1:1, 2. The message is dated in the eighth month, in the second year of Darius. This would be November, 520 B.C., two months after the prophet Haggai began his ministry. By his lineage Zechariah identifies himself as a priest, and by his reception of this prophecy he is established as a prophet.

1:4. The former prophets is a reference primarily to the prophets who ministered prior to the Babylonian captivity.

5 Your fathers, where are they? and the prophets, do they live for ever?

6 But ^amy words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not ¹take hold of your fathers? and they returned and said, ^bLike² as the LORD of hosts ³thought to do unto us, according to our ways, and according to our ⁴doings, so hath he dealt with us.

A Vision of Horses

7 Upon the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month, which is the month ¹Sebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD unto Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo the prophet, saying,

8 I saw by night, and behold ^aa man riding upon a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle trees that were in the ¹bottom; and behind him were there ^bred horses, ²speckled, and white.

9 Then said I, O ^amy lord, what are these? And the angel that talked with me said unto me, I will shew thee what these be.

10 And the man that stood among the myrtle trees answered and said, ^aThese are they whom the LORD hath sent to walk to and fro through the earth.

11 ^aAnd they answered the angel of the LORD that stood among the myrtle trees, and said, We have walked to and fro through the earth, and, behold, all the earth ¹sitteth still, and is at rest.

1:19 ^aEzra 4:1, 4, 7 ¹Kingdoms or powers

1:20 ¹craftsmen

1:7—6:8. The eight night visions: All eight night visions occurred on one night and constitute a unity of revelation. The first is most important because it provides a key for understanding the other seven. The night visions were not presented to the prophet in the form of a dream, but rather with the prophet in some form of a trance (cf. Acts 10:10; 11:15; Rev. 1:10). The overall message of these visions for the nation of Zechariah's day was "The Lord is with you; therefore, build the temple." For the Israel of the future, the visions outline the prophetic program for Israel from the time of restoration from the Babylonian captivity to the institution of the millennial kingdom.

1:7—11. The angel of the LORD (v. 11) is a Christophany—a preincarnate appearance of the second person of the Trinity, the Son of God. The bottom

(Heb. metsulah, "depth," "hollow," "place of shadows," or "a shady place") has been suggested to be the valley of Hinnom outside the temple precinct. If so, the prophet could look down from the foundations of the temple and see the Rider and His army coming.

1:13—17. The contribution of this first and all-inclusive night vision, the man among the myrtle trees, is twofold: The Israel of Zechariah's day was assured that the Lord was with them and that the world was at peace. Therefore, they should continue the task of building the temple until it was completed.

1:18—21. The four horns are representative of the four Gentile world powers, earlier introduced by Daniel (cf. Dan. 2, 7, 8). Metaphorically, the "horn" was applied to the strength of governments, and was used representatively of nations (cf. Dan. 8:3, 4; Mic. 4:13).

21 Then said I, What come these to do? And he spake, saying, These are the ^ahorns which have scattered Judah, so that no man did lift up his head: but ¹these are come to ²fray them, to cast out the horns of the ³Gentiles, which ^blifted up their horn over the land of Judah to scatter it.

A Man with a Measuring Line

2 I lifted up mine eyes again, and looked, and behold ^aa man with a measuring line in his hand.

2 Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, ^aTo measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof.

3 And, behold, the angel that talked with me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him,

4 And said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, ^aJerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls ¹for the multitude of men and cattle therein:

5 For I, saith the LORD, will be unto her ^aa wall of fire round about, ^band will be the glory in the midst of her.

Flee from Babylon

6 ¹Ho, ho, come forth, and flee ^afrom the land of the north, saith the LORD: for I have ^bspread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven, saith the LORD.

7 ^aDeliver¹ thyself, O Zion, that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon.

2:1-13. The third vision is that of the man with the measuring line. Its message is that the future Jerusalem will overspread its boundaries, and that God will be its Protector.

3:1-10. The fourth vision is of Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the LORD. For the Israel of Zechariah's day, the significance of the vision is that sin is not a hindrance to the realization of God's program. Because God has dealt with sin, Joshua and the priests indicate the restoration of the priesthood and stand representatively for the work that God will accomplish ultimately when the sin of the nation is permanently put away by the BRANCH, the coming Messiah.

3:5. The fair mitre was the high priest's turban, to which a golden plate was attached, engraved with "HOLINESS TO THE LORD" (Ex. 28:36-38).

3:6-8. The BRANCH (Heb. tsemach, lit., "a sprout")

7 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; If thou wilt walk in my ways, and if thou wilt ^akeep my ¹charge, then thou shalt also ^bjudge my house, and shalt also keep my courts, and I will give thee places to walk among these that ^cstand ²by.

God's Branch

8 Hear now, O Joshua the high priest, thou, and thy ¹fellows that sit before thee: for they are ^amen ²wondered at: for, behold, I will bring forth ^bmy servant the ^cBRANCH.

9 For behold the stone that I have laid before Joshua; ^aupon one stone shall be ^bseven eyes: behold, I will engrave the ¹graving thereof, saith the LORD of hosts, and ¹I will remove the iniquity of that land in one day.

10 ^aIn that day, saith the LORD of hosts, shall ye call every man his neighbour ^bunder the vine and under the fig tree.

A Vision of a Golden Candlestick

4 And ^athe angel that talked with me came again, and waked me, ^bas a man that is wakened out of his sleep,

2 And said unto me, What seest thou? And I said, I have looked, and behold ^aa ¹candlestick all of gold, with a bowl upon the top of it, ^band his seven lamps thereon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon the top thereof:

The Two Olive Trees and Branches

11 Then answered I, and said unto him, What are these ^atwo olive trees upon the right side of the ¹candlestick and upon the left side thereof?

12 And I answered again, and said unto him, What be these two olive branches ¹which through the two golden pipes empty the golden oil out of themselves?

4:11 ^a Zech. 4:3; Rev. 11:4 ¹ lampstand
4:12 ¹ that drip into the hand (receptacle) of the gold pipes from which the golden oil drains is a proper name descriptive of the Messiah, of whom it is used in prophecy (cf. 6:12; Is. 4:2; 11:1; Jer. 23:5; 33:15) to indicate that genealogically He is a descendant of David, and He is the fulfillment of the Davidic covenant (2 Sam. 7:8-14). My servant (Heb. 'ebed, "servant," "doer," "tiller," "slave") sets forth His function (cf. Is. 42:1; 49:3; 50:10; 52:13; 53:11; Ezek. 34:23, 24).

3:9. The stone (Heb. 'eben) is frequently used throughout the Old Testament to refer to the Messiah (cf. Gen. 49:24; Ps. 118:22; Is. 28:16) and is so interpreted in the New Testament (cf. Matt. 21:42; Acts 4:11; 1 Pet. 2:6).

4:1-14. The fifth vision, the golden candlestick and the two olive trees: the work of God (the rebuilding of the temple) would be accomplished through God's leaders, Joshua and Zerubbabel, who would be enabled to perform their tasks by the Spirit of God. The vision indicates that future Israel will be a blessing to all the nations of the world through an abundant supply of the Spirit of God as the result of the coming of the Messiah, who will unite the offices of priest and king in Himself.

4:1-5. Zechariah's lampstand differed from modern menorahs in four ways, because it had (1) a bowl, (2) pipes, (3) olive trees, and (4) two golden spouts. The Hebrew text is explicit: there were seven pipes leading from the bowl to each of the seven lamps, a total of 49 pipes. The thought conveyed is that there was an abundant channel to convey the abundant supply of oil stored in the bowl to each of the seven lamps.

13 And he answered me and said, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord.

14 Then said he, “These are the two ¹anointed ones, ²that stand by the Lord of the whole earth.

5 Then I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a flying ^aroll.¹

2 And he said unto me, What seest thou? And I answered, I see a flying ¹roll; the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits.

3 Then said he unto me, This is the ^acurse that goeth forth over the face of the whole earth: for every one that stealeth shall be ¹cut off as on this side according to it; and every one that ²swareth shall be cut off as on that side according to it.

An Ephah and a Talent of Lead

Wickedness Is Removed from the Land

8 And he said, This is wickedness. And he ¹cast it into the midst of the ²ephah; and he cast the ³weight of lead upon the mouth thereof.

9 Then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came out two women, and the wind was in their wings; for they had wings like the wings of a ^astork: and they lifted up the ¹ephah between the earth and the heaven.

6 And I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came four chariots out from between two mountains; and the mountains were mountains of ¹brass.

2 ¹In the first chariot were ^ared horses; and ¹in the second chariot ^bblack horses;

3 And ¹in the third chariot white horses; and ¹in the fourth chariot ²grisled and ³bay horses.

4 Then I answered ^aand said unto the angel that talked with me, What are these, my lord?

4:14. The two anointed ones, that stand by the Lord of the whole earth: The context clearly favors identifying them as Joshua, the high priest, and Zerubbabel, the governor, who will be the channels through whom God will manifest His light.

5:1-4. The sixth vision, of the flying roll (or scroll), is to show that those who sin openly will not hinder God’s work, because God’s judgment is upon them and they will not escape. For the Israel of the future the vision indicates that at the coming of the Messiah God is going to pour out His judgment on all the world and will remove every sinner from the land.

5:5-11. The seventh vision is of the woman in the ephah. The significance of the vision for the Israel of Zechariah’s day is that wickedness must be removed entirely from the land. This is an impossible task from man’s viewpoint, but from God’s viewpoint it is simply and efficiently accomplished. So the people should not let any form of wickedness deter them from their task of bringing the temple to completion. For the future Israel, the vision looks toward the seventieth week of Daniel, when God will remove every system and form of wickedness that manifests itself against Him.

6:1-8. The eighth vision, the vision of the four chariots, shows that God’s judgment has finally and fully rested on Babylon. Even though there might be a flare-up (which was realized in the fifth year of Darius’s reign—just three years later) they need not let that deter them from building the temple (which was not completed until the sixth year of Darius’s reign). God has all things under complete control. The chariots reveal to future Israel why the Messiah can reign universally over all the world—all enemies are judged and none can rise up against the authority of the King.

5 And the angel answered and said unto me, “These are the four spirits of the heavens, which go forth from ^bstanding¹ before the Lord of all the earth.

6 The black horses which are ¹therein go forth into “the north country; and the white go forth after them; and the ²grisled go forth toward the south country.

7 And the ¹bay went forth, ²and sought to go that they might walk to and fro through the earth: and he said, Get you hence, walk to and fro through the earth. So they walked to and fro through the earth.

8 Then ¹cried he upon me, and spake unto me, saying, Behold, these that go toward the north country have ²quieted my spirit in the north country.

Crowns for the High Priest

9 And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,

10 ¹Take of them of the captivity, even of Heldai, of Tobijah, and of Jedaiah, which are come from Babylon, and come thou the same day, and go into the house of Josiah the son of Zephaniah;

11 Then take silver and gold, and make ^acrowns,¹ and set ²them upon the head of ^bJoshua the son of ³Josedech, the high priest;

12 And speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, Behold *a*the man whose name is The ^bBRANCH; and he shall ¹grow up out of his place, ^cand he shall build the temple of the LORD:

Fasting for God

7 And it came to pass in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah in the fourth day of the ninth month, even in ¹Chisleu;

2 When ¹they had sent unto ²the house of God ³Sherezzer and Regem-melech, and their men, to pray before the LORD,

3 And to *a*speak unto the priests which were in the house of the LORD of hosts, and to the prophets, saying, Should I weep in ^bthe fifth month, ¹separating myself, as I have done these so many years?

4 Then came the word of the LORD of hosts unto me, saying,

5 Speak unto all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying, When ye *a*fasted and mourned in the fifth ^band seventh month, ^ceven those seventy years, did ye at all fast ^dunto me, even to me?

6 *a*And when ye did eat, and when ye did drink, did not ye eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves?

7 Should ye not ¹hear the words which the LORD hath ²cried by the *a*former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, and the cities thereof round about her, when men inhabited ^bthe ³south and the ⁴plain?

God's Standard of Righteousness

8 And the word of the LORD came unto Zechariah, saying,

9 Thus speaketh the LORD of hosts, saying, *a*Execute true ¹judgment, and shew ²mercy and compassions every man to his brother:

7:1—8:23. The four messages: All four messages came in the fourth year of king Darius—two years after the word came to Zechariah (cf. 1:1, 7). The precise date is the fourth day of the ninth month, even in Chisleu—the Babylonian name for the month—the last part of November and first part of December.

7:2. Sherezzer and Regem-melech bear Babylonian names showing that they were exiles returned from Babylon.

10 And ^aoppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; ^band let none of you ¹imagine evil against his brother in your heart.

11 But they refused to hearken, and ^apulled¹ away the shoulder, and ^bstopped² their ears, that they should not hear.

12 Yea, they made their ^ahearts as ¹an adamant stone, ^blest they should hear the law, and the words which the LORD of hosts hath sent in his spirit by the former prophets: ^ctherefore came a great wrath from the LORD of hosts.

13 Therefore it is come to pass, that as he ¹cried, and they would not hear; so ^athey ¹cried, and I would not hear, saith the LORD of hosts:

14 But ^aI scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations whom they knew not. Thus the land was desolate after them, that no man passed through nor returned: for they laid the pleasant land desolate.

God's Great Jealousy

8 Again the word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying,

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^aI was ¹jealous for Zion with great ²jealousy, and I was ¹jealous for her with great ³fury.

3 Thus saith the LORD; I ¹am ^areturned unto Zion, and will ^bdwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem ^cshall be called a city of truth; and ^dthe mountain of the LORD of hosts ^ethe holy mountain.

4 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; ^aThere shall ¹yet old men and old women ²dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand ³for very age.

5 And the streets of the city shall be ^afull of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

A Prosperous Land

10 For before these days there was no ^ahire¹ for man, nor any hire for beast; neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in because of the ²affliction: for I set all men every one against his neighbour.

11 ^aBut now I will not be unto the ¹residue of this people as in the former days, saith the LORD of hosts.

20 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come ¹people, and the inhabitants of many cities:

21 And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, ^aLet us go ¹speedily to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also.

22 Yea, ^amany people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD.

23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall ^atake hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall ^btake hold of the ¹skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard ^cthat God is with you.

Israel's Just and Lowly King

9 ^aRejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, ^bthy King cometh unto thee: he is ¹just, and having salvation; ²lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass.

10 And I ^awill cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the ^bbattle bow shall be cut off: and he shall speak peace unto the ¹heathen: and his ^cdominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth.

9:1–14:21. The two burdens: For the suggestion that chapters 9–14 comprise a “second Zechariah,” see the Introduction.

9:9, 10. The ass (donkey) was an animal of peace. The kings of the earth come to bring destruction and devastation; Israel's King comes to bring peace. The prophecy was fulfilled when Jesus made His triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Matt. 21:4–7; Mark 11:7; Luke 19:38; John 12:14, 15).

11 As for thee also, ¹by the blood of thy covenant I have sent forth thy ^aprisoners out of the pit wherein is no water.

12 Turn you to the strong hold, ^aye prisoners of hope: even to day do I declare that I will ¹render ^bdouble unto thee;

13 ¹When I have bent Judah ²for me, filled the bow with Ephraim, and raised up thy sons, O Zion, against thy sons, O Greece, and made thee as the sword of a mighty man.

14 And the LORD shall be seen over them, and ^ahis arrow shall go forth as the lightning: and the Lord GOD shall blow the trumpet, and shall go ^bwith whirlwinds of the south.

15 The LORD of hosts shall ^adefend them; and they shall devour, and subdue with sling stones; and they shall drink, and ¹make a noise as ²through wine; and they shall be ³filled like ⁴bowls, and as the corners of the altar.

10:1. The latter rain is the spring rain of late April or early May.

10:3. The shepherds and goats (Heb. 'atūdim, "he goats") refer to the leaders of the foreign nations who 10:4. Corner (cornerstone) portrays the Messiah as the foundation of God's new kingdom (cf. Is. 28:16; Eph. 2:20; 1 Pet. 2:6-8). Nail refers either to a large tent peg, or to a peg by which valuables were hung on walls. It portrays the fact that all of Israel's value will depend on Him.

10:8. I have redeemed them: This will be the realization of the national regeneration promised in the new covenant (Jer. 31:31-34).

9 And ^aI will ¹sow them among the ²people: and they shall ^bremember me in far countries; and they shall live with their children, and ³turn again.

9 Then said I, I will not feed you: ^athat that dieth, let it die; and that that is ¹to be cut off, let it ²be cut off; and let the rest eat every one the flesh ³of another.

10 And I took my staff, even ¹Beauty, and cut it asunder, that I might break my covenant which I had made with all the people.

11 And it was broken in that day: and so ^athe poor of the flock that ¹waited upon me knew that it was the word of the LORD.

11:7. The oriental shepherd took two staves: one to protect the sheep from wild beasts, and the other to assist the sheep in difficult and dangerous places. The names Beauty and Bands symbolize God's favor on the reunited Israel and Judah.

11:8. It is probably best to understand these three shepherds as three classes of leaders given to administer the eternal, theocratic kingdom for Israel—prophets, priests, and kings.

11:12. Thirty pieces of silver, according to Exodus 21:32, was the price paid to the master whose slave had been gored by an ox. A sound slave was considered to be worth twice that amount. This insult would ultimately be ascribed to the Messiah Himself (Matt. 27:9, 10). This is the supreme insult—the Messiah, God's Son, worth only the price of an incapacitated, gored slave!

16 For, lo, I will raise up a shepherd in the land, which shall not visit those that be cut off, neither shall seek the young one, nor heal that that is broken, nor feed that that standeth still: but he shall eat the flesh of the fat, and tear their ¹claws in ^apieces.

The Restoration of God's People

6 In that day will I make the governors of Judah ^alike an ¹hearth of fire among the wood, and like a torch of fire in a sheaf; and they shall devour all the people round about, on the right hand and on the left: and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem.

7 The LORD also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem ¹do not magnify themselves against Judah.

8 In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of the LORD before them.

9 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to ^adestroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

Mourning in Jerusalem

12:2-9. A cup was a symbol of the wrath of God (cf. Is. 51:17, 22; Jer. 13:13; 25:15-17, 27, 28; 51:7). The expression in that day occurs 16 times in the remainder of this prophecy. The phrase is often employed by the prophets to refer to the eschatological era (cf. 14:4, 6, 8, 9, 13, 20, 21 with Joel 3:1, etc.). The events prophesied in this section deal largely with the ultimate consummation of Israel's history and are, therefore, most important future events.

MESSIANIC PROPHECIES

12:10—13:1. John applies verse 10 to the smitten Christ (John 19:37). These verses contrast Israel's treatment of the Messiah at His first advent, when He was rejected and slain, and their treatment of Him at His second advent, when He will be received and exalted. Zechariah builds to a crescendo climaxing a series of messianic prophecies. These include Christ's betrayal for thirty pieces of silver (11:12), the piercing of His hands and feet (12:10), His crucifixion (12:10), the salvation of His people (12:10), their mourning at Megiddo (12:11), their cleansing from sin (13:1-2), the triumphal return of Christ to split the Mount of Olives (14:1-4), the transformation of the land of Israel (14:8-10), the righteous rule of Christ in the holy city of Jerusalem (14:20-21). Illustration: The ideal triumph of the Messiah is the only thing that will ever transform human society, even Jerusalem, into a holy city and a kingdom of righteousness. Application: New Testament believers live as citizens of heaven while residing on earth, awaiting the coming of our King to rule as Zechariah and the Apostle John predicted (cf. John 5:18).

12:11. Megiddo was the major fortress controlling the Valley of Jezreel and the Plain of Sharon and, thus, the major military and trade routes between Phoenicia (Lebanon), Damascus (Syria), and the strategic cities of Israel and Judah. The ruins of the ancient city of Megiddo (Tell el-Mutesellim) lie on the slope of the Carmel range about ten miles from Nazareth. The fifteen-acre site has been extensively excavated, uncovering more than twenty levels of occupation from Canaanite to Israelite settlements, including the city walls and gates from Solomon's time (tenth century B.C.) and a water shaft and tunnel that leads to an underground spring. The site overlooks the scene of numerous bloody battles from the days of Joshua, Deborah and Barak, Gideon, Jehu, and Josiah, and more recently during the Crusades and battles between Napoléon and the Turks, and the British and the Turks. Some estimate that more blood was shed there in biblical times than any other place on earth. The name Megiddo (KJV—Megiddon) is the basis of the name Armageddon (Rev. 16:16).

14:4, 5. The violent topographical changes predicted here will afford a haven of escape for God's people. If the splitting of the mountain will be caused by an earthquake, it is interesting to note that a recent geological survey in the area has verified the presence of a prominent fault running east to west through the southern section of the mount of Olives.

14:16-21. The feast of tabernacles is the joyous feast of ingathering, rest, and thanksgiving. Israel celebrated it when they returned from the Exile (cf. Neh. 8:14-18). The millennial reign of the Messiah is the realization of the Feast of Tabernacles. No other feast will be observed because the realities they foreshadowed will have been realized.

The Book of MALACHI

Malachi has been called the Socrates of the prophets because he uses that style specialists in rhetoric call dialectic, “investigation through discussion and reasoning.” The dialectic form used in the prophecy became a popular teaching style in later Judaism. The prophecy is a testimony to the graciousness of God in condescending to answer man’s foolish and childish statements.

Historical Setting. Malachi is later than Haggai and Zechariah. In those books the rebuilding of the temple is the central concern. We know from 1:7 and 3:10 that not only had the temple been finished in Malachi’s day, but it had been in use for some time, and sin was corrupting the worship that took place in it. Further, the Book of Malachi must have been written after Nehemiah’s first arrival in Jerusalem in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, in 444 B.C., probably after the walls had been rebuilt around the city, for Malachi addresses the same sins noted in Nehemiah: the divorcing of Jewish wives and marrying heathen women (cf. 2:11 with Neh. 13:23–31) and the failure of the people to bring their gifts to the temple (cf. 3:8–10 with Neh. 13:10–14). Nehemiah was recalled to the Persian court in 433 B.C., and another governor, who seems to have been a Persian governor, was placed over Palestine (cf. Neh. 13:6). Most likely, Malachi was written just before Nehemiah’s second return to Jerusalem or during his presence there. Malachi ministered in support of Nehemiah’s ministry, just as Haggai and Zechariah had ministered in support of Ezra and Zerubbabel nearly a hundred years earlier. The prophecy was probably written sometime between 433 and 425 B.C.

After Malachi, the prophetic voice was silent for some four hundred years. This fact makes it necessary for even the most destructive critic to admit that the hundreds of prophecies concerning the coming of our Lord are what they claim to be—prophecy—and not the deceitful writing of history in poetical form.

Authorship. The name Malachi means “My Messenger.” Nothing is known of the personal life of the prophet. This has given rise to a number of theories concerning him. Because the Hebrew language, like Greek, has only one word that can mean either messenger or angel, some of the church fathers suggested that Malachi was really an angel incarnate. Other scholars have taken Malachi to be a pseudonym for Ezra, Nehemiah, or Zerubbabel; still others have considered Malachi to be merely a general term for an anonymous prophet, and not a personal name at all. But there is no historical basis for any of these suggestions, nor are there any precedents for them in the rest of canonical literature. Some have supposed that since the priesthood occupies such a prominent place in the book that Malachi must have been a priest. The simplest and best view is to consider Malachi as the name of the last prophet in Israel. The fact that nothing is known of his personal lineage or history is not uncommon among the prophets. Once again, the message to be conveyed is much more important than the messenger. The messenger is obviously adequate for the task committed to him.

The probable place from which the prophecy originated was Jerusalem at a location near the temple. This is even more likely if Malachi was a priest.

The purpose of Malachi is to deliver stern rebukes to the people and priests, to call them to repentance, and to promise future blessing. His theme is God's love for Israel in spite of the sins of the priests and people.

The Priests Dishonour the Lord

6 A son ^ahonoureth his father, and a servant his master: ^bif then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my ¹fear? saith the LORD of hosts unto you, O priests, that despise my name. "And ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?"

1:1. For burden (Heb. masa', "burden," "load," or "thing lifted up"): See the note on Habakkuk 1:1-4.

1:2-5. Yet I loved Jacob, And I hated Esau has caused concern to many. This expression involves the use of a Hebrew idiom. If a father had two sons and made one heir, he was said to love the one he had made his heir and to hate the other whom he had not made an heir. The love and hate spoken of here are not related to the emotions; they are related to the will of God. The words challenge Israel to recognize the responsibilities inherent in its privileged position.

7 Ye offer ^apolluted¹ bread upon mine altar; and ye say, Wherein have we ²polluted thee? In that ye say, ^bThe table of the LORD is ³contemptible.

8 And ^aif¹ ye offer the blind for sacrifice, is it not evil? and ¹if ye offer the lame and sick, is it not evil? offer it now unto thy governor; will he be pleased with thee, or ^baccept² thy person? saith the LORD of hosts.

9 And now, I pray you, ¹beseech God that he will be gracious unto us: ^athis hath been by your ²means: will he ³regard your persons? saith the LORD of hosts.

10 Who is there even among you that would shut the doors for nought? ^aneither do ye kindle fire on mine altar ¹for nought. I have no pleasure in you, saith the LORD of hosts, ^bneither will I accept an offering at your hand.

11 For ^afrom the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same my name shall be great ^bamong the Gentiles; ^cand in every place ^din-cense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: ^efor my name shall be great among the ¹heathen, saith the LORD of hosts.

12 But ye have profaned it, in that ye say, ^aThe table of the ¹LORD is ²polluted; and the fruit thereof, even ³his meat, is contemptible.

13 Ye said also, Behold, what a ^aweariness is it! and ye have ¹snuffed at it, saith the LORD of hosts; and ye brought that which was ²torn, and the lame, and the sick; thus ye brought an offering: ^bshould I accept this of your hand? saith the LORD.

14 But cursed be ^athe deceiver, which hath in his flock a male, and voweth, and sacrificeth unto the Lord a ^bcorrupt¹ thing; for ^cI am a great King, saith the LORD of hosts, and my name is ²dreadful among the ³heathen.

3:1. My messenger plays on the name of the prophet. It does not refer to a heavenly messenger. Neither does it refer to a spiritual being nor to the Angel of the Lord, but to an earthly messenger of the Lord, the same one called Elijah in 4:5, 6. This clause is quoted a number of times in the New Testament (cf. Matt. 3:3; 11:10; Mark 1:2, 3; Luke 1:76; 3:4; 7:26, 27; John 1:23) and is uniformly applied to John the Baptist, the only prophet besides Jesus who was the subject of prophecy.

authority of God and to be guilty of the same sin as Lucifer in the beginning. Pour you out a blessing: The blessings come not because God received His due portion, but because in giving the tithe believers put themselves in the place of proper obedience and subjection to God. Tithing was clearly commanded in the Old Testament and served as the minimum standard for giving in the New Testament. See Matthew 6:1-4 in the Sermon on the Mount, where true spirituality exceeds the outward demands of the Law.

4:1-6. The coming day is the day of the LORD (or the Great Tribulation), which is in view as the birth pangs for the millennial kingdom. Sun of righteous- ness is a figurative representation of the Messiah. Moses represents the law and Elijah represents the prophets. Both of them appeared at the transfiguration of Christ (Matt. 17:3). The Old Testament ends with the promise of the coming of Elijah, which the New Testament identifies as John the Baptist (Matt. 3:3; Mark 1:3; Luke 3:4; John 1:23). John's own disclaimer (John 1:21) was simply a denial that he was literally Elijah. Jesus, on the other hand, clearly stated that John the Baptist came "in the spirit and power of Elijah" (Matt. 11:14; 17:10-13; Mark 9:11-13). Malachi's promise is quoted by the angel in Luke 1:17 as referring to the ministry of John the Baptist as the fore-

TITHING

3:10. Tithing is the practice of giving 10 percent of one's income to the Lord. It is called "storehouse tithing" by some who require that the tithe be given the Lord through the local church.

Illustration: While some Christians disagree, the principle of "God's place" for worship is the basis for storehouse tithing (Deut. 12). The temple in the Old Testament (1) was the central place characterized by God's presence; (2) possessed the symbols of redemption; and (3) was where the man of God served. In the New Testament, these three attributes characterize the local church. Hence, the principle of storehouse tithing continues into the church age. Application: Some people withhold their tithe from their local church because they disagree with its expenditure of funds. These Christians should join another church where they can wholeheartedly make their contributions in good conscience. Because our actual tithe belongs to the local church, giving to parachurch organizations should be in addition to the tithe. (First Reference, Gen. 14:20; Primary Reference, Mal. 3:10; cf. Matt. 22:21.)

runner of the Messiah. Therefore, the Old Testament ends in anticipation of the coming of the Messiah and His prophetic forerunner, John the Baptist, who appears in the likeness of Elijah. The Old Testament begins with creation (Gen. 1–2) and ends with the threat of a divine curse (Mal. 4:6) which is removed by the atoning death of Jesus Christ who came to redeem fallen humans and restore the creation to its intended purpose in His millennial kingdom. Thus, the Old Testament remains incomplete—awaiting the arrival of the Promised One.

BETWEEN the TESTAMENTS

The four hundred years between the prophecy of Malachi and the advent of Christ are frequently described as “silent,” but they were in fact crowded with activity. Although no inspired prophet arose in Israel during those centuries, and the Old Testament was regarded as complete, events took place which gave to later Judaism its distinctive ideology and providentially prepared the way for the coming of Christ and the proclamation of His gospel.

The Persian Period

The Jews fared well under Persian rule. Cyrus had given them permission to return to Jerusalem and rebuild their temple and, although they met opposition from the inhabitants of Palestine, it was dedicated during the reign of Darius the Great. Ezra, the scribe, and Nehemiah, the layman, sought to strengthen the Palestinian Jewish community and encourage their loyalty to the Law of God. For about a century-and-a-half after Nehemiah's time, the Persian Empire exercised control over Judea, and the Jews were permitted to observe their religious ordinances without interference. Judea was ruled by high priests who were responsible to the Persian government, a fact which insured the Jews a large measure of autonomy. At the same time, however, it made a political office of the priesthood and sowed the seeds of future trouble. Contests for the office of high priest were marked by jealousy, intrigue, and even murder. Johanan, son of Joiada (Neh. 12:22), is reported to have slain his brother, Joshua, within the temple precincts.

Johanan was succeeded as high priest by his brother, Jaddua, whose brother Manasseh, according to Josephus, married the daughter of Sanballat, governor of Samaria. It was at this time that a Samaritan temple was built on Mount Gerizim which, rather than Zion, was regarded as sacred by the Samaritan community. The sanctuary on Mount Gerizim was destroyed by the Hasmonean ruler John Hyrcanus (134-104 B.C.), but the mount itself continues to this day to be regarded as sacred by the Samaritans. The woman of Samaria wished to dispute with Jesus concerning the merits of the rival holy places, but the Savior chose to emphasize the spiritual attitude of the worshiper rather than the place of worship (cf.

John 4:20). The Sanballat of Josephus cannot have been the same individual as the man of the same name mentioned by Nehemiah (4:1). Josephus does, however, appear to reflect a valid tradition, for a temple seems to have been built on Mount Gerizim about this time. (In 1969 the Samaritans numbered fewer than three hundred.)

Persia's failure to conquer Greece encouraged subject peoples to seek their independence. Egypt was constantly attempting to throw off the Persian yoke, and Judea, geographically between the two powers, could not escape involvement. During the reign of Artaxerxes III (Ochus), many Jews were implicated in a revolt against Persia. When it failed, the Persians deported them to Babylonia and the southern shores of the Caspian Sea.

Jews had long been in Egypt. Following the murder of Gedaliah, the prophet Jeremiah was forced to join a group of refugees who sought asylum at Tahpanhes in the eastern Delta (Jer. 43:4-13), and other Judeans doubtless found their way to Egypt to avoid capture by Nebuchadnezzar. Migration continued during the Persian period, and by the fifth century before Christ a Jewish colony of mercenary soldiers was located at Elephantine Island, near modern Aswan, at the First Cataract of the Nile. Contrary to the Mosaic Law, these colonists built a temple for themselves, and they combined their devotion to the God of their fathers with pagan elements. The Elephantine Jews had correspondence with the Samaritans as well as the Judeans.

Alexander the Great

Persia never succeeded in subduing the Greeks, but an heir of Greek culture, Alexander of Macedon, eventually brought to an end the Persian Empire. Alexander was not simply a power-mad despot. A pupil of the philosopher Aristotle, he was thoroughly convinced that Greek culture was the one force that could unify the world. In 333 B.C. he passed from Macedonia into Asia Minor and defeated the Persian armies stationed there. Then he moved southward through Syria and Palestine to Egypt. Tyre and Gaza each offered stubborn resistance, but delays did not discourage Alexander; they simply strengthened his determination to win. There was no need for a campaign against the Jews, and legend makes Alexander a friend of the Jewish people. Jaddua, the high priest, is said to have come out to meet Alexander, telling him of Daniel's prophecy that the Greek army would be victorious (Dan. 8). Although historians do not take the story seriously, it does illustrate the friendly feelings between the Jews and the Macedonian conqueror. Alexander permitted the Jews to observe their laws, granted them exemption from tribute during sabbatical years, and, when he built Alexandria in Egypt (331 B.C.), he encouraged Jews to settle there and gave them privileges comparable to those of his Greek subjects.

Alexander was welcomed into Egypt as a deliverer from Persian oppression. His victorious armies retraced their steps through Palestine and Syria, then moved eastward. The cities of Babylonia and Persia fell to Alexander, and he pressed on as far as the Punjab region of India. Although mighty in battle, it was Hellenistic culture rather than Macedonian rule that was Alexander's legacy to the Middle East. He determined to found a new city in each country of his empire, which would serve as a model for the reordering of the life of the country as a whole along Greek lines. Materially speaking, this meant the erection of fine public buildings, a gymnasium for games, an open-air theater, and whatever would approximate the life of a Greek city-state. Individuals were encouraged to take Greek names, adopt Greek dress and language—in short, to become Hellenized.

The material aspects of Hellenism must have seemed attractive for large segments of the population. Trade and commerce brought wealth to the new merchant class. Libraries and schools were welcomed by the scholar. Better housing and better food brought about a rise in the standard of living. Many in Israel, as elsewhere, were glad to accept this veneer of Greek culture. If idolatry had been the stumbling block to Israel in the preexilic period, Hellenism was the great postexilic temptation. A third-century B.C. writer observed, "In recent times, under the foreign rule of the Persians, and then of the Macedonians, by whom the Persian Empire was overthrown, intermingling with other races has led to many of the traditional Jewish ordinances losing their hold." Many Jews took Greek names, accepted a school of Greek philosophy, and tried to combine the wisdom of Greece with the faith of their fathers. Others resisted Hellenism and became more and more engrossed in the study of their Law.

At the age of 33 Alexander died in Babylon. For a number of years the future of the Near East was uncertain, but the generals succeeded in dividing the Empire among themselves and the tide of Hellenism increased. While the Ptolemies of Egypt and the Seleucids of Syria fought among themselves for land and power, they were in complete agreement concerning their social and cultural mission. The historian W. W. Tarn says that Alexander "so changed the world [that] nothing after him could be as it was before."

The Ptolemies

Following the death of Alexander, Judea was first subject to Antigonos, one of his generals, but it quickly fell to another general, Ptolemy I, surnamed Soter, "Deliverer," who seized Jerusalem on a Sabbath day in 320 B.C. Ptolemy, whose kingdom centered in Egypt, dealt kindly with the Jews. Many of them settled in Alexandria, which continued to be an important center of Jewish thought for many centuries. Under Ptolemy II (Philadelphus) the Alexandrian Jews translated their Old Testament into Greek. This translation was later known as the Septuagint from the legend of 70 (more correctly 72, 6 from each of the 12 tribes) who were sent from Judea to produce the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures.

The Jews in Palestine enjoyed a period of prosperity during Ptolemaic times. Tribute tax was paid to the government in Egypt, but local affairs were administered by high priests who had been responsible for governing their people since Persian times. The greatest figure among the Jews of the Ptolemaic period was Simon the Just, the high priest who is the subject of highest praise in the apocryphal book of Ecclesiasticus, which calls him, "Great among his brethren and the glory of his people." He is credited with rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem, which had been demolished by Ptolemy I, and is said to have repaired the temple and directed the excavation of a great reservoir to provide fresh water for Jerusalem in times of drought and siege. In addition to his reputation as high priest, Simon is also regarded as one of the great teachers of ancient Judaism. His favorite maxim was, "The world rests on three things, on the Law, on Divine Service, and on Charity" (Pirke Aboth, i. 2). The identity of Simon the Just poses a historical problem. A high priest known as Simon I lived during the middle of the third century, and Simon II lived about 200 B.C. One of these is doubtless the Simon the Just of Jewish tradition and legend.

During Ptolemaic times the priestly families of Onias and Tobias became bitter rivals. The house of Tobias was pro-Egyptian and represented the wealthy class of Jerusalem society. It may have been related to Tobiah the Ammonite (Neh. 2:10; 4:3, 7; 6:1-19), who gave so much trouble to Nehemiah. A papyrus from the time of Ptolemy II speaks of a Jew named Tobias, who was a cavalry commander in the Ptolemaic army stationed at Ammanitis, east of the Jordan. Archaeologists have discovered a mausoleum with the name "Tobiah" from the third century B.C. at Araq el-Emir in central Jordan. The Tobiahs are thought to have been tax collectors, occupying the same function as the New Testament tax gatherers.

Josephus states that Onias II refused to pay Ptolemy IV 20 talents of silver, which was evidently the tribute tax demanded of the high priests. By refusing payment, Onias seems to have renounced allegiance to Ptolemy. Joseph, a member of the house of Tobias, then succeeded in having himself appointed tax collector for the whole of Palestine. The tax collector had to go to Alexandria each year to bid for the renewal of the license to gather taxes. Joseph held this influential post for 20 years, under the Ptolemies and, after the victory of Antiochus III, under the Seleucids.

The Seleucids

The Syrian rulers are termed Seleucids because their kingdom, one of the successor states to Alexander's empire, was founded by Seleucus I (Nicator). Most of the early rulers bore the names of Seleucus or Antiochus, and they ruled from Antioch on the Orontes River. The energetic ruler Antiochus III, surnamed "the Great," waged a series of battles with Egypt until, in 199 B.C., he wrested Palestine from the Ptolemies after the Battle of Panion, near the sources of the Jordan River. This marked the beginning of a new era of Jewish history for, while the Ptolemies had been tolerant of Jewish institutions, the Seleucids determined to enforce Hellenism on the Jews.

The crisis came during the reign of Antiochus IV, surnamed Epiphanes, who found allies in the Hellenistic party in Judea. In the early days of the reign of Antiochus IV, Jerusalem was ruled by the high priest, Onias III, a descendant of Simon the Just and a strictly orthodox Jew. The Jews who looked with favor on Greek culture opposed Onias and espoused the cause of his brother, Jason. By promising large tribute to Antiochus, Jason succeeded in having himself appointed high priest. Although Antiochus looked upon the high priesthood as a political office which he had a right to fill as he pleased, pious Jews thought of the priesthood as divine in origin and considered its sale to the highest bidder a sin against God.

Jason encouraged the Hellenists who had sought his election. A gymnasium was built in Jerusalem, Greek names became commonplace, and Hebrew orthodoxy was considered obscure and obsolete. Yet, Jason argued with his close companion and fellow-Hellenist, Menelaus, of the tribe of Benjamin, who offered higher tribute to Antiochus than that paid by Jason, and had himself installed as high priest.

The orthodox Jews, who had been scandalized when Jason was named high priest, were more deeply disturbed when Menelaus, a Benjamite with no claim to priestly office, was installed. Jason raised an army to back his claim to the high priesthood, and Menelaus courted the favor of Antiochus. The Syrians, who were campaigning against Egypt, felt it essential to maintain effective control of Palestine. Antiochus staged a sneak attack on Jerusalem one Sabbath day (when the orthodox would not fight), and slaughtered a large number of the enemies of Menelaus. The city walls were destroyed, and a new fortress, the Akra, was built on the site of the citadel.

Antiochus was determined to remove all traces of orthodox Jewish faith. Israel's God was identified with Jupiter, and a bearded image of the pagan deity (perhaps in the likeness of Antiochus) was erected on the temple altar, where swine were offered in sacrifice. Jews were forbidden, under penalty of death, to practice circumcision, Sabbath observance, or the celebration of the Feasts of the Jewish calendar. Copies of the Scriptures were ordered destroyed. The laws were enforced with the utmost cruelty. An aged scribe named Eleazar was flogged to death because he would not eat swine's flesh.

By force of arms, Menelaus continued as high priest and the Hellenizing party gained a victory. Yet, the Hellenizers had gone too far, and their zeal to annihilate the old order proved their own undoing. The orthodox were willing to die for their faith, but not all were convinced that they should die passively.

The Maccabean Revolt

The oppressed Jews were not long in finding a champion. When the emissaries of Antiochus arrived at the village of Modin, about 15 miles west of Jerusalem, they expected the aged priest, Mattathias, to set a good example to his people by coming forward to offer a pagan sacrifice. When Mattathias refused, a timid Jew came forward to perform the sacrifice. The enraged priest approached the altar and killed both the apostate Jew and the emissary of Antiochus. With his five sons, Mattathias destroyed the heathen altar and then fled to the hills to avoid reprisal. Others of orthodox persuasion joined the family of Mattathias in waging guerrilla warfare on the Syrians and the Hellenistic Jews who supported them. The orthodox would not fight on the Sabbath day, with the result that they were at a distinct military disadvantage. On one Sabbath, a group of the orthodox was surrounded and murdered, for they would not defend themselves. Following this episode, Mattathias suggested the principle that fighting in self-defense was permissible on the Sabbath day.

Soon after the beginning of the revolt, Mattathias died. He had urged his followers to choose as military leader his third son, Judas (Hebrew Judah), known as "the Maccabee," a word usually interpreted to mean "the hammer." The choice was a good one, for more and more Jews rallied to the cause. The Maccabees, as the followers of Judas were called, were able to hold their own against a series of Syrian armies thrown against them. By a surprise night attack, Judas annihilated an army of Syrians and Hellenistically minded Jews at Emmaus, and then marched toward Jerusalem with the booty he had seized. The Maccabees entered the city and took everything except the Akra. They entered the temple and removed all the signs of paganism which had been installed there. The altar dedicated to Jupiter was removed and a new altar erected to Israel's God. The statue of Jupiter was ground to dust. Beginning with the twenty-fifth of Kislev (December), they celebrated an eight-day Feast of Dedication, known as Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights. In this way they marked the end of the three-year period during which the temple had been desecrated.

Peace was short-lived. The Syrian general, Lysias, defeated the Maccabees in a battle near Jerusalem, and besieged the city. During the siege, however, Lysias learned of trouble at home and made an offer of peace to the Jews. The laws against the observance of Judaism would be repealed, and Syria would refrain from interference in the internal affairs of Judea. Menelaus was to be removed from office and the high priesthood given to a mild Hellenizer named Alcimus. Lysias promised that Judas and his followers would not be punished. However, the walls of Jerusalem would be destroyed.

A council comprising Maccabean army officers, respected scribes, and elders of the orthodox party was convened at Jerusalem to determine the action to be taken. Against the counsel of Judas, the peace terms were accepted. Alcimus became high priest; Menelaus was executed, and Judas left the city with a few followers. The fears of Judas proved correct, for Alcimus seized and executed many of the orthodox party. Loyal Jews again turned to Judas and civil war was renewed. Judas, with an ill-equipped army of eight hundred men, met a large Syrian army and died in battle. Thus, the first phase of the Maccabean struggle was ended.

Jonathan, a brother of Judas, fled across the Jordan with several hundred Maccabean soldiers. They were ill-equipped to wage battle, but the next victories were in the field of diplomacy. Two pretenders to the Syrian throne each sought help from the Jews. They saw in Jonathan the man best able to raise and lead a Jewish army. By playing a delaying action, Jonathan was able to support the winning candidate and at the same time make treaties with Sparta and Rome. Before the war was over, Jonathan was high priest, governor of Judea, and a member of the Syrian nobility. His brother, Simon, became governor of the Philistine coastal area. Jonathan was able to promote the internal prosperity of Judah, and when he died his brother, Simon, succeeded him as ruling high priest.

Simon was advanced in years when he came to the throne. His major victory was in the field of diplomacy, for by recognizing Demetrius as rightful king of Syria he secured for the Jews immunity from taxation, which amounted to an acknowledgment of independence. Simon was able also to starve out the Syrian garrison at the Akra and to occupy the cities of Joppa and Beth-zur. In recognition of his wise rule, the leaders in Israel named Simon, "leader and high priest for ever, until there shall arise a faithful prophet." Simon was the last of the sons of Mattathias, and this act legitimized a new dynasty that is termed Hasmonean, presumably derived from an ancestor of the Maccabees named Asmoneus or, in Hebrew, Hashman. In 134 B.C., Simon and two of his sons were murdered by an ambitious son-in-law. A third son, John Hyrcanus, managed to escape and succeed his father as hereditary head of the Jewish state.

The Hasmoneans

The Syrians recognized the government of John Hyrcanus on condition that he consider himself subject to Syria and promise help in Syrian military campaigns. Certain coastal cities annexed by Jonathan and Simon were also to be relinquished. The efficient rule of Hyrcanus, however, quickly effected the re-conquest of these cities and the addition of Idumea (Old Testament Edom) to Judean territory. These conquests ensured the use of ancient trade routes by the merchant class, but they posed problems to the religiously oriented Jews. Hyrcanus compelled the Idumeans to become circumcised and accept the Jewish faith, a practice that later Judaism disavows. Hyrcanus also campaigned in Samaria, where he destroyed the temple on Mount Gerizim. The success of Jewish arms might be applauded by the nationalistic element in Judea, but the religious fervor of the earlier Maccabees was no longer evident.

Before John Hyrcanus died in 104 B.C., the borders of the state had been extended on every side. The Maccabean struggle was long past and new rivalries developed. The older Hellenists were discredited, but their ideas were perpetuated in the party of the Sadducees. The orthodox of Maccabean times became the Pharisees of pre-Christian Judaism and the New Testament. Hyrcanus was devout and law-abiding, but his children had little sympathy with traditional Hebrew thought. They numbered themselves among the aristocrats, and they came to look with disdain on the rigidly orthodox Pharisees. Ironically, these heirs of the Maccabees became thoroughly Hellenized.

The death of John Hyrcanus precipitated a dynastic struggle among his children. His eldest son, who preferred his Greek name Aristobulus to his Hebrew name, Judah, emerged as victor and threw three of his brothers into prison—two of whom are thought to have starved to death. Another brother was murdered in the palace. In his short reign of but one year, Aristobulus pushed the borders of Judea north to Mount Lebanon and took the title of king. His life was cut short, however, by drink, disease, and the haunting fear of rebellion.

At the time of Aristobulus's death he had but one brother living, and he was in prison. Although his Hebrew name was Jonathan, history knows him by his Greek name Alexander Janneus. Under Janneus the policy of territorial expansion continued. The frontiers of Judea were extended along the Philistine coast toward the Egyptian frontier and in the Trans-Jordan region. The Jewish state approximated the territory controlled by Israel in the days of David and Solomon. It included the whole of Palestine and adjacent areas from the borders of Egypt to Lake Huleh, north of the Sea of Galilee. Perea in Trans-Jordan was subject to Janneus, as were the cities of the Coastal Plain except for Ashkelon.

The territories incorporated into the Hasmonean kingdom were, for the most part, quickly Judaized. The Idumeans came to exercise an important place in Jewish life, and Galilee became an important center of Judaism. The Samaritans, however, continued to resist assimilation and cities such as Apollonia and Scythopolis (Old Testament Beth-shean), with only a small Jewish element in their population, kept their non-Jewish character.

Partisan strife marred the reign of Alexander Janneus, who showed open contempt for the Pharisees, precipitating civil war. The Pharisees accepted aid from the Syrians in their conflict with Janneus, and for a time Jewish independence was in the balance. When the Pharisees felt that they had gained their point, they withdrew their alliance with Syria and hoped for a Jewish state that would be both free of foreign control and tolerant of their viewpoint. Janneus sought out the leaders of the rebellion and crucified 800 Pharisees. Tradition says that Janneus repented on his deathbed, instructing his wife, Salome Alexandra, to dismiss his Sadducean advisors and reign with the help of the Pharisees. The tradition may have no historical basis, but Alexandra did turn to the Pharisees for support.

Salome Alexandra had been married successively to Aristobulus and to Alexander Janneus. The widow of two Hasmonean rulers, she reigned in her own right for seven years. She was a woman of 70 when she came to the throne, dividing royal responsibilities between her two sons. Hyrcanus, the older son, became high priest, and his brother, Aristobulus, received the military command. Her brother, Simeon ben Shetah, was a leader among the Pharisees and this fact may have disposed her to seek peace between the opposing factions of Judaism.

Under Alexandra, the Pharisees had their opportunity to make a constructive contribution to Jewish life. In many areas, particularly education, they were eminently successful. Under the presidency of Simeon ben Shetah, the Sanhedrin (the Jewish Council of State) decreed that every young man should be educated. A comprehensive system of elementary education was inaugurated so that the larger villages, towns, and cities of Judea would produce a literate, informed people. This education was centered in the Hebrew Scriptures.

The wounds of earlier strife were not healed during Alexandra's reign. Although the Pharisees were happy in their newfound recognition, the Sadducees were resentful of the fact that they had lost power. To compound the problem, the Pharisees sought to avenge the massacre of their leaders by Alexander Janneus. Sadducean blood was spilt and the makings of another civil war were in the air.

The Sadducees found in Aristobulus, the younger son of Janneus and Alexandra, the man they could support as Alexandra's successor. He was a soldier and appealed to the party that dreamed of imperial expansion and worldly power. Hyrcanus, the older brother and rightful heir, was acceptable to the Pharisees. With the death of Alexandra, the partisans of the two sons were ready for a showdown.

When his mother died, Hyrcanus (II), who had been serving as high priest, succeeded to the throne, but his brother, Aristobulus, led an army of Sadducees against Jerusalem. Neither Hyrcanus nor the Pharisees were ready for war, and Hyrcanus surrendered his honors to Aristobulus (II), who became king and high priest. Hyrcanus and Aristobulus thereupon vowed eternal friendship, and Aristobulus's eldest son, Alexander, married Hyrcanus's only daughter, Alexandra. Peace between the brothers was short-lived. Hyrcanus had to flee and Antipater, governor of Idumea, espoused his cause. With civil war threatening, Pompey appeared with his Roman legions to ensure the peace of Judea and further the aims of Rome.

The Romans

When Pompey suspected Aristobulus of planning to rebel against Rome, he besieged Jerusalem. After three months, he breached the fortifications, entered the city, and reportedly murdered 12,000 Jews. Pompey and his officers entered the Holy of Holies in the temple, but he did not touch its costly furnishings and allowed temple worship to continue. Jerusalem, however, was made tributary to the Romans, and the last vestige of Jewish independence was removed. Judea was incorporated into the Roman province of Syria and it lost the coastal cities, the district of Samaria, and the non-Jewish cities east of the Jordan. Hyrcanus was named Ethnarch of Judea, including Galilee, Idumea, and Perea, and was confirmed again as high priest. A yearly tribute was due Rome. Aristobulus and a number of other captives were taken to Rome to grace Pompey's triumph. During the voyage, Aristobulus's son Alexander escaped and attempted to organize a revolt against Hyrcanus. With the aid of the Romans, Hyrcanus was able to meet this challenge to his authority.

During the years of strife between Aristobulus (II) and Hyrcanus (II), the Idumean governor Antipater (or Antipas) took a lively interest in the politics of Judea. Antipater was bitterly opposed to Aristobulus, partly through fear and partly because of his friendship with Hyrcanus. It appears that Hyrcanus relied much on Antipater, and that he was virtually the power behind the throne of Judea. The Jews resented the influence of Antipater almost as much as they smarted under Roman sovereignty. Although the Idumeans had been incorporated into the Jewish state by John Hyrcanus, they had never been assimilated and ancient rivalries were not forgotten.

In the crisis which followed the murder of Julius Caesar, Antipater and his sons showed loyalty to the new regime of Cassius by zealously collecting tribute taxes. Herod, a son of Antipater, was given the title Procurator of Judea with the promise that he would one day be named king. When Anthony defeated Brutus and Cassius at Philippi, Asia again fell into the hands of a new regime. Herod, however, quickly changed loyalties and bribed his way into favor with Anthony.

The eastern part of the once mighty Persian Empire was occupied by a people known as Parthians, who had never been subdued by Rome. In 41 B.C. they attacked Jerusalem and made Antigonus, son of Aristobulus II, both king and high priest. Herod, the son of Antipater, who had inherited the throne of Judea at the death of Hyrcanus, was forced to flee to Rome. There he won the favor of Anthony and was officially named "King of the Jews," although the title would have meaning only after the Parthians were driven out. Herod returned to Judea with Roman arms and triumphantly entered Jerusalem as king.

Herod's rule spanned the eventful years from 37 B.C. to 4 B.C. He is best known as the king who feared the birth of a rival "King of the Jews" and decreed the murder of infants in Bethlehem at the time of the birth of Jesus. While that act of Herod cannot be documented from secular records, his other atrocities are well known. He had 10 wives in all, and the Emperor Augustus is reported to have commented of his family life, "I'd rather be Herod's hog than his son." The hog was an unclean animal and would not be butchered, but Herod's wives and children were violently removed when they interfered with his plans or were suspected of disloyalty.

Although detested by his Jewish subjects, Herod did seek to win their favor. He built and rebuilt cities throughout the land: Samaria became Sebaste in honor of Augustus; Straton's Tower became Caesarea, with a harbor protected by a moat and a wall with 10 towers. Fortresses, baths, parks, marketplaces, roads, and other luxuries of Hellenistic culture were part of his building program.

In the eighteenth year of his reign (20–19 B.C.), Herod began the work of rebuilding, on a grand scale, the Jewish temple in Jerusalem. The main edifice was built by priests in a year-and-a-half, but the work on the entire complex of courts and buildings was not completed until the procuratorship of Albinus (A.D. 62–64), less than a decade before it was totally destroyed by the armies of Titus (A.D. 70).

The Jewish Sects

The Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians, and Zealots, who play so important a part in the gospel records, all have their origin during the two centuries before the birth of Christ. They represent different reactions to the continuing clash between Hellenism and Jewish religious life. While the Maccabean struggle had settled the political problem of the relationship between the Syrian Seleucids and Judea, it forced upon Judaism the necessity of determining its own relationship to the outside world.

The Pharisees

A party bearing the name of Pharisee is first mentioned during the reign of John Hyrcanus (134–104 B.C.), and it is evident that even then there was an antagonism between the "orthodox" Pharisee and the more open-minded Sadducee. The word Pharisee means "separated one," and the name probably meant, in the first instance, one who had separated himself from the corrupting influence of Hellenism in his zeal for the biblical Law. Josephus says that the Pharisees "appear more religious than others, and seem to interpret the laws more accurately."

Pharisees were punctilious in observing the laws regarding ceremonial purity. For this reason, they could not purchase items of food or drink from a "sinner" for fear of ceremonial defilement. Nor could a Pharisee eat in the house of a sinner, although he might entertain the sinner in his own home. Under such circumstances, the Pharisee would provide the sinner with clothes to wear, for the sinner's clothes might be ceremonially impure.

With a sincere desire to make the Law workable within the changing culture of the Greco-Roman world, the Pharisees developed systems of tradition which sought to apply the Law to a variety of circumstances. During the first century before Christ, two influential Pharisaic teachers gave their names to two schools of legal thought. Hillel was the more moderate of the two, ever considerate of the poor and willing to accept Roman rule as compatible with Jewish orthodoxy. Shammai, on the other hand, was more strict in his interpretation and bitterly opposed to Rome. His viewpoint ultimately found expression in the sect of Zealots, whose resistance to the Romans brought on the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. The Talmud preserves the record of 316 controversies between the schools of Hillel and Shammai.

Tradition, in Pharisaic thought, began as a commentary on the Law, but it was ultimately raised to the level of Law itself. To justify this teaching, it was maintained that the “oral law” was given by God to Moses on Mount Sinai along with the “written law” or Torah (Pirke Aboth, 1.1). The ultimate in this development is reached when the Mishna states that oral law must be observed with greater stringency than the written law, because statutory law (that is, oral tradition) affects the life of the ordinary man more intimately than the more remote constitutional law (the written Torah) (M. Sanhedrin, 10.3).

In addition to the charge that Pharisaism involved little more than a concern for the minutia of the Law, the New Testament affirms that tradition had largely neglected the real intent of the Law (Matt. 15:3). As in many worthy movements, the early piety of those who had separated themselves from impurity at great cost was exchanged for an attitude of pride in the observance of legal precepts.

Men such as Nicodemus, Joseph of Arimathea, Gamaliel, and Saul of Tarsus represent some of the nobler souls from the Pharisaic tradition in the New Testament. To Saul, later Paul the apostle, the Pharisee represented the epitome of orthodoxy, “the most straitest sect of our religion” (Acts 26:5). Pharisaism began well, and its perversion is a constant reminder that self-complacency and spiritual pride are temptations to which the pious are particularly susceptible.

The Sadducees

Although Pharisees and Sadducees are frequently denounced together in the New Testament, they had little in common except their antagonism to Jesus. The Sadducees were the party of the Jerusalem aristocracy and the high priesthood. They had made their peace with the political rulers and had attained positions of wealth and influence. Temple administration and ritual were their specific responsibilities. The Sadducees held themselves aloof from the masses and were unpopular with them.

The Pharisaic attempts at applying the Law to new situations were rejected by the Sadducees, who restricted their concept of authority to the Torah, or Mosaic Law. They did not believe in resurrection, spirits, or angels (cf. Mark 12:18; Luke 20:27; Acts 23:8). Their faith was largely a series of negations with the result that they left no positive religious or political system.

While the Pharisees welcomed proselytes (Matt. 23:15), the Sadducean party was closed.

None but members of the high priestly and aristocratic families of Jerusalem could become members. With the destruction of the temple in A.D. 70, the Sadducean party came to an end. Modern Judaism traces its roots to the Pharisees.

The Essenes

Essenes and Pharisees both trace their roots to the orthodox leaders of Maccabean times, who stood their ground against Hellenism. Pharisees maintained a strict orthodoxy within the framework of historical Judaism. They maintained their separation from defilement, but not from the Jewish community itself. Even though the temple worship was conducted by Sadducees, the Pharisees esteemed it a basic part of their religious inheritance. While the Pharisee might hold himself aloof from “sinners,” he lived among them and coveted their esteem.

A more extreme reaction against the influences which tended to corrupt Jewish life was taken by a sect which the ancient writers Philo, Josephus, and Pliny call the Essenes. They seem to have lived for the most part in monastic communities such as the one which maintained headquarters at Qumran, near the northwest corner of the Dead Sea.

In seeking to explain Judaism to the Greek-speaking world, Josephus spoke of three “philosophies”—those of the Pharisees, Sadducees, and the Essenes. The term Essene seems to have had quite an elastic usage, including various groups of monastically minded Jews, who varied among themselves in certain of their practices. Pliny says that the Essenes avoided women and did not marry, but Josephus speaks of an order of marrying Essenes. The excavations at Qumran indicate that women were enrolled in the Qumran community.

Ancient writers speak favorably of the Essenes, who lived a life of rigor and simplicity. Members of the community studied Scripture and other religious books. Each Essene was required to perform manual labor in order to make the community self-supporting. Community of goods was practiced, and strict discipline was enforced by an overseer. Those groups which renounced marriage adopted boys at an early age in order to inculcate and perpetuate the ideals of Essenism. Slavery and war were repudiated.

The Essenes welcomed proselytes, but the novice was required to undergo a period of strict probation before he could become a full-fledged member. Numerically, the Essenes were never large. Philo says that there were 4,000 of them, and Pliny speaks of a community north of Engedi, corresponding to the Qumran area. That there were other settlements is clear, for we are told that all members of the sect were welcome in any of the Essene colonies.

Nothing certain is known of the early history of the sect for, like all reform movements, it traces its origins back to remote times. Philo states that Moses instituted the order, and Josephus says that they existed “ever since the ancient times of the fathers.” It is certain that the Essene movement was at one time an extreme protest against the corruptions which were apparent in pre-Christian Judaism, and that ultimately many members withdrew from the Palestinian community life and sought spiritual purification in places such as the Qumran area.

