Furthermore, the inhabitants of Jerusalem could be compared to scum (v. 6) that floats to the top during cooking.

24:16. I take away from thee the desire of thine eyes ... neither shalt thou mourn: This meant that God was taking away Ezekiel's wife (see v. 18). Ezekiel was not to mourn publicly over her. This silence was a sign that the exiles would lose Jerusalem and many of their loved ones with it. The slaughter and destruction would be so massive that normal expressions of grief would be inadequate. Further, through the prophet's example, the exiles would understand that they must go on in life in obedience to God's purposes for them, despite their own sorrow (v. 24).

eyes with a stroke: yet ^aneither shalt thou mourn nor weep, neither shall thy tears run down.

17 ¹Forbear to cry, ^amake no mourning for the dead, ^bbind the ²tire of thine head upon thee, and ^cput on thy ³shoes upon thy feet, and ^dcover not thy ⁴lips, and eat not ⁵the bread of men.

18 So I spake unto the people in the morning: and at ¹even my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded.

The Destruction of the Temple

19 And the people said unto me, Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou doest so?

20 Then I answered them, The word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 21 Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, ^aI will profane my sanctuary, the ¹excellency of your ²strength, the desire of your eyes, and that which your soul ³pitieth; ^band your sons and your daughters whom ye have left shall fall by the sword.

22 And ye shall do as I have done: ^aye shall not cover your ¹lips, nor eat ²the bread of men.

23 And your ¹tires shall be upon your heads, and your ²shoes upon your feet: ^aye shall not mourn nor weep; but ^bye shall pine away for your iniquities, and mourn one toward another.

Judgment on Ammon

25 The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^aset thy face ^bagainst the Ammonites, and prophesy against them;

3 And say unto the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord GOD; Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aBecause thou saidst, Aha, against my sanctuary, when it was profaned; and against the land of Israel, when it was desolate; and against the house of Judah, when they went into captivity;

4 Behold, therefore I will deliver thee to the ¹men of the east for a possession, and they shall set their ²palaces in thee, and make their dwellings in thee: they shall eat thy fruit, and they shall drink thy milk.

5 And I will make ^aRabbah ^ba stable for camels, and the Ammonites a ¹couching place for flocks: ^cand ye shall know that I am the LORD.

^b Is. 17:2 ^c Ezek. 24:24 ¹ resting place

25:1. Having fully explained the impending destruction of Jerusalem and the reasons for it, Ezekiel turns in chapters 25–32 to pronouncements of judgment on the nations around Jerusalem. The seven nations or cities singled out included all of Judah's neighbors: on the east, Ammon, Moab, and Edom; on the west, Philistia; on the north, Tyre and Sidon in Phoenicia; and to the southwest, Egypt. Though God's judgment began with His own people, it would extend to all nations.

25:1–7. The Ammonites and Israelites were ancient enemies. The numerous national leaders who fought against the Ammonites included Jephthah (Judg. 10:6–11:33), Saul (1 Sam. 11:1–11), David

(1 Chr. 19:1–20:3), and Jehoshaphat (2 Chr. 20:1–30). Because Nebuchadrezzar spared Ammon when he attacked Judah, the Ammonites gloated over Judah's destruction. Because of this unjustified delight at Judah's misfortune, God promises to deliver the Ammonites to the men of the east (v. 4), probably a reference to fierce desert nomads. The formula Because thou ... therefore I will ... and thou shalt know that I am the LORD is used in a stereotyped fashion in the first four pronouncements against foreign powers (Ammon, Moab, Edom, and Philistia). Certainly it demonstrates the uniformity of God's judgment on those who deserve it.

25:8–11. The Moabites were guilty of contempt for 6 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou ^ahast clapped thine hands, and stamped with the feet, and ^brejoiced in heart with all thy ¹despite against the land of Israel;

7 Behold, therefore I will ^astretch out mine hand upon thee, and will deliver thee ¹for a spoil to the ²heathen; and I will cut thee off from the people, and I will cause thee to perish out of the countries: I will destroy thee; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

Judgment on Moab and Edom

8 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because that ^aMoab and ^bSeir do say, Behold, the house of Judah is like unto all the ¹heathen;

9 Therefore, behold, I will ¹open the side of Moab ²from the cities, ²from his cities which are on his frontiers, the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and ^aKiriathaim,

10 ^aUnto the men of the east with the Ammonites, and will give them in possession, that the Ammonites ^bmay not be remembered among the nations.

11 And I will execute judgments upon Moab; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

12 Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aBecause that Edom hath dealt against the house of Judah by taking vengeance, and hath greatly offended, ¹and revenged himself upon them;

Judah. Because of this sin, they would be judged along with the Ammonites.

25:12-14. Throughout its history Edom was one of the chief enemies of Israel. Beginning with its unreasonable refusal to allow Moses and the Israelites to cross its land (Num. 20:14-21), Edom continued to harass and oppose God's people. These included Saul (1 Sam. 14:47), David (2 Sam. 8:13, 14), Solomon (1 Kin. 11:14-18), Jehoram (2 Kin. 8:20-22a), and Ahaz (2 Chr. 28:17). Finally, to add the ultimate insult, Edom sided with Babylon when Nebuchadrezzar invaded Judah in 586 B.C. (Ps. 137:7; Jer. 49:7-22). This sin of Edom is particularly singled out by Ezekiel here: they were conspirators with the Babylonians against Judah. The prophecy of their destruction was fulfilled by 312 B.C. when the Nabatean Arabs, their former allies, conquered them (cf. the Book of Obadiah). Their national identity was lost, though a few migrated west and became Jewish proselytes.

25:15-17. Like the previous enemies, the Philistines were among Israel's mightiest and most durable foes. After temporary setbacks by Israel's judges—

Judgment on Tyrus

26 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^abecause that ¹Tyrus hath said against Jerusalem,

Shamgar (Judg. 3:31), Samson (Judg. 13-16), and Samuel (1 Sam. 7:2-17)—the Philistines became a formidable opponent of Saul and consumed most of his energies as the first king of Israel (1 Sam. 13:1-14:23; 28:1-4; 29:1, 2, 11; 31:1-3, 7-10). It was left to David to subdue them (2 Sam. 5:17-25; 8:1). During the divided monarchy, however, the Philistines opposed Jehoshaphat (2 Chr. 17:10, 11), Jehoram (2 Chr. 21:16, 17), Uzziah (2 Chr. 26:6, 7), and Ahaz (2 Chr. 28:16-18). Philistia's sin at this time was simply her attempted destruction of Judah. When Nebuchadrezzar conquered Judah, he also defeated the Philistines. Though both were subjugated by the Babylonians, the Jews retained their national identity. The Philistines disappeared completely by the end of the intertestamental period. Cherethims (v. 16) is an ancient synonym for the Philistines, possibly indicating a Philistine link with Crete.

26:1-21. The rather lengthy diatribe against Tyre is easily divided into four oracles, each beginning with the expression the word of the LORD came unto me. The first oracle is simply a prophecy of Tyre's destruc-

^bAha, she is broken that was the ²gates of the people: she is ³turned unto me: I shall be ⁴replenished, now she is laid waste:

3 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up.

4 And they shall destroy the walls of ¹Tyrus, and break down her towers: I will also scrape her dust from her, and “make her like the top of a rock.

5 It shall be a place for the spreading of nets ^ain the midst of the sea: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD: and it shall become a ¹spoil to the nations.

6 And her daughters which are in the field shall be slain by the sword; “and they shall know that I am the LORD.

Babylon Shall Destroy the City

7 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring upon Tyrus ^aNebuchadrezzar¹ king of Babylon, ^ba king of kings, from the north, with horses, and with chariots, and with horsemen, and ²companies, and much people.

8 He shall slay with the sword thy daughters in the field: and he shall “make¹ a fort against thee, and ²cast a mount against thee, and lift up ³the buckler against thee.

A Lamentation for Tyrus

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD to Tyrus; Shall not the ¹isles ^ashake at the sound of thy fall, when the wounded cry, when the slaughter is made in the midst of thee?

tion. The reason cited is that Tyre said against Jerusalem, Aha, she is broken (v. 2). The significance of this statement is clear when it is recalled that Tyre and Phoenicia, the nation in which Tyre was situated, were known for their expansive trade and commerce. Having already cornered the maritime routes, Tyre rejoiced at the destruction of Jerusalem because it meant that Tyre now had the potential to secure the caravan trade as well. Mainland Tyre’s doom is vividly described in verses 8–11, and was fulfilled when the city fell to Nebuchadrezzar in 573–572 B.C., after a 13-year siege. The change of pronouns in verse 12 takes the prophecy beyond the days of Nebuchadrezzar to Alexander the Great’s destruction of the island city by using the debris of the ruined mainland city in 332 B.C.

26:2 Tyre was an ancient seaport city of the Phoenicians that lay north of Palestine. The principal seaport of the Phoenician coast, Tyre was situated about 25 miles south of Sidon and 35 miles north of Carmel. It consisted of two cities: a rocky coastal city on the mainland and a small island city. The island city was just off the shore. The mainland city was on a coastal plain, a strip only 15 miles long and two miles wide. Several Old Testament prophets prophesied against Tyre. Some condemned the Tyrians for delivering Israelites to the Edomites (Amos 1:9) and selling them as slaves to the Greeks (Joel 3:5, 6). Jeremiah prophesied against Tyre (Jer. 27:1–11). Ezekiel prophesied the destruction of Tyre, a prophecy that was fulfilled in two stages (Ezek. 26:3–21). The first stage came true when Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, besieged the mainland city of Tyre for 13 years (585–572 B.C.) and apparently destroyed it. The second stage was fulfilled in 332 B.C., when Alexander the Great besieged the island city of Tyre for seven months. He finally captured it when he built a causeway from the mainland to the island. During the Roman Period Tyre was again rebuilt, eventually achieving a degree of prosperity (Matt. 11:21, 22; Acts 21:1–7).

16 Then all the ^aprinces of the sea shall ^bcome down from their thrones, and lay away their robes, and put off their broidered garments: they shall clothe themselves with trembling; ^cthey shall sit upon the ground, and ^dshall tremble at every moment, and ^ebe astonished at thee.

17 And they shall take up a ^alamentation for thee, and say to thee, How ¹art thou destroyed, that wast inhabited of seafaring men, the renowned city, which wast ^bstrong in the sea, she and her inhabitants, which cause their terror to be on all ²that haunt it!

18 Now shall ^athe ¹isles tremble in the day of thy fall; yea, the ¹isles that are in the sea shall be troubled at thy departure.

19 For thus saith the Lord GOD; When I shall make thee a desolate city, like the cities that are not inhabited; when I shall bring up the deep upon thee, and great waters shall cover thee;

20 When I shall bring thee down ^awith them that descend into the pit, with the people of old time, and shall set thee in the low parts of the earth, in places desolate ¹of old, with them that go down to the pit, that thou be not inhabited; and I shall set glory ^bin the land of the living;

21 ^aI will make thee a terror, and thou shalt be no more: ^bthough thou be sought for, yet shalt thou never be found again, saith the Lord GOD.

11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

12 Son of man, ^atake up a lamentation upon the king of Tyrus, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^bThou ¹sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in beauty.

13 Thou hast been in ^aEden the garden of God; every precious stone was thy covering, the ¹sardius, topaz, and the diamond, the beryl, the onyx, and the jasper, the sapphire, the emerald, and the ²carbuncle, and gold: the workmanship of ^bthy ³tabrets and of thy pipes was prepared in thee in the day that thou wast created.

14 Thou art the anointed ^acherub that covereth; and I have set thee so: thou wast upon ^bthe holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire.

15 Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till ^ainiquity was found in thee.

16 By the multitude of thy ¹merchandise they have filled the midst of thee with violence, and thou hast sinned: therefore I will cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God: and I will destroy thee, ^aO covering cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 ^aThine heart was ¹lifted up because of thy beauty, thou hast corrupted thy wisdom by reason of thy ²brightness: I will cast thee to the ground, I will lay thee before kings, that they may behold thee.

28:1–10. The third oracle is directed against the prince of Tyre, who at this time was Ethbaal III (591/90–573/72 B.C.). His sin was his claim to be divine. He said, I am a God; but God said, thou art a man (v. 2). Because of his presumption, the prince would be killed by his enemies, thus proving his mortality (vv. 8, 9).

28:11–19. The change of addressee from the prince of Tyre to the king of Tyre in verse 12 has prompted much discussion. However, there seems little doubt that Satan is in view in these verses as the real power behind the wicked society and government of Tyre. This is evident from several considerations: (1) He is called the anointed cherub (v. 14). The word cherub is used in the Old Testament only to refer to angelic creatures. (2) The name of one of the chief gods of Tyre was Melcart, which means “King of the City.” It would have been clear to all of Ezekiel’s listeners that the deity supposed to exist behind the earthly ruler was in mind. (3) The change of addressee from prince of Tyre to king of Tyre indicates that someone other than the earthly ruler is in view. (4) Finally, Paul seems to have this passage in mind when, in listing the qualifications for an elder, he stipulates that the elder be “not a novice, lest being lifted up with pride he fall into the condemnation of the devil” (1 Tim. 3:6). As a descriptive passage on Satan, the content reveals more about his fall than any other. He served near the presence of God (v. 14), was perfect (v. 15), became guilty of the sin of pride (v. 17), began to deal in iniquitous trade (v. 18), and is therefore destined for judgment (vv. 16, 18, 19). The statement Thou wast perfect ... till iniquity was found in thee (v. 15) is the closest that the Bible ever comes to explaining the origin of sin. It began when one of God’s previously perfect creatures rebelled against Him.

18 Thou hast defiled thy sanctuaries by the multitude of thine iniquities, by the iniquity of thy ¹traffick; therefore will I bring forth a fire from the midst of thee, it shall devour thee, and I will ²bring thee to ashes upon the earth in the sight of all them that behold thee.

19 All they that know thee among the people shall be astonished at thee: ^athou shalt be a ¹terror, and never shalt thou be any ^bmore.

Judgment on Egypt

29 In the tenth year, in the tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^aset thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and ^bagainst all Egypt:

3 Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aBehold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great ^bdragon ¹that lieth in the midst of his rivers, ^cwhich hath said, ²My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.

4 But ^aI will put hooks in thy jaws, and I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick unto thy scales, and I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers, and all the fish of thy rivers shall stick unto thy scales.

5 And I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness, thee and all the fish of thy rivers: thou shalt fall upon the open ^afields; ^bthou shalt not be ¹brought together, nor gathered: ^cI have given thee for ²meat to the beasts of the field and to the fowls of the heaven.

6 And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD, because they have been a ^astaff of reed to the house of Israel.

28:20–26. Sidon, another Phoenician city, was 20 miles north of Tyre. Sidon's sins were much the same as those of Tyre, and therefore are not enumerated here. However, God promises judgment on them in the form of pestilence and sword (v. 23).

29:1. The final prophecy against a foreign power consists of seven oracles directed against Egypt and Pharaoh. Each oracle begins with the expression the word of the LORD came unto me. All seven oracles are in chronological order, except for 29:17–21, which is placed out of order due to its close, logical connection with the oracle preceding its present placement. One oracle, 30:1–19, is undated.

29:1–16. The date of the prophecy is important. It was given in 587 B.C. while the siege of Jerusalem was in progress. Hophra, the Pharaoh of Egypt at the time, had promised military assistance to Judah. Egypt failed to provide any lasting help (cf. Jer. 37:1–5), but this is only one of the reasons singled out for their judgment (vv. 6–9). Egypt would also be judged because her Pharaoh had made himself a god, even claiming to have created the Nile River (v. 3)! God gives His opinion of Pharaoh when He calls him the great dragon, by using a word that Israel's pagan neighbors utilized to refer to a mythical sea monster.

7 ^aWhen they took hold of thee by thy hand, thou didst break, and ¹rend all their shoulder: and when they leaned upon thee, thou brakest, and madest all their loins ²to be at a stand.

8 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I will bring ^aa sword upon thee, and cut off man and beast ¹out of thee.

9 And the land of Egypt shall be ^adesolate and waste; and they shall know that I am the LORD: because he hath said, The river is mine, and I have made it.

10 Behold, therefore I am against thee, and against thy rivers, ^aand I will make the land of Egypt utterly waste and desolate, ^bfrom ¹the tower ²of Syene even unto the border of Ethiopia.

11 ^aNo foot of man shall pass through it, nor foot of beast shall pass through it, neither shall it be inhabited forty years.

12 ^aAnd I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities among the cities that are laid waste shall be desolate forty years: and I will ^bscatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

Egypt Will Be Restored to the Land

13 Yet thus saith the Lord GOD; At the ^aend of forty years will I gather the Egyptians from the people whither they were scattered:

14 And I will bring again the ¹captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their ²habitation; and they shall be there a ^abase³ kingdom.

15 It shall be the ¹basest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations.

The Wages for Babylon's Army

17 And it came to pass in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, ^aNebuchadrezzar¹ king of Babylon caused his army to ²serve a great service against ³Tyrus: every head was made ^bbald, and every shoulder was ^apeeled: yet had he no wages, nor his army, ⁵for Tyrus, for the ⁶service that he had served against it:

20 I have given him the land of Egypt for his labour wherewith he ^aserved against it, because they wrought for me, saith the Lord GOD.

2 Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aHowl¹ ye, Woe ²worth the day!

3 For ^athe day is near, even the day of the LORD is near, a cloudy day; it shall be the time of the ¹heathen.

29:17-21. This oracle is the only one of the seven against Egypt that is placed out of chronological order. The motivation for this misplacement seems to be that it logically explains who will be the instrument of the judgment against Egypt, which has just been prophesied in the first oracle. Written in 572 B.C., the oracle was given at the approximate time of Nebuchadrezzar's victory over Tyre (v. 18). Because of the lengthy 13-year siege of Tyre, however, there were few spoils of war available to Nebuchadrezzar's army. Therefore, God would cause them to invade Egypt (vv. 19, 20; see the note on Jer. 43:10, 11).

4 And the sword shall come upon Egypt, and great ¹pain shall be in ²Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt, and they ^ashall take away her ³multitude, and ^bher foundations shall be broken down.

5 ¹Ethiopia, and ²Libya, and ³Lydia, and ^aall the mingled people, and Chub, and the men of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword.

A Fire in Egypt

6 Thus saith the LORD; They also that uphold Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her power shall come down: ^afrom ¹the tower of Syene shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord GOD.

7 ^aAnd they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are ¹wasted.

Egypt Falls to Babylon's Strength

20 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the 30:1–19. This oracle, the only one of the seven that is undated, is a general prediction that Egypt and all of her allies would be destroyed (v. 5). From the tower of Syene (v. 6) may be retranslated “from Migdol to Syene” or Aswan. These two locations represented the northern and southern boundaries of Egypt. It is a way of saying that the entire country would fall.

30:15 Thebes (Heb. No) was the major city of Upper Egypt and capital of the united kingdom of Egypt. Lying 300 miles south of modern Cairo, ancient Thebes, known today as Luxor, straddled both sides of the Nile River. It was Egypt's most powerful city for over a thousand years from the Middle Kingdom to the Ptolemaic era. The Egyptian pharaohs inscribed their achievements on the temple walls, including Shishak's campaign against Judah in 925 B.C. (1 Kin. 14:25–26). On the western bank of the Nile were the mortuary temples in the valley of the kings. The Hebrew prophets Jeremiah (46:25) and Ezekiel (30:10–19) predicted the fall of Thebes to the Babylonians. The Persians later sacked the city under Cambyses (c. 525 B.C.) and Artaxerxes III (c. 342 B.C.).

23 ^aAnd I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries.

5 Therefore ^ahis height was exalted above all the trees of the field, and his boughs were multiplied, and his branches became long because of the multitude of waters, ¹when he shot forth.

6 All the ^afowls¹ of heaven made their nests in his boughs, and under his branches did all the beasts of the field bring forth their young, and under his shadow dwelt all great nations.

7 Thus was he ¹fair in his greatness, in the length of his branches: for his root ²was by great waters.

8 The cedars in the ^agarden of God could not hide him: the fir trees were not like his boughs, and the ¹chesnut trees were not like his branches; nor any tree in the garden of God was like unto him in his beauty.

9 I have made him ¹fair by the multitude of his branches: so that all the trees of Eden, that were in the garden of God, envied him.

Egypt's Pride

10 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD; Because thou hast ¹lifted up thyself in height, and he hath shot up his top among the thick boughs, and ^ahis heart is ²lifted up in his height;

11 I have therefore delivered him into the hand of the ^amighty one of the ¹heathen; he shall surely deal with him: I have driven him out for his wickedness.

30:20-26. The defeat of Egypt by Babylon is explained here from the divine perspective: God gave Pharaoh into the hands of the Babylonians. God ultimately sets up kings and brings them down.

31:1-18. In the fifth oracle Egypt is compared with Assyria, its former ally. Assyria is said to have been a cedar in Lebanon (v. 3). However, God cut him off (v. 12), a reference to Assyria's destruction at the hands of Nabopolassar, Nebuchadnezzar's father, in 612 B.C. The implication for Egypt was clear: like Assyria, God says, yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden (v. 18).

all the rivers of the land; and all the people of the earth are gone down from his shadow, and have left him.

13 ^aUpon his ruin shall all the fowls of the heaven remain, and all the beasts of the field shall ¹be upon his branches:

14 To the end that none of all the trees by the waters exalt themselves for their height, neither shoot up their top among the thick boughs, ¹neither their trees stand up in their height, all that drink water: for ^athey are all delivered unto death, ^bto the ²nether parts of the earth, in the midst of the children of men, with them that go down to the pit.

The Nations Shake at Egypt's Fall

15 Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the day when he ^awent down to ¹the grave I caused a mourning: I covered the deep for him, and I restrained the ²floods thereof, and the great waters were ³stayed: and I caused Lebanon to mourn for him, and all the trees of the field ⁴fainted for him.

16 I made the nations to ^ashake at the sound of his fall, when I ^bcast him down to ¹hell with them that descend into the pit: and ^call the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, ^dshall be comforted in the ²nether parts of the earth.

17 They also went down into hell with him unto them that be slain with the sword; and they that were his arm, that ^adwelt under his shadow in the midst of the ¹heathen.

18 ^aTo whom art thou thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden unto the ¹nether parts of the earth: ^bthou shalt lie in the midst of the un-circumcised with them that be slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

Egypt's Fall

32 And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the ^atwelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

2 Son of man, ^atake up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him, ^bThou art like a young lion of the nations, ^cand thou art as a ¹whale in the seas: and thou ^dcamest ²forth with thy rivers, and troubledst the waters with thy feet, and ^efouledst their rivers.

3 Thus saith the Lord GOD; I will therefore ^aspread out my net over thee with a company of many people; and they shall ¹bring thee up in my net.

4 Then ^awill I leave thee upon the land, I will cast thee forth upon the open field, and ^bwill cause all the fowls of the heaven to ¹remain upon thee, and I will fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.

5 And I will lay thy ¹flesh ^aupon the mountains, and fill the valleys with thy height.

6 I will also water ¹with thy blood the land wherein thou swimmest, even to the mountains; and the rivers shall be full of thee.

7 And when I shall ¹put thee out, ^aI will cover the heaven, and make the stars thereof dark; I will cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.

8 All the bright lights of heaven will I make dark over thee, and set darkness upon thy land, saith the Lord GOD.

9 I will also ¹vex the hearts of many people, when I shall bring thy destruction among the nations, into the countries which thou hast not known.

10 Yea, I will make many people ¹amazed at thee, and their kings shall be horribly afraid for thee, when I shall brandish my sword before them; and ^athey shall tremble at every moment, every man for his own life, in the day of thy fall.

32:1-16. The sixth oracle against Egypt comes in the form of a funeral dirge or lament. It is dated in 585 B.C., shortly after the fall of Jerusalem. The defeat of Egypt is so certain now that Ezekiel can confidently recite a satirical lament for her.

The Swords of the Mighty

11 ^aFor thus saith the Lord GOD; The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon thee.

12 By the swords of the mighty will I cause thy multitude to fall, ^athe ¹terrible of the nations, all of them: and ^bthey shall ²spoil the pomp of Egypt, and all the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.

13 I will destroy also all the beasts thereof from beside the great waters; ^aneither shall the foot of man ¹trouble them any more, nor the hoofs of beasts ¹trouble them.

14 Then will I make their waters ¹deep, and cause their rivers to run like oil, saith the Lord GOD.

15 When I shall make the land of Egypt desolate, and the country shall be destitute of that whereof it was full, when I shall smite all them that dwell therein, ^athen shall they know that I am the LORD.

16 This is the ^alamentation where-with they shall lament her: the daughters of the nations shall lament her: they shall lament for her, even for Egypt, and for all her multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

Egypt's Allies Face Destruction

17 It came to pass also in the twelfth year, in the fifteenth day of the month, ^athat the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

18 Son of man, wail for the multitude of Egypt, and ^acast them down, even her, and the daughters of the famous nations, unto the ¹nether parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit.

19 ^aWhom dost thou ¹pass in beauty? ^bgo down, and be thou laid with the uncircumcised.

20 They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword: she is delivered to the sword: ^adraw her and all her multitudes.

32:17-32. The final oracle against Egypt is also a dirge, but it is directed to Pharaoh and all the Egyptians, who will now go unto the nether parts of the earth (v. 18). It is a morbid description of death, though Ezekiel probably did not intend it to be a literal picture of the afterlife.

5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning; his blood shall be upon him. But he that taketh warning shall ¹deliver his soul.

7 ^aSo thou, O son of man, I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.

8 When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand.

9 Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast ¹delivered thy soul.

Turn from Your Evil Ways

10 Therefore, O thou son of man, speak unto the house of Israel; Thus ye speak, saying, If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we ^apine¹ away in them, ^bhow should we then live?

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord GOD, ^aI have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked ^bturn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for ^cwhy will ye die, O house of Israel?

12 Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people, The ^arighteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression: as for the wickedness of the wicked, ^bhe shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness in the day that he sinneth.

13 When I shall say to the righteous, that he shall surely live; ^aif he trust to his own righteousness, and

33:1. Ezekiel did not dwell exclusively on the subject of Israel's sin and judgment. Like all Old Testament prophets, he included a happy prediction of the time when Israel would be restored to her land and to the blessings of God. Chapters 33–39 could be described simply as "the rebirth of Israel."

33:7. I have set thee a watchman: Ezekiel here receives a recommitment as a "watchman." His initial commission (3:16–27) concerned judgment, but this second commission concerned restoration and blessing. This reappointment with a new message came at an appropriate time, in 585 B.C., when news of Jerusalem's fall reached Babylon (v. 21).

commit iniquity, all his righteousnesses shall not be remembered; but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it.