Regarding themselves as the only true or pure Israel, the Essenes refused to cooperate with what they believed to be the corrupt religious observances at the Jerusalem temple. The carefully regulated life at the Essene center seems to have served as a substitute for the temple in the eyes of pious Essenes. The strictness of Essene discipline and the rigidity with which the Law was enforced are stressed by all who write about them. Josephus says that they were stricter than all Jews in abstaining from work on the Sabbath. A passage in the Damascus Document (which seems to be Essene in origin) says that it is unlawful to lift an animal from a pit on the Sabbath. Such a view was considered extreme, even by legalistic Pharisees (cf. Matt. 12:11).

The absence of Essenes from the main streams of Jewish life doubtless accounts for the fact that they are not mentioned in the New Testament or in the Jewish Talmud. Although the high morality of the Essenes is indeed commendable, the teaching and practice of Jesus were diametrically opposite to the legalism and asceticism of the Essene teaching. Although the Essenes considered that contact with a member of their own group of a lower order was ceremonially defiling, Jesus did not hesitate to eat and drink with “publicans and sinners” (Matt. 11:19; Luke 7:34). Although obedient to the Mosaic Law, Jesus had no sympathy with those who made of the Law a burden instead of a blessing. The Sabbath, according to Jesus, was made for man, and it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day (Matt. 12:1–12; Mark 2:23–28; Luke 6:6–11; 14:1–6).

Jesus denounced abuses in the temple and prophesied its destruction, but He did not repudiate the temple services. He came to Jerusalem for the great Jewish feasts, and after His resurrection, disciples still made their way to the temple at the hour of prayer (cf. Acts 3). While asceticism and monasticism early gained a foothold in Christian thinking, Christianity in its earliest period was in no sense an ascetic movement. The ministry of Jesus was largely to the “common people,” who were rejected by both Pharisee and Essene. Jesus was not ashamed to associate with the people of His generation, so the self-righteous called Him a drunkard, a friend of publicans and sinners (Matt. 11:19).

Other Sects

The New Testament mentions Herodians (Mark 3:6; Matt. 22:16) and Zealots (Luke 6:15), groups of Jews at opposite ends of the political spectrum. The Herodians appear to have been Jews of influence and standing who were well disposed to the Herodian rule and, as a result, to the Romans who supported the Herods. The Zealots, on the other hand, were super patriots who determined to resist Rome at all costs. Their fanaticism brought on the war during which the army of Titus destroyed Jerusalem and its temple (A.D. 70).

The Apocrypha

The term Apocrypha is used to designate a collection of ancient Jewish writings that were written between about 250 B.C. and the early Christian centuries. The apocryphal books have come to be regarded as inspired Scripture in the theology of the Roman Catholic Church, but the historic Protestant and Jewish viewpoint ascribes no real inspiration to them.

Why Protestants Reject the Apocrypha

While Protestants study the Apocrypha for the light it throws on the life and thought of pre-Christian Judaism, they reject it as inspired Scripture for the following reasons:

(1) The apocryphal books were not a part of the Old Testament of Jesus and the early church. The threefold division of the Old Testament—the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings, still used in Hebrew Bibles and Jewish versions of the Old Testament—does not include the apocryphal books and never did. While the Apocrypha was known to Jesus and His disciples, they never quote from it as authoritative Scripture.

(2) Ancient Jewish writers who used the Greek Bible, notably Philo and Josephus, were acquainted with the Apocrypha but never quote it as Scripture. In fact, Josephus states that nothing had been added to Scripture “from Artaxerxes until our time.” The apocryphal book of 2 Esdras mentions 24 books, corresponding to the Hebrew Bible as it is known today, and 70 other writings that are esoteric in nature (2 Esdras 14:44–48). It is significant that this apocryphal book shows an acquaintance with the acknowledged Old Testament canon as known in the synagogue and in the Protestant churches.

(3) Church fathers, who were familiar with the Hebrew Canon, clearly distinguish between canonical and apocryphal writings. The writings of Melito of Sardis, Cyril of Jerusalem, and St. Jerome show a recognition of the difference between inspired Scripture and Apocrypha.

(4) The apocryphal books were never declared to be authoritative Scripture until the Council of Trent (A.D. 1546). At the time the following apocryphal books were declared canonical: Tobit, Judith, The Wisdom of Solomon, Ecclesiasticus, Baruch (including the Letter of Jeremiah), 1 and 2 Maccabees, the additions to Esther, and the additions to Daniel (viz. Susanna, The Song of the Three Young Men, and Bel and the Dragon). Many Roman Catholic scholars distinguish between proto-canonical books (i.e., our Old Testament) and deuterocanonical books (i.e., the Apocrypha).

(5) Most readers feel that the apocryphal books represent a lower level of writing than that of the canonical Scriptures. They contain numerous historical and geographical inaccuracies and anachronisms and do not breathe the prophetic spirit so evident in canonical writings.

The Westminster Confession (1643) states that “the books commonly called Apocrypha, not being of divine inspiration, are no part of the Canon of Scripture, and therefore are of no authority in the Church of God, or to be any otherwise approved or made use of than other human writing.” The Reformed Churches have not encouraged the use of the Apocrypha, and as a consequence it is seldom used in contemporary Protestantism. The Anglican Church in its Thirty-nine Articles takes a mediating position, holding that “the Church doth read [the apocryphal books] for example of life and instruction of manners; but yet doth it not apply them to confess any doctrine.”

In addition to the books commonly called Apocrypha, there is a wide variety of other ancient literature, both Jewish and Christian, to which the name Pseudepigrapha is often applied. Apocrypha, Pseudepigrapha, sectarian literature from the Qumran Caves, and a wide variety of other ancient writings provide helpful material for understanding the world of the New Testament and the early church. While not on a par with inspired Scripture, such writings merit close examination.

The Books Commonly Termed Apocrypha:

OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST

RED LETTER EDITION

Introduction to the New Testament

The Name “New Testament.” The second half of our Bible is set off from the first half by calling the former “The Old Testament” and the latter “The New Testament.” While the term testament can mean “a will,” it is more correctly understood in this context in the sense of “a covenant” or “a contract.” During His last Passover meal with His disciples, Jesus referred to His death as inaugurating this New Covenant between God and His people (Luke 22:20). The appearance of this New Covenant was not unexpected. It had been promised by God through His prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel about 600 years earlier. Jeremiah promised that this New Covenant would be even more gracious than the Old Covenant that God had made with Moses (Ex. 19–Deut.). The New Covenant would place God’s law within His people, would provide greater intimacy with God and greater knowledge of Him, and would provide final forgiveness of His people’s sins (Jer. 31:31–34). Ezekiel adds that God would also graciously regather Israel, cleanse His people from all their filthiness, and give them a new heart and a new spirit within them, which is His Holy Spirit, who would enable God’s people to obey (Ezek. 36:24–27). The 27 books of the New Testament richly elaborate the marvelous provisions of God’s new, even-more-gracious arrangement with His people.

The Authors of the New Testament. Nine authors penned the 27 divinely inspired books of the New Testament over a span of about 50 years. While eight of the authors were Jewish, Luke, the one Greek writer, had the distinction of writing more of the New Testament (28 percent) than any of the others—including the apostle Paul who wrote 25 percent. These authors and their books cover the latter half of the first century A.D. (after Christ):

DATE	BOOK TITLE	AUTHOR	AUTHOR’S BACKGROUND
A.D. 40s	James	James	Jewish, half brother of Jesus, pastor
40s–70s	GOSPELS
	Matthew	Matthew	Jewish, apostle of Jesus, tax collector
	Mark	Mark	Jewish, disciple of Peter, missionary
	Luke	Luke	Greek, disciple of Paul, physician
90s	John	John	Jewish, apostle fo Jesus, fisherman
(Many scholars date the Gospels much later in the first century, because they see them as the final written product of many years of oral tradition within Christian communities.)
60s	Acts	Luke	Greek, disciple of Paul, physician (wrote Acts as a continuation of his gospel)
49–67	13 EPISTLES	Paul	Jewish, the thirteenth apostle of Christ, tentmaker, former Pharisee
	Romans
	1 Corinthians
	2 Corinthians
	Galatians
	Ephesians

63–66	1 Peter 2 Peter	Peter	Jewish, apostle of Jesus, fisherman
64–69	Hebrews	Unknown	Paul, Barnabas, Silas, Luke, Apollos, Timothy, Priscilla, and Aquila are among those who have been suggested as possible author
65–80	Jude	Jude	Jewish, half-brother of Jesus
80–90s	1 John	John	Jewish, apostle of Jesus, fisherman (also authored Gospel of John)
	2 John 3 John Revelation

The Arrangement of the New Testament. The New Testament in our English Bible is basically arranged according to the literary genre (type of literature) of each individual book. Its 27 books also have a logical and somewhat chronological order: the books about Jesus Christ’s life are first (Gospels), followed by the historical account of the church’s first generation (Acts) and its correspondence (21 epistles or letters). The New Testament culminates with the ultimate destiny of the church and the world (Revelation). Each of these four types of New Testament books has unique literary qualities that were immediately recognizable to their original readers, but that necessitate a little more work on our part to interpret them properly. Understanding the New Testament’s historical and cultural context helps us do this.

The New Testament in its Historical Setting. The first-century world of Jesus and the early Christians was very dynamic and culturally diverse. The interplay between the cultural legacy of the deposed Greek (Hellenistic) Empire, the dominant Roman Empire, the scattered Jewish communities, and the many local cultures and religions created a challenging context for the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Our ancient copies of the New Testament text illustrate this diverse context. We possess about 5,000 Greek manuscripts of the New Testament (its original language), along with some 8,000 Latin manuscripts (translated into the official language of the Roman Empire), and also over 1,000 manuscripts of translations into the ancient languages of local cultures within the Roman Empire. Clearly, the New Testament is the best-attested ancient document in the world. The necessity of proclaiming God’s New Covenant to all peoples demanded that they be able to read the life-changing provisions of this arrangement in their own language.

MATTHEW

The four Gospels present a four-fold view of the life of Christ. With the exception of scant references by Tacitus and Josephus, our entire knowledge of the life of Jesus comes from these gospel accounts. The early accounts probably were passed on verbally in the Aramaic language and then recorded in Greek manuscripts between A.D. 60 and 90. All four Gospels build upon genuine historical tradition and preserve different aspects of it.

The basic purpose of the Gospels is to present the gospel message, the Good News of the Redeemer-Savior. They present Jesus as the Messiah of Israel, the Son of God, and the Savior of the world. The Gospels were written so that their readers would come to believe in Christ and receive eternal life (cf. John 20:31). They view Jesus as the Lord of Glory who is presently alive and active in heaven.

Order of the Gospels. The order of the Gospels has been generally recognized by the church throughout its history. "The Gospel of Matthew occupies first place in all extant witnesses to the text of the four Gospels and in all early lists of the canonical books of the New Testament" (R. V. G. Tasker, The Gospel According to St. Matthew, Tyndale New Testament Commentary, p. 11). Matthew's emphasis on the Old Testament preparation for the gospel makes it an ideal "bridge" from the Old to the New Testament.

The Gospels present four portraits of Jesus, each in its own characteristic manner. Matthew, the Hebrew tax collector, writes for the Hebrew mind. Mark, the travel companion of Paul and Peter, writes for the Roman mind. Luke, Paul's physician-missionary, writes with the Greek mentality in view. John's gospel is different by nature from the other three. It is an interpretation of the facts of Jesus' life rather than a presentation of its facts in historical sequence.

Authorship. The book itself is anonymous, but the earliest tradition credits it to Matthew, the disciple of Jesus. Papias, second-century bishop of Hierapolis; Irenaeus, bishop of Lyons; Origen in the third century; and Eusebius, who wrote his Historia Ecclesiastica in the fourth century—all agree that Matthew was the author of this gospel and that he originally wrote it in Hebrew (probably meaning Aramaic, the common spoken language of the early Christians). However, there is no trace of this Aramaic "original," and the earliest quotations (early second century) from Matthew are in Greek.

It is difficult to determine at this time whether Matthew, as we know that gospel today, is a Greek translation of his Aramaic original or whether it was originally written in Greek. Scholars, both conservative and liberal, are divided on this matter. However, an examination of the Greek gospel does not substantiate the idea that it is a translation, for it has none of the characteristics of a translated work. In fact, the Gospel of Matthew includes a number of untranslated Aramaic terms.

A unique statement within the Book of Matthew provides internal evidence to its authorship. The account of the call of Matthew (ch. 9) is followed by that of a meal taken by Jesus in the company of "publicans and sinners." One valid translation of this passage says the meal took place "at home." The parallel account in Mark 2:15 clearly says this feast took place in Levi's (Matthew's) house. The phrase at home would then mean “in his [that is, in the author’s] house.” Here, therefore, is a phrase that may betray the identity of the author.

It is possible that Matthew wrote both an Aramaic “Gospel” of the sayings of Jesus and the Greek Gospel that now bears his name, since he was bilingual. Roman Catholic scholars have tended to uphold the idea of an Aramaic original while liberal Protestants have favored the idea of a Greek original based on the priority of Mark as its major source. Conservative scholars have generally rejected the idea that Matthew was dependent on Mark as a source document and hold that Matthew himself wrote the Greek version of his gospel as an original apostolic witness to Christ.

Priority of Matthew. Two major critical views have been advanced in the twentieth century denying the priority of Matthew’s gospel: (1) the priority of Mark as the basic source document of both Matthew and Luke; (2) the previous existence of a common source document Q, from the German word for “Source,” Quelle, to all the synoptics. Neither view has substantially proven its case. There is still very strong reason to hold to the priority of Matthew as the first gospel account of the life of Christ.

1:1, 2. The book of the generation: The genealogy of Christ opens with a statement similar to the various divisions of the Book of Genesis (showing the unity of the Scriptures). Jesus Christ is the title most often used of the Savior. Jesus (Gr. Iēsous; Heb. Yēhoshua) is His earthly name, meaning "Savior." Christos is the Greek translation for "Messiah" or "Anointed." Technically: Jesus the Christ. Son of David: By tracing Jesus' ancestry back to King David, through the line of Davidic kings, Matthew connects Jesus with His royal heritage. The genealogy here is that of Joseph, Jesus' legal father, whereas the genealogy of Luke 3:23-38 is that of Mary, His actual parent, showing His bloodline back to David. The author's purpose is to show that the messianic promises made to David's line are fulfilled in Jesus. Son of Abraham: He is also the fulfillment of the covenant promises to Abraham, the forefather of the Jews (cf. Gen. 12:3; 13:15; 22:18). Since Matthew is writing primarily to Jewish readers, he naturally begins by emphasizing Jesus' Jewish parentage.

1:3-8. Judas is the Greek form of Judah, the father of the tribe so named. The promise of Jacob was that the leadership of the 12 tribes would come through Judah (cf. Gen. 49:3-12). Thamar, Rachab, Ruth, and wife of Urias: Four women of "questionable" qualifications appear in this genealogy in addition to Mary, the virgin mother of Jesus. It was not customary to list the names of women in a genealogy; therefore, the inclusion of these names must be deliberate on the part of the author. Tamar was the mother of two illegitimate sons (Pharez and Zerah) by her father-in-law, Judah. Rachab was the converted prostitute of Jericho and the mother of Boaz. Ruth, the wife of Boaz, was a godly foreigner (Moabitess). The wife of Uriah is none other than Bathsheba, whose adultery with David is infamous. However, she later became the legitimate wife of David and the mother of Solomon.

1:9, 10. Ozias is referred to as Uzziah (Is. 6:1) and Azariah (2 Kin. 14:21). Three generations are omitted at this point. Matthew omits the names of Ahaziah, Joash, and Amaziah, and then omits Jehoiakim after the name of Josiah. The omissions are doubtless due to his arbitrary shortening of the list to give three groups of 14.

1:11-15. Jechonias is also called Jehoiachin (2 Kin. 24:8) and Coniah (Jer. 22:24) and was cursed from having any descendant "upon the throne of David" according to Jeremiah 22:30. Notice that Jesus is not a natural descendant of his. He was recognized by the Jews of the Exile as their last legitimate king. Carried away to Babylon refers to the 70 years' captivity of the Jews in Babylon during the days of Daniel the prophet.

1:16. Joseph the husband of Mary: The wording carefully avoids giving the impression that Joseph was the natural father of Jesus. As the husband of Mary, he was Jesus' legal father and the one through whom He had a right to David's throne. Every emphasis of the text at this point reinforces the doctrine of the virgin birth of Christ.

1:17. Fourteen generations is the literary grouping used by Matthew to emphasize the three major periods of Israel's national history: theocracy, monarchy, hierarchy.

carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

The Birth of Christ

18 Now the ^abirth of Jesus Christ was ¹on this wise: When as his mother Mary was ²espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child ^bof the ³Holy Ghost.

19 Then Joseph her husband, being a ¹just man, and not willing ^ato make her a publick example, was minded to put her away ²privily.

20 But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: ^afor that which is ¹conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost.

21 ^aAnd she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name ¹JESUS: for ^bhe shall save his people from their sins.

22 Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying,

23 ^aBehold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which ¹being interpreted is, God with us.

24 Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife:

25 And ¹knew her not till she had brought forth ^aher firstborn son: and he called his name JESUS.

1:18. Espoused means that Mary was already bound or betrothed to Joseph, although they were not yet actually married. Among the Jews, marriage vows were said at the betrothal and required a legal divorce to end them. The custom of the day usually required an interval of one year of betrothal before the bride could actually take residence in her husband's house and consummate their union. During this interval Mary was found with child. Her pregnancy naturally would have been assumed to be the result of an illegitimate union of adultery, a circumstance punishable by death (Deut. 22:23, 24). With child of the Holy Ghost is the biblical explanation for the miraculous conception of Christ.

1:19, 20. Because Joseph was a just man, he decided to divorce Mary privately ("privily"), but while he considered what should be done the angel of the Lord spoke to him in a dream. "The angel" is literally "an angel." Put her away means to divorce her. The Jewish betrothal had to be legally broken. Joseph's merciful attitude gives an insight into his true nature as a man.

1:21, 22. Call his name JESUS: The name of the child Jesus (Heb. Yehoshua) means "Jehovah Saves."

This points to the very purpose of Christ's coming into the world—to save sinners. Placed early in the New Testament, this statement becomes the foundational concept of the gospel. Jesus, by His very name and nature, is the Savior. That it might be fulfilled: This phrase (Gr. plēroō) indicates the inevitability of the fulfillment of the words of the prophet, as well as the fact that Matthew saw Isaiah's statement as predictively fulfilled in the birth of Christ.

1:23–25. A virgin relates Mary, the mother of Jesus, to the prediction found in Isaiah 7:14. Matthew used the Greek word parthenos to translate the Hebrew word 'almah. His contextual usage of "fulfill" is certainly indicative of his understanding the Isaiah passage to contain a definitely predictive element. The quotation of Isaiah 7:14 follows the Septuagint (LXX) rendering where parthenos is also used to translate the Hebrew 'almah. There can be no doubt that the Greek term parthenos is always to be translated "virgin." The Hebrew 'almah is the most accurate and precise term for virgin used in the Old Testament. Therefore, Matthew is clearly correct in quoting Isaiah 7:14 as being fulfilled in the virgin birth of Christ.

1:16 Joseph, the husband of Mary, was legally but not physically the father of Jesus (vv. 18–25). Though a carpenter in Nazareth (13:55), he was a legal heir of King David (vv.5–16, 20). He was a just and God-fearing man who faithfully carried out God's commands regarding Mary and the birth of Jesus (vv. 19–25). Joseph is mentioned in Scripture only in the Gospels and only in relation to Jesus Christ's childhood. The subsequent silence of Scripture (cf. 12:46; Luke 8:19; John 19:26, 27) suggests that Joseph died before the time of Christ's public ministry. (First Reference, Matt. 1:16; Primary Reference, Matt. 1 and Luke 2.)

1:16 Mary, the mother of Jesus, was a godly young woman (Luke 1:28) but not without sin, either original or actual sin, since she herself refers to her own need of a Savior (Luke 1:47). She was betrothed (a Jewish custom legally equivalent to marriage) to Joseph of Nazareth. During this time the Holy Spirit supernaturally caused her to conceive Jesus apart from any human fatherhood (vv. 18, 20, 23; Luke 1:31–35), and she remained a virgin until after the birth of Jesus (v. 25). Mary probably grew up in Nazareth. Following her formal marriage to Joseph and the birth of Jesus she lived in Bethlehem for about two years, spent a short time in Egypt, and then raised her family in Nazareth (13:54–56; Luke 2:51),

Except for the birth narratives, Mary is seldom mentioned in Scripture, even in the Gospels. She is last mentioned shortly before the Day of Pentecost in Acts 1:14. (First Reference, Matt. 1:16; Primary Reference, Luke 1 and 2.)

5 And they said unto him, In Bethlehem of Judaea: for thus it is written by the prophet,

6 ^aAnd thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda, art not the least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a ¹Governor, ^bthat shall ²rule my people Israel.

7 Then Herod, when he had ¹privily called the wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the ^astar appeared.

8 And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go and search diligently for the young child; and when ye have found him, bring me word again, that I may come and worship him also.

Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us: This is a title describing the deity of the person of the Son of God rather than a name actually used by Him. It implies God will come to dwell among His own people, which He did in the person of Christ.

2:1, 2. Bethlehem of Judaea was also called Ephrath. The town is five miles south of Jerusalem. Its name in Hebrew means "House of Bread." This Judean city was the birthplace of King David. It was the original city of Joseph's ancestors. According to Luke 2:1-7, he and Mary traveled there from Nazareth and Jesus was born in a stable after they arrived. Herod the king was known as Herod the Great, and was the son of Antipater, an Edomite. He became king by Roman decree in 43 B.C. Wise men were originally the priestly caste among the Persians and Babylonians. These Magi from the East were experts in the study of the stars. Tradition claims that there were three royal visitors who were also kings. However, there is no real historical evidence to verify this. Born King of the Jews: The wise men naturally came to Jerusalem, the royal capital of Israel, seeking one whom they thought was to be born a king, on the basis of their calculations of the stars. His star could not have been merely a natural phenomenon, since it led the wise men to Jerusalem and later to Bethlehem. It almost certainly was a divine manifestation used by God to indicate the fact and place of the Messiah's birth.

2:5, 6. When the scribes replied that He would be born in Bethlehem of Judaea: for thus it is written by the prophet, they clearly anticipated a literal fulfillment of the Old Testament prophecies regarding the coming of the Messiah. The quotation is from Micah 5:2. The governor who will come from Bethlehem is none other than the child-ruler predicted in Isaiah 9:6, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder"

2:7-11. Herod's fear of a rival ruler caused him to question what time the star appeared. His subsequent slaughter of the children at Bethlehem from two years old and under was apparently calculated from the time given him by the wise men. The fact that the young child was found in a house (v. 11) indicates that the family had now moved out of the stable into a rented home at Bethlehem. Since the wise men brought three gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh, it has been assumed that they were three in number. Significantly, they worshipped him, indicating their recognition of the deity of the One whom they were worshiping.

2:1 Herod, known in history as Herod the Great, because of his loyalty to Rome, was given authority over Palestine and the title of king (37-4 B.C.). To win the favor of both Romans and Jews he carried out lavish building projects, including the cities of Caesarea and Samaria, and the new temple at Jerusalem. Herod had 10 wives, and the deserved reputation of being a cruel, unscrupulous despot. Because of hatred and ambitions for power among families, and because of Herod's consuming suspicion that someone might usurp his throne, he even executed one of his wives and his three oldest sons. Thus, the act of murdering all of the young male children in the region of Bethlehem, in an effort to eliminate the One whom the Magi had called King of the Jews, fits Herod's character (vv. 1-16). When Herod died, Rome divided his kingdom among three sons: Archelaus (v. 22), Antipas "the tetrarch," (14:1), and Philip (Luke 3:1). (First Reference, Matt. 2:1; Primary Reference, Matt. 2.) Ironically, Herod was buried in the Herodium fortress at Bethlehem overlooking the place of Jesus' birth.

2:1 Bethlehem, which is Hebrew for "House of Bread," lies six miles south of Jerusalem at 2,460 feet above sea level. It is known as the city of David. This is the city of the birth of David's greater Son, Jesus Christ (Luke 2:4-7), as predicted by Micah the prophet (5:2; cf. Matt. 2:5, 6). In the New Testament it is mentioned only in the Gospels and always in reference to Christ's birth. In A.D. 325 Helena, the mother of Emperor Constantine, built a church over some caves traditionally regarded as the birth site. In the sixth century Emperor Justinian I built on the same site a larger church which is now called the "Church of the Nativity." No archaeological remains from the first three centuries of the Christian Era have been discovered. Today, Bethlehem is primarily an Arab town called Beit Lahm with about 15,000 inhabitants.

9 When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was.

10 When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

11 And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

12 And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

2:11 a Ps. 72:10; Is. 60:6

The Flight to Egypt

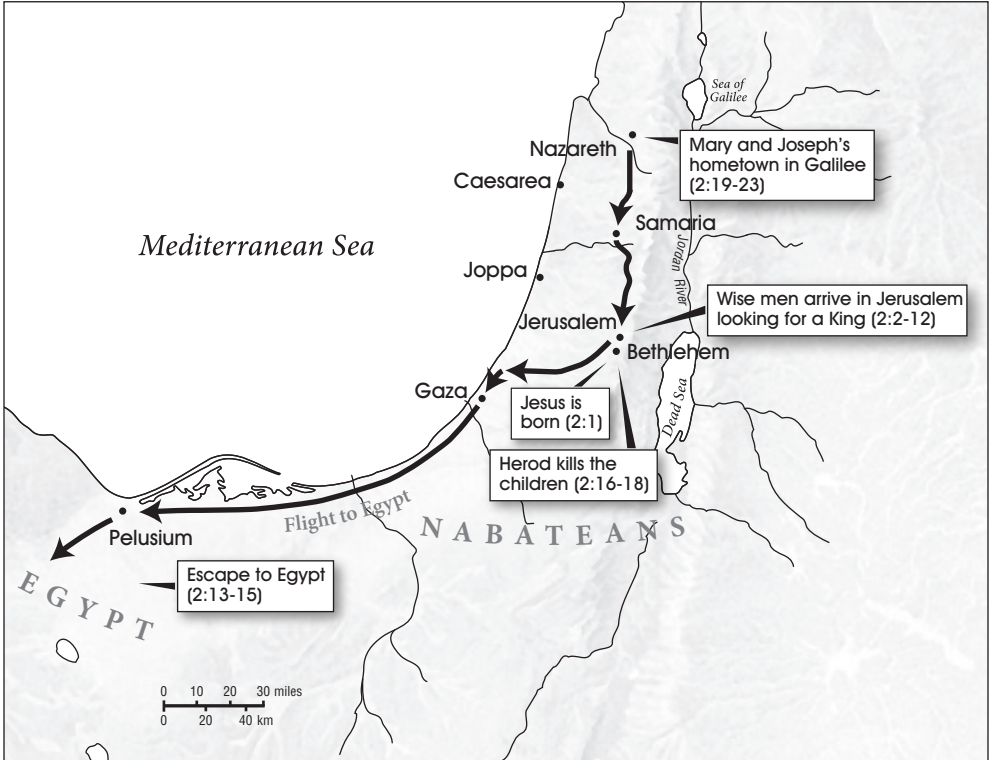

13 And when they were departed, behold, the angel of the Lord appeareth to Joseph in a dream, saying, Arise, and take the young child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be thou there until I bring thee word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.

14 When he arose, he took the young child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt:

15 And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled

2:12-18. Being warned of God: A special divine revelation in the form of a warning was given both to the wise men and to Joseph in the form of a dream. Thus instructed, the wise men did not return to Herod, and Joseph and Mary fled with the baby into Egypt. There was a large Jewish population in Egypt at that time, especially in and around the city of Alexandria. The holy family would have been inconspicuous during their stay and would have been welcomed by members of their own race. The death of Herod occurred in 4 B.C. Our present calendar is off in its calculation by about six years. (This would place the birth of Christ at 6/5 B.C. Herod's death is recorded in detail by Josephus, Antiquities xvii 6.5.) Josephus calls him "a man of great barbarity towards all men." Rachel weeping for her children (v. 18) is a quotation of Jeremiah 31:15. The calamity of Israel's mourning at the time of the Exile is correlated here to this renewed calamity brought on by Herod, whose very act of ruling is a direct result of that captivity. Rachel refers to Benjamin's mother, who died outside Bethlehem (Gen. 35:19).

John the Baptist’s Ministry

3 In those days came ^aJohn the Baptist, preaching ^bin the wilderness of Judaea,

2 And saying, Repent ye: for “the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

2:19–23. When Herod was dead he was succeeded by his son Archelaus, the son of his Samaritan wife, Malthace. Archelaus was as brutal as his father. Joseph, again warned in a dream, returned to Nazareth, avoiding any further residence in Judea. The phrase He shall be called a Nazarene is a reference to Christ’s coming from the city of Nazareth. It should not be taken to mean that He was a Nazarite.

3:1. The forerunner of Christ was John the Baptist. He was the son of Zacharias and Elisabeth, and a cousin of the Lord (cf. Luke 1:5–80). His birth was accompanied by the promise: “He shall be great in the sight of the Lord ... and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost” (Luke 1:15). Jesus said of him that there was none “greater than John” (Matt. 11:11) during the Old Testament dispensation. This would imply that John the Baptist was the epitome of the message of the Old Testament itself. Matthew’s reference to John the Baptist assumes that his readers were familiar with him. John is presented as the prophet sent in the spirit of Elijah “before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the LORD” (Mal. 4:5). His appearance and dynamic preaching certainly depict him in the life-style of Israel’s ancient prophet. Jesus would later say of him, “I say unto you, That Elias is come already” (Matt. 17:12).

3:2. Repent (Gr. metanoēō) means a change of mind that results in a change of conduct. Repentance is not merely sorrow. It involves a complete change of attitude regarding God and sin and is often accompanied by a sense of sorrow and a corresponding change in conduct. Such repentance does not arise within man himself, but is the result of God’s mercy in leading man to it (cf. Acts 5:31; Rom. 2:4; 2 Tim. 2:25). Thus repentance involves the very process of conversion whereby men are born again. John’s message of repentance was necessary in order to prepare people for the kingdom of heaven which was at hand. The phrase kingdom of heaven is used only in the Gospel of Matthew and seems to be based on similar refer-

2:22 Archelaus, a son of Herod the Great, was given the most important district of his father’s realm—Judea, Samaria, and Idumea. He was more wicked and cruel than his father, and was deposed by Rome. He ruled from 4 B.C. to A.D. 6. (Only Reference, Matt. 2:22.)

2:23 Nazareth is situated in lower Galilee just north of the plain of Esdraelon (cf. Armageddon) and about 70 miles north of Jerusalem. It is a somewhat isolated town and thus is significant only in that it was the hometown of Joseph and Mary and the place where Jesus spent most of His first 30 years (cf. Luke 2:39, 51). When Jesus began His public ministry He made Capernaum His headquarters (4:13–16). The only significant relation between Nazareth and Christ’s ministry was His rejection by its inhabitants (Luke 4:16–30). Few significant archaeological discoveries have been made at Nazareth except for demonstrating that Nazareth did exist long before New Testament times. (Since it is not mentioned in the Old Testament, the Talmud, the Apocrypha, or by Josephus the Jewish historian, some have imagined that it did not exist historically at the time of Jesus). Presently Nazareth is a town of over 26,000 primarily Arab inhabitants.

ences in the Book of Daniel. The phrase kingdom of God is used more frequently by Mark and Luke. The change is perhaps due to Matthew’s Jewish emphasis. Since many Jews regarded it as blasphemous to refer to God by name, Matthew may have substituted the word heaven for that reason. Usually the two phrases are used interchangeably in the Gospels.

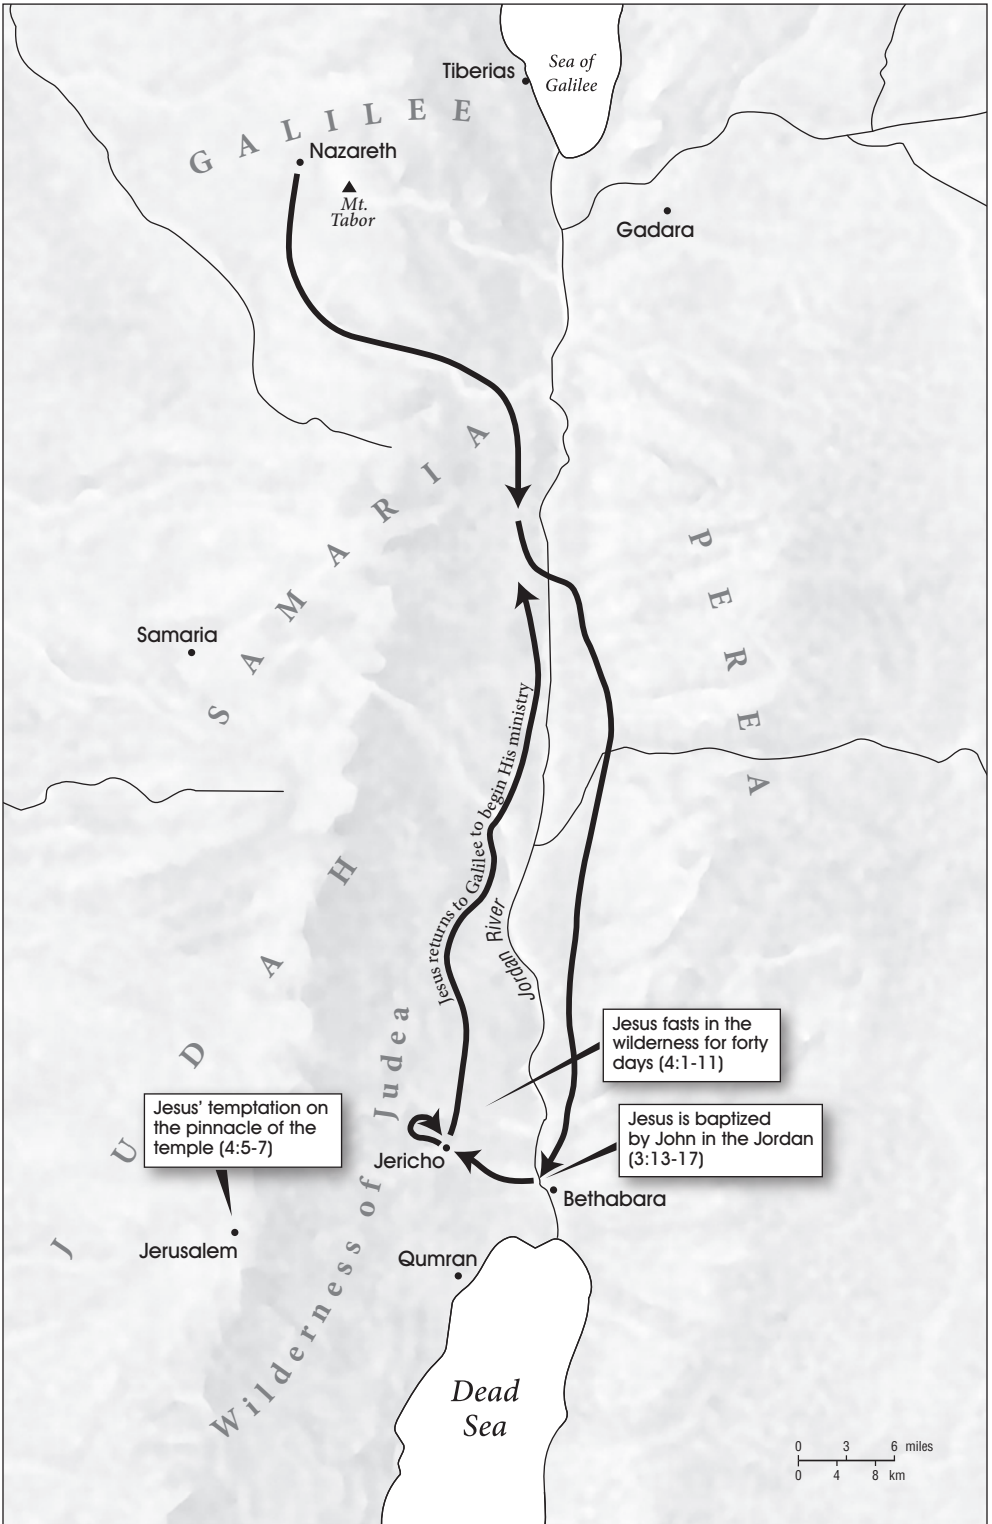

3:3–7. Spoken of by the prophet Esaias: All four Gospels relate this prophecy of Isaiah to a fulfillment in the life and ministry of John the Baptist (Mark 1:2; Luke 3:4; John 1:23). Make his paths straight refers to the straightening or preparing of one’s life in a right relationship with God in order to prepare for the coming of a King. John’s dress of camel’s hair, and a leathern girdle was similar to Elijah’s clothing (2 Kin. 1:8) and was the usual dress of prophets (Zech. 13:4). Locusts were an allowable food (cf. Lev. 11:22) and were eaten by the poorest of people. The reference in verse 5 to Jerusalem, and all Judaea relates to the people of those places. John’s ministry was received with great enthusiasm in its early stages.

3:8–10. Fruits meet for repentance: John rebuked the Pharisees, asking them to give evidence of “fruits meet for repentance” (v. 8). There can be no doubt that the New Testament concept of repentance grows out of its usage in the Old Testament, where the term (Heb. shūb) means far more than an intellectual change of mind. Genuine repentance proves itself by the fruits of a changed life. John the Baptist further rebuked them for their belief in nationalistic salvation. Abraham to our father means that they were trusting in their physical descent for salvation, rather than in God, which would have constituted a spiritual relationship to Abraham the “father of the faithful.”

3:11, 12. I indeed baptize ... with water: John’s baptism in water was not Christian baptism. The death and resurrection of Christ had not yet occurred in order to be depicted by this baptism. John’s baptism was similar to the Old Testament offerings (washings) that symbolized a cleansing of personal repentance on the part of a believer. Notice that Jesus submitted to this baptism to “fulfil all righteousness” (v. 15). He shall baptize ... with the Holy Ghost refers to the spiritual rebirth of the regenerate who shall receive the baptism of the Spirit (cf. 1 Cor. 12:13). This experience began at Pentecost (Acts 1) and was repeated upon every new group of converts (Samaritans, Gentiles, John’s disciples) until it became normative for all Christian believers. The immediate context certainly indicates that to be baptized with fire is the result of judgment (notice the reference to purging and burning in the next verse). The threshing fan (v. 12) refers to a wooden shovel used for tossing grain into the wind in order to blow away the lighter chaff, leaving the good grain to settle in a pile. The chaff would then be swept up and burned; the unquenchable fire refers to the eternal punishment of hell or the lake of fire.

3:13, 14. All four Gospels relate this event (cf. John 1:31–34) with unquestioned historical verification. While this section of Matthew’s gospel centers on Galilee, Jesus now goes south to the Jordan River to be baptized (v. 13). The word baptize (Gr. baptizō) means “to dip or immerse in water,” indicating the form of baptism. John forbad him (v. 14) for the obvious reason that Jesus needed no repentance of sin, and John felt unworthy of this opportunity. The tense of the Greek verb emphasizes that John tried to hinder him. Thus, this was no casual hesitation on the part of John the Baptist.

THE BAPTISM OF JESUS AND THE SOJOURN IN THE DESERT

15 And Jesus answering said unto him, ¹Suffer it to be so now: for thus it ²becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he ³suffered him.

16 ^aAnd Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water: and, lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw ^bthe Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him:

17 ^aAnd lo a voice from heaven, saying, ^bThis is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

3:15. Suffer it to be so means allow it to be or let it happen. Jesus sought this outward identification with John's ministry to fulfil all righteousness. By identifying Himself with those He came to redeem, Jesus inaugurated His public ministry as the Messiah. In regard to the Jewish religious observances, such as synagogue worship, attendance at feasts, and payment of the temple tax, Jesus always met the duties of a faithful Jew.

3:16, 17. In the process of His baptism, Jesus went up ... out of the water, the prepositions suggesting that He was completely in the water and came up out from it, again indicating immersion. The descending of the Spirit of God fulfilled the predicted sign to John in order to indicate the true Messiah (cf. John 1:33, Is. 11:2). The dove was a symbol of innocence and purity (cf. 10:16) and served as an ideal symbolic representation of the Holy Spirit. The voice from heaven is that of the Father (see also 17:5; John 12:28 where He speaks at the Transfiguration and just prior to the Crucifixion), giving His verbal approval to the ministry of His beloved Son. There can be no doubt that all three persons of the Trinity are actively involved here as distinct persons of the Godhead. The Father speaks, the Spirit descends, and the Son is baptized.

4:1. Following His public baptism, Jesus was led up of the spirit into the wilderness, referring to the elevation of the Judean wilderness. The historical setting of the temptation, which was directed against Jesus' human nature, indicates that this was a literal experience, which He really conquered, not merely a mental victory over His own thoughts. That Jesus was tempted of the devil is clearly presented as a fact. The attack against Christ's humanity was a genuine temptation that would have overcome any ordinary man. However, Jesus was no mere man. As the virgin-born God-man, His divine nature could not sin (cf. 1 Sam. 15:29), and this held His human nature in check. Some have objected that the impeccability of Christ (that He was not able to sin) denies the reality of Satan's temptation. Such an objection is meaningless when one remembers that Satan's rebellion against God has already been defeated in Christ's atonement, but his rebellion is nevertheless real, even though the outcome of God's victory is certain. The same is true of the temptation of Christ. One may attack a battleship with a canoe. The outcome of the attack will be certain defeat for the canoe, but the attack is nonetheless real.

4:2, 3. Jesus had fasted forty days and forty nights, a remarkable feat of human endurance, indicating the physical strength of the former carpenter. While the three major tests followed this period, other tests evidently had occurred throughout the 40 days (Luke 4:2). His real physical hunger serves as the setting for the first temptation by the tempter (Satan). The conditional clause, If thou be the Son of God, indicates Matthew's purpose for including this record of Jesus' victory: it proves that He is, in fact, the Son of God!

4:4. The victory in each aspect of the temptation is related to Jesus' use of Scripture. It is written: First, He quotes Deuteronomy 8:3, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. The source of bread is more important than the bread itself. Later, Jesus would say, "I have meat to eat that ye know not of" (John 4:32). His source of strength was obedience to the Father's will and He would not even work a miracle to avoid personal suffering when such suffering was a part of God's purpose for Him.

4:5-7. The second temptation took place in the holy city (Jerusalem) on the pinnacle of the temple, which towered above the Kidron Valley. Evidently, Jesus was transported there by Satan's power, and this time the Devil quoted Scripture (out of context) in order to get Him to sin and ultimately to shake His faith in the Word. Satan used Psalm 91:11, 12 urging Jesus to cast thyself down. Again, Jesus replied with Scripture (Deut. 6:16) that He was not to tempt ... God by such a presumptuous action. The very passage of Scripture quoted by Satan actually goes on to promise God's ultimate victory over him!

into an exceeding high mountain, and “sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them;

9 And saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.

10 Then saith Jesus unto him, 1Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, “Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

11 Then the devil ^aleaveth him, and, behold, ^bangels came and ministered unto him.

4:8. The third temptation takes place on an exceeding high mountain. The mountain is clearly real in the text, though its exact location is unidentified. Despite the grandeur of this temptation, nothing in the passage itself indicates that these temptations were only in the mind of Christ. Clearly, they are depicted as real experiences that actually occurred in the human life of the Messiah. That Satan, the usurper, would attempt to give the kingdoms of the world to Jesus, the Messiah, the rightful King, is the height of absurdity!

4:9–11. For Christ to fall down and worship Satan would have been to acknowledge the Devil’s lordship over Him. In His direct rebuke Get thee hence, Satan, Jesus clearly asserts His lordship over the old serpent whose head He will soon crush. Matthew’s statement that Satan leaveth him shows that his order of the temptations is the chronological one (cf. Luke 4:1–13).

4:12–16. Matthew designates four clear geographical areas in relation to the ministry of Christ: Galilee (4:12), Perea (“beyond Jordan,” 19:1), Judea (4:25), and Jerusalem (21:1). The author then omits some of the early Judean ministry and begins with Jesus at Capernaum in Galilee where he first met Christ (cf. 9:9). John was cast into prison: The circumstances of the arrest and eventual beheading of John the Baptist are recorded in chapter 14. Apparently a widespread persecution of the followers of John and Jesus took place at this time. Luke 4:16–31 explains that the reason for Jesus leaving Nazareth was an attempt on His life after a synagogue service at Nazareth. From this point on, Capernaum became the headquarters of Jesus’ ministry to the house of Israel. This city was a Roman settlement near the Sea of Galilee and was the center of the Roman government of the northern provinces of Israel. That it

4:12 Galilee is the regional name for the northern part of Palestine extending from the Esdraelon plain some 50 miles north and from the Sea of Galilee about 30 miles to the west. Its primary feature is the 13-mile-long Sea of Galilee (seven miles wide at its broadest point). In the Old Testament this lake is called Chinnereth (Num. 34:11; Josh. 12:3; 13:27); in the New Testament it is variously identified as Gennesaret (Mark 6:53), Tiberias (John 21:1), and Galilee (John 6:1). It lies 695 feet below sea level with the Jordan River flowing through it. Some towns of Galilee that were situated on the seashore were Capernaum, Bethsaida, Tiberias, and Magdala. Of these only Tiberias exists today. Other significant Galilean towns include Nazareth and Chorazin. Galilee is important to the New Testament not only as the place of Jesus’ youth, but also as the primary region of His public ministry (the Sermon on the Mount, the Transfiguration, 25 of His 33 miracles, and 19 of His 32 parables). During New Testament times this region was governed successively by Herod the Great, Herod Antipas, and Herod Agrippa. Since Antipas ruled Galilee from 4 B.C. to A.D. 39, virtually all of the events of the Gospels and of the first decade of the church age relate to his time. Tiberias beside the sea was his capital.

4:13 Capernaum lay on the northwest shore of Galilee. The exact site (Tel Hum) has been confirmed in modern times through archaeology. A third-century synagogue built upon first-century foundations has been excavated as well as what is believed to be Peter’s house. Capernaum is never mentioned in the Old Testament and is found in the New Testament only in the Gospels. Yet it was a central city in Christ’s ministry; most of the time Christ spent in Galilee was in Capernaum. When Jesus began His public ministry He made it His home base (v. 13; cf. 9:1), partly because of its prominence in Galilee. It housed a tax collector (9:9), a high government official (John 4:46), and a centurion with his soldiers (8:5–9). It became the home of Peter and Andrew, and probably James and John (Mark 1:29; cf. Luke 5:10). Jesus performed many miracles in Capernaum including healings of the centurion’s servant, the nobleman’s son, Peter’s mother-in-law, the paralytic, and probably the raising of Jairus’s daughter (cf. also Luke 4:23). Later, Jesus condemned the people of Capernaum, for despite His many miracles, they still disbelieved (11:23).

The Calling of the First Four Disciples

18 ^aAnd Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon ^bcalled Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

19 And he saith unto them, Follow me, and ^cI will make you fishers of men.

20 ^aAnd they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

21 ^aAnd going on from thence, he saw other two brethren, James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, in a ship with Zebedee their father, mending their nets; and he called them.

22 And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him.

The Healing Ministry of Jesus

23 And Jesus went about all Galilee, ^ateaching in their synagogues, might be fulfilled (vv. 14–16) refers to the coming of Christ into Galilee in fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah 9:1, 2, “beyond Jordan, in Galilee of the nations. The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light.” Jesus Himself was that great Light that now would shine forth in His earthly ministry to the people of Galilee, who had so long been despised by their southern Judean cousins.

4:17. Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand: The message of John the Baptist is now clearly proclaimed by Jesus Christ. However, Jesus, as the Messiah, is not calling on His listeners to prepare for the coming of the kingdom but rather announces that the kingdom is here. The kingdom blessings promised in Isaiah 35:5, 6, to be fulfilled in a future kingdom, here become the credentials of the King at His first coming.

4:18–20. Simon called Peter, and Andrew became the first two disciples called publicly by Jesus. Andrew had introduced his brother to Jesus on an earlier occasion (cf. John 1:40). The invitation, Follow me, called these earlier believers into a permanent ministry to be shared with Christ. I will make you fishers of men clearly indicates the nature of this ministry. They would receive special training in bringing men into the kingdom. Having left their nets, these disciples entered into a new relationship and would never again be able to fully return to the occupation they once held so dear.

4:21, 22. James and John were also brothers and fishing partners with Simon and Andrew. Matthew and Mark agree that they were mending their nets, but Luke seems to differ. The two accounts can be harmonized simply: As two men were mending nets, the other two were fishing. Jesus then came upon them and called them all to follow Him. The statement in verse 22 that they immediately responded to His call gives us a perfect picture of true obedience to the lordship of Christ.

4:18 Peter was originally named Simon. Jesus surnamed him “Rock” (Greek Petros; Aramaic Cephas). Peter and his brother Andrew were fishermen from Bethsaida on the Sea of Galilee (John 1:44) who later worked out of Capernaum (Mark 1:29). Andrew, a disciple of John the Baptist, immediately began to follow Jesus on the day John announced Him. At once he introduced Simon to Christ (John 1:35–42). Peter’s devotion to Christ brought him within the innermost circle of disciples. Peter shared in the greatest moments of Christ’s ministry; Peter was always listed first among the Twelve. Yet Peter’s devotion was at times an impulsive one. Peter’s faith in Christ’s command allowed him to walk on water; and then, after he had walked, his disbelief caused him to sink (14:28–31)! Peter’s sensitivity to God’s witness prompted his great confession that Jesus is “the Christ, the Son of the living God,” only to be followed by words inspired by Satan (16:16, 17, 22, 23).

Three events during Christ’s earthly ministry were significant to Peter’s life and future ministry: (1) his confession concerning Christ at Caesarea Philippi (ch. 16); (2) his involvement at Christ’s transfiguration (ch. 17); and (3) his threefold denial of Christ before the Crucifixion (ch. 26). After the ascension of Jesus, Peter continues as the leader, opening the door of the gospel to the Jews (Acts 2), to the Samaritans (Acts 8:14–17), and to the Gentiles (Acts 10; cf. 11:1, 18; 15:7, 14). However, his ministry in the early church remained primarily to the Jews (Gal. 2:9; 1 Pet. 1:1). (First Reference, Matt. 4:18; Primary References, John 1; Matt. 16; John 21; Acts 1–5; 10–12.)

4:21 James and John, the sons of Zebedee, two of the 12 apostles, were fishermen in partnership with their father and also Simon Peter (Luke 5:10). Since James is normally mentioned first, he was probably older than his brother John. Peter, James, and John formed the inner circle among the disciples, who exclusively witnessed the raising of Jairus’s daughter (Mark 5:37), Christ’s transfiguration (Mark 9:2), and the Gethsemane experience (Mark 14:33). But James and John are remembered with less distinction for their impulsive desire to destroy the non-receptive Samaritans with fire from heaven (Luke 9:54), and their desire to be first in Christ’s kingdom (Mark 10:35–40). James is the first and only apostle whose martyrdom is recorded in Scripture. In A.D. 44 King Herod beheaded James and planned the same for Peter (Acts 12:1–3). John, by contrast, lived a very long life and was a prominent leader in the Jerusalem church (Gal. 2:9). Among the 12 apostles, only John and Peter are given individual recognition in the Book of Acts and in Paul’s epistles. John wrote the fourth gospel, his three epistles, and the Revelation. John never mentions by name his brother James or himself, except in Revelation, and as the beloved disciple in the gospel. Hence, James is mentioned in Scripture only by Matthew, Mark, and Luke (Acts included). (First Reference, Matt. 4:21; Primary Reference, Mark 9, 10; John 21.)

4:23–25. The closing verses of the chapter summarize and survey the Galilean ministry of Jesus. This ministry concentrated on a presentation of the gospel of the kingdom to the Jews. Jesus as the Messiah had arrived to set up the long-awaited kingdom. Accompanying this announcement were miracles of healing. Going from city to city throughout Galilee caused His fame to spread quickly, so that great multitudes of people (v. 25) followed Him. This is no insignificant feat when one realizes that no prophet had arisen in Israel for over four hundred years. The silence of this period between the Testaments had been broken by the proclamation of the Good News of the kingdom!

5:1, 2. The opening verses of the Sermon on the Mount indicate that this message deals with the inner state of mind and heart that is the indispensable absolute of true Christian discipleship. It delineates the outward manifestations of character and conduct of true believers and genuine disciples. Thus, the life of the believer, described by Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount, is a life of grace and glory, which comes from God alone. To make this quality of life the product of man's human efforts (as does the liberal) is the height of overestimation of man's ability and underestimation of his depravity. To relegate this entire message, Jesus' longest recorded sermon, to a Jewish-only life-style, as do some dispensationalists, is to rob the church of her greatest statement of true Christian living.

In the Sermon on the Mount Jesus states the spiritual character and quality of the kingdom He would establish, and the basic qualities of this kingdom are fulfilled in the church He would establish. Virtually every section of this message is repeated in substance elsewhere in the New Testament. Nothing here indicates that this message is to be limited in its application to the people of Israel only. Notice in the opening verse that his disciples had come to Jesus and he ... taught them the following message.

5:3. Blessed means "happy." This is a basic description of the believers' inner condition as a result of the work of God. These Beatitudes, like Psalm 1, do not show a man how to be saved, but rather describe the characteristics of one who has been saved. The poor in spirit are the opposite of the proud or haughty in spirit. They have been humbled by the grace of God and have acknowledged their sin and therefore their dependence upon God to save them. They will inherit the kingdom of heaven. Kingdom of heaven is a general designation of the dwelling place of the saved.

5:4. Those that mourn ... shall be comforted. The depth of the promise of these statements is almost inexhaustible. Those who mourn for sin shall be comforted in confession. Those who mourn for the human anguish of the lost shall be comforted by the compassion of God.

5:5. The meek ... shall inherit the earth refers again to those who have been humbled before God and will not only inherit the blessedness of heaven, but also will ultimately share in the kingdom of God on earth. Here, in the opening statements of the Sermon on the Mount, is the balance between the physical and spiritual promise of the kingdom. The kingdom of which Jesus preached is both "in you" and is yet "to come."

5:6. These future possessors of the earth are its presently installed rightful heirs, and even now they hunger and thirst after righteousness. They experience a deep desire for personal righteousness, which in itself is a proof of their spiritual rebirth. Those who are poor and empty in their own spiritual poverty recognize the depth of their need, and they hunger and thirst for that which only God can give them. They shall be filled (Gr. chortazō) refers to a complete satisfaction. The psalmist proclaimed: "He satisfieth the longing soul, and filleth the hungry soul with goodness" (107:9).

5:7. Those who are merciful ... shall obtain mercy has reference to those who have been born again by the mercy of God. Because divine love has been extended to them, they have the work of the Holy Spirit in them producing a mercy that defies explanation by unregenerate men. Jesus Himself became the ultimate example of this when He cried from the cross, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34).

8 Blessed are the pure in heart: for ^bthey shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the ¹children of God.

10 Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

5:18 ^aMatt. 24:35; Luke 16:17 ¹Gr. iota, Heb. yod, the smallest letter.

5:8. Those who are truly saved shall see God. These are the pure in heart. Their lives have been transformed by the grace of God. They are not yet sinless but their position before God has been changed. They have the New Birth, saving faith, and holiness. The process of sanctification is ever conforming them to the image of Christ (Rom. 8:29), which image consists in "righteousness and true holiness" (Eph. 4:24).

5:9. The next description deals with the peacemakers. They are at peace with God and desire to live in peace with all men (cf. Rom. 5:1). Their peace with Christ enables them to be ambassadors of God's message to a troubled world. Hence, they shall be called the children of God. Throughout the Beatitudes Jesus clearly underscores that only those who have the qualities of a changed life, herein described, are citizens of His kingdom.

5:10. As Jesus develops His message, He clearly teaches that such a life causes His people to be in direct contrast to the world in which they live. Therefore He reminds us, Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake. The plural use of "ye" in verse 11 indicates that He foresaw this persecution as touching all His followers. Notice 2 Timothy 3:12, "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution."

5:11. Again, Jesus warns that men shall revile you, and persecute you. This became true during His own ministry, in the lives of the apostles, and throughout the history of the church. The persecution spoken of here is twofold. First, it involves a physical pursuing of the persecuted, and second, a personal attack of slander against them.

5:12. Rejoice is the command that grows out of the blessedness of the believer. The phrase Rejoice, and be exceeding glad means even more, exult! Great is your reward in heaven focuses attention on the eternal destiny of all things. If God is as real as He claims, if the Bible is true, if heaven is to be gained, then no temporary earthly trouble or persecution can dispossess the child of God of joy in the prospect of the eternal glory that lies ahead.

5:13. The Beatitudes are followed by a summary statement of the basic character of the Christian's life as salt and light. Ye are the salt of the earth: Again the phrase "ye are" indicates that only the genuinely born-again person is salt and can help meet the needs of the world. Salt adds flavoring, acts as a preservative, melts coldness, and heals wounds. Thus it is a very appropriate description of the believer in his relationship to the world in which he lives.

5:14-16. Ye are the light of the world describes the essential mission of the Christian to the world. He is the condition (salt) to meet the world's needs and he has a mission (light) to the world. His light is to clearly shine forth into the darkness of human depravity. He is to set his light upon a candlestick, not hide it under a bushel, that is, a basket. Darkness is the absence of light; and darkness alone cannot dispel the light, but the smallest light can dispel the greatest darkness.

5:17. Having laid the foundation of the message in the summary statements of the Beatitudes, Jesus now proceeds to show the superiority of His message to that of the law of Moses. He makes it clear that He had not ... come to destroy the law. That is, the New Testament gospel is not contradictory to the Old Testament Law; rather it is the ultimate fulfillment of the spiritual intention of the law. Where the law had degenerated into legalism among the Pharisees, Jesus now takes the law beyond mere outward observance to the inner spiritual intention of God.

5:18. Verily I say is a unique form used by Jesus throughout His preaching to draw attention to the authority of His message. Verily (Gr. amēn) means "truly" or "certainly." It is used as a designation of authoritative teaching. One jot or one tittle refers to the most minute letter and marks of the Hebrew alphabet. He explained that even the smallest statement in the law must be fulfilled. A "jot" (yodh) is the smallest letter of the Hebrew alphabet. It functions as a Y in English and looks similar to an apostrophe. A tittle is a small projection on the edge of certain Hebrew letters to distinguish them from one another.

one ²tittle shall ³in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

Teachings on Murder and Anger

21 Ye have heard that it was said ¹by them of old time, “Thou shalt not

5:19. Because of the seriousness of the law, Jesus emphasizes the importance of keeping even its smallest details. However, in the ultimate plan of God, the law was not to become an extra burden on the souls of men. Rather than pointing the way to salvation, the law convinced men of the need of the Savior. Therefore, whoever shall teach men so but shall not live what he teaches, he shall be made least in the kingdom of heaven. But whosoever shall do and teach the principles and precepts of the law shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. This simply means that God will reward the faithfulness and effectiveness of our lives, and there will be varying degrees of blessing and reward in the kingdom.

5:20. Because of the necessity of righteousness as a requirement to enter heaven, Jesus then declares that except their righteousness should exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees they could not enter heaven. The significance of this is seen in the fact that the Jews of Jesus’ day considered these people to be the most religious in all Israel. However, their religion was largely an outward show of self-righteousness. In communicating the depth of His message, Jesus used a series of contrasts between the outward behavior demanded by the law and the inner attitude of the heart desired by God. Here we discover the practical application of genuine Christian character to true spiritual living. Here we see the gospel in action:

Law

- No murder
- No adultery
- No divorce
- No oath-taking
- No retaliation
- Hatred for your enemy
(Tradition allowed it)

Spirit

- No anger
- No lust
- Commitment
- Speak the Truth
- Forgiveness
- Love for your enemy
(Commanded)

5:21, 22. Christ begins this series of contrasts by quoting the statement of the law, Thou shalt not kill (Ex. 20:13). The reference to killing is clearly understood in its context in both the Old and New Testa-

Teachings on Temptation

27 Ye have heard that it was said ¹by them of old time, ^aThou shalt not commit adultery:

30 And if thy right hand ¹offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into ²hell.

31 It hath been said, ^aWhosoever shall ¹put away his wife, let ments as referring to an act of murder. Jesus goes beyond this outward demand of the law by stating that whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause is in just as great danger of judgment as a murderer, for anger is the emotion and inner intention that leads to murder. The term raca (meaning "vain fellow" or "empty head") was a Hebrew or Aramaic expression of contempt (cf. 2 Sam. 6:20). The council is a reference to the Jewish religious council called the Sanhedrin. Thou fool (Gr. mōros) means "stupid." The English word moron comes from this term. Those using such a malicious expression would be in danger of hell fire. The idea seems to be that if one makes light of his fellowman, he will be in danger of slander. But if one makes bitter, damning statements with reference to hell toward his fellowman, he shall actually be in danger of hell himself. The term hell is Gehenna. It refers to the valley of Hinnom at Jerusalem, where fires provided a powerful and graphic picture of the ultimate destruction of hell and the lake of fire (cf. 2 Kin. 23:10; 2 Chr. 28:3; Jer. 7:31).

5:23, 24. Having made a comparison between the command not to murder and the inner motive and heart intention of hatred, Jesus then illustrates the seriousness of this matter by referring to one who would attempt to buy off his conscience by giving something to God without clearing his conscience in regard to his offended brother. He reminded His listeners that if thou bring thy gift to the altar without reconciling with the offended party, God will not receive the intended gift. Bringing a gift to the altar refers to bringing it to the temple in order that it may be consecrated. To be reconciled means to be brought back into fellowship or favor with an offended party.

5:25, 26. The Savior then went on to say that even if thine adversary (an opponent at law) disagrees with you, it is to your advantage to be reconciled to him. Jesus' exhortation here is to urge us to go out of our way to avoid legal conflicts before human judges (cf. v. 40). The payment of debt and the prison referred to here simply mean the normal legal process that one would encounter in a civil suit.

5:27, 28. Thou shalt not commit adultery was the demand of the Old Testament Law (Ex. 20:14). Jesus goes beyond this outward command to reveal that its act is the result of an inner attitude of lust. Whosoever looketh characterizes the man whose glance is not checked by holy restraint and results in an impure lust after women. The act would follow if the opportunity were to occur. By taking His listener beyond the outward statement of the law to its real intention, Jesus was trying to get the listener's attention off the physical and onto the spiritual.

5:29, 30. The statement of cutting off one's hand or plucking out one's eye definitely is not to be taken literally. What Jesus implies is that if thy right eye offend thee, then the logical thing to do would be to pluck it out. His point is not that one should literally pluck out his eye, but that one should recognize that the source of lust comes from within the mind and heart of man, not from the physical organ itself. The right eye is not the source of sin; the heart of man is that source. The seriousness of the sin of lust is thus illustrated by this graphic comparison. Ultimately, it would be better for a person to be physically maimed than to go to hell forever. However, doing physical damage to oneself does not in any way guarantee entrance into heaven. Jesus is simply teaching that man must bring the passions of his heart under the control of the Spirit of God.

5:31, 32. It hath been said is again a reference to the Old Testament commandment of the Mosaic regulation (cf. Deut. 24:1). The normal custom of the ancient Near East was for a man to verbally divorce his wife. In contrast, the ancient law of Israel insisted on a writing of divorce or certificate of divorce. This written statement gave legal protection to both the wife and the husband. Jesus explains elsewhere (cf. Matt. 19:8) that Moses' concession was not intended to be taken as license. The only exception given by Christ is for the cause of fornication (Gr. porneia), meaning sexual unfaithfulness. These statements make it clear that adultery or fornication is a legitimate ground for divorce. However, the legitimacy of the divorce does not necessarily establish the legitimacy of remarriage. Scripture never commands that one must divorce an unfaithful wife or husband. On the contrary, there are many examples of extending forgiveness to the adulterous offender (cf. Gen. 38:26; Hos. 3:1; John 8:1-11). The responsibility of divorce is clearly laid upon the one seeking the divorce. Whosoever shall put away his wife without biblical basis causeth her to commit adultery. Thus, the divorcer brings about an unjust suspicion upon the divorcee.

5:33-37. The basis of Old Testament swearing, or oath-taking, is found in Exodus 20:7; Leviticus 19:12; and Deuteronomy 23:21. To forswear means to swear falsely or perjure oneself. Oaths taken in the name of the Lord were looked upon as binding, and perjury of such oaths was strongly condemned by the law. By the time of Christ, the Jews had developed an elaborate system of oath-taking, which often formed the basis of actual lying. In other words, there were stages of truth and thus also of falsehood within the system of taking oaths. All such oath-taking, Jesus announced, was unnecessary if one were in the habit of telling the truth. Thus, His command was Swear not at all. This does not have reference to cursing, as such, but to oath-taking. The disciple is to speak the truth in such a way that his "yes" means yes and his "no" means no. Let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: When you say "yes," make sure that is what you mean.

When you say "no," make sure that also is what you mean. Mean what you say; say what you mean. Anything that is more than a simple affirmation of the truth cometh of evil.

5:38, 39. The principle of retaliation (lex talionis) is common in both Hebrew and other ancient Near Eastern law codes (cf. the Code of Hammurapi). The judicial penalty of an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth is stated in Exodus 21:24 as a means of ending feuds. However, Jesus is clearly saying this method is not a license for vengeance. The Savior's point is that we should resist not evil. Evil is seen here, not as a state, but rather as the action of the evil ones or the malicious ones. It represents the evil and sinful element in man which provokes him to an evil act. Jesus shows how the believer should respond to personal injury. He is not discussing the government's obligation to maintain law and order. These passages do not mean that a man should not defend his family or his country, but rather that he should not attempt personal vengeance, even through the means of the law, to compensate for a personal injury. Jesus gives five examples (vv. 39-42) of how the believer should react to unfair or unreasonable treatment. In retaliation to physical violence, he is to turn to him the other [cheek] also. Man's natural impulse is to strike back, but the disciple is not to be a natural man. He is to "overcome evil with good" (Rom. 12:21). There is no greater example of this ethical truth than the life and death of Jesus Himself.

5:40. Whether robbed by personal assault or compulsory litigation, the believer is to respond with confidence in what is eternal, rather than that which is temporal. If the believer is sued in order that the accuser may take away thy coat, he is to also let him have his cloak. The coat (Gr. chiton) is the undergarment or tunic. The cloak (Gr. himation) is the more expensive outer garment worn over the tunic. Jesus taught us to have confidence in an almighty God who is completely aware of the injustices done to man and totally capable of evoking ultimate and eternal justice.

Teachings on Giving

6 Take heed that ye do not your ¹alms before men, to be seen of them: otherwise ye have no reward ²of your Father which is in heaven.

2 Therefore ^awhen thou doest thine alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward.

6:2 ^a Rom. 12:8

5:41. In ancient times government agents were in a position to compel forced service upon a subjugated people. A Roman soldier, for example, could compel a Jewish native to carry his armor or materials for one mile. Jesus now states that if someone compels you to walk a mile, go with him twain. The believer is to be willing to “go the extra mile.” Doing double our duty not only proves our loyalty to human authority, but likewise proves the spiritual intention of our heart.

5:42. Jesus clearly taught that a loan should be looked upon as a potential gift. There are many statements in Proverbs against borrowing, lending, and surety (cf. Prov. 6:1; 11:15; 22:7; 27:13). While we are warned of the dangers of borrowing and lending, Jesus clearly emphasizes that the believer ought to be willing to lend to those in need.

Even the beggar is to be ministered to through the provision of giving to him that asketh thee. This statement certainly forms the basis of all Christian charity, and provides the proper social application of the message of the gospel to the physical as well as the spiritual needs of man.

5:43, 44. The law of love, sometimes called “law of Christ,” summarizes the ethical principle of the Sermon on the Mount. “Love thy neighbor” summarizes the entire second table of the law (cf. Lev. 19:18-34). But the unscriptural addition “hate thine enemy” was a popular concept in Jesus’ day. The admonition Love your enemies is one of the greatest statements Jesus ever made. The love enjoined in this passage is love that originates from God Himself. Man is not commanded to attempt to love his enemy on the basis of mere human affection but rather on the basis of a love that comes from God. The quality of love commanded here is expressed by giving. Bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that persecute you. Loving an enemy involves doing good toward that enemy in order to win him over to Christ.

5:45-47. In summarizing the importance of love, Jesus reminded that love was a necessary proof of salvation: that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven may be better rendered, “that ye may prove to be sons of your Father.” An initial reading of this text out of its context might seem to imply that loving one’s neighbor automatically makes one a child of God. However, the New Testament is clear that love is the evidence that one is already saved by the grace of God (cf. 1 John 3:14). Therefore Jesus reminds us that we are to love our enemies as our brethren, for even the publicans love those who love them. Publicans were public officials of Jewish nationality who worked for the Roman government as tax collectors and were generally despised by the people.

5:48. This section of the Sermon on the Mount is summarized with the statement Be ye therefore perfect. Since the New Testament is clear that even the believer is capable of sin, the term perfect (Gr. teleios) is not to be taken as sinless perfection. Perfect here means “complete,” that is, possessing a complete love that, like God’s (v. 45), embraces those who love you as well as those who do not.

6:1. Jesus warns us not to give alms before men just to gain human recognition to ourselves. The one who does righteousness (or gives of his possessions) to the Lord before men merely to be seen of them has no reward from the Father in heaven. True worship results from the desire to serve God, not men, since pleasing God is far more important than pleasing men. Loss of reward is incurred by gaining the reward of human recognition as an end in itself.

6:2. Therefore in all of our giving we are not to sound a trumpet before us in a hypocritical manner of gaining attention to ourselves. This metaphorical phrase means do not “publicize” your righteousness, for such performers are hypocrites (from the Greek, “play actor”). Thus, Jesus warns against acting like the hypocrites, whose aim is to win human praise.

Teachings on Prayer

7 But when ye pray, ^ause not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: ^bfor they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

8 Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father ^aknoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

9 After this ^amanner therefore pray ye: ^bOur Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy ^cname.

10 Thy kingdom come. ^aThy will be done in earth, ^bas it is in heaven.

6:3. Do not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth means that one's giving of finances to the work of the Lord should be done so freely and spontaneously that his right hand cannot keep up with his left hand.

6:4. The real key to success in this kind of giving is found in the phrase thy Father which seeth in secret ... shall reward you. Giving by faith, out of a cheerful heart, depends on our total confidence in the fact that God does indeed see us and knows our needs. These verses certainly do not condemn public giving, but rather they speak against giving out of the wrong attitude and for the wrong motive.

6:5, 6. Praying, like giving, is to be done to the Lord, not to man. Jesus said that people love to pray standing in the synagogues. Both a time and place for prayer were customary in the ancient Jewish synagogue (cf. Mark 11:25). Therefore, Jesus is not condemning the practice of public prayer, but rather the misuse of it. Because of the statement enter into thy closet, some have suggested that all public prayer is wrong. This would be contrary to the rest of New Testament statements about prayer, commandments and restrictions regarding prayer, and examples of prayer meetings (cf. Acts 12:12). The principle here is that the believer should not make a show of his prayer nor of the answers he receives to prayer in such a way as to call unnecessary attention to himself.

6:7. Jesus warned that we use not vain repetitions (Gr. battalogoō denotes babbling or speaking without thinking). Such prayer was characteristic of the heathen. A good example of this is found in the ecstatic babblings of the false prophets in the Old Testament and in the prophets of Baal who confronted Elijah on Mount Carmel (cf. 1 Kin. 18:26-29).

6:8. Prayer is not man's attempt to change the will of God. Prayer is not conquering God's reluctance to answer, but laying hold of His willingness to help. Prayer in the life of the true believer is an act of total confidence and assurance in the plan and purpose of God. The following sample prayer is given to the disciples as an example of a suitable prayer. This prayer, often called the "Lord's Prayer," is in reality a disciple's prayer. In no way does the prayer itself embody all of Christ's teaching about prayer; and having just warned against vain repetition, He did not intend for this particular prayer to be merely recited with empty meaninglessness.

6:9. The beginning phrase, Our Father, is completely uncommon to the prayers of the Old Testament. The two major elements of the prayer are adoration and petition. Hallowed be thy name addresses the attention of the prayer toward God and reverence for His name and His person. Hallowed (Gr. hagiozo) means to be held in reverence and holy awe.

6:10. The phrase Thy kingdom come refers to the eschatological nature of this prayer. Notice that the kingdom is to be prayed for, implying that it has not arrived. The kingdom represents the full and effective reign of God through the mediatorial office of the Messiah. The recognition of Thy will be done emphasizes the idea that prayer is to bring about the conformity of the will of the believer to the will of God. Prayer is an act of spiritual expression that brings us into conformity to the very nature and purpose of God.

GOD THE FATHER

6:9. The Father is the first person of the Trinity. With only one exception (John 17:3), Jesus always spoke of God as the Father. The Scriptures identify the fatherhood of God in five areas: He is the Father of Creation (James 1:17), the Father of Israel (Jer. 31:9), the unique Father of Jesus Christ (3:17), a protective Father emphasizing His defense of the poor and oppressed (Ps. 68:5), and a redemptive Father when we become the children of God (John 1:13; Rom. 8:15). Illustration: Just as physical fathers provide many benefits, so our heavenly Father also provides a number of spiritual benefits. Christians may have fellowship with (1 John 1:3), access to (vv. 9, 32), guidance by (Ps. 119:9; 2 Tim. 3:17), protection by (John 10:29), and an inheritance from (Rom. 8:17) the Father. Application: Just because God is the Father of all, because He is the Father of Creation, does not mean that everyone will go to heaven. A person must be born of God (John 1:13) to become a son of God (John 1:12). Then God becomes a redemptive Father. (First Reference, John 1:14; Primary Reference, Matt. 6:9; cf. Gen. 15:18.)

23 But if thine eye be ¹evil, thy

6:23 ¹ Unhealthy

6:11. The section of petitions begins with the request to give us this day our daily bread. Bread (Gr. artos) may be applied to the provision of food in general. The term daily (Gr. epiousios) denotes “indispensable.” The concept of daily provision of bread fits perfectly with the Old Testament example of the daily provision of manna to the Israelites while they were wandering in the wilderness (Ex. 16:14, 15).

6:12. Forgive us our debts refers to sins, which are our moral and spiritual debts to God’s righteousness. The request for forgiveness of sin is made here by the believer. In order to be saved one need not necessarily name all of his sins, but he must confess that he is a sinner.

6:13–15. Lead us not into temptation is a plea for the providential help of God in our daily confrontation with the temptation of sin. God does not tempt us to do evil, but we are tempted of our own lusts (James 1:13, 14). However, God does test us in order to give us the opportunity to prove our faithfulness to Him. He never desires to lead us into evil itself. Therefore if we resist the Devil, we are promised that he will flee from us. The prayer closes with a doxology of praise: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen, which is a liturgical ending similar to 1 Chronicles 29:11. Though omitted in some manuscripts, these words constitute a fitting and climactic affirmation of faith.

6:16. When ye fast is a reference both to fasting prescribed under the Mosaic Law in connection with the Day of Atonement (Lev. 16:29) and the voluntary fast of that day. The Pharisees added two fast days, Monday and Thursday of each week, as a case of public display and piety. The Pharisees regarded the practice of fasting as meritorious (cf. Taanith, 8:3) and appeared in the synagogues negligently attired. Their sad disfigurement of face and the wearing of mourning garb gave them an opportunity to exhibit their superior ascetic sanctity before the people. The phrase disfigure their faces (Gr. aphantizō) literally denotes covering their faces and is a figurative expression for mournful gestures and neglected appearance of those wanting to call attention to themselves.

6:17, 18. This passage is not to be taken as a command against fasting but rather against the misuse of the spiritual exercise of fasting. Fasting that requires spectators is mere acting. Though Jesus Himself instituted no fast for His disciples, voluntary fasting does appear in the early churches (cf. Acts 13:2). The injunction to anoint thine head relates to the ancient custom of anointing one’s head when going to a feast. In other words, Jesus was saying that when we fast we are to do so secretly to the Lord, while outwardly maintaining the appearance of joy and triumph, which is the end result of true fasting.

6:19–21. The attention of the believer is directed toward treasures in heaven. The term treasures implies the addition or accumulation of things. The two kinds of treasures are conditioned by their place (either on earth or in heaven). The concept of laying up treasures in heaven is not pictured as one of meritorious benefits but rather of rewards for faithful service, as is illustrated elsewhere in the teaching of Jesus.

6:22, 23. The light of the body is associated with the eye. The concept here is based on the ancient idea that the eyes were the windows through which light entered the body. If the eyes were in good condition the body could receive such light. Jesus, using this language metaphorically, affirms that if a man’s spiritual sight is healthy and his affections directed toward heavenly treasure, his whole personality will be without blemish. The phrase if... thine eye be single indicates devotion to one purpose. The “single eye” refers to a single, fixed vision or goal. The phrase if thine eye be evil refers to either disease or deception of vision. The “evil eye” is not something mysterious whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

or devilish, but rather a deceptive vision that causes the viewer to mistake the identity of an object. The mistake in this context is the darkening of the mind and thus how great is that darkness!

6:24. This kind of spiritual double vision causes one to believe he can serve two masters. Total loyalty to God cannot be divided between Him and loyalty to one’s material possessions. A master (Gr. kurios) is a lord or an owner. That God claims total lordship over His own is obvious in this passage. Therefore, Jesus rightly proclaimed, Ye cannot serve God and mammon. The term mammon is derived from the Aramaic term for possessions or wealth. Jesus is not condemning money or possessions in and of themselves, but the improper attitude of enslavement toward wealth.

6:25. Jesus now deals with the equally dangerous tendency of those who have few possessions: worry! Take no thought (Gr. mē merimnaō) means “Do not be anxious.” This word means to be so disturbed about material needs that we distrust God and are distracted from faithfully doing His will. Anxious care is the direct opposite of faith. Therefore, even the poor are not to worry needlessly about what they should eat, drink, or wear. The question Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? indicates that inner mental stability must come from the spirit of a man and not from outward physical provisions. To set one’s heart on material possessions or to worry about the lack of them is to live in perpetual insecurity and to deprive oneself of the spiritual blessings of God.

6:26–32. Jesus illustrates His point by referring to objects in nature that were immediately at hand, the birds of the air and the flowers of the field. The key point of this passage is found in the phrases Are ye not much better than they? (v. 26) and shall he not much more clothe you? (v. 30). The Bible clearly teaches that God is the Creator and sustainer of nature. Worry and anxiety are related to the length of one’s life in the phrase add one cubit unto his stature. A cubit is a measurement of 18 inches. However, this reference is probably not to one’s actual height but to the length of his life. The term stature (Gr. hēlikia) may mean “age.” Thus the idea seems to be that a man cannot add the smallest measure to the span of his life by worrying. This state of anxiety is related to having little faith (v. 30). Faith is total confidence in the provision of God.

6:33, 34. This portion of the Sermon on the Mount is summarized by the statement seek ye first the kingdom of God. The disciples who have pledged their allegiance to the King must continue seeking the kingdom and its righteousness. The present imperative form of the verb (Gr. zētēō) indicates a continual or constant seeking. The contrast between the spiritual and the material is again emphasized. The believer is to seek first the righteousness that is characteristic of God’s kingdom and then all these things (material things) shall be added to him. When our priority is spiritual, God will take care of the material, for where God guides, He provides. We need not even worry about tomorrow, for sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof (v. 34). This means that each day has its own troubles and challenges to be responsibly handled, without worrying about the hypothetical problems that could arise tomorrow.

Asking and Receiving

7 ^aAsk, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you:

8 For ^aevery one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

9 ^aOr what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?

10 Or if he ask a fish, will he give him a serpent?

11 If ye then, ^abeing evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?

12 Therefore all things ^awhatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for ^bthis is the law and the prophets.

7:1-4. Judge not refers to an unfavorable and condemnatory judgment. This does not mean that a Christian should never exercise judgment of any kind under any circumstances. The point being made here is that we are not to judge the inner motives of another. We are not to render a verdict based upon prejudiced information. Nor are we to use ourselves as the standard of judgment for with what ... ye mete (measure) you shall be judged. That ye be not judged refers to the ultimate judgment of God rather than our own judgment. The terms mote (Gr. karphos) and beam (Gr. dokos) are used metaphorically for a small fault and a great fault. A mote is a small speck of sawdust whereas a beam is a rafter used in building. Thus, the idea of the text is that one cannot remove the speck from his brother's eye until he has removed the rafter from his own eye!

7:5, 6. Thou hypocrite is the only statement that can be made for this play actor who pretends to be a physician when he himself is sick. The dogs and swine refer to those who have deliberately rejected the message of truth. These particular animals were especially repulsive to Jesus' audience.

7:7-10. The three imperatives ask, seek, and knock are in the present tense of the original language, suggesting both perseverance and frequent prayer. Fervent and continual prayer is to be made on behalf of those for whom we are concerned. God promises to answer all genuine prayer (v. 8). Everything we need for spiritual success has been promised to us. God leaves us no excuse for failure.

7:11, 12. Jesus illustrated His point by comparing the willingness of a human father to give his child a gift with our heavenly Father who will gladly give us what we need. The term evil (v. 11) is used here of man's sinful nature. Even sinful men are kind to their children; therefore, how much more shall your heavenly Father delight to answer your prayers. Hence, rather than judging others, we are to treat them as we would like to be treated. The statement in verse 12, Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, is the biblical injunction often called the "Golden Rule." This is the law and the prophets indicates that the statement made here by Jesus is not intended to be novel, but rather a summarization of the second table of the law.

PRAYER

7:7. Both Jesus (Luke 18:1) and Paul (1 Tim. 2:1) emphasized the importance of prayer, noting that people ought always to pray. Prayer includes asking and getting answers from God. But it is more than just asking; it is confession, adoration, thanksgiving, and fellowship with God. By its nature, prayer is talking with God. It is the basis of the successful Christian life, and is so important that not praying is considered a sin (1 Sam. 12:23). When we pray, we should follow the model prayer Jesus gave His disciples and address it to our heavenly Father—beginning with adoration, including thanksgiving and confession of sins, making reconciliation with others, praying for our needs and the needs of others, and concluding in Jesus' name (6:9-15; John 14:14). Illustration: Jesus pointed out that God heard the prayer of a humble publican rather than that of a proud Pharisee (Luke 18:14). Application: God will answer our prayer when we obey Him (1 John 3:22), confess sin (Ps. 66:18), abide in Christ (John 15:7), ask according to the will of God (1 John 5:14), ask in faith (Mark 11:24), have pure motives (James 4:3), and live peaceably with our mate (1 Pet. 3:7). (First Reference, Gen. 3:8-13; Primary Reference, Matt. 7:7; cf. 1 John 5:14, 15.)

7:13, 14. The closing section of the Sermon on the Mount presents two choices to the listener. These are presented in a series of contrasts: two ways (vv. 13, 14); two trees (vv. 15-20); two professions (vv. 21-23); and two foundations (vv. 24-29). This was a common method of teaching in both Jewish and Greco-Roman thought. Enter ye in at the strait gate (narrow) means that one must come through the narrow gate in order to reach the path that leads to eternal life. Though many are on the broad ... way, that leadeth to destruction (eternal separation from God), the gate that leads to life is so narrow that few there be that find it. Christ Himself is both the gate and the way (cf. John 14:6), and God enables men to find that gate (cf. John 6:44).

7:15. The warning Beware of false prophets fits appropriately with the concept of the two ways. Since many are being led in the wrong way, they are obviously being led by the wrong people. False prophets were prevalent in the Old Testament, whereas God's true prophets were often in the minority. False prophets appear in sheep's clothing but are in reality ravens wolves. This is a perfect description of those preachers who have denied or distorted the truth of the gospel. They look like lambs but act like wolves. Their description is similar to that of the great False Prophet in Revelation 13:11.

7:16-20. A true test of a prophet was the conformity of his doctrine to the Scriptures (cf. 1 Cor. 14:37; Deut. 13:1-5). Their fruits refers not only to actions of their lives, but also to the doctrines they proclaim. The two trees are contrasted in relation to the fruit they produce. Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit consistently, while a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit continually. Therefore, the normal and consistent production of fruit, whether good or evil, in a person's life will bear evidence whether or not that life is of God. Verse 19 illustrates the unfruitful life of the unregenerate who is cast into the fire, a picture of eternal punishment in hell.

7:21-23. Not everyone professing Christ is genuinely saved. Even the outward verbal acknowledgment of His lordship is in itself not enough to save the unbeliever apart from true repentance and faith. A genuinely saved person is one that doeth the will of my Father, the Greek present tense suggesting that he is continually living in obedience to the will of God as the normal course of his life.

7:24-27. In drawing His concluding illustration of the two foundations, Jesus begins with the word therefore. On the basis of all that He has taught and illustrated, He concluded that all who both hear and do His sayings shall be saved. As a great Master Counselor, Jesus reminded His listener that hearing this message alone will not change his life. He must both hear and do what Jesus has said. The elements of the closing illustration are drawn from the simplicity of nature itself, the rock, the rain, and the winds. The man whose house collapsed was at fault, not because he failed to labor, but because he did not lay the proper foundation. The shifting sand represents human opinion and the doctrines of men as opposed to "these sayings" (v. 28).

27 And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

28 And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, ^athe people were astonished at his ¹doctrine:

29 ^aFor he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

9 For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me: and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

10 When Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel.

11 And I say unto you, That ^amany shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven.

12 But ^athe ¹children of the kingdom ^bshall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee.

7:28. The entire Sermon on the Mount is addressed to believers and presupposes faith in Jesus as Messiah. The works done by the believer are not based on himself but on the "rock" (v. 24), who ultimately is Christ Himself (1 Cor. 10:4). He is the personal embodiment of all His teachings. Thus, when He finished the discourse, the people were astonished. Amazement engulfed the audience.

7:29. The outstanding feature of His teaching was His authority, meaning the divine approval and authoritative constraint with which He delivered His message. Such straightforward preaching, based on the depth of one's own life, was in direct contrast to that of the scribes, who were the copyists of the Law and the theologians of their day. They had to rely on tradition for their authority, whereas Christ was His own authority.

8:1-4. Make me clean: According to the law of Moses, to be leprous was to be ceremonially unclean (see Lev. 13:45, 46). Jesus ... touched him, which instead of bringing uncleanness to Jesus, caused the total cleansing of the leper! The purpose of Jesus in giving the command to tell no man was to draw attention away from the miracle itself and to appeal to the spiritual need in man. In the Gospels the crowds were often attracted by Jesus' miracles, but not always by His message. Shew thyself to the priest, that is, in obedience to the Mosaic Law regarding cleansing. Offer the gift that Moses commanded: These gifts are found in Leviticus 14:2-32, where they are typical of Christ's atonement and the cleansing it provided. For a testimony unto them: that is, as evidence to the priest that the leper had indeed been cleansed.

8:5-9. A centurion ranked between an officer and a noncommissioned officer (somewhat equivalent to that of a modern sergeant major). It was a position of great responsibility in the Roman occupation force. (See the more complete account in Luke 7:2-10.) Servant (Gr. pais) means "child" or "servant." Sick of the palsy means to be paralyzed and greatly afflicted. The centurion was impressed with Jesus, whom he likened to himself as one under authority. He recognized that in dealing with the realm of sickness and death Jesus had all the power of God behind Him.

8:10-13. The words from the east and west, are taken from Psalm 107 (with allusions also to Is. 49:12; 59:19; Mal. 1:11). Here Christ is referring to the ingathering of the Gentiles through the preaching of the gospel, culminating in their final gathering at the time of His second coming. The children of the kingdom refers to those to whom the kingdom really belongs. Outer darkness refers to the condemnation of the second death. There shall be ... gnashing of teeth: There (in that place) is used emphatically to draw attention to the fact that such severe punishment is in fact a reality. Even though he was a Gentile, the servant was healed because of the faith of the centurion. The contrast to this incident drawn by Jesus emphasizes the foolishness of Israel's rejection of Him as the Messiah.

8:19-27. The reference to a certain scribe is unusual since scribes were usually referred to in the plural. Master, I will follow thee: These words indicated that he was willing to follow Christ both spiritually and publicly. The word master (Gr. didaskalos) here means "Teacher." Instead of making it easy to follow Him, Christ insisted that he count the cost of such commitment to discipleship. The Son of man is the title by which the Lord most frequently referred to Himself. The title originally came from Daniel 7:13 and had messianic significance. The Lord deliberately used this biblical title of Himself in order to teach the godly that He was, in fact, the Messiah. The reference to another of His disciples must refer to a professed disciple who was unwilling to follow Him unconditionally. The request to bury my father probably meant he wanted to stay at home until his father died. Jesus' strong reply, Let the dead bury their dead, was not intended to be harsh, but rather to emphasize the time to be about the heavenly Father's business was now. The tempest refers to a violent storm. Jesus rebuked their little faith in light of the fact that He had commanded the trip across the Sea of Galilee. In one of His most awesome miracles, He simply rebuked the winds and the sea, resulting in an instantaneous miracle of total calm.

8:28. Gergesenes: The usually preferred reading is "Gadarenes." Gergesa was a town on the eastern slope of the Sea of Galilee and was included in the district of Gadara, one of the cities of the Decapolis. Both of these were included in the larger administrative district of Gerasa, whose center was the town of Gerasa in Gilead. Two possessed with devils: The two other synoptic writings mention only one. Mark and Luke emphasize the more predominant convert of the two, whereas Matthew gives the more complete account of both men with whom Jesus dealt, perhaps because the law demanded two or more witnesses.

8:29-34. What have we to do with thee? They reacted with resentment at Jesus' intrusion into their realm, meaning, "What is there in common between us?" Their reference to Him as the Son of God indi-

33 And they that kept them fled, and went their ways into the city, and told every thing, and what was befallen to the ¹possessed of the devils.

Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?

6 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the ¹sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house.

7 And he arose, and departed to his house.

8 But when the multitudes saw it, they ^amarvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men.

Matthew Follows Jesus

9 ^aAnd as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the ¹receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him.

10 ^aAnd it came to pass, as Jesus sat ¹at meat in the house, behold, many ²publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.

11 And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with ^apublicans¹ and ^bsinners?

12 But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that ¹be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

13 But go ye and learn what that meaneth, ^aI will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, ^bbut sinners to repentance.

cates that the demons were fully aware of who Jesus was, and their question about being tormented before the time also indicates that they were aware of why He had come to earth. The reference to a herd of many swine suggests that they were being kept illegally by Jews who were living in this Gentile region. Swine were considered unclean by the Mosaic Law. The whole herd ... perished: Jesus granted the demons' request because of His concern for the man. The spiritual principle in this incident is that those who are deliberately disobedient deprive themselves of divine protection and place themselves at the mercy of the forces of evil.

9:9–12. The receipt of custom refers to the toll-booth in the street where tax collectors sat to receive various taxes. In the house means at home. We know from the other synoptic writers that this house was Matthew's. See Mark 2:15; Luke 5:29, where the expression is phrased "in his house."

9:13–15. The righteous: The word is used here in

9:9 Matthew, also called Levi, an apostle, was by occupation a tax collector. He seems to have been an agent for Herod Antipas, stationed at Capernaum to collect revenue on goods passing between Damascus and the Mediterranean ports. Tax collectors ("publicans") were despised by the Jews and regarded as the lowest of sinners. They were perceived as extortionists and even as traitors since they served Rome. When Jesus called him, he immediately obeyed. From early times the church has regarded Matthew as the author of the first gospel. Mark and Luke identify him by the name Levi (Mark 2:14; Luke 5:27). (First Reference, Matt. 9:9; Primary Reference, Matt. 10:3.)

Questions About Fasting

14 Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees fast ¹oft, but thy disciples fast not?"

15 And Jesus said unto them, Can "the ¹children of the bridechamber mourn, as long as the bridegroom is with them? but the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and ^bthen shall they fast.

17 Neither do men put new wine into old ¹bottles: else the bottles ²break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles ³perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved.

21 For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole.

22 But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, ¹be of good comfort; ^athy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.

23 "And when Jesus came into the ruler's house, and saw ^bthe ¹minstrels and the ²people making a noise, 24 He said unto them, "Give place: for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn.

Sight and Speech Restored

27 And when Jesus departed thence, ^atwo blind men followed him, crying, and saying, ^bThou son of David, have mercy on us.

28 And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, an ironic sense, meaning self-righteous. Ultimately, as the Scripture tells us, "There is none righteous, no, not one" (Rom. 3:10). The children of the bridechamber refers to the wedding guests. As long as the bridegroom is with them, that is, while the wedding festivities last, might be for some days. When the bridegroom shall be taken from them is an allusion to His coming death and ascension.

9:27 ^a Matt. 20:29-34 ^b Matt. 15:22; Mark 10:47; Luke 18:38, 39

9:16, 17. The principle expressed here is that the Lord Jesus Christ has come to bring in a whole new dispensation, which cannot be fitted into the forms of the old Jewish economy. The principle taught here by illustration is that the rule of the law must be replaced by that of grace, which will now have free reign in the hearts of all believers. New cloth means unbleached cloth. Bottles (skins) were frequently used in the ancient East as liquid containers. The strength of fermentation of the new wine would be too much for the partly worn, old, or inelastic skins and would cause them to break. See note on Mark 2:22 for interpretation.

9:18, 19. A certain ruler, that is, of the synagogue: The other Gospels call him Jairus (cf. Mark 5:22-43; Luke 8:41-56). Worshipped: This suggests that he recognized Jesus' deity and authority. In the parallel passages we are told that his daughter was dying when he first came and that she died while he was en route. Matthew telescopes two phrases into one, saying she is even now dead.

9:20-22. I shall be whole (lit., "I shall be saved," i.e., "healed"): A rabbi customarily addressed a young girl as daughter. Jesus' exhortation to be of good comfort means to cheer up. The further statement thy faith hath made thee whole indicates that God's blessing on our behalf is usually in proportion to our willingness to trust Him.

9:23-26. The scene described here is typical of a Middle Eastern home where someone lay dead. Mourners were actually hired to make noise. The minstrels were flutists. Jesus' statement that the maid is not dead, but sleepeth meant that her death, though real, was ultimately going to be a temporary "sleep" in light of the fact that He would quickly raise her back to life again.

9:27-32. This incident is also peculiar to Matthew's gospel (cf. Luke 11:14-26). Two blind men call out, Thou son of David, which was a messianic designation. The form of their address seems to indicate that they had put their faith in Jesus as the Messiah.

Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord.

29 Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you.

30 And their eyes were opened; and Jesus ¹straitly charged them, saying, “See that no man know it.”

31 “But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that ¹country.

32 “As they went out, behold, they brought to him a ¹dumb man possessed with a ²devil.

33 And when the ¹devil was cast out, the ²dumb spake: and the multitudes marvelled, saying, It was never so seen in Israel.

34 But the Pharisees said, “He casteth out ¹devils through the ²prince of the devils.

Labourers for the Harvest

Instructions to the Disciples

10 And “when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these; The first, Simon, “who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;

3 Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the ¹publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Lebbaeus, whose surname was Thaddaeus;

4 “Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, “Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of ^bthe Samaritans enter ye not:

6 “But go rather to the ^blost sheep of the house of Israel.

7 “And as ye go, preach, saying, ^bThe kingdom of heaven ¹is at hand.

9:33–38. The connection between spiritual evil and physical illness is clearly illustrated in this incident. The prince of the devils is Satan himself. Fainted means they were distressed. The observation that they were as sheep having no shepherd is taken mainly from the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew Old Testament, of Numbers 27:17. Verses 37 and 38 constitute one of the great missionary passages of the New Testament. Jesus pictures the world as a great spiritual harvest in need of laborers to gather it into the storehouse.

10:1–4. The twelve disciples had been formed as a group some time previously. Now after a period of instruction and training they were sent on their first mission. They were also given power, or “authority,” over demons and disease. Their miracle-working ministry was to attest the legitimate claim of Jesus to be the Messiah. Apostles (Gr. apostoloi) is the technical term that later came to be applied to the 12 disciples. The literal meaning of the term is “Sent Ones.” In this passage their 12 names are arranged in six pairs, which probably corresponded to the arrangement in which they were sent out on this mission. Simon is Peter, who heads all four lists of the disciples (cf. Mark 3:16; Luke 6:14; Acts 1:13). Since he appears to be the most prominent disciple in the early stages of Jesus’ ministry, as well as in the early period of the church, he probably exercised a natural leadership over the others. It does not follow from this, however, that his leadership was passed on to successors. Bartholomew was generally considered to be identical with the Nathanael of John 1:45–51. Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddaeus (some texts read simply “Thaddeus”): Luke gives his name as Judas (Luke 6:16). Simon the Canaanite actually means the Cananaean. Since he had been a member of the nationalist party known as the Zealots, who resisted Herod the Great by force, he is also at times referred to as Simon the Zealot. Judas Iscariot has been variously interpreted as meaning he was a member of the tribe of Issachar, or an inhabitant of Kerioth, or the one who carried the purse (Aram. secariota), or the one who was strangled (Heb. iscara). He is generally recognized as the only disciple who was not a Galilean.

10:5–10. The way of the Gentiles: Several Greek cities in Galilee existed separately from the Jewish life-style. The apostles were instructed to avoid these towns and to confine themselves to the Jewish cities only. The word Gentiles is an objective genitive, indicating that they were not to enter a road even leading to the Gentiles, nor were they to enter a city of the Samaritans. The apostles were to provide (better, “get”) nothing in the way of money in their purses (lit., “belts”). The fold of the robe or the girdle served the same function as our pockets. A scrip was a small bag for holding various articles. Coats were the outer robes or tunics that corresponded to the Roman toga. The Greek for staves is actually singular, meaning “staff,” agreeing with Luke 9:3. The workman is worthy of his meat: They were to rely on the gifts and hospitality of those to whom they preached.

10:11-16. Enquire means “to search out.” Hospitality was a normal part of Oriental life and the disciples probably received many offers of accommodation; however, they were restricted to accepting hospitality only from those who received their message. Shake off the dust of your feet is a symbolic act of rejection and condemnation, the idea being that not even the dust of a wicked city was worthy of them. Verily (Gr. amēn) is a transliteration from the Hebrew meaning “truly” or one of its synonyms, which gives emphasis to the statement that follows. Wise as serpents (cf. Gen. 3:1): In the ancient Near East the serpent was commonly regarded as the wisest of beasts. A cautious wisdom was necessary in order to deal with the fierce opposition that the disciples would face.

10:17-22. Take no thought means “Do not be anxious.” (See Mark 13:9-13; Luke 12:11, 12; 21:12-19.) It shall be given you promises that the inner prompting of the Holy Spirit would tell them what to say in each situation they would face. For my name's sake: They would endure great persecution because of their identification with Jesus Christ. But he that endureth to the end shall be saved is a promise of perseverance, not a teaching that salvation may be lost. Rather, it indicates that those who are truly saved will indeed endure to the end.

10:23, 24. The idea that the Son of man in this passage is Himself to be viewed as a forerunner of the yet-coming Messiah is ludicrous in light of all the statements made earlier in the Gospel of Matthew. Therefore, He must have His own second coming in view.

10:25–31. Beelzebul refers to Satan himself, the ultimate evil spirit. The disciples are told to fear ... not. The disciples’ enemies can only take their physical lives, which cannot prevent their blessed resurrection to life everlasting. In other words, Jesus reminded them that it was more important to fear Him who had authority over the soul as well as over the body and who can bring both to eternal condemnation in hell (Gr. Gehenna). Notice that God is the One who has authority to cast men into hell, and not Satan, who will himself be ultimately cast into everlasting fire. Conversely, Jesus reminded His disciples of the Father’s loving care, even for sparrows. A farthing (Gr. assarion) was a copper coin worth about one-sixteenth of a denarius. Without your Father means without His permission. Here we are reminded of God’s gracious providential care over His saints.

10:32–37. Confess me means “Acknowledge that you belong to Me.” In reality, secret discipleship is a practical impossibility. Jesus constantly called for an open confession of Himself by His followers. That our confession is to be before men clearly indicates that a public confession of true Christian faith is a virtual necessity. The warning whosoever shall deny me is a comprehensive historical aorist tense, referring not to one moment of denial (such as Peter’s), but to an entire lifelong resistance to Christ. Therefore, a single act of denial does not make one unworthy of being a disciple, but a refusal to confess Christ at all eliminates one from being a true follower of Jesus Christ.

10:38–40. Taketh not his cross: This is the first mention of the cross in the New Testament. It was the custom for the condemned man to carry his cross on the way to his execution. There is plenty of evidence that our Lord anticipated the mode of His death. Findeth his life means to wrongfully gain something out of life for oneself. Here the word means the natural life as opposed to the spiritual life. That is, to pursue one’s natural well-being at the expense of the spiritual, or eternal, is sinful.

10:41, 42. In the name of a prophet (i.e., “as a prophet”): The meaning of this statement is that those who are not prophets themselves may share in the labor and reward of the prophets by willingly supporting their ministry. One of these little ones is a reference to the fact that even the smallest service done to the most insignificant of Christ’s servants shall be rewarded by the Lord Himself.

11:1-7. Verses 2-19 parallel Luke 7:18-35. This imprisonment has already been mentioned in Matthew 4:12, but the circumstances leading up to it are not described in detail until 14:3-12, where the manner of John's death is also recounted. The works of Christ refers to His miracles. He that should come refers to the predicted Messiah of Old Testament prophecy whose coming had already been proclaimed by John. The blind receive their sight is an allusion to Isaiah 35:5 and 61:1, where it is stated that this will be one of the works performed by the Messiah. The poor have the gospel preached to them is another allusion to Isaiah 61:1. Hence, Jesus was clearly vindicating His messiahship to John, who may have begun to question why Jesus had left him in prison.

11:8-11. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? ... more, much more (Gr. perissoteron): The quotation in verse 10 is from Malachi 3:1. John was recognized as the foreordained forerunner of the Savior and, technically, the last of the Old Testament prophets. Thus, he belonged to the Old Testament dispensation. This certainly emphasizes a clear distinction from the Old Testament era and the New Testament. The weakest believer who has the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of the risen Christ, is, therefore, in a more privileged position than the greatest of the Old Testament prophets. Them that are born of women means mortal men, the idea being that the greatest of all in this life cannot be compared with the glory of the life to come.

11:12-15. The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence (Gr. biazomai): The meaning of this saying, and the connection of verses 12-14 with preceding and following contexts, indicates that John opened the kingdom of heaven to sinners and thus became the culminating point of Old Testament witness. Jesus' statement that this is Elias (Elijah) indicates the ministry predicted by Malachi 4:5, 6.

11:16-19. This generation refused to exercise its capacity to hear, but made excuses for rejecting both John and Jesus. Some have likened the illustration of Christ to that of children playing a game of "weddings" and then a game of "funerals." The idea is that the children cannot decide which game to play; so they decide to play nothing at all. The reference to the rejection of John's ascetic ministry brought the charge that he was demon-possessed. However, Jesus' open contact with sinners brought the equally untrue claim that He was gluttonous, and a winebibber.

20 ^aThen began he to ¹upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done, because they repented not:

22 But I say unto you, ^aIt shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment, than for you.

23 And thou, Capernaum, ^awhich art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to ¹hell: for if the mighty works, which have been done in thee, had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.

The Son of Man Is Lord of the Sabbath

12 At that time ^aJesus went on the sabbath day through the ¹corn; and his disciples were ²an hungred, and began to ^bpluck the ³ears of corn, and to eat.

11:20–24. The denunciation of Galilean cities that follows is recorded also by Luke, but in a different context (see Luke 10:13–16). Chorazin was about an hour's journey on foot north of Capernaum. Bethsaida was on the west side of the Sea of Galilee, about three miles southeast of Chorazin. Tyre and Sidon are both on the Mediterranean coast beyond the northern boundary of Palestine. Shalt be brought down to hell: The statement here is an allusion to Isaiah 14:13, 15, where it is spoken of the king of Babylon and probably refers to Satan himself.

12:1–9. The sabbath day is the seventh day of the week, corresponding to our Saturday (cf. Mark 2:23–3:6; Luke 6:1–11). However, it begins at sunset on Friday and lasts until the following sunset. The Pharisees had burdened the Sabbath with a multitude of detailed observances that were not laid down in the Mosaic Law. In responding to their legalistic traditions, Jesus always referred to Scripture. Have ye not read? The passage referred to is 1 Samuel 21:1–6. The Lord makes the point that in the case of necessity the ceremonial law might be overruled. He uses the illustration of David eating the shewbread. These loaves were placed on the table in the holy place in the tabernacle each Sabbath. They were to be eaten only by the priest and his family (cf. Lev. 24:5–9; Num. 28:9). The priests prepared the sacrifices on the Sabbath in spite of the general prohibition of work. If the necessities of temple worship permitted the priests to profane the sabbath, there was all the more reason why the service of Christ would allow a similar liberty.

8 For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.

9 ^aAnd when he was departed thence, he went into their synagogue:

10 And, behold, there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, ^aIs it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that they might accuse him.

11 And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out?

12 How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days.

13 Then saith he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other.

14 Then ^athe Pharisees went out, and ¹held a council against him, how they might destroy him.

12:10-27. Withered (shriveled): Luke 6 shows that this incident occurred on a different Sabbath. However, the objection of the Pharisees on this occasion was ultimately the same. They were in opposition to Jesus' healing on the Sabbath. The reference to "their synagogue" (v. 9) indicates that in this particular synagogue the Pharisees were predominant.

12:28-30. The kingdom of God: Matthew's usual expression is the "kingdom of heaven" (3:2). Some have attempted to distinguish between the meaning of the two, but they likely mean the same thing. Is come unto you (lit., "has come upon you"): The Lord's power over demons was evidence enough that He was the Messiah. Hence, spoil his goods ... house refers to Satan as being defeated or ruined by the capture of souls from him for Christ by the gospel.

38 ^aThen certain of the ſcribes and of the Pharisees answered,

12:31–38. The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost is deliberate rejection of Christ, His Spirit-wrought miracles, and His salvation. It is the ultimate sin that by its very nature puts a man beyond the opportunity of salvation. The Holy Spirit brings the offer of salvation to the heart of man. To reject Him is to act “presumptuously” and thus to “blaspheme” God. Those who reject His offer of salvation are in reality blaspheming the very nature of God Himself and the genuineness of His grace.

12:39–42. The word adulterous means unfaithful to God. It was a metaphor frequently used in the Old Testament for spiritual “adultery.” The prophet Jonas: Jesus uses Jonah’s burial in the fish for three days and three nights as an illustration of the three days and three nights that Christ would spend in the grave Himself. The actual period was either, minimally, from Friday evening to Sunday morning (covering parts of three days idiomatically) or maximally, from Wednesday evening to Sunday morning (covering 72 literal hours). The reference to the whale’s belly in verse 40 of the Authorized Version is unfortunate. The Greek word kētos means “a great sea creature,” not necessarily a whale. The Old Testament references are to a “great fish” (Jon 1:17). Notice that the Lord placed this entire account on the same level of historical reality as that with which He Himself was dealing.

12:43–45. Jesus gives a striking parable of the precarious spiritual condition of the nation. The parable is that of a house well swept but unoccupied. The demon having been driven out, but finding no place to rest, returns with seven other spirits, resulting in an even greater degeneration. Only by inviting Christ to be the honored guest and head of the home could Israel know the full blessing of God.

SINS AGAINST THE HOLY SPIRIT

12:31, 32. All sin is serious, and to some degree challenges and attacks the character and authority of God. But six sins are specifically identified as sins against the Holy Spirit. Since the Holy Spirit is a person, He may be sinned against. Since He is also God, it is an extremely serious matter to be guilty of sinning against Him. These six sins are blaspheming (vv. 31, 32; Luke 12:10), lying or tempting (Acts 5:4, 9), despising (Heb. 10:29), resisting or striving with (Gen. 6:3; Acts 7:51), vexing or grieving (Is. 63:10; Eph. 4:30), and quenching (1 Thess. 5:19) the Holy Spirit. Illustration: Because of the severity with which Jesus describes blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, some people unnecessarily fear that they may have committed the unpardonable sin. One of the characteristics of such sin is that the Holy Spirit ceases to convict of sin in one’s life—so the fact that someone may be concerned about a particular sin indicates he is not beyond grace. He should immediately repent of that sin to restore fellowship with God. Application: The keys to not sinning against the Holy Spirit are to: (1) be led by the Spirit, (2) be filled with the Spirit, and (3) be illuminated by the Spirit. (First Reference, Gen. 6:3; Primary Reference, John 16:13.)

The Sower and the Seed

13 The same day went Jesus out of the house, ^aand sat by the sea side.

2 ^aAnd great multitudes were gathered together unto him, so that ^bhe went into a ship, and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore.

3 And he spake many things unto them in parables, saying, ^aBehold, a sower went forth to sow;

4 And when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the fowls came and devoured them up:

5 Some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and ¹forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth:

6 And when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away.

7 And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up, and choked them:

8 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some ^aan hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold.

12:46-50. The chapter closes with a reference to my mother and my brethren. These brothers are presumably the children of Joseph and Mary born after the virgin birth of Jesus. While some have attempted to view them as cousins, this certainly is not implied in the Gospels. By asking, Who is my mother? Jesus called attention away from earthly relationships to more important spiritual relationships. This saying was not intended to be one of disrespect to Mary or to His brothers, for they too would come to share the spiritual relationship. However, there is no suggestion here at all that Jesus' mother had any special access to His presence or any particular influence over Him. By using this startling question, Jesus prepared the crowd to receive the precious truth that whosoever shall do the will of my Father was, in fact, His mother, His brother, and His sister.

13:1-3. On one of the busiest days of Jesus' earthly ministry He gave an extended series of parables (seven in Matthew and four in Mark, including one not given in Matthew). This is the turning point in Matthew's gospel. Already sensing His impending rejection, Jesus now expresses the "mystery" form of the kingdom that will feature the church. His early ministry involved a proclamation of the spiritual principles of the kingdom. To bring in a political kingdom before men were born again would be a travesty. Therefore, an interval is now announced between the Messiah's original appearance and His final return. That interval is the church age, during which believers are citizens of the kingdom that is within them (Luke 17:21).

13:3. This section introduces a new subject, a new approach, and a new method of teaching by parables. He spake ... in parables, a common method of teaching in the Near East, used to convey spiritual truth through a series of earthly comparisons.

13:3-10. The first parable is set in an agricultural context. A sower went forth refers to the ancient seed sower, planting a crop. Jesus later interpreted this parable Himself. The seed depicts the Word of God (v. 19) and thus the sower is the gospel evangelist. The way side is the path trampled through the field. It was packed hard and the seed found no root, thus the fowls (demons? v. 19, wicked one[s]) snatched it away. Here there was no response at all to the gospel. The second category is called stony places or the rocky ledge beneath a thin, shallow layer of soil. This thin crust would warm quickly causing the seed to sprout instantly but without adequate rootage or moisture. Thus, the sun ... scorched the crop and it withered away. The third group of seeds fell among thorns that had not been plowed. The thorns (wild growth) choked out the crop. The good ground represents well-plowed and prepared soil capable of producing a large crop. The statement Who hath ears to hear goes beyond physical hearing and implies an inner spiritual reception of truth. This prompted the disciples to ask why He had spoken to them in parables. Whereas before, He had used parables to illustrate His messages, now they formed the basis of the message.

9 “Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables?

11 He answered and said unto them, Because “it is given unto you to know the ¹mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given.

12 “For whosoever hath, to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away even that he hath.

13 Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.

14 And in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Esaias, which saith, “By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand; and seeing ye shall see, and shall not ^bperceive:

15 For this people’s heart is ¹waxed gross, and their ears ^aare dull of hearing, and their eyes they have ^bclosed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should ²be converted, and I ³should ^cheal them.

13:11–13. The Savior’s reply is that only the disciples are to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven. A “mystery” in the Bible implies a sacred secret into which one must be initiated in order to understand it. The mystery revealed would be the new form of the kingdom during the interval between the first and second advents.

13:18, 19. Jesus interpreted this parable Himself in verses 18–23. The sower is Christ working through the agency of His disciples to spread the gospel throughout the world. No longer is the message to be restricted to the house of Israel, but is to be declared to all people. The word of the kingdom is the gospel proclamation of Jesus as King and is not to be limited to an Old Testament, Jewish-only message. These parables clearly illustrate that the church is the present-day form of the kingdom. The key to interpreting the reception of the seed into the ground is the term understandeth, meaning to comprehend by believing faith (cf. v. 23). The unsaved listener does not understand and does not receive the seed, whereas the believer both hears and “understands” the message, and his life produces fruit to prove it.

13:20–23. The stony places are shallow-hearted individuals who anon (at once) receive (outwardly) the message with joy. This emotional convert is not truly born again, for hath he not root and withers away. The one who is among the thorns (cares of this world) is the carnal, worldly convert, who never really breaks with his past. Worldliness and materialism choke the word in his life, and he is finally unfruitful (unsaved). The one who received seed in the good ground is the one who both heard the word and understood it, which also beareth fruit (evidence of true conversion). While such evidence may vary in its amount, all true believers will produce some fruit.

13:24–27. This parable serves as a warning to the laborers in the field (the world, v. 38). Unlike the Jewish form of the kingdom in the Old Testament, where citizens could be easily recognized, during the church heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

25 But while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

26 But when the ¹blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

27 So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

28 He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up?

29 But he said, Nay; lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but ^agather the wheat into my barn.

The Mustard Seed and the Leaven

31 Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, ^aThe kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field:

32 Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the ¹greatest among herbs, and becometh a ^atree, so that the birds of the air come and ²lodge in the branches thereof.

35 That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, ^aI will open my mouth in parables; ^bI will utter things which have been kept secret from the foundation of the world.

The Tares Explained

36 Then Jesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, Declare unto us the parable of the tares of the field.

37 He answered and said unto them, ^aHe that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; age converts will be made from all over the world and received upon their profession of faith. Thus, it will be easier to slip in some counterfeits who profess the church, which is the subject of these parables. The enemy is Satan and the tares (Gr. zizanon, "darnel") are false converts. The darnel was a weed that resembled wheat but did not come to fruition. The good seed ... sprung up, and brought forth fruit again, emphasizing that true converts produce fruitful lives. By contrast, false converts produce no lasting fruit.

13:28-30. The servants asked what could be done with these tares. To uproot them would be to damage the entire crop. Root up ... the wheat with them: The implication seems to be that too much scathing of people's genuineness of faith may damage the saved before it exposes the lost. Let both grow together indicates that there will always be some false professors among true Christian believers until the time of harvest or judgment. Note that the tares are gathered, bound, and burned first, whereas the wheat is gathered into my barn (heaven).

13:31, 32. See Mark 4:30-34; Luke 13:18, 19. The mustard seed is unusually small and yet grows to a great size. The idea seems to be that the tiny beginning of the church will eventually culminate in great growth. Herbs (Gr. lachanon) are garden plants or vegetables. However, such numerical growth will come to harbor the birds (evil ones). The parable accordingly foreshadows the growth of the church into a world power. However, outward growth is not always a true picture of spiritual depth.

13:33-35. Kingdom of heaven is the spiritual form of the kingdom in the church. Leaven is a lump of old dough in a state of fermentation, which makes the bread dough rise. It is virtually always used as a symbol of evil (cf. Matt. 16:6-12; Mark 8:15; Gal. 5:9). Three measures of meal, a common baking quantity (cf. Gen. 18:6), equivalent to one-and-a-half gallons (Gr. saton; Heb. seah). The leaven is not just false profession of unsaved church members but false doctrine that they will attempt to bring into the church.

13:45, 46. The merchant man is Christ, who comes to purchase, through His atonement, sinners who shall become goodly pearls. The one pearl of great price is the church for whom Christ gave His life, that is, all that he had. If the pearl is Christ or the kingdom, for whom a man must give all in order to obtain, then no one has ever yet given all that he has for Christ. While we receive Him as Savior, we also progressively continue surrendering areas of ourselves to Him as we come to know better His will for our lives.

In such a process all kinds of fish and other objects would be caught together. The good were put into vessels, while the bad were cast away to be burned of fire (in hell). The imagery is similar to the parable of the tares (vv. 24–30).

13:53–58. Jesus then gave His disciples a firsthand opportunity to witness the truth of these parables in action by teaching at the synagogue in His home-

KINGDOM PARABLES

13:52. In the Gospel of Matthew, the kingdom of heaven receives special treatment. The terms kingdom of heaven and kingdom of God are often used interchangeably to refer to the whole body of believers. The seven parables in Matthew 13 prophetically describe the course of this age. First, there will come a period of sowing the gospel throughout the world (vv. 1–23). Second there will occur a counter-sowing by Satan (vv. 24–30, 36–43). Third, there will be an outward growth of Christendom, but not necessarily of the true church. It will grow from insignificant beginnings to exert worldwide influence (vv. 31, 32). The fourth parable of leaven (principle of corruption) contrasts true doctrine with the false doctrine sown by a corrupt church in an unconverted world (vv. 33–35). The fifth parable pictures Christ seeking the lost in all the world (v. 44), to gather a special people to Himself. The sixth parable of the lost pearl represents Christ finding the church (vv. 45, 46). The last parable tells how God will end the age in judgment (vv. 47–51). Illustration: Some believe that the seven parables, like the seven churches (Rev. 2, 3), suggest a development of the gospel in this age. Application: Even though the parables show growth of the church, each Christian should plant the seed of the gospel in the hearts of others. (First Reference, Ps. 126:5, 6; Primary Reference, Matt. 13:1–52; cf. Ezek. 37:11–14.)

12 And his disciples came, and took up the body, and buried it, and went and told Jesus.

Five Thousand Fed

13 ^aWhen Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert town (Nazareth, not Capernaum). The people were astonished, that is, greatly amazed or astounded. Carpenter's son refers to the family trade of Joseph, Jesus' legal guardian and earthly "father," being the husband of Mary. The word carpenter (Gr. tektōn) may refer to either a carpenter or a stonemason. The indication is that Jesus had learned His family's trade. There is no valid reason for understanding brethren and sisters in any sense but the normal one. They are Jesus' half brothers and half sisters, the children naturally generated by Joseph and Mary after Jesus' virgin birth. Two of them, James and Judas (Jude), wrote New Testament epistles and played a prominent role in the early church.

14:1, 2. The occasion of John's death signaled a time for Jesus to retreat, lest He provoke an early death, before the appointed time. Herod the tetrarch is Herod Antipas, the son of Herod the Great, the ruler of Galilee and Perea. His ignorance of Jesus prior to this time is probably due to his self-indulgent, luxurious life-style that had little contact with religious figures. His guilty conscience over John's death caused him to think Jesus was John the Baptist risen from the dead.

14:3-8. John had been arrested because he challenged the legitimacy of Herod's divorce and incestuous remarriage. Herodias was the daughter of Aristobulus, a half brother of Antipas. She had been married to her uncle, Herod Philip, and had borne him a daughter, Salome. However, she divorced her husband and married Antipas, who was already married. Herodias was a guilty and vindictive woman who wanted John dead, and she devised a plan to get rid of him. At the king's birthday party, her daughter performed a provocatively enticing dance which so appealed to the drunken Herod that he promised with an oath she could have whatever she wanted. She asked for John Baptist's head in a charger (a table platter).

14:13-19. The feeding of the five thousand is the Lord's only miracle recorded in each of the four Gos-

14:1 Herod Antipas, identified as Herod the tetrarch in the Gospels, was the son of Herod the Great and brother of Archelaus (2:22). Of the Herods, Antipas figures most prominently in the Gospels since he ruled over the regions where both John the Baptist and Jesus conducted most of their ministries—Perea and Galilee. Antipas is remembered primarily for his imprisonment and execution of John the Baptist. Antipas had married his brother Philip's wife, Herodias. Though Antipas respected and feared John, nevertheless he had John beheaded as the result of a plot by Herodias. The Gospels mention three occasions involving Jesus and Antipas. The first relates Antipas's fear when he learned of Jesus' ministry. He feared that John whom he had beheaded was resurrected (14:2). The second (Luke 13:31-33) relates the fear of others that Antipas would kill Jesus as He passed through Perea on His final trip to Jerusalem. On the third occasion Antipas finally meets Jesus, when He was sent from Pilate to be examined (Luke 23:6-12). After a long reign of 43 years (4 B.C.-A.D. 39) Antipas was deposed by Rome and exiled. 16 But Jesus said unto them, They need not depart; give ye them to eat.

17 And they say unto him, We have here but five loaves, and two fishes.

18 He said, Bring them hither to me.

19 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the grass, and took the five loaves, and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, ^ahe blessed, and brake, and gave the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

20 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full.

23 ^aAnd when he had sent the multitudes away, he went up into a mountain ¹apart to pray: ^band when the evening was come, he was there alone.

24 But the ship was now in the ¹midst of the sea, tossed with waves: for the wind was contrary.

25 And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea.

26 And when the disciples saw him ^awalking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a ¹spirit; and they cried out for fear.

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, ¹Be of good ^acheer; ²it is I; be not afraid.