14 Again, ^awhen I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; if he turn from his sin, and do that which is lawful and right;

15 If the wicked ^arestore the pledge, ^bgive¹ again that he had robbed, walk in ^cthe statutes of life, without committing iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die.

16 ^aNone of his sins that he hath committed shall be ¹mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

God's Judgment Is Equal

17 ^aYet the children of thy people say, The way of the Lord is not ¹equal: but as for them, their way is not ¹equal.

18 ^aWhen the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.

19 But if the wicked turn from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall live thereby.

20 Yet ye say, ^aThe way of the Lord is not ¹equal. O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one ²after his ways.

The Destruction Is Still to Come

21 And it came to pass in the twelfth year ^aof our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, ^bthat one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, ^cThe city ¹is smitten.

22 Now ^athe hand of the LORD was upon me in the evening, ¹before he that was escaped came; and had ^bopened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning; and my mouth was opened, and I was ²no more dumb.

Judgment on Israel's Shepherds

7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD;

God Will Feed His Flock

11 For thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out.

12 As ^aa shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in ^bthe cloudy and dark day.

13 And ^aI will bring them out from the people, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel by the ¹rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.

14 ^aI will feed them in a good pasture, and upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be: ^bthere shall they lie in a good fold, and in a ¹fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.

15 I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord GOD.

16 ^aI will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick: but I will destroy ^bthe fat and the strong; I will feed them ^cwith ¹judgment.

God Will Judge His Flock

17 And as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aBehold, I judge between ¹cattle and cattle, between the rams and the ²he goats.

18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture, but ye must ¹tread down with your feet the ²residue of your pastures? and to have drunk of the deep waters, but ye must foul the residue with your feet?

34:1-31. After explaining the sins of Israel's shepherds, or leaders (vv. 1-6), he pronounces judgment on them (vv. 7-10) and promises the care of God Himself as the true Shepherd of Israel (vv. 11-31). God will also appoint David as a shepherd (v. 24), a reference to David's role during the Millennium. The covenant of peace (v. 25; cf. the note on Jer. 31:31-34) is God's promise of blessing during this period.

23 And I will set up one ^ashepherd over them, and he shall feed them, ^b*even* my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.

Edom (25:12-14), her role as collaborator with the Babylonians is cited as a chief sin. If God will deal justly with this ancient foe of Israel, then certainly all enemies will be judged.

36:1–38. This chapter gives the opposite side to the judgment pronounced on Israel's enemies in the preceding chapter. While her enemies will be wiped out, Israel will receive the blessings of God. Her mountains will prosper (vv. 1–15) and her people will be regathered to this newly blessed land (vv. 16–38). This will be a miraculous regathering by God of all Israel to their land: I will ... gather you out of all countries, and will bring you into your own land (v. 24). It will also be a regathering in belief: Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean. ... A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you. ... I will also save you (vv. 25–29). The restoration here prophesied then will be both physical and spiritual (cf. Jer. 31:31–34). The prophecy indicates that Israel will be regathered in the land before she is reborn spiritually.

down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones,

2 And caused me to pass by them round about: and, behold, there were very many in the open valley; and, lo, they were very dry.

3 And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord GOD, ^athou knowest.

4 Again he said unto me, Prophecy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of the LORD.

5 Thus saith the Lord GOD unto these bones; Behold, I will ^acause ¹breath to enter into you, and ye shall live:

6 And I will ¹lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put ²breath in you, and ye shall live; ^aand ye shall know that I am the LORD.

7 So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and ¹behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to his bone.

8 And when I beheld, lo, the sinews and the flesh came up upon them, and the skin covered them ¹above: but there was no ²breath in them.

A Breath from the Four Winds

9 Then said he unto me, Prophecy unto the ¹wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aCome from the four winds, O ¹breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.

10 So I prophesied as he commanded me, ^aand the ¹breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army.

11 Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the ^awhole house of Israel: behold, they say, ^bOur bones are dried, and our hope is lost: we ¹are cut off for our parts.

37:1-14. The resurrection of the nation is compared here to dry bones coming to life. At this point the Israelites were like dry bones, nationally dead, and with no hope of restoration (v. 11). Yet God promises that just as the bones came to life in Ezekiel's vision, so God says: I will ... bring you into the land of Israel ... and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live

(vv. 12-14). Again, this is both a physical regathering to the land and a spiritual regathering to God Himself. The present-day existence of the state of Israel may be the initial fulfillment of this prophecy, but it can be completely fulfilled only when Christ returns to establish His kingdom (cf. Matt. 24:30, 31).

12 Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, ^aO my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and ^bbring you into the land of Israel.

13 And ye shall know that I am the LORD, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, 14 And ^ashall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the LORD have spoken it, and performed it, saith the LORD.

15 The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying,

16 Moreover, thou son of man, ^atake thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for ^bthe children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions:

17 And ^ajoin them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand.

Two Kingdoms Become One

21 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, ^aI will take the children of Israel from among the ^bheathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land:

22 And ^aI will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and ^bone king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all:

23 ^aNeither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but ^bI will save them out of all their dwellingplaces, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God.

24 And ^aDavid my servant shall be king over them; and ^bthey all shall have one shepherd: ^cthey shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them.

25 ^aAnd they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my

37:15–28. Ezekiel was commanded to write the names of Judah and Israel on separate sticks, and then to join them together as one stick (vv. 16, 17). This action represented the fact that the two nations would be rejoined as one nation at the same time as the national revival just prophesied in the preceding chapter. The kingdom had split in 931 B.C. after the death of Solomon, with 10 tribes in the north being known as Israel (or Ephraim) and two tribes in the south, Benjamin and Judah, being known as Judah. These two kingdoms were never officially reunited in history. Therefore, this prophecy awaits its ultimate fulfillment during the millennial reign of Christ. The closing verses of this chapter indicate the close association of God's three great unconditional covenants with His people: the Abrahamic, the Davidic, and new covenants. See the note on Jeremiah 31:31–34.

ISRAEL IN PROPHECY

37:11–14. The energy that keeps God's prophetic clock running on schedule is the Jewish nation. The gathering of the Jews to a Palestinian homeland is setting the stage for Christ's return. God promised Ezekiel to restore Israel by returning the Jews to the land God had given Abraham, and by regenerating that people in the land (Rom. 11:25, 26). Even though many Jews have returned there today, most are still not believers (Deut. 30:1–3). God will probably use conditions in the Great Tribulation to draw His people to Himself as their Savior. Thus "all Israel shall be saved" (Rom. 11:26). Illustration: The national turning to God by Israel scripturally coincides with the return of Christ. Application: While many Jews are being saved today, probably the greatest fruit of contemporary evangelistic efforts among them will not be reaped until after the Rapture. (First Reference, Gen. 12:1–3; Primary Reference, Ezek. 37:11–14; cf. 1 Thess. 4:17.)

An Everlasting Covenant of Peace

26 Moreover I will ¹make ^aa covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will ²place them, and ^bmultiply them, and will set my ^csanctuary in the midst of them for evermore.

27 ^aMy ¹tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be ^btheir God, and they shall be my people.

38:1—39:29. These two chapters may be taken as a unit but can be divided into two main sections: the invasion of Gog and Magog (38:1–16) and the judgment on Gog and Magog (38:17—39:29). Several uncertainties surround the translation and identification of the key words in verse 2. The Hebrew word rōsh is usually translated “head” and accordingly is rendered here adjectivally, chief (i.e., chief prince). Some expositors have taken this word as a reference to a country known as RASHU (or Reshu), an ancient land along the Tigris River often mentioned in the Assyrian Annals. Others have identified rōsh with a people known as the Rus who were connected with the Scythians and lived in the region of the Taurus Mountains in what is present-day Turkey. Some have associated the word with Russia, but this is accomplished only through resemblances in spelling or sound. In accordance with known naming practices in the ancient Near East, the word might also be treated as part of a compound name Rosh Meshech—although no historical confirmation of such a place currently exists.

Meshech and Tubal are generally connected with people who were known to have lived in ancient Anatolia, modern Turkey. Thus, Tabal (Tubal) lay north of Cilicia in eastern Anatolia and Meshech names the ancient Mushki who lived in central Anatolia. Both kingdoms are known to have opposed the Assyrian forces of the eighth century B.C. The king of the Mushki, Mita, has been linked with the famous King Midas, whose touch turned everything to gold.

Gog and Magog (see 1 Chr. 1:5) have not been identified with certainty. Magog was the son of Japheth, and the grandson of Noah (Gen. 10:2). Some have connected Gog with a Lydian king in western Anatolia named Gyges, and Magog with the Anatolian Scythians. There has been no end of suggestions as to the identity of Gog and Magog throughout the history of the church (especially Tartars and Turks). The fact that all of the peoples and nations mentioned here lay north of Israel harmonizes well with the uniform predictions of the prophets that in eschatological times enemy forces from the north will descend upon God's people and land. Many contemporary Bible scholars identify the source of that future attack as Russia.

The precise time of that invasion has been variously understood as: (1) toward the end of the present age; (2) during the Tribulation period; (3) after Christ's return but before the Millennium; or (4) after the millennial reign of Christ.

Regarding the last view, because Gog and Magog are mentioned as combatants in a war at the end of the Millennium (Rev. 20:7–9), many have identified the two battles in Ezekiel and Revelation as one and the same. However, the events following the battles are cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy ¹bands, and many people with thee.

Gog's Evil Thought

10 Thus saith the Lord GOD; It shall also come to pass, that ¹at the same time ²shall things come into thy mind, and thou shalt ³think an evil thought:

11 And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of ^aunwalled villages; I will ^bgo to them that are at rest, ^cthat dwell ¹safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates, 12 To take ¹a spoil, and to take ²a prey; to turn thine hand upon the desolate places that are now inhabited, ^aand upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten ³cattle and goods, that dwell in the midst of the land.

13 ^aSheba, and ^bDedan, and the merchants ^cof Tarshish, with all ^dthe young lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take ¹a spoil? hast thou gathered ²thy company to take a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away ³cattle and goods, to take a great ¹spoil?

The Fire of God's Wrath

17 Thus saith the Lord GOD; Art thou he of whom I have spoken in old time by my servants the prophets of Israel, which prophesied in those days many years that I would bring thee against them?

18 And it shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord GOD, that my fury shall ¹come up in my face.

21 And I will ^acall for ^ba sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord GOD: ^cevery man's sword shall be against his brother.

22 And I will ^aplead¹ against him with ^bpestilence and with ²blood; and ^cI will rain upon him, and upon his ³bands, and upon the many ⁴people that are with him, an ⁵overflowing rain, and ^dgreat hailstones, fire, and brimstone.

23 Thus will I magnify myself, and ^asanctify myself; ^band I will be quite different, as are the events preceding each battle. In Ezekiel's prophecy, the battle of Gog and Magog is used by God to draw Israel to Himself; in Revelation the battle of Gog and Magog comes after God has drawn His people to Himself for one thousand years of blessing during the Millennium. Therefore, it seems best to place Ezekiel's battle in the Great Tribulation. See the notes on Daniel 9:26, 27; 11:36, and 11:40–45.

38:23 ^aEzek. 36:23 ^bPs. 9:16; Ezek. 37:28; 38:16

Magog's allies are listed as Persia (Iran), Ethiopia (Cush), Libya (Put), and the tribes of Turkey and Armenia: Meshech, Tubal, Gomer, and Togarmah. The battle itself is described in some detail, including the defeat of Gog (38:17–39:8), the physical aftereffects of the war (39:9–20), and the spiritual results of the war (39:21–29).

The last mentioned effect is twofold: the heathen shall see my [God's] judgment (39:21), and the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God from that day and forward (39:22). Since no such battle with Israel emerging victorious has ever occurred, most evangelical scholars view this as a future event yet to be fulfilled.

known in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the LORD.

The Destruction of Gog's Army

39 Therefore, ^athou son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, ¹the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal:

²And I will ^aturn thee ¹back, and ²leave but the sixth part of thee, ^band will cause thee to come up from the ³north parts, and will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel:

³And I will ¹smite thy bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand.

⁴Thou shalt ¹fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy ²bands, and the ³people that is with thee: ^bI will give thee unto the ⁴ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts of the field to be devoured.

⁵Thou shalt ¹fall upon the open field: for I have spoken it, saith the Lord GOD.

⁶And I will send a fire on Magog, and among them that dwell ¹carelessly in ^bthe ²isles: and they shall know that I am the LORD.

⁷So will I make my holy name known in the midst of my people Israel; and I will not let them ^bpollute ¹my holy name any more: ^cand the ²heathen shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel.

A Great Sacrifice

¹⁷And, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aSpeak unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field, ^bAssemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves on every side to my ^csacrifice ¹that I do sacrifice for you, even a great sacrifice ^dupon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.

Ezekiel's Temple Vision

40 In the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that ^athe city was ¹smitten, in the self-same day ^bthe hand of the LORD was upon me, and brought me thither.

2 ^aIn the visions of God brought he me into the land of Israel, and ^bset me upon a very high mountain, ¹by which was as the frame of a city on the south.

3 And he brought me thither, and, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was ^alike the appearance of ¹brass, ^bwith a line of flax in his hand, ^cand a measuring ²reed; and he stood in the gate.

40:1—48:35. The final nine chapters of the book are clearly a unit. They spell out the construction of a new temple and a new order of worship for Israel. Much discussion has been engendered as to the identity of the temple described in these chapters. The suggestions include the following: (1) It is an ideal temple that was never built, or perhaps a rebuilding of Solomon's temple. The measurements of this temple, however, do not fit those of Solomon's temple. Also, the motivation for revealing nine chapters about a temple never to be built is not apparent. (2) It is Zerubbabel's temple, built after the Jews returned to the land. The measurements of Zerubbabel's temple, however, are nothing like the glorious temple envisioned by Ezekiel. (3) It is a figurative representation of the church. This view is taken by amillennial scholars, who view all kingdom prophecies in the Old Testament as harbingers of the New Testament church, which is said to be God's kingdom. This view is inconsistent, since it takes Ezekiel's earlier prophecies, the ones that have been fulfilled, as literal, but the present prophecy of a rebuilt temple as figurative.

(4) It is a literal temple yet to be built. In favor of this view is the fact that the measurements of the temple given in these chapters do not fit any temple or tabernacle mentioned in Scripture. It therefore awaits fulfillment, which can take place only in the time of Israel's blessing and restoration during the millennial reign of Christ (Rev. 20:4–6).

40:1—42:20. The new temple includes the traditional outer court (40:5–27) and inner court (40:28–47), as well as the building proper (40:48–41:26), adjacent buildings (42:1–14), outer walls (42:15–20), and altar (43:13–27). The fact that Ezekiel would spend so much space describing the temple indicates its importance. Actually, upwards of 50 chapters in the Bible are devoted to descriptions of the tabernacle and various temples. In the Book of Ezekiel, however, the prophet shows clearly that the tragic departure of God's glory from the temple, described in chapters 10 and 11, is reversed in the future temple when the Spirit returns (43:1–12) and fills it with glory. God is not finished with His people. They will yet see His glory.

4 And the man said unto me, ^aSon of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and ¹set thine heart upon all that I shall shew thee; for ²to the intent that I might shew them unto thee art thou brought hither: ^bdeclare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

5 And behold ^aa wall on the outside of the ¹house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring ²reed of six cubits long by the cubit and an hand breadth: so he measured the breadth of the ³building, ⁴one reed; and the height, one reed.

The East Gate

6 Then came he unto the gate which ¹looketh toward the ^aeast, and went up the stairs thereof, and measured the threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad; and the other threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad.

7 And every ¹little chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad; and between the ²little chambers were five cubits; and the threshold of the gate by the ³porch of the gate within was one reed.

8 He measured also the porch of the ¹gate within, one reed.

9 Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate was ¹inward.

10 And the little chambers of the ¹gate eastward were three on this side, and three on that side; they three were of one ²measure: and the posts had one measure on this side and on that side.

11 And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits.

12 The ¹space also before the ²little chambers was one cubit on this side, and the space was one cubit on that side: and the ²little chambers were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side.

14 He ¹made also posts of three-score cubits, even unto the post of the court round about the gate.

15 And from the ¹face of the gate of the entrance unto the ¹face of the ²porch of the inner gate were fifty cubits.

16 And there were ^anarrow ¹windows to the ²little chambers, and to their posts within the gate round about, and likewise to the ³arches: and windows were round about ⁴inward: and upon each post were ^bpalm trees.

18 And the pavement by the side of the gates ¹over against the length of the gates was the lower pavement.

19 Then he measured the breadth from the forefront of the lower gate unto the forefront of the inner court ¹without, an hundred cubits eastward and northward.

The North Gate

20 And the gate of the outward court that ¹looked toward the north, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof.

21 And the ¹little chambers thereof were three on this side and three on that side; and the posts thereof and the ²arches thereof were after the measure of the first gate: the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

22 And their windows, and their arches, and their palm trees, were after the measure of the gate that looketh toward the east; and they went up unto it by seven steps; and the arches thereof were before them.

23 And the gate of the inner court was ¹over against the gate toward the north, ²and toward the east; and he measured from gate to gate an hundred cubits.

The South Gate

24 After that he brought me toward the south, and behold a gate

¹toward the south: and he measured the posts thereof and the arches thereof according to these measures.

25 And there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about, like those windows: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

26 And there were seven steps to go up to it, and the arches thereof were before them: and it had palm trees, one on this side, and another on that side, upon the posts thereof.

The Inner Court

27 And there was a gate in the inner court ¹toward the south: and he measured from gate to gate toward the south an hundred cubits.

28 And he brought me to the inner court by the south gate: and he measured the south gate according to these measures;

29 And the ¹little chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures: and there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about: it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad.

31 And the arches thereof ¹were toward the utter court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof: and the going up to it had eight steps.

34 And the arches thereof ¹were toward the outward court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side, and on that side: and the going up to it had eight steps.

35 And he brought me to the north gate, and measured it according to these measures;

36 The ¹little chambers thereof, the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, and the windows to it round about: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits.

37 And the posts thereof ¹were toward the utter court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side, and on that side: and the going up to it had eight steps.

38 And ¹the chambers and ²the entries thereof were by the posts of the gates, where they ^awashed the burnt offering.

The Tables for Sacrifices

39 And in the ¹porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt offering and ^athe sin offering and ^bthe trespass offering.

40 And at the ¹side without, as one goeth up to the entry of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side, which was at the ²porch of the gate, were two tables.

40:38. The mention of the burnt offering here and in connection with the altar (43:13–27) has proved problematic. Under the new covenant, Jesus Christ “after he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God” (Heb. 10:12). How then may one explain this seeming reversion to the Levitical system of bloody sacrifices? Some have suggested that Ezekiel is merely presenting the worship of the Millennium in terms familiar to himself and his readers. Others have pointed out that several good reasons for the use of animal sacrifices can be given. Even the Levitical sacrifices did not take away sin, but were only pictures of Christ’s work prior to its accomplishment. There is no reason that the millennial sacrifices cannot have the status of memorials to the work of Christ, just as the Old Testament sacrifices had their status as precursors of Christ’s work. In the early New Testament church Christian Jews sometimes observed the temple worship (Acts 2:46; 3:1; 5:42) even to the point of offering sacrifices (Acts 21:26). Certainly they knew that these sacrifices added nothing to the work of Christ, but only pictured it. Others suggest that these sacrifices provide ritual cleansing of the temple area during the millennial reign of Christ.

42 And the four tables were of hewn stone for the burnt offering, of a cubit and an half long, and a cubit and an half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they ¹slew the burnt offering and the sacrifice.

43 And within were hooks, an ¹hand broad, fastened round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

Chambers and Porches

44 And ¹without the inner gate were the chambers of ^athe singers in the inner court, which was at the side of the north gate; and their ²prospect was toward the south: one at the side of the east gate having the ²prospect toward the north.

45 And he said unto me, This chamber, whose ¹prospect is toward the south, is for the priests, ^athe ²keepers of the charge of the house.

46 And the chamber ¹whose prospect is toward the north is for the priests, ^athe ²keepers of the charge of the altar: these are the sons of ^bZadok among the sons of Levi, which come near to the LORD to minister unto him.

47 So he measured the court, an hundred cubits long, and an hundred cubits broad, foursquare; and the altar that was before the ¹house.

48 And he brought me to the ^aporch¹ of the ²house, and measured each post of the ¹porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side.

49 ^aThe length of the ¹porch was twenty cubits, and the breadth eleven cubits; and he brought me by the steps whereby they went up to it: and there were ^bpillars by the posts, one on this side, and another on that side.

The Temple Measurements

41 Afterward he ^abrought me to the ¹temple, and measured the posts, six cubits broad on the one side, and six cubits broad on the other side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle.

3 Then went he ¹inward, and measured the post of the door, two cubits; and the door, six cubits; and the breadth of the door, seven cubits.

4 So ^ahe measured the length thereof, twenty cubits; and the breadth, twenty cubits, before the ¹temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place.

5 After he measured the wall of ¹the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side chamber, four cubits, round about ¹the house on every side.

8 I saw also the height of the house round about: the foundations of the side chambers were ^aa full ¹reed of six great cubits.

11 And the doors of the side chambers ¹were toward the place that was left, one door toward the north, and another door toward the south: and the breadth of the ²place

12 Now the building that was before the ¹separate place at the end toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits.

13 So he measured ¹the house, an ^ahundred cubits long; and the ²separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, an hundred cubits long;

14 Also the ¹breadth of the face of the house, and of the ²separate place toward the east, an hundred cubits.

23 ^aAnd the temple and the sanctuary had two doors.

24 And the doors had two ^aleaves¹ *a*piece, two ²turning leaves; two leaves for the one door, and two leaves for the other door.

25 And there were ¹made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubims and palm trees, like as were ¹made upon the walls; and there were thick planks upon the ³face of the porch ⁴without.

26 And there were ^anarrow¹ windows and palm trees on the one side and on the other side, on the sides of the ²porch, and upon the side chambers of ³the house, and ⁴thick planks.

The North Chambers

42 Then he ^abrought me forth into the utter court, the way toward the ^bnorth: and he brought me into ^cthe chamber that was ¹over against the ²separate place, and which was ³before the building toward the north.

2 ¹Before the length of an hundred cubits was the north door, and the breadth was fifty cubits.

3 ¹Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and ¹over against the ^apavement which was for the utter court, was ^bgallery against gallery in three stories.

4 And ¹before the chambers was a walk of ten cubits breadth ²inward, a ³way of one cubit; and their doors ⁴toward the north.

The Upper Chambers

5 Now the upper chambers were shorter: for the galleries ¹were higher than these, than the lower, and than the middlemost of the building.

6 For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts: therefore the ¹*building* was ²straitened more than the lowest and the ³middlemost from the ground.

7 And the wall that was ¹without ²over against the chambers, toward the utter court ³on the forepart of the chambers, the length thereof was fifty cubits.

8 For the length of the chambers that were ¹in the utter court was fifty cubits: and, lo, ²before the temple were an ⁴hundred cubits.

The East and the South Chambers

9 And from ¹under these chambers was the ²entry on the east side, as one goeth into them from the utter court.

10 ¹The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east, ²over against the ³separate place, and ²over against the building.

11 And ^athe ¹way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as long as they, and as broad as they: and all their ²goings out were both according to their ³fashions, and according to their doors.

12 And ¹according to the doors of the chambers that were ²toward the south was a door in ³the head of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the east, as one entereth into them.

The Use of the Chambers

13 Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before ¹the separate place, they be holy chambers, where the priests that approach unto the LORD ^ashall eat the most holy ²things: there shall they lay the most holy ²things, and ^bthe ³meat offering, and the sin offering, and the trespass offering; for the place is holy.

14 ^aWhen the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the utter court, but there they shall lay their 15 Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner ¹house, he brought me forth toward the gate ²whose prospect is toward the ^aeast, and measured it round about.

16 He measured the east side with the measuring ¹reed, ²five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

17 He measured the north side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed round about.

18 He measured the south side, five hundred reeds, with the measuring reed.

19 He turned about to the west side, and measured five hundred reeds with the measuring reed.

20 He measured it by the four sides: ^ait had a wall round about, ^bfive hundred reeds long, and five hundred broad, to make a separation between the ¹sanctuary and the ²profane place.

Ezekiel at the East Gate

43 Afterward he brought me to the gate, even the gate ^athat looketh toward the east:

²And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and ^bhis voice was like a ¹noise of many waters: ^aand the earth shined with his glory.

3 And it was ^aaccording to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw when ¹I came ^bto destroy the city: and the visions were like the vision that I saw ^cby the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face.

The Glory of the Lord Comes In 4 ^aAnd the glory of the LORD came into ¹the house by the way of the gate ²whose prospect is toward the east.

5 ^aSo the spirit ¹took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, ^bthe glory of the LORD filled the house.

6 And I heard him speaking unto me out of¹the house; and ^athe² man stood by me.

7 And he said unto me, Son of man, ^athe place of my throne, and ^bthe place of the soles of my feet, ^cwhere I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever, and my holy name, shall the house of Israel ^dno more defile, neither they, nor their kings, by their ¹whoredom, nor by ^ethe carcasses of their kings in their high places.

8 ^aIn their setting of their threshold by my thresholds, and their ¹post by my posts, ²and the wall between me and them, they have even defiled my holy name by their abominations that they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger.

9 Now let them put away their ¹whoredom, and the carcasses of their kings, far from me, and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever.

The Law of the House

10 Thou son of man, ^ashew¹ the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities: and let them measure the pattern.

11 And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, ¹shew them the ²form of the house, and the ³fashion thereof, and the ⁴goings out thereof, and the ⁵comings in thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ^aordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof: and write it in their sight, that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and ^bdo them.

12 This is the law of ¹the house; Upon ^athe top of the mountain the whole ²limit thereof round about shall be most holy. Behold, this is the law of ¹the house.

13 And these are the measures of the ^aaltar ¹after the cubits: ^bThe cubit is a cubit and an hand breadth; even the ²bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the ³border thereof by the edge thereof round about shall be ⁴a span: and this shall be the ⁵higher place of the altar.

The First Day of Consecration

18 And he said unto me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD; These are the ordinances of the altar in the day when they shall make it, to offer ^aburnt offerings thereon, and to ^bsprinkle blood thereon.

19 And thou shalt give to ^athe priests the Levites that be of the seed of ^bZadok, which approach unto me, to minister unto me, saith the Lord GOD, ^ca young bullock for a sin offering.

20 And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns of it, and on the four corners of the ¹settle, and upon the ²border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse and ³purge it.

21 Thou shalt take the bullock also of the sin offering, and he ^ashall burn it in the appointed place of ¹the house, ^bwithout² the sanctuary.

The Second Day of Consecration

22 And on the second day thou shalt offer a kid of the goats without blemish for a sin offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock.

23 When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, thou shalt offer a young bullock without blemish, and a ram out of the flock without blemish.

24 And thou shalt offer them before the LORD, ^aand the priests shall cast salt upon them, and they shall offer them up for a burnt offering unto the LORD.

Seven Days of Consecration

25 ^aSeven days shalt thou prepare every day a goat for a sin offering; they shall also prepare a young bullock, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish.

26 Seven days shall they ¹purge the altar and purify it; and they shall ²consecrate themselves.

The Eighth Day

27 ^aAnd when these days are expired, it shall be, that upon the eighth day, and so forward, the priests shall make your burnt offerings upon the altar, and your peace offerings; and I will ^baccept you, saith the Lord GOD.

The Gate of the Outward Sanctuary

44 Then he brought me back the way of the ¹gate of the outward sanctuary ^awhich looketh toward the east; and it was shut.

2 Then said the LORD unto me; This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; ^abecause the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut.

3 It is for the ^aprince; the prince, he shall sit in it to ^beat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by the way of the ¹porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

4 Then brought he me the way of the north gate ¹before the house; and I looked, and, ^abehold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD; ^band I fell upon my face.

8 And ye have not ^akept the charge of mine holy things: but ye have set keepers of my charge in my sanctuary for yourselves.

The Levites' Iniquity

9 Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aNo ¹stranger, uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any ¹stranger that is among the children of Israel.

10 ^aAnd the Levites that are gone away far from me, when Israel went astray, which went astray away from me after their idols; they shall even bear their iniquity.

44:1—46:24. A new temple requires a new order of worship which is described here. It includes special ministers. One of these is the prince (44:3), probably a reference to David or someone in the Davidic line. Also included are the Levites (44:10-14) and the priests of Zadok (44:15-19). The land that will be assigned to the priests is also precisely described (45:1-12). Finally, the offerings and feasts of the new worship are prescribed (45:13—46:24). Interestingly, only three of the six great annual feasts of Israel will be included in the new worship: Passover and Unleavened Bread, combined as one feast, and the Feast of Tabernacles. The other three, the Feast of Pentecost, the Feast of Trumpets, and the Day of Atonement, are left out, presumably because the initiation of God's new program rendered those feasts obsolete.

iniquity; therefore have I ^blifted up mine hand against them, saith the Lord GOD, and they shall bear their iniquity.

The Keepers of the House

13 ^aAnd they shall not come near unto me, nor to ¹do the office of a priest unto me, nor to come near to any of my holy things, ²in the most holy place: but they shall ^bbear their shame, and their abominations which they have committed.

14 But I will make them ^akeepers of the charge of the house, for all the ¹service thereof, and for all that shall be done therein.

15 ^aBut the priests the Levites, ^bthe sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary ^cwhen the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me, and they ^dshall stand before me to offer unto me ^ethe fat and the blood, saith the Lord GOD:

16 They shall ^aenter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to ^bmy table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge.

Rules Concerning the Priests

17 And it shall come to pass, that when they enter in at the gates of the inner court, ^athey shall be clothed with linen garments; and no wool shall come upon them, whiles they minister in the gates of the inner court, and ¹within.

18 ^aThey shall have linen ¹bonnets upon their heads, and shall have linen ²breeches upon their loins; they shall not ³gird themselves with any thing that causeth sweat.

19 And when they go forth into the utter court, even into the utter court to the people, ^athey shall ¹put off their garments wherein they ministered, and lay them in the holy chambers, and they shall put on other garments; and they shall ^bnot sanctify the people with their garments.

8 In the land shall be his possession in Israel: and ^amy princes shall no more oppress my people; and the rest of the land shall they give to the house of Israel according to their tribes.

The Duties of the Prince

9 Thus saith the Lord GOD; ^aLet ¹it suffice you, O princes of Israel: ^bremove violence and ²spoil, and execute ³judgment and justice, ⁴take away your exactions from my people, saith the Lord GOD.

10 Ye shall have just ^abalances, and a just ephah, and a just bath.

11 The ephah and the bath shall be of one measure, that the bath may contain the tenth part of an homer, and the ephah the tenth part of an homer: the measure thereof shall be ¹after the homer.

12 And the ^ashekel shall be twenty gerahs: twenty shekels, five and twenty shekels, fifteen shekels, shall be your ¹maneh.

The People's Offerings to the Prince

13 This is the ¹oblation that ye shall offer; the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of wheat, and ye shall give the sixth part of an ephah of an homer of barley:

14 Concerning the ordinance of oil, the bath of oil, ye shall offer the tenth part of a bath out of the ¹cor, which is an homer of ten baths; for ten baths are an homer:

15 And one lamb out of the flock, out of two hundred, out of the ¹fat pastures of Israel; for a ²meat offering, and for a burnt offering, and for peace offerings, ^ato make ³reconciliation for them, saith the Lord GOD.

16 All the people of the land shall give this ¹oblation for the prince in Israel.

The Prince's Offerings to the Temple

17 And it shall be the ^aprince's part to give burnt offerings, and ¹meat offerings, and drink offerings, in the feasts, and in the new moons, and in the sabbaths, in all ²solemnities of the house of Israel: he shall prepare the sin offering, and the ¹meat offering, and the burnt offering, and the peace offerings, to make ³reconciliation for the house of Israel.

18 Thus saith the Lord GOD; In the first month, in the first day of the month, thou shalt take a young bullock without blemish, and ^acleanse the sanctuary:

19 ^aAnd the priest shall take of the blood of the sin offering, and put it upon the ¹posts of ²the house, and upon the four corners of the ³settle of the altar, and upon the posts of the gate of the inner court.

20 And so thou shalt do the seventh day of the month ^afor every one that ¹erreth, ²and for him that is simple: so shall ye ³reconcile the house.

The Passover Feast

21 ^aIn the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days; unleavened bread shall be eaten.

22 And upon that day shall the prince prepare for himself and for all the people of the land ^aa bullock for a sin offering.

23 And ^aseven days of the feast he shall prepare a burnt offering to the LORD, seven bullocks and seven rams without blemish daily the seven days; ^band a kid of the goats daily for a sin offering.

24 ^aAnd he shall prepare a ¹meat offering of an ephah for ²a bullock, and an ephah for ²a ram, and an hin of oil for ²an ephah.

The Feast of the Seven Days

25 In the seventh month, in the fifteenth day of the month, shall he do the like in the ^afeast of the seven days, according to the sin offering, according to the burnt offering, and according to the ¹meat offering, and according to the oil.

3 Likewise the people of the land shall worship at the door of this gate before the LORD in the sabbaths and in the new moons.

The Prince's Burnt and Meat Offerings

4 And the burnt offering that ^athe prince shall offer unto the LORD in the ^bsabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish, and a ram without blemish.

5 ^aAnd the meat offering shall be an ephah for a ram, and the ¹meat offering for the lambs ²as he shall be able to give, and an hin of oil ³to an ephah.

6 And in the day of the new moon it shall be a young bullock without blemish, and six lambs, and a ram: they shall be without blemish.

7 And he shall prepare a ¹meat offering, an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and for the lambs ²according as his hand shall attain unto, and an hin of oil ³to an ephah.

8 ^aAnd when the prince shall enter, he shall go in by the way of the ¹porch of that gate, and he shall go forth by ²the way thereof.

Enter and Leave by Separate Gates

9 But when the people of the land ^ashall come before the LORD in the ¹solemn feasts, he that entereth in by the way of the north ^bgate to worship shall go out by the way of the south gate; and he that entereth by the way of the south gate shall go forth by the way of the north gate: he shall not return by the way of the gate whereby he came in, but shall go forth ²over against it.

10 And the prince in the midst of them, when they go in, shall go in; and when they go forth, shall go forth.

11 And in the ¹feasts and in the ²solemnities ^athe ³meat offering shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambs as he ⁴is able to give, and an hin of oil ⁵to an ephah.

12 Now when the prince shall prepare a voluntary burnt offering or peace offerings voluntarily unto the LORD, ^aone shall then open him the gate that ¹looketh toward the east, and he shall prepare his burnt offering and his peace offerings, as he did on the sabbath day: then he shall go forth; and after his going forth one shall shut the gate.

The Daily Offerings

13 ^aThou shalt daily prepare a burnt offering unto the LORD of a lamb of the first year without blemish: thou shalt prepare it ¹every morning.

14 And thou shalt prepare a ¹meat offering ²for it every morning, the sixth part of an ephah, and the third part of an hin of oil, to ³temper with the fine flour; a ¹meat offering ⁴continually by a perpetual ⁵ordinance unto the LORD.

15 Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the ¹meat offering, and the oil, every morning for a ^acontinual ²burnt offering.

16 Thus saith the Lord GOD; If the prince give a gift unto any of his sons, the inheritance thereof shall be his sons'; it shall be their possession by inheritance.

17 But if he give a gift of his inheritance to one of his servants, then it shall be his to ^athe year of liberty; but it shall return to the prince: but his inheritance shall be his sons' ¹for them.

The Places for Cooking Offerings

19 After he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy ^achambers of the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place on the ¹two sides westward.

20 Then said he unto me, This is the place where the priests shall ^aboil the trespass offering and the sin offering, where they shall ^bbake the ¹meat offering; that they bear them not out into the utter court, ^cto sanctify the people.

21 Then he brought me forth into the utter court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, in every corner of the court there was a court.

22 In the four corners of the court there were ¹courts joined of forty cubits long and thirty broad: these four corners were of ²one measure.

23 And there was a row of ¹building round about in them, round about them four, and it was made with ²boiling places under the rows round about.

24 Then said he unto me, These are the ¹places of them that boil, where the ministers of ²the house shall ^aboil the sacrifice of the people.

The Eastward Flowing River

47 Afterward he brought me again unto the door of ¹the house; and, behold, ^awaters ²issued out from under the threshold of the house eastward: for the forefront of ¹the house stood toward the east, and the waters came down from under from the right side of the house, at the south side of the altar.

47:1—48:35. The final two chapters of the book describe the new land. Since God now has a redeemed people and a divine constitution or covenant, the land remained as the only necessity in order to have a holy nation. A major feature of the new land will be a life-giving river flowing from the temple (47:1–12). The mention of fishermen (v. 10) and marshes (v. 11) prohibit the conclusion that the river should be taken figuratively. The boundaries of the land are described as well (47:13–23), since this was an important feature of God's covenant with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3; 13:14–17; 15:17–21) that

2 Then brought he me out of the way of the ¹gate northward, and led me ²about the way without unto the utter gate by the way that ³looketh ^aeastward; and, behold, there ran out waters on the right side.

3 And when ^athe man that had the line in his hand went forth eastward, he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me through the waters; the waters were to the ancles.

4 Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through the waters; the waters were to the knees. Again he measured a thousand, and brought me through; the waters were to the ¹loins.

5 Afterward he measured a thousand; and it was a river that I could not ¹pass over: for the waters were risen, ²waters to swim in, a river that could not be ³passed over.

The River Brings Life to the Land

6 And he said unto me, Son of man, hast thou seen this? Then he brought me, and caused me to return to the ¹brink of the river.

7 Now when I had returned, behold, at the bank of the river were very many ^atrees on the one side and on the other.

8 Then said he unto me, These waters ¹issue out toward the east ²country, and go down into the ³desert, and go into ⁴the sea: ⁵*which being* brought forth into the sea, the waters shall be healed.

The Borders of the Land

13 Thus saith the Lord GOD; This shall be the ^aborder, whereby ye shall inherit the land according to the twelve tribes of Israel: ^bJoseph shall have two portions.

must now be fulfilled. All 12 tribes will be allotted land, as in ancient Canaan (48:1–29), and even the gates of the city will contain their names (48:30–34). The most significant thing about the New Jerusalem, however, is its new name: The LORD is there (48:35; cf. Joel 3:17, 21). Ezekiel has prophesied much about the destruction of Jerusalem and the removal of God's glory (Ezek. 10, 11) and blessing. His listeners were then no doubt encouraged to realize that the nation's fortunes would ultimately be reversed, and God would again dwell in their midst in an even greater and more glorious sense.

MILLENNIAL SACRIFICES

47:1–12. One feature of the millennial kingdom will be a rebuilt temple, complete with animal sacrifices. Since the Scriptures indicate that much typological significance of both the temple and its service has already been fulfilled by Christ, we might question the need for a temple or for animal sacrifice in the next dispensation. But the temple might (1) demonstrate God's holiness; (2) provide a dwelling place for the glory of God; (3) perpetuate a memorial of sacrifice; (4) become a center for divine government; and (5) assure victory over the curse. Illustration: The sacrifices in the Millennium will be memorial, much as the observance of the Lord's Supper is memorial today. When both practices were instituted, they were pointing typologically to the atoning death of Christ. At no time did the sacrifices or the Lord's Supper have atoning value, though the atonement message is central to their symbolism. When practiced after the Cross, both can have only a memorial significance. Application: As the believer confesses his sin (1 John 1:9) God will forgive and cleanse. (First Reference, Ezek. 47:1–12; Primary Reference, Ezek. 47:1–12; cf. Rev. 20:12.)

14 And ye shall inherit it, one ¹as well as another: concerning the which I ¹lifted² up mine hand to give it unto your fathers: and this land shall ^bfall unto you for inheritance.

15 And this shall be the border of the land toward the north side, from the great sea, ^athe way of Hethlon, as men go to ^bZedad;

16 ^aHamath, ^bBerothah, Sibraim, which is between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath; Hazar-hatticon, which is by the coast of Hauran.

17 And the border from the sea shall be ^aHazar-enan, the border of Damascus, and the north northward, and the border of Hamath. And this is the north side.

18 And the east side ye shall measure ¹from Hauran, and from Damascus, and from Gilead, and from the land of Israel by Jordan, from the border unto the east sea. And this is the east side.

20 The west side also shall be the great sea from the ¹border, till a man come ²over against Hamath. This is the west side.

The Land Divided Among the Tribes

21 So shall ye ^adivide this land unto you according to the tribes of Israel.

22 And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by ^alot for an inheritance unto you, ^band to the strangers that sojourn among you, which shall beget children among you: ^cand they shall be unto you as ¹born in the country among the children of Israel; they shall have inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel.

48:32. Ezekiel describes the glory of future (perhaps millennial) Israel listing its tribal allotments and naming the gates of the city of Jerusalem for the twelve tribes of Israel, including the gate of Dan (48:32). However, John's list of the 12 tribes which are sealed by God in the future omits the name of Dan (Rev. 7:4–8) and presumably from the list of gates in the New Jerusalem (Rev. 21:9–13). Most biblical scholars attribute this to Dan's apostasy (Judg. 18; 1 Kin. 12:25–30).

48:35. Ezekiel concludes his prophecy by announcing that the Jerusalem of the future will receive a new name: The LORD is there, symbolizing the permanence of the divine presence in the new city. The glory which Ezekiel saw depart from the old city will one day return to a glorious new city with a new temple in the eschatological future (cf. Zech. 14:1–21).

The Book of DANIEL

Title. The title of the book comes from the name of its chief character and author.

Authorship. The authenticity of few books in the Bible has been more furiously assailed by critics than the Book of Daniel. The primary reasons for this negativism are: (1) The book is said to make several historical blunders. (2) The language of the book includes Aramaic, Persian, and Greek words said to be characteristic of a later period. (3) The position of the book in the third part of the threefold division of the Old Testament Canon (Law, Prophets, and Writings) shows that it was written too late to be placed in the collection of the Prophets. (4) The book contains many examples of historical events that occurred long after the time of the traditional date for Daniel.

The arguments for the book's authenticity however are quite convincing and answer well negative doubts: (1) The charges of historical blunders have proved false in the past (e.g., the mention of Belshazzar, now firmly established by the discovery of the Nabonidus Chronicle, was once thought to be a mistake). Present problematic passages will eventually likewise be solved. (2) Not only do the international contacts of the Neo-Babylonian Empire account for the presence of foreign words but recent linguistic research has rendered obsolete the argument concerning the supposed lateness of Daniel's language. (3) Daniel was a statesman as well as a prophet, and could thus easily be included in the writings. (4) Since God is the Sovereign of history, He can inspire men to record accurate predictions of events both near and far. (5) Jesus quoted Daniel as a prophet (Matt. 24:15; Mark 13:14). (6) Daniel's contemporaries mention him as a person known for his righteousness and wisdom (Ezek. 14:14, 20; 28:3). (7) Ancient authorities, both Jewish and Christian, accepted the book's authenticity. (8) Taken at face value, the book purports to be a document of the sixth century B.C., written by a prophet of God. There is no good reason to reject Daniel's authorship of the book.

Little is known of Daniel's background, but he was clearly of royal birth (1:3, 6) and was above average physically and mentally (1:4). Probably taken captive as a teenager (605 B.C.), he lived until at least the third year of Cyrus (536 B.C., 10:1), or well into his eighties.

Date. If the claims of the book are taken at face value, it was written during the lifetime of Daniel at various periods between the time he was captured and the third year of Cyrus (605–536 B.C.) or, simply, the sixth century B.C. The dates of the three kings mentioned in the book are well known: Nebuchadnezzar (605–562 B.C.), Belshazzar (553–539 B.C.), and Cyrus (559–529 B.C.). Cyrus's reign over Babylon, the scene of the later chapters of Daniel, began in 539 B.C.

Interpretation and Purpose. The interpretation of the book can be determined only by understanding its historical background. In 626 B.C. Nabopolassar of Babylon freed his city from Assyrian control and thus began the Neo-Babylonian Empire. In 612 B.C. Babylonia and Media together defeated the Assyrians and destroyed Nineveh, their capital. Nabopolassar was succeeded by his son

Nebuchadnezzar in 605 B.C., shortly after the latter had defeated the Egyptians at Carchemish. The Babylonians were then the undisputed masters of the ancient Near East. In the first of three campaigns against Judah, Nebuchadnezzar took Daniel and his three friends, among others, captive to Babylon (605 B.C.). Later campaigns resulted in the taking of 10,000 captives, including Ezekiel (597 B.C.), and, finally, the destruction of the temple and city itself (586 B.C.). Four successive Babylonian kings are not mentioned in Daniel: Amel-marduk (the Evil-merodach of the Bible, 562–560 B.C.), Nergalsharusur (the Nergal-sharezer of Jer. 39:3, known to the Greeks as Neriglissar, 560–556 B.C.); Labashi-marduk (556 B.C.); and Nabonidus (555–539 B.C.). However, the final king of the Empire, Belshazzar (553–539 B.C.), is an important figure in Daniel’s account. Belshazzar, although a co-regent with his father Nabonidus, was in fact the reigning monarch for much of his father’s term. During Belshazzar’s rule Daniel had the vision of the four beasts (ch. 7) and the vision of the ram and the male goat (ch. 8). The famous “handwriting on the wall” (ch. 5) was a prediction of Belshazzar’s fall, since the city was taken that night (Oct. 12, 539 B.C.) by Cyrus the Persian. Cyrus is the only Persian king mentioned in the book. Darius is clearly identified as a Mede and should not be confused with a later Persian king by the same name.

The purposes in writing the book are several: (1) It presents a divine philosophy of history. God is represented as the Sovereign over all of history. He moves men and nations according to His will (4:35). (2) It provides a prophetic framework for the future—that period called by Jesus “the times of the Gentiles” (Luke 21:24). The world empires mentioned in chapters 2 and 7 show the ultimate fortunes of Gentile powers. (3) It explains other portions of Scripture. The Book of Revelation could not be understood apart from the Book of Daniel. Revelation 4–19 is a commentary on the events of Daniel’s “seventieth week” (Dan. 9:27). (4) It served as a book of encouragement to the Babylonian exiles, whose hearts were no doubt lightened by Daniel’s predictions of the ultimate triumph of Israel over her enemies.

1:1, 2. In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim seems to conflict with Jeremiah's statement that Nebuchadnezzar besieged the city in the fourth year of Jehoiakim (Jer. 25:1). The most likely solution is that Jeremiah used the Jewish system of counting regnal years; that is, any portion of a king's reign before the first New Year, however short, was counted as Year One. Daniel, on the other hand, evidently used the Babylonian system in which the first year (or portion of a year) was counted as the accession year and the next year as the first year. Nebuchadnezzar (also spelled Nebuchadrezzar) means "O Nabu [a Babylonian god], protect my boundary (stone)." The invasion of Jerusalem, occurring in 605 B.C., begins the period when Gentiles occupy the/cot /cof land of Israel. It is called by Jesus "the times of the Gentiles" (Luke 21:24). Land of Shinar is an ancient name for Babylonia.

1:3. Of the king's seed: Daniel and his friends were of royal blood.

1:5. These young men, after their training, would easily serve as liaisons between Babylon and Judah, or even as hostages to keep Judah's kings submissive.

1:7. The name changes are a good example of attempted "brainwashing." All four young men had good Hebrew names that reflected their godly heritage. They were given, instead, Babylonian names that denoted praise of Babylonian gods. Daniel ("God Is My Judge") was changed to Belteshazzar ("Bel Will Protect"), Hananiah ("God Is Gracious") to Shadrach ("Inspiration of the Sun"), Mishael ("God Is Without

1:1 Nebuchadnezzar ruled Babylonia from 605 to 562 B.C. He was the son of Nabopolassar, founder of the Chaldean dynasty. Nebuchadnezzar was the most powerful and longest-reigning king of the Neo-Babylonian period (626–539 B.C.). Nebuchadnezzar was an able but cruel ruler (cf. 2 Kin. 25:7), stopping at nothing to subdue peoples who blocked his path of conquest. He subjugated Jerusalem, burned Solomon's temple, and exiled the Israelites to Babylonia (597–581 B.C.). Daniel 1–5 is an account of Jews in the court of Nebuchadnezzar, including apocalyptic visions. Jeremiah counseled submission to Nebuchadnezzar, whom he viewed as the tool of God's wrath (Jer. 27:6). Nebuchadnezzar's famous "hanging gardens" in Babylon were among the seven wonders of the ancient world. He was the "head of gold" in Daniel's famous vision of chapter 2. (First Reference, Dan. 1:1; Primary References, Dan. 1–5.)

1:1 Babylon was an ancient walled city between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers and the capital of the Neo-Babylonian Empire. Daniel and his three friends were among the leading citizens of the nation of Judah who were carried to Babylon as captives during the years 605–586 B.C. Biblical writers often portrayed this ancient capital of the Babylonian peoples as the model of paganism and idolatry (4:30; Jer. 51:44). Nebuchadnezzar II (ruled 605–562 B.C.), the greatest king of Babylon, enlarged the capital city to an area of six square miles and beautified it with magnificent buildings. This period of the city's development has been the focal point of all archaeological research done in Babylon. The city had a massive double wall spanning both sides of the Euphrates River. There were eight major gates set into these walls. The city contained a palace complex with the famous terraced "hanging gardens" on the northwest side of the palace. Nebuchadnezzar built these gardens for one of his foreign wives to remind her of the scenery of her homeland. The city surrendered to the Persians in 539 B.C., and the Persians willingly submitted to Alexander the Great in 331 B.C. Isaiah and Jeremiah predicted the downfall of the city of Babylon (Is. 14:22; 21:9; 43:14; Jer. 50:9; 51:37), which today lies in ruins in Iraq.

and to Mishael, of Meshach; and to Azariah, of Abed-nego.

Daniel's Request

8 But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself ^awith the portion of the ¹king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

9 Now ^aGod had brought Daniel into favour and ¹tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.

10 And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces worse ¹liking than the ²children which are of your ³sort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king.

Daniel's Proposal

11 Then said Daniel to ¹Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, 12 ¹Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us ²pulse to eat, and water to drink.

13 Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

Equal") to Meshach ("Belonging to Aku"), and Azariah ("The Lord Is My Helper") to Abednego ("Servant of Nego"). Their new names were intended to give them a Babylonian, rather than a Hebrew, identification. The rest of the book shows that, although the Babylonians could change the young men's names, they could not change their character.

1:8. The king's meat no doubt included food prohibited to the Jews. It may have been offered to idols as well.

The Wisdom of Daniel and His Friends

17 As for these four ¹children, ^aGod gave them ^bknowledge and skill in all ²learning and wisdom: and Daniel had ^cunderstanding in all visions and dreams.

18 Now at the end of the days that the king had said he ¹should bring them in, then the ²prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar.

19 And the king ¹communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: therefore ^astood² they before the king.

20 ^aAnd in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king ¹enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.

21 ^aAnd Daniel continued even unto the first year of king Cyrus.

1:15. The success of Daniel's plan was due more to the sovereignty of God in blessing his spiritual commitment than it was to the diet. Certain kinds of meat were not prohibited to the Jews, but a vegetarian diet in this case may have been inherently superior to the king's table.

1:21. Unto the first year of king Cyrus does not contradict 10:1, where a revelation was given to Daniel in the third year of Cyrus. The purpose of 1:21 is to give a chronological overview of Daniel's ministry: he served from the time of Nebuchadnezzar to the time of Cyrus.

1:6 Daniel was a great prophet during the period of the captivity of God's covenant people in Babylon and Persia. Daniel was a teenager when he was taken from Jerusalem into captivity in 605 B.C. He was in his eighties when he received the vision of the prophecy of the 70 weeks (ch. 9). In more than 60 years of his life in Babylon, Daniel faced many challenges. But in all those years, he grew stronger in his commitment to God. Daniel was a prophet, but he also served as an adviser in the courts of foreign kings. He remained in governmental service throughout the reigns of the Babylonian kings and into the reign of Cyrus the Persian, after Persia became the dominant world power (v. 21; 10:1). From his youth, Daniel was determined to live by God's law in a foreign land (vv. 8-16). In moments of crisis, he turned first to God in prayer (2:14-23); his enemies even used his regular prayer time to trap him (6:10, 11). The book paints a beautiful picture of a man of God who lived out his commitment in very troubled times. Daniel's prophecies are noted for their many eschatological features. (First Reference, Dan. 1:6; Primary References, the Book of Daniel.)

Nebuchadnezzar's Dreams

2 And in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams, ^awherewith his spirit was troubled, and ^bhis sleep ¹brake from him.

2 ^aThen the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to ¹shew the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king.

3 And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit was troubled to ¹know the dream.

4 Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in ¹Syriack, ^aO king, live for ever: tell thy servants the dream, and we will shew the interpretation.

5 The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The ¹thing is ²gone from me: if ye will not make known unto me the dream, with the interpretation thereof, ye shall be ^acut in pieces, and your houses shall be made ³a dunghill.

6 ^aBut if ye ¹shew the dream, and the interpretation thereof, ye shall receive of me gifts and rewards and great honour: therefore ¹shew me the dream, and the interpretation thereof.

7 They answered again and said, Let the king tell his servants the dream, and we will ¹shew the interpretation of it.

8 The king answered and said, I know of certainty that ye would ¹gain the time, because ye see the thing is ²gone from me.