28 And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water.

29 And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus.

30 But when he saw the wind ¹boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me.

31 And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of ^alittle faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?

pels (Mark 6:30–44; Luke 9:10–17; John 6:1–13). According to John, Andrew, who had brought Peter to Jesus, now brought a boy's lunch consisting merely of five loaves, and two fishes (small baked rolls and dried fish, an adequate lunch for a boy, but hardly a crumb for the immense crowd). The simplicity of the story and its inclusion by all four evangelists should eliminate any doubt of its historical accuracy.

14:20, 21. Not only is the miracle itself amazing but its result was equally stunning. Twelve baskets full of fragments remained over and above what was eaten. The baskets (Gr. kophinoi) were small, carried on the arm, and used as a satchel. These may have belonged to the disciples, who received a basket full of blessing as a result of their labor to feed others. Collection of the fragments emphasized the adequacy and immensity of Christ's provision. Besides the five thousand men a large uncounted group of women and children were fed.

14:22–27. Following the miraculous feeding, which John relates in the discourse on the Bread of Life (John 6:22–59), the disciples departed across the sea (of Galilee) by rented ship. Jesus dismissed the crowd and went up into a mountain ... to pray. That night, about three miles out in the lake (John 6:19), the disciples encountered great difficulty from a wind that was contrary. During the fourth watch, three to six A.M., Jesus came to them walking on the sea. The nearly exhausted disciples, who had been rowing all night, were afraid, thinking He was a spirit (Gr. phantasma), that is, a ghost or apparition. Jesus reassured them, saying, It is I.

14:28–32. Peter answered him in his characteristically impulsive manner. This part of the story is recounted only by Matthew, who was in the boat and on whom it must have made a deep impression. The incident is not presented as a parable, but as an actual event involving three miracles. Jesus walks on the water, Peter temporarily does so, and the wind ceases immediately.

33 Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth ^athou art the Son of God.

34 ^aAnd when they ¹were gone over, they came into the land of Genesaret.

35 And when the men of that place ¹had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased;

36 And ¹brought him that they might only ^atouch the hem of his garment: and ^bas many as touched were made perfectly ²whole.

14:33-36. The disciples worshipped him and recognized Him as the Son of God. Their spoken Aramaic of this phrase was a clear recognition of the deity of Jesus. No mere man deserved their worship and no mere man could do what He had done. It is no surprise that the people of Genesaret, on the plain to the northwest of the Sea of Galilee, were healed by simply touching the hem of his garment. This procedure may have been motivated by reports of the cure of hemorrhage that had previously occurred in this same region (cf. 9:20).

15:1, 2a. See Mark 7:1-23. Of Jerusalem: Apparently the central religious leaders came to investigate the ministry and teaching of Jesus. The tradition of the elders: Many Jews of the Lord’s time believed that, in addition to the written law of Moses, there was an oral law given to Moses on Sinai. This oral law, they believed, was passed down from Moses by word of mouth until it reached the great synagogue or council of elders, which succeeded Ezra after the return from the Exile. This council seems to have been the source of the many additions to the law of God that have been found in Judaism, ancient and modern.

15:2b-9. Wash not their hands: The washing consisted of a ritual of pouring a trickle of cold water over the outstretched hands. The Jews were not concerned so much with cleanliness as with ritual. Why do ye also transgress? The Lord here shows that additions to the Word of God ultimately contradict it.

15:15-20. Peter, acting on behalf of the others, asks for an explanation of the saying that had given such offense. Our Lord proceeds to elaborate the teaching for their benefit. Draught (Gr. aphedron) means literally “latrine.” They defile: The “they” is emphatic. Evil thoughts are evil schemes. Blasphemies refers not only to blasphemy in the modern, narrow sense of the word, but also to criticism or libel of others.

34 And Jesus saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven, and a few little fishes.

15:21–25. The second withdrawal of Jesus followed John’s death and further rejection by the religious leadership of Israel. Thus, Jesus actually left the country and went into parts of Tyre and Sidon, leaving Herod’s jurisdiction to retire to Phoenicia for a time of seclusion. This was interrupted by the woman of Canaan (lit., “Canaanitish woman”). Mark 7:26 calls her a Syrophenician woman. The word translated “coasts” (Gr. merē) means “districts.” This is the only known occasion during His ministry that the Lord went outside the boundaries of Palestine. The woman was a Gentile and descended from the Canaanites who inhabited Syria and Palestine before the conquest of the latter by Joshua.

15:26–28. By children the Lord means Jews, and by dogs, Gentiles. His attitude was intended to test the woman’s faith, which was rewarded by a miraculous healing. The term used for dogs (Gr. kuhariois) means little dogs (pets), not wild, scavenging beasts. She replied that such dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their master’s table. She knew what could be hers, even as a Gentile, and thus became an illustration of millions of Gentiles who would later be blessed by Israel’s Messiah. Great is thy faith: Jesus again commends Gentile belief (cf. 8:10).

15:29–39. See also Mark 7:31—8:10. The supposition that this is a confused duplicate account of the feeding of the five thousand must be rejected. Both Matthew and Mark include the accounts of the two events in a way that indicates they quite clearly knew them to be two separate miracles. The incident evidently took place on the southeast shore of Galilee, near Gentile Decapolis. Therefore, many Gentiles seem to be among His listeners who glorified the God of Israel. This feeding took place after the crowd had been with Him for three days and were fed with seven loaves and a few little fishes which were then distributed in a manner similar to the other feeding. This time seven baskets full remained. These baskets (Gr. spuridas) were much larger than those in 14:20. Each basket could hold about 50 loaves, and was the kind used to lower Paul down the city wall in Acts 9:25. In 16:9, 10 Jesus refers to both feedings as separate events, even referring to the different numbers and using the different words for the baskets.

35 And he commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground.

36 And ^ahe took the seven loaves and the fishes, and ^bgave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude.

37 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the ¹broken meat that was left seven baskets full.

38 And they that did eat were four thousand men, beside women and children.

39 ^aAnd he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.

The Request for a Sign from Heaven

16 The ^aPharisees also with the Sadducees came, and ¹tempting ²desired him that he would shew them a sign from heaven.

The Confession of Simon Peter

13 When Jesus came into the ¹coasts of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, “Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?

14 And they said, “Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or ^bone of the prophets.

15 He saith unto them, But whom say ^aye that I am?

16 And Simon Peter answered and said, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

16:1-12. The unbelieving leaders came seeking a sign from heaven, that is, an outward miraculous manifestation. Notice that miracles alone never save anyone. They serve only to authenticate and call attention to the message, which must be believed in order for salvation to be experienced in the soul. Instead of another miracle, Jesus points them to the signs of the times, eschatologically related to the sky and His second coming. The sign of the prophet Jonas (Jonah) relates to His resurrection (see 12:38-40; John 2:18-22). This sign gives hope to the believer but is an indication of judgment for the unbeliever, who will be judged by the risen Christ at His second coming.

16:13-17. See Mark 8:27-33; Luke 9:19-21. The coasts of Caesarea Philippi: This was a town in the extreme northeast of Galilee, near the source of the Jordan. Verse 14 shows that public opinion placed our Lord on the highest human pedestal by identifying Him with one of the national heroes of the past, John the Baptist. Herod himself was a victim of this particular superstition. (See 14:2.) From 21:15 we know that He was held in high esteem as a prophet by the people. Thou art the Christ: Simon Peter recognized and acknowledged openly the Lord's deity. He may have been speaking for all the disciples. Verse 20 suggests that it was a conviction they all now shared. Peter further used the Greek definite article “the” to designate that Jesus was the Son of the living God.

17 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: "for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but ^bmy Father which is in heaven.

²Gr. petra, lit. large rock
16:19 ^aMatt. 18:18; John 20:23

16:18. The Greek word used for rock (petra) is played against the name Peter (Gr. Petros). Some use this passage to teach that Peter was the foundation stone of the church, that he had a primacy among the apostles, and that he became Bishop of Rome. The verse will scarcely bear the first of these propositions and certainly none of the others. Peter may be meant by the rock, but he is not the exclusive foundation. For the twelvefold foundation of the apostles of the church, see Ephesians 2:20 and Revelation 21:14. This seems borne out by the fact that the same words are spoken to all the disciples in Matthew 18:18 as are spoken to Simon Peter in 16:19. Therefore, the rock or foundation of the church is the confession (ultimately, the doctrine) of the apostles, which became normative for the true church.

The word here translated church (Gr. ekklēsia) means literally "a chosen or called-out assembly." Thus the use of the word as a technical term for an assembly or group of believers in Christ was quite natural. It is not viewed as an external organization, denomination, or hierarchical system. The New Testament church, therefore, is a local autonomous congregation or assembly of believers, which is a "church" in and of itself. This is the first occurrence of the word in the New Testament. Since the commission in Matthew 10 sent the apostles only to the "house of Israel," and no further commission was given until chapter 28, there was no worldwide task for the disciples until the physical manifestation of the church on the Day of Pentecost.

Jesus promises that the gates of hell shall not prevail against the church. The phrase shall not prevail should be understood as meaning "shall not stand against." The imagery would then picture the church as being on the offensive against the gates of hell. Here hell (Gr. haidēs) probably represents the kingdom of Satan, not just death and the grave. While Jesus' resurrection certainly will overcome the sting of death, it will also enable His church to aggressively and offensively attack the gates of hell (cf. usage as Satan's kingdom in Job 38:17; Is. 38:10; Ps. 107:18) by snatching out victims from darkness into His glorious kingdom of light. The church is on the offensive here and hell is on the defensive.

16:19, 20. The Lord promises to Peter and the other apostles the keys of the kingdom. This means that 16:13 Caesarea Philippi was a Greek town in the northernmost regions of Palestine (120 miles north of Jerusalem and 50 miles southwest of Damascus) situated in a beautiful location at the foot of Mount Hermon, and the headwaters of the Jordan River. It had been called Panias, honoring the Greek god Pan. Herod the Great built a marble temple there to Caesar Augustus.

Herod's son, Philip the tetrarch, further adorned the city and renamed it in honor of Caesar. To distinguish it from the city on the coast he identified it as "of Philip," hence, Caesarea Philippi. This city is mentioned only twice in the New Testament, both passages relating Peter's great confession that Jesus is "the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matt. 16:13–16; Mark 8:27–29). The transfiguration of Christ probably took place on the nearby slopes of Mount Hermon (Matt. 17:1–13). The Greek name is preserved in the present Syrian town of nine thousand, named Baniyas.

SON OF GOD

16:16. When the expression Son of God is used concerning Christ, it delineates the relationship between the first two members of the Trinity. The Hebrew expression Son of implies one with the same nature as the father. In this sense there is no real difference between "Son of God" and "God the Son." Both emphasize the deity of Christ and His unique relationship with the Father. Illustration: When Jesus identified God as His Father, implying that He was "the Son of God," the Jews understood this as a claim to deity (John 5:18). When Peter identified Jesus as the "the Son of the living God" (v. 16), it was the result of spiritual insight (v.17). Application: As we become increasingly intimate with Christ, we should also become increasingly aware that Jesus is the Son of God. (First Reference, Ps. 2:7; Primary Reference, Matt. 16:16; cf. John 3:16.)

CHURCH

16:18. The word church is a translation of ekklēsia, meaning "called out" or "assembly." In the New Testament it usually refers to a local group of Christians. In this sense a church is an assembly of baptized believers under the discipline of the Word of God. They are organized to carry out the Great Commission, the administration of New Testament ordinances, and the exercise of spiritual gifts. When a group of Christians today follows this example, it is a church in the biblical sense of the word. In the New Testament, Christians assembled as churches for fellowship, instruction, and worship, and to carry out the Great Commission. Illustration: Perhaps the best-known New Testament churches were at Jerusalem, Antioch, Thessalonica, Philippi, Corinth, Ephesus, and the other six cities mentioned in Revelation 2 and 3. Application: Every Christian should follow the example of New Testament believers by identifying with a local church, and getting involved in its ministry. (First Reference, Matt. 16:18; Primary Reference, Matt. 16:18; cf. Acts 2:42.)

Peter will have the right to enter the kingdom himself, and preaching the gospel would be the means of opening the kingdom of heaven. The Book of Acts shows us this process at work. By his sermon on the Day of Pentecost (Acts 2:14-40), Peter opened the door of the kingdom for the first time. The expressions bind and loose were common in Jewish legal phraseology, meaning to declare forbidden or to declare allowed. Peter and the other disciples (see 18:18) were to continue on earth the work of Christ in preaching the gospel and declaring God's will to men, and were armed with the same authority He Himself possessed.

16:21. Jesus then announces His coming rejection and death at Jerusalem. From that time forth: Now that the disciples' faith is established enough to bear it, He openly reveals His coming rejection. Thus, from this point onward, the Lord's ministry seeks to prepare His followers for the suffering that awaited Him and that would so disappoint their hopes. Elders were the religious leaders. The word probably denotes members of the Sanhedrin. The words killed and raised again the third day clearly indicate the divine Messiah's awareness of His earthly mission and destiny.

16:22-28. Be it far from thee: The sentence seems to mean literally "Have mercy on yourself," 25 For “whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.

26 For what is a man “profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or ^bwhat shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

27 For “the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father ^bwith his angels; ^cand then he shall reward every man according to his works.

10 And his disciples asked him, saying, “Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come?

11 And Jesus answered and said which would signify, “God forbid!” Peter’s instantaneous reaction to our Lord’s new teaching shows how foreign to their way of thinking was this concept of His suffering. Satan: The Lord recognized in Peter’s words a repetition of the temptations to avoid the cross that He had undergone in the wilderness. The word translated offence (Gr. skandalon) means a “trap” or “snare.” Savourest (Gr. phroneō) means, “You don’t look at things from God’s point of view, but from man’s.” It occurs in Romans 8:5 and Philippians 2:5, meaning to adopt and maintain an attitude of mind upon which one’s life and actions are based. Deny himself, that is, refuse his own claims upon himself. Take up: The meaning is “lift up.” It is a stronger word than that used in 10:38, and implies a lifting of the cross on high, so that all may see it. This is the strongest statement in the New Testament about the disciple’s need to crucify himself, by yielding to the claims of Christ’s lordship over him.

17:1–9. See Mark 9:2–13; Luke 9:28–36. Peter, James, and John represent the “inner circle” of leadership among the disciples (cf. Luke 8:51; Matt. 26:37) and serve here as ample witnesses according to Mosaic Law. They went into a high mountain apart, meaning privately, by themselves. Tradition claims this took place at Mount Tabor, but a more probable location would be Mount Hermon, near Caesarea Philippi. Jesus was transfigured before them. The verb (Gr. meta morphōō) indicates a transformation of essential form, proceeding from within. See Romans 12:2 and 2 Corinthians 3:18, where it is used of the spiritual transformation of the believer’s new nature. The witness of Peter in 2 Peter 1:17, 18 verifies the testimony that this was a real experience, not a vision.

COMING OF ELIJAH

17:11. During the first half of the Great Tribulation, two witnesses will begin to preach, having the power of God to perform miracles similar to those of Moses and Elijah (Rev. 11:6). One of these witnesses will probably be Elijah, who will appear before the Messiah returns (Mal. 3:1;

4:5, 6). Illustration: While noting the similarity between Elijah’s future ministry and that of John the Baptist in revealing Him to the nation, Jesus also confirmed the still future role of Elijah. Some have speculated the other witness may be Enoch, who also went to heaven without dying (cf. Heb. 9:27), or Moses, whose body was guarded by Michael (Jude 9) and who appeared transfigured with Jesus and Elijah (v. 3). Application: The world will largely reject the ministry of these witnesses, and even after their death and subsequent resurrection, will continue to live in sin and follow the Beast. (First Reference, Mal. 3:1; Primary Reference, Matt. 17:11; cf. Rev. 19:11.)

unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things.

12 “But I say unto you, That Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them.

13 “Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.

The Least Is the Greatest

18 At ^athe same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little ^achild unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, ^aExcept ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

4 ^aWhosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

5 And ^awhoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.

6 ^aBut whoso shall ¹offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

7 Woe unto the world because of ¹offences! for ^ait must needs be that offences come; but ^bwoe to that man by whom the offence cometh!

8 ^aWherefore if thy hand or thy foot ¹offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life ²halt or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into everlasting fire.

17:24–27. Jesus, the glorified Son of God, is greater than demons and also the temple itself. The two incidents following the Transfiguration clearly reassert His supremacy. Tribute money (lit., “two drachmae”) is a technical term for the tax of half a shekel which every Jew over 20 was expected to contribute to the upkeep of the temple. Prevented, meaning “preceded,” that is, to speak first, of strangers: The subject races were taxed first and most heavily. The children, the king’s own race, were free. Jesus Christ was the Lord and owner of the temple, and therefore it was not for Him to pay the tax. However, our Lord would not give offense by seeming to be a lawbreaker. A piece of money (Gr. statēr), the silver tetradrachma, was equivalent to the shekel and therefore the exact amount of the tax for two persons.

18:1–4. The dispute over who is the greatest was settled by Jesus’ emphasis that it was the one who was willing to forgive the most! Be converted means a “turning” (Gr. strephō) of one’s whole life and person toward God. This is the true biblical picture of conversion. It is far more than mental acknowledgment of the truth or intellectual assent to certain ideas. To become as little children means to be born again (converted) as a newborn spiritual child, characterized by faith and humility.

18:5–7. The little child represents a new convert or young believer. To receive such a fellow believer is to welcome Christ Himself. Therefore, the basis of true Christian fellowship is established in Christ Himself. Offences are viewed as a reality that must be accepted in the present world, but woe (the prophetic condemnation to death) to the one who is the source of the offense. A millstone is literally an “ass-stone,” or a large grindstone turned by an ass.

18:8–14. The hand, eye, and foot are not the real source of temptation; nor are they the real cause of offending others. Just as temptation arises from within, so does offending others and being offended. The reference to their angels (v. 10) supports the idea of 9 And if thine eye ¹offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into ²hell fire.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven ^atheir angels do always ^bbehold the face of my Father which is in heaven.

11 ^aFor the Son of man is come to save that which was lost.

A Lost Sheep

12 ^aHow think ye? if a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and goeth into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray?

13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray.

14 Even so it is not the ^awill of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish.

A Trespassing Brother

15 Moreover ^aif thy brother ¹shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, ^bthou hast gained thy brother.

21 Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? ^auntil seven times?

An Unforgiving Servant

23 Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, ¹which would take account of his servants.

24 And when he had begun to ¹reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand talents.

25 But forasmuch as he ¹had not to pay, his lord commanded him ^ato be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made.

individual guardian angels for believers (see Heb. 1:14). Salvation is not just a privilege to be enjoyed by a select few, but it is also to be shared with the lost, so that they too may be saved. Thus, it is not the Father's will that any of these "little ones" should perish. The immediate context in Matthew relates "little ones" to believers, but the cross-reference in Luke 15:3-7 clearly refers to lost sheep. Thus we may conclude that it is not the ultimate wish (or desire) of God that anyone perish. While God permits man to perish in his unbelief, He does not sentence him to such condemnation against his will.

18:15-18. The setting of these verses fits into the context of church discipline. The responsibility of action is threefold: (1) personal, go and tell him; (2) private, two or three witnesses; and (3) corporate, tell it unto the church. Tell him his fault means to honestly express the point of offense. This should not be done in vindictive anger, but it must be done in straightforward honesty. To fail to speak up is to be dishonest and will lead to harboring continued bitterness. The last phrase of verse 16 is taken from Deuteronomy 19:15. Neglect, better said, "refuse," as an heathen man and a publican: as those who would not be admitted into the church. The obstinate sinner is to be cut off, at least temporarily, from Christian fellowship. Examples of this are found in 1 Corinthians 5:4, 5 and 1 Timothy 1:20.

18:21, 22. All this teaching on forgiveness seemed overwhelming to the disciples, thus prompting Peter's question: Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me? Peter wrongly assumes that seven times are ample to forgive anyone. Jesus responds that seven is not only insufficient but that one should forgive seventy times seven, in other words, unlimited forgiveness must characterize the true disciple.

18:23-27. The parable of the unforgiving servant (vv. 23-35) is used by Jesus to reinforce the power and importance of the principle of forgiveness. A certain king represents God, the sovereign Father (cf. v. 35), to 26 The servant therefore fell down, and ¹worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

29 And his fellow servant fell down at his feet, and ¹besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all.

30 And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

31 So when his fellow servants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done.

whom the debt is owed. The one who owed him is a servant or satrap who had access to the king’s money, and represents the individual sinner. Ten thousand talents was an insurmountable debt equivalent to millions of dollars in our currency. It represents the debt of sin, which the sinner cannot possibly pay by himself. The command that he be sold ... and payment to be made indicates his being placed in a debtor’s prison. In compassion the king releases him and forgives (cancels) the debt. The picture illustrates God’s total forgiveness when dealing with our sins at the point of salvation. The debt has been paid by Christ and we are set free from it forever!

18:28–35. The contrast in verse 28, where the same servant is unwilling to forgive his fellow servant a debt of an hundred pence (about 10 dollars), is deliberately presented as a hideous hypothetical situation. As unbelievable as this action would be, that is how unbelievable it would be for a Christian disciple, who has been forgiven a lifetime of sin, to be unforgiving of others. In the story, such an unforgiving servant is called a wicked servant because no true believer would do such. A truly saved man would never behave like the man in the story, who was delivered to the tormentors (Gr. basanistēs, “torturers” or “jailers”). This is certainly not a reference to purgatory. One behaving in this manner falls into the condemnation of the lost. True forgiveness “from the heart” of a regenerate man is one of the signs of genuine salvation and conversion (cf. Eph. 4:32). Saved people are both forgiven and forgiving. Unforgiving people prove that they have never been born of God.

19:1, 2. Verse 1 indicates the close of another division of the gospel (see 7:28). With verse 2 it describes very briefly a journey from Galilee into the district of Judea beyond Jordan (Perea). The journey must have taken considerable time, and the events of Luke 9:51–18:34 must largely be fitted into that time period.

19:3–6. The Pharisees come tempting Him with a difficult question. They want to test His wisdom with one of the most controversial questions of their day, and Jesus proves far superior to their expectations. Is it lawful: They sought to challenge His interpretation of Mosaic Law in Deuteronomy 24:1–5, where a “bill of divorcement” was required. The more strict school of Shammai held that divorce was lawful only upon a wife’s shameful conduct; whereas, the more liberal school of Hillel gave the widest possible allowances for divorce. Have ye not read: Jesus refers them to God’s original purpose in creation, that they should be one flesh. Genesis 2:24 indicates that being one flesh is one new entity, and is not to be limited to 19:1 Perea, though it is never so named in the New Testament, was the eastern part of Palestine, sometimes referred to simply as “beyond Jordan” or “Trans-jordan” (cf. v. 1). It was a 10-mile-wide strip east of the Jordan River starting below Galilee and running 50 miles to the middle of the eastern shore of the Dead Sea. Perea (like Galilee) was a Jewish region under the rule of Herod Antipas. A road through Perea provided the route for Galilean Jews to travel to the Jerusalem feasts without passing through Samaria. The Jews regarded the Samaritans as defiled and therefore avoided them (cf. John 4:9). Near the end of Christ’s public ministry He had an extended tour through Perea (Luke 13–19).

JESUS' LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

sexual union. The Bible clearly indicates that sexual union does not itself constitute marriage, which is fundamentally a covenantal agreement between two partners for life (cf. Prov. 2:17; Mal. 2:14, “wife of thy covenant”).

19:7–9. The question Why did Moses then command? reveals the misuse of Deuteronomy 24 by the Jews of Jesus’ day. Moses did not command divorce. He permitted it. God had instituted marriage in the Garden of Eden. He is not the Author of divorce; man is its originator. However, to protect the Hebrew women from being taken advantage of by a verbal divorce, Moses commanded that it be done with a writing of divorcement, an official written contract, permitting remarriage. Some Jews tended to take this as an excuse or license to get divorced whenever they pleased. Therefore, Jesus gave one exception to the no-divorce intention of God, for fornication (Gr. porneia), “sexual sins,” not to be limited to premarital sex only, but it includes all types of sexual sin, such as adultery, homosexuality, and bestiality. Among the Jews, only the male could divorce, so Mark 10:12 reverses the statement for His Gentile audience.

19:10–12. Since divorce on any grounds was common in those days (cf. rabbinical literature) the disciples felt it is not good to marry. The severity of Jesus’ statement is in total contrast to the society of that day and represents the true intention of God. While divorce appears to be allowed in both Testaments (cf. Deut. 24:1–5; 1 Cor. 7:15, 27, 28), it is never encouraged. This is because it always violates God’s original intention in marriage. Jesus’ reply, All men cannot receive this saying, indicates that some are called to be married and remain married; others (who cannot accept this) are called never to marry.

19:13–17. See the parallel accounts in Mark 10:17–31 and Luke 18:18–30. The little children, for whom Jesus cared so much, were evidently of sufficient age to respond to Him and He bade them come unto me, revealing that even a child may follow Christ. By contrast to their simple obedience came the complex, young rich man calling Jesus Good Master, which the Savior challenged, not to deny His own deity, but to impress upon this seeker the seriousness of the implication. “Are you sure you really mean that?” would be a modern paraphrase. The young man’s question What good thing shall I do? implies that he wanted to perform some work that might gain him eternal life (salvation). The Master’s reply, If thou wilt enter into life, implies that the young man was still on the

DIVORCE

19:3. Divorce was never part of God’s perfect plan for human experience, but every generation has engaged to some degree in this practice. Because of the hardness of men’s hearts, divorce was permitted under the law in cases of fornication, which would include all unorthodox sexual practices, that is, adultery, homosexuality, bestiality, and so on. While divorce is permitted, it is not necessarily prescribed. Illustration: God used the experience of Hosea, a prophet with an unfaithful wife, to teach a spiritual lesson to the people of that day. Application: A person should be very careful in taking any action to dissolve a marriage, fully understanding the extreme seriousness of such a move. (First Reference, Deut. 24:1; Primary Reference, Matt. 19:3–9; cf. Num. 13:1.)

15 And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

The Rich Young Man

16 ^aAnd, behold, one came and said unto him, ^bGood ¹Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?

18 He saith unto him, Which? Jesus said, ^aThou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, 19 ^aHonour thy father and thy mother: and, ^bThou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

22 But when the young man heard that saying, he went away sorrowful: for he had great possessions.

23 Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, That ^{a1}rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven.

24 And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

25 When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?

26 But Jesus beheld them, and said unto them, With men this is impossible; but ^awith God all things are possible.

outside of such life. The imperative keep the commandments (v. 17) hits his point of pride—self-righteousness. Jesus goes to great lengths now to show him that he had not kept the commandments, and therefore needs God’s grace.

19:18–22. This list of commands in verse 18 centers on outward duties, rather than inward nature, which was the young man’s real problem. He protests that he had kept these outward demands. His luxurious wealth and self-righteousness had blinded him to his real weakness. To expose this, Jesus orders, go and sell all your possessions and give to the poor ... and come ... follow me (v. 21). This he would not do and went away sorrowful. Jesus thus shows him that he had not kept the commandments at all. He loved himself more than he loved his neighbor (“the poor”), and he loved his possessions more than he loved God (“me”). This passage teaches the seriousness of true discipleship, but it in no way teaches the average man that he must sell his possessions in order to be a Christian.

19:23–26. The further comment that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven shocked the disciples (v. 25, Who then can be saved?), who accepted the common notion of the day that the rich were blessed of God and therefore certainly saved. To correct that misunderstanding, Jesus explained the human difficulty for the rich to be converted. Hardly (Gr. duskolōs) implies with extreme difficulty, though not hopeless. The illustration of a camel going through the eye of a needle has been interpreted as a camel-hair rope going through a needle; or an actual camel squeezing through a small gate, “The Eye of a Needle,” next to the main gate at Jerusalem; or the absolute impossibility of a literal camel actually going through a tiny needle’s eye. This last usage is most likely.

19:27–30. In the regeneration (Gr. paliggenesia) refers to the renewed world of the future, the kingdom of righteousness yet to come. While the term is used for individual rebirth in Titus 3:5, here it looks to the future millennial kingdom where the apostles will judge Israel (literally). Forsaking earthly benefits will bring a hundredfold blessing and everlasting life.

INFANT SALVATION

19:14. Children who die before the age of accountability go to the presence of God and are considered safe in Jesus, rather than using the traditional word saved. This is based on the nature of God, who would not condemn anyone who lacked the ability to respond. Illustration:

Based on David’s words concerning a future meeting with his dead infant (2 Sam. 12:23), most Christians are assured that children who die before the age of accountability will be in heaven. How this is accomplished is open to speculation, since the Bible does not specifically say. The age of accountability is generally thought to be the time at which a child understands the difference between right and wrong. Application: Sometimes God will allow tragic events like the death of a child to enter our lives, so that we can understand and appreciate His comfort and be prepared to comfort others in their time of need (cf. 2 Cor. 1:3, 4). (First Reference, 2 Sam. 12:23; Primary Reference, Matt. 19:14.)

28 And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ^aye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

29 ^aAnd every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or ¹lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

30 ^aBut many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first.

The Parable of the Hired Labourers

20 For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an ¹householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard.

2 And when he had agreed with the labourers for a ¹penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

3 And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace,

4 And said unto them; Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way.

5 Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise.

6 And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle?

7 They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.

Jesus Predicts His Death

17 ^aAnd Jesus going up to Jerusalem took the twelve disciples apart in the way, and said unto them,

18 ^aBehold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be betrayed unto the chief priests and unto the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death,

19 ^aAnd shall deliver him to the Gentiles to ^bmock, and to ^cscourge,

20:1–14. This parable reinforces Jesus' teaching regarding true Christian service and riches. The householder is Christ Himself, the Master of the vineyard, the field of labor (service to the world through His church). Early in the morning: The first workers were hired at dawn. A penny (Gr. dēnariōn) represents a denarius, or a common day's wage. Others standing idle in the market place were not lazy but were in the usual place to seek employment. From this unemployed group, the householder hired additional workers at 9 A.M., noon, 3 P.M., and 5 P.M. The pay scale will be whatsoever is right, indicating Christ's justice to His laborers. When even [evening] was come, that is, at the end of the day, every man was paid the same wage. Therefore, the first hired laborers murmured against the Goodman. However, he reminded them that he had been just in paying them what they bargained for. The statement I will give unto this last, even as unto thee is Jesus' interpretation of "the last shall be first, and the first last" (v. 16). There is here, perhaps, a sweeping view of church history, in which those working in the last hour are promised blessing equal to that of His original disciples. Thus, Jesus warns against jealousy and impurity of motive in serving Him.

23 And he saith unto them, ^aYe shall drink indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to give, but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father.

Jesus' Compassion for Two Blind Men

29 ^aAnd as they departed from Jericho, a great multitude followed him.

30 And, behold, ^atwo blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Jesus passed by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou ^bson of David.

31 And the multitude ^arebuked¹ them, because they should hold their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, thou son of David.

32 And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?

33 They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened.

34 So Jesus had ^acompassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him.

20:17-28. See Mark 10:32-34; Luke 18:31-34. The journey to Jerusalem is now resumed after the stay in Perea. As the final events of His life draw nearer, the Lord again seeks to enlighten His disciples.

20:20-28. Zebedee's children: The two sons are the apostles James and John (4:21). Grant might better be translated "command." The request and the indignation of the others that follows show that the disciples are still thinking in terms of setting up an earthly kingdom, in spite of the clear prediction of suffering and death our Lord has just made. The cup and the baptism both refer to the Lord's suffering and death. His life (Gr. psuchē) could be translated "His soul." A ransom: This important phrase provides one of the occasions when the doctrine of substitutionary atonement is mentioned in the synoptic Gospels. It implies a price paid for the deliverance of captives. His life thus became the cost of our redemption. Many does not necessarily restrict the extent of His atonement (as contrasted to "all"), but it does indicate that not all would accept His offer of salvation.

20:29-34. See parallel accounts in Mark 10:46-52; Luke 18:35-43. Luke places this event on the approach to the city, whereas Mark and Matthew state as they departed from Jericho (v. 29). In actuality there were two Jerichos. The Roman city lay about a mile east of Herod's winter headquarters (also called Jericho) where the wealthy friends of the Herodian family lived, near the palace and fortress. The healing of the blind man evidently took place while Jesus was going from one city to the other. Luke's attention would be on the Herodian city where his next recorded event, the calling of Zaccheus, took place. Two blind men are mentioned by Matthew, while the other synoptists refer only to the more prominent Bartimeus. Rebuked by the crowd, they cry the louder, thou son of David, a messianic title, earlier avoided by Jesus in public, but now accepted as He approaches Jerusalem. The miracle of restoring their sight was total, so that afterward they followed him.

Jesus' Triumphal Entry

21 And ^awhen they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethphage, unto ^bthe mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples,

2 Saying unto them, Go into the village ¹over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ²ass tied, and a colt with her: ³loose them, and bring them unto me.

3 And if any man say ¹ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them; and straightway he will send them.

4 All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying,

5 ^aTell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, ¹meek, and sitting upon an ²ass, and a colt the foal of an ass.

6 ^aAnd the disciples went, and did as Jesus commanded them,

11 And the multitude said, This is Jesus ^athe prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

Jesus Cleanses the Temple

12 ^aAnd Jesus went into the temple of God, and ¹cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and ²overthrew the tables of the ^bmoneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves, 13 And said unto them, It is written, ^aMy house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a ^bden of thieves.

14 And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

15 And when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the ^ason of David; they were ¹sore displeased, 16 And said unto him, Hearst thou what these say? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea; have ye never read, ^aOut of the mouth of babes and ¹sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

17 And he left them, and ^awent out of the city into Bethany; and he lodged there.

The Withered Fig Tree

18 ^aNow in the morning as he returned into the city, he ¹hungered.

21:1-9. This event is traditionally known as the triumphal entry, when Jesus officially offers Himself to the nation of Israel as her long-awaited Messiah. However, in many ways it was far from a triumph, for the day ended in Jesus' public prediction of His rejection by His own people. (See Mark 11:1-10; Luke 19:29-39; John 12:12-15.) Bethphage was a village near Bethany, about a mile east of Jerusalem and apparently hidden from it by the summit of the Mount of Olives, which was the hill on the east of Jerusalem. The quotation in verse 5 is a combination of Isaiah 62:11 and Zechariah 9:9, taken substantially from the Septuagint, the ancient Greek translation of the Old Testament. Hosanna is the transliteration of a Hebrew term meaning "please save," and occurs in 2 Samuel 14:4 and Psalm 118:25. From the following verse of this psalm the acclamation Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord is taken. Riding on the colt of an ass marked the official entry of Israel's kings. Thus Jesus arrives in the full declaration of His kingship.

21:12-17. See Mark 11:15-19; Luke 19:45-47. A similar cleansing is recorded at the beginning of Jesus' ministry (cf. John 2:13-22), indicating His disdain for the corruption of organized religion which lacked purity of life and the power of God. In light of the seriousness of what He had come to do, Jesus could not tolerate such gross perversion of the temple, meaning the whole temple area on Mount Moriah including all the precincts and courts. Moneychangers: Temple dues could be paid only in sacred coinage, and it was necessary to change one's money. The selling of doves was for purposes of sacrifice. This exchange became a source of extortion for the family of the high priest, who personally controlled it. In reality, the atmosphere amounted to a public bazaar. It is written: In His condemnation, the Lord quotes from the Greek Septuagint version of Isaiah 56:7 and Jeremiah 7:11. Bethany was a village on the eastern shoulder of the Mount of Olives, a little more than a mile east of Jerusalem. It was the home of His friend Lazarus and Lazarus's sisters.

21:18-22. See also Mark 11:12-14, 20-26. The fig tree fruit generally appears in February, followed by leaves, which are not formed until late spring. So there 19 ^aAnd when he saw a fig tree ¹in the way, he came to it, and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever. And presently the fig tree withered away.

20 ^aAnd when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away!

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto you, ^aIf ye have faith, and ^bdoubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, ^cbut also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; it shall be done.

22 ^aAnd all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.

23 ^aAnd when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and ^bsaid, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?

24 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things.

The Parable of Two Sons

28 But what think ye? A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work to day in my ^avineyard.

29 He answered and said, I will not: but afterward he ¹repented, and went.

30 And he came to the second, and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go, sir: and went not.

31 Whether of them twain did the will of his father? They say unto him, The first. Jesus saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That the ¹publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you.

32 For ^aJohn came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: ^bbut the publicans and the harlots believed him: and ye, when ye had seen it, ¹repented not afterward, that ye might believe him.

The Parable of the Vineyard

33 Hear another parable: There was a certain ¹householder, which should normally have been some fruit on the tree. The fig tree was often used as a symbol of the nation of Israel (cf. Hos. 9:10; Joel 1:7) and when Jesus literally came upon a barren fig tree, He used the incident to fully illustrate Israel's desperate condition. The curse let no fruit grow ... for ever results in the almost immediate withering of the entire tree. While trees are nonmoral, they, like all of nature, are subject to the word of Christ. The disciples ... marvelled at how this could happen so fast.

21:23-27. On Jesus' third day of successive visits to the temple His authority is challenged by the ever-threatened chief priests, including the high priest, who was also president of the Sanhedrin, and elders, who were laymen or scribes and also served as members of the Jewish high court. In their own view, they are attempting to protect their laws and traditions against one who appeared to be a usurper who reinterpreted the law, rejected tradition, and overthrew the money changers. They ask by what authority He had done these controversial things. Knowing that they would never recognize any authority but their own, He refuses to answer them. Instead,

He asks them about the authority of the baptism of John, which they had never officially recognized. To acknowledge that it was from heaven would be to condemn themselves for not receiving it, and to claim it was of men (human origin) would upset the people. Their reply We cannot tell is cowardly and brings His clever response: Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

21:28-32. The parable of the two sons (vv. 28-32) follows as an exposé of the hypocrisy of the religious leaders, as a vindication of John's ministry, and as a vindication of the true work of God in general. The first son initially said I will not (v. 29), representing the immoral disobedience of the publicans and harlots who later repented under John's and Jesus' preaching. The second son promised to go but did not follow through with obedience. Jesus asked, "Which did the will of his father?" By answering, The first, the religious leaders condemned themselves. This very effective teaching method is commonly used in the Bible as the judicial parable, whereby the answerer condemns himself by the obviously implied response.

planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and ²let it out to ³husbandmen, and ^bwent into a far country:

34 And when the time of the ¹fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the ²husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it.

35 “And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another.

36 Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise.

37 But last of all he sent unto them his “son, saying, They will ¹revere my son.

38 But when the ¹husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, “This is the heir; ^bcome, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.

39 “And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

40 When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

41 “They say unto him, ^bHe will miserably destroy those wicked men, ^cand will ¹let out his vineyard unto other ²husbandmen, which shall ³render him the fruits in their seasons.

men, the householder represents God the Father, and the vineyard is Israel, a symbol of the theocracy that was familiar to the Jewish leaders (cf. Ps. 80:8-16; Is. 5:1-7). The husbandmen were the priests and religious leaders, and the far country is heaven. The anticipated fruit represents spiritual evidence of true conversion, which was to be the end result of the work of the husbandmen. The servants sent by the owner represent the Old Testament prophets who came to correct religious abuses in the nation and were also rejected by their contemporaries (though venerated by subsequent generations). Last of all indicates that Jesus was God’s final emissary to Israel. None has ever appeared since Him, and none ever will until the Jews recognize Christ as their final Prophet and Messiah. The desire to kill the rightful heir of the Father had already been expressed by the Jewish leaders (cf. John 11:47-53). Jesus clearly foretells His coming rejection and death with the statement they ... slew him.

21:40-43. Verse 40 represents the condemning question of the judicial parable, What will he do unto those husbandmen? Their reply again unwittingly condemns their own attitude of rejection toward Jesus. The other husbandmen are the Gentiles (v.

43). Jesus quotes Psalm 118:22, 23 exactly from the Greek Septuagint version of the Old Testament, relating His present rejection to His ultimate triumph (cf. Acts 4:11; 1 Pet. 2:6, 7, where the stone which the builders rejected is also quoted in relation to Christ). The Sanhedrinists represent the builders of Israel’s religion, who rejected the real cornerstone of God, Jesus, the true Cornerstone of the foundation of the church.

21:44-46. The warning The kingdom of God shall be taken from you (v. 43) was fulfilled at Pentecost when the kingdom was mediocrally transferred to the church. Yet, within this warning of judgment, Jesus offers mercy to these falling on this stone, meaning, falling upon Him in repentance and faith. But His falling upon man in judgment will grind him to powder.

22:1-3. In preparation for the major confrontation that was coming, Jesus tells the parable of the marriage supper. While similar to the parable in Luke 14, this one differs in its occasion and details. Again, the kingdom of heaven must refer to the church viewed as the kingdom in the church age. The king is the Father and Christ is the son. The marriage must be taken in the full aspect of salvation, including union with Christ, culminating in glorification at the marriage supper, which inaugurates the millennial age. Rejection of the invitation to attend constitutes disloyalty to the King, as well as discourtesy to the Son, and accounts for the severe treatment of the rebels (vv. 6, 7), which includes their city being “burned up,” an obvious reference to the coming destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

Render Tribute to Caesar and to God

22:4-14. The bidden guests are the people of Israel, whereas those in the highways are the Gentiles. Both bad and good refer to moral and immoral sinners who alike need God’s gracious invitation. The man without the wedding garment came to the feast but had disregarded the propriety of the king’s provision, since such garments were normally supplied by the host. The reference seems to be to the “robe of righteousness,” which we must receive from the Lord in order to attend the marriage feast. Casting the unclad guest into outer darkness symbolizes the eternal judgment of the lost.

22:15-22. See Mark 12:13-17; Luke 20:20-26. The Herodians were a party that favored the dynasty of Herod and stood for the Roman connection. They cared little or nothing for religion and normally were bitterly opposed by the Pharisees. The statements recorded in verse 16 are insincere and intended as hypocritical flattery. Their question was intended to place the Lord in a dilemma. If He says yes, He can be held up to the people as a traitor. If He says no, He can be denounced to the Roman authorities. Caesar was the Roman Emperor and head of the Roman state. Caesar was the family name of Julius Caesar, the first man who aspired to autocracy. The name was taken over from him by his adopted son Octavian, afterward titled the Emperor Augustus. For penny see 20:2. Render therefore unto Caesar: The Lord means that we are to give the civil magistrates all that is due to them, as long as it does not interfere with the honor due to God. Jesus had broken the Herodians’ dilemma by making light of the ultimate significance of Caesar’s claim. The idea is: “If the penny is his, let him have it!” Jesus’ response, render unto God the things that are God’s, exposed the spiritual failure of the Herodians. In essence, Jesus made light of Caesar’s temporal claim in favor of God’s greater claim over men’s lives.

Teachings on the Resurrection

23 ^aThe same day came to him the Sadducees, ^bwhich say that there is no resurrection, and asked him,

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye ¹do err, ^anot knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God.

30 For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but ^aare as the angels of God in heaven.

31 But ¹as touching the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, 32 ^aI am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

33 And when the multitude heard this, ^athey were astonished at his ¹doctrine.

The First and Great Commandment

34 ^aBut when the Pharisees had heard that he had put the Sadducees

22:23-29. The Sadducees make the next attempt to discredit Jesus and are even more severely humiliated. As the liberal party within first-century Judaism, they rejected belief in the supernatural, especially angels and the resurrection of the dead. (See Paul's encounter in Acts 23:8-10.) Moses said is a reference to Deuteronomy 25:5, where the practice of levirate marriage called for an unmarried brother to take his brother's widow to be his own wife (cf. Gen. 38:8). The absurd hypothetical case that follows represents another theological dilemma, this time attempting to discredit the legitimacy of the resurrection, which the Sadducees rejected. This extreme example must have been thought by them to be the ultimate proof of the foolishness of the doctrine of resurrection. All seven brothers had been married to her, Therefore in the resurrection whose wife shall she be of the seven? Jesus replies, Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures. Jesus had contempt for the Sadducees because they made light of the Bible and the power of God (i.e., His resurrection power; cf. Phil. 3:10). This is His strongest recorded rebuke of this Jewish party.

22:30. Jesus then explained that in the resurrec- tion men do not marry but are asexual as the angels. The infantile illustration of the Sadducees shows that they had no confidence in the power of a glorious resurrection to a new life. They thought that a resurrection would be the same kind of life as on earth. Jesus teaches neither that glorified men become angels, nor that all earthly family relationships are lost in heaven. All resurrected believers will be in a state of perfect glorification and fellowship.

22:31-34. Jesus further attacks the Sadducees' major belief in no resurrection at all, by quoting Exodus 3:6, a statement from the only part of the Old Testament that the Sadducees unquestioningly accepted (the Pentateuch). He related the eternal "I AM" of God to the patriarchs (Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob) to demonstrate that they were of the living, or immortal (a fact unlikely to be denied by the Sadducees in a public dispute). God is not the God of the dead does not mean that He has no relationship to those who have departed; it means that the departed are not really dead, and are thus still responsible to the living God (cf. Heb. 10:31). Thus the crowd is astonished and the Sadducees are put ... to silence.

CHURCH AND STATE

22:21. In distinguishing obedience to God from obedience to Caesar, Jesus identified the underlying principle of two different kingdoms: church and state. Both are divinely ordained institutions, but ought to remain separate, since they have two distinct purposes. When church and state are united, the integrity of each institution is often called into question. This separation does not prohibit the involvement of Christians in areas of social responsibility. A government of the people, by the people, and for the people is an anarchy unless governed by eternal, self-evident principles, which are reflected in Scripture. Illustration: Jesus taught us not only to "render unto God" but also to "render unto Caesar." Christians are therefore responsible for obeying laws, paying taxes, praying for those in authority, and actively speaking out and standing for God and His laws in government. Application: The example of Christians involved in the political system demonstrates how God uses them to be both salt and light to the world (Matt. 5:13, 14). (First Reference, Dan. 6:2; Primary Reference, Matt. 22:21; cf. Eph. 5:32.)

to silence, they were gathered together.

35 Then one of them, which was ^aa lawyer, asked him a question, ¹tempting him, and saying, 36 ¹Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

37 Jesus said unto him, “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

22:35–40. A lawyer, an expert expounder of the Old Testament Law and equivalent to a doctor of theology today, asks Him, which is the great commandment in the law? The phrase tempting him implies that he is trying to draw Jesus into an argument regarding the Pharisees’ extensive interpretations of over six hundred laws. Instead, Christ summarizes the two tables of the law: (1) responsibility to God; and (2) responsibility to man, by paraphrasing Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 19:18, love the Lord thy God and love thy neighbor as thyself. The phrase with all thy heart, indicates the total being of a man in Hebrew thought and is part of the “Shema,” the Jewish confession of faith consisting of Deuteronomy 6:4–9; 11:13–21; and Numbers 15:37–41. As the greatest commandment, it was of supreme importance and priority. No Pharisee could fault such an answer.

22:41–46. Jesus then counterquestions the Pharisees: What think ye of Christ? whose son is he? By asking them who is the Messiah, He gave them a clear opportunity to acknowledge Him. The question is similar to that asked of the disciples earlier in 16:15, where they gave the correct answer. The Pharisees’ response, the son of David, was the common teaching of the scribes who accepted the Davidic lineage of the Messiah (cf. Mark 12:35). Jesus then calls their attention to Psalm 110, which they already recognized as messianic. This psalm, whose Davidic authorship Jesus affirms, was given in spirit, that is, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit; in it David refers to the Messiah as his Lord. Jesus totally stumps the Pharisees, who wanted to believe in a human Messiah but not a divine Messiah. So no one was able to answer him, that is to say, defeat Him by question or debate, and therefore, no one dared ask Him any more questions.

23:1, 2. Jesus’ last condemnation of the Pharisees fills chapter 23 entirely. This now represents His final and official rejection of them at the temple, their own stronghold of influence and security. (See parallel passages in Mark 12:38–40 and Luke 20:45–47.) Sit in Moses’ seat (Gr. kathedra, “seat of authority”): This represents the synagogue chair, which symbolizes the origin and authority of their teaching.

23:3–6. They make broad their phylacteries: A phylactery was an amulet consisting of a strip of parchment, inscribed with certain portions of the Pentateuch, which was rolled and placed in a small metal cylinder inside a square leather case. The cases were attached by the Jews with straps to their foreheads and to the back of their right hands, following a strictly literal interpretation of Deuteronomy 6:8, 9. They were normally worn only during prayer, but the Pharisees appear to have worn them always and to have made them especially conspicuous. The borders of their garments were the fringes worn in obedience to Numbers 15:38, 39. Uppermost rooms might be better said “chief places.”

23:7–12. Rabbi is from a Hebrew word (lit., “my great one” or “my teacher”). Christ’s disciples are to call no man your father meaning in a spiritual sense. Masters (v. 10) is literally “guides,” “leaders,” or “teachers.” Servant means “minister” or “attendant.”

23:13–15. Ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men is another way of saying, “You put stumbling blocks in the way of the sinner coming to repentance and conversion.” Devour widows’ houses means extort money from the helpless and bring them into debt and bondage, while making an outward show of religion. The greater damnation, that is, a more severe sentence. Proselyte: The Pharisees often sought proselytes for the sake of their own gain, under the guise of religion.

23:16–22. These verses illustrate the Pharisees’ false teaching in regard to oaths. Temple (Gr. naos, “sanctuary”): Our Lord teaches that all oaths are equally binding, and no man can expect to escape their consequences before God by making distinctions such as these.

23:23. Pay tithes of: A tithe or tenth of all produce was, by the Mosaic Law, to be given for the use of the priests and Levites (Lev. 27:30). Several species of mint grow in Palestine. Anise (Gr. anêthon) is better rendered “dill.” It grew both wild and cultivated, its fruits being used for medicine. The seeds of cummin, which resemble caraway, were used as spice in seasoning. In such little matters the Pharisees were most careful to keep the law, yet they had completely overlooked its more important precepts.

23:24–26. Strain at a gnat, better “strain out a gnat”: The Jews strained (Gr. diulizo) wine before drinking it so as to avoid touching or swallowing anything unclean. But within they are full of extortion and excess: The of should be read “from.” The Pharisees’ living was obtained by extorting wrongfully from others.

23:27–33. Whited sepulchers: Since contact with a dead body rendered a person unclean according to the Mosaic Law, graves were customarily painted white to make them conspicuous and give the opportunity of avoiding contact with them. The children of them which killed means literally “those who murdered.” Generation denotes “offspring.” The damnation of hell might be translated “being judged worthy of Gehenna.”

23:34–39. That upon you may come: The generation to which these words are addressed represents the climax of the whole sinful history of the nation, beginning with the murder of Abel by his brother Cain (see Gen. 4; Heb. 11:4) and going on to the murder of Zacharias son of Barachias. In 2 Chronicles 24:20, 21 we find the account of the murder of Zechariah son of Jehoiada “in the court of the house of the LORD.” Since the books of Chronicles closed the Hebrew order of the Old Testament canon, if this is the incident here referred to, the mention of Abel and Zechariah may be intended to cover the whole Old Testament revelation. This passage is also recorded in Luke 11:49–51 and was evidently understood by His listeners. Jesus’ statement that they would not see me henceforth foreshadows His death, resurrection, and ascension.

24:1–4. This section forms Jesus’ last major discourse and His most prophetic and apocalyptic message of the coming of the end of the world (or the present age). While the message includes a prediction of the imminent fall of Jerusalem, it also goes far beyond to point us to the distant future during which the “times of the Gentiles” will continue until the end of the Great Tribulation. Jesus then left the city, crossed the Kidron Valley, and went east of Jerusalem to the mount of Olives from which He could look down on the temple courtyard. Here His disciples asked Him three questions: (1) when shall these things be? (the destruction of the temple); (2) what shall be the sign of thy coming? (Gr. parousia, technical term for the coming of the King); (3) and of the end of the world? (Gr. aión, “the age”). Therefore, the entire discourse must be looked upon as answering all three of these questions.

24:5-14. Many shall come refers to the parade of false messiahs who have now spanned the centuries of church history and have led many astray into false religious cults. Wars and rumours of wars refers to peace being taken from the earth and the constant wars that have continually marked the "age of the Gentiles." Famines, and pestilences: These events mark only the beginning of sorrows (Gr. ōdin), "birth pangs." This is followed by martyrdom and the rise of false prophets and the abounding of iniquity. The "gospel of the kingdom" refers to the missionary expansion of the church in all the world. The gospel shall be preached in all the world (Gr. oikoumenē), the inhabited world, and unto all nations (Gr. ethnos),

"Gentile nations," as contrasted with the Jews. Then shall the end come would then refer to the end of the church age.

24:15. Ye must be taken generically, since the disciples would not live to see this take place. The abomination of desolation refers to Daniel 9:27; 11:31; 12:11; where Antiochus Epiphanes' profanation of the Jewish temple worship would foreshadow a similar and more severe act by the eschatological Antichrist. Whereas Antiochus offered a pig on the sacred altar of the temple, the Antichrist will present himself (2 Thess. 2:4). The action of desecration by Antiochus, which Daniel had predicted, will now be repeated in the future by the Antichrist as the signal of 24:1. The Second Temple is sometimes referred to as Herod's Temple because of the extensive remodeling and rebuilding of Zerubbabel's original structure. The work began under Herod's administration in c. 20 B.C. and was mostly completed by 9 B.C., although various works of adornment continued until A.D. 63. It was considered one of the greatest and most beautiful temples of the ancient world and this spectacular structure certainly impressed Jesus' disciples, who must have been shocked by His prediction that it would be completely destroyed (Matt. 24:2). Herod's engineers expanded the temple precincts with massive retaining walls (of which the western wall, or "wailing wall," still remains). The outer court of the women contained the offering chests (site of the widow's mite incident). The court of the men was accessible only to ritually clean Jewish men. Beyond these areas, only the priests could enter the area of the sacrificial altars, and the holy place. At the innermost part of the temple was the holy of holies, accessible only to the high priest and only on the day of atonement. Despite its grandeur, the temple was destroyed by the Romans in A.D. 70. Many of the original stones cast onto the street below were uncovered by Israeli archaeologists and are now on display in situ in the archaeological park along the southern wall excavations.

24:3 The Mount of Olives (Olivet) is a small range of several summits (highest elevation 2,723 feet) running north-south for two-and-one-half miles. The range overlooks Jerusalem from the east, across the Kidron Valley. Jesus often went to the Mount of Olives to teach (Matt. 24:3), to pray (Luke 22:39, 40), and to rest (Luke 21:37). On the western slope, near the base, is a spot known as the Garden of Gethsemane where Jesus agonized in prayer on the night before His crucifixion (Luke 22:39-46; Mark 14:32). Jesus fittingly used Olivet to deliver one of His major prophetic discourses (Matt. 24-25), since from it He ascended into heaven (Acts 1:9-12) and to it He will return at His second coming (Zech. 14:4).

the beginning of the Great Tribulation and the breaking of the covenant “in the midst of the week” (Dan. 9:27), that is, the Seventieth Week of Daniel’s prophecy, whose length is 42 months (Rev. 11:2), 1,260 days (Rev. 12:6), or “time, and times, and half a time” (Dan. 7:25; Rev. 12:14).

24:16–28. The warning to flee into the mountains eschatologically looks beyond the first century to the Jews’ flight from the persecution of the Antichrist (cf. Rev. 12:6–14). The reference to the sabbath day indicates that these events will occur in a Jewish area, where such restrictions would be observed. Then shall be great tribulation makes our Lord’s reference to Daniel 12:1 clearly evident as taking place just prior to the resurrection in Daniel 12:2. The terrible days of that time shall be shortened by the sudden return of Christ to destroy the Wicked One (2 Thess. 2:8). The phrase if it were possible ... shall deceive the very elect clearly indicates that those who have been truly saved cannot be deceived and fall away. For even if it were humanly possible, the Lord will stop it by hastening His coming. The exclamation Behold, I have told you before indicates Jesus’ belief in the predictive nature of this prophecy. The lightning shining from the east ... even unto the west refers to the final aspect of Christ’s return (not the Rapture) in judgment upon the earth. In 1 Thessalonians 4, He comes in the clouds for the church; in 2 Thessalonians 1 and 2, He comes to the earth with the church to judge the world.

24:29–31. The reference to the events immediately after the tribulation, such as the sun being darkened and the stars falling, refer to the cataclysmic events that will accompany Christ’s millennial kingdom on earth. His return will be marked by the sign of the Son of man in heaven, which will identify His coming to the tribes of the earth. The clouds of heaven indicate that Christ will come from heaven to the earth (cf. Dan. 7:13, 14; 2 Thess. 1:7–9). The angels are the same agents of judgment as in 13:39. The elect are the saved who have come to faith in Christ by the grace of God and are gladly anticipating their Lord’s return.

CHARACTER OF THE GREAT TRIBULATION

24:21. In no other period of history (past or future) of the world will there be so much suffering and universal destruction as during the seven years called the Great Tribulation. These years are fraught with wrath (Ezek. 7:19), judgment (Rev. 14:7; 15:4; 16:5, 7), darkness (Joel 2:2; Amos 5:18), trouble (Jer. 30:7), suffering (Is. 24:20–21), desolation (Dan. 9:27), gloominess (Amos 5:18, 20), indignation (Is. 26:20, 21; 34:1–3), and sorrow. The scriptural representations of the Great Tribulation are wholly negative with no attempt to minimize the severity of human suffering in that time. During the Great Tribulation, God will pour out His wrath on mankind and will judge all of creation, just before the peace of the Millennium is ushered in. Illustration: If Christians do not realize that they will be taken out of the world before the Great Tribulation begins, they could become very discouraged looking forward to those years. Application: The realization of what awaits the unsaved following the Rapture ought to motivate every believer to win souls before it is too late. (First Reference, Dan. 9:27; Primary Reference, Matt. 24:21; cf. 2 Thess. 2:3–9.)

24:32, 33. The illustration of the fig tree is referred to as a parable. The immediate context seems to refer to the fig tree in a natural (not symbolic) sense. While it is clear in Scripture that Israel is symbolized, at times, by the fig tree (ch. 21), the usage here simply seems to be that as these events reach the apex of their fulfillment, the actual and ultimate return of Christ follows immediately.

24:34. The generation that shall not pass is the generation in whose lifetime all these signs occur. That generation will not pass away until all these things be fulfilled. In other words, the previously listed signs will continue to multiply throughout the church age and reach their ultimate climax at the end of the age in the generation of those who will live to see the entire matter fulfilled in their lifetime.

24:35–38. Verses 35 and 36 warn against attempts to set an exact date for Christ's return at the end of the church age. To speculate that "day" and "hour" do not eliminate "year" is a gross oversimplification. The Father only knows the time of Christ's return since it has been set by His authority (cf. Acts 1:7). However, we are given a comparison to the days of Noe (Noah and the Flood), which illustrate and prefigure the condition of humanity at the time of Christ's return. The last generation, like the one of Noah's day, is pleasure-oriented and self-gratifying by eating and drinking. The reference to marrying and giving in marriage may refer to carrying on the normal course of life without heeding the impending judgment.

24:39–42. The observation that the people of Noah's day knew not the severity and suddenness of the coming destruction indicates that this last generation will be totally unprepared for the coming of the Son of man, the return of Christ to judge the world. (See 2 Thess. 1:7, 8.) The reference to two being in the field or at work at the time of Christ's return implies the suddenness of His coming to separate the lost and the saved.

SIGNS OF CHRIST'S RETURN

24:33. Signs are indications that Christ is about to return to earth. Technically, they refer to the revelation of Christ, and not the Rapture. There are obvious signs during the seven-year Tribulation before the revelation, but there are no signs that precede the Rapture. However, there are conditions that suggest the Rapture will happen soon. No one will ever know the date of Jesus' return until He comes. Still there are certain things happening in our world to suggest that His return may be very close. These are: (1) Israel's return to the Promised Land; (2) the obvious accelerations of lawlessness; (3) increase of apostasy (1 Tim. 4:1); (4) the socio-religious climate preparing for the one world church; and (5) the rapid acceleration of life-threatening conditions—such as potential nuclear annihilation, population explosion, and pollution—that require Christ's return before events run their natural course and terminate the world. Paul listed certain conditions which, though true in every age, appear to be more prevalent today (2 Tim. 3:1–5). Application: The Christians in Thessalonica lived in expectation of Christ's imminent return, just as all Christians ought to live today. (First Reference, Jude 14; Primary Reference, Matt. 24:33; cf. Matt 13:52.)

16 Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents.