9 But if ye will not make known unto me the dream, there is but one decree for you: for ye have prepared lying and corrupt words to speak before me, till the ¹time be changed: therefore tell me the dream, and I shall know that ye can ²shew me the interpretation thereof.

14 Then Daniel answered with counsel and ¹wisdom to Arioch the captain of the king's guard, which was gone forth to slay the wise men of Babylon:

15 He answered and said to Arioch the king's captain, Why is the decree so ¹hasty from the king? Then Arioch made the thing known to Daniel.

16 Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would ¹shew the king the interpretation.

Daniel Interprets for the King

25 Then Arioch brought in Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, I have found a man ¹of the captives of Judah, that will make known unto the king the interpretation.

2:32–45. The sections of the image are said to represent kingdoms. The head ... of ... gold is specifically stated to picture Nebuchadnezzar, or his kingdom, Babylon. The arms of silver represent the kingdoms of Media and Persia. The belly and ... thighs of brass (better "bronze") represent Greece. The legs of iron foreshadow the Roman Empire. The latter weakness of the Roman Empire is well represented by the dubious mixture of iron and clay. The stone ... cut ... without hands that destroyed the last kingdom represents Jesus Christ who, at His return, will destroy Gentile world power and set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed. After comparing the 10 toes of the image with the 10 horns of the beast in 7:24, it seems clear that the 10 toes stand for 10 kingdoms or kings which will emanate from the Roman Empire and be in existence at the time of Christ's return. Critical scholars, in an attempt to eliminate any supernatural prophecy at this point, date the Book of Daniel in the second century B.C., after the kingdoms of Babylon, Medo-Persia, and Greece had ended. At the same time they eliminate the Roman Empire from the picture (even though it would still have been future even in the second century B.C.) by separating Media and Persia into two separate kingdoms—the second and third respectively—leaving Greece to be the final kingdom pictured in the image. However, it is plain from both history and from Daniel's usage that Media and Persia were regarded as a single unit. Note, for example, the references to the "law of the Medes and Persians" (6:8).

The King's Image of Gold

3 Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold, whose height was ¹threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof six cubits: he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon.

2 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather together the princes, the governors, and the captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

3 Then the princes, the governors, and captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, were gathered together unto the dedication of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up; and they stood before the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

3:1. The motive for setting up the image seems to have been an attempt to unify the kingdom and promote the authority of the king. Various explanations have been offered for the grotesque dimensions of the image, 90 feet high and 9 feet wide. It may not have represented Nebuchadnezzar physically, but could have been an obelisk. It could have been a distorted figure, or the height could have included a pedestal on which the image was set.

3:5. Since some of the names of these musical instruments are Greek, some critics have argued that the book could only have been written after the conquest of Alexander the Great in the late fourth century B.C. However, numerous contacts between Babylonia and Greece are attested much earlier. The assumption that technical musical instruments could have been imported and their Greek names retained is not unreasonable.

3:12. The fact that Daniel is not mentioned may be explained in a couple of ways: he may have been busy elsewhere with administrative affairs, or, as a higher official, may not have been required to attend the meeting. Daniel 2:49 indicates he remained in the city of Babylon whereas his friends were assigned to the wider province.

13 Then Nebuchadnezzar in his “rage and fury commanded to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. Then they brought these men before the king.

The Fiery Furnace

14 Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up?

15 Now if ye be ready that at what time ye hear the sound of the ¹cornet, flute, harp, ²sackbut, psaltery, and ³dulcimer, and all kinds of musick, ye fall down and worship the image which I have made; ^a*well*: but if ye worship not, ye shall be cast the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace; ^band who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?

22 Therefore because the king's commandment was ¹urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the flame of the fire slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

23 And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace.

24 Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his ¹counsellors, Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire? They answered and said unto the king, True, O king.

25 He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, ^awalking in the midst of the fire, and they ¹have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like ^bthe² Son of God.

3:18. If not does not indicate a lapse of faith on the part of the three men. Rather, they recognized that sometimes it was the will of God for men of God to die “in the line of duty” as they served Him. They knew that God was able to deliver them, but did not know if it was His will.

3:25. The fourth is like the Son of God (lit., “a son of the gods”): Nebuchadnezzar had no knowledge of Christ and was probably saying nothing more than that a divine being was protecting the three men. The fourth person may have been the preincarnate Christ, who often appears in the Old Testament as “the angel of the LORD,” or may have been an angel sent by God to protect the men.

28 Then Nebuchadnezzar spake, and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his *a*angel, and delivered his servants that trusted in him, and have ¹changed the king's word, and yielded their bodies, that they might not serve nor worship any god, except their own God.

18 This dream I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen. Now thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof, ^aforasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known unto me the interpretation: but thou art able; ^bfor the ¹spirit of the holy gods is in thee.

Daniel's Troubled Thoughts

19 Then Daniel, ^awhose name was Belteshazzar, was ¹astonied for one hour, and his thoughts ^btroubled him. The king spake, and said, Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation thereof, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My lord, ^cthe² dream ³*be* to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof³ to thine enemies.

The Defilement of the Temple Vessels

5 Belshazzar the king ^amade a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand.

2 Belshazzar, whiles he tasted the wine, commanded to bring the golden and silver vessels ^awhich his ¹father Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem; that the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therein.

3 Then they brought the golden ^avessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them.

4 They drank wine, ^aand praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of ¹brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

The Writing on the Wall

5 ^aIn the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote ¹over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall of the king's palace: and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote.

4:33. Two important questions arise from this incident: (1) Could it happen to a man? and (2) Could it have happened to Nebuchadnezzar? The answer to both questions is Yes. There is a mental illness known as zoanthropy in which a man thinks and acts like an animal. It is also called boanthropy, more specifically, when a man thinks of himself as an ox. In answer to the second question, this illness is not mentioned in Nebuchadnezzar's annals, but one would not expect such a humiliating experience to be chronicled. On the other hand, his long reign of 43 years (605-562 B.C.) is more than long enough to include the lengthy sickness.

5:1. The years between Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar total only 10, but are filled with murder, intrigue, conspiracy, and political decline. Nebuchadnezzar was succeeded by his son Evil-merodach (see 2 Kin. 25:27-30; Jer. 52:31-34) who had reigned for only two years (562-560 B.C.) when he was murdered by his brother-in-law, Neriglissar (called Nergal-sharezer in Jer. 39:3, 13). After a brief reign (559-556 B.C.) Neriglissar died, leaving the kingdom in the hands of his son, Labashi-marduk. The latter lasted only two months before being killed by an assassin and succeeded by Nabonidus. Nabonidus, who was probably the son-in-law of Nebuchadnezzar, reigned for some 16 years (555-539 B.C.). Although he left the kingdom in the hands of his son Belshazzar for much of the time, (553-539 B.C.), Nabonidus was able to restore a measure of glory to Babylon. Belshazzar ruled as king during the last years of Babylon. It is not evident until the end of the chapter, but while Belshazzar was feasting in revelry, the city was surrounded by the Persian army. Belshazzar considered the city unassailable because of its massive walls, and therefore felt confident to hold a banquet in the face of military threat.

5:5. The plaister of the wall of the king's palace: Archaeologists have unearthed a room on the site of ancient Babylon, located in Iraq, that is plastered and measures 165 feet by 55 feet. It may very well have been Belshazzar's banquet hall.

6 Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his ¹loins were loosed, and his ^aknees ²smote one against another.

The Rewards for the Interpretation

7 ^aThe king cried ¹aloud to bring in ^bthe astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever shall read this writing, and ²shew me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with ³scarlet, and have a chain of gold about his neck, ^cand shall be the third ruler in the kingdom.

8 Then came in all the king's wise men: ^abut they could not read the writing, nor make known to the king the interpretation thereof.

9 Then was king Belshazzar greatly ^atroubled, and his countenance was changed in him, and his lords were ¹astonied.

The Queen Remembers Daniel

10 Now the queen by reason of the words of the king and his lords came into the banquet house: and the queen spake and said, O king, live for ever: let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed:

11 ^aThere is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the ¹spirit of the holy gods; and in the days of thy ²father light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him; whom the king Nebuchadnezzar thy ²father, the king, I say, thy ²father, made ³master of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers;

12 Forasmuch as an excellent spirit, and knowledge, and understanding, interpreting of dreams, and ¹shewing of hard sentences, and ²dissolving of doubts, were found in the same Daniel, ^awhom the king named Beltshazzar: now let Daniel be called, and he will ³shew the interpretation.

The King's Appeal to Daniel

13 Then was Daniel brought in before the king. And the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art thou that Daniel, which art of the children of the captivity of Judah, whom the king my ¹father brought out of Jewry?

14 I have even heard of thee, that ^athe ¹spirit of the gods is in thee, and that light and understanding and excellent wisdom is found in thee.

15 And now ^athe wise men, the astrologers, have been brought in before me, that they should read this writing, and make known unto me the interpretation thereof: but they could not ¹shew the interpretation of the thing:

16 And I have heard of thee, that thou canst ¹make interpretations, and ²dissolve doubts: ^anow if thou canst read the writing, and make known to me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with ³scarlet, and have a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt be the third ruler in the kingdom.

Nebuchadnezzar's Reign

17 Then Daniel answered and said before the king, Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy rewards to another; yet I will read the writing unto the king, and make known to him the interpretation.

18 O thou king, ^athe most high God gave Nebuchadnezzar thy ¹father a kingdom, and majesty, and glory, and honour:

19 And for the majesty that he gave him, ^aall people, nations, and languages, trembled and feared before him: whom he would he ^bslew; and whom he would he kept alive; and whom he would he set up; and whom he would he put down.

20 ^aBut when his heart was ¹lifted up, and his ²mind hardened in pride, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and they took his glory from him:

5:10. The queen was probably Belshazzar's mother or grandmother, since his wives were at the feast (v. 2).

She was likely Nebuchadnezzar's widow and served as the Queen Mother.

21 And he was ^adriven from the sons of men; and his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild ¹asses: they fed him with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven; ^btill he ²knew that the most high God ruled in the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he will.

22 And thou his son, O Belshazzar, ^ahast not humbled thine heart, though thou knewest all this;

23 ^aBut hast ¹lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven; and they have brought the ^bvessels of ²his house before thee, and thou, and thy lords, thy wives, and thy concubines, have drunk wine in them; and thou hast praised the gods of silver, and gold, of ³brass, iron, wood, and stone, ^cwhich see not, nor hear, nor know: and the God in whose hand thy breath is, ^dand whose are all thy ways, hast thou not glorified:

24 Then was the ¹part of the hand sent from him; and this writing was written.

6:3 ^a Dan. 5:12 ¹ distinguished himself ² overseers
³ satraps

5:25. MENE comes from a verb meaning "to number." TEKEL comes from a verb meaning "to weigh." PHARSIN comes from a verb meaning "to divide." (The U before Pharsin is simply the word for and.)

5:29. He was called the third ruler in the kingdom because Belshazzar and Nabonidus were already co-rulers. Critics of the Bible in past times suggested that Daniel erred greatly in portraying Belshazzar as the last king of Babylon, for ancient secular historians listed Nabonidus as Babylon's final king. However, the finding of several official tablets dealing with Belshazzar has shown that he was assuredly Nabonidus's son, ruling as second ruler in the kingdom. Accordingly, when Daniel translated and explained the enigmatic words on the wall he could be made but "third ruler." The discovery of the Nabonidus Chronicle affirmed the accuracy of the biblical account, which other historians had long forgotten.

5:30. Babylon was practically invincible, but, according to extrabiblical records, the Persians were able to divert the Euphrates River, which ran through the city, and thus walk in through the shallow river bed. The capture of the city is well attested in ancient records, from both the Babylonian and Persian annals. Though neither mentions the slaying of Belshazzar, he must have died in a palace skirmish. In essence, the city was taken without a fight.

5:31. Darius the Median (or Mede), mentioned here and in the next chapter, has been variously identified. Since there is no extrabiblical evidence for his existence, critics have charged the book with a historical blunder here. Others, however, have sought to explain the reference in one of three ways: (1) The name may be another name for Cyrus. It is possible to translate 6:28 as "In the reign of Darius even [or, that is] in the reign of Cyrus." (2) Others suggest that Darius may be another name for Ugbaru (Hebrew spelling Gubaru), the governor of Gutium, who according to Babylonian records led the Persian army in the capture of Babylon. He was subsequently appointed as ruler of Babylon by Cyrus. (3) Another explanation is that although Ugbaru conquered Babylon, another man, named Gubaru, was given the rule over Babylon by Cyrus. Gubaru and Darius would be alternate names for the same person. Whichever view is correct, there is certainly no need to charge Daniel with historical error. This Darius is not to be confused with the later Persian king Darius the Great (521-485 B.C.).

A Plot Against Daniel

4 ^aThen the ¹presidents and ²princes sought to find ³occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom; but they could find ⁴none occasion nor fault; forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him.

5 Then said these men, We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God.

The Royal Decree

6 Then these ¹presidents and ²princes ³assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, "King Darius, live for ever.

7 All the ¹presidents of the kingdom, the ²governors, and the ³princes, the counsellors, and the ⁴captains, have ^aconsulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm decree, that whosoever shall ⁵ask a petition of any ⁶God or man for thirty days, ⁷save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions.

8 Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it ¹be not changed, according to the ^alaw of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not.

9 Wherefore king Darius signed the ¹writing and the decree.

Daniel Continues to Worship

10 Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber ^atoward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees ^bthree times ¹a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he ²did aforetime.

11 Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God.

12 ^aThen they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree; Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any ¹God or man within thirty days, save of thee,

O king, shall be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, The thing is true, ^baccording to the law of the Medes and Persians, which ²altereth not.

13 Then answered they and said before the king, That Daniel, ^awhich is of the ¹children of the captivity of Judah, ^bregardeth² not thee, O king, nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day.

14 Then the king, when he heard these words, ^awas ¹sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him: and he ²laboured till the going down of the sun to deliver him.

15 Then these men ¹assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, Know, O king, that ^athe law of the Medes and Persians is, That no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.

Daniel Cast into the Lions' Den

16 Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.

17 ^aAnd a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; ^band the king sealed it with his own ¹signet, and with the ²signet of his lords; that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

18 Then the king went to his palace, and ¹passed the night fasting: neither were ²instruments of musick brought before him: ^aand his sleep ³went from him.

19 Then the ^aking arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions.

20 And when he came to the den, he cried with a ¹lamentable voice unto Daniel: and the king spake and said to Daniel, O Daniel, servant of the living God, ^ais thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?

6:10, 11. Daniel was past 80 years of age at this time, yet he was still on his knees thanking God and asking for His guidance and help.

Daniel's Protection

21 Then said Daniel unto the king, ^aO king, live for ever.

22 ^aMy God hath sent his angel, and hath ^bshut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me: forasmuch as before him ¹innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king, have I done no ²hurt.

23 Then was the king exceedingly glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, ^abecause he believed in his God.

24 And the king commanded, ^aand they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, them, ^btheir children, and their wives; and the lions ¹had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces ²or ever they came at the bottom of the den.

Daniel's Vision of the Four Great Beasts

7 In the first year of Belshazzar king of Babylon ^aDaniel ¹had a dream and ^bvisions of his head upon his bed: then he wrote the dream, and told ²the sum of the matters.

2 Daniel spake and said, I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea.

3 And four great beasts ^acame up from the sea, ¹diverse one from another.

4 The first was ^alike a lion, and had eagle's wings: I beheld till the wings thereof were ¹plucked, and it was lifted up from the earth, and made stand upon ²the feet as a man, and a ^bman's heart was given to it.

5 ^aAnd behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and ¹it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it: and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh.

6 After this I beheld, and lo another, like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also ^afour heads; and dominion was given to it.

7 After this I saw in the night

6:22. His angel is perhaps the Angel of Yahweh, the preincarnate Christ.

7:1. In the first year of Belshazzar: Since the death of Belshazzar is reported at the end of chapter 5, the Book of Daniel is clearly not in chronological order. This is true of many of the Old Testament Prophets. The word dream indicates that Daniel was asleep; the word visions denotes the successive stages of what he saw in the dream.

7:2. The great sea is the Mediterranean (cf. Num. 34:6, 7; Josh. 1:4; 9:1; Ezek. 47:10).

7:3. Four great beasts represent four kings or kingdoms (v. 17). The beasts seen here in Daniel's dream are parallel to the sections of the image seen in Nebuchadnezzar's dream in chapter 2.

7:4. The lion represents Babylon and its most famous king, Nebuchadnezzar. The lion symbolizes the strength and power of the kingdom; the wings symbolize the swiftness of its victories; and the standing up as a man represents the humanitarian character of Nebuchadnezzar in his later years. The winged lion was the national symbol of Babylon in the days of Nebuchadnezzar.

7:5. The bear is a picture of Medo-Persia, the empire that succeeded Babylon as the world power. On one side refers to Persia's dominance over Media in the kingdom. The three ribs probably indicate three nations conquered by Medo-Persia in their ascendancy (Babylon, Lydia, and Egypt).

7:6. The leopard depicts Greece. Though naturally a swift animal, this leopard had four wings in addition to its native agility. This speaks of the lightning speed with which Alexander the Great (336-323 B.C.) conquered the ancient world. The number four represents the four generals who divided up Alexander's kingdom after his death.

visions, and behold ^aa fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and ¹stamped the residue with the feet of it: and it was ²diverse from all the beasts that were before it; ^band it had ten horns.

8 I considered the horns, and, behold, ^athere came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes ^bof man, ^cand a mouth speaking ¹great things.

The Judgment by the Ancient of Days

9 ^aI beheld till the thrones were ¹cast down, and ^bthe Ancient of days did sit, ^cwhose garment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like the pure wool: his throne was like the fiery flame, ^aand his wheels as burning fire.

10 ^aA fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: ^bthousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: ^cthe ¹judgment was set, and the books were opened.

11 I beheld then because of the ¹voice of the great words which the horn spake: ^aI beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame.

12 As concerning the rest of the beasts, they had their dominion taken away: yet their lives were prolonged for a season and time.

The Son of Man's Eternal Kingdom

13 I saw in the night visions, and, behold, ^aone like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him.

14 ^aAnd there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all ^bpeople, ¹nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is ^can everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.

The Interpretation of Daniel's Dream

15 I Daniel was grieved in my spirit in the midst of ¹my body, and the visions of my head troubled me.

16 I came near unto one of them that stood by, and asked him the truth of all this. So he told me, and ¹made me know the interpretation of the things.

17 These great beasts, which are four, are four ¹kings, which shall arise out of the earth.

18 But ^athe saints of the most High shall ¹take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever.

19 Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was ¹diverse from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of ²brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and ³stamped the residue with his feet;

20 And of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which

7:7, 8. The fourth beast is not given a name and therefore must have had the character of an unknown hideous monster. It foreshadows the Roman Empire. The ten horns are 10 kings (v. 24), and the little horn is another king who will arise after the 10 and be co-existent with them (v. 24). This little horn will subdue three other kings (v. 24) and will persecute the saints (v. 25). The identification of the 10 horns and the little horn has generated much discussion. The 10 kingdoms represented by the 10 horns may be the nation that will grow out of the old Roman Empire, or they may be 10 future kings who will rule over some form of a revived Roman Empire. The little horn represents the Antichrist. The parallels between this fourth beast and the beast in Revelation 13 are unavoidable. The description of the beast (i.e., the Antichrist) in that passage is clearly intended to depict the same individual as in Daniel's portrayal (v. 25). Thus, Daniel gives a foreview of the work of the Antichrist in the Tribulation period, and states that he will emerge from the remnants, or revival, of the Roman Empire.

7:9. The Ancient of days is God Himself. The whiteness of His garments and hair is a picture of His holiness.

7:13. The Son of man who came to the Ancient of days is the Son of God approaching God the Father. Evidently Jesus took the title Son of Man, which was His favorite way of referring to Himself in the Gospels, from this passage.

7:14. The commencement of Christ's everlasting dominion will take place at His second coming (cf. Matt. 24:30; 25:31; Rev. 11:15).

came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake ¹very great things, whose ²look was ³more stout than his fellows.

21 I beheld, ^aand the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them;

22 Until the Ancient of days came, ^aand judgment was ¹given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom.

23 Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be ^athe fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be ¹diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall ²tread it down, and break it in pieces.

24 ^aAnd the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise: and another shall rise after them; and he shall be ¹diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings.

25 ^aAnd he shall speak ¹great words against the most High, and shall ^bwear² out the saints of the most High, and ^cthink³ to change times and laws: and ^dthey⁴ shall be given into his hand ^euntil ⁵a time and times and the dividing of time.

26 ^aBut the ¹judgment shall sit, and they shall ^btake away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it ²unto the end.

27 And the ^akingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, ^bwhose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, ^cand all

Daniel's Second Vision

8 In¹ the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me ^aat the first.

2 And I saw in a vision; and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was at ^aShushan¹ in the ²palace, which is in the province of Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I was by the river of Ulai.

The Ram with Two Horns

3 Then I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, there stood before the river a ram which had two horns: and the two horns were high; but one was ^ahigher than the other, and the higher came up last.

4 I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand; ^abut he did according to his will, and became great.

The He Goat

5 And as I was considering, behold, an he goat came from the west ¹on the face of the whole earth, and touched not the ground: and the goat had a ²notable ^ahorn between his eyes.

6 And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen

7:23. The fourth beast, according to some critics, is not Rome but Greece. This interpretation, based on an attempt to eliminate any supernatural prediction here, must make the second and third beasts Media and Persia. However, we see from passages like 6:8 that Daniel considered the Medes and Persians as one empire.

7:25. A time and times and the dividing of time (or "a time and times and half a time") is an expression used in Daniel and in Revelation to refer to three-and-a-half years, or 1,260 days, or 42 months (12:7; Rev. 11:2; 12:6, 14; 13:5).

8:1. With chapter 8 the text begins again in Hebrew. This is appropriate since the rest of the book is concerned with God's program for Israel. The vision of chapter 8 came two years after that of chapter 7.

8:2. Shushan or Susa was a Persian royal city about two hundred miles east of Babylon where Daniel was at the time.

8:3. The ram with two horns represents the kingdom of Medo-Persia (v. 20). Its two horns represent the two constituent parts of the kingdom, with the higher horn portraying the dominance of Persia over Media (as did the raised bear in 7:5).

8:5. The he goat is clearly the "king of Grecia," with the notable horn representing the first king, Alexander (v. 21). The fact that the goat's feet did not touch the ground symbolizes the swiftness of Alexander's conquest, as did the wings on the leopard in the previous chapter (7:6).

standing before the river, and ran unto him ¹in the fury of his power.

7 And I saw him come close unto the ram, and he was moved with ¹choler against him, and ²smote the ram, and brake his two horns: and there was no power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and ³stamped upon him: and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand.

8 Therefore the ¹he goat ²waxed very great: and when he was strong, the great horn was broken; and for it came up ^afour ³notable ones toward the four winds of heaven.

9 ^aAnd out of one of them came forth a little horn, which ¹waxed exceeding great, toward the south, and ^btoward the east, and toward the ^cpleasant ²land.

10 ^aAnd it ¹waxed great, even ²to ^bthe host of heaven; and ^cit cast down some of the host and of the stars to the ground, and ³stamped upon them.

Gabriel's Appearance to Daniel

15 And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and ^asought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me ^bas ¹the appearance of a man.

16 And I heard a man's voice ^abetween the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, ^bGabriel, make this man to understand the vision.

8:7. In a series of battles over the period of 334–330 B.C., Alexander the Great decisively destroyed Persian power and became the master of the ancient Near Eastern world.

8:8. Four notable ones (or horns) refers to the four generals who by 301 B.C. ruled Alexander's empire (v. 22): Cassander ruled in Macedonia and most of Greece; Lysimachus ruled in the various parts of Thrace and parts of Asia Minor; Seleucus held most of Syria, Israel, and Mesopotamia; and Ptolemy was ruler in Egypt and parts of southern Syria. The ensuing years saw continuous power struggles in this area of the world from the successors of these generals.

8:9. A little horn came out of one of the four horns. Most agree that this little horn can only refer to Antiochus IV Epiphanes, a Seleucid ruler over Syria and Israel (175–163 B.C.), and for a short time over Egypt. In 167 B.C. Antiochus outlawed the Jewish religion, burned Jerusalem, killed multitudes of Jews, and forbade circumcision and other Jewish observances. On December 16, 167 B.C., he offered a sow on the altar outside the temple, the ultimate sacrilege to a Jew. This began the period known as the Maccabean revolt. After three years of fighting, the Jews were able to restore temple worship in late 164 B.C. This rededication of the temple is still commemorated today in the eight-day Jewish holiday known as Hanukkah. Antiochus's atrocities are accurately predicted in verses 10–14 and 23–25.

8:14. Two thousand and three hundred days is literally "2,300 evenings and mornings" which could very easily refer to the evening and morning sacrifices or 1,150 days. This figure would encompass the time when the temple was desolated from December 16, 167 B.C., until early 163 B.C. when all the Jewish sacrifices were restored. The latter event took place shortly after the recapture of the temple in late 164 B.C. Others view the 2,300 days as the entire period of time in which the temple was closed by Antiochus IV from 170–164 B.C. What is clear is that the prophecy was about the desecration of the Jerusalem temple during the inter-testamental period.

The Seventy Years of Desolation

9 In the first year ^aof Darius the son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes, which was made king over the realm of the Chaldeans;

2 In the first year of his reign I Daniel understood by ¹books the number of the years, ²whereof the word of the LORD came to ^aJeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem.

3 ^aAnd I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes:

4 And I prayed unto the LORD my God, and made my confession, and said, O ^aLord, the great and ¹dreadful God, keeping the covenant and ²mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments;

5 ^aWe have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments:

6 ^aNeither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

God's Righteous Judgment

7 O Lord, ^arighteousness belongeth unto thee, but unto us ¹confusion of faces, as at this day; to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and unto all Israel, that are near, and that are far off, through all the countries whither thou hast driven them, because of ²thy trespass that they have ³trespassed against thee.

8 O Lord, to us belongeth ¹confusion of face, to our kings, to our 8:25. He shall also stand up against the Prince of princes: Many believe that the description here transcends that of Antiochus alone, and uses him as a type of the Antichrist who will oppose Christ during the Great Tribulation. Certainly the devious work of Antiochus and of the Antichrist is of the same heinous character.

9:2. The chronological notice in this verse is important. The event in the chapter occurred in 539 B.C., the year that Darius the Mede assumed the rulership of Babylon. This momentous change of power provoked Daniel to search the Scriptures to determine the prophetic significance, if any, of the capture of Babylon by the Persians. By searching the prophet Jeremiah, Daniel realized that Jeremiah had prophesied that the captivity of the Jews would last 70 years (Jer. 25:11, 12). That period was almost over. Verses 4-19 are, in essence, a prayer of confession and petition: confession of the nation's sin and petition for God to fulfill His Word.

9:5. We have sinned: Four times in the chapter (vv. 5, 8, 11, 15) Daniel acknowledges the people's sin, but always includes himself in their number. As with all great leaders he identifies himself with his people.

princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee.

9 ^aTo the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against him;

10 Neither have we obeyed the voice of the LORD our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

Israel's Transgression of God's Law

11 Yea, ^aall Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the ^blaw of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him.

12 And he hath ^aconfirmed his words, which he spake against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great ¹evil: ^bfor under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem.

13 ^aAs it is written in the law of Moses, all this ¹evil is come upon us: ^byet made we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and understand thy truth.

14 Therefore hath the LORD ^awatched¹ upon the evil, and brought it upon us: for ^bthe LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth: for we obeyed not his voice.

15 And now, O Lord our God, ^athat hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and ¹hast gotten thee ^brenown, as at this day; we have sinned, we have done wickedly.

Seventy Weeks Are Determined

24 ¹Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon

9:15-19. After praying his confession (vv. 4-14) Daniel offers a petition. He prayed, negatively, for God's wrath against His people to be assuaged (v. 16) and, positively, for God's grace, mercy, and forgiveness to be displayed in the people's restoration to their land (vv. 17-19).

9:20-23. The answer of God to Daniel's prayer came immediately through the angel Gabriel. Although Daniel's prayer was primarily for God's forgiveness and the restoration of the Jews to their land, his initial concern for God's program for Israel (v. 2) caused the Lord to reveal to him an outline of Israel's future from that point on.

for understanding biblical prophecy. Every statement in verses 24–27 is important and deserves special attention. The first interpretive problem is the meaning of the expression seventy weeks. The word weeks is a Hebrew word shabua' that can refer to any period of seven: seven days, seven months, seven years, and so on. Only the context indicates what period of seven is intended. There are four good reasons for believing that the “seven” intended here is a period of seven years: (1) Daniel has just been concerned about years (vv. 1, 2). (2) It is impossible to fit the events of verses 24–27 into 490 days or weeks. (3) In the only other place where Daniel uses the word week, he qualifies it by adding the word days (10:2, 3). (4) Finally, the fact that verse 27 speaks of a covenant being broken at the half-way point of the seventieth seven agrees well with Daniel 7:25, 12:7, and Revelation 12:14, which speak of three-and-one-half years as one-half of a week. In sum, verse 24 declares that God had determined a period of 490 years to accomplish six key activities on behalf of Israel. Each divine act is marked out by an infinitive: to finish the transgression, to make an end of sins, and so on. The first three are negative and the last three are positive.

9:25. The commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem is said to be the point of commencement for the 490-year period. At least four decrees mentioned in Scripture have been set forth by various scholars as the fulfillment of this prophecy: the decree of Cyrus in 539 B.C. (2 Chr. 36:22, 23; Ezra 1:1–4); the decree of Darius I in 519/518 B.C. (Ezra 6:1, 6–12); the decree of Artaxerxes I to Ezra in 457 B.C. (Ezra 7:11–26); and the decree of Artaxerxes to Nehemiah in 444 B.C. (Neh. 2:1–8). Only the last decree, however, could have fulfilled this statement, since it was the only one of the four that specifically concerned the rebuilding of the city. Cyrus’s decree was for the purpose of rebuilding the temple. Darius’s decree simply confirmed the intent of Cyrus’s earlier decree. Artaxerxes’ decree to Ezra was concerned only with the return of additional exiles and with the beautification of the temple. Only Artaxerxes’ decree to Nehemiah refers directly to the restoration of the city. According to Nehemiah 2:1–8 this decree was given in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes in the month Nisan, or March-April, 444 B.C. From this date to the Messiah will transpire a period of seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks, or 483 years. See the note on verse 24 for the explanation of the week as seven years. The reason the first 69 “weeks” are subdivided into two periods of seven and 62 is uncertain, but clearly these 69 weeks run consecutively with no gap between them.

9:26. After threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off: This phrase assumes that the first seven weeks (for a week equalling seven years, see the note on v. 24) have already transpired and thus serves to summarize the passing of 69 weeks of years (483 years). There is a gap of time between the sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks. This is indicated by the statement that the Messiah will be cut off after the 69 weeks. Daniel used a calculation of time based upon prophetic years (360 days), rather than solar years, (365 days). The same calculation is used in the Book of Revelation where “a time, and times, and half a time” (Rev. 12:14) equals 1,260 days or 42 months (cf. Dan. 7:24, 25; 12:7; Rev. 11:3; 12:6; 13:5). In each case the calculation is based upon 30-day months.

The Messiah’s being cut off refers to the crucifixion of Christ, which probably occurred in April A.D. 32. The sixty-ninth week ended just prior to His crucifixion, probably at His triumphal entry into Jerusalem. The time span from Artaxerxes’ decree to rebuild the city in March 444 B.C. until Christ’s crucifixion in April A.D. 32 covered 483 prophetic years (173,880 days). This calculation agrees perfectly with our own solar calendar. Thus, Daniel predicted that 483 prophetic years would lapse from Artaxerxes’ decree until the death of the Messiah. The final week of years (Daniel’s

SEVENTY WEEKS PROPHECY

9:24. These 70 prophetic weeks of Daniel’s vision describe God’s dealings with Israel, and are divided into two periods—the first 69 weeks, and the final (seventieth) week. During this period, the messianic work of God will be completed. According to Daniel’s prophecy, at the end of the sixty-ninth week, the Messiah will be cut off and the city of Jerusalem, including the temple, destroyed. This particular dispensation—which was among God’s secret things in the Old Testament but is a mystery revealed in the New Testament—falls within this gap. The 70 weeks began from the only biblical decree authorizing the rebuilding of Jerusalem and its wall (Neh. 2). It is dated in the Jewish month of Nisan 445 B.C. Using a 360-day year (12 30-day months; cf. Gen. 7:11 with 8:4; 7:24 with 8:3; Rev. 12:6, 7, 13, 14 with 13:4–7), Sir Robert Anderson calculated the end of the sixty-ninth week to fall on Palm Sunday, just before the Lord’s crucifixion. Illustration: Just as the events of the first 69 weeks have been literally fulfilled, so will be the events of the final week. Application: The Christian should realize that God is not yet through with Israel. (First Reference, Deut. 29; Primary Reference, Dan. 9:24; cf. Luke 21:24.) and unto the end of the war desolations are determined.

27 And he shall confirm ^athe¹ covenant with ^bmany for one week: and in the ²midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the ³oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, ^ceven until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the ⁴desolate.

seventieth week) is left unexplained and is best taken to be the equivalent to the seven years of tribulation that are yet determined for Israel.

The prince that shall come is the little horn of 7:8 who will emerge from the fourth, or Roman Empire. He is known elsewhere in Scripture as the Antichrist. However, the present verse states that the people of the prince, and not the prince himself, will destroy the city. This prophecy was fulfilled in A.D. 70 when Titus, the Roman general, destroyed the city of Jerusalem, killing thousands.

9:27. He shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: The pronoun he here refers to its nearest antecedent, "the prince that shall come," or Antichrist, in verse 26. The commencement of the future seventieth "week" (see the note on v. 24 for the seven-year length of a "week") then occurs when the Antichrist makes a covenant with the Jews for a seven-year period. It will evidently be a covenant intended to provide peace for Israel. However, in the middle of the period, the Antichrist will break this covenant and cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, that is, put an end to Jewish worship and set himself up as an object of worship (2 Thess. 2:4; Rev. 13:8).

The statement that for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate refers to what Jesus called "the abomination of desolation" (Matt. 24:15). It foreshadows the act of sacrilege when the Antichrist ends organized religion and demands that he be worshipped. This final seventieth week is also known in Scripture as the Tribulation (Matt. 24:21). Revelation 4–19 is an exposition of what will take place during this period. The seventieth week will end when Christ returns to the earth to establish His kingdom (Rev. 19:11–21).

10:1. The final vision given to Daniel was in the third year of Cyrus, or 536 B.C. In the Book of Daniel it takes up chapters 10–12.

10:2. The entirety of chapter 10 is concerned with Daniel's preparation to receive the vision. The emphasis of the chapter is the strengthening of Daniel and the satanic opposition that he and God's angels encountered.

10:5. A certain man is probably not the preincarnate Christ, because this angel was hindered by "the prince ... of Persia" (a demon), and because he needed the help of Michael the archangel (v. 13). Neither of these statements could have been said of Christ.

12 Then said he unto me, ^aFear not, Daniel: for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to ¹chasten thyself before thy God, ^bthy words were heard, and I am come for thy words.

13 ^aBut the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days: but, lo, ^bMichael, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained there with the kings of Persia.

14 Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people ^ain the latter days: ^bfor yet the vision ¹is for many days.

4 And when he shall stand up, ^ahis kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven; and not to his posterity, ^bnor according to his dominion which he ruled: for his kingdom shall be plucked up, even for others beside those.

The Kings of the South and North

5 And the king of the south shall be strong, ¹and ^{one} of his princes; and he shall be strong above ²him, and have dominion; his dominion shall be a great dominion.

10:20. The prince of Grecia and the prince of Persia were demons who worked in those nations to oppose God's people.

10:21. The scripture of truth, or "book of truth," probably refers to God's knowledge or record of all truth, of which the Bible is a partial revelation.

11:2. This verse through verse 35 is an amazing summary of about two hundred years of the history of the wars between Egypt and Syria that took place during the fourth through the second centuries B.C. All of these prophecies, however, were written by Daniel in the sixth century B.C.! Three kings in Persia are Cambyses, the son of Cyrus (529–521 B.C.), Pseudo-Smerdis (521 B.C.), and Darius I (521–487 B.C.).

The fourth is the most powerful of the four kings, Xerxes (485–464 B.C.), or as he is known in the Book of Esther, Ahasuerus.

11:3, 4. The mighty king is Alexander the Great (336–323 B.C.) and the four winds are the four prominent generals who seized control of various parts of his empire (see note at 8:8).

11:5, 6. The king of the south is the general who assumed control of Egypt, Ptolemy I (323–283 B.C.); and the king of the north is another general, Seleucus I Nicator (312–280 B.C.), who had sovereignty over Syria and Mesopotamia. The conflict between these two generals and their successors, called the Ptolemies and Seleucids, is taken up in verses 5–20.

6 And in the end of years they shall join themselves together; for the king's daughter of the south shall come to the king of the north to make an agreement: but she shall not retain the power of the ¹arm; neither shall he stand, nor his ¹arm: but she shall be given up, and they that brought her, and he that begat her, and he that strengthened her in these times.

7 But out of a branch of her roots shall one stand up ¹in his estate, which shall come with an army, and shall enter into the fortress of the king of the north, and shall deal against them, and shall prevail:

8 And shall also carry ¹captives into Egypt their gods, with their ²princes, and with their precious ³vessels of silver and of gold; and he shall continue more years than the king of the north.

9 ¹So the king of the south shall come into his kingdom, and shall return into his own land.

10 But his sons shall ¹be stirred up, and shall assemble a multitude of great forces: and one shall certainly come, ^aand ²overflow, and pass through: then shall he ³return, and be stirred up, ^b*even* to his fortress.

11 And the king of the south shall be ^amoved with ¹choler, and shall 13 For the king of the north shall return, and shall set forth a multitude greater than the former, and shall certainly come ¹after certain years with a great army and with much ²riches.

14 And in those times there shall many stand up against the king of the south: also the ¹robbers of thy people shall exalt themselves ²to establish the vision; but they shall ^afall.

15 So the king of the north shall come, and ^acast up a ¹mount, and take ²the most fenced cities: and the ³arms of the south shall not ⁴withstand, neither his chosen people, neither shall there be any strength to withstand.

16 But he that cometh against him ^ashall do according to his own will, and ^bnone shall stand before him: and he shall stand in the glorious land, ¹which by his hand shall be consumed.

11:5. The king of the south refers to the dynasty of the Ptolemies (Greek overlords) who ruled Egypt during the inter-testamental period after the death of Alexander the Great in 323 B.C. Significant rulers in this dynasty included: Ptolemy I Soter (323–282 B.C.) who seized control of Egypt upon Alexander's death and proclaimed himself "king" in 305 B.C. establishing his capital at Alexandria. Ptolemy II Philadelphus (282–246 B.C.) built the famous library and lighthouse at Alexandria and engaged in numerous wars with the Seleucids over control of Judah. Ptolemy III Euergetes (246–222 B.C.) engaged in further wars with Seleucus II, who murdered Ptolemy's sister Bernice and her son. Ptolemy IV Philopater (222–205 B.C.) defeated Antiochus III of Syria at Raphia in 217 B.C. Ptolemy V Theos (204–180 B.C.) lost control of Judah, although his coronation is depicted on the (multi-lingual) Rosetta Stone, which enabled modern scholars to decipher hieroglyphics. Ptolemaic powers declined with the rising influence of Rome. The last Ptolemaic ruler was Cleopatra VI (51–30 B.C.), who committed suicide after she and Mark Anthony were defeated by Octavian (Augustus) at Actium.

11:6. The king of the north refers to the dynasty of the Seleucids (Greek overlords) who ruled Syria and Anatolia (modern Turkey) during the inter-testamental period. Significant rulers in this dynasty included: Seleucus I Nicator (312–280 B.C.), a childhood friend of Alexander the Great, he took control of Syria and Babylon in 312 B.C., moving his capital to Antioch in Syria in 301 B.C. Antiochus II Theos (261–246 B.C.) married Bernice, the daughter of Ptolemy II, who was later murdered, intensifying continual conflict between the Seleucids and the Ptolemies. Antiochus III the Great (223–187 B.C.), known as the warrior-king, conquered Bactria, Parthia, and Judah but was eventually defeated by the Romans. Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.) usurped the throne after the assassination of Seleucus IV and attempted to force Hellenization (assimilation of Greek culture) on the Jews, including the atrocities that led to the Maccabean revolt, the expulsion of the Greeks and the cleansing of the desecrated temple in 164 B.C.

17 He shall also ^aset his face to enter with the strength of his whole kingdom, and ¹upright ones with him; thus shall he do: and he shall give him the daughter of women, ²corrupting her: but she shall not stand ³on his side, ^bneither be for him.

18 After this shall he turn his face unto the ¹isles, and shall take many: but a prince for his own behalf shall cause the reproach offered by him to cease; without his own reproach he shall ²cause it to turn upon him.

19 Then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land: but he shall ^astumble and fall, ^band not be found.

20 Then shall stand up in his ¹estate a raiser of taxes in the ²glory of the kingdom: but within few days he shall be destroyed, neither in anger, nor in battle.

21 And in his ¹estate ^ashall ²stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom: but he shall come ³in peaceably, and ⁴obtain the kingdom by ⁵flatteries.

22 And with the ¹arms of a ^aflood shall they be ²overflowed from before him, and shall be broken; ^byea, also the prince of the covenant.

23 And after the league ^{made} with him ^ahe shall work deceitfully: for he shall come up, and shall become strong with a ¹small people.

24 He shall enter ¹peaceably even ²upon the fattest places of the province; and he shall do ^{that} which his fathers have not done, nor his fathers' fathers; he shall scatter among them the ³prey, and ⁴spoil, and riches: ^{yea}, and he shall ⁵forecast his devices against the strong holds, even for a time.

25 And he shall stir up his power and his courage against the king of the south with a great army; and the king of the south shall be stirred up to battle with a very great and mighty army; but he shall not stand: for they shall ¹forecast devices against him.

11:21. A vile person introduces Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-163 B.C.), the last of the Seleucid rulers mentioned in the chapter. Because of his extreme persecution of the Jews, his devious reign is fully described in verses 21-35. See comments on Daniel 8:9.

The King Shall Magnify Himself

11:36. The events described in verses 2–35 have all been fulfilled. So detailed are these prophecies that critics have denied that Daniel could have written these words in the sixth century B.C. However, God is God. He is sovereign and fully capable of revealing these matters to His prophet. In verse 36 a new individual is introduced simply as the king. This cannot refer to Antiochus IV Epiphanes since the details of the passage could not refer to him. Rather, it must refer to the same individual already prophesied by Daniel, the little horn of 7:8 and “the prince” of 9:26; that is, the Antichrist. Indeed, the work of this individual described in 11:36–12:1 bears an inescapable agreement with the work of the Antichrist described in the New Testament (2 Thess. 2:4; Rev. 13; 17).

11:40–45. The king of the south, the Egyptian ruler, will attack Israel during the Great Tribulation; the king of the north is not clearly identified, but the description of his work prohibits identification with any Seleucid king. He may originate from Magog (Ezek. 38:15) or simply be a king not identified anywhere in Scripture. But the point of the verse is clear: the king of the south and the king of the north will fight in the wars of the Antichrist. His wars are described in verses 40–45, including his occupation of Israel, the glorious land (v. 41), and his ultimate end (v. 45).

12:1. During the Great Tribulation there will be an unprecedented attack to exterminate the Jews, but they will be delivered by Michael the archangel.

12:2, 3. After the Great Tribulation there will be two resurrections, one of the righteous to everlasting life and another of the unrighteous to everlasting contempt. A comparison with Revelation 20:4 shows that these two resurrections are separated by the one-thousand-year reign of Christ.

11 And from the time that the daily ¹sacrifice shall be taken away, and the abomination ²that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days.

12 Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days.

13 But go thou thy way till the end be: ^afor thou shalt rest, ^band ¹stand in thy lot at the end of the days.

12:4. It was impossible to understand the significance of these prophecies in Daniel's own day, but God indicated that at the time of the end many would seek to understand these predictions and be able to do so.

12:7. A time, times, and a half refers to the second half of the Great Tribulation, when these prophecies will be fulfilled. The first half of the Great Tribulation will be a time of relative peace for Israel because of their covenant with the prince (9:27). However, after the prince (Antichrist) breaks the covenant at the end of three-and-a-half years, there will be a tremendous time of persecution and wars (11:40–45).

12:11. A thousand two hundred and ninety days differs from the second half of the Great Tribulation, known elsewhere as only 1,260 days. The additional 30 days may occur before the "abomination of desolation" takes place in the middle of the Great Tribulation, perhaps as a prior, 30-day announcement of the Antichrist's intention. On the other hand, the 30 days could be added to the end of the Great Tribulation to allow time for the judgment of Israel and the nations.

12:12. The thousand three hundred and five and thirty days (1,335 days) contains an additional 45 days beyond the figure of verse 11. This additional period probably occurs between the Great Tribulation and the commencement of the Millennium. The verse uses the word blessed to apply to those who wait for these days to be terminated, and thus would easily speak of the blessedness of the Millennium.

12:13. For thou shalt rest: Daniel would not live to see the fulfillment of his own prophecies, but is here promised that he would be resurrected to receive his reward (thou shalt... stand in thy lot). All who trust in Daniel's God will likewise be blessed.

The Book of HOSEA

Hosea's prophecy gave Israel a tangible example of its spiritual idolatry, yet portrayed God's love for Israel in spite of her spiritual infidelity. It constituted a national call to repentance.

Historical Setting. Hosea dates his prophecy "in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash, king of Israel" (1:1). Hosea's ministry extended from about 770 to 725 B.C. Thus, his active ministry ceased a few years before Assyria carried the northern kingdom into captivity in 722 B.C. Hosea was a citizen of the northern kingdom, and his personal experience was designed by God to be an example to his nation.

Hosea was to the northern kingdom what Jeremiah was to the southern kingdom—a weeping prophet. Hosea looked forward to the Assyrian captivity of the northern kingdom, just as Jeremiah looked forward to the Babylonian captivity of the southern kingdom. Hosea's prophecy is closely related to that of Amos. Amos was very severe in his prophecy, and his ministry was somewhat like a James or John the Baptist of the Old Testament. Both Amos and Hosea prophesied to the northern kingdom, although Amos was a native of the southern kingdom, and Hosea of the northern kingdom. Hosea was the younger contemporary of Amos, and because their ministries overlap, there is much similarity in the sins they condemn. In Amos, the prophetic discourses are very pronounced, while in Hosea, because of the intense personal involvement of the prophet, they are not very distinctly defined from one another, a fact that makes the book difficult to outline.

The prophecy is characterized by intense emotion as the prophet's personal tragedy (chs. 1–3) is transferred and applied to the nation (chs. 4–14).

Authorship. This prophecy provides the sole source of information concerning the author, "Hosea the son of Beeri" (1:1). His name means "Salvation." Nothing is known of Beeri, "Expounder," although a different man by the same name is mentioned in Genesis 26:34. In the course of the prophecy he was commanded to marry Gomer who bore two sons and a daughter (1:3b–11). (Many believe her lover sired one or more children.) Throughout the prophecy the prophet's personal history was made to be symbolic of the relationship between the Lord and Israel. Because of the tragic details of his personal life, Hosea has been known as the brokenhearted prophet. His sorrow provides a good illustration of the brokenhearted Lord in His relationship with sinful mankind.

9 Then said God, Call his name ¹Lo-ammī: for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God.

10 Yet ^athe number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; ^band it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are ¹not my ^cpeople, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are ^dthe sons of the living God.

1:2, 3. In all probability Gomer was morally pure prior to her marriage to Hosea, but subsequently became discontented and went into harlotry, from which Hosea by his love reclaimed her.

1:4. Jezreel means "God Sows." He is to be a reminder that God will judge the house of Jehu from the bloodshed in Jezreel, when the kingdom was wrested from Ahab and Jezebel and God's judgment was poured out against them (cf. 2 Kin. 9).

1:6, 7. Lo-ruhamah means "No Mercy" or "Not Pitied." Her significance is twofold: God's compassion has come to an end for Israel, and her judgment is imminent (v. 6b).

1:9. Lo-ammī means "Not My People" indicating to the Israel of his day that they were not the Lord's people, and that the Lord was not their God. This should in no sense be understood as an annulment of the Abrahamic covenant (cf. Gen. 12:1-3), an unconditional covenant depending solely upon God for its fulfillment.

2:2-5. Plead with your mother: The Hebrew text begins chapter 2 with what is 1:10 in the English text. The prophet uses his personal domestic tragedy as a means of addressing not only his own children (and through them their physical mother), but also the believing remnant, who in turn are to plead with their mother (the nation Israel) to return to God.

2:14-17. The valley of Achor: In this valley, located near Jericho, Achan's sin was discovered, judged, punished, and put away. In like manner, if Israel and Gomer will deal with their sin and put it away, that very act will result in God's blessing and bring restoration and hope. The names Ishi ("My Husband") and Baali ("My Master") are significant. The former is a term of affection and represents the closest loving relationship. The latter indicates servitude and inferiority.

3:1. Go yet, love a woman: If anyone had occasion to renounce his wife, Hosea did; however, he was instructed to love her still. Similarly, God continued to love an unfaithful Israel. Flagons of wine (Heb. ashishah) are raisin cakes. They are similar, if not identical, to the cakes mentioned in Jeremiah 7:18 and 44:19 which were used in the idolatrous ceremonies in honor of the queen of heaven.

3:2. The price paid to redeem Gomer is indicative of the depth to which she had sunk; 30 pieces of silver was the price commonly paid for a slave (cf. Ex. 21:32). Barley was considered to be a food fit only for animals, and was eaten only by the poorest people. Gomer had sunk to such depths that she was worth only half the price of a common slave and approximately 10 bushels of animal food.

3:4, 5. Without occurs five times in the Hebrew text. Israel actually will be without three things: (1) The monarchy—she will have neither reigning monarch nor anyone in line to become one. Ultimately, a king must come as promised to David and Israel in 2 Samuel 7. (2) A sacrifice—she will not observe a God-appointed sacrificial system during this long period, though during it the Messiah will in fact come and be the supreme Sacrifice. (3) Idolatry—even though she will not observe a true religious system, she will forsake idolatry and all its trappings. Israel return: In God's appointed time Israel will come to its senses and will have a national regeneration (cf. Jer. 31:31–34).

DAVID IN THE KINGDOM

3:5. Although Christ will reign as sovereign in the kingdom, it is not clear whether He is the only One on the throne. Several passages suggest that David will reign in the Millennium (Is. 55:3, 4; Jer. 30:9; 33:15, 17, 20, 21; Ezek. 34:23, 24; 37:24, 25; Hos. 3:5; Amos 9:11). These verses may be interpreted: (1) typologically, with Jesus as the Son of David, fulfilling David in type, reigning; or (2) literally, with David being resurrected, returning to the throne, and having a sphere of regal authority under the regency of Christ. Illustration: One of Christ's millennial titles, "King of kings, and Lord of lords" (Rev. 19:16), may suggest the presence of lesser kings and lords. So it could be that David will serve under Christ's authority as vice-regent of Palestine, just as others may similarly rule other regions or cities (Luke 19:12–18). Application: Those who suffer for Christ will someday reign with Him. (First Reference, 2 Sam. 7:12–16; Primary Reference, Ps. 89:34–37; cf. Ezek. 47.)

5 Therefore shalt thou ¹fall ^ain the day, and the prophet also shall ¹fall with thee in the night, and I will destroy thy mother.

6 ^aMy people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: ^bseeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children.

4:6. The cause of man's problem is lack of knowledge. It does not stem from a shortage of information, but rather from rejection of information.

4:8. They are the problem; that is, the priesthood. They have not helped the people face their sin and deal with it. Rather, they have gloried and taken pleasure in the sin of the people.

4:9. Like people, like priest: The priest of God is corrupted and made like the sinning people, not vice versa.

4:12-14. My people ask counsel at their stocks: Like the heathen of Romans 1:25, they worship and serve the creature rather than the Creator. Instead of consulting the God who made the trees and the wood, they consult the tree and the wooden idols that can be fashioned from them. Therefore your daughters shall commit whoredom, and your spouses shall commit adultery. Spiritual harlotry gave way to physical harlotry, which was incorporated into the religious rituals of their idolatrous worship.

4:17. Ephraim (the name given to Israel because it was the largest tribe of the northern kingdom) is completely given over to its idolatry and accompanying practices. He is beyond recall.

4:18. This is the only instance where the Hebrew word magēn is translated by the English word rulers. It occurs in the Old Testament more than 50 times and is usually translated by the English word shield. The leaders God gave to the nation, with the express purpose of shielding it from sin and leading it to God, have instead led in its spiritual defection.

6:1-3. Come, and let us return unto the Lord ... we shall live in his sight: The prophet vicariously leads his people in a prayer of repentance and a plea for restoration that can ultimately take place only in the day when Israel as a nation will be converted (cf. Jer. 31:31-34) and God will set up His kingdom over His people and reign for a thousand years. He shall come unto us as the rain: God will no longer deal with Israel like a "moth" and "rottenness" (cf. 5:12). Instead, He will deal with them like life-giving and refreshing rain.