17 And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two.

24:43-51. The parable of the two servants follows to illustrate the seriousness of Christ's second coming, a fact that Jesus never allegorized or spiritualized, but spoke of in the most serious terms: cut him asunder ... weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25:1-13. The parable of the 10 virgins explains the place of Israel's true converts of the Great Tribulation period in relation to the church. These virgins (Gr. parthenos, cf. 1:23) are the attendants at the wedding, not multiple brides. The one bride of Christ is the church, John the Baptist is the best man (John 3:29, friend of the Bridegroom), and the prepared virgins are the saved of the Great Tribulation. While all share as the people of God, the church is accorded a unique relationship to the Master. The lamps seem to refer to their lives which are either prepared or unprepared. The oil refers to that which prepares them to give forth light and may properly be illustrative of the regeneration of the Holy Spirit. The fact that they all slept while the bridegroom tarried implies a period of Jewish inactivity during the church age, while the bride is gathered.

25:14-23. The parable of the talents further emphasizes the need for personal preparation and faithful service to the Master. (See also Luke 19:11-28.) The talents represent large units of money and are distributed according to ability (v. 15). Far country indicates the time during which Jesus is in heaven, between His first coming and His final return. The three servants are typical of three types who are entrusted with various tasks in accordance with their own ability. Not all are expected to produce the same results, but all are to be faithful with what they have had entrusted to them. Thus, the first two double their money, while the last 18 But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money.

19 After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and ¹reckoneth with them.

20 And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.

one hides the one ... in the earth. The phrase after a long time gives a veiled indication of the length of Christ's session in heaven during the present age. Each of those producing results is commended by the Master: Well done, ... good and faithful servant and is promised to be a ruler over many things, with a view to continued service in the millennial kingdom.

25:24, 25. The great mistake of the unfaithful servant is in misjudging the character of his Master: thou art an hard man. He could not have known the Master well to assume him to be severe and merciless. He fails to understand the real generosity of his Master, who wanted him to experience the joys of service. Whereas the parable of the 10 virgins emphasizes personal preparation for the coming of Christ, the parable of the talents stresses the importance of faithful service during His present absence.

25:26-30. The fact that the latter man is called wicked and slothful and an unprofitable servant (v. 30), who is cast into outer darkness, indicates that he is not a true disciple of the Master.

25:31-46. The judgment of the nations concludes our Lord's prophetic discourse. This judgment of all nations must be distinguished from the Great White Throne judgment at the end of the Millennium. The nations (Gr. ethnos) are those peoples living through the Great Tribulation on earth at the time of Christ's return. This is a judgment of separation: sheep on his

The Religious Leaders’ Plan to Kill Jesus

26 And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,

2 “Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.

3 “Then assembled together the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders of the people, unto the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,

4 And “consulted¹ that they might take Jesus by ²subtilty, and kill him.

5 But they said, Not on the feast right... goats on the left. At this judgment all nations (better, “all Gentiles”) stand before Christ who then separates the sheep (the saved) from the goats (the lost) in a manner reminiscent of the wheat and tares parable. Note that these are living nations, whereas the Great White Throne judgment is one of the wicked dead whose bodies are resurrected to face the final judgment of the lost. Thus, the saved are invited to come into and share the blessings of His Kingdom: Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom. The basis of their acceptance seems to be their treatment of the least of these my brethren, the saved of the Great Tribulation.

26:1, 2. See also Mark 14:1, 2; Luke 22:1, 2. Jesus makes a final prediction of His death two days before Passover, which was eaten on the evening of Nisan 14. Thus the prediction was made on the twelfth of the month (April). The feast of the passover was the first feast on the Jewish yearly calendar and was kept in commemoration of the national deliverance from Egypt in the Exodus under Moses. Passover takes its name from the Hebrew term related to the death angel passing over those who had applied the blood to their homes (cf. Ex. 12). Passover time was a great high day among the Jews and thousands of pilgrims flocked to Jerusalem each year to observe it.

26:2-5. Jesus also predicts His betrayal. Son of man is His favorite designation of Himself. Betrayed (Gr. paradidōmi) is better translated here as “delivered up” or “handed over.” The assemblage of the Sanhedrin takes place at the palace (Gr. aulē, “the courtyard of his residence”). Caiaphas was a Sadducee who had been appointed high priest a few years earlier, about A.D. 18, just before Christ’s earthly ministry began. Not on the feast means “not during the feast.” Since many of Jesus’ supporters from Galilee would be in Jerusalem during this time, the leaders did not want to upset the crowd, whose emotions were already high. Jesus ultimately foiled their plan and died at the very hour of the slaying of the Passover lambs.

26:3 Caiaphas was the officially appointed high priest from about A.D. 18 to 36 (during Christ’s ministry and the early years of the church). A problem arises in that Matthew 26:3 names Caiaphas as high priest, Acts 4:6 names Annas, and Luke 3:2 names both as high priests. John seems to explain the historical situation best. John 18:13 records that Jesus, after His arrest, was led “to Annas first; for he was father in law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same year.” Yet the verses that follow immediately refer to Annas also as high priest (vv. 15, 19, 22). Later, Jesus is led to Caiaphas, the official high priest. Annas had served as high priest until he was deposed by Rome in A.D. 15. Yet his influence and power continued over the high priestly office, with five of his sons occupying that position. Hence, Annas could also be properly identified as high priest in that he was the patriarchal head of this line of high priests. Caiaphas was the high priest responsible for Christ’s death and the severe persecution of the early church (Acts 5:17; 9:1). An elaborate ossuary (bone box) bearing the name of Caiaphas was found in Jerusalem in 1990. (First Reference, Matt. 26:3; Primary Reference, John 18.)

Judas Agrees to Betray Jesus

14 ^aThen one of the twelve, called ^bJudas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests,

15 And said unto them, ^aWhat will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they ¹covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver.

16 And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him.

The Passover Meal

17 ^aNow the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

18 And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The ¹Master saith, ^aMy time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples.

19 And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

20 ^aNow when the ¹even was come, he sat down with the twelve.

26:6-16. The anointing at Bethany (cf. Mark 14:3-9; John 12:1-8) is related by John as taking place six days before Passover, indicating the one version is topical and the other chronological, since neither Matthew nor Mark dates the event. Simon the leper is mentioned only here and in the parallel at Mark 14:3. By a comparison with John 12:1-8, a reasonable deduction is that he was the father of Lazarus, Martha, and Mary. She did it for my burial: The point seems to be that the action was appropriate in view of His burial which was soon to take place, and that it might be regarded as symbolic or prophetic of the burial. This gospel, the Good News of the Lord's death and resurrection. (See also Mark 14:10, 11; Luke 22:3-6.) Judas Iscariot

[see Mark 3:19] ... and they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver: Actually, they counted out the amount to him, representing about a month's wages or the price of a common slave. These words are substantially from the Greek Septuagint version of Zechariah 11:12. Betray him, that is, hand Him over: The same verb is translated "deliver" in verse 15. The Last Supper is also related in Mark 14:12-16; Luke 22:7-13; and John 13:1-29.

26:17-22. The first day ... of unleavened bread, or the fourteenth of Nisan (cf. Mark 14:12; Luke 22:7). While Jesus said, I will keep the passover, the cross-reference in Luke 22:16 notes He added, "I will not any more eat thereof," implying an interruption.

26:14 Judas Iscariot was the apostle infamous for his betrayal of Christ. The gospel writers do not permit the reader to forget this fact, repeating it in about half of the total references to Judas. Though the significance of the name "Iscariot" is uncertain, many believe it means "man of Kerioth," a town in southern Palestine. This would make Judas the only non-Galilean among the Twelve. Judas's reasons for betraying Jesus are not explicitly stated, but two are probable. First, greed played some part. When Mary anointed Jesus' feet with very expensive spikenard, Judas objected, saying it should have been given to the poor. John comments on this, stating: "This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare [took] what was put therein" (John 12:6). Second, and more likely, Judas was disillusioned over the way Christ's kingdom was headed. He had been seeking personal gain, perhaps through political power, and his disappointment turned to spite and revenge. Though Matthew (27:3-7) and Luke (Acts 1:18) describe the events of his death differently, they can be harmonized several ways. One simple explanation may be found in the principle that, whereas Luke records all events as acts of Judas, Matthew distinguishes between what Judas did and what the priests did. Just as Judas bought the field only in that he paid for it, so he fell only in that he was thrown down upon the rocks after he had hanged himself. It does not state that he jumped. Judas hanged himself and later was cut down and thrown into a rocky ravine. (First Reference, Matt. 10:4; Primary References, John 12; Matt. 26, 27.)

21 And as they did eat, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall ^abetray me.

22 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I?

23 And he answered and said, “He that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me.

24 The Son of man goeth ^aas it is written of him: but ^bwoe unto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! ^cit had been good for that man if he had not been born.

25 Then Judas, which betrayed him, answered and said, ¹Master, is it I? He said unto him, Thou hast ²said.

26 ^aAnd as they were eating, ^bJesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; ^cthis is my body.

27 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, “Drink¹ ye all of it;

28 For ^athis is my blood ^bof the new testament, which is shed ^cfor many for the ¹remission of sins.

29 But ^aI say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, ^buntil that day when I drink it new with you in my Father’s kingdom.

Only Jesus and the 12 disciples were present. At this crucial time Jesus announced one of you shall betray me. For the first time, Jesus had clearly indicated that the betrayer would be one of His closest followers. They were exceeding sorrowful, indicating their grief over such an announcement. In the original language, the question Lord, is it I? suggests that a negative answer was cautiously expected by each one, “It is not I, is it?”

26:23–26. Jesus’ reply Thou hast said means “yes.” The statement He that dippeth reveals the personal and intimate nature of the betrayal. Jesus took bread: The head of the Jewish household was accustomed to doing this during the Passover feast. Jesus gave a completely new significance to the action. This is my body: During the Passover feast the Jewish householder took bread in his hand and said, “This is the bread of affliction which our fathers ate in the land of Egypt,” meaning, of course, that the one represented the other. By His words the Lord changed the whole significance and emphasis of the feast from looking back to the typical redemption from Egypt to faith in the redemption from sin accomplished by His death. The bread and wine were only outward symbols of our Lord’s death. Nothing in the Gospels indicates that these were to be viewed as a means of grace, sacraments, or that they were physically necessary for one’s salvation.

26:27–30. The cup: Three cups were passed around by the Jewish householder during the Passover meal; the third, which is probably the one referred to here, being known as “the cup of blessing.” My blood of the new testament taken from the Greek Septuagint version of Exodus 24:8, with allusions to Jeremiah 31:31 and Zechariah 9:11. The covenant in Exodus 24:8 was sealed with blood. The word testament (Gr. diathēkē) can also mean “a covenant.” Shed for many for the remission of sins: Here is a clear statement that the death of Jesus was necessary to enable God to forgive sins. It, in fact, made it right or morally justifiable for Him to do so. That day refers to the time when He comes again in glory.

26:36 Gethsemane is the garden spot on the western slope of the Mount of Olives where Jesus frequently went (John 18:1, 2; Luke 22:39, 40). The temple lay directly opposite it across the Kidron Valley. It was the place of Christ’s agonizing prayer, Judas’s betrayal, and Christ’s arrest (Luke 22:39–54). A grove of ancient olive trees still stands there today next to the Church of All Nations.

37 And he took with him Peter and ^athe two sons of Zebedee, and began to be ¹sorrowful and ²very heavy.

38 Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: ¹tarry ye here, and watch with me.

39 And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and ^aprayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, ^clet this cup pass from me: nevertheless ^dnot as I will, but as thou wilt.

40 And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour?

41 Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: ^bthe spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.

42 He went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, ¹except I drink it, thy will be done.

43 And he came and found them asleep again: for their eyes were heavy.

44 And he left them, and went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

45 Then cometh he to his disciples, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

Jesus' Betrayal and Arrest

47 And ^awhile he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people.

48 Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he: ¹hold him fast.

49 And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, ¹master; ^aand kissed him.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and laid hands on Jesus, and took him.

51 And, behold, ^aone of them which were with Jesus stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and ¹smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: ^afor all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.

53 Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall ¹presently give me ^amore than twelve legions of angels?

26:36-39. Gethsemane means "Olive Press" and was a lush garden east of the city near the slopes of the Mount of Olives. Jesus often resorted there for peace and quiet. He took the same inner circle as at the Transfiguration (Peter, James, and John) further into the garden. My soul is exceeding sorrowful is found in the Greek Septuagint version of Psalm 43:5. The prayer for the cup to pass is not due to Jesus' fear of death. Jesus questions the will of the Father as to the necessity of drinking the cup. While this may refer to death ("he tasted death") it is more likely that the cup represents the wrath of God against sin, the divine wrath Christ would incur on the cross as man's sin-bearer. In the awful anguish of that moment, the sin of the world was poured on Christ and He became "sin for us" (2 Cor. 5:21). Thus, the Righteous One dies a substitutionary death for guilty mankind.

26:47-50. The arrest took place in the garden of Gethsemane during the middle of the night as a mixed mob arrived to take Jesus. There can be little doubt that Jesus saw them approaching, as there is always a full moon at Passover, and they probably carried lighted torches as well. The Roman soldiers carried swords and the Jewish temple police had staves (clubs). The sign was necessary to identify Jesus to the Romans to whom He was unknown. Judas kissed him as the sign of betrayal of the One he still glibly called master (cf. 7:21-23).

26:51-56. One of them was Peter (John 18:10), who drew his sword, probably one of the short swords referred to in Luke 22:38. Attempting to defend Jesus, Peter struck a servant of the high priest's, and smote off his ear. In a typically impetuous move Peter had struck the one person who could have embarrassed them the most at the trial. Luke, a physician (22:51), tells us that Jesus healed him by replacing the ear (His last miracle before His crucifixion), and John (18:10) tells us his name was Malchus. Jesus' rebuke Put up again thy sword clearly revealed that His kingdom would not be brought in by force before His death. They that take the sword shall perish with the sword is a statement of fact, but cannot be taken by itself to teach nonviolence in all situations. Twelve legions of angels could be called to His aid. Each Roman legion had six thousand soldiers. Christ's restraint is due to His willingness to obey the will of the Father and so fulfill the scriptures.

54 But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled, “that thus it must be?”

55 In that same hour said Jesus to the multitudes, “Are ye come out as against a ¹thief with swords and ²staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye ³laid no hold on me.”

56 But all this was done, that the “scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled.” Then ^ball the disciples forsook him, and fled.

59 Now the chief priests, and elders, and all the council, sought “false ¹witness against Jesus, to put him to death;”

The evidence eventually brought forward (v. 61) was based on the Lord’s words recorded in John 2:19, 21, nearly three years earlier! I adjure thee by the living God: This statement put a man on his oath and compelled an answer. The high priest was seeking an admission that could be the foundation of a charge of blasphemy. Thou hast said means “yes,” and buffeted means “punched.” Verse 68 is a sarcastic demand to be told the names and identities of those who were strangers to Him as a sign of supernatural knowledge. The incident ends with the charge of blasphemy and the indictment that He is guilty of death. There can be no doubt that the Sanhedrin took Him to be claiming to be the Messiah, a claim they violently rejected.

26:69–72. Peter’s three denials (cf. Mark 14:66–72; Luke 22:54–65) occur during the trial proceedings. Peter sat without in the palace or courtyard. The first denial is prompted by a damsel, or young maid, and the porters who had admitted him and John. The form of the denial, I know not what thou sayest, is merely a pretense of ignorance on Peter’s part. Feeling the pressure of the interrogation, Peter goes into the porch, a passageway leading to the street. Then he is confronted by another maid, probably the outer gatekeeper, who alerted the men (thus Luke’s reference to a man as the interrogator) that this fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth. The terms “Galilean” and “Nazarene” were probably used in a derogatory manner by these Judeans. This time his denial was stronger, with an oath, in spite of Jesus’ earlier warning against oath-taking (5:34).

there, This fellow was also with Jesus of Nazareth.

72 And again he denied with an oath, I do not know the man.

5 And he ¹cast down the pieces of silver in the temple, ^aand departed, and went and hanged himself.

6 And the chief priests took the silver pieces, and said, It is not lawful for to put them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood.

7 And they took counsel, and bought with them the potter’s field, to bury strangers in.

8 Wherefore that field was called, “The field of blood, unto this day.

26:73–75. The third denial comes after a while (less than an hour) when he is accused because thy speech bewrayeth thee or “makes you evident” or “gives you away.” Under the mounting emotional pressure and fear of being condemned along with Jesus, began he to curse and to swear. After the Resurrection, this outburst of denial was corrected by an emotion-packed reaffirmation of loyalty to the Savior (cf. John 21:17). And immediately the cock crew was probably “cockcrow” (the end of the Roman watch from midnight to 3 A.M.), verifying the illegitimacy of the trial which was being conducted during the middle of the night. And Peter remembered, not because he heard the noise, but as Luke (22:61) records: The Lord turned and looked upon him with a convicting glance from the balcony of the high priest’s house. Then he remembered the Savior’s warning and went out, and wept bitterly. All these events related to the betrayal, arrest, and trial of Jesus show that He was completely in control of each situation even while being in the hands of His captors.

27:1, 2. See also Mark 15:1–15; Luke 23:1–25; John 18:28–19:16. Pontius Pilate the governor: Pontius Pilate was the Roman procurator of Judea from A.D. 26 to 37, holding his office under the prefect of Syria. His usual place of residence was Caesarea, but he was in Jerusalem during the feast to deal with any insurrection or trouble.

27:3–8. When he saw that he was condemned, which would be evident from seeing Jesus being taken to Pilate (a move Judas may not have anticipated), he repented himself (Gr. metamelomai, “to regret”). This word is different from the term for repentance to salvation (Gr. metanoia). His admission, I have sinned, is not necessarily a true confession of faith. Judas then threw the money in the temple (Gr. naos, “sanctuary”) and hanged himself. His “falling headlong” (Acts 1:18, 19) is generally supposed to have happened while he was attempting to do this. Perhaps, hanging himself over the ledge, he then fell into the valley below.

27:2. Pontius Pilate was the Roman governor of Judea and Samaria during Christ’s ministry. Emperor Tiberius appointed him as the fifth procurator of Judea (A.D. 26–36). As procurator he controlled the Judean province, having an army of from three thousand to five thousand Roman soldiers. Usually he would govern from Caesarea, but during the Jewish feasts he and his troops would be garrisoned in Jerusalem just outside the temple area at the fortress of Antonia. Pilate was an insensitive, cruel leader who needlessly infuriated the Jews and Samaritans (cf. Luke 13:1). This evidently led to his recall to Rome. Both Jewish and Roman historians make reference to Pilate, and in 1961 an inscription found at Caesarea provided the first archaeological evidence of his rule. (First Reference, Matt. 27:2; Primary Reference, John 18, 19.)

Jesus Appears Before Pilate

11 And Jesus stood before the governor: ^aand the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus said unto him, ^b*Thou¹ sayest.*

12 And when he was accused of the chief priests and elders, ^ahe answered nothing.

13 Then said Pilate unto him, ^aHearst thou not how many things they ¹witness against thee?

14 And he answered him to never a word; insomuch that the governor marvelled greatly.

15 ^aNow at that feast the governor was ¹wont to release unto the ²people a prisoner, whom they ³would.

16 And they had then a ¹notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

17 Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate said unto them, Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?

18 For he knew that for ^aenvy they had delivered him.

19 When he was set down on the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man: for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him.

20 ^aBut the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitude that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus.

21 The governor answered and said unto them, Whether of the twain will ye that I release unto you? They said, ^aBarabbas.

22 Pilate saith unto them, What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified.

23 And the governor said, ^aWhy, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified.

24 When Pilate saw that he could ¹prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was ²made, he ^atook water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it.

25 Then answered all the people, and said, ^aHis blood be on us, and on our children.

26 Then released he Barabbas unto them: and when ^ahe had ¹scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified.

27 ^aThen the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the ¹common hall, and gathered unto him the whole ²band of soldiers.

28 And they ^astripped him, and ^bput on him a scarlet robe.

29 ^aAnd when they had ¹platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, King of the Jews!

27:11-31. Barabbas means "The Father's Son" in Aramaic and must be seen in contrast with Jesus, the Father's Son. Pilate's question Why, what evil hath he done? comes late in the trial and represents a personal, though unofficial, acknowledgment of Jesus' innocence. Pilate thus attempts to shift the blame for Jesus' death to the Jews themselves. The dramatic answer His blood be on us eventually brought the wrath of God upon His own people. Encouraged by their willingness to take responsibility for His death, Pilate then scourged Jesus in hope that a bloody beating would appease them (cf. John 19:1-6). The scourging was a whipping with a leather whip with sharp pieces of bone and metal embedded in its thongs. The statement that Pilate delivered him means he officially turned Him over to his soldiers for execution. They took Him into the common hall (Gr. praetōrion from Lat. praetorium) or governor's quarters, probably in the Fortress of Antonia. They mocked His claim to be King by clothing Him with a scarlet robe (Gr. chlamus). It was a military robe, usually fastened at the shoulder. The crown of thorns and the reed for a scepter added to their mockery.

27:16 Barabbas was the criminal whom the Jewish crowd chose instead of Jesus when Pilate offered the release of one. Barabbas is referred to in each of the Gospels and in Acts (3:14). He is described as a well-known prisoner (v. 16), a robber (John 18:40), and as one who had committed murder during an uprising (Mark 15:7). Jesus' only political crime was to acknowledge Himself as King, which the Jews pronounced as treason against Rome but which Pilate discounted. Since Barabbas was guilty of far more treasonous acts, Pilate had hoped to free Jesus by offering the release of one of them. Nothing is known of Barabbas after his release. (First Reference, Matt. 27:16; Primary Reference, Mark 15.)

30 And ^athey spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head.

31 And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own ¹raiment on him, ^aand led him away to crucify him.

The Crucifixion of Jesus

32 ^aAnd as they came out, ^bthey found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to bear his cross.

33 ^aAnd when they were come unto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull, 34 ^aThey gave him ¹vinegar to drink mingled with gall: and when he had tasted thereof, he would not drink.

35 ^aAnd they crucified him, and ¹parted his garments, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, ^bThey ¹parted my garments among them, and upon my ²vesture did they cast lots.

36 ^aAnd sitting down they ¹watched him there;

37 And ^aset up over his head his accusation written, THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

38 ^aThen were there two ¹thieves crucified with him, one on the right hand, and another on the left.

Jesus' Death on the Cross

45 ^aNow from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

27:32-35. A man of Cyrene, Simon by name: Cyrene was a Roman province in North Africa where many Jews lived. They also had a synagogue in Jerusalem (Acts 6:9). His sons, Alexander and Rufus, later became well-known Christians (Mark 15:21). Compelled [Gr. aggarēuo, a technical term for "requisitioned"] to bear his cross: The cross was generally carried by the prisoner, which John 19:17 indicates was at first the case with Christ. Evidently, the weight was more than He could bear, due to His severe scourging. The transverse piece was usually carried separately and attached by rope to the vertical pole at the place of execution. Golgotha ... a place of a skull: The name is a transliteration of the Aramaic word for skull and is equivalent to the Latin calvaria, probably due to the physical appearance of the hill. They gave him vinegar to drink mingled with gall, fulfillment of Psalm 69:21. This was customarily given to condemned prisoners to serve as a kind of anesthetic or anodyne. It was literally a drugged "wine" (Gr. oinon). The statement that he would not drink indicates that Jesus refused any mitigation of His sufferings on our behalf.

27:36-44. Pilate placed a placard over Jesus' head with the accusation: THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS. Little did he realize how true this intended mockery of Jesus really was. Indeed, as Matthew shows, Jesus was the King of the Jews, whom they had rejected. The thieves (Gr. lēstēs) were robbers, perhaps cohorts of Barabbas. The statement cast the same in his teeth means they repeated similar taunts to Him.

27:45-50. From the sixth hour ... unto the ninth hour means from noon until 3 P.M. Mark (15:25) indicates Jesus had been placed on the cross at the third hour (9 A.M.). The darkness was evidently supernatural, since an eclipse of the sun at full noon is impossible. God's wrath was poured upon His Son during this time of darkness. At the ninth hour (3 P.M.) Jesus cried: Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Here we have the high cost to Christ of His atonement for our sins, who was accused of God as our sin-bearer (cf. 2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13) and suffered the agony of spiritual death for us. He ... cried ... with a loud voice, as a shout of triumph, and yielded up His Spirit. In other words, having borne the wrath of God's judgment against sin, He knew He had triumphed over Satan and the curse of sin.

ran, and took a sponge, ^aand filled it with vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink.

Jesus Buried in Joseph's Tomb

57 ^aWhen the ¹even was come, there came a rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple:

58 He went to Pilate, and ¹begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered.

59 And when Joseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, 60 And ^alaid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock: and he rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, and departed.

61 And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting ¹over against the sepulchre.

Setting a Watch

62 Now the next day, that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, 27:51–53. The events immediately following Jesus' death are remarkable indeed. The veil of the temple refers either to the curtain over the entrance to the Holy Place (which could be viewed from the porch) or to the curtain separating the Holy Place from the Holy of Holies (cf. Ex. 26:31). The latter is probable here and symbolizes the permanent opening of God's presence to man and man's direct access to God through the atoning death of Christ.

27:54–56. Truly this was the Son of God: Whether this was an affirmation of genuine faith (based on all they had witnessed) or merely a pagan appreciation of the awesomeness of the circumstances is not clear. Certainly the incident reveals how Jesus' life and character, even in the face of death, rose above the greatest qualities of pagan Rome. The witnesses also included several key women: Mary Magdalene (cf. Magdala, in Galilee; she is the woman out of whom Jesus cast seven devils in that region, Mark 16:9). Mary the mother of James and Joses was the wife of Cleophas (John 19:25), the "other Mary" of verse 61; the mother of Zebedee's children was Salome (cf. Mark 15:40) and apparently a sister of the Virgin Mary.

27:57–61. The burial of Jesus' body was seen to by a rich man of Arimathea, named Joseph. In fulfillment of Isaiah 53:9, Jesus made His death with the rich. Joseph was a member of the Sanhedrin, who had become a disciple. His wealth enabled him to own a tomb at Jerusalem even though he lived nearly 20 miles away. With help from Nicodemus, a believing Pharisee (cf. John 3), he took the body from the cross and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth or shroud, in the typical burial custom of the day. The body was then placed in Joseph's own new tomb ... hewn out in the rock and covered with a great stone, generally rolled in a groove and into place securely over the opening of the tomb.

27:62–66. The next day ... followed the day of the preparation: There is some question as to whether this was Saturday (the Sabbath), following a Friday crucifixion. However, John 19:14, 31 indicates that this "preparation" day was the day before the Passover

27:57 Joseph of Arimathea was from a small Judean town by that name and a member (counselor) of the Sanhedrin—the Jewish legislature and high court. Each of the gospel writers provides something distinct concerning Joseph. Matthew describes him as a wealthy man who possessed a new-hewn tomb. Luke refers to his character as being good and just. Though he was part of the Sanhedrin he did not consent to the death of Jesus. John notes that he feared the Jews and remained a secret disciple, whereas Mark observes his boldness following the Crucifixion to take public action when most others fled. History is silent concerning Joseph of Arimathea, but several legends are associated with him, including the carrying of the Holy Grail (the cup used at the Last Supper) to England. (References, Matt. 27:57–60; Mark 15:43–46; Luke 23:50–53; John 19:38–42.)

63 Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, “After three days I will rise again.”

64 Command therefore that the ¹sepulchre be made ²sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last ³error shall be worse than the first.

65 Pilate said unto them, Ye have a ¹watch: go your way, make it as ²sure as ye can.

66 So they went, and made the sepulchre ¹sure, “sealing the stone, and setting a ²watch.”

11 Now when they were going, behold, some of the ¹watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all the things that were done.

12 And when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken feast day. This may account for Matthew’s not using the term Sabbath here. In modern Greek, the word here translated “preparation” (paraskeuē) is the word for Friday.

28:1–7. See also Mark 16:1–20; Luke 24:1–12; John 20:1–31. All four Gospels essentially agree in reporting the facts of the Resurrection. The variety of details in each account supplement rather than contradict one another. The empty tomb was discovered in the end [Gr. opse, used as improper preposition for “after”] of the sabbath, agreeing with the other evangelists. By Jewish reckoning the day ended at sunset and the new day began at the same time. Thus, Saturday night by our reckoning was actually Sunday by their calendar. Accordingly, the Resurrection actually occurred sometime during the night, for by the time the women arrived as it began to dawn He had already risen from the dead. The earthquake and the angel (Mark’s “man ... in ... white”), who rolled the stone away, did not come to let Jesus out of the tomb, but to reveal that it was empty and that He was already gone.

28:8–15. Running ahead with fear and great joy they actually met Jesus and worshiped Him. We cannot imagine their emotions at this moment when fear and joy gripped them simultaneously. Again, they were instructed to go before Him into Galilee. Here Matthew’s account is considerably briefer and less detailed than other Gospels (where we have specific accounts of Peter and John running to the tomb; Mary meeting Jesus; the walk to Emmaus; the appearance in the Upper Room; the appearance to more than five hundred believers at once; and the incident on the seashore, John 21). Pilate had put the soldiers at the disposal of the Jewish Sanhedrin, so the soldiers

RESURRECTION OF CHRIST

28:6. The resurrection of Christ included five accomplishments: (1) the physical renewing of His life; (2) the reunion of His body and His spirit; (3) the subjugation of death under Him; (4) the attainment of His new position; and (5) His receiving of a transfigured body. Application: Because of the Resurrection, the Christian receives both eternal life (John 11:25) and spiritual power (Eph. 1:19, 20). Christ’s resurrection also provides for the future resurrection of the believer (1 Cor. 15:20) and is the key to victory in the Christian life because of our union with Christ (Eph. 2:6). (First Reference, Ps. 16:10; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 15; cf. Acts 1:9.)

16 Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain ^awhere Jesus had appointed them.

17 And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some ^adoubted.

18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, "All ¹power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

19 "Go ye therefore, and ^bteach¹

28:19 ^a Mark 16:15 ^b Is. 52:10; Luke 24:47; [Acts 2:38, 39]; Rom. 10:18; Col. 1:23 ¹ make disciples of reported first to that body. The assemblage gave large money (a large bribe) to the soldiers to hide the truth of the Resurrection with the lie, saying ... his disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept, a ridiculous statement in view of the disciples' earlier defection in the Garden of Gethsemane. Also, the soldiers would have been unable to testify about what happened while they slept!

28:16, 17. Now instead of sending His disciples back to the house of Israel, they are sent into all the world. The kingdom rejected by the Jews will now be offered to the Gentiles in accordance with Jesus' earlier parables. This appearance in Galilee is not to be confused with the appearances at Jerusalem and is probably the same as the appearance to "above five hundred brethren" (cf. 1 Cor. 15:6), with the eleven being among them. This is further implied by the statement they worshipped him: but some doubted, which would be unlikely of the Eleven after the earlier appearances and the "doubting Thomas" incident. The Greek verb distazō may also be translated "hesitated" in the sense that while they obviously saw Him, they hesitated to offer Him such unbounded worship.

28:18-20. The Great Commission brings the first Gospel to its grand finale. Christianity is not represented here as the mere reverential devotion of disappointed men who honor their martyred leader. Here is a far different scene. The triumphant, living Lord sends forth His ambassadors to proclaim His gospel throughout all the world. The Great Commission is not just an order but a pronouncement of victory (mundus regium Christi) by the risen Savior through His disciples. All power or authority (Gr. exousia) is now in the hands of Christ, in heaven and on the earth. On the basis of that authority and power the Christian disciple is to carry out the Great Commission of the church. Go ye, though a participle, conveys the force of a command: "Go." In other words, the idea expressed is that you must go and make disciples. Teach all nations can be translated "disciple all nations." Thus the converting influence of the gospel is indicated here. The "all nations" clearly indicates that the commission to the church is a worldwide one, encompassing the entire missionary effort. The

TRINITY

28:19. Trinity designates one eternal God in unity, yet existing in three eternal persons. The members of the Trinity are equal in nature, distinct in person, and subordinate in duties. Illustration: As the Son is eternally begotten by the Father, so Jesus is submissive to do the work of the Father, yet equal in nature to Him. The Father is the source of authority, the Son is the channel, and the Holy Spirit the agent whereby authority is exercised. Application: Because each member of the Trinity is God, and a distinct person, each should be so recognized in worship by the Christian (Gen. 48:15; Num. 6:24-26; Is. 6:3; 2 Cor. 13:14). (First Reference, Gen. 1:26; Primary Reference, Matt. 28:19; cf. Matt. 6:9)

DEITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

28:19. There is no shortage of biblical evidence for the deity of the Holy Spirit. He is spoken of in Scripture as God. The attributes of God are assigned to Him, He is engaged in the work of God, and He receives honor due only to God. Further, He was recognized as God by the early church both in the baptismal formula (v. 19) and in the apostolic benediction (2 Cor. 13:14). Finally, the words of the Holy Spirit are recognized as being the words of God. Illustration: The apostle Paul recognized the deity of the Holy Spirit in his ministry when he followed the leading of the Holy Spirit (Acts 16:7). Application: One of the biblical characteristics of believers is that they are led by the Spirit of God (Rom. 8:14). (First Reference, Gen. 1:2; Primary Reference, Matt. 28:19; cf. John 15:26.)

PURPOSE OF THE CHURCH

28:19. The controlling purpose of the local church is to make disciples of all kinds of people. Those who are evangelized and converted should then be baptized, attesting to their identification with Christ and the local body of believers. The final phase of the Great Commission is to train disciples in Christian knowledge and for effective service. A church cannot choose one aspect of its responsibility and neglect the others. The Great Commission is a simple command with three steps—evangelism, baptism, and education. Illustration: The Great Commission is the strategy by which the church at Jerusalem saturated its community with the gospel. Application: Every Christian should determine that his ministry for Christ in the church upholds God's objectives for that institution. (First Reference, Matt. 16:18; Primary Reference, Matt. 28:19; cf. Phil. 1:27.)

all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

20 “Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am ^bwith you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

church is not to be merely “missionary-minded.” The church is the vehicle of Christ’s mission to the world.

Baptizing the converted disciples is the first step of outward obedience to the Lord. “Baptize” (Gr. baptizō) is an English transliteration, and means to “dip,” or “immerse,” thus indicating its proper mode. Nowhere does this term ever indicate “sprinkling” or “pouring.” These converts are to be baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. The “name” is singular, followed by an elliptical clause indicating that one name is the name of each person of the Trinity. While baptismal references in Acts refer to being baptized in Jesus’ name (emphasizing His deity as Savior), they in no way eliminate or contradict the significance of this formula given by Christ Himself.

The closing promise, though given to the apostles, is transmitted by every generation of believers (cf. John 17:20). Christ’s promise of His presence, I am with you always, guarantees the success of the church’s mission because it is really His mission carried out by His called-out disciples. The phrase unto the end of the world means until the end of the “age” (Gr. aiōn). Therefore Christ’s empowerment of the church to evangelize the world is available in every age, even unto the end of the church age. In comparing the Great Commission with Jesus’ promise to continually build His church (ch. 18), we must conclude that He intended His church always to be spiritually militant and evangelistically aggressive as we take His claims of lordship to the entire world of our generation.

Authorship. Ancient testimony names John Mark as the writer. Few have challenged this tradition; none has done so persuasively. The gospel itself may contain a cryptic allusion to its author (14:51, 52), but no name is given. In Scripture Mark sometimes goes by the name John alone (Acts 13:5, 13; 15:37), sometimes by Mark alone (Col. 4:10, 2 Tim. 4:11. Philem. 24; 1 Pet. 5:13), and twice by both names (Acts 12:12, 25). He was the son of Mary, a woman of some means in Jerusalem (Acts 12:12). He was Barnabas's cousin (Col. 4:10). Along with Barnabas he participated in the early stages of Paul's first missionary journey. For some reason he did not finish the journey but went back to Jerusalem (Acts 13:13). Later on Paul would not have Mark on his mission team because of this desertion (Acts 15:38). Yet in later years he and Paul were reconciled (Col. 4:10; Philem. 24). Paul regarded him as one of the few who were faithful to his ministry to the end (2 Tim. 4:11). All of this suggests that Mark was a seasoned veteran of the Christian walk. He was well versed in apostolic teaching; he had extensive missionary experience under wise guides. Most importantly, he learned firsthand that God gives penitent believers opportunity to recover from past failure. Mark not only heard redemption and new life proclaimed, he experienced it in his own life.

Peter's Influence. There is good evidence that this gospel reflects Peter's contribution. Mark and Peter certainly had close ties (1 Pet. 5:13); perhaps Peter led him to Christ. The gospel was composed by one who had considerable skill in literary, historical, and theological presentation, and this points to Mark's own God-given insight. Yet comparison of the Gospel of Mark with Peter's sermons in Acts and with other data, suggest we are listening to a version of a story told in part by the venerable apostle Peter himself.

Date. Many scholars date Mark in the 60s A.D. Some date it later, since Mark 13:2 predicts the fall of Jerusalem (A.D. 70), and they deny that Jesus could have foretold the future. But predictive prophecy is quite within the ability of the Jesus of the New Testament. Mark has in fact been dated by some as early as the 40s. The exact date is not crucial to a grasp of Mark's message. In any case the book bears the stamp of an early and authentic written witness to Jesus' ministry.

Distinctive Outlook. (1) There seems no reason to reject the ancient tradition that Mark wrote primarily for a largely Gentile audience resident in Rome. This might account for a number of Latin terms found in the Gospel of Mark. This would also explain the lack of a genealogy of Christ and less direct dependence on the Old Testament than we find in Matthew and Luke. On the other hand, non-Jewish converts to Christ were still quite aware of their Old Testament roots. We may conclude that Mark is concerned to aim directly at his target: Jesus' life, ministry, and passion. The gospel is Christocentric and action-oriented (immediately, or a synonym of this word, occurs over 40 times). Mark strives for conciseness and brevity. The other gospels serve to fill out the Marcan framework. However, Mark does contain many unique details. (2) Mark seeks to involve the reader in the gospel's witness to Jesus Christ. He does this through an uncomplicated and vivid literary style. He also writes in such a way that the discerning reader feels addressed or questioned, often by Jesus Himself. Mark does not aim merely to convey information. He seeks rather to furnish grounds for our decision to follow and keep following the main character of the gospel: Jesus Christ.

Contents. Well over a third of the book (chs. 11–16) deals with a tiny fraction of Jesus' earthly lifetime: the last week. Chapter 10 gives an account of Jesus' ministry as He moved slowly southward from Galilee to Jerusalem. This leaves 1:14–9:50 to cover His extensive work in Galilee, while the opening verses (1:1–13) vouch for the credentials of the Christ: His prophetic connections, His intimate kinship with God the Father and God the Spirit, and His bearing of the worst temptations that Satan could throw at Him.

Outline. The Gospel of Mark does not admit of easy topical analysis. Many suggestions have been made. This outline seeks to relate Jesus' actions and teaching to His geographical location.

John's Message of Repentance

1:13 ^aMatt. 4:10, 11

1:14 ^aMatt. 4:12

1:1. Mark begins with a burst of information that functions as a title. The gospel here refers not to the whole book but to the content of the early Christian proclamation, which in turn centers on a person. Jesus is His given name; Christ is both a name and His Old Testament title; the Son of God points to His unique familial intimacy with the God of the Old Testament.

1:2, 3. By prophets, Mark means the so-called major and minor prophets of the Old Testament, specifically Malachi and Isaiah. Because early Christians had a great reverence for Scripture, and had only the Old Testament for their Bible, passages foretelling Jesus' coming are regarded as strong proof of His divine identity. These prophecies relate especially to John's activity.

1:4. John (the Baptist) breaks a centuries-long prophetic silence in Israel. Other Jewish groups practiced ritual water cleansing, but John called all Israel to repentance (v. 15). John's baptism was not regarded as equal to baptism in the name of the Trinity as a testimony to one's personal trust in Christ. (See Acts 19:1-5.) For here means "with a view to," that is, in order to attain remission of sins. The Greek word order shows that it is not baptism but repentance that secures remission of sins.

1:5. The whole of Judea and Jerusalem is rocked by John's presence. The tense of baptized stresses that it took place continually over a length of time. The condition for baptism was a public response, by which and in which one confessed his sins.

1:6. John's appearance is reminiscent of Elijah (2 Kin. 1:8; cf. Mark 6:15).

1:7. Latchet refers to the thong of a sandal. John is concerned to make clear both his inferiority (so as not to distract from the future-oriented focus of his message) and the Coming One's superiority (so as to cultivate longing and expectancy). Preached, saying denotes a continuous activity: this is John's characteristic message.

1:8. I and he are emphatic, stressing the contrast. John has a vital function, but Jesus has an even greater one. As John was used by God to administer immersion in water, Jesus will serve to bring men under the influence of the Holy Spirit.

1:9. Jesus did not need to repent of sin, but as the Messiah of Israel He identified thoroughly with the people of Israel. He also would have wished to show His support for John as God's prophet.

1:10. Mark uses a somewhat violent verb in Greek; opened can be rendered "being torn apart." Jesus witnesses heaven, closed to sinners, being torn open. This signifies that God is now accessible to penitent seekers. God's Spirit empowers Jesus for His coming service.

1:11. Along with new access to heaven (v. 10) comes new information from heaven. Thou art is a statement of fact. Thou is translated from an emphatic Greek personal pronoun stressing the identity of Jesus to the exclusion of all others. The force of this is, "You alone, rather than any others, are uniquely My beloved Son."

1:12. The verb driveth calls attention to the forcefulness of the Spirit's urging. The wilderness is the desert waste of Palestine.

1:13. The temptation is portrayed as lasting throughout the forty days. But so is the sustaining ministry of God's angels. Wild beasts underscores the loneliness and hostility of the surroundings.

1:14. Jesus' public ministry in Galilee gets underway.

18 And straightway ^athey ¹forsook their nets, and followed him.

19 And when he had gone a little farther thence, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets.

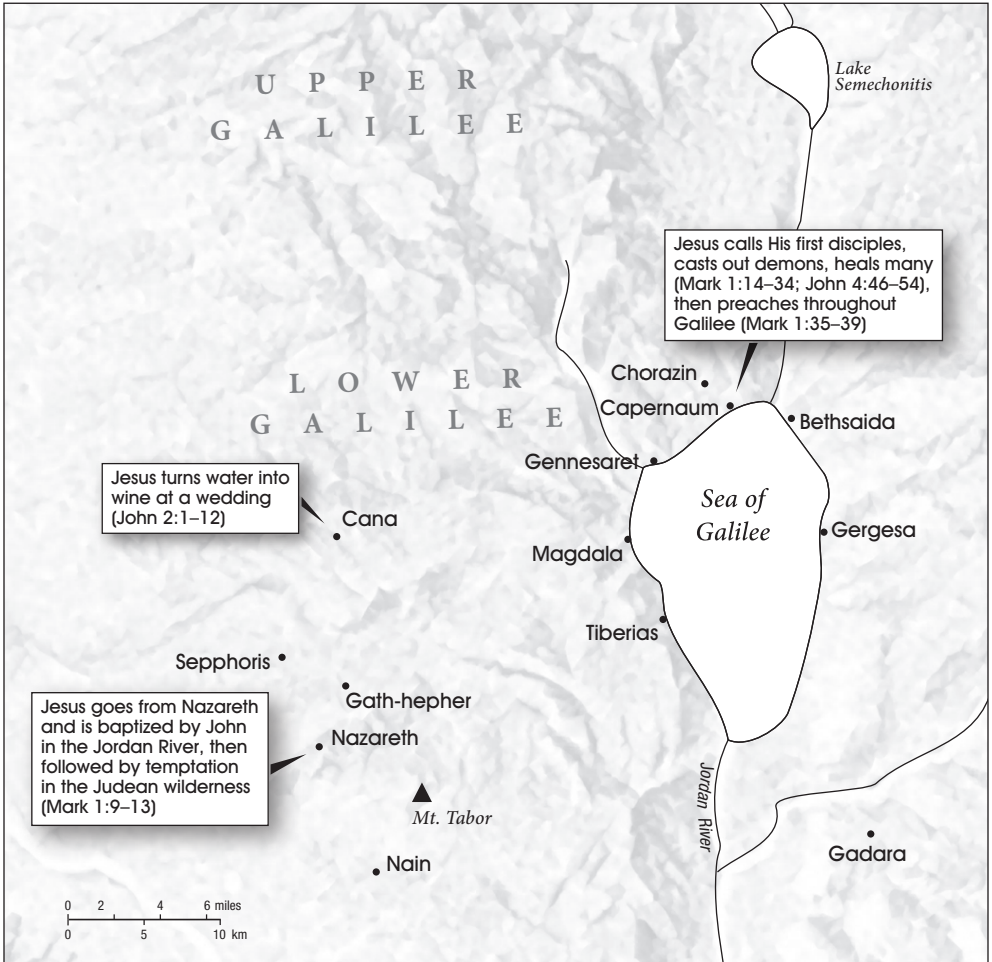

1:18 ^aMatt. 19:27; [Luke 14:26] ¹left

1:15. Jesus’ proclamation stresses the importance of that present time. The sphere of God’s sovereign rule is extending into humanity with new intensity. All, even Israel, are to repent, by God’s grace, turning from sin and to righteousness, not just outwardly but with the heart. Along with repenting must come believing, putting trust in Jesus’ message (and thus right from the start, to some extent, in Jesus Himself).

1:17. With a command Jesus summons two to be disciples. Mark may preserve here Peter’s vivid memory of this brief and direct appeal. Seen against its Old Testament background, Jesus’ call is to the task of winning men in view of the impending judgment of God.

1:18–20. Jesus’ call is not an enthusiastic shout of temporary appeal but a summons to all-encompassing, whole-life commitment. Jesus gains at least four dedicated adherents, who follow him to Capernaum.

20 And straightway he called them: and they left their father Zebso-much that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority commandeth he even the unclean spirits, and they do obey him.

1:21—3:12. Mark presents a series of incidents showing Jesus' power and the people's amazed responses.

1:21. Capernaum was the home of Peter, Andrew, James, and John.

1:22. Jesus astounds His listeners, for He teaches as one that had authority. The surprise is not uniformly pleasant. Some were doubtless offended by His seeming effrontery.

1:23, 24. The spirit voices his displeasure at being meddled with by the One he recognizes as God's Holy One.

1:25. Jesus commands the spirit to come out of the victim. He does not rebuke the man, but his oppressor. Jesus issues the same command, Hold thy peace, to the storm in 4:39.

1:28. Fame here is simply "report"; word about Jesus went out quickly in all directions. For some at least it is likely to have seemed "notoriety."

1:29, 30. Forthwith and anon are stylistic variations for the same Greek word meaning "immediately."

1:31. Peter's mother-in-law probably fixed a meal. Peter's family is quickly and dramatically affected by his decision to follow Jesus. This whole incident reflects Peter's point of view.

1:32-34. Mark sketches a portrait of a spirited response to Jesus after the sun did set: Jews would not have ventured out until evening marked the close of the Sabbath. Jesus' ministry is to both physical and spiritual disorder.

1:35. Mark emphasizes that it was a great while before day. Showing that Jesus began each day of His earthly ministry with prayer is only the secondary intention of this verse. The primary aim is to show how Jesus made important decisions: by earnest, persistent prayer. Here Jesus stands at the crossroads of decision: His first year of public preaching (vv. 9-20) has borne little visible fruit. But His miracles of healing are drawing huge crowds (vv. 31, 32) and bringing Him recognition (v. 28). So the question is whether He should continue to put the stress of His ministry on the preaching of the gospel for the healing of man's diseased soul, or place the stress of His work on the more popular performing of miracles for the healing of man's body. To make the proper choice, He seeks by prayer the Father's wisdom.

1:36. Followed is somewhat weak; they were at pains to track Jesus down in His retreat.

1:37, 38. The disciples bring news of human need.

they said unto him, “All men ^bseek for thee.

38 And he said unto them, “Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for ^btherefore came I forth.

39 “And he preached in their synagogues throughout all Galilee, and ^bcast out ¹devils.

abroad the matter, insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the city, but was ³without in desert places: *b*and they came to him from every quarter.

Jesus Heals a Man with Palsy

2 And again *a*he entered into Capernaum after some days; and it was ¹noised that he was in the house.

2 And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no room to receive them, no, ¹not so much as about the door: and he preached the word unto them.

3 And they come unto him, bringing one sick of ¹the *a*palsy, which was ²borne of four.

4 And when they could not come ¹nigh unto him for the ²press, they uncovered the roof where he was: and when they had broken it up, they let down the bed wherein the ³sick of the palsy lay.

5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the ¹sick of the palsy, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee.

6 But there were certain of the scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts,

7 Why doth this man thus speak blasphemies? *a*who can forgive sins but God only?

All men seek for thee, not to hear the gospel, but for viewing His miracles or to be healed physically. Perhaps even at that early hour, people were already gathering to see Jesus. The decision Jesus has reached by prayer is to go into the next towns, in order to preach there also; He has chosen to pursue the unpopular course and keep the emphasis of His work on preaching the gospel. Why? Because, He says, therefore came I forth from heaven: to preach. Jesus' response implicitly involves the disciples in their first mission tour.

1:39. This summary statement characterizes the scope (all Galilee) and activity (preaching, primarily; casting out demons, secondarily) of Jesus' ministry.

1:40. The leper assumes a respectful, if plaintive, posture. His beseeching is not based on Jesus' ability but on His willingness.

1:41. Jesus is moved with compassion to help. Mark's picture of Jesus is not of an unmoved problem-solver sweeping serenely and unemotionally from incident to incident. See Hebrews 4:15.

1:43. Straitly charged implies that Jesus was for some reason angry or irritated, as does the vivid sent him away, the same verb as in verse 12. Perhaps Jesus was indignant at the outrage of mankind's sickness and suffering, affronts to a loving God's power to redeem His creation from all that is tainted by the imperfect and ultimately evil.

1:45. This incident of the cleansed leper justifies Jesus' decision to emphasize preaching instead of healing. The leper's disobeying Jesus' command to inform no one but the priest of his healing indicates that although he was cleansed physically, he remained uncleansed inwardly (spiritually). The healing of man's sin-infected soul is therefore far more important than the healing of his body. The people's enthusiasm over miracles hinders Jesus' freedom to preach, causing Him to remain in the desert places.

2:1-12. Jesus continues to astound (and offend) by extraordinary works and claims.

2:1. Jesus comes back into Capernaum from His desert outposts (1:45).

2:5. Touched by their obvious and active trust, Jesus acts. But instead of a physical healing alone, Jesus proclaims a remission of sins.

2:6, 7. Scribes were professional students and teachers of the Old Testament and Jewish tradition surrounding it. They also served as judges in the Jewish legal body, the Sanhedrin. They were influential men in society. They take strong issue with Jesus' seeming presumptuousness, for it was common knowledge to students of the Old Testament that forgiving sin is God's prerogative alone. Jesus is implicitly making a claim to divinity, which to the Scribes ranks as blasphemy.

8 And immediately when Jesus perceived in his spirit that they so reasoned within themselves, he said unto them, Why reason ye these things in your hearts?

9 “Whether is it easier to say to the ¹sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk?”

10 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath ¹power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the ²sick of the palsy,)

11 I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house.

12 And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went forth before them all; insomuch that they were all amazed, and ^aglorified God, saying, We never saw ¹it on this fashion.

The Calling of Levi

13 “And he went forth again by the sea side; and all the multitude ¹resorted unto him, and he taught them.

14 “And as he passed by, he saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the ¹receipt of custom, and said unto him, ^b*Follow me*. And he arose and ^cfollowed him.

20 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be ^ataken away

2:8. Jesus senses their indignation and addresses them directly, as in Mark He is inclined to do.

2:9. Modern English would drop the whether.
 2:10, 11. Son of man is one of Jesus’ favorite self-designations, used some 14 times in Mark. Scholars debate its exact meaning, some incredibly denying that Jesus applied the term to Himself. But such skepticism is surely misplaced. It seems to be a deliberately unclear title, one that could conjure up images of divine presence and might (Dan. 7:13, 14), but which could at the same time give willful skeptics enough rope, so to speak, to hang themselves in the tortuous coils of their stubborn doubt. By healing sickness in conjunction with forgiving sin, Jesus is not equating physical infirmity with spiritual depravity. Yet there is some ultimate connection, for sickness and death apparently invaded humanity through sin. (See Gen. 3; Rom. 5:12.) Some day, by God’s grace in Christ, sin, death, and all sickness will be vanquished. Jesus’ exercise of divine forgiveness here and its immediate consequences are perhaps advance tokens of the wondrous boon of ultimate redemption. In Jesus the sphere of God’s restorative influence, His kingdom, is indeed at hand (1:15), and that with great power.

2:12. Here as previously (1:22, 28, 45; 2:7) Mark calls attention to the response Jesus provoked. The observers have never seen anything like this.

2:13-22. Jesus returns to activity by the lake. Mark pictures a constant coming and going of crowds.

2:14. Levi is known also as Matthew, the tax collector (publican).

2:15. By now Jesus has attracted a number of devotees. But He has also managed to appeal to those whom most pious Jews of that time and place would have avoided.

2:16, 17. With some irony Jesus deflects the barb of His detractors, who first seek to stir up His own disciples against Him. For Jesus, as well as for the Old Testament, no man is righteous in God’s sight by virtue of his own goodness. The point is that Jesus seeks out those who, being in need, sense and own up to it. Sinners refers to common folk who in their religious practices were less scrupulous than the Pharisees, and often more responsive to Jesus than cultivated religious people.

2:18-22. This is evidently a further incident, not directly connected in time with verses 13-17. Pharisees fasted twice weekly (Luke 18:12).

2:20. Jesus foresees the days when His disciples will fast. That time will be when He has returned to heaven. Fasting is practiced during a time of grief, not joy. As a bridegroom’s friends rejoice while he is with them (v. 19) and grieve when he is taken away from them, so Jesus’ disciples rejoice while He is among them, but will fast after His ascension into heaven. See Acts 13:2, 3; 14:23.

2:22. Bottles are wineskins, the old ones figuratively representing Judaism and the new ones, Christianity. Old wineskins lose their elasticity and would be burst open by the fermentation of new wine put into them. The point: the old faith of Judaism and the new faith of Christianity cannot be mixed, nor can the practices or traditions (e.g., the time of fasting) of Judaism be forced on Christianity.

2:23-28. Jesus astounds by defying then-current Sabbath practice.

2:23. Not American corn but grain such as barley or wheat, thus "heads of grain."

2:25. David's action is found in 1 Samuel 21:1-6.

2:27, 28. Jesus' reasoning is that divine institutions on earth are to have a God-honoring, noble, and liberating function. Sabbath laws had for some degenerated into a mockery of God's intent. Jesus, the Son of man and Lord... of the sabbath, having power to forgive sin, can also teach rightly regarding proper observance of the Jewish Sabbath. Jesus here touches a raw nerve, as the next incident shows.

3:1-7. Jesus' power continues to be manifest, this time causing strong negative reaction.

3:1. Jesus was critical of certain aspects of the Jewish religion of His time, but He remained faithful in weekly synagogue attendance.

3:2. Sabbath regulations were extraordinarily detailed and often legalistic. Sabbath issues become a major battleground for Jesus and His detractors.

3:4. Based on the Old Testament alone, the answer would obviously be "to do good," even on the Sabbath. But religious tradition had added greatly to the Old Testament, in essence setting the Scripture aside for the sake of human rules. See 7:7.

3:5. Jesus again expresses strong displeasure. (See 1:43.) But along with a certain anger comes being grieved, connoting not censure but compassion.

3:6. The Pharisees were in Jesus' time the most influential Jewish sect. Some, like Nicodemus (John 3), gave Jesus a hearing. But many, perhaps most, were more zealous for their somewhat arbitrary rules than for the spirit of the Old Testament and for a personal relationship to God. Subservience to a man-made code of ethics worked a spiritually deadly result. The Pharisees appear to have been at the vanguard of attempts to discredit Jesus. They are joined here by the Herodians. This group, much smaller than the Pharisees, tended toward political opportunism. They would have perceived Jesus as a threat to the status quo of Roman rule, which benefited them.

30 Because they ^asaid, He hath an unclean spirit.

3:12. Jesus seeks to keep His messianic identity somewhat hidden. (See 1:34, 44.) This was not totally possible, nor always desirable (John 4:26). But it seems to have been Jesus' general policy not to prejudice the masses unduly in His favor, as easy as this would have been. He sought the earnest commitment of true seekers for the living God, not merely hangers-on attaching themselves to a new and popular leader.

3:14, 15. The twelve doubtless represent in some new form the nation Israel with its 12 tribes. They have three functions: to be with Him (see Acts 1:21; 4:13), to be sent out to preach, and to share Jesus' uncanny mastery over physical and spiritual disorder.

3:20–35. Mark writes of three incidents of opposition to Jesus: among friends, scribes, and family.

3:20, 21. Jesus' popular appeal continues unabated. But acquaintances seek to detain Him, having decided that He is mentally unsound. They are apparently unsuccessful—and quite mistaken.

3:22–30. Scribes (see 2:6, 7) make a long journey to assess Jesus' work. Their verdict is negative.

3:22. Beelzebub is a synonym for Satan.

3:28–30. Verily translates the Greek amēn. This manner of speaking has the effect of solemnifying Jesus' words by implicitly invoking God's sanction of them. Jesus thereby claims to be God's very spokesman. Said (or, "they kept saying," v. 30) denotes rep-an illustration, showing the minds of men who should have known better being tragically closed to God's presence in Jesus. The sin Jesus warns against consists in a deliberate and psychologically irrevocable spurning of God's redeeming and cleansing power, going as far as to see in Jesus the incarnation of a demon. Profaning even God's name is deadly business (Ex. 20:7). But unforgivable, says Jesus, is the callousness of heart that leads to such debased spiritual sensitivity that God's Word, and deed, through Jesus can be trodden so ruthlessly underfoot. Such a perverse heart cuts itself off from saving grace. There can be no reconciliation. God gives the guilty party over to that ruler whom the man has willfully chosen to elevate above the Son of God.

3:31, 32. Like His friends (vv. 20, 21), His family wants to temper Jesus' by now quite controversial operations with some demands or advice.

3:33-35. Mutual obedience to God comprises a tie that binds more closely than mere bloodlines.

4:1-34. Jesus extends His influence by His teaching.

4:1-20. The parable of the sower. A parable is a brief story that makes a comparison. It typically uses an illustration from everyday life to bring out a spiritual truth.

4:2. Doctrine refers here to the act of teaching, as well as to the content.

4:10. The Twelve do not grasp Jesus' meaning. Mark does not glorify the Twelve; they often lack understanding or are out of step with Jesus. This is part of what gives Mark its ring of genuineness, since a story embellished by the later church would surely paint more complimentary portraits of the apostles.

4:11. In the New Testament a mystery is not a decipherable puzzle but a profound spiritual truth, which God is just now revealing to whomever He chooses. The Twelve are evidently regarded as being receptive to the deeper meaning or application of the parable just related. In this sense the parable has a positive aim: to reveal a mystery of God's working. On the other hand, the parable obscures its meaning to those who are outside—who evidently lack the spiritual responsiveness for Jesus to divulge His story's full import.

4:12-20. Jesus interprets the parable. The four soils represent four kinds of people who hear the gospel. (1) Unresponsive people, they by the way side, fail when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts.

16 And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness;

17 And have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when ¹affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are ²offended.

18 And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word,

The Growing Seed

26 And he said, ^aSo is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed ¹into the ground;

27 And should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and ^agrow up, he knoweth not how.

28 For the earth ^abringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full ¹corn in the ear.

The Grain of Mustard Seed

30 And he said, ^aWhereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what ¹comparison shall we ²compare it?

31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is ¹less than all the seeds that be in the earth:

32 But when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the ¹fowls of the air may lodge under ²the shadow of it.

to respond to the seed or word (gospel) sown, so Satan quickly removes it lest they be saved (Luke 8:12). (2) Impulsive people, the stony ground, are those who immediately receive (v. 16) the gospel, but not counting the cost, have no root [spiritual reality] in themselves (v. 17). They believe for a while (Luke 8:13), but soon are offended (v. 17, defect from the truth) because of persecution. Their rejection of the gospel is as speedy as their reception of it. (3) Preoccupied people, those among thorns, allow legitimate matters (cares of this world) and illegitimate matters (deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things) to take priority over the gospel. And (4) some people, good ground, hear and receive (take to heart) the gospel, which bears the fruits of faith, obedience, and fidelity in them. 4:21–23. Here is another practical illustration. Candle refers to a small lamp. Jesus' point in verses 21 and 22 seems to be that God's in-breaking kingdom, which it is Jesus' task to reveal in God's time, must for now be partially hidden. But the time will come when it is gloriously revealed. 4:24, 25. This may be paraphrased: "Give careful attention to what you hear. For according to the proportion of study given God's Word, a corresponding amount of knowledge will be given you, and generously multiplied at that." The point is that God's truth, instead of being divinely hidden from man (vv. 21, 22), will be understood in proportion to one's attention to and study of it. 4:26–29. The point of this parable is that God causes the gospel to bear fruit and His kingdom to grow. Just how He does these things we do not fully understand. 4:30–32. The central truth here is: Although God's work in Jesus currently is very small, apparently insignificant, and making little visible headway, His kingdom will grow eventually worldwide and have global impact.