10 I have seen an horrible thing in the house of Israel: there is the ¹whoredom of Ephraim, Israel is defiled.

Israel's Wickedness Remembered

7 When I would have healed Israel, then the iniquity of Ephraim was ¹discovered, and the wickedness of Samaria: for ^athey commit ²falsehood; and the thief cometh in, and the ³troop of robbers ⁴spoileth without.

2 And they ¹consider not in their hearts that I ^aremember all their wickedness: now their own ²doings have ³beset them about; they are before my face.

7:1-7. The figure of an oven heated by the baker refers to the schemes of the wicked. Like a baker who kneads his dough, keeps it warm by night as he sleeps, and then with the dough raised, bakes the

They will be swept away in the judgment of God, and any benefits that they desired would fall to the hands of strangers to whom God would deliver them.

8:11-14. Ephraim hath made many altars to sin: Throughout Israel many sacrificial altars were built for the purpose of idolatrous rituals. Israel became addicted to its sin in spite of the clear and written revelation that God had given through Moses.

9:1, 2. It was customary and right for people to rejoice at harvesttime. Israel, however, was commanded not to do so, because she attributed the abundance she experienced on the cornfloor (Heb. goren dagan, a place where the harvest of grain was processed) to the idols she worshiped, instead of God who sent it. great devastation in the land. The picture is graphic, for Israel has given itself to feeding on what will not nourish it (idolatry), and the result is an increase in lies and desolation.

12:3-6. These verses remind the entire nation of the patriarch from whom they have descended. Jacob always wanted God's best, even though he did not always seek it God's way. Yea, he had power over the angel, and prevailed: The allusion is to Jacob's encounter with the Angel of the Lord at Peniel (Gen. 32:30). Israel had forgotten Jacob's spiritual wrestlings with God. Israel, as did Jacob, must come to the end of itself and find its strength in God alone.

12:7. He is a merchant (Heb. kena'an, Canaanite merchant): Rather than being like God, Israel is like the Canaanite and the Canaanite deities they had adopted.

13:1-16. When he offended in Baal, he died: Under Ahab, the nation gave itself to the worship of Baal, and the result was spiritual death. The nation's spiritual decline also resulted in political decline (cf. 1 Kin. 16:31).

13:4. There is no saviour beside me: Israel had put its trust in other nations (5:13; 7:11; 8:9, 10) and its own strength (9:6; 12:8; cf. 2 Kin. 14:25-28) rather than in the One who is the only Savior.

13:14-16. I will ransom them from the power of the grave: Only God can save Israel from national extinction. After its judgment is complete, Israel will ultimately be redeemed and will bring forth fruits of repentance. This national repentance and restoration will be realized in the Israel of the Millennium. Paul applies verse 14 to the resurrection of Christ, which guarantees the resurrection of all believers in Christ.

14:1-3. Calves of our lips: The word calves (Heb. par, "a young bull or produce") is best understood metaphorically, referring to the words that the lips produce—in this context praise to the Lord. The nation had used its lips to praise the idolatrous calves; now it will use its lips in praise to the Lord God.

14:4-8. A green fir tree: Up to this time Ephraim has been a stench in the nostrils of God. Now, because its sin has been dealt with, it will be pleasing to the Lord; and the fruit will satisfy Him. Hosea closes his prophecy on a high note. God's never-changing love for Israel will one day bring about her repentance and restoration to His full favor. This prophecy of God's bountiful blessing looks to the great millennial periods of Christ's righteous and beneficent rule.

The Book of JOEL

Joel is a highly emotional prophecy, rich in imagery and vivid descriptions. In it two unique events, not to be forgotten, are compared. These two events are to be communicated to the descendants of the people.

Historical Setting. Joel was one of the earliest prophets of Judah. The specific place from which Joel wrote is not known. Since he was a resident of Judah and Jerusalem, he likely wrote his prophecy from there. His frequent calls to blow a trumpet in Zion, to consecrate a fast, to proclaim a solemn assembly, and to gather the people together to come before the Lord lend credence to the view that the prophecy was issued from the temple court.

Two events are compared in the course of Joel's prophecy: (1) the locust plague upon Judah in the days of the prophet, and (2) the far greater coming day of the Lord. The latter is set forth in the figure of the former. Joel is the special prophet of the day of the Lord; he mentions it five times (1:15; 2:1; 2:11; 2:31; 3:14). Joel has also been called the "Prophet of Pentecost" because of his most famous and well-known passage (2:28-32), quoted by Peter in Acts 2. More than half of the book is built around a description of the locust plague. Joel's prophecy is the grandest description in all literature of such a plague. Joel is also a great prophecy of repentance, on both a personal and national scale (1:14; 2:13, 15). The purpose of Joel's prophecy is to turn the nation back to God in preparation for the great day of the Lord, the theme of his prophecy.

Authorship. The author of the prophecy is identified only as "Joel the son of Pethuel." His name combines the names Yahweh and El and means "Yahweh Is God." The author is one of 14 men in the Old Testament who shared this name. Joel was a contemporary of both Hosea and Amos, though he ministered to the southern kingdom while they ministered to the northern kingdom. Joel's frequent references throughout the prophecy to Judah and Jerusalem indicate that he was not a priest, though he was an inhabitant of Jerusalem and was a prophet of the southern kingdom.

1:4. This verse describes the devastation of the locust plague. Moses prophesied that God would use locusts to punish His people if they were disobedient (Deut. 28:38, 42). The language may express the four stages in the development of a single type of insect. The palmerworm (Heb. gazam, “to gnaw”) is the stage at which the locust is first hatched and is characterized by its gnawing activity. The locust (Heb.

arben, “to be many”) is the most common name for the locust, and is the second stage, in which the locust gets its wings and flies. The cankerworm (Heb. yeleg, “to lick off”) is the stage in which it does its destructive work. The caterpillar (Heb. chasil, “to devour or to consume”) is the final stage, in which the locust reaches its full growth and devours everything in its path.

17 The seed ¹is rotten under their clods, the ²garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the ³corn is withered.

18 How do ^athe beasts groan! the herds of cattle are ¹perplexed, because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep ²are made desolate.

19 O LORD, ^ato thee will I cry: for ^bthe fire hath devoured the ¹pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burned all the trees of the field.

20 The beasts of the field ^acry also unto thee: for ^bthe ¹rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

The Dark Day of the Lord

2 Blow ^aye the ¹trumpet in Zion, and ^bsound an alarm in my holy mountain: let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for ^cthe day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand;

3 A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as ^athe garden of Eden before them, ^band behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

4 ^aThe appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as ¹horsemen, so shall they run.

2:1, 2. The trumpet was used primarily for religious purposes to call the congregation together for meetings, to usher in the beginning of the month, and to note solemn days and festive occasions. In this instance, it is to be used to alarm the people to the seriousness of the crisis that is upon them. A double figure of locusts and a future invading army may be intended in verses 1–11.

2:3–6. The locusts have the appearance of warhorses and sound like the noise of chariots as they go about their destruction. No natural barrier can contain them because they leap.

2:11. Nature has not gone awry; the locusts are not beyond God's control. They move at His specific command.

2:12, 13. The customary way a Jew showed his grief was to tear his outer garment. This external sign could be meaningless. The tearing of the outer garment is useless, unless the heart is broken in repentance and contrition.

2:14. God is immutable and does not change. This verse sets forth the possible results of revival and repentance from man's point of view. When man changes, he is unaware of the change in himself, and views it as though it were a change in God.

2:15-17. This is the second invitation to blow the trumpet in Zion. It summons the whole nation to an assembly of repentance in order to implore God's mercy.

2:28-32. And it shall come to pass afterward is a formula employed to speak of future events. This differentiates the message on the locust plague from the day of the Lord. The promised outpouring of God's Spirit will be on all ages and classes of people: sons and daughters. Accompanying the outpouring of the Spirit will be full salvation, or deliverance, for all who put their trust in the Lord as their Redeemer. Joel has compressed together, in true prophetic fashion, events separated by millennia. The crucial points of history are the events of the locust plague in Joel's day; the Day of Pentecost, on which the Holy Spirit was indeed poured out universally and made available to all mankind, about A.D. 33; the events of the Great Tribulation (separated from the Day of Pentecost by over 1,900 years, 3:1-17); and the establishment of the earthly Davidic millennial kingdom that follows the events of the Great Tribulation (vv. 18-21).

30 And ^aI will shew wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke.

In anticipation of the judgment that will be visited on them, God taunts His enemies and urges them to get ready for war, to come and fight Him, even though it is a hopeless cause (v. 9); to get their armaments ready, though they will be of no avail (v. 10); to get their allies ready, though they will be of no help (v. 11); and to get all the nations ready to fight Him. All of their efforts and preparations will be futile, for God will judge them. Just as the land was helpless before its devastators, so they will be helpless before God, who will judge them on behalf of Judah and Jerusalem. The valley of decision (v. 14) is synonymous with the valley of Jehoshaphat (v. 2). The scene is not one where the multitudes are in the midst of making a decision in favor of the Lord and repenting of their sin. Rather, the decision is made by God, a decision to judge the multitudes for their treatment of Judah and Jerusalem! This judgment will be meted out against them in the day of the Lord that takes place in the Great Tribulation.

3:18-21. Joel's final prophecy pictures the great millennial age when the LORD dwelleth in Zion. The word dwelleth (Heb. shakan) indicates the abiding presence of the shekinah glory of old with His repentant and restored people (cf. Ezek. 48:35).

The Book of AMOS

The prophecy of Amos is characterized by great boldness coupled with great tact. The prophet gains the attention of his audience by pronouncing judgment on Israel's enemies before delivering the main burden of judgment against Israel herself. In the delivery of his prophecy he is very courageous while being unusually stern and severe.

Historical Setting. Amos provides the historical key for his ministry: "The days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, two years before the earthquake" (1:1). Uzziah's independent reign took place in 767–740 B.C., and the sole reign of Jeroboam II in about 782–753 B.C. Amos was a contemporary of Hosea, Isaiah, and Jonah.

Amos and Hosea were co-workers and may even have gone on preaching tours through the land together, although Hosea continued his work after Amos passed from the scene. Isaiah and Micah followed Amos's ministry and may have heard him preach when they were lads.

We see from 7:10 that Amos's prophecy was issued primarily at Bethel, the seat of idolatry in the northern kingdom. He attacks Satan's stronghold, Bethel, and when he is opposed by the idolatrous priest, Amaziah, becomes even bolder in his preaching. Throughout, the prophecy is filled with references to rural life, indicating Amos's background as a shepherd. The prophet never put on pretenses. He was what he was—God's messenger for his hour to call the nation Israel to awaken to her responsibility and accountability for the national sins she had committed against God. In the process he shows himself to be an oratorical giant, in spite of the fact that he had no formal training.

The purpose of Amos's prophecy is to awaken Israel and its surrounding nations to the fact that the nation is both responsible and accountable for its sins. His theme, then, is national accountability for national sins.

Authorship. The author of the prophecy is identified as Amos, a shepherd of Tekoa (1:1). His name means "Burden," or "Burden-bearer," and provides a key to the leading message of the book. The prophecy is Amos's great burden from the Lord concerning the national sin of God's chosen people, as well as the judgment that must fall upon them unless they repent. No better testimony could be given concerning Amos than his own (7:14, 15): "I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was a herdman, and a gatherer of sycamore fruit: And the LORD took me as I followed the flock, and the LORD said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel." From his testimony we learn that Amos was not a graduate of the school of the prophets, nor had he any formal religious training or academic preparation for the mission to which God called him. Rather, he was a simple shepherd who also gathered sycamore fruit, and who in obedience to God was used mightily to deliver God's message of judgment against Israel, the northern kingdom.

1:1, 2. Two years before the earthquake: While earthquakes are not uncommon in Palestine, the one to which Amos refers must have been unusually severe; for it is mentioned again by Zechariah in his prophecy (Zech. 14:4, 5) more than two hundred years later. It stands as a reminder of God's great power in nature and is a warning of His judgment that is about to overtake Israel. Amos begins his prophecy with words taken from Joel (cf. v. 2 with Joel 3:16).

1:3-5. Damascus is the capital city of Syria and is to be especially stricken in judgment because of the cruelties Syria had inflicted on Israel. For three transgressions ... and for four (which introduces the message of judgment to all of the nations, including Israel) is a rhetorical way of saying that the offender has been guilty of an incalculable number of offenses. The plain of Aven may have been an area in which idolatry was deeply entrenched. The house of Eden ("House of Pleasure") may refer to the king's pleasure resort. The precise location of Kir is unknown.

1:6-8. The mention of Ashdod, Ashkelon, Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines (v. 8) lets us know that the prophecy is directed against Philistia as a whole. Their crime was the taking of a whole population captive and delivering it over to Edom. Joel 3:3-8 fills in the details that Amos's prophecy lacks.

1:9, 10. Tyre remembered not the brotherly covenant which their King Hiram had made with David and Solomon. This covenant had been long-standing (cf. 2 Sam. 5:11; 1 Kin. 5:2-6, 15-18; 9:11-14), and no king of Israel or Judah had ever made war on Phoenicia. Though Judah honored its side of the treaty, Phoenicia had sold Israelites to others (cf. Joel 3:4-8).

four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom, and remembered not the ¹brotherly covenant:

10 But I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus, which shall devour the palaces thereof.

11 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of ^aEdom, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he did pursue his ^bbrother with the sword, and did cast off all pity, and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever:

12 But ^aI will send a fire upon Teman, which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.

13 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of ^athe children of Ammon, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have ¹ripped up the women with child of Gilead, that they might enlarge their ²border:

14 But I will kindle a fire in the wall of ^aRabbah, and it shall devour the palaces thereof, ^bwith ¹shouting in the day of battle, with a tempest in the day of the whirlwind:

15 And ^atheir king shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the LORD.

2 Thus saith the LORD; ^aFor three transgressions of Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he ^bburned the bones of the king of Edom into lime:

2 But I will send a fire upon Moab, and it shall devour the palaces of ^aKiriath:¹ and Moab shall die with tumult, with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet:

5 ^aBut I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

Judgment on Israel

6 Thus saith the LORD; For three transgressions of ^aIsrael, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because ^bthey sold the righteous for silver, and the ^cpoor for a pair of ¹shoes;

1:13-15. Rabbah (lit., "The Great") was the capital city of Ammon. Amos prophesies that it will be utterly destroyed, and the king and his princes taken into captivity for its unspeakable atrocities against God's people.

2:4, 5. Israel was probably as pleased at this pronouncement of judgment as she was with all the others. Judah's sin is similar to Israel's, for they have despised the law of the Lord. Israel should realize that if God would judge Judah, then certainly He would also judge Israel herself. Judah's sin is worse than those of the nations, because Judah has violated the law of God that was delivered to her by direct revelation.

God Has Spoken

3 Hear this word that the LORD hath spoken against you, O children of Israel, against the whole family which I brought up from the land of Egypt, saying,

Because of Israel's flagrant violations of God's righteous law and His gracious provisions, inescapable judgment must inevitably fall, though it will fall only after God has permitted Himself to endure Israel's many and grievous sins far beyond what might ordinarily be considered the breaking point.

3:1, 2. Have I known (Heb. yada') should be understood in the sense of God's setting Israel apart to bring her into covenant relationship with Himself. It is used with similar meaning in Psalms 1:6; 147:19, 20; and Ezekiel 20:5.

anic plans for Israel, which cannot be allowed to be thwarted by the nation's sin.

4:1-3. Ye kine of Bashan is an indictment against the women of Samaria. The "cows" of Bashan were noted for being well fed and strong because of the lush pastures of the area. The women of Samaria lived in luxurious wantonness, enjoying their luxury because they oppressed the poor and crushed the needy. When the women of the land sink to such a low moral and degraded state, God's judgment must fall, for the entire land is degraded.

4:12, 13. Prepare to meet thy God warns that God is not going to visit Israel with salvation, but rather with inevitable and complete judgment.

3:15. The houses of ivory refer to ivory carvings that were used to decorate the homes of wealthy Samaritans. Ahab's palace at Samaria was "inlaid with ivory" (1 Kin. 22:39). Excavations of the ruins of ancient Samaria revealed hundreds of pieces of ivory artwork found on the acropolis of the city. An alabaster jar found with the largest of the ivories was inscribed with the name of the Egyptian Pharaoh Osorokon II (824–850 B.C.), a contemporary of Ahab. Israel's proximity to Africa probably accounts for the vast amount of ivory used there during this period of time. Amos 6:4 also speaks of "beds of ivory." A large collection of carved ivories was also found at the Assyrian city of Nimrud on the Tigris River. In 1961 an ivory plaque was found there with the Hebrew inscription "may Yahweh shatter."

5 Hear ye this word which I ^atake up against you, even a lamentation, O house of Israel.

3 For thus saith the Lord GOD; The city that went out by a thousand shall ¹leave an hundred, and that which went forth by an hundred shall ¹leave ten, to the house of Israel.

Seek the Lord and Live

4 For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel, ^aSeek ye me, ^band ye shall live:

5 But seek not ^aBeth-el, nor enter into Gilgal, and pass not to ^bBeer-sheba: for Gilgal shall surely go into captivity, and ^cBeth-el shall come to ¹nought.

6 ^aSeek the Lord, and ye shall live; lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph, and devour it, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el.

Horses do not run on rocks, or else they would become lame; nor does one plow rocks with oxen, or else the plow would be broken. To violate natural law is to reap the consequences of it. Even more, Israel's folly in transgressing God's law will bring certain judgment.

A Plague of Fire

4 Thus hath the Lord GOD shewed unto me: and, behold, the Lord GOD called ¹to contend by fire, and it ²devoured the great deep, and ³did eat up a part.

5 Then said I, O Lord GOD, cease, I beseech thee: ^aby¹ whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small.

6 The LORD ¹repented for this: This also shall not be, saith the Lord GOD.

A Plumbline

7 Thus he shewed me: and, behold, the Lord stood upon a wall made ¹by a plumbline, with a plumbline in his hand.

8 And the LORD said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, ^aI will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel: ^bI will not again pass by them any more:

9 ^aAnd the ¹high places of Isaac shall be desolate, and the ²sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste; and ^bI will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

13 But ^aprophesy not again any more at Beth-el: ^bfor it is the king's ¹chapel, and it is the ²king's court.

Amos's Reply to Amaziah

14 Then answered Amos, and said to Amaziah, I was no prophet, neither was I ^aa prophet's son; ^bbut I was an herdman, and a ¹gatherer of sycamore fruit:

15 And the LORD took me ¹as I followed the flock, and the LORD said unto me, Go, ^aprophesy unto my people Israel.

17 ^aTherefore thus saith the LORD; ^bThy wife shall be an harlot in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by the sword, and thy land shall be divided by ¹line; and thou shalt die in a ^cpolluted² land: and Israel shall surely go into captivity ³forth of his land.

A Basket of Summer Fruit

8 Thus hath the Lord GOD shewed unto me: and behold a basket of summer fruit.

2 And he said, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said the LORD unto me, ^aThe end is come upon my people of Israel; ^bI will not again pass by them any more.

3 And ^athe songs of the temple shall be ¹howlings in that day, saith the Lord GOD: there shall be many dead bodies in every place; ^bthey shall cast them forth with silence.

7:4-6. Great deep means the vast reservoir of underground water, as well as the sea. Such a fire would be inextinguishable (cf. Gen. 7:11; 8:2; 49:25; Is. 51:10).

7:7-17. This vision lets the prophet know that all hope for Israel has been exhausted, and judgment must come. The purpose of the plumbline is to illustrate how far Israel has strayed from God's righteousness, and that it must be destroyed.

8:1-14. The vision of the summer fruit shows that Israel is ripe for judgment, which will come very soon.

Judgment on the Oppressors of the Poor

4 Hear this, O ye that ¹swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail,

5 Saying, When will the new moon be ¹gone, that we may sell ²corn? and ^athe sabbath, that we may ³set forth wheat, ^bmaking the ephah small, and the shekel great, and falsifying the balances by ^cdeceit?

6 That we may buy the poor for ^asilver, and the needy for a pair of ¹shoes; yea, and sell the ²refuse of the wheat?

7 The LORD hath sworn by ^athe ¹excellency of Jacob, Surely ^bI will never forget any of their works.

8 ^aShall not the land tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein? and it shall ¹rise up wholly as ^aa flood; and it shall ³be cast out and ⁴drowned, ^bas by the flood of Egypt.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord GOD, ^athat I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in ¹the clear day:

10 And I will turn your feasts into ^amourning, ^band all your songs into lamentation; ^cand I will bring up sackcloth upon ¹all loins, and baldness upon every head; and I will make it as the mourning ²of an only son, and the end thereof as a bitter day.

11 Behold, the days come, saith the Lord GOD, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but ^aof hearing the words of the LORD:

12 And they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the LORD, and shall ^anot find it.

marred, it is not beyond God's ability to repair. Peter quotes these verses at the Council of Jerusalem (Acts 15:16, 17) to demonstrate God's intention to save Jews and Gentiles alike.

The Book of OBADIAH

Obadiah's prophecy is written in Hebrew poetry, and the reader needs to be mindful of parallelism in interpreting it. The structure of the Hebrew parallelism portrays the intense emotion with which the prophecy was delivered.

Historical Setting. If the authorship of the prophecy were certain, the historical setting would be certain. Conservatives tend to date the prophecy early, and liberal critics tend to date it late during the Chaldean period after the fall of Jerusalem to the Chaldeans in 586 B.C. Such critics also attempt to deny the prophecy's integrity and unity. The general nature of the prophecy makes the setting of this book compatible with a wide range of dates from the ninth to the early sixth centuries B.C. Accordingly, scholars of all persuasions disagree over the date of Obadiah's prophecy. However, no definitive reason exists to deny the integrity and essential unity of the book. As well, the prophecy is elastic enough in its fulfillment to embrace all of the times of Edom's destruction, whether by the Chaldeans, who laid Edom waste (Jer. 49:7-22; Ezek. 35), and the Maccabees, Rome (A.D. 70), or ultimately when Christ executes the judgment of God on Edom and her allies (Is. 63:1-6). The purpose of Obadiah's prophecy is to pronounce God's judgment on Edom (Esau) (v. 1) because of his actions toward his brother Judah (Jacob) (vv. 10-14). The theme of the prophecy, then, is the doom of Edom.

Authorship. Nothing is known about Obadiah except his name, which means "Servant of Yahweh" or "Worshiper of Yahweh." He evidently preferred to be remembered in his prophetic role rather than as an individual, because he chose to relate no details of his personal life or history. Twelve other men in the Old Testament are known by this name.

A Judgment on Edom

The vision of Obadiah. Thus saith the Lord GOD ^aconcerning Edom; ^bWe have heard a ¹rumour from the LORD, and ²an ambassador is sent among the ³heathen, Arise ye, and let us rise up against her ⁴in battle.

2 Behold, I have made thee small among the ¹heathen: thou art greatly despised.

3 The ^apride of thine heart hath deceived thee, thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rock, whose habitation is high; ^bthat saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground?

4 ^aThough thou exalt thyself ¹as the eagle, and though thou ^bset thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the LORD.

5 If ^athieves came to thee, if robbers by night, ¹(how art thou cut off!) would they not have stolen till they had enough? if the grapegatherers came to thee, ^bwould they not leave some ²grapes?

6 How ¹are the things of Esau searched out! how are his hidden ²things sought up!

7 All the men of thy confederacy ¹have brought thee even to the border: ^athe men that were at peace with thee have deceived thee, and prevailed against thee; they that eat thy bread have laid a ²wound under thee: ^b*there is none* ³understanding in him.

8 ^aShall I not in that day, saith the LORD, even destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of the mount of Esau?

The Dismay of Edom's Mighty Men

9 And thy ^amighty men, O ^bTe-man, shall be dismayed, to the end that every one of the mount of Esau may be cut off by slaughter.

10 For thy ^aviolence against thy brother Jacob shame shall cover thee, and ^bthou shalt be cut off for ever.

11 In the day that thou ^astoodest on the other side, in the day that the strangers carried away captive his forces, and foreigners entered into his gates, and ^bcast lots ¹upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them.

12 But thou shouldst not have ^alooked ¹on the day of thy brother in the day that he became a ²stranger; neither shouldst thou have ^brejoiced over the children of Judah in the day of their destruction; neither shouldst thou have spoken proudly in the day of distress.

13 Thou shouldst not have entered into the gate of my people in the day of their calamity; yea, thou shouldst not have ¹looked on their affliction in the day of their calamity, nor have laid hands on their substance in the day of their calamity;

14 Neither shouldst thou have stood in the ¹crossway, to cut off those of his that did escape; neither shouldst thou have ²delivered up those of his that did remain in the day of distress.

Edom's Punishment

15 ^aFor the day of the LORD is near upon all the ¹heathen: ^bas thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee: thy erers work, they do not search out and take everything; they merely take their fill. However, God will so thoroughly judge Esau that He makes it bare (cf. Jer. 49:9, 10).

7-9. Teman was one of the cities of Edom. Dismayed (Heb. chatah, lit., "to shatter, terrify, or dismay"): With her wise counselors and mighty men gone, proud Edom is doomed.

10-14. No particular historical occasion may be intended here; Obadiah is probably referring to all of Edom's transgressions against Israel: past (2 Chr. 21:8-10, 16, 17), present (2 Chr. 26:6, 7; Joel 3:4-6, 19; Amos 1:6-12), and future (Ps. 137:7).

15. The day of the LORD is pictured in Scripture as the time when God will judge the heathen. (See the Introduction to Joel.) Here the final day of judgment is in view.

1. Edom refers to the territory settled by Esau's descendants. It is a mountainous desert extending for about one hundred miles from the wadi Zered to the Gulf of Aqaba. The Edomites enjoyed the security of their mountain stronghold and the prosperity obtained by taxing caravans traveling through their territory. See the note on Genesis 36:1-43.

3. Rock (Heb. Sela') is the name of the Edomite capital, Sela. The name emphasizes the security the Edomites enjoyed because of the narrow canyons that led in and out of Edom.

4. Though thou set thy nest among the stars: This figure of speech emphasizes the inaccessibility and natural security of their city. However, their natural security is no match for God's determination.

5. As a general rule, when thieves or grapegather-

²reward shall return upon thine own head.

16 ^aFor as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the ¹heathen drink continually, yea, they shall drink, and they shall swallow down, and they shall be as though they had not been.

17 But upon mount Zion ^ashall be ¹deliverance, and ²there shall be holiness; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions.

18 And the house of Jacob ^ashall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall kindle in them, and devour them; and there shall not be any ¹remaining of the house of Esau; for the LORD hath spoken it.

Edom's Land Is Inhabited by Others

19 And they of the ¹south ^ashall possess the mount of Esau; ^band they of the ²plain the Philistines; and they shall possess the fields of Ephraim, and the fields of Samaria; and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.