33 ^aAnd with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it.

34 But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he ^aexpounded¹ all things to his disciples.

4:33, 34. This is a summary statement. Jesus' indirect method of teaching created interest and summoned to decision, while yet leaving time to reflect and decide. The parables are at once both a sort of judgment on the hearers' spiritual dullness and an expression of God's active willingness to enlighten and save.

4:35-5:43. Jesus takes His disciples from the classroom to the laboratory. Having just taught that God's power will cause His kingdom to grow to worldwide proportion and influence (4:30-32), Jesus now performs four miracles that demonstrate this divine might. God's power is seen overcoming (1) the danger of a storm (4:35-41); (2) demons in a victim possessed (5:1-20); (3) disease in a woman physically ravished (5:21-34); and (4) the death of a little girl (5:35-43).

4:35-41. Jesus stills the storm. In the Old Testament such power resides only in God (Ps. 65:7; 107:29).

4:40. Jesus constantly questions in order to spur people to deeper trust. See 2:8, 19, 25, 26; 3:4, 23, 33; 4:13, 21, 30.

4:41. The fear must have been a mixture of reverential awe and real fright—it would be chillingly eerie to witness the instantaneous dissipation of a violent storm.

5:1-20. Jesus ministers to a demoniac.

5:1. The sea is the Lake of Galilee, about 12½ miles long by 7½ miles wide.

5:15. Possessed with the devil and had the legion refers to this one man having been the victim of multiple-demon possession. Afraid: the same response the Twelve had in 4:41.

5:17. Pray here means “request” or “implore.” Coasts means “region.” The local citizens asked Jesus to leave their region, out of fear of suffering further financial losses, though His presence might have brought them additional blessings and their sick more healings.

5:20. Decapolis was the area southeast of the Sea of Galilee, containing many Gentile settlers. Jesus seems to have been more willing to make His deeds and identity known in a non-Jewish context. (See also John 4:4–26.) In the Capernaum area, by contrast, He felt the need to maintain a lower profile (1:34, 44; 3:12). The man tells what Jesus has done, although Jesus told Him to speak of “the Lord,” the God of Israel (v. 19).

5:22. A synagogue ruler was a layman who helped oversee and plan the synagogue services. He also saw to the care of the building. Jairus may have had previous contact with Jesus, who attended synagogue regularly.

5:23. The laying on of hands was commonly associated with healing.

man. That she owned up openly indicates that her interest lay not only in physical health: she wanted to be right with Jesus Himself. Her faith, not the grasp of her hand, brought restoration to her.

5:35. Obviously, Jesus has intentionally let the time pass in which He might have preserved the girl's life.

5:36. Believe, literally: "Keep on believing."

5:37. Peter, and James, and John were also chosen to witness the Transfiguration (9:2).

5:38. Professional mourners would be already singing dirges and raising a stir.

5:39. The girl was in fact dead (v. 35). But Jesus knows her death will be reversed.

5:41. Talitha cumi is Aramaic for "Little girl, arise."

5:43. The crowd would eventually know, of course, that the girl had been raised from the dead. Jesus wants the fact to be concealed for the time being, giving Him time to depart and avoid ostentatious acclaim. Also, the parents will still be able to keep the details of the resuscitation secret from the scornful unbelievers outside the door. Jesus' custom all along was to make Himself known to earnest seekers, but to conceal His true identity from skeptics.

6:1–6. Here begins Jesus' final extended ministry to His native area. His rejection there sets the stage for the mission beginning in verse 7.

6:1. His own country is doubtless Nazareth (1:9, 24).

6:5. The point is not that Jesus was suddenly lacking in ability to do miracles—He does perform a few. Rather He finds contempt and hardness of heart, which are the antitheses of receptivity and faith. Under such circumstances, further disclosure of God's presence in His Messiah is denied.

6:6. Only here does Mark speak of Jesus as having marvelled. Resistance to Him is tragically astounding.

Herod's Fear of John the Baptist

14 ^aAnd king Herod heard of him; (for his name ¹was spread abroad:) and he said, That John the Baptist was risen from the dead, and therefore ^bmighty works do ²shew forth themselves in him.

6:7-13. The twelve are sent out. From here to 9:50, Jesus and His followers will minister in a wide area well north of Jerusalem.

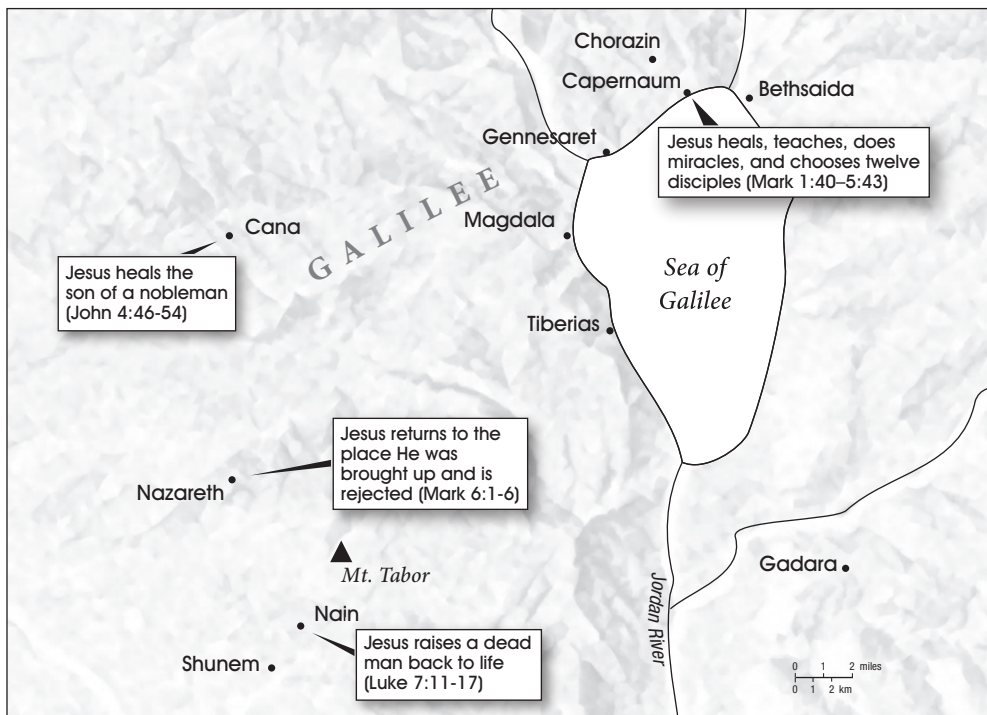

6:8. Scrip is a knapsack of some sort. Purse is a belt. 6:9. Jesus' commands make His disciples totally dependent on God. No bread, no bag, not even a coin or second coat (tunic) to ward off the night chill—all was calculated to make their initial preaching tour an exercise in radical faith.

6:12. The message is that of Jesus Himself (1:15).

6:14-29. This parenthetical section on Herod is inserted for the following reasons: (1) It elaborates on John the Baptist's sudden disappearance from the public scene (briefly mentioned in 1:14) and his death. (2) The Baptist's martyrdom foreshadows one sort of persecution awaiting Jesus and many of His servants. (3) The Baptist's loss of ministry is one reason Jesus dispatches the Twelve in their mission in verses 7-13. (4) It shows Jesus' fame to be so widespread that it reaches Herod's court. (5) It reveals the world's blindness to Jesus: while many hold Him in high regard, identifying Him as Elias (Elijah), a prophet, or as the Baptist, they do not esteem Him highly enough; they fail to recognize Him as God's Son.

6:14. Herod heard perhaps due to the disciples' preaching.

CANA AND NAZARETH REVISITED

15 ^aOthers said, That it is Elias. And others said, That it is a ^bprophet, or as one of the prophets.

16 ^aBut when Herod heard thereof, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded: he is risen from the dead.

17 For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife: for he had married her.

18 For John had said unto Herod, ^aIt is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife.

19 Therefore Herodias ¹had a quarrel against him, and would have killed him; but she could not:

20 For Herod ^afeared John, knowing that he was a just man and an ¹holy, and ²observed him; and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.

Feeding the Five Thousand

30 ^aAnd the apostles gathered themselves together unto Jesus, and told him all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught.

31 ^aAnd he said unto them, Come ye yourselves ¹apart into a ²desert place, and rest a while: for ^bthere were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat.

32 ^aAnd they departed into a ¹desert place by ship ²privately.

33 And the ¹people saw them departing, and many ^aknew him, and ran afoot thither out of all cities, and ²outwent them, and came together unto him.

34 ^aAnd Jesus, when he came out, saw ¹much people, and was moved with compassion toward them, because they were as ^bsheep not having a shepherd: and ^che began to teach them many things.

35 ^aAnd when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, This is a desert place, and ¹now the time is far passed:

36 Send them away, that they may go into the country round about, and into the villages, and buy themselves bread: for they have nothing to eat.

The Pharisees Rebuked

7 Then ^acame together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which came from Jerusalem.

Palestine. A pennyworth amounted to the wage for one day of a rural worker’s labor.

6:41. Judaism forbade taking food without thanking God.

6:44. Five thousand would be an immense crowd, towns like Capernaum and Bethsaida numbering perhaps only two to three thousand inhabitants. But they were all filled, and there was an excess of food remaining—and the number does not include women and children.

6:45–52. In the wake of the miraculous feeding, Jesus performs yet other wonders, namely walking on the lake and stilling a gale.

6:48. The fourth watch was from 3 to 6 A.M.

6:49. Spirit here means an apparition or a ghost.

6:50. Troubled speaks of abject terror. Spirits of the night were thought to portend disaster.

6:51. See the disciples’ earlier response (4:41).

6:52. The disciples’ terror and confusion were rooted in not perceiving the true significance of Jesus’ words and deeds. They were unable to grasp that He was the divine Son of God, the Lord incarnate.

6:53–56. This scene summarizes Jesus’ wondrous and compassionate activity.

6:53. They had wanted to land at Bethsaida (v. 45), but the wind blew them off course.

6:54. By this time, Jesus had gained fame throughout the region.

7:1–23. Jesus’ influence spreads through confrontation.

2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with ^aunwashen,¹ hands, they found fault.

4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and ¹pots, brasen vessels, and of ²tables.

5 ^aThen the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands?

Things from Within Defile

14 ^aAnd when he had called all the ¹people unto him, he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one of you, and ^bunderstand:

15 There is nothing from ¹without a man, that entering into him can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that ^adefile the man.

16 ^aIf any man have ears to hear, let him hear.

17 ^aAnd when he was entered into the house ¹from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable.

18 And he saith unto them, ^aAre ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive, that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, it cannot defile him;

19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and ¹goeth out into the draught, ²purging all meats?

20 And he said, ^aThat which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man.

7:1. Jerusalem was to Judaism what Rome is to Roman Catholicism. Officials from the city of Zion were sent out to monitor the activities of this miracle-worker in Palestine's hinterland. See also 3:22.

7:3. Certain unwritten traditions had come to be regarded as equal in authority to the Old Testament itself.

7:5, 6. The concern was not with dirty hands, but with how Jesus' disciples were ignoring Jewish tradition and thereby becoming ceremonially unclean.

7:7. Howbeit means "nevertheless."

7:8, 9. Years of tradition, Jesus is saying, had brought some Jewish religious practices into conflict with the far older commands of the Old Testament. Too many were substituting modern religious custom for divinely revealed truth.

7:11, 12. Jews could evade responsibility to parents by declaring their substance Corban, "devoted to God." Religious leaders evidently condoned this clear circumvention of both the letter and the intent of the Old Testament.

7:13. Jesus' quarrel was not with God's word, but with human misuse of it.

7:18, 19. Once again Jesus challenges His disciples with searching questions.

7:20. Many apparently thought that the food itself forbidden by parts of the Old Testament (see, e.g., Lev. 11) rendered the eater unclean. Jesus is not challenging the accuracy of the Old Testament. He is pointing out that what one produces from, not what he takes into, himself is the essence of human sin. In context, Jesus is pointing out the futility of seeking spiritual salvation by means of ritual observances, like dietary laws, which are incapable of purifying the heart (i.e., the moral life). A clean heart is something different from a properly cared-for digestive tract.

Feeding the Multitude

8 In those days ^athe multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples unto him, and saith unto them,

2 I have ^acompassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat:

3 And if I send them away ¹fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way: for ²divers of them came from far.

4 And his disciples answered him, ¹From whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?

7:24—8:26. Jesus cares for and corrects various people.

7:24. Jesus and the disciples seek the privacy that has already eluded them twice (6:32, 33, 53, 54).

7:25. The woman’s behavior indicates both reverence and desperation.

7:26. This is one of Jesus’ few known dealings with a Gentile. The woman is from Phoenicia.

7:27. Jesus’ reply is not a cruel dismissal but a test of the woman’s resolve, persistence, and faith. Children would be either Israel (see Matt. 15:24) or the disciples. If the latter, Jesus is saying, “Can you not leave us in peace? The disciples are weary.” Dogs is literally “doggies,” household pets that would spend mealtimes beneath the table.

7:28. The woman responds with insight into Jesus’ patient grace. She turns His own words back on Him.

7:29. Her reply was evidence of the quality of her faith.

7:34. The word for “sigh” appears also in Romans 8:23 and 2 Corinthians 5:2. It reflects Jesus’ inner emotional and spiritual fervor as He beseeches God to undo this evil.

7:35. String would be simply that which had inhibited his speech.

8:1–9. Jesus again feeds a multitude. There are similarities with the account in 6:30–44, but also important differences.

8:3. Divers means “some.”

8:4. The disciples had still not grasped the miracle of the earlier feeding (6:52). They were unable to imagine what Jesus could do now.

5 ^aAnd he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven.

6 And he commanded the ¹people to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the ¹people.

7 And they had a few small fishes: and ^ahe blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.

8 So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the ^bbroken meat that was left seven baskets.

9 And they that had eaten were about four thousand: and he sent them away.

10 And ^astraightway he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

11 ^aAnd the Pharisees came forth, and began to ¹question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, ²tempting him.

12 And he ^asighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek after a sign? verily I say unto you, There shall ^bno sign be given unto this generation.

13 And he left them, and entering into the ship again departed to the other side.

8:7. Not only were the fishes few, but Mark stresses that they were also small.

8:10-13. Jesus declines to satisfy the demands for a “sign” (i.e., proof of His messiahship).

8:10. Dalmanutha occurs only here in the New Testament; it has never been positively identified.

8:11. These Pharisees were evidently not interested in Jesus’ message. They sought rather to satisfy their own curiosity, or perhaps to gather further evidence against Him on the supposition that His work was of demonic origin (3:22).

8:12. Generation refers to those Jews living at that time. “This generation” carries a derogatory sense because this particular generation of Jews has rejected Jesus as their Messiah, despite all the evidence provided them.

8:14-21. Jesus challenges the disciples to deeper discernment. The disciples apparently failed to realize from the feeding of the five thousand (6:30-44) and from the feeding of the four thousand that Jesus can certainly provide for their needs.

8:15. Charged means “ordered.” (See also 5:43; 7:36; 9:9.) Leaven here has a derogatory meaning: Jesus warns of the Pharisees’ hypocrisy and of Herod’s secularism.

8:16. The disciples miss the point totally.

8:17-21. Jesus is often portrayed as the gentle, patient Teacher. Here He barrages His followers with a battery of queries worthy of a prosecuting attorney.

8:22-26. This healing of a blind man, where sight gradually improved until he saw clearly, pictures the disciples’ slow but progressive spiritual comprehension, which climaxes in verse 29 with their confession of Jesus as Messiah.

8:22. Bethsaida had been the original destination in 6:45.

26 And he sent him away to his house, saying, Neither go into the town, nor tell it to any in the town.

Jesus' Coming Death

31 And ^ahe began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be ^brejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and scribes, and be ^ckilled, and after three days rise again.

32 And he spake that saying openly. And Peter ¹took him, and began to rebuke him.

33 But when he had turned about and looked on his disciples, he ^arebuked Peter, saying, Get thee behind me, Satan: for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.

Jesus' Transfiguration

9 And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power.

2 ^aAnd after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and leadeth them up into an high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them.

3 And his raiment became shining, exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them.

4 And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus.

5 And Peter answered and said to Jesus, ¹Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

6 For he ¹wist not what to say; for they were ²sore afraid.

8:27—9:50. Jesus' influence expands through intimate self-disclosure.

8:27-33. This is the first prediction of Jesus' death. See 9:31; 10:33, 34.

8:29. Christ means here the "Messiah," the Anointed One of God, the Redeemer prophesied in the Old Testament.

8:32. In Jewish thought of that day there was no room for a doctrine of a suffering Messiah—to Peter, as to any other Jew, that would be a contradiction in terms.

8:34—9:1. Jesus teaches how to follow Him and why.

8:34. The people shows that this teaching is not limited to the present disciples, but extends to all who would serve Jesus.

8:38. Jesus makes a close connection between Himself and His words.

9:1. Various interpretations have been suggested. Jesus was likely pointing ahead to His Transfiguration (9:2-8).

9:2. Transfigured means to be altered in form, that is, the transformation is outwardly visible. The same word is used in Romans 12:2 and 2 Corinthians 3:18. The site was probably Mount Hermon (9,000 ft.).

9:3. A fuller was one who laundered clothes.

9:6. The word for sore afraid is used elsewhere only in Hebrews 12:21, where Moses trembled at God's self-disclosure on Mount Sinai.

7 And there was a “cloud that overshadowed them: and a voice came out of the cloud, saying, This is ^bmy beloved Son: ^chear him.

8 And suddenly, when they had looked round about, they saw no man any more, ¹save Jesus only with themselves.

9 ^aAnd as they came down from the mountain, he ¹charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, till the Son of man were risen from the dead.

10 And they kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another ^awhat the rising from the dead ¹should mean.

11 And they asked him, saying, Why say the scribes ^athat Elias must first come?

12 And he answered and told them, Elias verily cometh first, and restoreth all things; and ^ahow it is written of the Son of man, that he must suffer many things, and ^bbe ¹set at nought.

13 But I say unto you, That ^aElias is indeed come, and they have done unto him whatsoever they ¹listed, as it is written of him.

A Dumb and Deaf Spirit Cast Out

20 And they brought him unto him: and ^awhen he saw him, straightway the spirit ¹tare him; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed ²foaming.

22 And oftentimes it hath cast him into the fire, and into the waters, to destroy him: but if thou canst do any thing, have compassion on us, and help us.

23 Jesus said unto him, ^aIf thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.

24 And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; ^ahelp thou mine unbelief.

25 When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he ^arebuked the ¹foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I ²charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him.

26 And the spirit cried, and ¹rent him ²sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead.

27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose.

28 ^aAnd when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Why could not we cast him out?

9:10. Not until after the Resurrection did the disciples fully grasp the importance of some of Jesus' sayings.

9:12. Jesus actually asks a question here by way of answering the question in verse 11.

9:13. Elias (Elijah) refers to John the Baptist.

9:14-29. Jesus handles a difficult case of demon possession.

9:17. The demon caused the boy to be unable to speak normally.

9:23. The sense of Jesus' words may be, "What do you mean, 'If you can'? All things are possible to him that believeth." "Believeth" is lacking in some early manuscripts, giving the saying a different emphasis.

9:24. He had a certain faith; but it was confession of his undeniable inner turmoil and doubt that marked his faltering faith as truly authentic, if imperfect, trust. Before God honesty is a wise course.

29 And he said unto them, This kind can come forth by nothing, but by prayer and fasting.

30 And they departed thence, and passed through Galilee; and he would not that any man should know it.

31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day.

32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him.

The Disciples' Dispute

33 And he came to Capernaum: and being in the house he asked them, What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?

34 But they held their peace: for by the way they had disputed among themselves, who should be the greatest.

35 And he sat down, and called the twelve, and saith unto them, If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last of all, and servant of all.

36 And he took a child, and set him in the midst of them: and when he had taken him in his arms, he said unto them, 37 Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me.

9:29. While some manuscripts omit fasting, it seems crucial to the context. Jesus does not seem to have resorted to prayer in the course of this healing. Perhaps He refers to a life-style of prevailing prayer that yields a reservoir of spiritual power for just such a crisis as this.

9:30-32. Jesus again foretells His death. (See 8:31; 10:33, 34.) The text implies that He sought to travel unnoticed in order to have undisturbed time to instill very difficult teaching in the disciples' hearts.

9:33-50. Jesus teaches about true greatness (servanthood), unity, and judgment.

9:33-35. Contrary to normal human assumptions, greatness is not a matter of dominance but of service—of being dominated by the will of God.

9:36, 37. Child may refer to just that; or Jesus may be anticipating John's report in verse 38 by saying, in effect, "You should be tolerant of those who show a measure of openness to Me, and thus to God, even if their faith lacks maturity."

9:39. This does not mean that every miracle-worker is automatically blessed of God. See Matthew 7:22, 23.

9:40. This does not contradict Matthew 12:30. The two verses address different situations. When it comes to the critical point of accepting or rejecting Jesus (see the context of Matt. 12:30), not being for Jesus amounts to opposing Him (see John 3:18). But in the case of someone attempting to work in Christ's name, but perhaps with less than a full knowledge of Him (see Acts 18:25), there is no need to quench the smoking wick (Matt. 12:20).

9:42-50. The mention of reward in verse 41 causes Jesus to warn of the equally certain consequences of defying His words.

10:14 ^a [1 Cor. 14:20; 1 Pet. 2:2] ¹ Allow

9:49. The first phrase has reference to the fire of testing that every believer undergoes. (See 2 Tim. 3:12; 1 Pet. 4:12.) The second refers to the salting of Old Testament sacrifices (Lev. 2:13). Christians offer themselves to God as living sacrifices (Rom. 12:1). They must not seek to do so apart from the purging fire God sends for their purifying. See James 1:2; Romans 5:3.

9:50. Salt from the Dead Sea contains impurities and becomes easily stale and unpleasant in taste. Salt in yourselves is the distinctive quality that marks the person devoted to God. The reference to peace ties in with verse 33, which precipitated this whole discourse.

10:1–52. Jesus' ministry shifts from the north to the area of Jerusalem in the south.

10:1. They departed from Capernaum (9:33).

10:2. The Pharisees wished to trap Jesus in His answer.

10:6. See Genesis 2:21–25.

10:11, 12. See also Matthew 5:32; 19:9.

10:14. Mark often stresses Jesus' showing of strong feeling. (See 1:41, 43; 3:5; 7:34; 8:34; 9:19.) Suffer here means "allow."

GEHENNA

9:43. The Greek word for hell, the eternal state of the wicked, is gehenna, a place of torment and suffering. With but one exception, every use of gehenna in Scripture comes from the lips of Jesus. It was probably used to describe hell because of its background in the minds of the Jews.

It had been associated with the valley of Hinnom outside of Jerusalem, the site of human sacrifices during the dark days of Israel's history; and a refuse dump at the time when Jesus spoke. The term gehenna in the New Testament confirms that it is more than an ancient valley outside of Jerusalem. Gehenna is associated with fire, punishment, torment, the undying worm, the gnashing of teeth, and eternity without God. All of the language stressing the repulsiveness of hell is a description of gehenna.

Illustration: The Scriptures incompletely describe gehenna, because such a place is psychologically impossible to comprehend. Application: The existence of this place, where the unsaved will consciously suffer for eternity without God, ought to stir every Christian to win souls. (First Reference, Matt. 5:22; Primary Reference, Mark 9:43; cf. Luke 16:19–31.)

15 Verily I say unto you, “Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.

The Rich Young Man

17 “And when he was gone forth into the way, there came one running, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?

18 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God.

19 Thou knowest the commandments, “Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Defraud not, Honour thy father and mother.

20 And he answered and said unto him, Master, all these have I observed from my youth.

21 Then Jesus beholding him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow me.

22 And he was sad at that saying, and went away grieved: for he had great possessions.

All Things Are Possible with God

23 “And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

24 And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!

25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they were astonished out of measure, saying among themselves, Who then can be saved?

27 And Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for with God all things are possible.

28 “Then Peter began to say unto him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee.

29 And Jesus answered and said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel’s, 30 “But he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life.

10:16. Every parent knows that no child is perfect. But Jesus sees in their refreshing openness to new things, their eagerness to learn and follow, a welcome contrast to adult self-dependence and cynicism.

10:18. Jesus knew that the man addressed Him as only a religious teacher. He reminds him that no mere man merits the title good, for that term applies only to God. As the Son of God, Jesus does of course merit highest praise.

10:20. Master is here literally “teacher.”

10:21. Jesus identifies the one area that revealed the man’s true lack of devotion to God. A clear-cut issue must be decided.

10:22. Matthew 19:20 reveals that this rich man was still young. Luke 18:18 shows that he was a ruler.

10:24. It was assumed that whoever was rich was in God’s favor.

10:25. Needle and camel are to be taken literally.

10:30. Persecutions are part of the disciples’ lot. See Romans 8:17, also the note on 9:49.

GOODNESS OF GOD

10:18. Only God is completely good in His nature and actions. His goodness includes all the positive moral attributes, such as grace, patience, and kindness. Illustration: When the rich young ruler called Jesus “Good Master,” Jesus reminded him that only God could be properly referred to as “good” (v. 18). The good that exists in the world around us truly reflects or expresses the goodness of God (cf. Gen. 1:10). There is no other source of true “good.” When God revealed His name to Moses, He described Himself as being “abundant in goodness” (Ex. 34:6). Application: The goodness of God is illustrated daily in our lives by the many good things that add comfort and enjoyment (James 1:17). Christians should be careful not to take these gifts for granted. (First Reference, Gen. 1:10; Primary Reference, Mark 10:18; cf. Eph. 2:8.)

The Disciples Prepared for Jesus’ Death

34 And they shall mock him, and shall ¹scourge him, and shall spit upon him, and shall kill him: and the third day he shall rise again.

James and John’s Request

10:31. God’s truth often contradicts human expectations.

10:32–45. Jesus sets His face toward Jerusalem.

10:32. The disciples feared what awaited Jesus, and themselves, in the city where Jesus’ enemies would be numerous.

10:33, 34. See 8:31; 9:31; also 9:12.

10:35–45. The disciples jockey for personal advantage even while Jesus prepares to face the Cross. They were simply incapable of visualizing, despite Jesus’ hints, the vindication that lay on the other side of His death. Hence their scrambling for some measure of concrete assurance now.

10:38. Cup refers to Jesus’ coming sufferings.

10:39. James was martyred (Acts 12:2). John was later exiled (Rev. 1:9).

10:45. If Jesus’ sinless life was deemed by God as fit for sacrifice for sinners, how much more expendable are the lives of disciples? See Romans 8:36.

10:46. Jericho was 5 five miles west of the Jordan and about 18 miles northeast of Jerusalem.

10:46. New Testament Jericho was located at Tulul Abu el-Alayiq, whereas Old Testament Jericho was located at Tell es-Sultan. The new Jericho extended for nearly 2 miles southwest of the mound that covered the ruins of Old Testament Jericho, which explains the apparent contradiction between Mark 10:46–52 and Luke 18:35–43. In the one account Jesus leaves Jericho and in the other He enters Jericho. In reality, they were two different locations. The new city contained Herod’s winter palace and incorporated the foundations of earlier Hasmonean palaces. Mark relates the healing of Bartimaeus to Old Testament Jericho, where he also records Jesus’ encounter with Zachaeus (Luke 19:1).

48 And many ¹charged him that he should ²hold his peace: but he ³cried the more a great deal, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

49 And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they call the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good ¹comfort, rise; he calleth thee.

50 And he, ¹casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus.

51 And Jesus answered and said unto him, What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? The blind man said unto him, ¹Lord, that I might receive my sight.

52 And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; ^athy faith hath made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way.

A Fig Tree Rebuked

11 ^aAnd Jesus entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, ¹and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany with the twelve.

12 ^aAnd ¹on the morrow, when they were come from Bethany, he was hungry:

13 ^aAnd seeing a fig tree afar off having leaves, he came, if ¹haply he might find any thing thereon: and when he came to it, he found nothing but leaves; for the time of figs was not yet.

14 And Jesus answered and said unto it, ¹No man eat fruit of thee hereafter for ever. And his disciples heard it.

10:51. This word Lord (Gr. rabbouni) occurs elsewhere only in John 20:16. It is an intensified form of the word for teacher or master. Its use implies a high regard for Jesus. See “son of David” in 10:47.

11:1—15:47. These are Jesus’ final days in Jerusalem. While the exact chronology of the passage is disputed, tradition places 11:1 on the Sunday before the Resurrection.

11:2. Whereon never man sat: An animal devoted to a sacred purpose must not have been put to common use (Num. 19:2, Deut. 21:3).

11:9, 10. The crowd’s cry echoes words from Psalm 118:25, 26. The occasion recalls the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9, a passage which rabbis of Jesus’ day were unable to account for. How could the Messiah be content with so lowly an entry? Hosanna means “save, we pray,” or “save now.”

11:12-26. A fig tree is cursed and the temple is cleansed.

11:12. On the morrow: the incident occurred on Monday.

11:13. If it was not time for figs, why did Jesus look for them? The fig tree is a well-known Old Testament symbol for Israel. He is going to use this unproductive tree as a teaching aid. Looking for figs when there should have been none anyway would serve to heighten the disciples’ curiosity and sharpen their memory of the incident.

18 And "the scribes and chief priests heard it, and sought how they might destroy him: for they feared him, because ^ball the people was astonished at his ¹doctrine.

19 And when ¹even was come, he went out of the city.

The Lesson of the Fig Tree

20 ^aAnd in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree dried up from the roots.

21 And Peter calling to remembrance saith unto him, ¹Master, behold, the fig tree which thou cursedst is withered away.

22 And Jesus answering saith unto them, Have faith in God.

23 For ^averily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.

24 Therefore I say unto you, ^aWhat things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.

Jesus' Authority Questioned

27 And they come again to Jerusalem: ^aand as he was walking in the temple, there come to him the chief priests, and the scribes, and the elders,

28 And say unto him, By what ^aauthority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority to do these things?

29 And Jesus answered and said unto them, I will also ask of you one question, and answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things.

30 The ^abaptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men? answer me.

31 And they reasoned ¹with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then did ye not believe him?

32 But if we shall say, Of men; they feared the people: for ^aall men counted John, that he was a prophet indeed.

33 And they answered and said unto Jesus, We cannot tell. And Jesus answering saith unto them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things.

The Parable of the Vineyard

12 And ^ahe began to speak unto them by parables. A certain man planted a vineyard, and set ¹an

11:15. There were already laws against such misuse of the temple precincts, but no one was enforcing them.

11:16. Carry any vessel through: In addition to normal business traffic, some may have used the temple court as a shortcut.

11:17. Of all nations: The money-changers had their tables in the Court of the Gentiles. It was as close to the inner confines of temple worship as a Gentile could enter. But it was decidedly profaned, despite God's Old Testament intent for His house to be a haven of worship for all. The word for thieves here suggests plunder, taking by violent means. Jesus did not mince words. See Isaiah 56:7; Jeremiah 7:11.

11:20. In the morning was Tuesday of Passion week.

11:22-26. The withered fig tree gives occasion for Jesus to expound concerning faith, prayer, and forgiveness.

11:24. One must keep in mind other portions of Jesus' teaching that shed further light on this (14:36). See Matthew 6:10; 2 Corinthians 12:8.

11:30. In keeping with a favorite tactic, Jesus responds to a question with a question. This was also a common practice in normal rabbinic debate.

11:32. All men counted is like saying it was popular opinion.

12:1-12. The wicked vinedressers are a parable of Israel.

5 And again he sent another; and him they killed, and many others; ^abeating some, and killing some.

6 Having yet therefore one son, his wellbeloved, he sent him also last unto them, saying, They will ¹reverence my son.

7 But those ¹husbandmen said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance shall be ours.

Paying Tribute

13 ^aAnd they send unto him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, to catch him in his words.

14 And when they were come, they say unto him, ¹Master, we know that thou art true, and ²carest for no man: for thou ³regardest not the person of men, but teachest the ^away of God in truth: Is it lawful to ⁴give tribute to Caesar, or not?

Resurrection Questions

18 ^aThen come unto him the Sadducees, ^bwhich say there is no resurrection; and they asked him, saying,

19 Master, ^aMoses wrote unto us, If a man's brother die, and leave his wife behind him, and leave no children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up ¹seed unto his brother.

20 Now there were seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and dying left no ¹seed.

12:1. By parables means "parabolically," denoting the manner in which Jesus spoke, for He uses only one parable. The vineyard stands for Israel, as the leaders recognize (v. 12).

12:2-5. These "servants" would stand for the Old Testament prophets and John the Baptist.

12:6-8. Jesus foresees the treatment He will receive. He will be cast out of the vineyard. Hebrews 13:12 speaks of Jesus suffering "without the gate."

12:9. Jerusalem's destruction in A.D. 70 may well be a partial fulfillment of this statement.

12:17. They marvelled perhaps at the ease with which He escaped their trap. The Christian citizen has obligations to government, but there are limits. Allegiance to God is primary. One ought to do both without neglecting either, where possible. Other related passages are Romans 13:1-7; 1 Timothy 2:1-6; 1 Peter 2:13-17.

12:19. This is called "levirate marriage" (levir being Latin for "husband's brother") and is instituted in Deuteronomy 25:5.

25 For when they shall rise from the dead, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage; but ^aare as the angels which are in heaven.

12:24. Ye know not the scriptures: They knew the words of the Old Testament, but they lacked insight into its spiritual implications.

12:25. The resurrection state will bring with it a life different from what we know now.

12:26. Here Jesus places a great deal of weight on the grammar of Exodus 3:6. God said “I am” despite the fact that the patriarchs had died long before He spoke these words to Moses. Thus the Old Testament itself points to the fact of life after death.

12:28. Jewish tradition found 613 individual commands in Old Testament Law, so it was important to determine their respective weight. Salvation, it was taught, depended on the scrupulous observance of each rule.

12:29. See Deuteronomy 6:4. These are the opening words of the Shema, the Jewish call to worship. They establish the basis of love for God in the fact of God’s being the Lord our God, the God who has covenanted to redeem us to Himself.

12:31. See Leviticus 19:18.

12:33. This scribe, like some in the Old Testament (see 1 Sam. 15:22), realized that heart commitment and obedience out of gratitude to God were of utmost importance. God cannot be bribed into accepting us if we do not from the heart devote ourselves to Him. See also Psalm 40:6; Isaiah 1:11–17.

12:34. Discreetly, meaning wisely, or sensibly, appears only here in the New Testament.

12:36. Jesus grounds the authority of this Old Testament passage (Ps. 110:1) in its divine inspiration. David recognized the Messiah, who would be his descendant, as being also his Lord.

12:40. Many scribes of that day were dependent on generous individuals for their livelihood. Some and for a pretence make long prayers: these shall receive greater ¹damnation.

The Widow's Offering of Two Mites

41 ^aAnd Jesus sat ¹over against the treasury, and beheld how the people cast money ^binto the treasury: and many that were rich cast in much.

42 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two ¹mites, which make a ²farthing.

43 And he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ^athis poor widow hath cast more in, than all they which have cast into the treasury:

44 For all they did cast in of their ¹abundance; but she ²of her want did cast in all that she had, ^a*even* ³all her living.

Signs of the End Times

13 And ^aas he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, ¹Master, see what manner of stones and what build-ings are here!

2 And Jesus answering said unto him, Seest thou these great build-ings? ^athere shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives ¹over against the temple, ^aPeter and ^bJames and ^cJohn and ^dAndrew asked him privately,

4 ^aTell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

¹bear patiently

6 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

7 And when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet.

8 For nation shall rise against nation, and ^akingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in ¹divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: ^bthese are the beginnings of ²sorrows.

9 But ^atake heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 And ^athe gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 ^aBut when they shall ¹lead you, and deliver you up, ²take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, ^bbut the Holy Ghost.

Brother Shall Betray Brother

12 Now ^athe brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son; and children shall rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

13 ^aAnd ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but ^bhe that shall ¹endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.

abused the hospitality they were shown and brought their hopeless donors to the brink of financial ruin. Others flaunted their religion for the sake of impressing others with their spirituality, perhaps thereby obtaining more support.

12:42. The mite (Heb. lepton) was worth something like one-eighth of a cent. It was so small that its stamp was barely legible.

12:43, 44. God does not measure giving by conventional human standards.

13:1-37. This is called the Olivet Discourse, having been delivered on the Mount of Olives.

13:1. The disciple refers to the huge stones of the magnificent temple begun in 20 B.C. under Herod the Great and completed some 84 years later.

13:2. The temple was leveled by the Romans about A.D. 70.

13:9. Take heed: Throughout this chapter Jesus consistently stresses, not just coming events, but the proper response and life-style of His disciples. They ought always to live in the light of His coming.

13:10. Published here means simply "proclaimed" by whatever means.

13:14. See Daniel 9:27; 11:31; 12:11. This abomination, something or someone detestable to God, probably refers to two things. One could be the desecration of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not, (let him that readeth understand,) then ^alet them that be in Judaea flee to the mountains:

15 And let him that is on the housetop not go down into the house, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of his house:

16 And let him that is in the field not turn back again for to ¹take up his garment.

17 ^aBut woe to them that are ¹with child, and to them ²that give suck in those days!

18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter.

19 ^aFor in those days shall be ¹affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be.

20 And except that the Lord had shortened those days, no flesh should be saved: but for the elect's sake, whom he hath chosen, he hath shortened the days.

21 ^aAnd then if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or, lo, he is there; believe him not:

22 For false Christs and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and ^awonders, to ¹seduce, if it were possible, even the ²elect.

23 But ^atake ye heed: behold, I have foretold you all things.

The Son of Man's Coming

26 ^aAnd then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with great power and glory.

27 And then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven.

Watch and Pray

32 But of that day and that hour ^aknoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the ^bFather.

33 ^aTake ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

34 ^aFor the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave ^bauthority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the ¹porter to watch.

35 ^aWatch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the of the temple in the course of the fall of Jerusalem, A.D. 70. The other may well be the Man of Sin of the end time (2 Thess. 2:4). Biblical prophecy often has both a near and a remote point of reference.

13:22. Jesus also warns of impostors in Matthew 7:15. Deuteronomy 13 offers similar warning.

13:23. Prophecy in the biblical sense often involves "forthtelling," or setting forth God's verdict on a present situation. It can, however, also involve "foretelling," as here. Jesus' ministry included the fulfilling of the prophetic office in both senses.

13:26. See Daniel 7:13. Every verse of this section is laden with Old Testament imagery. Jesus would have been intimately familiar with it. Naturally the Son of God would uphold, and express Himself in terms of, the Word of God. Jesus held the Old Testament in very high esteem.

13:30. This generation: Jesus perhaps means that the Jewish genea ("race," "people") will survive until the Son of Man returns. Or perhaps all these things makes primary reference to the events connected with Jerusalem's fall, A.D. 70. In this case Jesus speaks of the disciples themselves, along with their contemporaries. See 8:12, 38; 9:19.

13:31. God makes a similar claim about His Word in Isaiah 40:8.

13:32. Many of the general features about the end are clear, but not the chronological specifics.

13:33. See the other warnings in verses 5, 9, and 23. Jesus is not trying to encourage idle curiosity about last things, but rather to stir up His followers in faithful living, always.

The Passover Prepared

12 ^aAnd the first day of unleavened bread, when they killed the passover, his disciples said unto him, Where ¹wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou mayest eat the passover?

13 And he sendeth forth two of his disciples, and saith unto them, Go ye into the city, and there shall meet you a man ¹bearing a pitcher of water: follow him.

14 And wheresoever he shall go in, say ye to the ¹goodman of the house, The ²Master saith, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples?

15 And he will shew you a large upper room furnished and prepared: there make ready for us.

16 And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover.

17 ^aAnd in the evening he cometh with the twelve.

18 And as they sat and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, ^aOne of you which eateth with me shall betray me.

19 And they began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I? and another said, Is it I?

13:37. The message, Watch, extends even to the present hour.

14:1. The Passover commemorated that night of deliverance (see Ex. 12) when God spared the Israelites the ravages of the death angel. This observance fell on the 14th of Nisan (April-May). The Feast of Unleavened Bread followed on the 15th to the 21st.

14:2. At feast time the city would be teeming with pilgrims; such crowds were easily incited to riot.

14:3. The woman is Mary, sister of Martha and Lazarus (John 12:3). Box would be a flask or vial.

14:5. Three hundred pence is equivalent to a year's income for a rural worker.

14:8. This statement shows that Jesus foresaw a criminal's death, for only in the case of a criminal's burial was the body not anointed before being laid to rest.

14:12. It is now Thursday. Passover here refers to the Passover lamb.

14:13. A man might commonly carry a wineskin, but generally only women carried water jars. He would be easily spotted in a crowd and no words would have to be exchanged—there was already a warrant out for Jesus' arrest (John 11:57).

20 And he answered and said unto them, It is one of the twelve, that dippeth with me in the dish.

14:21. In the words as it is written, Jesus refers to Old Testament prophecies about His atoning death. An example would be Isaiah 53.

14:24. Testament means “covenant.”

14:26. The hymn would be a selection of verses from the Hallel (praise) Psalms, especially Psalms 116–118.

14:27. See Zechariah 13:7.

14:29. Offended means “fall away.” All of the disciples would desert Jesus.

14:33. Amazed and heavy: The sense is that Jesus is deeply distressed as He contemplates the coming hours. The weight of the prospect threatens to pull Him under.

14:36. By the word Abba, Jesus addresses God with the household term for Father. This was unheard of in Palestinian Judaism at that time. It points to Jesus’ unique relationship to God.

14:43. The arresting party would have included not only Roman soldiers, but a mixture of Jewish police and other Jewish authorities.

14:51, 52. This is perhaps a reference to Mark himself. He also “fled.”

15:2. To the Jews, Jesus' crime was one of blasphemy, a religious offense. Pilate's concern is that Jesus might represent a political threat. Thus he questions Him on His pretensions, if any, to kingship.

15:5. On Jesus' silence see Isaiah 53:7 and 1 Peter 2:23.

15:21. Cyrene was a city on the northern coast of Africa. Since Mark may have been written to a Roman audience, it is worth asking whether this is the same Rufus as in Romans 16:13.

15:22. Golgotha lay outside the city wall, and was the execution site for Jerusalem. It is synonymous with Calvary, which comes from a Latin word also meaning "skull."

15:23. Myrrh would have dulled the pain, but Jesus would not take it.

15:33. Darkness reigned from noon until 3 P.M.

15:34. Mark preserves the Aramaic form of Jesus' outcry, which calls Psalm 22:1 to mind. Some mistook His words (v. 35). Even in the midst of bearing God's wrath for sin, Jesus still calls Him my God. His agony does not overcome His faith.

15:36. The thought in offering drink was to prolong consciousness in case Elias (Elijah) was about to appear.

15:38. The temple veil hung between the Holy of Holies (the sanctuary of God's very presence) and the rest of the temple. It was a somber reminder of the separation between God and man. Tearing of the veil indicates that Christ's death makes possible free access for sinners to the holy and almighty God.

15:40. Mention of these women is significant, for they serve as eyewitnesses to the death, burial, and Resurrection. See 15:47; 16:1.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: ^aneither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

Jesus' First Appearance

9 Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, ^aout of whom he had cast seven ¹devils.

10 ^aAnd she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

11 ^aAnd they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

12 After that he appeared in another form ^aunto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

13 And they went and told it unto the ¹residue: neither believed they them.

15:43. Craved means requested. Arimathea, Joseph's birthplace, was about 20 miles northwest of Jerusalem. Joseph was a member of the Sanhedrin, and asking for the body of one convicted of treason or sedition was a daring step of devotion to an unpopular figure. Such criminals were normally left to the elements and carrion birds.

15:44. Pilate was surprised at the report because men typically hung two or three days before dying. The centurion's expert opinion confirms the fact of Jesus' death.

16:3. Rolling the stone into its slot would have been relatively easy (15:46). But moving it away would have required the strength of several men.

16:5. Affrighted denotes extreme fear or distress.

Mark alone in the New Testament uses the word. See also 14:33.

16:6. The fact of the empty tomb did not explain itself. God provided a revelation of the meaning of what the women saw, or rather did not see. The Resurrection becomes the starting point and basis of the Christian faith. See Romans 1:4; 1 Corinthians 15:4.

16:9-20. Ancient manuscripts contain two different endings for Mark. While some suggest that Mark did indeed intend for his gospel to end at verse 8, it ends on a note of fear and lacks a clear Resurrection account. In light of the uncertainty attached to verses 9-20, it may be advised to take care in basing doctrine upon them (especially vv. 16-18).

14 ^aAfterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat ¹at meat, and ²upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

16:19, 20. Christ ascends to glory. (See Luke 24:50–53; Acts 1:3–9.) The so-called “shorter ending” is accepted by no one as being written by Mark. The traditional ending (KJV) is in nearly all manuscripts, but is lacking in the two oldest ones we have.

LUKE

Authorship. Ancient testimony is unanimous that Luke (“the beloved physician,” Col. 4:14) penned the third Gospel. Modern scholarship has rightly drawn attention to Luke as the companion volume to Acts; the two works were certainly written by the same author. Together they make up over half of the New Testament, so by sheer volume of output alone Luke takes on special significance.

Some modern interpreters discount Luke’s authorship, but they fall short of proposing a convincing alternative to the ancient witnesses. These scholars feel that Luke’s outlook is so different from Paul’s that no companion of Paul (see Col. 4:14; 2 Tim. 4:11; Philem. 24, and the “we” sections of Acts: 16:10–17; 20:5–21:18; 27:1–28:16) could have written Luke-Acts. Such arguments are by no means convincing. The reader of the New Testament is not compelled to choose between Luke and Paul. Differences in outlook may as easily count in favor of Luke’s authorship as against.

While Luke was not himself an eyewitness of the gospel events (1:2), he had access to writings about, and eyewitnesses to, them. He had sifted sources carefully. Many feel that he must have made use of Mark’s gospel. Some have accordingly stressed his contribution as a historian, a discoverer and preserver of facts. Others see in him primarily a theologian, an expositor of the meaning of facts. He is really both. He presents both the meaning of the gospel saga and its factual ground. He produces what is, by the reckoning of many, the gospel most attractive in style and poignant in message that we possess.

Date. Luke implies that he wrote his gospel prior to writing Acts (Acts 1:1). Acts ends with Paul in prison, about A.D. 62. A number of scholars of various persuasions thus agree on a date near A.D. 60–62 for the writing of Luke. Those who date it much later (c. A.D. 80–90, or even in the second century) do so for reasons that fail to overturn the likelihood of an earlier date.

Distinctive Features. (1) Luke’s language: He uses 266 words (not counting proper names) found nowhere else in the New Testament. He is capable of elevated literary style (1:1–4). He often writes in a manner reminiscent of the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew Old Testament. If he was a Gentile, as many think, he nonetheless knew and loved the Old Testament well. (2) Luke’s accuracy: For many, of course, accuracy in a biblical writing is assumed. But Luke has been a prominent battleground (one scholar calls Lucan studies a “storm center”) for those probing the New Testament’s reliability, since it so clearly places itself in the context of ancient history (e.g., 3:1, 2). In this century the historian and classical scholar Sir William Ramsay began by assuming Luke’s inaccuracy, but became convinced rather of the opposite. In this Ramsay is hardly alone. Where Luke can be tested, he shows a remarkable command of often obscure facts, and a determination not to distort those facts in the telling. (3) Luke’s focus: Several themes dominate the gospel. Luke stresses the overarching plan of God in human history as revealed through Israel, Christ, and the church. He puts special emphasis on “salvation” as such

(the word, though not the idea, is absent from Matt. and Mark, and appears once in John). He is concerned with individuals (Zacharias, Elisabeth, Mary the mother of Jesus, Mary and Martha, and Zaccheus, to name a few), shows the importance of women, and calls special attention to children, the poor, and the disreputable. He stresses the Holy Spirit, both in the life of Jesus and in the early church. Finally, as in all the gospels, Jesus' suffering and death find lengthy and detailed treatment. Luke's gospel is a careful and engrossing presentation of God's saving will and work in the world, preeminently through His Son.

An Angel Foretells John's Birth

5 There was ^ain the days of Herod, the king of Judaea, a certain priest named Zacharias, ^bof the ¹course of ^cAbia: and his ^dwife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elisabeth.

6 And they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless.

7 And they had no child, because that Elisabeth was barren, and they both were now well ¹stricken in years.

8 And it came to pass, that while he ¹executed the priest's office

1:1-4. Luke states his purpose and method. He wants to supplement Theophilus's knowledge of the grounds of Christian certainty. He also wants to give his own summation of the gospel events which, already in Luke's time, are being committed to writing by various authors. As to method, Luke combines his knowledge of other writings with the eyewitness testimony of people he knows. He also lays claim to a comprehensive understanding, not only of historical data, but also of its theological significance. Theophilus means "Friend of God." By the way Luke addresses him he appears to have been a man of high standing.

1:5. Herod (the Great) ruled from 40 until 4 B.C. Course of Abia (Abijah) is one of the several divisions of Jewish priests. Elisabeth, too, was of priestly descent.

1:6. This does not mean they were sinless, of course, but that they served God faithfully. Blameless means no accusation could justly be made against them.

1:7. Mention of their age underscores that a pregnancy for Elisabeth was by this time highly unlikely. Since there was no mandatory retirement age for priests (unlike Levites), Zacharias may have been old indeed.

1:5 Zacharias (Zechariah) and Elisabeth were the parents of John the Baptist. They are mentioned only in Luke 1 (except for a brief allusion to Zechariah in 3:2). Both were godly and of Aaronic descent, Zechariah being a priest within the division of Abijah (cf. 1 Chr. 24:10). Elisabeth is called a "cousin" (v. 36) of Mary, the mother of Jesus, but the Greek term is not so specific and would better be translated "relative."

9 According to the custom of the priest's office, ¹his lot was ^ato burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 ^aAnd the whole multitude of the people were praying ¹without at the ²time of incense.

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing on the right side of ^athe altar of incense.

12 And when Zacharias saw him, ^ahe was troubled, and fear fell upon him.

13 But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias: for thy prayer is heard; and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and ^athou shalt call his name John.

14 And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and ^amany shall rejoice at his birth.

15 For he shall be ^agreat in the sight of the Lord, and ^bshall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, ^ceven from his mother's womb.

16 And many of the ¹children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God.

18 And Zacharias said unto the angel, ^aWhereby shall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well ¹stricken in years.

19 And the angel answering said unto him, I am ^aGabriel, that stand in the presence of God; and am sent to speak unto thee, and to shew thee ¹these glad ^btidings.

20 And, behold, ^athou shalt be ¹dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their ²season.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he ¹tarried so long in the temple.

22 And when he came out, he could not speak unto them: and they perceived that he had seen a vision in the temple: for he beckoned unto them, and remained speechless.

23 And it came to pass, that, as

1:9. This would be a sacred moment in Zacharias's life, for no priest could offer incense more than once in his lifetime. Many never had the chance at all, there being an estimated 18,000 priests at this point in Jewish history.

1:13. Perhaps Zacharias's prayer for a son is referred to. However, it is more likely that in his priestly function he was praying for the salvation of Israel. (See Dan. 9:20.) John (meaning "The Lord Is Gracious" in Hebrew and Aramaic) would then be God's instrument in answering this prayer. Perhaps both prayer requests were being granted at once in an unforeseeable way.

1:15. John was not necessarily a Nazirite (Num. 6). For one thing, there is no mention of his hair remaining uncut. God's Spirit, not intoxicants, would infuse him from conception with a yearning to make God's will his own. See Ephesians 5:17, 18.

1:17. He shall go before him: See Malachi 3:1, where God promises to send a messenger in advance of His own coming in judgment. On Elias (Elijah) see 1 Kings 17—2 Kings 2. Both he and John were entrusted with the call to repentance.

1:19. The only other angel named in Scripture is Michael (Rev. 12:7).

1:20. Zacharias's speechlessness serves to chasten him for his apparent skepticism. One may think it a harsh measure, but God who dispensed this judgment knew his heart. And the promise remained secure; Zacharias was merely prevented from easily spreading the news around.

1:23. He would be free to depart for his home on the day his duties ceased.

1:13 John the Baptist (or Baptizer) was God's gift in answer to the prayers of his parents, Zacharias the priest and his wife Elisabeth. From his birth John was filled with the Holy Spirit, and he ministered as the forerunner, the announcer, of the Christ (vv. 15, 41). John made it clear to his followers that he was not the Christ nor even the coming Elijah (John 1:20–23), though he, like Elijah, lived in the wilderness (v. 80) and preached a message of repentance. His ascetic life-style and dress dramatized the urgency of his message, involving the nation's need to repent before the imminent arrival of the Messiah. His brief ministry ended when Herod Antipas had him beheaded (Matt. 14:1–11). Yet his ministry's impact was far-reaching (cf. Acts 19:1–7). Though Jesus was John's "cousin," not until God's supernatural witness at Jesus' baptism did John understand that Jesus was the Messiah, the Son of God (John 1:29–34). Jesus declared that John was the greatest of the prophets. Yet, because of the greatness of the coming kingdom, even the lowliest believer would be greater than the prophets of old. John the Baptist is not mentioned in any of the epistles, but only in the Gospels and Acts. (First Reference, Matt. 3:1; Primary References, Luke 1; John 1.)

soon as ^athe days of his ¹ministration were ²accomplished, he departed to his own house.

24 And after those days his wife Elisabeth conceived, and hid herself five months, saying, 25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me in the days wherein he looked on me, to ^atake away my reproach among men.

An Angel Foretells Jesus' Birth

26 And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, 27 To a virgin ^aespoused¹ to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and said, ^aHail, ¹thou that art highly favoured, ^bthe Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.

29 And when she saw him, ^ashe was troubled at his saying, and ¹cast in her mind what manner of ²salutation this should be.

30 And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found ^afavour with God.

31 ^aAnd, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and ^bshalt call his name JESUS.

Elisabeth's Joy

1:24, 25. Jewish women regarded childlessness as a severe reproach. Elisabeth may have hid herself out of a sense of consternation before God and man. She came to be thankful, but the initial shock of the unexpected (and in human terms quite impossible) must have been considerable.

1:26. This was the sixth month of Elisabeth's pregnancy.

1:27. Espousal (similar to our engagement period) was, under Jewish law, as binding as marriage. It lasted about a year, during which time the woman's purity was maintained.

1:28. The word translated highly favoured is used of all believers in Ephesians 1:6.

1:29. Mary doubtless wondered why she should be addressed in such exalted terms.

1:31. JESUS means "Yahweh Is Salvation."

1:32. David's throne: See 2 Samuel 7:13.

1:35. By a process we cannot explain, Mary will find herself with child through no human agency. Conceived by God, Jesus would be of sinless nature, though no less human due to that fact.

1:38. Contrast Mary's response with that of Zacharias (v. 18).

VIRGIN BIRTH

1:27. One of the historic fundamentals of the faith is the virgin birth of Christ. It begins with the supernatural conception of Jesus Christ in the womb of Mary without the seed of a man. The miraculous birth is verified by the statement that she was a virgin when she gave birth to Christ (Matt. 1:23-25). By means of the Virgin Birth, Jesus had the human nature of His mother and the sinless, divine nature of His Father. Illustration: Those who deny the Virgin Birth tend also to deny His deity, so must necessarily question the integrity of the Scriptures. Application: The miracle of the Virgin Birth involved the yieldedness of Mary. This attitude is reflected in her last recorded words, which are a good standard for Christians today, "Whatsoever he [Jesus] saith unto you, do it" (John 2:5). (First Reference, Gen. 3:16; Primary Reference, Luke 1:27; cf. Heb. 4:15.)

40 And entered into the house of Zacharias, and ¹saluted Elisabeth.

41 And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the ¹salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was ^afilled with the Holy Ghost:

42 And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, “Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And ¹whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

44 For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And ^ablessed is she ¹that believed: for there shall be a ²performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.

47 And my spirit hath ^arejoiced in ^bGod my Saviour.

48 For ^ahe hath regarded the ¹low estate of his ²handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth ^ball generations shall call me blessed.

John the Baptist’s Birth

57 Now Elisabeth’s full time came that she should be delivered; and she brought forth a son.

58 And her neighbours and her ¹cousins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy upon her; and they ^arejoiced with her.

59 And it came to pass, that ^aon the eighth day they came to circumcise the child; and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.

60 And his mother answered and said, “Not so; but he shall be called John.

61 And they said unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62 And they made signs to his father, how he would have him called.

63 And he asked for a writing table, and wrote, saying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.

64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue ^{loosed}, and he spake, and praised God.

65 And fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all these ¹sayings were ²noised abroad throughout all the hill country of Judaea.

66 And all they that heard ^{them} ^alaid¹ ^{them} up in their hearts, saying, What manner of child shall this be! And ^bthe hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And his father Zacharias ^awas filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied, saying, 68 “Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for ^bhe hath visited and redeemed his people, 69 “And hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David;

1:46-56. This passage is called “the Magnificat,” based on the first word of the Latin translation (the Vulgate). It is rich in Old Testament imagery: Jesus’ coming was in fulfillment of Old Testament promises.

1:58. Her reproach (v. 25) is now completely removed.

1:65. Fear came: The working of God produced a unique sensation among a people where not even a prophet had spoken for centuries.

1:67. His divinely empowered praise compensates for the months of being mute.

1:69. Horn of salvation would mean “A Mighty Deliverer.” Horn is an Old Testament symbol for power. See 2 Samuel 22:3.

70 ^aAs he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been ^bsince¹ the world began:

Jesus' Birth in Bethlehem

2 And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be ¹taxed.

2 (^aAnd this ¹taxing was first made when ²Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be ¹taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto ^athe city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (^bbecause he was of the ¹house and lineage of David:)

5 To be taxed with Mary ^ahis ¹espoused wife, being great with child.

6 And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were ¹accomplished that she should be delivered.

7 And ^ashe brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a ¹manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

Tidings of Great Joy

8 And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord ¹came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: ^aand they were ²sore afraid.

10 And the angel said unto them,

1:73. See Genesis 12:1–3; 13:14–17; 15:1–6; 22:15–18.

1:78. Dayspring means “dawn” and figuratively refers to the coming of the Messiah. The clause should be translated, “Dawn from heaven will visit us.” That is, the Messiah from heaven will come to help us. God’s messianic deliverance is often expressed as the bursting forth of a great light.

2:1. Taxed: A census was to take place. Augustus’s reign was from 27 B.C. to A.D. 14.

2:2. Syria was the large Roman province of which Judea was part. The capital was Antioch. Under this administration came smaller political divisions such as Judea, which was ruled by Pilate at Jerusalem from A.D. 26 to 36.

2:3. Each was to return to his original birthplace.

2:4. Micah 5:2 had prophesied that the Messiah, the Son of David, would be born in Bethlehem, like David himself (1 Sam. 20:6).

2:7. Swaddling clothes were bandage-like strips of cloth wrapped around an infant to ensure that the limbs would grow straight. Not to swaddle a child would be a form of abuse (Ezek. 16:2–4). This wrapping would aid the shepherds in identifying Jesus.

2:1 Augustus Caesar, also known as Octavian, was the grand-nephew and adopted heir of Julius Caesar. When Julius Caesar was assassinated by his senatorial opponents on March 15, 44 B.C., his 19-year-old heir returned from his studies in Greece to claim his inheritance. The Roman people liked Octavian, so a triumvirate of leadership was established consisting of Octavian, Mark Anthony, and Lepidus. By 27 B.C. Octavian had defeated all other forces claiming power and so ended the various factions within the Roman republic. For this he received the title of Augustus and became the first emperor. His strong, brilliant leadership continued until his death in A.D. 14. The birth of Jesus occurred in the middle of his administration. His name occurs only here in Scripture. In Acts 25:21, 25 and 27:1 “Augustus” is a title designating the current Roman emperor, Nero.

“Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, ^bwhich shall be to all people.

11 “For unto you is born this day in the city of David ^ba Saviour, ^cwhich is Christ the Lord.

12 And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling ¹clothes, lying in a ²manger.

13 “And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 14 “Glory to God in the highest, and on earth ^bpeace, ^cgood will toward men.

15 And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

18 And all they that heard it

Naming and Presentation

21 “And when eight days were ¹accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called ^bJESUS, which was so named of the angel ^cbefore he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when ^athe days of her purification according to the law of Moses were ¹accomplished, they brought him to Jerusalem, to present him to the Lord;

23 (^aAs it is written in the law of the Lord, ^bEvery male that openeth the womb shall be called holy to the Lord;)

24 And to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, ^aA pair of turtledoves, or two young pigeons.

2:24 ^aLev. 12:2, 8

2:12. The sign was consistent with Old Testament precedent, in which God confirmed His works by a confirmatory sign. This helped authenticate the messianic proclamation of the angels, and would also strengthen Mary and Joseph in their assurance of the Lord’s continued blessing.

2:13, 14. Jesus’ birth creates praise among the angels. God’s peace and good will are extended to those “on whom He sees fit to bestow His grace” (alternate Greek readings). Some manuscripts have the last half of this verse, reading “and on earth peace among men of good will.” This signifies that true peace will be enjoyed only by the pious. The KJV’s reading expresses the divine intention to offer peace and good will to all men.

2:19. Mary kept ... and pondered: Quite possibly she was eventually the source of Luke’s rather intimate knowledge of the details of Jesus’ birth. See verse 51.

2:21. Eight days: See 1:59. Leviticus 12 gives the Old Testament basis for the practice of circumcision. (See also Gen. 17:10.) Jesus was as much a Son of Abraham as any of His generation.

2:23. See Exodus 13:2, 12.

2:24. See Leviticus 12:8. It is indicative of the relative poverty of Jesus’ family that they could not afford to offer a lamb as part of the cleansing and dedicatory ritual.

2:22 Jerusalem is located about 15 miles from the Dead Sea to the east and 31 miles from the Mediterranean to the west. It is situated on several hills at an elevation of 2,500 feet with ravines on all sides except the north. Jerusalem receives frequent mention as the site of many events in the Gospels and Acts. It is the scene of Christ’s death, resurrection, and future return (Zech. 14:4) and is mentioned 14 times in the rest of the New Testament. In A.D. 70 it was destroyed by the Romans, and in A.D. 135 it was rebuilt as a pagan city prohibited to all Jews. Early in the fourth century Constantine reopened it to Jews and Christians and built the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. Since that time Jerusalem has been under Byzantine, Arab, Crusader, and Turkish control. In 1542 the Turks built the city walls that stand today. In 1917 General Allenby entered the city, and it was placed under British mandate until 1948. At that time the city was divided so that the Arabs (Jordan) received the old, walled city and the Jews the western part. Since 1967 the whole city has been under Israeli control. The current population of Jerusalem is about 350,000. Much archaeological work has been conducted over the last century, and the opportunities have increased since the Israelis gained control in 1967. Excavations are presently under way along the western and southern walls of the temple area.

Simeon Beholds God's Salvation

25 And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, ^awaiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him.

26 And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not ^asee death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

27 And he came ^aby the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law,

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said,

29 Lord, ^anow lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes ^ahave seen thy salvation,

31 Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;

32 ^aA light to ¹lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

33 And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

34 And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is ¹set for the ^afall and rising again of many in Israel; and for ^ba sign which shall be spoken against;

35 (Yea, ^aa sword shall pierce through thy own soul also,) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

John Preaches Repentance

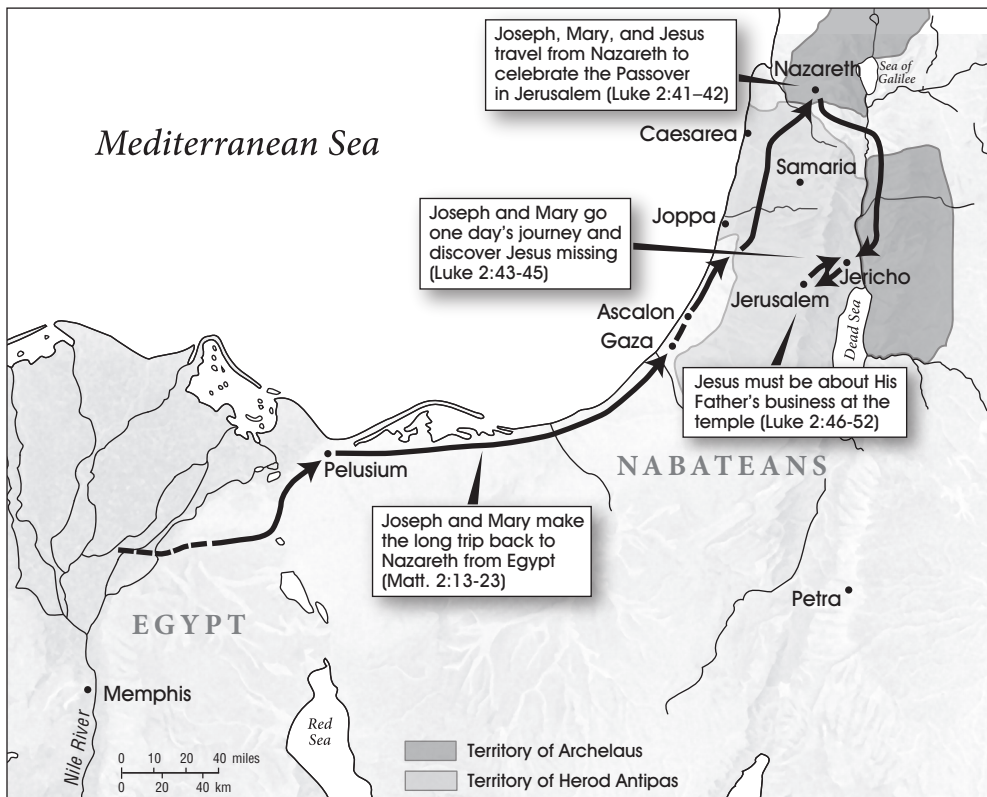

3 Now in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, ^aPontius Pilate being governor of Judaea,

2:47. This may be due not only to Jesus' person but also to a careful upbringing by His parents. The Old Testament placed great responsibility on parents to saturate their children's minds with Scripture (Deut. 6:7).

2:49. Wist ye not or "Did you not realize?": There is a certain tension between Jesus' responsibility to parents on the one hand and to His heavenly Father on the other.

2:52. The picture is one of consistent and well-rounded growth. There follows a gap of nearly two decades in Jesus' life. When we see Him again, He is prepared for the task set before Him.

3:1. Luke is about to speak of the real beginning of the gospel (see Mark 1:1; Acts 10:37), the preaching of John the Baptist. He sets the stage by giving a political overview. Tiberius was emperor of Rome during A.D. 14-37. Allowing for uncertainties in how ancient reigns were reckoned, Luke gives us a date of about A.D. 28 for the start of John's ministry. Pilate ruled from A.D. 26 to 36. Herod (Antipas, a son of Herod the Great) ruled over a tetrarchy (an area comprising one-fourth of a larger division) that included Galilee. Jesus calls him a fox in 13:32. He killed John the Baptist. Philip's domain was northeast of Herod's. Abilene lay northwest of Damascus.

and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Ituraea and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias the tetrarch of Abilene,

2 ^aAnnas and Caiaphas being the high priests, the word of God came unto ^bJohn the son of Zacharias in the wilderness.

3 ^aAnd he came into all the ¹country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance ^bfor the remission of sins;

John Addresses the Multitude

7 Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, "O ¹generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?"

8 Bring forth therefore fruits ^aworthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham ¹to our father: for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.

9 And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees: ^aevery tree therefore which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.

10 And the people asked him, saying, "What shall we do then?"

11 He answereth and saith unto them, "He that hath two ¹coats, let him ²impart to him that hath none; and he that hath ³meat, ^blet him do likewise.

3:2. Annas had been high priest during A.D. 6-15, but continued to wield influence in later years. Caiaphas was ruling high priest from A.D. 18 to 36. Modern scholars debate the precise origin of John's ideas and preaching. Luke gives the major answer.

3:3. Luke, more than the other gospels, stresses repentance. John's baptism was an outward confession of an inward response to John's message. It was symbolic of another, greater baptism (v. 16). Forgiveness before God and reconciliation to Him always presupposes owning up to the symptoms of our alienation from Him. Biblical trust in God presupposes repentance toward God. See Mark 1:4 for the expression "the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins."

3:4-6. See Isaiah 40:3-5.

3:7. It was believed, with good Old Testament support, that the messianic reign would be accompanied by God's judgment against all evil. In the Cross this did indeed occur. The wrath spoken of here, while it may have some relation to Jerusalem's fate (A.D. 70), relates more directly to Jesus' second coming. See 2 Thessalonians 1:7-10.

3:8. Some apparently believed that, despite wayward lives, they would be saved due to being ethnic Jews. John reminds them that God demands both trust and obedience—each is incomplete without the other.

3:11-14. Personal response to God brings with it practical expression. Meat is food in general. People are not expected to come out of the world (see 1 Cor.

HUMANITY OF CHRIST

2:52. Jesus was not only God; He was also fully Man. As such He was subject to the same kind of limitations that all human beings experience. Like any other child, He inherited the nature of His parents. He possessed not only the divine nature of His Father but also the human nature of His mother. He was in every respect human except that He was without sin. The term flesh emphasizes His humanity. Illustration: The humanity of Christ is evident in the gospel accounts of His natural growth (v. 52), His becoming weary (John 4:6), and His experiencing sorrow and pain (22:44). Even when tempted by the Devil, Jesus did not use His supernatural powers as God to defeat him, but He responded as a Man dependent upon the Word of God for spiritual survival (Matt. 4:1-11; Heb. 4:15, 16). Application: Jesus' victory on that and other occasions reminds Christians that they have a Man in heaven as an understanding and approachable High Priest (Heb. 7:24, 25). (First Reference, Gen. 3:16; Primary Reference, Luke 2:52; cf. Matt. 16:16.)

3:1 Tiberius Caesar was the stepson of Augustus Caesar, who adopted him as his heir. Tiberius was recognized by the senate as Augustus's successor. By so doing the senate established the supremacy of the emperors within the Roman state, making the republic as such all but extinct. Tiberius faithfully continued the policies of Augustus. Yet his unimaginative administration led to discontent among the people, and he retired a dissatisfied old man. Since Tiberius ruled from A.D. 14 to 37, he is the Caesar repeatedly referred to during Christ's ministry and crucifixion. He is mentioned by name only in Luke 3:1.

12 Then ^acame also ¹publicans to be baptized, and said unto him, ²Master, what shall we do?

13 And he said unto them, ^aExact¹ no more than that which is appointed you.

14 And the soldiers likewise demanded of him, saying, And what shall we do? And he said unto them, ¹Do violence to no man, ^aneither accuse any falsely; and be content with your wages.

15 And as the people were in expectation, and all men ¹mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ, or not;

16 John answered, saying unto them all, ^aI indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the ¹latchet of whose ²shoes I am not worthy to unloose: he shall ^bbaptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire:

17 Whose ¹fan is in his hand, and he will throughly ²purge his ³floor, and ^awill gather the wheat into his ⁴garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.

The Genealogy of Jesus

3:16. A latchet was the thong holding a sandal on the foot.

3:17. Fan would be a shovel-like implement. Wheat was threshed by beating it, then flinging it into the air so that the wind would carry off the lighter chaff. The wheat would fall to the threshing-area floor. Garner is a barn or storehouse.

3:19. Him refers to John the Baptist. See Mark 6:14-29.

3:23. As was supposed: Luke does not lose sight of the Virgin Birth.

3:23-38. It is not easy to harmonize all the features of this genealogy of Jesus with the one found in Matthew 1. Some suggest that Matthew gives a list of those standing in the legal line of descent from David, those who were heirs to the throne, generation by generation. Luke then gives the actual descendants of David who were ancestors in Joseph's particular branch of the Davidic line. Others argue that Luke's list gives Jesus' ancestry through the forebears of Mary. Luke is concerned to demonstrate that Jesus is a Son of both David and Abraham. Even more important, however, seems to be that Luke, in tracing Jesus' line back to Adam and God, makes two points. First, Jesus had an ancient place in the race of man. Second, as God's anointed Deliverer, Jesus has significance for all humanity and not just for the people of Israel.

The Temptation of Jesus

4 And ^aJesus being full of the ¹Holy Ghost returned from Jordan, and ^bwas led by the Spirit into the wilderness,

2 Being forty days ¹tempted of the devil. And ^ain those days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterward ²hungered.

3 And the devil said unto him, If thou be the ^aSon of God, command this stone that it be made bread.

4 And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, ^aThat man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.

5 And the devil, taking him up into an high mountain, shewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And the devil said unto him, All this ¹power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for ^athat is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will I give it.

7 If thou therefore wilt worship me, all shall be thine.

8 And Jesus answered and said unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, ^aThou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

9 ^aAnd he brought him to Jerusalem, and set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down from hence:

10 For it is written, ^aHe shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:

11 And ^ain their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone.

4:1. Jesus had just been baptized (3:21, 22). See Mark 1:9-11.

4:3. The if used here implies that the Devil recognized Jesus' divine sonship, and could be translated "since."

4:4. See Deuteronomy 8:3. Jesus, setting an important precedent for the early church, places great store by the Old Testament as God's very words.

4:6. Despite Satan's claims, the Old Testament is clear that God, not Satan, stands with final authority over the regimes of mankind.

4:8. See Deuteronomy 6:13. Peter is rebuked by Jesus with similar words (Mark 8:33).

4:9. The higher parts of the temple stood next to a deep ravine. The elevation would have been considerable. Had Jesus performed this feat before the crowds below, He would certainly have attracted acclaim. But His aim remained obedience, not popularity.

4:10, 11. Psalm 91:11, 12 is misquoted slightly to suit the need better.

4:12. See Deuteronomy 6:16. The effect of Satan's temptation was to offer the promise of rule without the agony of the Cross.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

18 "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him.

21 And he began to say unto them, This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witness, and "wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they said, "Is not this Joseph's son?"

4:14. In the power of the Spirit: Having repulsed Satan, Jesus is all the more fortified to initiate His ministry.

4:15. Initially, Jesus drew high praise. But His rejection is already apparent in verse 28.

4:16. This is the oldest known description of a synagogue service. There would be prayers, both public and private, a sermon if someone suitable were on hand to deliver one, and several readings from the Old Testament. Here Jesus functions as reader.

4:17. Jesus selects a passage from a scroll containing Isaiah 61:1, 2.

4:19. Jesus leaves off the end of Isaiah 61:2. Is this because "the day of vengeance of our God" relates not to Jesus' first but second coming? More likely Jesus, by reading these few lines, called the whole promise-laden context of Isaiah 61 to His hearers' attention. He effectively makes His point.

4:20. Minister is the synagogue attendant who looked after the scrolls. By sitting, Jesus is likely assuming the position of a teacher of that time.

4:23. Earlier activity in Capernaum may be implied in verse 14.

4:24, 25. See 1 Kings 17:8-24.

4:27. See 2 Kings 5:1-14.

HOLY SPIRIT IN THE LIFE OF CHRIST

4:18. Although Jesus was God during His earthly life and ministry, He still recognized His dependence upon the ministry of the Holy Spirit. This was particularly necessary in view of His humiliation in the Incarnation. So intimate was the relationship between Christ and the Holy Spirit that in the New Testament He is viewed as endued with the power of the Holy Spirit. Illustration: Specifically, the New Testament recognizes the ministry of the Holy Spirit in Christ's incarnation (Heb. 10:5), birth (Matt. 1:18), growth (2:40, 52), baptism (3:21, 22), temptation (v. 14), ministry (vv. 18, 19), miracles (Matt. 12:28), death (Heb. 9:14), resurrection (Rom. 8:11), and glorification (John 16:14). Application: The Lord recognized His need to have such an intimate relationship with the Holy Spirit, which in turn emphasizes the Christian's need to be filled with the Holy Spirit (Eph. 5:18). (First Reference, Luke 3:22; Primary Reference, Luke 4; cf. John 16:8.)

28 And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were ^afilled with ¹wrath,

4:32. The source of Jesus' power (see also v. 36) is found in verse 14.

4:37. An immediate effect of this fame is reflected in verse 40.

4:38. Luke's description of the fever as great may reflect his knowledge of then-current medical terminology.

4:40. The laying on of hands was not a magical or mystical flourish. In Judaism it was an act through which divine blessing was bestowed.

5:3. Jesus needed to get off the land due to the press of the crowd (v. 1).

4 Now when he had ¹left speaking, he said unto Simon, “Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a ²draught.

5 And Simon answering said unto him, Master, we have toiled all the night, and have ¹taken ^anothing; nevertheless ^bat thy word I will let down the net.

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ship, that they should come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ships, so that they began to sink.

8 When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, “Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

9 For he was ^aastonished, and all that were with him, at the ¹draught of the fishes which they had taken:

20 And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

5:4. Draught here means “catch” of fish.

5:8. Peter, who had also been listening to Jesus' teaching and would have heard reports about Him, saw the hand of God in the current circumstance. His response shows him to be a man of some sensitivity and humility. He becomes keenly aware of the presence of One who is holy. See also 4:34.

5:9, 10. The astonishment of Peter and his partners is understandable. As seasoned fishermen by trade, they reckoned they knew where and when fish were to be had and when not (v. 5). Jesus calls Simon to a ministry of winning converts.

5:11. All three follow in discipleship.

5:12. In Jewish thought of the day, curing a leper was considered as difficult as raising someone from the dead. Leviticus 13 and 14 give the Old Testament leprosy laws, though not all of the ailments dealt with are the same as the leprosy we know today (Hansen's disease).

5:14. According to Leviticus 14, the priests had to verify a leper's healing. In light of Mark 1:44, Jesus' instruction was meant to be a testimony to the verifying priests, causing them to recognize that the Messiah was among Israel.

5:16. There is doubtless a link between the fame Jesus was gaining (v. 15) and His need to maintain close secret communion with the Father.

5:17. Doctors were teachers of the Jewish law. Luke indicates that virtually every village had one or several. Them refers to the sick.

21 ^aAnd the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? ^bWho can forgive sins, but God alone?

22 But when Jesus ^aperceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, ¹What reason ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk?

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the ¹sick of the palsy,) ^aI say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy ²couch, and go into thine house.

25 And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, ^aglorifying God.

26 And they were all amazed, and they ^aglorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to day.

Levi Follows Jesus

27 ^aAnd after these things he went forth, and saw a ¹publican, named Levi, sitting at the ²receipt of custom: and he said unto him, ^bFollow me.

28 And he left all, rose up, and ^afollowed him.

Fasting Customs Addressed

33 And they said unto him, ^aWhy do the disciples of John fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?

34 And he said unto them, Can ye make the ¹children of the bride-chamber fast, while the ^abridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

36 ^aAnd he spake also a parable unto them; No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old; if otherwise, then both the new maketh a ¹rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new ²agreeth not with the old.

37 And no man putteth new wine into old ¹bottles; else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall ²perish.

38 But new wine must be put into new ¹bottles; and both are preserved.

39 No man also having drunk old wine straightway desireth new: for he saith, The old is better.

cordance with what it asserts to be true. Faith that claims validity but sees obedience as a nonessential extra is bogus. Jesus taught that those who love (trust, believe in) Him will also do what He commands (John 14:15).

5:22. Jesus' uncanny insight into their thoughts may be seen as part of His prophetic or spiritual-abling, or as evidence of His deity.

5:23. Actually either is impossible for mere man. But Jesus does both, thus giving an important clue to His identity.

5:27. A publican was a tax collector. This one is better known as Matthew, the author of the first gospel.

5:29. Levi was evidently celebrating his new faith, and he invited former friends to share in the festivities.

5:30. The Pharisees held that it was defiling to have dealings, let alone to eat, with people like Levi and his associates.

5:32. Jesus is of course not dealing with the question of whether there are in fact righteous people who need no repentance. By righteous He refers to the Pharisees, who thought they were righteous, and thus felt they had no need to repent. They were truly self-righteous.

5:37. Bottles are wineskins. They could be used but once for new wine, which fermented and built up pressure in the container. If new wine was placed in an old skin, whose elasticity was gone, the skin would break and the wine would spill. For the meaning of this analogy, see Mark 2:21, 22.

5:39. This verse is unique to Luke. It is an ironic aside pertaining to the unwillingness of many of the Jews to hear the gospel.

Behaviour on the Sabbath

6 And ^ait came to pass on the second sabbath after the first, that he went through the ¹corn fields; and his disciples plucked the ²ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that ^awhich is not lawful to do on the sabbath days?

3 And Jesus answering them said, Have ye not read so much as this, ^awhat David did, when himself was ¹an hungred, and they which were with him;

4 How he went into the house of God, and did take and eat the shewbread, and gave also to them that were with him; ^awhich it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?

5 And he said unto them, That the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

6 ^aAnd it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered.

7 And the scribes and Pharisees ¹watched him, whether he would ^aheal on the sabbath day; that they might find an ^baccusation against him.

8 But he ^aknew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will

Twelve Apostles Chosen

12 And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in ^aprayer to God.

6:1. Corn would be a cereal grain such as wheat. Ears were the heads of grain.

6:2. The disciples' action was not in itself illegal (Deut. 23:25), but the oral tradition held that they were breaking the Sabbath.

6:4. Jesus has in mind 1 Samuel 21:1-6. He quotes the Old Testament to show the "experts" that the Scriptures refuted the false tradition they had erected.

6:5. Having already asserted His prerogative, like God Himself, to forgive sins (5:20), Jesus now assumes the right to interpret the Old Testament in a way far different from that of the religious leaders of His time.

6:8. As in 5:22, Jesus was able to discern their deliberations. See also 9:47 and 11:17.

6:9. Jesus illustrates the principle lying behind 6:5. If it was in one's power to do good to someone in such dire need, it would be wrong not to do so, whatever the day of the week. The Sabbath was not designed to make men suffer. The Pharisees seem to have lost sight of this.

6:11. The word for madness appears elsewhere in the New Testament only at 2 Timothy 3:9, where it means "folly." Here in Luke it means irrational fury. Jesus had silenced them for a time, but like Satan himself (4:13) they would be back.

6:12. The example of Jesus here is seen again in Acts 13:2 and 14:23, where special prayer preceded weighty decision. See also the note on Mark 1:35.

6:17-49. This may be Luke's version of the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 5-7). Or it may be similar teaching drawn from a different setting. In a three-year ministry Jesus would probably not give many presentations on the same theme.

18 And they that were ¹vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

6:18. The word for vexed appears elsewhere only in Hebrews 12:15, where the KJV translates it “trouble.” So here it means “those who were troubled by unclean spirits.”

6:19. Virtue translates the Greek word for “power.” See its use in 4:14.

6:20-23. Poverty, hunger, sadness, persecution, isolation, being falsely accused—seemingly a recipe for despondency. Yet such has traditionally been the lot of the faithful who have sought the Lord and not merely popular religion. If these conditions arise out of faithfulness to Christ (see also 1 Pet. 3:14), they are cause for rejoicing.

6:24-26. Pronouncing woe (“Alas for you”) was also part of the ministry of Isaiah, Amos, and Habakkuk.

6:25. The word for laugh seems to have the sense of a haughty or derisive delight in the inferior position or misfortune of others.

6:27-36. What Jesus teaches here He also practiced, and at great cost to Himself. The Father, too, serves as a model (v. 36). See also Matthew 5:48; 1 John 4:10.

6:37. Judge can mean “to distinguish,” or “to consider carefully.” Jesus does not forbid this (John 7:24). Here He warns rather against high-handed condemnation of others. It is God’s task alone to render a judgment that condemns.

6:38. Withal is an old expression meaning “with that.”

A Centurion's Faith

7 Now when he had ended all his sayings in the ¹audience of the people, he "entered into Capernaum.

2 And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, ¹beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

4 And when they came to Jesus, they ¹besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

6 Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore ¹neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but "say in a word, and my servant shall be healed.

8 For I also am a man set under ^aauthority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

6:40. Perfect here refers to the state of being "fully trained" in accordance with a teacher's instruction. Sinless perfection is not in view.

6:41. A mote is a speck of something like wood or straw, denoting anything insignificant.

6:46, 49. To hear what Jesus teaches and not to respond is as foolish as building a house with no thought for its foundation.

7:2. A centurion was an army commander. He would not commonly care for a servant, or be very well-disposed toward the Jewish people.

7:5. A local commander would have ample opportunity to benefit financially from his post. Thus he was in a position to provide support for a building if he wished.

7:6, 8. The centurion reasons from the character of military discipline to the authority Jesus has been delegated under God.

7:9. Amid so much skepticism and hostility, Jesus was pleasantly surprised.

he marvelled at him, and ¹turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, ²not in Israel.

10 And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant ¹whole that had been sick.

7:14. Jesus, the Lawgiver Himself, overrules the Old Testament strictures against touching a dead body (Num. 19:11, 16) in order to perform this act of mercy. The law had never been intended to be unmerciful. A bier was some sort of open coffin for transporting the body.

7:16. Jesus was more than a great prophet. But the whole account is highly reminiscent of works performed by Elijah (1 Kin. 17:17-24) and Elisha (2 Kin. 4:8-37).

7:17. Jesus' success confirms the impression that through Him God is once again visiting His ancient people Israel. There is thus acknowledgment of Jesus' power, along with praise of God.

7:18. John the Baptist's followers report to John about Jesus.

7:20. He that should come: In Jesus' day the "Coming One" may have been a title for the expected Messiah. (See John 6:14; 11:27.) Even if this is not the case, Jesus' answer betrays the awareness that He comes in fulfillment of messianic prophecy.

7:22. See Isaiah 29:18, 19; 35:5, 6a; 61:1. Jesus sees His ministry in terms of Old Testament promises.

7:27. Over four centuries earlier God had foretold John's work (Mal. 3).

28 For I say unto you, Among those that are born of women there is not a ^agreater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

29 And all the people that heard him, and the ¹publicans, ²justified God, ^abeing baptized with the baptism of John.

30 But the Pharisees and ¹lawyers rejected ^athe counsel of God ²against themselves, being not baptized of him.

31 And the Lord said, ^aWhereunto then shall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32 They are like unto children sitting in the marketplace, and calling one to another, and saying, We have ¹piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For ^aJohn the Baptist came ^bneither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, He hath a ¹devil.

34 The Son of man is come ^aeating and drinking; and ye say, Behold a gluttonous man, and a ¹winebibber, a friend of ²publicans and sinners!

35 ^aBut wisdom is justified of all her children.

7:29. John plays a vital role; but more blessed still are those who find the narrow gate into the kingdom.

7:29, 30. Justified God: They agreed that God's seal was on John's ministry and that he had rightly called them to repentance. The leaders had not received John's baptism and doubted his validity. This would be another point of contention between them and Jesus.

7:35. Justified of means "vindicated by." Children refers to the disciples of John and of Jesus. Their decision to heed the messages of the prophet and the Messiah will prove to have been well founded.

7:36. Jesus was known for His association with sinners (v. 34). But He also extends Himself to the well-to-do, who stand in the same need of salvation. Meat refers to food generally.

7:37. Sinner probably means "prostitute"; even to enter the company where Jesus was eating was a bold act. She must have felt a tremendous sense of gratitude, mingled with profound unworthiness. See also Mark 14:3-9.

7:38. Normally the head, not the feet, were anointed. The woman's weeping, and the fact that she let down her hair in public (forbidden in that society) suggest that she may have been quite overcome with feeling.

7:40. Jesus interrupts Simon's thoughts (v. 39).

7:41. Pence was a unit of money (a denarius) equal to a laborer's daily wage.

7:47. Lovelessness in the Christian life may sometimes stem from a lack of honest awareness of one’s own sins, and thus a corresponding lack of appreciation for what Christ has done in working forgiveness.

8:1–3. Here is a glimpse into Jesus’ traveling arrangements. The presence of women in such a group was perhaps unusual (John 4:27). Jesus’ work was apparently financed by people such as Luke mentions here. (See also Mark 15:40, 41.) Chuza appears to have been a man of rank. He may have been the source of information regarding John the Baptist’s fate in Herod’s court.

8:4–18. See Mark 4:14–23 for an explanation.

8:2 Mary Magdalene was a woman from Magdala, a town on the western bank of the Sea of Galilee. Jesus cast seven demons out of her. To associate Mary with a past of immorality, and to identify her as the sinful woman of Luke 7:37, seems incorrect since she gained not only a position of prominence in the Gospels but also a position of leadership among the women who followed Christ. Mary Magdalene, whom Jesus had apparently healed of mental or physical infirmities, was probably a wealthy woman who both supported and traveled with Christ (vv. 1–3). Mary also ministered to Christ before and after His crucifixion (Matt. 27:56) and was the first to see Christ resurrected. Though the events are somewhat confusing, Mary apparently started out with the other women (Matt. 28:1), but was the first to arrive at the tomb (John 20:1). She at once told Peter and John of the empty sepulcher. Later the other women arrived, confirming the story to all. When Peter and the beloved disciple ran to the tomb, Mary followed. She lingered behind, weeping at the tomb, and saw two angels and finally Christ Himself (John 20:11–18). (First Reference, Matt. 27:56; Primary Reference, John 20.)

8:55. Jesus commanded that she be given nourishment. Meat means "food."

8:56. Astonished is a favorite expression of Luke. (See also 2:47; 24:22.) The same Greek word in Acts 2:7, 12; 9:21 is rendered "amazed" by the KJV.

9:1–6. See Mark 6:7–13. To help prepare the twelve disciples to carry on His work following the Ascension into heaven, Jesus wisely begins now to send them out in pairs on short missions of ministry. They start to practice what He has been teaching them.

9:3. The Twelve were, at all costs, to avoid the impression that they were following Jesus for personal gain, the amassing of personal fortune.

9:4. They were not to be shifting about in search of the most comfortable accommodations.

9:5. See 10:10. Jesus is clearly speaking of general rejection by a whole city, not by isolated individuals.

9:6. Mark 6:12 is a reminder that this early gospel preaching was based on a call to repentance. See also 5:32; 13:3, 5; 15:7, 10; 24:47.

9:9. Herod's wish to see Jesus is mentioned again in 23:8. But from 13:31 we learn that his intentions were not totally benign.

9:10–17. See Mark 6:30–44. The reasons this paragraph is included are: (1) It concludes the story of Jesus sending the twelve disciples out on a mission. (2) It reveals that Jesus took His disciples aside (v. 10) temporarily so they could rest, having completed their busy preaching trip. (3) Jesus shows the disciples by example how to receive love impromptu, and how to minister to people. (4) Though the disciples had trusted God to provide for their own needs on their brief mission (v. 3), the feeding of a multitude teaches them to trust Him for bigger needs. (5) It shows the disciples that, when one uses his resources (five loaves and two fishes) to meet the needs of others, God will surely meet his needs, as seen in the twelve baskets of food left over. (6) It further discloses Jesus' deity to His disciples.

9:10. The desert place was not a barren setting, but one free of crowds (for a time at least). Bethsaida was a fairly new settlement built by Herod Philip at the head of the lake.

9:10 Bethsaida was situated on the north shore of the Sea of Galilee, probably just east of the point where the Jordan enters Galilee, though problems exist in identifying the exact site. Bethsaida was the hometown of Peter, Andrew, and Philip (John 1:44). Peter and Andrew, however, left and lived in Capernaum during Christ's public ministry (Mark 1:29). Though few specific miracles of Jesus are recorded as occurring in Bethsaida (e.g., the feeding of the five thousand, vv. 10–17), apparently many miracles did occur there, because Jesus condemns Bethsaida (along with Chorazin and Capernaum) for unbelief despite His many miracles (Matt. 11:20–24). Bethsaida is mentioned only in the Gospels. Neither it nor any other Galilean city, however, has any prominence in the Book of Acts.

14 For they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, ¹Make them sit down by fifties in a ¹company.

15 And they did so, and made them all sit down.

Jesus' Transfiguration

28 ^aAnd it came to pass about an eight days after these sayings, he took Peter and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray.

29 And as he prayed, the ¹fashion of his countenance was altered, and his ²raiment was white and ³glistening.

30 And, behold, there talked with him two men, which were ^aMoses and ^bElias:

31 Who appeared in glory, and ed not only of proclamation but also of dealing with physical needs.

9:12. The people seem not to have been from that area, since their homes were apparently far away.

9:16. Jesus prays, understandably, with five thousand hungry onlookers, the Twelve, and gathering darkness combined to raise the question: Just what will Jesus do now? Jews did not normally look up to pray; but see 18:13; Mark 7:34; John 11:41.

9:17. Here Jesus not only provides miraculously in the face of human need; He does so in abundance. Twelve baskets remain, a convincing proof for the doubting 12 disciples.

9:18. Jesus at prayer: See 3:21; 5:16; 6:12; 9:28; 22:41.

9:20. See Mark 8:29. Luke stresses that Peter made the confession. Jesus had already been identified as the Messiah, God's anointed, by angels (2:11), Simeon (2:26), and demons (4:41).

9:27. Jesus likely had the Transfiguration (vv. 28–36) in view in these remarks.

9:28–42. See Mark 9:2–29.

9:28. Experiences like this in the lives of Peter and John stood behind the statement in Acts 4:13. What a rare privilege, as well as a searching one, to spend time with Jesus in prayer.

9:29. Jesus' face: Compare Exodus 34:29; 2 Corinthians 3:7, 18.

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three ¹tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias: not knowing what he said.

34 While he thus spake, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they feared as they entered into the ^acloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, ^aThis is my beloved Son: ^bhear him.

36 And when the voice ¹was past, Jesus was found alone. ^aAnd they kept it ²close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

Jesus Again Predicts His Death

43 And they were all amazed at the ¹mighty power of God. But while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, 44 ^aLet these sayings sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 ^aBut they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, ¹that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.

The Least to Be the Greatest

46 ^aThen there arose a ¹reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.

47 And Jesus, ^aperceiving the thought of their heart, took a ^bchild, and set him ¹by him, 48 And said unto them, ^aWhosoever shall receive this child in my name receiveth me: and ^bwhosoever shall receive me ^creceiveth him that sent me: ^dfor he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

49 ^aAnd John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out ¹devils in thy name; and we forbad him, because he followeth not with us.

impending death, He will also have been assured of His promised resurrection (Mark 9:9).

9:35. Compare the voice at Jesus' baptism (3:22). There, however, God speaks to Jesus; here the message is to the disciples.

9:42. Mark 9:29 indicates that due to prayer Jesus was successful where His disciples were not. Faithlessness (v. 41) is not just a matter of lack of faith in a time of need; it also pertains to failure to be diligent in prayer in advance of spiritual crisis.

9:43. Jesus' works evoked wonder. But Jesus was concerned that His disciples not only see wonders but also receive an interpretation of them.

9:45. Part of the disciples' ignorance was unavoidable, but part of it was willful. Possibly they could not perceive because of what they would not receive.

9:49, 50. See Mark 9:38–40. Matthew and John do not record this incident in their gospels.

9:51–56. This account is recorded only in Luke.

9:51. By this phrase, the time, Luke envisions the unfolding of a divine plan. The word for being re-received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went, and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And ^athey did not receive him, because his face was ¹as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And when his disciples ^aJames and John saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as ^bElias did?

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of ^aspirit ye are of.

56 For ^athe Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

The High Cost of Discipleship

57 ^aAnd it came to pass, that, as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

9:52. Advance preparations would be necessary for so large a following.

9:53. There were long-standing tensions between Jews and Samaritans. The latter would not receive travelers bound for Jerusalem.

9:54. See 2 Kings 1:10-12. Peter is not the only disciple to make rash judgments. Retaliation in the face of rejection goes far beyond Jesus' order in 9:5.

9:57-60. See Matthew 8:18-22.

9:62. Fit, occurring elsewhere only in 14:35 and Hebrews 6:7, means "suitable" or "usable." One who makes life's lesser matters of greater priority than God's work is of little use to Him.

10:1. Only Luke makes mention of this mission.

10:4. Salute no man: In view of the urgency of the hour, they were to dispense with the usual elaborate and time-consuming Eastern greetings.

10:6. Son of peace could refer either to a peaceful man or to a man in whose heart the gospel message finds a place. (See Matt. 10:13.) The rest of the sentence here should probably read your peace [i.e., the beneficial results of the message you proclaim] shall rest upon (him).

10:9. See Jesus' similar declaration in 11:20.

10:11. Notwithstanding or "yet." The kingdom arrives and people are responsible to respond to the

The Model Prayer

11 And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach used by the priest and Levite as excuses for passing by; or they may have feared the thieves themselves. In either case Jesus' point is that they were heartless in their behavior. The Levites were officials of lower rank than priests; they oversaw the temple worship. Unlike the priest, the Levite at least approached the victim and gazed at him. But neither extended aid.

10:33. Jews and Samaritans were bitter rivals (John 4:9). The Samaritans were despised for having at least partially Gentile ancestry (due to Assyria's conquest of Samaria in 721 B.C.) and for having a different worship center (Mount Gerizim; John 4:20). Thus Jesus' parable was highly provocative. Samaritan was to Jesus' hearers automatically a term of reproach. To portray a Samaritan as fulfilling the commandment (see v. 27), but Jews as circumventing it, would be a supreme insult to the listening lawyer (v. 25) and to the rest of the audience.

10:37. The lawyer cannot even bring himself to say "the Samaritan." Jesus shows that racial considerations are utterly transcended by God's command to love Him, and thus to love others as He does, without prejudice or partiality.

10:38. The village was Bethany (John 12:1). Martha and Mary were Lazarus's sisters.

10:40. Cumbered means that Martha was distracted by matters that, in light of Jesus' visit, should have been secondary.

10:41. The repetition of her name denotes a gentle and sympathetic reply. Careful (see 1 Cor. 7:32–35) often indicates a this-worldly, unbelieving attitude that hinders proper attention to the things of God; that is, to be unduly concerned about secondary matters.

10:42. One thing: This can be explained in two ways here. Jesus may be saying that only one simple dish is required for a meal; Martha can handle the preparations without Mary's help. In this case Martha is being primarily rebuked. Or Jesus may by one thing refer to the spiritual nourishment craved by Mary. In this case Jesus is implying that Martha, too, should leave her housework for a time and concentrate on a more urgent matter.

11:1. Religious communities of the time custom-

10:38, 39 Martha and Mary were the sisters of Lazarus and were from Bethany, which was about two miles east of Jerusalem. Martha seems to be the older sister since she takes the lead in the several narratives: both at the supper (Luke 10), and at Lazarus's death (John 11). Martha is remembered for her impatience and excessive concern for mundane matters, whereas Mary is remembered for her spiritual desire and discernment (Luke 10:38–42; Matt. 26:6–13; John 11:2; 12:2–8). Mary's act of anointing Christ in anticipation of His death is a lasting memorial to her (Mark 14:9). Though several problems arise when collating the four gospel accounts of the anointing, it seems best to regard the accounts in Matthew 26, Mark 14, and John 12 as one event occurring in Bethany shortly before Christ's crucifixion. The account in Luke 7 probably refers to an earlier occasion involving a different woman—one who had been saved from a life of immorality and who lived in Galilee (Luke 7:37).

Jesus Accused of Evil

14 ^aAnd he was casting out a ¹devil, and it was ²dumb. And it came to pass, when the ¹devil was gone out, the ²dumb spake; and the ³people wondered.

A House Divided Cannot Stand

17 ^aBut ^bhe, knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house divided against a house falleth.

18 If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out ¹devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub cast out ¹devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? therefore shall they be your judges.

arily had their own distinctive prayers. Perhaps the disciples wanted theirs.

11:2-4. See Matthew 6:9-13. Jesus' use of the familiar Aramaic term Abba (Father) at the head of this prayer is probably the background for similar usage in Romans 8:15 and Galatians 4:6.

11:5-8. This passage is recorded only by Luke.

11:8. The word translated importunity probably describes the man's persistence. Jesus is, then, giving an example of prevailing prayer. (See 18:1.) The same word does lend itself to a second interpretation. It may refer, not to the petitioner, but to the one being petitioned. In this case the lesson would be that God, because of His desire to uphold His good name, grants the requests of those who seek Him, as a means of bearing witness to His own character and power.

11:9-13. See Matthew 7:7-11.

11:18-20. In response to the conviction that He exorcised demons by satanic power (9:15), Jesus raises a hypothetical situation: "Let's suppose, for a moment, that Satan opposes himself, as some of you think; in that case his kingdom of darkness could not last and remain intact." Thus is the foolishness of Jesus' opponents exposed.

11:21, 22. The strong man stands for Satan, the stronger man for Christ. Jesus' own power is unlimited; yet He does not represent Satan to the disciples as a weakening or figure of minor consequence.

23 "He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.

24 "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, he saith, I will return unto my house whence I came out.

26 Then goeth he, and taketh ¹to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself; and they enter in, and dwell there: and "the last state of that man is worse than the first.

27 And it came to pass, as he spake these things, a certain woman of the ¹company lifted up her voice, and said unto him, "Blessed is the womb that bare thee, and the ²paps which thou hast sucked.

35 Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness.

36 If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a ¹candle doth give thee light.

Jesus Rebukes the Pharisees

37 And as he spake, a certain Pharisee ¹besought him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down ²to meat.

38 And "when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first washed before dinner.

39 "And the Lord said unto him, Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but ^byour inward part is full of ¹ravens and wickedness.

40 Ye fools, did not "he that made that which is ¹without make that which is within also?

41 "But rather give alms of ¹such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you.

11:23. Jesus warns that neutrality between Him and Satan is not possible.

11:24-26. It is necessary, not only to be rid of evil, but to be indwelt by good. The alternative is disastrous.

11:27, 28. These verses are unique to Luke. They show that spiritual relationship with Jesus is more important than family ties, and that blessedness is a matter of both hearing and doing God's word.

11:29-32. See Matthew 12:39-42. Jesus is emphasizing that His presence implies judgment for all who do not respond to His message. If men hearkened to the words of a Jonah or a Solomon, how much more should they heed the call of the Son of Man?

11:33-36. Jesus likens Himself, or His teaching about the kingdom, to light that dispels spiritual darkness. To shrink from, repress, or otherwise fail to walk in that light is perilous.

11:38. The Pharisees' indignation is explained in Mark 7:3.

11:39. Ravens means "greed" or "robbery."

11:40. Despite the Pharisees' strenuous attempts at piety, Jesus addresses them as ungodly men, lacking in real goodness.

11:41. Jesus is not suggesting that God's favor can be purchased through giving. He is pointing to the need for the greedy to overcome their selfishness, and then go on to share with others rather than take from them. See Ephesians 4:28.

11:42. Jesus does not quarrel with the Pharisees’ concern to be obedient even in minor points. But this concern must not get in the way of weightier issues such as justice and love.

11:44. Jesus speaks of graves that may lie underfoot without the knowledge of the person walking by. To touch a grave meant seven days of ritual impurity (Num. 19:16).

11:47. Jesus condemns their hypocrisy. Their ancestors killed the prophets, and they think that they can be better than their ancestors by honoring the prophets. Yet the present generation is as corrupt as its ancestry, being still unwilling to hear the voice of God’s true prophets, whether John the Baptist or Jesus.

11:49. The wisdom of God may be taken as “God in His wisdom.”

11:51. See Matthew 23:35.

11:52. See Matthew 23:13.

11:53. Urge him vehemently may be rendered “to hold a terrible grudge,” that is, to act very hostile toward Jesus. To provoke him to speak means “to question Him closely,” the purpose being to trap Him by His own words (v. 54). Jesus was set on like an animal by hunting dogs.

12:1, 2. Hypocrisy, piety just for the sake of appearance, is futile; for even hidden motives will one day be laid bare by God.

12:4. The body’s death is not the end of a person’s life.

Jesus foretells that synagogues and magistrates are tribunals before which His followers will have to give account of their loyalty to Him. Take ye no thought is the same word used for Martha's anxiety in 10:41: they need not be demoralized by present danger. The Holy Ghost shall teach: Remember that (1) these men had had Jesus as a personal teacher; (2) these disciples, being Jews, had a great command of Old Testament Scripture; and (3) the New Testament was not yet begun. This is not to say that Jesus' promise has no application today, since the experience of persecuted Christians in this century proves otherwise. Yet it would be dangerous to presume on direct, supernatural guidance without doing all possible to avail oneself of means already at hand to learn of God and His ways.

12:15. See 1 Timothy 6:10, 17, 18.

Notice that what Jesus calls for follows quite logically out of His own example (2 Cor. 8:9), as well as out of God's graciousness toward all who seek Him (Rom. 10:12). Jesus is thus not speaking of a pay-as-you-go faith, but of participation in a relationship in which God already provides what He wishes His people to give back to Him.

¹maidservants

36 And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

37 ^aBlessed are those servants, whom the ¹lord when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to ²meat, and will come forth and serve them.

38 And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants.

39 ^aAnd this know, that if the ¹goodman of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have ²suffered his house to be broken ³through.

40 ^aBe ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.

41 Then Peter said unto him, Lord, speakest thou this parable unto us, or even to ¹all?

42 And the Lord said, ^aWho then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of ¹meat in due season?

43 Blessed is that servant, whom his ¹lord when he cometh shall find so doing.

44 ^aOf a truth I say unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.

45 ^aBut and if that servant say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to beat the menservants and ¹maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken;

12:25. No amount of fretting will add to one's height or improve one's lot in life.

12:27, 28. There are lessons to be learned from reflecting on God's general revelation in nature in the light of His Word.

12:33. Sell that ye have, that is, sell your possessions. Giving alms involves putting one's material assets to a use that will glorify God, quite possibly by relieving some human need. Wax not old means that they do not lose their contents due to the wear and tear of age.

12:35-48. Jesus recommends constant readiness in light of the approaching Judgment Day.

12:35. Loins be girded: One's outer robe had to be tucked into a belt before working, running, doing battle, or the like. Jesus is saying, "Be alert!"

12:36. See a similar setting in Revelation 3:20. Envisioned is a festive wedding banquet, after which, at a time impossible to foretell, the celebrating groom claimed his bride at her parents' home, then returned to his own. Whatever the hour, likely quite late, the servants were expected to be found ready.

12:38. The Jews divided the night into three watches. (See Judg. 7:19.) The second and third watches would be the latest hours of the night.

12:39. Goodman is simply the head of the household.

46 The lord of that servant will come in a ^aday when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him ¹in sunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

47 And ^athat servant, which ^bknew his ¹lord's will, and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes.

48 ^aBut he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more.

Repent or Perish

13 There were present at that season some that told him of the Galilaeans, whose blood Pilate had ¹mingled with their sacrifices.

2 And Jesus answering said unto them, Suppose ye that these Galilaeans were sinners ¹above all the Galilaeans, because they suffered such things?

3 I tell you, Nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

4 Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were ¹sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem?

5 I tell you, Nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

6 He spake also this parable; ^aA certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and sought fruit thereon, and found none.

12:46. In sunder means "in two."

12:47, 48. These verses, unique to Luke, stress the heavy responsibility of servants, as followers of Jesus are supposed to be.

12:49. Fire refers to judgment. There is perhaps a connection with 3:16. By saying What will I? Jesus is exclaiming, "How I wish it were already kindled!"

12:50. Jesus doubtless refers to His death. See Mark 10:38.

12:51. Jesus has mentioned peace in 7:50; 8:48; and 10:5. Elsewhere He is clear that He bestows a peace of a different quality from the peace found in the world (John 14:27).

12:57. It is much easier to point out the flaws of others than to face up to one's own.

13:1. Apparently soldiers under Pilate had killed some Galilean worshippers who were offering sacrifices in the temple.

13:3, 5. It is hazardous to assume that the misfortunes of others (1) show them to be worthy of punishment, and (2) show oneself to be worthy of continued untroubled existence. Jesus reminds that all are deserving of a violent fate that can be avoided only by turning in repentance to a merciful God.

13:6–9. This short parable speaks of the Lord's forbearance, but also of His eventual severity on 7 Then said he unto the ¹dresser of his vineyard, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig tree, and find none: cut it down; why ²cumbereth it the ground?

12 And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine ^ainfirmity.

13 ^aAnd he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had ^ahealed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, ^bThere are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and ^cnot on the sabbath day.

13:15-17. Jesus makes His point well. But there remains in every generation the temptation for traditions and programs to take priority over the needs of people.

13:18, 19. See the note on Mark 4:30-32.

13:21. See Matthew 13:33.

REPENTANCE

13:3. This was the common theme in the preaching of the prophets (Jer. 18:8), John the Baptist (Matt. 3:8), Jesus (Mark 1:15), and the apostles (Acts 2:38). Repentance is necessary for salvation, but repentance alone does not save. It means to change one's mind about sin in such a way as to result in a change of action. In this sense, it is similar to conversion, which involves both repentance and faith. Repentance begins with a change of thought concerning sin, often resulting in a sense of godly sorrow. In coming to Christ for salvation there is also a change in the will. Repentance is produced in the life by means of the Word of God (Rom. 2:4), the chastisement of the Lord (Rev. 3:19), belief of the truth (Jon. 3:5), and a new vision of God (Job 42:5, 6). Jesus taught that repentance could not be produced by miracles (Matt. 11:20, 21), not even by someone rising from the dead (16:30, 31). Illustration: In the Old Testament, Manasseh was carried into captivity before he acknowledged his sin and repented. On His trip through Jericho, Jesus encountered a man named Zaccheus. This man repented, although he had lived an evil life for many years. Both of these men found salvation, yet others whose lives have been less evil remain unsaved because they will not repent. Application: Whenever God speaks to a Christian about a certain sin in his life, he should immediately repent and depend on God to give victory. (First Reference, Jude 14, 15; Primary Reference, Luke 13:3; cf. Eph. 2:8.)

23 Then said one unto him, Lord, are there ^afew that be saved? And he said unto them, 24 ^aStrive to enter in at the ¹strait gate: for ^bmany, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.

27 ^aBut he shall say, I tell you, I know you not ¹whence ye are; ^bdepart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28 ^aThere shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, ^bwhen ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out.

29 And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God.

30 ^aAnd, behold, there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last.

Teachings on Humility

14 And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they ¹watched him.

2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering spake unto the ¹lawyers and Pharisees, saying, ^aIs it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

4 And they ¹held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5 And answered them, saying, ^aWhich of you shall have an ¹ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?

6 And they could not answer him ¹again to these things.

14:6 ¹ regarding these

13:23. This was a much-debated question in that era, and Jesus too taught on the subject (Matt. 22:14). The following verses (24–30) give a firm and clear answer.

13:24. Strait means “narrow.” Christ said there was only one way to be saved—through Himself (John 14:6; see Acts 4:12).

13:31. Herod Antipas is mentioned also at 3:1; 9:7; 23:7.

13:32. That fox is not a complimentary title. Jesus knows that a set time lies ahead for Him to continue His ministry, and then will come the consummation of His earthly mission.

13:33. This verse helps explain the previous one.

13:34, 35. Characteristically, Jesus’ recollection of Jerusalem’s past sins does not lead Him to spiteful accusations, but rather to a heartfelt lament. Jesus clearly shows tenderness for God’s ancient chosen nation (of which He is a member!) and their crown city. Yet God is not partial; sin eventually finds the sinner out; Jerusalem will be left desolate. The final words most likely look forward to the Second Coming.

14:2. Dropsy involves swelling due to a buildup of fluid in tissues and cavities.

14:5. Sabbath regulations had become so unbalanced in practice that it was indeed permissible to have mercy on a beast—but not on a person. See 13:14.

7 And he put forth a parable to those which were ¹bidden, when he ²marked how they chose out the ³chief rooms; saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a ¹wedding, sit not down in the ²highest room; lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that ¹bade thee and him come and say to thee, Give this man place; and thou begin with shame to take the lowest ²room.

10 ^aBut when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest ¹room; that when he that ²bade thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have ³worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.

11 ^aFor whosoever exalteth himself shall be ¹abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

12 Then said he also to him that ¹bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also ²bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call ^athe poor, the ¹maimed, the lame, the blind:

14 And thou shalt be ^ablessed; for they cannot ¹recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

things, he said unto him, ^aBlessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

16 ^aThen said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and ¹bade many:

17 And ^asent his servant at supper time to say to them that were bidden, Come; for all things are now ready.

18 And they all with one ¹consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to ¹prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and ¹shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house being angry said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the ²maimed, and the ³halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, ^aThat none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper.

14:7-11. This account is unique to Luke. Verse 11 sums up Jesus' point. As usual, He is able to invest a mundane scene with profound meaning.

14:8. Bidden means "invited." The highest room was the place of honor at a banquet.

14:10. Worship would be more modernly translated "esteem." Jesus is not encouraging human pride (cf. v. 11). Proverbs 25:6, 7 offers a parallel.

14:12-14. This passage is found only in Luke. It is surely not a command to refuse hospitality to friends, family, and those who may be well off. Jesus fellowshiped in such circles Himself. Jesus rather issues the reminder that it is incumbent on His followers to do good both to the lovable and the unlovable. (See Matt. 5:46.) If the unevangelized and needy are to be reached, God's people must maintain ties with them, and should want to do so for the gospel's sake.

(See 1 Cor. 5:9-11.) Jesus was known as a Friend of sinners.

14:14. To do what is right in God's eyes at all times is virtuous, but even more so when one's charitable acts cannot possibly be attributed to desire for immediate personal advantage.

14:15. Eat bread refers to enjoying a full and sumptuous meal. The thought is evidently of the heavenly banquet at the end of the age.

14:16-24. The comment in verse 15 gives rise to a parable. Great supper often stands for a communal celebration of salvation.

14:21. The halt here are those who cannot walk.

14:24. Among other things the parable teaches that it is folly to trifle with the summons of the gospel. God is able to extend His invitation, and He is also able to isolate people from the benefits of His grace.

The Cost of Discipleship

25 And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them, 26 “If any man come to me, ^band hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and ^bbrethren, and sisters, ^cyea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And “whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.

28 For *“which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?*

29 Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him,

30 Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish.

31 Or what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and ¹consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?

32 Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth ¹an ambassage, and ²desireth conditions of peace.

14:25. Jesus had gained a wide hearing. Here was the temptation to water down the demands that discipleship entails. Yet in the following verses Jesus clearly does just the opposite.

14:26. In comparison to one's devotion to Christ, one's family ties must be secondary. This does not set aside Jesus' other teachings to love one's enemies, to honor father and mother, and the like. It does highlight that absolute loyalty to Christ is paramount, even though in many societies, including the one in which Jesus taught, as well as many today, following Him involves precisely the either-or that this verse sets up.

14:28–32. These verses are found only in Luke. Jesus pinpoints the major lesson of the two stories in verse 33.

14:33. Forsaketh means literally “renounce” or “give up.” Disciples must live in constant readiness to put their means at the disposal of the Lord's ends.

14:34. See Mark 9:50 and note.

14:35. Jesus' conclusion regarding His teaching in the many previous verses is that disciples who do not act like disciples are worthless. Jesus places a premium on perseverance. Paul's statement in Titus 1:16 is similar.

15:1. Luke makes much of Jesus' contact with sinners (the class of persons written off by many of the religious people of the day). (See also 5:30, 32; 7:34.) Publicans were tax gatherers, who were regarded (often with good reason!) with special contempt. See 5:27, 29, 30; 7:29, 34; 18:10, 11, 13.

15:2. The Pharisees' traditions forbade them to share a meal with any they considered sinful.

15:3–32. These verses comprise parables that show Jesus' message to be “the Gospel for the outcast” (I. H. Marshall).

15:4–7. This is not only a poignant picture of God's searching love, but also a rebuke of the selfish murmuring of verse 2.

15:8–10. If a woman and her neighbors delight in recovering a solitary coin, and if a shepherd takes joy in rescuing a single sheep, how much more praiseworthy is the salvation of a sinner? While some portray God as impersonal or aloof from human affairs, Jesus here teaches of His concern for every individual.

10 Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth.

14 And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

16 And he would ¹fain have filled his belly with the ²husks that the swine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

20 And he arose, and came to his father. But ^awhen he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him.

21 And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, ^aand in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

22 But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and ¹shoes on his feet:

24 ^aFor this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

25 Now his elder son was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the house, he heard musick and dancing.

26 And he called one of the servants, and asked what these things meant.

27 And he said unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, because he hath received him safe and sound.

15:12. According to Deuteronomy 21:17, the older of two sons was entitled to a double portion of a father's estate. Here the younger son would have received one-third. He was probably under a moral obligation to use the inheritance in a way pleasing to the father, but he ignores this.

15:13. Gathered all together means that he turned his assets into hard cash. Not many days is Luke's understatement. The lad wasted no time getting ready to waste money.

15:15. A Jew would have been unbearably degraded by feeding swine. Also, the owner would have had to be a Gentile, since both keeping and feeding swine were forbidden to Jews.

15:17. Came to himself may well be a Semitic idiom for repentance. See the following verse.

15:19. Having claimed his birthright (v. 12), the son had no further claim on his father's estate. He at least had the integrity not to resort to begging; he knew his offense and was willing to abide by the implications of it—a mark of genuine repentance.

15:20. The father had not yet heard his son's confession (v. 21), but like the seekers of the previous two parables, his desire is to see the restoration of that which was lost.

15:21–24. The son rehearses his speech. But the father's graciousness presents an entirely different result from the one the son had envisioned.

15:25–28. The older son valued his own higher privilege, and despised his brother who had squandered his portion. He thus felt superior and self-righteous, and was now understandably annoyed that his brother was being lavished with mercy and kindness. Jesus is clearly painting a portrait of the attitude behind the murmuring of verse 2. Again the father takes the initiative.

30 But as soon as this thy son was come, which hath devoured thy ¹living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

An Unjust Steward

16 And he said also unto his disciples, There was a certain rich man, which had a steward; and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods.

2 And he called him, and said unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an ^aaccount of thy stewardship; for thou mayest be no longer steward.

15:29, 30. The son is articulate in airing his grievance: his brother enjoys a fatted calf, while he has never had even a kid, which was much cheaper fare. He speaks not of "my brother" but of this thy son.

15:31. Son is an affectionate address, quite unlike the son's complaint to the father. He reaffirms his regard for the older son.

15:32. By the words this thy brother the father reminds him of what he implicitly rejected in verse 30. The whole story is a moving portrayal of a loving God's persistence in seeking out the lost—and of human perversity in resenting such grace, which exceeds our natural understanding.

16:1-31. Previous to this Jesus has been explaining His attitude toward the lowly and the poor. Now He warns of the dangers of riches, of setting one's heart on life's purely earthly resources.

16:4. I am resolved expresses the thought "I have just realized."

16:8. Lord is often considered to refer to the steward's master. Yet it may well refer to Jesus, who commends the steward's readiness to reduce the bill when he realizes that he has been found out.

In light of impending judgment, by the analogy of this action, men should spare no effort to right their wrongs. For similar uses of the word translated wisely, see 12:42; 1 Corinthians 4:10; 10:15. The same quality of wisdom in the sense of being ready for judgment is seen also in the parable of the 10 virgins, Matthew 25:1-13.

16:9. Mammon of unrighteousness is earthly as opposed to heavenly riches. When ye fail is a euphemism for "when you die." But another interpretation would be "when the day comes that wealth fails." This verse is not teaching salvation by works, but it does stress that true discipleship also involves financial commitment. They refers to heaven's angels and is a way of indirectly referring to God.

16:11. If one's pocketbook is not at God's disposal, one's heart is probably not surrendered to God, either.

16:12. Another man's means literally "another's." It may well refer to God. Everything that comes into a disciple's possession is actually God's. In context, that which is your own means the heavenly riches that will accrue to the accounts of disciples who live so as to become "rich toward God" (12:21).

one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

God Knows the Heart

14 And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things: and they derided him.

15 And he said unto them, Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God.

The Rich Man and the Beggar

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom.

24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence.

27 Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house:

28 For I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.

30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead.

16:14. A common human response to God's convicting truth is to ridicule or sneer at it. This is precisely the opposite of the penitent attitude of the steward just above.

16:15. Some things considered acceptable among men are hated by God.

16:16-18. This section serves to emphasize Jesus' rejection of the Pharisees' cavalier attitude toward God's Word, the Law, in favor of their tradition. But it is precisely the Law and the Prophets, the Old Testament, that should have prepared their hearts to receive the message of the kingdom. Verse 18 points to the Old Testament's continuing validity as God intended it, according to Jesus' interpretation, and not according to Pharisaical misuse.

16:19-31. Two warnings are implied. First, earthly blessedness does not necessarily mean God's ultimate favor; the reverse may be true. Second, the Law and the Prophets have an important role in jolting people out of the spiritual deadness often induced by wealth. Those who do not have the sensitivity to obey God's Word would not be swayed by a direct miracle done in their presence. In all of this one detects a thinly veiled attack on the views of Jesus' listeners.