20 And the ¹captivity of this host of the children of Israel shall possess that of the Canaanites, even ^aunto Zarephath; and the captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, ^bshall possess the cities of the ²south.

21 And ^asaviours¹ shall come up on mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau; and the ^bkingdom shall be the LORD's.

17, 18 Deliverance (Heb. peletah) is better understood as “an escaped one” or “a fugitive,” hence “a remnant.”

19, 20 The south (Heb. negev) refers to those Jews who, in a time future to the prophet, will again occupy the southern regions of Judah. Zarephath is a Phoenician town on the Mediterranean coast. Sepharad has not been identified with certainty. It was apparently in the south near Edom.

21. Saviours is better read “those saved,” in distinction from the Masoretic text. The closing verse looks forward to that time when the Lord's people will come to mount Zion and judge the mount of Esau during the kingdom age (cf. Dan. 7:27; Rev. 5:10).

DAY OF THE LORD

15. The day of the Lord is that predicted time when God will intervene actively in the affairs of humanity and all creation, in both blessing and judgment. This period begins with the Rapture of the church and ends following the kingdom age with the purging of heaven and earth. Illustration: Throughout the Old Testament, this day was a recurring twofold theme of the prophets, identifying that time when the enemies of Israel would be defeated and God would bless the nation under the Davidic covenant. But this day also covered the tribulation and punishment of Israel, as it is sometimes characterized by judgment and wrath. Application: For the Christian whose sins have already been judged on the Cross, the day of the Lord is mainly a time of hope and blessing. (First Reference, Is. 2:12; Primary Reference, Obad. 15; cf. Hos. 3:5.)

The Book of JONAH

Jonah is unique in that the entire prophecy is written in the third person. The fact that the prophecy ends with the prophet in discouragement and under God's rebuke would leave the reader discouraged, but because it is written in the third person the reader knows that the prophet wrote it after he had returned from his mission to Assyria and had favorably responded to God's rebuke. He leaves behind a record of God's dealings with him as an individual and with Assyria as a nation, and in this unique form he magnifies the power of God and obscures himself behind his message.

Historical Setting. Jonah clearly prophesied at a very early date. Second Kings 14:25 indicates that Jonah gave a prophecy that was fulfilled during the reign of Jeroboam II, who reigned from 793 to 752 B.C. The prophecy was given when Assyria was becoming a great world power and imminent threat to Israel. The prophecy, then, can be assigned a date in the first half of the eighth century B.C. There is no indication given as to where the prophecy originated. It gives the record of an earlier oral ministry to Assyria. Possibly Jonah wrote the words of this prophecy at his home village of Gath-hepher, after returning from the ministry to Assyria as he reflected on the ministry's success and his own personal failure.

What the Book of Acts is to the New Testament, the prophecy of Jonah is to the Old Testament. It shows that God has always had concern for the heathen, who are without hope apart from Him. It also shows God's concern for His people Israel. As a result of Jonah's ministry to Assyria, the Assyrian captivity of Israel was postponed some 130 years. While the prophecy makes no specific mention of Israel, it abounds in its clear testimony to the supernatural working of God in behalf of the prophet, whose life He preserved and whose desires He modified. The prophecy also shows God's working in behalf of the heathen Assyrians, whom He brought to national repentance, and in behalf of the nation Israel, whose security He guaranteed and whose captivity He delayed for an additional 130 years.

Authorship. All that is known about Jonah is a brief historical statement made about him in 2 Kings 14:25, which indicates that he gave a prophecy that was fulfilled during the reign of Jeroboam II. Jonah's name means "Dove," and his father's name (Amittai) means "Truthful." Jonah came from the tribe of Zebulun, one of the tribes in the northern kingdom of Israel, and he was from the village of Gath-hepher, located about two miles northeast of the city of Nazareth.

The purpose of Jonah's prophecy is to show the sovereignty of God at work in the life of an individual (the prophet Jonah), and his concern for a heathen nation (Assyria). The prophecy also shows, in an oblique way, his concern for His own people and that the way to avert national catastrophe is a concentrated missionary effort toward all people.

Jonah's theme is God's mercy to the individual (Jonah, a Jew), a group (the heathen sailors), the heathen world power (Assyria, a Gentile nation), and His people (Israel).

God's Command to Jonah

1 Now the word of the LORD came unto ^aJonah the son of Amittai, saying,

2 Arise, go to ^aNineveh, that ^bgreat city, and ¹cry against it; for ^ctheir wickedness is come up before me.

3 But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish from the presence of the LORD, and went down to ^aJoppa; and he found a ship going to Tarshish: so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them unto ^bTarshish ^cfrom the presence of the LORD.

A Mighty Tempest

4 But ^athe LORD ¹sent out a great wind ²into the sea, and there was a mighty tempest in the sea, so that the ship was ³like to be broken.

5 Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and cast forth the ¹wares that were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it ²of them. But Jonah was gone down ^ainto the sides of the ship; and he lay, and was fast asleep.

1:1–3. Jonah (“Dove”) the son of Amittai (“Truth”): Nothing further is known of the prophet’s identity except the reference made to him in 2 Kings 14:25. Nineveh, the ancient capital of the Assyrian Empire, was east of Israel and located on the eastern bank of the Tigris River. Tarshish was situated westward on the Mediterranean Sea. Joppa, known later as Jaffa, is located just south of modern-day Tel Aviv.

1:2 Nineveh, an ancient capital city of the Assyrian Empire, was founded by Nimrod (Gen. 10:8–10), but is best known in the Bible as the place associated with Jonah’s ministry (Jon. 3:5–10). Several centuries before Jonah’s preaching mission to the city, Nineveh became one of the royal residences of Assyrian kings. Sennacherib (ruled 705–681 B.C.) made it the capital of the Assyrian Empire to offset the rival capital of Dur-Sharrukin (Khorsabad), built by his father Sargon II (ruled 722–705 B.C.). He greatly beautified and adorned Nineveh. The splendid temples, palaces, and fortifications made it the chief city of the empire (2 Kin. 19:36). In Sennacherib’s day the wall around Nineveh was 40 to 50 feet high and extended two-and-a-half miles along the Tigris River and for eight miles around the inner city. The city wall had 15 main gates, five of which have been excavated. Each of the gates was guarded by stone statues of bulls. Sennacherib created parks, a botanical garden, and a zoo both inside and outside the walls. Despite its magnificent splendor, it fell to a coalition of Chaldeans, Medes, and others in 612 B.C., in accordance with the prophecies of several Old Testament prophets (cf. Nah. 2:10, 13; Zeph. 2:13–15).

1:3. Joppa was Israel’s major seaport on the Mediterranean in Old Testament times. Known today as Jaffa, it is just south of Tel Aviv. It was the only natural harbor south of Lebanon and north of Egypt in Jonah’s time. Trade from both directions passed through Joppa, which is mentioned in numerous ancient inscriptions. The Egyptian Harris Papyrus tells how Thutmose III (fifteenth century B.C.) conquered the city. It is also mentioned in the Amarna letter (fourteenth century B.C.). Later, it was clearly under Israelite control from Solomon (tenth century B.C.) until the Assyrian invasion by Sennacherib in 701 B.C. In New Testament times, the apostle Peter resided there and received the call to proceed north to Caesarea to preach the gospel to Cornelius and open the door of faith to the Gentiles (Acts 9:36–43).

6 So the ¹shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, What meanest thou, O sleeper? arise, ^acall upon thy God, ^bif² so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not.

7 And they said every one to his fellow, Come, and let us ^acast lots, that we may know for whose cause this ¹evil is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah.

The Cause of the Evil

8 Then said they unto him, ^aTell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this ¹evil is upon us; What is thine occupation? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?

9 And he said unto them, I am an Hebrew; and I fear ¹the LORD, the God of heaven, ^awhich hath made the sea and the dry land.

10 Then were the men exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, Why hast thou done this? For the men knew that he fled from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them.

11 Then said they unto him, What shall we do unto thee, that the sea may be calm ¹unto us? for the sea ²wrought, and was tempestuous.

Jonah Cast Into the Sea

12 And he said unto them, ^aTake¹ me up, and ²cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm ³unto you: for I know that ⁴for my sake this great tempest is upon you.

13 Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring ¹it to the land; ^abut they could not: for the sea ²wrought, and was tempestuous against them.

14 Wherefore they cried unto the LORD, and said, We beseech thee, O LORD, we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and ^alay¹ not 15 So they ¹took up Jonah, and ²cast him forth into the sea: ^aand the sea ceased from her raging.

16 Then the men ^afeared the LORD exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the LORD, and made vows.

A Great Fish

17 Now the LORD had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. And ^aJonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

Jonah's Prayer

2 Then Jonah prayed unto the LORD his God out of the fish's belly,

2 And said, I ^acried ¹by reason of mine affliction unto the LORD, ^band he ²heard me; out of the belly of ³hell cried I, and thou heardest my voice.

3 ^aFor thou hadst cast me into the deep, in the ¹midst of the seas; and the floods ²compassed me about: ^ball thy billows and thy waves passed over me.

4 ^aThen I said, I am cast out of thy sight; yet I will look again ^btoward thy holy temple.

5 The ^awaters compassed me about, even to the soul: the ¹depth closed me round about, the weeds were wrapped about my head.

6 I went down to the ¹bottoms of the mountains; the earth with her bars ²was about me for ever: yet hast thou brought up my ^alife from ³corruption, O LORD my God.

7 When my soul fainted within me I remembered the LORD: ^aand my prayer ¹came in unto thee, into thine holy temple.

8 They that observe ^alying¹ vanities forsake their own ²mercy.

1:10–14. Cast me forth into the sea (v. 12) has been taken by some to indicate his repentance and heroic faith. However, his statement could well indicate the intensity of his disobedience: he would rather die than repent and go to Nineveh.

1:17. Prepared indicates “to appoint, ordain, prepare, or order.” The idea is one of commission rather than of creation. The fish was already in existence, but God commissioned it for a specific mission. Great fish (Heb. dag gadōl): Jesus said that it was a sea monster (Gr. kētōs, Matt. 12:40). Our Lord’s citation ought to lay to rest any speculation on the historicity of the event.

2:1–9. Jonah’s prayer is poetic in form and has three movements, each beginning with a rehearsal of the prophet’s impossible situation, and each culminating in an expression of his faith in spite of his impossible circumstances. The first movement is in verses 2–4. The second movement is in verses 5 and 6. The third movement is in verses 7–9.

9 But I will ^asacrifice unto thee with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay that that I have ^bvowed. ^cSalvation is of the ^dLORD.

10 And the LORD spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land.

Go Preach to Nineveh

3 And the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying,

2 Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the ¹preaching that I ²bid thee.

3 So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceeding great city ¹of three days' journey.

4 And Jonah began to enter into the city ¹a day's journey, and ^ahe ²cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown.

5 So the ^apeople of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them.

6 For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, ^aand sat in ashes.

7 ^aAnd he caused it to be proclaimed and published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his ¹nobles, saying, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water:

Jonah's Anger

4 But it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry.

2 And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, I pray thee, O LORD, was not this ¹my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I ^afled ²before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a ^bgracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great ³kindness, and ⁴repentest thee of the evil.

3 ^aTherefore now, O LORD, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for ^b*it is* better for me to die than to live.

4 Then said the LORD, ¹Doest thou well to be angry?

5 So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a ¹booth, and sat under it in the ²shadow, till he might see what would become of the city.

6 And the LORD God prepared a ¹gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a ²shadow over his head, to deliver him from his ³grief. So Jonah ⁴was exceeding glad ⁵of the gourd.

7 But God prepared a worm when the morning ¹rose the next day, and it ²smote the ³gourd that it withered.

8 And it came to pass, when the sun did arise, that God prepared a vehement east wind; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he ¹fainted, and ²wished in himself to die, and said, ^a*It is* better for me to die than to live.

3:1-4. City of three days' journey: This expression probably refers to an aggregate of three cities, including Nineveh itself. The ancient "Assyrian triangle" of cities was spread over some 26 linear miles from Nineveh in the center to Khorsabad on the north (c. 8 mi.) and, to the southeast, to Nimrud (c. 18 mi.). The idea of an aggregate city may be compared to New York City, which consists of five boroughs.

3:10. God repented: God did not change in His ultimate intention toward the Ninevites: rather, they changed in their attitude toward Him. On the basis of that change, God could deal with them in grace, rather than in judgment as their failure to repent would have necessitated.

4:1-4. Displeased... exceedingly and very angry: Jonah still maintains a false Jewish nationalism and hatred of all non-Jews, especially Assyrians.

God's Compassion

9 And God said to Jonah, ¹Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd? And he said, ²I do well to be angry, even unto death.

4:9–11. Sixscore thousand persons (v. 11): The message of Jonah rings out loud and clear: God cares for the heathen! God will spare no extreme to get His message to them, even when the messenger is deliberately disobedient. God will marshal His animate and inanimate creation to bring correction to His messenger and fulfill His purpose for the world. God's question referring to those that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand has been interpreted as concerning children who had not yet reached the age of moral accountability, or those who were spiritually ignorant. If the latter is adopted, the 120,000 either refers to the population of Nineveh at large, or as was often customary in the ancient Near East, refers to the number of adult males eligible to fight. In any case, the 120,000 is doubtless merely a representative guide to the number of people in greater Nineveh.

The Book of MICAH

Much of Micah's prophecy is very severe in tone, though it does contain much poetic beauty similar to that of Isaiah. In many ways the Book of Micah is a "sister-book" to Isaiah. It has been called "Isaiah in shorthand."

Historical Setting. Micah dates his prophecy according to the southern kings "Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah" (1:1). These kings of Judah reigned from about 752 to 697 B.C. The reign of King Ahaz, one of the most wicked kings of all of Judah's history, is in the background of much of Micah's prophecy. The dark picture presented by Micah's prophecy may reflect the reign of King Ahaz, while the brighter aspects of Micah's prophecy reflect the godly rule under King Hezekiah.

The exact location from which the prophecy originated is not known. Though the burden of the prophecy is concerned primarily with the northern kingdom and the northern towns of Judah, the prophet conducted much of his ministry in Jerusalem. The prophecy likely originated there in the latter half of the eighth century B.C.

The most outstanding single prophecy concerns the preexistence and human birth of the Messiah at Bethlehem (5:2). This amazing prophecy affords a wonderful demonstration of the accuracy and certainty of the fulfillment of all the prophecies in this and all the other books of prophecy. Just as this prophecy was fulfilled in complete detail by the birth of Jesus in "Beth-lehem Ephratah" (5:2), so minutely will all the other prophecies of this book be fulfilled, that is, the destruction of Israel and Judah by Assyria and Babylon and the ultimate regathering of Israel for the Millennium. With its references to the millennial kingdom, the book offers another proof of a premillennial understanding of Scripture, and demonstrates once again the sovereignty of God who is working out His plan through such an irresponsible people as Israel. His plan will not be thwarted.

The theme of the prophecy is sin, judgment, and restoration. This can be seen by the fact that the book consists of three discourses, each of which sets forth (1) the people's sin, (2) God's judgment, and (3) God's ultimate restoration of His sinning people.

Authorship. The author of this prophecy is identified as "Micah the Morasthite." He was a native of Moresheth-gath in Judah where he prophesied against his own city (cf. 1:14), which probably did not help his popularity with the local population. Micah's name means "Who Is Like Yahweh?" In 7:18 he apparently plays upon the meaning of his name as he asks the question, "Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth by the transgression?" The author of this prophecy is not to be confused with Micaiah (cf. 1 Kin. 22:8, 19-23), even though there is a great similarity between the messages proclaimed by these two servants of God. Micah was a contemporary of Isaiah. Apparently Micah died in peace in the days of good King Hezekiah (cf. Jer. 26:16-19).

The purpose of Micah's prophecy is to face the people with their sins and to speak the word of God's judgment that must fall because of their persistent sinning. The author completes the purpose of his book by ending each discourse with a word about restoration. The author pictures the restoration in two phases: (1) immediately, after the Babylonian captivity, and (2) ultimately, at the Millennium.

Judgment on Samaria and Jerusalem

1 The word of the LORD that came to ^aMicah ¹the Morasthite in the days of ^bJotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

2 Hear, all ye people; ¹hearken, O earth, and all that therein is: and let the Lord GOD be witness against you, the Lord from ^ahis holy temple.

1:1. Samaria and Jerusalem: The two seats of government of the northern and southern kingdoms, respectively, are addressed. The capitals are the seats of corruption which filtered down to and infected the entire kingdoms.

1:8-16. Wailing and going about naked were signs of deep mourning. Beth-aphrah, Saphir, Zaanan, Beth-ezel, and Maroth are all ancient cities of Judah that have passed into obscurity. They seem to be mentioned by the prophet because, by playing on the sounds and meanings of their names, he is able to graphically describe the grave effects of the Assyrian invasion of Judah. The glory of Israel is a reference to the leading citizens and nobility of Israel who have been fleeing continuously before the Assyrian invasion.

Woe to Oppressive Leaders

2 Woe to them that devise iniquity, and ¹work evil upon their beds! when the ^amorning is light, they practise it, because it is in the power of their hand.

2 And they ^acovet fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and ¹take them away: so they oppress a man and his house, even a man and his ²heritage.

3 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, against this ^afamily ¹do I devise an ^bevil, from which ye shall not remove your necks; neither shall ye go haughtily: for this time is evil.

4 In that day shall one take up a ¹parable against you, and ^alament with a ²doleful lamentation, and say, We be utterly ³spoiled: he hath changed the ⁴portion of my people: how hath he removed it from me! ⁵turning away ⁶he hath divided our fields.

The Mountain of the Lord

4 But ^ain the last days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established ¹in the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and ²people shall flow unto it.

2 And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth ¹of Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

3 And he shall judge ¹among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into ^aplowshares, and their spears into ²pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, ^bneither shall they learn war any more.

4 ^aBut they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the LORD of hosts hath spoken it.

5 For all people will walk every one in the name of his god, and ^awe will walk in the name of the LORD our God for ever and ever.

A Strong Nation

6 In that day, saith the LORD, ^awill I assemble ¹her that halteth, ^band I will gather ²her that is driven out, and her that I have afflicted;

3:5–8. Cover their lips: They will be put to shame and will show this shame openly by covering their lips, which was an oriental gesture to indicate shame and mourning.

4:1–3. The phrase in the last days, as well as a comparison with other prophecies (e.g., Is. 2:2–4), indicates that the prophet is looking beyond the restoration from the Babylonian captivity to the days of the Millennium when every promise given to Abraham and to Israel will ultimately be fulfilled.

4:4–8. The vine and fig tree are both native to Israel. They flourish into luxuriant, natural arbors under which people can sit and enjoy fellowship while being shaded from the heat of the day. Both were used symbolically to represent the basic covenant between God and Israel in all its potential fruitfulness.

7 And I will make ¹her that halted ^aa remnant, and ²her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the LORD ^bshall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever.

8 And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the ¹first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem.

9 Now why dost thou cry out aloud? ^ais there no king ¹in thee? is thy counsellor perished? for ^bpangs have taken thee as a woman ²in travail.

10 Be in pain, and labour to bring forth, O daughter of Zion, like a woman in ¹travail: for now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even to ^aBabylon; there shalt thou be delivered; there the ^bLORD shall ^credeem thee from the hand of thine enemies.

11 ^aNow also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye ^blook upon Zion.

12 But they know not ^athe thoughts of the LORD, neither understand they his counsel: for he shall gather them ^bas the sheaves ¹into the floor.

13 ^aArise and ^bthresh, O daughter of Zion: for I will make thine horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs ^bbrass: and thou shalt ^cbeat in pieces many ²people: ^dand I will consecrate their gain unto the LORD, and their substance unto ^ethe Lord of the whole earth.

5:1. Judge of Israel, who will be smitten with a rod upon the cheek, is not a reference to the humiliation of Jesus. The reference is to the deportation of Israel's rulers, perhaps especially King Zedekiah, and to his shameful treatment at the hands of Babylon (cf. 2 Kin. 25).

5:2, 3. Beth-lehem is distinguished as Ephrathah in the land of Judah. It was the hometown of David (1 Sam. 17:12) and the birthplace of Jesus (Matt. 2:5). The reaction to the question of the wise men indicates that the Jews believed this prophecy revealed the birthplace of the Messiah. Ruler in Israel is a king from David's line. From everlasting clearly indicates the eternity of the One who is to be born at Bethlehem. Thus, Micah's prophecy adds to that of his contemporary, Isaiah, for Isaiah predicts the means of the ruler's birth, and Micah predicts the place of His birth. She which travaileth hath brought forth refers to Mary giving birth to the baby Jesus at Bethlehem.

5:5–15. The Assyrian, Israel's major foe in Micah's day, is probably best understood as representative of all of Israel's enemies, particularly those of the end times.

The Book of NAHUM

The prophecy of Nahum is dominated by a single idea, the doom of Nineveh. In describing this doom, Nahum writes lyric poetry of the highest quality. It has been called the most poetical of all the prophetic writings, and certainly is the most severe in tone of any of the Minor Prophets.

Historical Setting. Being occupied with the doom of Nineveh, Nahum does not date his prophecy according to any of the kings of Israel or Judah. He probably ministered during the reign of Hezekiah. This would certainly fit if 1:9–13 is understood as a vivid description of Sennacherib’s invasion of Judah and siege of Jerusalem. The only historical citation that can be identified with certainty is the reference to “No” (No-amon, i.e., Egyptian Thebes), which was destroyed by Assyria in 663 B.C. (3:8–10). The prophet cites Nineveh’s destruction of No-amon and points out that if God did not spare that city, then He certainly would not spare Nineveh, for Nineveh is not better than Thebes (3:11–15a). Thus it can be determined with certainty that the prophecy was written after the destruction of Thebes, which it records, and before the destruction of Nineveh, which it predicts. Nineveh was destroyed in 612 B.C.

The place from which the prophet ministered is best understood as Jerusalem, which so recently had experienced near destruction by Sennacherib, king of Assyria. Its siege and divine intervention is briefly described in 1:9–13.

Authorship. The author of the prophecy is named simply “Nahum the Elkoshite” (1:1), and all that is known of the prophet is gleaned from this prophecy. Probably the identity of the prophet is obscured so his message can be prominent. The prophet’s name means “Consolation,” which gives an indication of the purpose of the prophecy. Nahum’s mission was to comfort the kingdom of Judah, following the destruction of Israel by Assyria, by announcing God’s coming judgment on Nineveh, the capital of Assyria.

Nahum was a native of the city of Elkosh, the location of which is not known for certain. It may be identified with Capernaum (Kaphar Nahum, lit., “Village of Nahum”), which was renamed in honor of its most famous citizen. Probably, then, Nahum was born in Galilee, but during Israel’s defection moved to Judah and in Jerusalem took up his ministry in behalf of Judah against Nineveh.

The purpose of Nahum’s prophecy is twofold: (1) to deliver a message of judgment and destruction against Nineveh; and (2) to give comfort to Judah, so recently ravaged by Assyria. Since Assyria is doomed, it will constitute a threat no longer.

1:1. Nineveh was the Assyrian capital situated on the Tigris River. It fell to Babylon in 612 B.C. See note on Jonah 1:1-3.

1:2. Jealous (Heb. qanō, "zealous," or "jealous"). Nahum is not ascribing human imperfection to God. Rather, the thought is that God is the One who embodies a burning zeal for righteousness and justice, quickly arises to the defense of His own, and executes judgment on those who are not His own or who hurt those who are.

1:4. Bashan, Carmel, and Lebanon were all fertile, hilly areas. Bashan is in the Golan Heights. Mount Carmel is a long range between the valley of Jezreel and the Mediterranean Sea. Lebanon is the forested region north of Israel's border. These areas are pictured by the prophet as being devastated by the coming of God in judgment.

1:5-8. The LORD is pictured pouring out judgment like fire. The mountains quake and the earth is burned at his presence. Yet, He is a strong hold in the day of trouble to all those who trust in him. Like all the prophets, Nahum predicts both judgment and hope conditioned on man's response to God.

1:9. The prophet predicts the utter end of Nineveh. His prediction was fulfilled in 612 B.C. when the city was destroyed by the Babylonians. It was never rebuilt and has remained a desolate ruin to this day.

1:11. The wicked counsellor who will come forth from Assyria may refer to Sennacherib who ruled from 705 to 681 B.C. and invaded Judah in 701 B.C.

1:12. Quiet, and likewise many is an Assyrian phrase implying unity. The idiom means that they are so united that they make the noise of only one person.

13 For now will I break his yoke from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder.

14 And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more ¹of thy name be sown: out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the ²graven image and the molten image: I will ³make thy ^agrave; for thou art ^bvile.⁴

Nineveh Is Laid Waste

3 Woe to the ^abloody city! it is all full of lies and robbery; the prey departeth not;

2 The noise of a whip, and the noise of the rattling of the wheels,

2:2. Hath turned away is better translated "will restore." God will restore Judah after the fall of Assyria.

2:3-7. The Medo-Babylonian army is composed of mighty men. Its favorite color was red or "scarlet" (cf. Ezek. 23:14). The "shields" of the invaders were bright red and must have struck terror into the hearts of the defenders as the army approached the city. The reference to the gates of the rivers may refer to the statement in the Babylonian Chronicle that the flooding river made breaches in the city wall. Huzzab is unclear. It may refer to a goddess whose devotees beat their breasts because she has been taken captive. The taking of a city's gods as spoil in battle is well attested in ancient Near Eastern literature.

2:11-13. The rapacity and ferocity of the Assyrians is well documented in the annals of her cruel kings. The lion was the national symbol of Assyria. Here Nineveh is pictured as the dwelling of the lions.

3:1-6. Nineveh is called the bloody city and is pictured as a harlot whose witchcrafts and whoredoms shall be brought down to the dust. Discover means to "uncover." Thus, Nineveh shall be exposed for what she is: the mistress of the nations.

3:7-10. The prophet predicts the ultimate destruction of mighty Nineveh in the prophetic present: Nineveh is laid waste. The reference to populous No should be translated "No-amon" (City of Amun), known to Greeks as Thebes and today as Luxor. It was the capital of the Eighteenth through Twentieth Dynasties of Egypt and was the favorite burial place of the Pharaohs of that period. Thebes, however, fell to the Assyrians in 663 B.C. and served as an appropriate warning to the people of Nineveh. Put and Lubim refer to the districts of Libya. The neo-Assyrian period (930-612 B.C.) involved the reigns of several powerful kings, including: Shalmaneser III (859-824 B.C.), Tiglath-pileser II (744-727 B.C.), Sargon II (722-705 B.C.) who conquered and destroyed Samaria, Sennacherib (701-681 B.C.) who invaded Judah in the days of Hezekiah, Esar-haddon (680-669 B.C.), and Ashurbanipal (669-626 B.C.). By 612 B.C., Nahum's prophecy was fulfilled in the fall of Nineveh to Nabopolassar of Babylon, thus, replacing the Assyrian empire with Babylonian dominance in the Middle East in the early sixth century B.C.