16:22. Abraham's bosom conveys the idea of the poor man enjoying Abraham's company at the messianic banquet (13:29).

16:25. This is an illustration of 6:24, as well as 13:30.

16:26. See Hebrews 9:27. After death there is no second chance.

16:31. If here carries the weight of "since." They were not paying attention to the light they already had. Hard-heartedness is not necessarily overcome by miraculous signs.

17:1, 2. Impossible: Offenses are inevitable. See also Matthew 18:6, 7; Mark 9:42.

17:3: See Matthew 18:15.

17:4. See Matthew 18:21, 22. Saying does not have to imply that the repentance is shallow. Thou shalt is a command.

17:5, 6. The magnitude of the command in verse 4 leads to a plea for assistance. Faith, understood here not merely in a mental sense, but also in the sense of active “faithfulness,” is the key. One’s faith often increases as one steps out in trusting obedience.

17:7–10. Contrary to folk wisdom of the day (and now), Jesus is clear that human obedience to God does not put God in debt to man. Jesus here gives a succinct picture of the attitude that should underlie our service to God. Otherwise we are merely hirelings. Contrast Jesus’ teaching with the reasoning in 18:12.

17:11. Mention of Samaria reminds Luke’s readers that Jesus is working His way toward Jerusalem (9:51, 52).

SHEOL/HADES

16:19–31. The terms Sheol (Heb. She’ōl) and Hades (Gr. Haidēs) both refer to the place of suffering where the unsaved go until they are released into hell (Gehenna). In the Old Testament, to descend into Sheol was apparently a penalty for sin (Ps. 55:15; Prov. 9:18). It is described as “destruction” (Job 26:6; 28:22; 31:12; Ps. 88:11; Prov. 15:11; 27:20). It was further described as “naked before” God (Job 26:6) and the place where the wrath of God burns (Deut. 32:22). At times Sheol is also pictured as the home of the wicked only (Ps. 9:17). At times Sheol is identified simply as the grave of the physically dead, where all people go when they die. In the New Testament, the rich man went to Hades on dying, and suffered the torments of burning, separation, loneliness, conviction by memory, thirst, and stench. Also, those lost in Hades can glimpse the paradise of the saved (“Abraham’s bosom”), although there is no biblical indication that the reverse is true. Some believe that, until the Ascension, Abraham’s bosom was also located in Sheol, that is, the place of the physically dead. When Christ died, He descended into Hades and “led captivity captive” (Eph. 4:8–10). Application: Everyone should give careful consideration to the gospel and trust the Lord as Savior in order to escape the torments of Hades (First Reference, Deut. 32:22; Primary Reference, Luke 16:19–31; cf. Revelation 9:1.)

TORMENTS

16:23–25. The word used here for torments originally referred to a stone used for testing gold and other metals, and then came to mean the torture-rack used to extort prisoners’ confessions. In this context, the word can refer only to the most extreme forms of human suffering. Illustration: Specific torments in this passage are the flame, the sight of the righteous, thirst, the victims’ memories of their previous lives, and the realization that they are in a hopeless situation. Application: Because of the severity of these torments, no one should assume he is going to heaven unless he has personally trusted Christ as Savior. (First Reference, Matt. 8:29; Primary Reference, Luke 16:23–25; cf. Rom. 1:18.)

24 ^aFor as the lightning, that ¹lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, shineth unto the other part under heaven; so shall also the Son of man be in his day.

25 ^aBut first must he suffer many things, and be ^brejected of this generation.

26 ^aAnd as it ^bwas in the ^cdays of ^aNoe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man.

27 They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the ^aday that Noe entered into the ark, and the flood came, and ^bdestroyed them all.

28 ^aLikewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded;

29 But ^athe same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all.

30 Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man ^ais revealed.

34 ^aI tell you, in that night there

17:14. They obeyed Jesus' command, and in the process found themselves healed. See Leviticus 14:1-32.

17:16. For Jews, who often despised Samaritans, the last word would be a stinging surprise.

17:18. Stranger literally means "of another race of people"; it therefore refers to a Gentile. The word occurs nowhere else in the New Testament. This non-Jew, Jesus points out, is more spiritually minded than the nine leprous Jews. Yet "strangers" (to cite a use of the word from outside the Scripture) were forbidden to enter the temple's inner confines by prominent signs in the temple precincts.

17:19. All were healed, but only one gives Jesus thanks. His salvation is complete.

17:20-37. This prophecy concerns the kingdom. The Pharisees asked a question dealing strictly with the future; Jesus points them also to the present. With-in you (v. 21) is perhaps better translated "among you." If they cared to look around, it was clear that with John the Baptist and Jesus the kingdom was in fact already at hand.

17:22. Having addressed the Pharisees, Jesus now directs His teaching to the disciples. Much of what Jesus says is paralleled in Matthew 24. Disciples are not to be deceived, even though the day will come when they will long for Christ to return.

17:24. When Christ does return in His glory, it will not be a hidden but an unmistakable event.

17:25. For the Son of Man to return, He must first depart; and this meant going to the Cross.

17:26. Noe (Noah) (see Gen. 6): Life went on and people spurned Noah's warnings; but judgment did finally befall (v. 27).

17:30. Jesus applies the previous verses. Apathy in the world at large must not dull the disciples' diligence in expecting their deliverance and the world's judgment.

17:31-33. Wholehearted devotion to God, as opposed to loving possessions or life itself, will be the only refuge in that day.

17:34-36. As discipleship divides close relatives and associates in daily life (12:52, 53), so the coming shall be two ¹men in one bed; the one shall be taken, and the other shall be left.

35 “Two women shall be grinding together; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

36 Two men shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left.

37 And they answered and said unto him, “Where, Lord? And he said unto them, Wheresoever the body is, thither will the ¹eagles be gathered together.

The Pharisee and the Publican

9 And he spake this parable unto certain “which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a ¹publican.

11 The Pharisee “stood and prayed thus with himself, ^bGod, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this ¹publican.

12 I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.

13 And the ¹publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as ^{his} eyes unto heaven, but ²smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: “for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

day of the Son of Man will make evident who has chosen Christ and who has not.

17:37. The disciples press for further details. Jesus answers only indirectly. Eagles here are vultures. As vultures gather over carrion, so judgment’s storm clouds pile up over the spiritually unprepared. Since Jesus saw such unprepared people everywhere, He may be answering, “Everywhere,” to the question of where the harsh separation of verses 34–36 will take place. Thus He indicates the universal implications of the Son of Man’s return.

18:1–14. These verses teach on prayer, a prominent emphasis in Luke.

18:1. To faint means “to lose heart.” Precisely when tempted to give up, men ought to be strong in their resolve to pray.

18:2–5. Jesus makes a similar point in 11:5–8.

18:6–8. If an unjust judge acts in this way, how much more hope may God’s children place in God? However, the issue is not God’s faithfulness. It is whether believers will persist in supplication (v. 7), or whether their patience and perseverance will give out by the time Christ finally returns (v. 8; see also v. 1).

18:9–14. Here is a parable with special application to ancient or modern Pharisees. Jesus’ teaching method was generally direct rather than evasive.

18:10. Publicans (tax collectors) were known for being corrupt. Pharisees on the other hand were held in high esteem by most. Listeners here would have expected the Pharisee to be extolled and the tax gatherer condemned.

18:11. Standing was a usual position for prayer, but here standing suggests a certain arrogance. (Compare the sinner’s hesitancy in v. 13.) A sense of personal superiority is not a good reason for thanking God. It is rather in itself cause for repentance.

18:12. This is not exaggeration, but an example of how Pharisees truly exceeded the letter of the law in their piety. But their pride and contempt for others reveals their true state of heart.

18:13. The heart was regarded as the seat of sin. The publican’s action implies acute contrition and a sense of personal unworthiness. To obtain forgiveness he thinks not of his own works but solely of God’s mercy.

18:14. The publican’s anguished confession would be followed by results in keeping with his repentance. (See 19:8.) But justification by faith comes independently of the works which that justification produces. Such works are the result and not the cause of God’s accepting the sinner.

Let the Children Come

15 “And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

16 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, “Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.”

17 “Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter therein.

A Ruler’s Love of Money

18 “And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good ¹Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save ^aone, that is, God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, “Do not commit adultery, Do not ¹kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, ^bHonour thy father and thy mother.

21 And he said, All ^athese have I kept from my youth up.

22 Now when Jesus heard these things, he said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: “sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me.”

23 And when he heard this, he was very sorrowful: for he was very rich.

24 And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, “How ¹hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

Jesus’ Coming Death

31 ^aThen he took unto him the twelve, and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things ^bthat are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be ¹accomplished.

32 For ^ahe shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and ¹spitefully entreated, and spit-ted on:

34 ^aAnd they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.

Jesus Heals a Blind Man

35 ^aAnd it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way side begging:

18:15. Touch here means blessing by laying on hands. Few of history’s religious leaders have shown much concern for children. Jesus, however, breaks this tradition.

18:16. Children are highly receptive and incapable of having produced good works to merit heaven. Jesus implies that to such, who are open to His teaching and do not depend on their own presumed goodness, belongs the kingdom of God.

18:17. Verily is the amen of authoritative pronouncement. It presupposes Jesus’ right to state who will and who will not be granted entrance into the kingdom. See John 14:6.

18:18–30. See Matthew 19:16–29; Mark 10:17–30; and the notes on these passages.

18:31–34. Jesus further prepares the Twelve for what awaits. He stresses the Old Testament’s predictive role in authenticating what lies before. Here see also 24:25, 27, 32, 44.

18:32. On mocked, see 22:63; 23:11, 36. Spitefully entreated in Luke appears elsewhere only at 20:11.

18:33. On scourge, see Mark 15:15.

18:34. Until the Resurrection, much of Jesus’ teaching was not well understood. Perhaps the disciples thought Jesus’ death was somehow figurative. (See 17:33.) Was hid may imply a divine veiling until an appointed time. See 24:16, 31.

18:35–43. See Matthew 20:29–34; Mark 10:46–52; and the notes on these passages.

40 And Jesus ¹stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and when he was come near, he asked him,

Jesus' Encounter with Zacchaeus

19 And Jesus entered and passed through ^aJericho.

2 And, behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus, which was ¹the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

3 And he sought to ^asee Jesus who he was; and could not ¹for the press, because he was ²little of stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him: for he was to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchaeus, *1*make haste, and come down; for to day I must ²abide at thy house.

6 And he ¹made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

7 And when they saw it, they all ¹murmured, saying, ^aThat he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.

18:38. Somehow the beggar is aware of Jesus' ability to heal. By this stage of Jesus' ministry His reputation must have been quite widespread. On Son of David in Luke, see 1:27, 32; 3:31; 20:41. It was clearly a messianic title.

18:39. As in verse 15, some try to hinder those regarded as merely troublesome from coming to Jesus. But the cry is one of desperation and faith, a combination Jesus never fails to hear.

18:40. Stood, that is, He came to a halt. Jesus' command serves also to rebuke those who lacked compassion for the beggar. In the midst of the attempt to hear Jesus, one must take care not to be insensitive to the plight of others.

18:43. After physical and spiritual healing, the man follows Jesus, which perhaps implies that he became a committed disciple. He and the people give praise to God, but Jesus approaches a time when His works will rather be despised (19:47; 22:2; 23:10, 13ff.).

19:2. Zacchaeus' name indicates he was Jewish. (See also v. 9.) As a chief tax collector, and a rich one, he would not have been very ethical in his business practices.

19:3. Perhaps Jesus' reputation as a Friend even of publicans had reached Zacchaeus.

19:4. This is not an American or European sycamore, but one of the mulberry family. They were often planted close to roadsides and were low, spreading trees, easy to climb.

19:5. This would seem to be an example of Jesus exercising supernatural knowledge. The must in Luke's usage implies that it is part of God's plan for Jesus, and for Zacchaeus, that this appointment should take place.

19:6. Zacchaeus' joy could stem from Jesus' sheer willingness to dine with him. Table fellowship was a sign of a certain amount of mutual acceptance (which is why the Pharisees would not eat with publicans).

19:7. For similar responses see 5:30; 15:2.

19:1 Jericho, or the area in its immediate vicinity, is the site of a number of successive ancient cities receiving mention in the Old and New Testaments. The New Testament site is south of the remains marking the location of the famous walled fortress besieged by Joshua (Josh. 6), and both are one mile west of the modern-day Arab town. Jericho is 17 miles northeast of Jerusalem and 10 miles northwest of the Dead Sea. Though situated in the Jordan Valley, it lies very near the Judean mountains. The area provides the main ford for crossing the lower Jordan and contains a good passage into the Judean mountains. The profuse spring at Jericho has made it an attractive site for many centuries. The New Testament site was developed when Herod the Great built a splendid winter palace there. The New Testament records only two events as occurring at Jericho: the conversion of Zacchaeus (vv. 1–10) and the healing of two blind men, one being Bartimeus (Matt. 20:29–34; Mark 10:46–52; Luke 18:35–43). Though the three gospel accounts are somewhat different, they describe the same event. All relate the healing of the more notable of the two men—Bartimeus. The conflict as to whether this happened as Jesus was entering Jericho (Mark 10; Luke 18) or leaving (Matt. 20) can be resolved several ways. First, the healing may have occurred as Jesus left the old city and was approaching the new. Or, second, the blind men may have approached Jesus as He was entering Jericho but were not healed until He was leaving.

8 And Zacchaeus stood, and said unto the Lord; Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the ^apoor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by ^bfalse accusation, ^cI restore him fourfold.

9 And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as ^ahe also is ^ba son of Abraham.

12 “He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

13 And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten ¹pounds, and said unto them, ²Occupy till I come.

14 “But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15 And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the first, saying,

Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he said unto him, “Well,¹ thou good servant: because thou hast been ^bfaithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities.

20 And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a ¹napkin:

21 “For I feared thee, because thou art ¹an austere man: ²thou takest up ³that thou layedst not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

25 (And they said unto him, “Lord, he hath ten pounds.)

26 For I say unto you, “That unto every one which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

19:8. Zacchaeus’s confession reveals a penitent heart. If does not suggest doubt that he is guilty of wrongdoing; the only question is to what extent. Leviticus 6:1–5 stipulated that illegally gained money had to be returned, plus one-fifth. A fourfold return was legislated where livestock were concerned (Ex. 22:1; 2 Sam. 12:6).

19:9. This house may refer just to the house of Zacchaeus. But see Acts 10:2; 11:14; 16:15, 31; 18:8.

19:10. The words seek, save, and lost all appear elsewhere in Scripture in a shepherd context. This verse may be taken as a kernel statement of the central theme of Luke: Jesus is the compassionate, searching Herdsman who seeks to save those who can by no means save themselves.

19:11–27. There are notable differences with the similar parable of Matthew 25:14–30. Likely Jesus told two parables using a similar theme. Here Jesus’ point, as He approaches Jerusalem and suspense builds, is to keep His followers from expecting too much too soon. Many of the citizens, the Jews, will not acknowledge the nobleman, Jesus, as their Master. And there will be a period when servants will have opportunity to demonstrate their faithfulness and resourcefulness. Jesus by this instruction braces the disciples for some of the jolts and challenges just ahead—some of which are no less pressing today.

19:13. Occupy means “do business,” “trade.” This is a word used only by Luke.

19:14. Luke’s readers would understand that Jewish rejection of Jesus is implied.

19:20. The napkin was a cloth for protecting the head and neck from the sun, or a facecloth similar to our handkerchief.

19:21. The details about the master are part of the story and should not be allegorized to apply to God or Christ.

19:26. See also 8:18; Matthew 13:12; Mark 4:25.

27 But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

The Entry into Jerusalem

28 And when he had thus spoken, ^ahe went ¹before, ascending up to Jerusalem.

29 ^aAnd it came to pass, when he was come nigh to Bethphage and ^bBethany, at the mount called ¹the ^cmount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, 31 And if any man ask you, Why do ye loose him? thus shall ye say unto him, Because the Lord hath need of him.

32 And they that were sent went their way, and found even ^aas he had said unto them.

33 And as they were loosing the colt, the owners thereof said unto them, Why loose ye the colt?

34 And they said, The Lord hath need of him.

35 And they brought him to Jesus: ^aand they ¹cast their garments upon the colt, and they set Jesus thereon.

39 And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, ¹Master, rebuke thy disciples.

40 And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should ¹hold their peace, ^athe stones would immediately cry out.

41 And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and ^awept over it, 19:27. Jesus refers to the malcontents of verse 14. The severity of the image (see also 1 Sam. 15:33; Rev. 14:10) would impress those who heard Jesus, but opposed Him, of the danger in which they stood.

19:28-40. This is the Triumphant Entry. See Matthew 21:1-9; Mark 11:1-10; and the notes on these passages.

19:35. See also John 12:12-15.

19:38. The crowd's acclamation resembles that of the angels (2:14). The thought is of the Messiah's somehow manifesting God's glory on earth. In a few days some of the same populace would be demanding Jesus' execution (23:1, 21).

19:39, 40. Such a tumult might bring Roman troops into action; and in any event the Pharisees did not want to see Jesus proclaimed king. Jesus' response may refer to a proverb. See Habakkuk 2:11.

19:41-44. Jesus laments over Jerusalem. He was not fooled by the ardor of the welcoming mob. The picture is one of Jesus being overcome with emotion following the months or years of preparation for a ministry whose terrible climax would take place here.

19:42. This thy day: There is still time to repent, but Jesus knows that comparatively few will make use of it. Peace is another way of expressing what "salvation" implies. The city that for so long has rejected God's messengers (11:50, 51; 13:34) is no longer capable of discerning its redemptive last chance.

19:43, 44. Jesus sketches a brutal siege and conquest; there can be no doubt that the Roman assault of A.D. 70 is in view. Lay thee even with the ground: The verb used combines the ideas of destruction of a city (Is. 3:26) and of dashing infants against rocks (Ps. 137:9). Visitation in Scripture refers to God's coming, whether to bless or to judge. Here Jesus comes, and His whole life has been and continues to be one of extending God's grace and blessing. But His visitation for a good purpose, now unrecognized and finally rejected, will become the basis for judgment.

19:45, 46. See Matthew 21:12-16; Mark 11:15-17; and the notes on these passages.

Jesus’ Authority Questioned

20 And ^ait came to pass, that on one of those days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the gospel, the chief priests and the scribes came upon him with the elders,

2 And spake unto him, saying, Tell us, ^aby what authority doest thou these things? or who is he that gave thee this authority?

3 And he answered and said unto them, I will also ask you one thing; and answer me:

4 The ^abaptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say, Why then believed ye him not?

6 But and if we say, Of men; all the people will stone us: ^afor they be persuaded that John was a prophet.

7 And they answered, that they could not tell whence it was.

8 And Jesus said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

The Lord of the Vineyard

9 Then began he to speak to the people this parable; “A certain man planted a vineyard, and ¹let it forth to ²husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time.

10 And at ¹the season he ^asent a servant to the ²husbandmen, that they should give him ³of the fruit of the vineyard: but the ²husbandmen beat him, and sent him away ⁴empty.

11 And again he sent another servant: and they beat him also, and ¹entreated him shamefully, and sent him away ²empty.

12 And again he sent a third: and they wounded him also, and cast him out.

13 Then said the lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: it may be they will ¹revere him when they see him.

14 But when the ¹husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the ^aheir: come, ^blet us kill him, that the inheritance may be ^cours.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and ^akilled him. What therefore shall the ¹lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these ¹husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to ^aothers. And when they heard it, they said, ²God forbid.

17 And he beheld them, and said, What is this then that is written, ^a“The stone which the builders rejected,

19:47, 48. The chief of the people were prominent citizens, in addition to Jesus’ other numerous enemies. They have already decided to seize him. But the right time must be found to avoid mob response, since Jesus’ followers exceeded His opponents in number.

20:1–8. Jesus’ teaching and proclamation of the gospel is interrupted by those seeking to challenge and discredit Him. Jesus remains firmly in control, even strengthening His position as opponents seek to undermine it. See Matthew 21:23–27; Mark 11:27–33; and the notes on these passages.

20:9–18. See Matthew 21:33–46; Mark 12:1–12; and the notes on these passages. Jesus’ story has Isaiah 5:1–7 as its basis. Jesus sets out allegorically how things stand between Himself and the Jewish leaders. See verse 19.

20:9. Husbandmen were tenant farmers.

20:10–12. The owner seeks to collect his share of the estate’s proceeds. The tenants rebuff the messengers. Yet the owner shows forbearance in giving repeated second chances.

20:13. Jesus is picturing a God who goes the second mile to give opportunity for repentance (2 Pet. 3:9). See God’s words to Jesus in 3:22.

20:14. They think they can somehow get away with their stubborn wickedness. Jesus, in veiled terms, is also predicting His death.

20:15, 16. Such rebellion must be punished, and the owner’s patience is equaled or exceeded by His thirst for justice. The wrongdoers receive their reward. The horrified response of the listeners likely stems from the shock of Jesus’ strong hint that the Jews, or their leaders, have so conducted themselves and are now standing at the brink of reaping the consequences.

20:17. Jesus bolsters His point by asking, in effect, “What else does the Scripture say at Psalm 118:22?” Men, even among God’s chosen people, may reject Him. But God’s plan will succeed, whether with or in spite of them.

Children of the Resurrection

27 ^aThen came to him certain of the Sadducees, ^bwhich deny that there is any resurrection; and they asked him,

28 Saying, ¹Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up ²seed unto his brother.

29 There were therefore seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also: and they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore in the resurrection whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering said unto them, The ¹children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they which shall be ^aaccounted worthy to obtain that ¹world,

20:18. See Isaiah 8:14, 15; Daniel 2:34, 35.

20:19. There can be no doubt as to the application of Jesus' story. His detractors fume, while a sizable group evidently supports Him.

20:20-26. See Matthew 22:15-22; Mark 12:13-17; and the notes on these passages. The officials hatch a plot whereby certain ones will pretend to be upright, honest seekers. In reality they are trying to get Jesus to incriminate Himself, so they will have firm legal grounds to arrest Him.

20:21. Note the attempt to disarm by flattery (Prov. 29:5).

20:23. By their craftiness we see their willingness to stoop as low as needed to achieve their goal.

20:26. Luke again stresses that the officials were thwarted, but that the common people were on Jesus' side.

20:27-40. See Matthew 22:23-33; Mark 12:18-27; and the notes on these passages. This forms the climax of Luke's presentation of Jesus in dispute. Hereafter He will have cleared the field for His teaching, until the time for His arrest.

20:28. See Deuteronomy 25:5-10. The Sadducees are going to try to use a farfetched case to ridicule belief in the resurrection, which they rejected (see also Acts 23:8) but which Jesus, with Old Testament support, clearly taught.

20:34. Jesus starts by affirming the present state of affairs.

20:35, 36. For Christians, the life to come will be something incomprehensibly superior to the present one. Jesus speaks of a resurrection from the dead; this is not the general resurrection "of" the dead but the redemption to fullness of life from the dead for those who died in Christ. The fellowship of marriage, as high an ideal as this is in Scripture, will be superseded by the depth and diversity of new life in the presence of God. Death will be a thing of the past. People will be equal unto the angels in the sense that they are incapable of ever again experiencing death. Life will certainly not be reduced to some level beneath that of marriage. Rather, all will be taken up into the fuller life of God’s eternal family. The emotional intimacy and affection of heart, now restricted only to one’s spouse, will be lawfully experienced with all citizens of heaven.

20:22. Tiberius Caesar was the ruling Roman emperor during Jesus' years of ministry. Simply referred to as "Caesar" in the Gospels, he ruled from A.D. 14-37. The city of Tiberius on the Sea of Galilee (see John 6:1) was named for him and built in his honor by Herod Antipas, the son of Herod the Great. Tiberius was the Caesar who appointed Pontius Pilate governor of Judea. In the incident of the question about paying taxes to Rome, the coin Jesus requested would have been the silver denarius which was inscribed with both the image and name of Tiberius "son of the Divine Augustus."

20:37. At the bush: See Exodus 3:6.

20:38. Hundreds of years had passed since Abraham’s death when God said to Moses, “I am [present tense] the God of Abraham.” All men of all time are alive to God; their present and eternal state is subject to His will and jurisdiction.

20:41–44. See Matthew 22:41–45; Mark 12:35–37; and the notes on these passages. Jesus’ question involves the interpretation of Psalm 110:1. The problem is, how can the Messiah—who everyone agreed was to be a descendant of David—also be addressed by David as “my Lord”? Jesus’ answer would take on full clarity for His listeners only after the Resurrection. But the idea is that the expected Davidic descendant would at the same time be an exalted figure whose person would comprise a fusion of both natural-human and supernatural-divine characteristics. Jesus, David’s Son (3:23–38), is Lord, not only of David (whose prophecy uncannily noted the fact) but of all people.

20:45–47. See Matthew 23:1–7; Mark 12:38–40; and the notes on these passages. Consider the similar criticisms by Jesus in 11:37–54. Following Jesus’ rejections of the theologies of various leading religious groups (vv. 19–44), He now warns against their way of life. Is this a hint that false theology contributes to bankrupt behavior?

21:1–4. See Mark 12:41–44 and the notes.

21:4. Penury means “poverty.” In amount this poor widow gave far less than did the rich men. But proportionately she contributed more than they. Because she gave all her money and the wealthy gave only a small part of theirs, her contribution was greater than theirs. Jesus commends sacrificial giving while disparaging the hypocritical posture that affects to give but does so painlessly. The Son of David here reflects knowledge of a principle voiced centuries earlier by David himself. See 2 Samuel 24:24.

21:5–38. See Matthew 24; Mark 13; and the notes on these passages.

21:5–7. Goodly stones: One ancient authority put the size of some of them at over 60 feet in length. Jesus’ allegation that such a noble and unusually large edifice would fall, quite naturally provokes a desire for further details. Jesus’ answer will deal with two related but separate issues: the ultimate judgment

7 And they asked him, saying, ¹Master, but when shall these things be? and what sign will there be when these things shall come to pass?

Deceivers, Wars, and Disasters

8 And he said, ^aTake heed that ye be not deceived: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them.

9 But when ye shall hear of ^awars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end ¹is not by and by.

Take Heed and Watch

20 ^aAnd when ye shall see Jerusalem ¹compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is ²nigh.

21 Then let them which are in Judaea flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them that are in the ¹countries enter thereinto.

22 For these be the days of vengeance, that ^aall things which are written may be fulfilled.

23 ^aBut woe unto them that are ¹with child, and to them that ²give suck, in those days! for there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people.

24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations: and Jerusalem shall be ¹trodden down of the Gentiles, ^auntil the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

25 ^aAnd there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of attended by the return of the Son of Man (v. 27), and the more immediate destruction of Jerusalem (v. 20). From the disciples' point of view, both events were future, and there is overlap in Jesus' warnings with respect to each. Diligence in Christian living is especially commended, a daily close walk with, and trust in, the Lord whose reign extends over all apparent calamities, and who is able to deliver in the midst of the worst circumstances.

21:20-24. Here Luke plainly refers not to the final end-time but to the fall of Jerusalem. One ancient source claims that 1.1 million people were slaughtered during the siege that climaxed in A.D. 70. This is probably an inflated figure, but undoubtedly the loss of life was staggering. Jesus' early warning (v. 21) of this calamity enabled a number of Christians to flee from Jerusalem to Pella before it was too late.

THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES

21:24. This is that period beginning with the Babylonian captivity and ending with the defeat of the Gentile world alliance when Christ returns in glory at the Battle of Armageddon. Until that time, the city of Jerusalem will be "trodden down of the Gentiles" (v.24). Illustration: Paul reminds the Romans that God's primary plan is for His promised people (Gen. 12:1-3) and calls Israel the natural olive branches. But he says that God turned his attention to the Gentiles and "grafted in wild olive branches" (Rom. 11:15-26). Application: God's willingness to allow Israel, with which He so closely identifies in the Old Testament and in the future kingdom age, to be so mistreated should remind the Christian that no one is exempt from the consequences of rejecting God's plan. (First Reference, Hos. 3:4; Primary Reference, Rom. 11:15-26.)

nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring;

26 Men's hearts failing them ¹for fear, and ²for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: ^afor the powers of heaven shall be shaken.

Judas Agrees to Betray Jesus

22 Now ^athe feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover.

2 And ^athe chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people.

3 ^aThen entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the ^btwelve.

4 And he went his way, and ¹communicated with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them.

5 And they were glad, and ^acovenanted ¹to give him money.

6 And he promised, and sought opportunity to ^abetray him unto them in the absence of the multitude.

Passover Preparations

7 ^aThen came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be ¹killed.

8 And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat.

9 And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?

10 And he said unto them, Behold, when ye are entered into the city, there shall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth in.

11 And ye shall say unto the ¹goodman of the house, The ²Master saith unto thee, Where is the guest-chamber, where I shall eat the pass-over with my disciples?

21:34-38. These verses are unique to Luke.
21:34. Surfeiting means "to indulge one's appetites excessively." No believer is beyond the temptation to fall into sin. Jesus warns against slackness and lack of daily readiness in the Christian walk.

21:36. Prayer is the better part of valor when persevering for Christ under pressure. Prayer alone will enable one to stand before the returning Son of Man, when those all around are falling, whether in condemnation before Christ or to the temptation to deny Christ under the trials of the hour. The admonition to pray ... to escape what is coming is probably a reference to the rapture of believers (1 Thes. 4:13-17).

22:1-6. The plot to silence Jesus gains momentum with the aid of a turncoat. See Matthew 26:2-5; Mark 14:1, 2; and the notes on these passages.

22:6. In the absence of the multitude: Due to Jesus' popular following it was feared that an arrest in broad daylight would provoke a riot.

22:7-13. See Matthew 26:17-20; Mark 14:12-17; and the notes on these passages.

14 ^aAnd when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him.

15 And he said unto them, ¹With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer:

17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves:

18 For ^aI say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come.

19 ^aAnd he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my ^bbody which is given for you: ^cthis do in remembrance of me.

20 Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, ^aThis cup is the new ¹testament in my blood, which is shed for you.

22:25–27. See Matthew 20:25–28; Mark 10:42–45; and the notes on these passages.

22:25. Benefactors: The underlying Greek word appears nowhere else in the New Testament. Middle-Eastern kings liked to rule with an iron hand, and then take on a title that extolled their benevolence. Christians should crave neither such power nor such acclaim.

22:28. The disciples have stuck with Jesus, if not always with perfect understanding, still when others have fallen away. See John 6:66.

22:29, 30. The disciples' diligence will not go unrewarded. See Matthew 19:28.

22:31–34. Jesus predicts Peter's denial but also his repentance (v. 32; art converted means "have come back to your former firm stand").

22:33. See 1 Corinthians 10:12.

22:36. But now sets up a strong contrast with the preceding verse (which refers to 10:4). The conditions that existed during Jesus’ earthly days will not always be the norm during the time of the church.

22:37. See Isaiah 53:12. Jesus is seeking to strengthen them for the bewildering and dangerous time just ahead.

22:38. Jesus’ “sword saying” (only in Luke; see v. 36) results in a quick taking of inventory. Two swords are found, and when one comes into literal use Jesus undoes its harm (vv. 50, 51). He is not counseling readiness for armed rebellion. Rather, He is stressing the peril they face and the courage they need to muster for the crisis just ahead. It is enough is a dismissal of their overliteral response. Jesus’ admonition sought to sting them into alertness, not institute violence as a means of following Jesus.

22:39. As he was wont (as was His custom): Evidently Jesus had been making it a habit in the closing week to withdraw for prayer.

22:40–46. See Matthew 26:36–46; Mark 13:32–42; and the notes on these passages.

22:43, 44. Only Luke notes this. Jesus is borne up in His hour of greatest need, when He must intercede not only for Himself but for His followers, who are about to leave Him in the lurch. Agony appears only here in the New Testament; it points to the intensity of Jesus’ struggle. Surely Jesus wrestles, not so much with death itself, but with His own destiny to be made the sin-bearer for all mankind for all the ages. The punishment that had to be borne for our sins brings Jesus to His knees in anguish.

22:47–53. See Matthew 26:47–56; Mark 14:43–49; and the notes on these passages.

22:51. Suffer ye thus far is an ambiguous statement. Perhaps it should be translated, “Stop! No more of this!” He may be discouraging further violence by saying, “Let events now take their course.”

22:54-62. This is Peter's denial. See Matthew 26:69-75; Mark 14:66-72; and the notes on these passages.

22:63-65. Jesus endures the violence of the soldiers, whose contempt is clear.

22:66-71. This is the trial before the Sanhedrin, the Jewish supreme court.

22:68. Jesus had already made His messianic claims evident, especially by way of hard questions to those who now were judging Him. They always evaded His questions, and Jesus knows things would be no different now.

22:69-71. Jesus is condemned for blasphemy, that is, for supposedly elevating Himself to divine status.

23:1. The Jewish Sanhedrin could pronounce a verdict on a religious offense. But in most cases, and this was one of them, only the Roman governor could pronounce a death sentence.

23:2. Pilate would not be impressed by a charge of blasphemy against their God. So they try to show that Jesus is guilty of political crime against Rome.

23:5. The enemies become desperate. Mention of Galilee probably causes Pilate to send Jesus off to Herod (v. 7), whose jurisdiction extended over that lake district.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilaean.

Jesus Sent to Herod

7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto “Herod’s jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

8 And when Herod saw Jesus, ^ahe was exceeding glad: for he ¹was desirous to see him ²of a long season, because ^bhe had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

10 And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused him.

11 ^aAnd Herod with his men of war ¹set him at nought, and mocked him, and ²arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate.

12 And the same day ^aPilate and Herod ¹were made friends together: for before they were at enmity between themselves.

18 And ^athey cried out all at once, saying, Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas:

20 Pilate therefore, willing to release Jesus, spake again to them.

21 But they cried, saying, Crucify him, crucify him.

22 And he said unto them the third time, Why, what evil hath he done? I have found no ¹cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and let him go.

23:8. In God’s eyes Herod’s interest represents a yen for the sensational, a curiosity for the unusual. This is not the kind of person to whom Jesus reveals Himself in a saving way. See the next verse.

23:11, 12. Only Luke records this specific information. Herod may have concluded that Pilate was playing a joke on him in referring so trivial a case. On their new friendship see also Acts 4:27.

23:16. Despite the efforts of Jesus’ detractors (vv. 1, 2, 5, 10), Pilate finds Jesus innocent of any capital political offense.

23:17. See Mark 15:6. To curry favor with his constituency, it seems that Pilate would pardon a condemned criminal during the Passover festival. Jesus should have been released in any case; He had been acquitted and deserved freedom. Yet the Jews were calling for His conviction. Pilate observes the custom of the occasion as a way out of his dilemma.

23:22. Jesus’ legal innocence is beyond doubt.

23:23, 24. Instant means “insistent.” A riot is brewing. Pilate’s decision is pragmatic—better one dead unjustly than the whole city racked with dissent and violence—which would in the end also do Pilate’s political fortunes no good.

23:26. Customarily a condemned man carried his own cross (or at least the cross bar); evidently Jesus was physically exhausted after the long and bitter night He had endured.

23:27–31. These verses are unique to Luke. Not everyone in Jerusalem opposed Jesus; He was sentenced by the efforts of the well-organized, insistent, vocal few. The incident shows Jesus’ continued compassion for His followers. He ministers to them, which also bewailed and lamented him.

seeking to prepare them for coming days, at the peak of His own hour of need.

23:30. Jesus speaks of a final day of wrath. See Hosea 10:8 and Revelation 6:16.

23:31. Several interpretations have been proposed, among them the suggestion that if the innocent Jesus meets such an end, what level of horror is apt to befall on the day when Jesus' accusers are judged?

23:33–43. Jesus is crucified. See Matthew 27:33–44;

Mark 15:22–32; and the notes on these passages.

23:40–43. Only Luke gives this information. One of the thieves apparently had a change of heart and, with his faltering understanding, casts himself on Jesus' mercy. He is amply rewarded (v. 43). He seeks eternal life in the hereafter, but receives the assurance of everlasting blessing, starting that very day.

23:44–49. See Matthew 27:45–56; Mark 15:33–41; and the notes on these passages.

23:33 Calvary is derived from the Latin word for “skull.” In the account of Jesus' crucifixion, Luke alone does not use the Aramaic word for skull, “Golgotha,” but only the Greek translation, kranion. The translators of the King James Version used the Latin term which was familiar to them. In any case, Calvary, or Golgotha as the New Testament more commonly has it, is the name of the execution site just outside the walls of Jerusalem (John 19:20; cf. Heb. 13:12, 13) yet in a location easily observable (Mark 15:40). The naming of this site as the “Place of the Skull” can be explained several ways: (1) Many skulls were found there. (2) It was a place of execution. (3) The site in some way resembled a skull. Two sites are presently regarded as the possible original locations of Golgotha: (1) a mound under the Church of the Holy Sepulcher and (2) a site known as the Garden Tomb or Gordon's Calvary. Both sites were outside the first-century walls. The first has the support of church tradition from the fourth century on. The second resembles a skull. Although both lack conclusive confirmation, most scholars favor the former as the authentic location of Calvary.

The Resurrection of Jesus

24 Now ^aupon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the ¹sepulchre, ^bbringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

2 ^aAnd they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.

3 ^aAnd they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

4 And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed ¹thereabout, ^abehold, two men stood by them in shining garments:

5 And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead?

8 And ^athey remembered his words,

9 ^aAnd returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest.

10 It was Mary Magdalene, and ^aJoanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told these things unto the apostles.

11 ^aAnd their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

12 ^aThen arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulchre; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes

23:48. Smote their breasts is an expression of abject misery. See 18:13.

23:50-56. This is Jesus' burial. See Matthew 27:57-61; Mark 15:42-47; John 19:38-42; and the notes on these passages.

23:50. A counsellor was a member of the Jewish council, or Sanhedrin.

23:51. Clearly, one man, at least, had refused to go along with the lynch-mob movement against Jesus. Now Joseph's refusal to condemn Jesus blossoms into a willingness to be associated with Him publicly by asking for His body—not a safe action in such a volatile atmosphere. Jesus' own disciples, for example, apparently could not muster the courage to step forward in this way.

23:54. It was Friday, and late in the day, with the sabbath beginning at sundown. Jesus had to be laid to rest in haste (v. 55), and final care of the body would have to await the Sabbath's end (v. 56).

24:1-12. See Matthew 28:1-8; Mark 16:1-8; John 20:1-8; and the notes on these passages.

24:8. Jesus had foretold His death and resurrection at 9:22; 17:25; and 18:32, 33.

24:11. Some today imagine that early Christians were gullible religionists, ready to believe anything. This is not the picture given here, but rather one of hardened and skeptical men who with their own eyes or ears knew of Jesus' decease—and had no illusions about a fanciful tale that a dead man suddenly now lived.

24:12. This action by Peter seems to be referred to in verse 24. Peter does not yet necessarily believe in the Resurrection. He has merely gone from confirmed skepticism to bewilderment. Sometimes profound uncertainty precedes life-changing faith.

24:13–35. The Emmaus Road incident is a priceless account that only Luke records.

24:13. Today the exact location of Emmaus is uncertain. Luke gives its distance from Jerusalem as about seven miles.

24:16. In a number of Jesus' appearances He was not recognized at first (Matt. 28:17; John 20:14; 21:4).

24:18. Whether this is the Cleopas of John 19:25 (Cleophas) cannot be decided with final certainty. Apparently, there were few in Jerusalem who were not familiar with the details of Jesus' death.

24:21. Jesus was widely held to be a prophet (v. 19), but these disciples had pinned their full hope on Him as the promised Redeemer of Israel. With Jesus now dead for three days, their confidence in Him was being seriously tried.

24:22–24. Whatever the reason for the empty tomb, the net result remained: Him they saw not. Profound sadness gripped these pilgrims. See verse 17.

24:26. Ought (Gr. dei) bespeaks a divine necessity; what the prophets had foretold (see Is. 53; Ps. 16; 22) must and did come to pass. The disciples had been ready to see in Jesus a glorious deliverer, but Jesus' rebuke (v. 25) relates to their unwillingness to take seriously the many Old Testament texts that speak not only of the Messiah's glory, but also of His suffering.

24:27. The entire Old Testament is indispensable for a grounded grasp of the identity and significance of Jesus.

24:28, 29. Apparently Jesus would have kept on walking. But at the invitation and insistence of the disciples, who still do not recognize Him, He stops for the day with them. Night travel on the unlit byways of Palestine would not have been common.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight.

32 And they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?

33 And they rose up the same hour, and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, The Lord is risen indeed, and ^ahath appeared to Simon.

35 And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

The Scriptures Fulfilled

44 And he said unto them, These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms, concerning me.

45 Then ^aopened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures,

46 And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it ^bbehoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day:

47 And that repentance and ^aremission of sins should be preached in his name ^bamong all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

48 And ^aye are witnesses of these things.

49 And, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but ¹tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.

24:31. Why they should have recognized Him finally just at this point is not clear. Perhaps God just opened their eyes to give true sight to their hearts.

24:32. On reflection the pieces fall into place. Jesus makes the scriptures come alive; the Scriptures find their most central application in pointing men to Jesus.

24:33. They had recently stopped for the night. Now the threat of darkness is immaterial. They hasten back to tell the others. But the eleven had great news for them (v. 34).

24:35. They were the two from the Emmaus Road.

24:37. Again one notes the reluctance of the disciples to accept that Jesus could actually be alive following crucifixion. It is one thing to hear and compare reports (vv. 33-35); it is quite another to have the form of one known to be dead appear in the midst of a group convened behind locked doors.

24:38-43. Jesus allays their fears, deals with their doubts, and makes His bodily (not merely spiritual) presence unmistakable. The New Testament stresses that Jesus arose and appeared in bodily form: He retained His scars, He could be touched, and He ate.

24:44-48. Having dealt with their fear, doubt, and uncertainty, Jesus proceeds to instruct them. He recalls yet again that all He has undergone is according to the scriptures, a vital point for Jewish disciples, for whom the Old Testament was the unquestioned expression of God's mind and will. The law, prophets, and psalms comprise the threefold Jewish division of the whole of the Old Testament.

24:45. It cannot be overstressed that knowledge of Jesus Christ is inseparably related to knowledge of the Scriptures.

24:47. From the start, a relationship to Christ carries with it the privilege and responsibility to proclaim the gospel. Repentance is the first step, apparently, in receiving the message aright. The preaching was to start in Jerusalem, but also to extend to all nations.

24:48. Those who are personally aware of Jesus' identity and saving power are entrusted with the mandate of world evangelization.

24:49. Here is the source of strength for effective evangelism. The promise of my Father stresses that the Spirit's coming is not an afterthought, but an integral part of God's eternal will. Endued conveys the picture of one being clothed with God's enablement. Waiting is part of necessary preparation for reception of God's guidance and sanction.

Jesus' Ascension

50 And he led them out ^aas far as to Bethany, and he lifted up his hands, and blessed them.

51 ^aAnd it came to pass, while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

24:50 ^a Matt. 21:17; Acts 1:12
24:51 ^a Ps. 68:18; 110:1; Mark 16:19; Acts 1:9-11

24:52 ^a Matt. 28:9
24:53 ^a Acts 2:46

52 ^aAnd they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy:

53 And were continually ^ain the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

24:50-53. In his remarks on the Ascension, Luke compresses and summarizes what he expands and explains in Acts 1:1-11.

24:52. They worshipped him is one of the strongest arguments for Jesus' divinity, and one too seldom noted. These Jews, in a militantly monotheistic culture, accorded such praise and honor to One who was at the same time unmistakably and totally human.

Great joy: Doubtless many questions remained; but they knew Jesus was Lord over death and over all, and they knew the task He had given them.

24:53. Luke's gospel begins in the temple with Zacharias; it also ends in the temple with the first Christians glorifying God. This is Luke's own note of worship to the God who has brought about the events of sending and sustaining His Son.

The Gospel of John and the Other Gospels. John's gospel is noticeably distinct from the other three gospels. In attempting to explain the differences, we should note three factors. (1) Often a discourse follows an incident and discusses the implications of that incident. For example, Jesus' thirst at Jacob's well was followed by the discourse on living water (ch. 4), and the feeding of the five thousand was followed by the discourse on the Bread of Life (ch. 6). (2) In the other gospels the miracles are normally used to reveal Jesus' power. In John the miracles are usually teaching signs (2:11; 20:30), and a message follows each one. (3) John's purpose is unique, and consequently, so is his interpretation of the life of Jesus. The length of Jesus' public ministry is usually calculated from the Passovers mentioned in John's gospel (2:13; 6:4; 11:55). If the feast mentioned in 5:1 is also a Passover, His ministry lasted a little over three years; if not, it lasted a little over two years.

Authorship. Unlike Paul's epistles, the text of this gospel does not name its author. However, John's gospel was readily included in early collections of the New Testament canon. This means that it was believed to be written by a credible and accepted person, such as a disciple. Tradition (the testimony of early Christian writers) almost unanimously attributes it to John, the son of Zebedee. The text tells us that the "beloved disciple" is the author (21:20, 24)—so who is this "beloved disciple"? A process of elimination may reveal his identity. Surely he was one of the inner three disciples (Peter, James, John) who were with Jesus at the Transfiguration, the healing of Jairus's daughter, and in the Garden of Gethsemane. He is distinguished from Peter in 21:20 (cf. 13:23, 24); and since James was slain about A.D. 40 (Acts 12:2), long before this gospel was composed, this leaves only John as the "beloved disciple."

Date. Most Bible students agree that this gospel is the last of the four to be written, perhaps completed while John was at Ephesus about A.D. 85.

Purpose of the Writing. This is clearly stated in 20:30, 31, and there are three key words. (1) The word signs is used 17 times in John and is often translated "miracle." Throughout all the other gospels it appears only 28 times. These are teaching signs. (2) The word believe appears 98 times in John—and only 29 times in all the other gospels combined. Belief often results from "signs." (3) The word life is used 34 times in John (and only 13 times elsewhere in the gospels). The term is closely related to faith.

John's purpose is clearly evangelistic—that his readers may believe (20:31). Thus he records the confrontations of Jesus with Nicodemus, who is saved much later; the story of the woman at Jacob's well, who is saved on the first contact; and the miracle of the man born blind, saved on the second contact. But John also writes for believers, that they may be sanctified. He thus communicates three things—the promise of the Holy Spirit, the truth that Jesus is the True Vine, and Simon Peter's denial and restoration.

Content. A prominent feature of this gospel is its emphasis on the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus is twice called “God” (1:1; 20:28). He is called the “[only begotten] Son of God” 10 times (1:14, 18, 34, 49; 3:16, 18; 6:69; 9:35; 10:36; 11:27). He is equated with the Father four times (5:18; 10:30; 14:9; 16:27). John refers to God as “Father” 116 times, more than all the other gospels combined. Jesus always says “your Father,” “the Father,” or “My Father,” but never “Our Father.” This is because His relationship to the Father is unique. It is stated four times that He never sinned (8:46; 18:38; 19:4, 6). The classical attributes of deity are used to refer to Jesus’ omnipresence (1:18; 3:13), His omnipotence (5:21; 6:19; 10:18), and His omniscience (2:25; 11:11–14). He uses the expression “I am” (ego eimi) many times. He says “I am” the Messiah (4:25, 26); the Bread of Life (6:35, 41, 48, 51); the Light of the World (8:12; 9:5; 12:46); the Door (10:7, 9); the Good Shepherd (10:11, 14); the Resurrection and the Life (11:25); the Way, the Truth, and the Life (14:6); and the True Vine (15:1, 5). His two most remarkable statements are: “Before Abraham was, I am” (8:58), and simply—“I am” (18:5, 8; cf. Ex. 3:14).

John and Peter are closely related in this gospel (they are together in six passages). Of the two first disciples, one was probably John, while the other was Peter’s brother Andrew, who then brought Peter to Jesus (ch. 1). At the Last Supper Peter signals John to ask who the betrayer is, but John perceives the betrayer to be Judas (ch. 13). John brings Peter into the court of the High Priest, where Peter denies his Lord (ch. 18). Peter and John come to the sepulcher together. John “saw” and “believed,” but Peter rushes in (ch. 20). Later, in the fishing boat, John is the first to recognize Jesus. He watches while Peter jumps in the water. Finally, Peter asks Jesus what John would do (ch. 21). Philip and Andrew are also often together in this gospel (see chs. 1, 6, 12).

ness; and the darkness ¹comprehended it not.

6 There was a ^aman sent from God, whose name was John.

7 The same came for a ^awitness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might ^bbelieve.

8 He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that ^aLight.

1:1-18. The introduction to John occurs in two cycles of three points each—the message, the messenger, and the hearers. The key idea is the Word (Gr. logos). In the Old Testament, Creation was by the Word of God: “And God said, Let there be light” (Gen. 1:3; cf. 2 Pet. 3:5). The Scriptures are also called the Word of God (Acts 8:14).

1:1. The beginning (Gr. en archēi, lit., “in beginning”) with God signifies the perfect fellowship between God the Father and God the Son in eternity. The Word was God: Just as the previous expression (the Word was with God) emphasizes distinction in the Godhead, this phrase stresses the essential unity.

In the Greek text of this verse, God is a predicate adjective, appearing without article and preceding the Word, thus emphasizing Jesus' divinity. John could not have expressed the full divinity of Christ more completely.

1:3. Made by him: Compare with Colossians 1:16, and Hebrews 1:2.

1:4, 5. Life ... light: See also 8:12; 9:5; 11:25; 14:6. In John's writings, life represents salvation and deliverance through Christ, and light denotes Jesus' revelation of God which calls men to accountability.

1:6. John: This is John the Baptist (cf. vv. 19-34).

9 ^aThat was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and ^athe world knew him not.

11 ^aHe came unto ¹his own, and ²his own received him not.

12 But ^aas many as received him, to them gave he ¹power to become the ²sons of God, even to them that believe on his name:

13 ^aWhich were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

1:9. Lighteth every man means that God's revelation is universally available. It does not signify universal salvation (cf. v. 12; 3:18, 36).

1:10. Knew: The world did not acknowledge or recognize Him (v. 2) as the true Light.

1:11. Unto his own: He came to His own, that is, the world (cf. v. 10). His own received him not: His own people, the Jews, did not receive Him. Jesus was rejected by His own world in general, and by His own people in particular (cf. Is. 53:3; Luke 19:14).

1:12. Received him (lit., "take") emphasizes appropriating Jesus Christ, taking Him as Savior. Power literally means "authority." Even to them that believe is explanatory of receive. To believe on his name is the same as taking Him as Savior.

1:13. Born: This follows the thought in the previous verse of becoming a son of God. Born implies a birth, and verse 13 explains how it takes place (cf. 3:3–7). Blood is literally "bloods." One's family lineage or national heritage does not bring about the New Birth. But of God: The New Birth is not of human origin. Rather, it is spiritual and supernatural.

1:14. Made flesh indicates the incarnation of God the Son. The use of flesh contradicts the Gnostic heresy that God could not be united with human flesh, which was seen as evil. Dwelt among us: John uses the word for "tabernacled," here translated "dwelt." The Old Testament tabernacle was where God dwelt among the Jews in the wilderness. In this context, God is dwelling in the person of Jesus Christ. We beheld his glory: Perhaps John refers to the shekinah glory which appeared in the tabernacle of the Old Testament. The expression signifies the visible manifestation of God. John later uses glory to refer to Jesus' life (2:11), death, and resurrection (12:23).

1:15. After me: Jesus came into this world about six months after John (for human chronology, see Luke 1:56, 57). He was before me: Jesus existed in eternity, so had precedence over John in authority.

1:16, 17. Fulness (cf. Col. 1:19): Here the fullness looks back to verse 14, "full of grace and truth." Grace for grace means "grace heaped on grace." Grace is evident in the Old Testament (cf. Gen. 6:8; Ex. 34:6) but not in the fullness now experienced in Jesus Christ. Grace is God's unmerited favor toward sinners for their salvation (cf. Eph. 2:8, 9).

LOGOS

1:1. One of the most important titles of Christ is Logos ("Word"). The idea behind this title embodied God's revelation of Himself to humanity. Scholars debate whether John borrowed this term from the Greeks or the Jews. If the term is Greek, there may be numerous philosophical implications; if Hebrew, it may have referred to wisdom (Prov. 5–8) or the Law (Ex. 20). Probably Jesus is called "the Word of God" because the phrase occurs over 1,200 times in the Old Testament to refer to the message of God. Jesus is the expression and communication of the Word. He is both the incarnate and the inspired Word. Illustration: Satan is twice recorded in Scripture as tempting someone. On the first occasion he questioned the integrity of the Word of God (Gen. 3:1–5). On the second occasion he questioned the integrity of Christ, the Word of God incarnate (Matt. 4:3, 6). Those who question the validity of the Scriptures today similarly question the integrity of Christ. Application: Christians need to study the written Word of God to learn more about the incarnate Word of God. (First Reference, Gen. 15:1; Primary Reference, John 1:1.)

INCARNATION

1:14. The term incarnation refers here to the miracle of God the Son becoming human, yet remaining God. John summarizes this miracle with the expression "the Word was made flesh" (v. 14). The term Word is a title of deity used by John to describe Jesus. (See Logos, v. 1.) The term flesh speaks of Christ's humanity. (See Humanity of Christ, Luke 2:52.) Illustration: To deny either the deity or humanity of Christ is to deny the very nature of the God-man. Application: Even in New Testament times there were people with the spirit of antichrist who denied truths concerning the Lord (1 John 2:18). The Christian response to such individuals is complete separation (2 John 7–11). (First Reference, Gen. 3:15; Primary Reference, John 1:14; cf. Luke 1:27.)

17 For ^athe law was given by Moses, ^bbut grace and ^ctruth came by Jesus Christ.

18 ^aNo man hath seen God at any time; ^bthe only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him.

John's Denial That He Was the Christ

19 And this is ^athe ¹record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?

20 And ^ahe confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ.

21 And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou ^athat prophet? And he answered, No.

22 Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself?

23 He said, ^aI am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as ^bsaid the prophet Esaias.

24 And they which were sent were of the Pharisees.

25 And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

26 John answered them, saying, ^aI baptize with water: ^bbut there standeth one among you, whom ye know not;

Behold the Lamb of God

29 The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold ^athe Lamb of God, ^bwhich taketh away the sin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I said, After me cometh a man which ¹is preferred before me: for he was before me.

31 And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, ^atherefore am I come baptizing with water.

32 ^aAnd John bare ¹record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it ²abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, ^athe same is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost.

34 And I saw, and ¹bare record that this is the ^aSon of God.

Two of John's Disciples Follow Jesus

35 Again the next day after John stood, and two of his disciples;

1:18. No man hath seen God: That is, no one has ever seen God in all of His essence, since God is Spirit (4:24; 1 Tim. 6:16). Only begotten Son: Some manuscripts read "only begotten God." He hath declared him: Although no one has seen God in all of His essence, people have at least seen God in Jesus Christ (cf. 14:9).

1:19—2:11. Here the events of the first week are given: John testifies to the Sanhedrin (vv. 19–28); John testifies of his experience of baptizing Jesus (vv. 29–34); John testifies further and the first two disciples are called (vv. 35–39); Simon Peter comes to Christ (vv. 40–42); two more disciples, Philip and Nathanael, come to Christ (vv. 43–51); Jesus performs the first miracle (2:1–11).

1:21. Elias (Elijah): Malachi predicts the coming of Elijah in the last two verses of the Old Testament (Mal. 4:5, 6). But John says he is not Elijah in the way that the Jews think, that is, as inaugurator of the regime of the Jewish earthly kingdom. Contrast this with what Jesus says in Matthew 11:11–14 and 17:11–13. That prophet refers to the promise in Deuteronomy 18:15 of the Messiah's coming.

1:23. I am the voice: When asked who he is, John replies that who he is matters less than what he says. John underscores his message (cf. Is. 40:3).

1:25. Why baptizest thou: Baptism could only be performed by prophets, or other authorities. It was the rite of Gentile entrance into Judaism.

1:29. Lamb of God: The lamb was used for sacrifice in the Passover (Ex. 12) and the sin offering (Lev. 4). Some suggest that this may allude to the scapegoat (Lev. 16), or to the suffering servant (Is. 53:7).

1:31. The baptism of Jesus serves as a proof of His deity to John. The Holy Spirit came on Jesus and remained (cf. 3:34) to assist in His baptismal work. Before Jesus' baptism, John knew Him only as a good cousin, not as the Lamb of God. Not until he saw the Holy Spirit descending on Jesus did John realize that He was the Son of God (v. 34).

36 And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he saith, "Behold the Lamb of God!"

37 And the two disciples heard him speak, and they^a followed Jesus.

38 Then Jesus turned, and saw them following, and saith unto them, What seek ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, ¹Master,) where ²dwell-est thou?

39 He saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and ¹abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour.

40 One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was ^aAndrew, Simon Peter's brother.

41 He first findeth his own brother Simon, and saith unto him, We have found the Messias, which is, ¹being interpreted, the ²Christ.

42 And he brought him to Jesus.

The Calling of Philip and Nathanael

43 The day following Jesus ¹would go forth into Galilee, and findeth ^aPhilip, and saith unto him, Follow me.

44 Now ^aPhilip was of Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip findeth ^aNathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him, of whom ^bMoses in the law, and the ^cprophets, did write, Jesus ^dof Nazareth, the ^eson of Joseph.

46 And Nathanael said unto him, ^aCan there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip saith unto him, Come and see.

47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming

1:39. Tenth hour: This was ten o'clock in the morning. John used Roman time, not Jewish time as is used in the other gospels. See 19:14.

1:40. One of the two: The other disciple was probably John, the author of this gospel.

1:41, 42. Simon means "Hot-tempered, Volatile, and Violent." Cephas (Aramaic) means "Stable as a Rock." Petros (Greek) means "Rock."

1:44. Bethsaida was on the north coast of the Sea of Galilee where Philip, Andrew, Peter, James, and John worked as fishermen. The other gospels indicate Capernaum was another home of Andrew and Peter.

1:45. Nathanael may have been the disciple who is called Bartholomew elsewhere in the gospels.

1:40 Andrew was a native of Bethsaida on the shore of the Sea of Galilee (John 1:44), but during the ministry of Christ he, like his brother Simon Peter, worked as a fisherman out of Capernaum (Mark 1:21, 29). They worked as partners with James and John, the sons of Zebedee (Luke 5:10). Andrew is best known for his ministry of bringing men to Christ. When John the Baptist first proclaimed Jesus to be the Son of God, Andrew left John and at once found Simon. Then they both followed Jesus. When Greek proselytes sought Jesus, Andrew with Philip arranged the meeting (John 12:20–22). Though Andrew was present on the Day of Pentecost and involved in the ministry of the early church, nothing is known of his specific ministry. (First Reference, Matt. 4:18; Primary Reference, John 1.)

ANOINTED OFFICES OF CHRIST

1:41. In the Old Testament, men of God who were called for special service were initiated into three offices by an act of anointing. Each of these three offices finds its fulfillment in Christ. The titles Christ and Messiah literally mean "Anointed One." Illustration: As the Prophet, like Moses (Deut. 18:15), Jesus declared the most complete revelation of the Father (v. 18). As the faithful Priest (1 Sam. 2:35). He offered the ultimate sacrifice, the sacrifice of Himself (Heb. 9:14). As the King of Kings, He is not only in ultimate control now (Ps. 21:1), but will also reign a thousand years in His own kingdom (Rev. 20:1–6). Application: Because Jesus is our Prophet, Priest, and King, believers should heed what He says as a Prophet in the Scriptures, come in prayer to Him as to a Priest, and serve Him as their King. (First Reference, Ps. 2:2; Primary Reference, John 1:41; cf. Phil. 2:7.)

1:45 Nathanael was an early disciple of Jesus and possibly one of the Twelve. At the beginning of Jesus' ministry Philip brought Nathanael to Him. Both were Galileans: Nathanael from Cana, Philip from Bethsaida. Nathanael was skeptical about the Messiah coming from Nazareth, but when Jesus manifested His supernatural knowledge of Nathanael (v. 47, 48), he believed and followed Him. Nathanael is mentioned only in John's gospel (1:45–51; 21:2), but the following evidence supports his identification with Bartholomew: Nathanael is mentioned only in John's gospel, and Bartholomew is mentioned only in the listings of the Twelve in Acts and the synoptic Gospels (Matt. 10:3; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:14; Acts 1:13); Philip brought Nathanael to Jesus, and Bartholomew is listed together with Philip; finally, John associates Nathanael with the Twelve (21:2). It thus seems at least plausible to identify Nathanael and