The Book of HABAKKUK

The prophecy of Habakkuk is unique among all prophetic literature. Overall, it contains a high caliber of Hebrew poetry. The first two chapters constitute a dialogue between the prophet and the Lord concerning the invasion of the Chaldeans (1:1-11) and their destruction (1:12—2:20). Chapter 3 is a psalm with instructions given to the musicians for its rendering (3:1, 19). In the first two chapters the prophet contends with the Lord and in the third chapter he submits to the Lord.

Historical Setting. The date of Habakkuk is difficult to ascertain, since he does not mention the king or kings during whose reigns he prophesied. The best key that Habakkuk offers for dating his prophecy is his description of the Chaldeans in 1:5-11. Some commentators, noting that God says He is in the process of raising up the Chaldeans (1:6), would date the prophecy as early as the reign of Manasseh. Habakkuk's message, therefore, would be that just as God raised up the Assyrians to judge Israel, so He is raising up the Chaldeans (Babylonians) to judge Judah. This interpretation would date the prophecy before the destruction of Nineveh, which resulted in the exaltation of the Chaldeans to world prominence.

Most commentators, however, date Habakkuk's prophecy during the reign of King Jehoiakim. The fall of Nineveh occurred about 612 B.C. in fulfillment of Nahum's prophecy. It may have been after this fulfillment that Habakkuk received his vision setting forth the overthrow of the Babylonian kingdom. If so, when Habakkuk prophesied, the southern kingdom was wallowing in its sin and tottering politically in view of the impending threat from Babylon, the current world power. Nebuchadnezzar may have already carried Daniel and many of Jerusalem's nobles into captivity (606 B.C.), with the second deportation to soon follow (597 B.C.). The final destruction of the city was yet to occur in 586 B.C. Habakkuk's description of the Chaldeans and their feats may even allude to all three of these events. Putting the above considerations together, the date of Habakkuk's prophecy is somewhere between 655 B.C. and 598 B.C. Advocates of the former view would select 655 B.C. as the date of writing, while advocates of the latter view commonly select 606 B.C.

Authorship. Beyond what can be learned about him in this book, nothing is known about Habakkuk. Because the prophet is known to us only by name once again indicates the relative unimportance of the prophet, the major importance of the prophecy, and, more importantly, the God who sends the prophecy. The prophet's name means "Embracer" or "A Wrestler," and this provides a key to the prophecy. The prophecy is a record of the prophet's wrestling with God in behalf of his people. Further, he embraced God by faith (ch. 3) and embraces his people giving them the message that after the judgment to come, Chaldea (Babylonia) will itself be judged. Because of the description in 3:1 and the inscription in 3:19, some have inferred that Habakkuk was a Levite who assisted in the music of the temple.

The purpose of Habakkuk's prophecy is twofold: (1) to warn Judah of its coming judgment at the hands of Chaldea, and (2) to comfort Judah concerning Chaldea's ultimate destruction. The theme of the prophecy is judgment on Judah and Chaldea (Babylon).

Habakkuk's Cry to the Lord

1 The ¹burden which Habakkuk the prophet did see.

2 O LORD, how long shall I cry, ^aand thou wilt not hear! ^{even} cry out unto thee of ^bviolence, and thou wilt ^cnot save!

3 Why dost thou shew me iniquity, and cause me to behold ¹grievance? for ²spoiling and violence are before me: and ³there are that raise up strife and contention.

4 Therefore the law is ¹slacked, and ²judgment doth never go forth: for the ^awicked doth ³compass about the righteous; therefore ⁴wrong judgment proceedeth.

God's Reply: Captivity by the Chaldeans

5 ^aBehold ye among the ¹heathen, and regard, and wonder marvelously: for I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, though it be told you.

6 For, lo, I ^araise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and ¹hasty ^bnation, which shall march through the breadth of the land, to possess the dwellingplaces that are not theirs.

7 They are terrible and dreadful: their judgment and their dignity shall proceed ¹of themselves.

8 Their horses also are ^aswifter than the leopards, and are more fierce than the evening wolves: and 13 Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on ¹iniquity: wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously, and holdest thy tongue when the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he?

1:1-4. Burden (Heb. masa', "heavy load" or "oracle") also describes the prophecies of Nahum (cf. Nah. 1:1) and Malachi (cf. Mal. 1:1) as that which the Lord has entrusted to His prophet. It was a sentence of divine judgment.

1:6-11. The prophet describes the mighty Chaldeans who ruled Babylon from 625 to 539 B.C. They were Semitic nomads who were descendants of Chesed, the son of Abraham's brother Nahor (Gen. 22:20-22). They gradually populated southern Babylon and were under Assyrian authority until Nabopolassar destroyed Nineveh in 612 B.C. and founded the Neo-Babylonian Empire, which reached its greatest height under Nebuchadnezzar. (See the note on Dan. 1:1.) The success of the Chaldeans is attributed to their swiftness and violence. To heap dust refers to building ramparts of earth to scale the walls of enemy cities. His god is Marduk, god of war and the patron god of Babylon.

1:12-17. The prophet appeals to God not to look on Babylon's iniquity approvingly, and calls on Him to judge the mighty nation which has caught the other nations in its fish net.

¹the angle, they catch them in their net, and gather them in their ²drag: therefore they rejoice and are glad.

16 Therefore ^athey sacrifice unto their net, and burn incense unto their ¹drag; because by them their portion is ²fat, and their ³meat plentiful.

17 Shall they therefore empty their net, and ¹not spare continually to slay the nations?

Write the Vision

2 I will ^astand upon my watch, and set me upon the ¹tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved.

2 And the LORD answered me, and said, ^aWrite the vision, and make it plain ¹upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.

2:2, 3. Write the vision ... upon tables refers to the common practice of writing public notices with such large characters on the clay tablets that someone running by could easily read them. If the notice was a warning it would also cause the reader to run quickly to prepare for what was coming. An appointed time indicates a specific future fulfillment of Habakkuk's prophecy of the fall of Babylon. See Daniel 5:30, 31.

2:4. Two classes of people are contrasted: (1) the proud, haughty Chaldeans who will be the victors in the forthcoming conflict; and (2) the righteous ones of Judah who will appear to be defeated in the forthcoming conflict, but in reality will be the victors because of their faith in the Lord. The just shall live by his faith is often quoted in the New Testament in support of the doctrine of justification by faith. (See Rom. 1:17; Gal. 3:11; Heb. 10:38.) Thus, this Old Testament prophecy anticipates the New Testament gospel which shall ultimately conquer the nations and bring them to Christ.

2:5. Hell (Heb. she'ol, "the unseen world of the dead") can be understood both as a reference to the grave and as the residence of the departed dead.

2:8-11. The proud and seemingly impregnable city of Babylon fell to Cyrus the Great in 539 B.C., due as much to its own inner corruption as to the presence of the great conqueror. According to the reports of the ancient world, Cyrus was hailed as a liberator (cf. Is. 45:1-3).

The Book of ZEPHANIAH

Zephaniah is a book of contrasts; for no other prophet paints a darker picture of God's judgment, and no prophet paints a brighter picture of Israel's future glory. Historically, the Book of Zephaniah was used in the providence of God to prepare Judah for the reforms and revival under King Josiah. Through the prophecy the nation of the prophet's day was faced with its sin, reminded of coming judgment, and instructed concerning the ultimate glory that will come to Israel.

Historical Setting. Zephaniah does not make great use of historical events in the course of his prophecy. Against the dark backdrop describing the judgment of God upon Judah and the nation, Zephaniah goes farther than any other of the minor prophets in emphasizing the future conversion of the Gentiles to the worship of the true God. Zephaniah dates his writing "in the days of Josiah" (1:1). Josiah was the God-fearing son of Amon, who with his father, Manasseh, were two of the most wicked kings of Israel's history (cf. 2 Kin. 22, 23). During Josiah's reign a spiritual reformation, which touched only the small remnant in Judah, took place in 621 B.C. (cf. 2 Chr. 34:3-7). Zephaniah mentions nothing of this reformation; thus, it is logical to conclude that his ministry preceded it, and his preaching probably prepared the way for, greatly advanced, and furthered the power of the spiritual reformation under King Josiah. If these observations are true, the prophecy must have been given before the reforms under Josiah, about 630 to 625 B.C.

The place from which the prophet ministered is not known with certainty.

The fact that the 10 northern tribes had been in captivity nearly a hundred years, together with his royal lineage (which would give him access to the king's court), makes it most likely that he ministered in Jerusalem. He may even have resided in the palace complex.

Authorship. Beyond the prophecy that bears his name, nothing is known about Zephaniah. His name means "Yahweh Hides." The meaning of his name offers some clue to the characteristics of the prophecy.

While other prophets gave their pedigrees (cf. Is. 1:1; Jer. 1:1; Joel 1:1; Zech. 1:1), none goes into such great detail as Zephaniah, whose lineage shows that he was the great-great-grandson of good King Hezekiah. Zechariah traces his lineage back to his grandfather (cf. Zech. 1:1). Thus the prophet is a descendant of the royal line, which makes his rebuke of princes and nobles all the more significant (cf. 1:8, 13, 18). By giving his lineage and citing King Josiah, during whose reign he ministered, Zephaniah linked himself with the godly kings and the godly remnant of Israel's history. Zephaniah ministered several decades after Nahum and was an early contemporary of Jeremiah.

Zephaniah has been called "the orator" because of the oratorical style evident throughout the prophecy. Zephaniah has some literary affinities with Isaiah, but more with Jeremiah and Joel. Both he and Joel paint very dark pictures of the day of the Lord, but in both books beautiful rays of light penetrate the darkness. Two recurring expressions are important: (1) "remnant" (1:4; 2:7, 9;

3:13), and (2) the “day of the LORD” (1:7–10, 14–16, 18; 2:2, 3; 3:8, 11, 16).

The purpose of Zephaniah’s prophecy is to set forth what the day of the Lord will mean to ungodly Judah, to the world powers (1:2–3:7), and to the godly remnant (3:8–20). His theme is the day of the Lord, which destroys the false remnant of Baal (ch. 1), destroys the God-rejecting nations (ch. 2), and purifies the true remnant (3:8–20).

1:1. The prophet’s genealogy shows his royal relationship to Hizkiah (Hezekiah), the godly king of Judah who had died in 686 B.C. Josiah was Judah’s last godly king, during whose reign the Law was rediscovered in 621 B.C.

1:2–6. Six groups are singled out for judgment: (1) the remnant of Baal; (2) the idolatrous priests; (3) them that worship the host of heaven upon the housetops; (4) them that worship and that swear by the LORD, and that swear by Malcham, devotees of a syncretistic worship system; (5) them that are turned back from the LORD; and (6) those that have not sought the LORD. Baal was the Canaanite storm god often worshiped by idolatrous Israelites (Jer. 7:9). Chemarim was an honorable Canaanite term for their priests but may translate “idolatrous priests” in Hebrew and is used here to designate non-Levitical priests (cf. 2 Kin. 18:4–6; 23:4–15). Worship of the stars of heaven upon the housetops refers to Sabaism here identified with Malcham. This practice was introduced by the ungodly king Manasseh (2 Kin. 21:3–5) and was associated with the worship of the “queen of heaven” (Jer. 7:18; 44:17).

1:7, 8. In Zephaniah the day of the LORD refers to the impending Babylonian invasion of Judah and to the destruction of Jerusalem. He pictures the victims of this conquest as the princes (nobles), the king’s sons (royalty), and the wealthy who wear imported garments. Zephaniah’s prophecy was fulfilled when Nebuchadnezzar destroyed Jerusalem in 586 B.C., slew the sons of Zedekiah (Josiah’s youngest son), blinded Zedekiah, and led him captive to Babylon (2 Kin. 25:7).

9 In the same day also will I ¹punish all those that ^aleap on the threshold, which fill their masters' houses with violence and deceit.

6 And the sea coast shall be ¹dwellings and ²cottages for shepherds, ^aand folds for flocks.

7 And the coast shall be for ^athe remnant of the house of Judah; they shall ¹feed thereupon: in the houses of Ashkelon shall they lie down in the evening: for the LORD their God shall ^bvisit² them, and ^cturn³ away their captivity.

1:9-13. Those that leap on the threshold probably are the priests of Dagan who would not step on the place where he had fallen (1 Sam. 5:5). They may also be creditors who crossed over the threshold of their debtors (Deut. 24:10, 11). The fish gate was situated on the northern side of the city. It may have derived its name from nearby fish markets that sold catches from the Sea of Galilee. The Maktesh was the part of Jerusalem situated in the Tyropoean Valley. The 10 This shall they have ^afor their pride, because they have reproached and ¹magnified themselves against the people of the LORD of hosts.

11 The LORD will be ¹terrible unto them: for he will ²famish all the gods of the earth; ^aand men shall worship him, every one from his place, even all ^bthe ³isles of the heathen.

12 ^aYe Ethiopians also, ye shall be slain by ^bmy sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and ^adestroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness.

14 And ¹flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, all ^athe beasts of the nations: both the ^bcormorant² and the bittern shall lodge ³in the upper lintels of it; their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds: for he shall ⁴uncover the ^ccedar work.

3:10. The KJV (AV) translated the Hebrew cush as Ethiopia, however this should not be limited to the modern political state of Ethiopia. The term cush refers to black Africa, south of Egypt, more likely Nubia or Sudan. Egyptian inscriptions definitely describe Cush as being south of the first cataract of the Nile. Ancient sources also refer to it as a land of wealth, gold, silver, frankincense, and myrrh. Job 28:19 refers to topaz from Cush. African Cushites appear in numerous biblical references: Moses' Cushite wife (Num. 12:1), David's Cushite messenger (2 Sam. 18:21-31), Zerah the Cushite who fought against Asa of Judah (2 Chr. 14:9), the mighty Cushite Pharaoh Tirhakah (2 Kin. 19:9), and Ebed-melech, the Cushite servant of King Zedekiah, who intervened to save the life of the prophet Jeremiah (Jer. 38:7-13).

prophecy, Zephaniah foresees the blessings of the millennial kingdom.

The Book of HAGGAI

Next to Obadiah, Haggai is the shortest book in the Old Testament, containing but two chapters comprised of a total of 38 verses. It is the only book of the English Bible to contain two chapters. Haggai delivered his prophecy using simple prose. The prophecy consists of four messages from God delivered to the nation after the rebuilding of the temple had ceased for about 10 years. The straightforward style of the book is enhanced by the use of questions, recurring expressions, and commands.

Historical Setting. Haggai was the first of the prophets to minister to Israel following the return from the Babylonian captivity. The period of Israel's history into which he fits is recorded in the books of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther. His personal background is recorded in Ezra 5 and 6.

Haggai dates his prophecy according to the year of the reigning Persian monarch "Darius the king" (Darius I, son of Darius Hystaspis, who was also known as Darius the Great, cf. 1:1). Darius began his reign in 521 B.C. During his first two years as king, Darius I defeated nine kings in 19 different battles. He became interested in law and permitted the Jews to rebuild Solomon's temple, which had been destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C. Haggai began his ministry in 520 B.C. to exhort the people to complete the task of rebuilding the temple. The resumption of the work aroused further opposition, and a letter was sent to Darius which he did not receive until 519/518 B.C. Haggai's ministry was short, lasting only four months. His prophecy was sufficient motivation to get the people started again. The work that he began was carried on by Zechariah and Malachi. The prophecy takes place in Jerusalem, the site of the rebuilt temple.

Authorship. The author of the prophecy is identified simply as "Haggai the prophet" or "the prophet Haggai" (cf. 1:1; 2:1, 10). The meaning and etymology of the name are uncertain. Some render it "Festival" or "Festive" or "Festal One," and have inferred that the prophet was born on a feast day. Others consider his name to be a form of feast of the Lord, and see in the name an indication of the joyous character of the predictions he delivered. Nothing is known of his personal history, though he is mentioned in Ezra 5:1 and 6:14. Once again God has obscured the origin of His prophet. God's message was all-important. Some have inferred from 2:3 that Haggai was born in Judah before 586 B.C. and was one of a small company who had seen the former temple in its glory. If this is true, he must have been an old man when he prophesied. This supposition agrees with the brevity of his public ministry. Although his personal history is scarcely known, he was extremely practical in his ministry. He was a man whom God raised up at a specific time for a specific mission.

The immediate purpose of the book is to encourage the people to resume the building of the temple, which had been incomplete for about 10 years. It was imperative that the people build the temple, for blessing from God depends on obedience. The theme of the prophecy is rebuilding the temple.

The Lord's House Is Neglected

1 In ^athe second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, came the word of the LORD by ^bHaggai the prophet unto ^cZerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to ^dJoshua the son of ^eJosedech, ¹the high priest, saying,

2 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, This people say, The time is not come, the time that the LORD's house should be built.

1:1. Darius refers to Darius I (Hystaspis), the ruler of Persia from 521 to 486 B.C. The sixth month was the month of Elul and roughly coincides with the month of September. Zerubbabel was a descendant of Shealtiel and was the grandson of Jehoiakim, one of the last kings of Judah prior to the Babylonian captivity. In 1 Chronicles 3:17-19, his father is listed as Pedaiah, the brother of Shealtiel. One was his physical father and the other an uncle who raised him as his son. The high priest, Joshua, was the son of Josedech (also known as Jozadak, Ezra 3:2; and as Jehozadak, 1 Chr. 6:15), who had been the high priest at the time Judah was carried captive into Babylon.

1:2-6. Cieled houses refers to ceilings paneled with fine woods. Such a practice was common for the residences of kings (cf. 1 Kin. 7:7; Jer. 22:14). In contrast, the Lord's house lay in waste. The command, Consider your ways, is issued five times throughout the course of this prophecy (vv. 5, 7; 2:15, 18). It is a plea on the part of God for the people to take note of what they are doing, and amend their ways accordingly.

1:2. The LORD's House refers to the Second Temple, sometimes called Zerubbabel's Temple and sometimes called Herod's Temple. Jews consider it to be God's Temple, thus preferring to simply call it the Second Temple (515 B.C.—A.D. 70) since the sacrificial altar remained there throughout (although it had to be re-consecrated after the abominations of Antiochus IV Epiphanes (170-164 B.C.). Second Temple period Judaism was characterized by Ezra's reforms from which the high priest emerged as the most prominent figure within the Jewish community. The Persian king Cyrus the Great authorized the Jews to rebuild their temple in c. 538 B.C., but the final work was not completed until 515 B.C. However, there is no biblical or historical record that the ark of the covenant was ever recovered after the Babylonian captivity (605-535 B.C.). Most Jewish and Christian scholars believe there was no ark of the covenant in the Second Temple. King Herod, an Idumean, sought to appease the Jews by ornate rebuilding and refurbishing the temple from 9 B.C.—A.D. 64 with white stone and marble, inlaid with gold. However, the Romans destroyed the Second Temple in A.D. 70 in order to silence a Jewish revolt against Roman dominance.

there is none warm; and ^bhe that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes.

Build My House

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Consider your ways.

8 Go up to the ^amountain, and bring wood, and build ¹the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the LORD.

9 ^aYe looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, ^bI ¹did blow upon it. Why? saith the LORD of hosts. Because of mine house that is ²waste, and ye run every man unto his own house.

10 Therefore ^athe heaven over you ¹is stayed from dew, and the earth ²is stayed from her fruit.

11 And I ^acalled for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the ^ccorn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon ²cattle, and ^bupon all the labour of the hands.

Work Is Started on the House of the Lord

12 ^aThen Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of ¹Josedech, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the LORD their God had sent him, and the people did fear before the LORD.

13 Then spake Haggai the LORD's messenger in the LORD's message unto the people, saying, ^aI am with you, saith the LORD.

14 And ^athe LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, ^bgovernor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of ¹Josedech, the high priest, and the spirit of all

The Comparison of the Temple

2 In the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, came the word of the LORD ¹by the prophet Haggai, saying,

2 Speak now to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua the son of ¹Josedech, the high priest, and to the ²residue of the people, saying,

3 ^aWho is left among you that saw ¹this house in her first glory? and how do ye see it now? ^b*is it* not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing?

4 Yet now ^abe strong, O Zerubbabel, saith the LORD; and be strong, O Joshua, son of Josedech, the high priest; and be strong, all ye people of the land, saith the LORD, and work: for I am with you, saith the LORD of hosts:

5 ^aAccording to the word that I covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, so ^bmy spirit remaineth among you: fear ye not.

6 For thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^aYet ¹once, it is a little while, and ^bI will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land;

7 And I will shake all nations, ^aand the ¹desire of all nations shall come: and I will fill ²this house with ^bglory, saith the LORD of hosts.

8 The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith the LORD of hosts.

9 ^aThe glory of ¹this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the LORD of hosts: and in this place will I give ^bpeace, saith the LORD of hosts.

2:1, 2. The prophet's second message is dated in the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month—about a month and a half after his receipt of the first message (cf. 1:1) and almost a month after the actual building of the temple had begun (cf. 1:15).

2:9. The glory of this latter house refers to Christ's physical presence in the second temple (greatly modified by Herod). Ezekiel (chs. 10, 11) had earlier witnessed the departure of God's glory from Solomon's temple, prior to its destruction by Nebuchadnezzar. Although the builders of the second temple prayed for the shekinah glory to return, there is no record that it ever did. This prophecy would be fulfilled only in the return of that glory in the embodiment of Jesus Christ, of whom His disciples said, "And we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father" (John 1:14).

Judah's Uncleaness

10 In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying,

11 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^aAsk now the priests concerning the law, saying,

12 If one bear holy flesh in the ¹skirt of his garment, and with his ¹skirt do touch bread, or ²pottage, or wine, or oil, or any meat, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, No.

13 Then said Haggai, If one that is ^aunclean by a dead body touch any of these, shall it be unclean? And the priests answered and said, It shall be unclean.

The Judgment for Uncleaness

14 Then answered Haggai, and said, ^aSo is this people, and so is this nation before me, saith the LORD; and so is every work of their hands; and that which they offer there is unclean.

15 And now, I pray you, ^aconsider from this day and upward, from before a stone was laid upon a stone in the temple of the LORD:

16 Since those days were, ^awhen one came to an heap of twenty ¹measures, there were but ten: when one came to the pressfat for to draw out fifty ²vessels out of the press, there were but twenty.

20 And again the word of the LORD came unto Haggai in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying,

21 Speak to Zerubbabel, ^agovernor of Judah, saying, ^bI will shake the heavens and the earth;

22 And ^aI will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the ¹heathen; and ^bI will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother.

23 In that day, saith the LORD of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith the LORD, ^aand will make thee as ¹a signet: for ^bI have chosen thee, saith the LORD of hosts.

2:10, 11. The prophet's third message was a message of affirmation. This message came about two months after the message of 2:1-9.

2:12, 13. The people were to ask the priests two questions and, as a result, would learn that holiness is not communicable (v. 12) while unholiness is communicable (v. 13). The Mosaic system clearly taught that ceremonial cleanness was not transferable from one person or thing to another, but ceremonial uncleaness was transferable (cf. Lev. 6:18; 22:4-6; Num. 19:11).

2:20, 21a. The prophet's fourth message, a message of anticipation, comes on the same date as the previous one.

2:21b-23. Signet ring: This ring was used by the owner for the signing of letters and official documents. It was a mark of such honor and of authority, as Zerubbabel's ministry was to bear. He would carry with him the authority of the Lord, and would represent Him.

The Book of ZECHARIAH

Zechariah has more messianic prophecies than any other “minor” prophet and makes frequent mention of both the first and second advents of Messiah. The Angel of the Lord is more prominent in Zechariah than in any other of the prophetic writings. Zechariah is also one of the most devotional of the prophetic books, dwelling more completely on the person and work of Christ than any other of the prophetic writings. Except for the apocalyptic sections (the eight night visions), its basic language and style are simple and direct.

Historical Setting. Various scholars have estimated that Zechariah began his ministry sometime between 520 and 508 B.C. Comparing Zechariah 1:1 with Haggai 2:1 and 10 reveals that Zechariah’s first message was delivered between Haggai’s second and third messages and came two months after Haggai began his ministry (cf. Hag. 1:1). The message of Zechariah 7:1–14:21 came between two and three years later. Chapters 9–14 are undated but include material indicating that Zechariah’s prophetic activity may well have extended into the mid-fifth century B.C.

The tone of the prophecy is one of encouragement. It was given to a people who were discouraged, and it cures that discouragement by focusing their attention on the glory of God. Zechariah had primary and secondary purposes in delivering his prophecy. The primary purpose was to encourage the people to continue to rebuild the temple and to see that task through to its completion. His secondary purposes, which serve as motivators behind the primary purpose, are to announce God’s prophetic program as it concerned the Gentiles, to predict the blessings of the millennial age for Israel, and to outline the events leading up to it.

Authorship. The prophet identifies himself as “Zechariah [‘Yahweh Remembers’], the son of Berechiah [‘Yahweh Blesses’], the son of Iddo [‘The Appointed Time’]” (1:1). He is not to be confused with the Zechariah mentioned in Matthew 23:35, “Zecharias son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar.” That Zechariah lived much earlier (c. 825 B.C.), and his death is recorded in 2 Chronicles 24:20–22. Nor should Zechariah the prophet be confused with any of the 28 other men in the Old Testament who bore this name. Zechariah the prophet was probably born in Babylon during the 70-year Babylonian captivity. His coming to Jerusalem is recorded in Nehemiah 11:4; 12:16, and his ministry is mentioned in Ezra 5:1; 6:14. These historical citations confirm that Zechariah was a priest as well as a prophet. The Talmud indicates that he was a member of the Great Synagogue along with Nehemiah and Ezra. Zechariah was a younger contemporary of Haggai and continued the ministry that Haggai began. Both Zechariah and Haggai ministered to the same people, but from different perspectives. Haggai reproved the people for their failure to rebuild the temple, while Zechariah encouraged the people by presenting to them the coming glory of the Lord.

Because of the abrupt change in style in chapters 9–14 from chapters 1–8, some have proposed a “second Zechariah” theory. Such an extreme view is not necessary because the difference in subject matter is ample reason to account for the difference in style. In addition, the prophet may have recorded that part of his prophecy (chs. 9—14) at a much later time in his life. Moreover, all parts of Zechariah are quoted in the New Testament without any indication of a diversity of authorship. There is no manuscript evidence to support any division of the book.

The theme of Zechariah is the glory of the Lord (Yahweh). The theme is set forth as being the motivation for completing the task of rebuilding the temple, and for showing that the people of the prophet’s day are an important part of God’s ultimate program of displaying His glory through the nation in the future.
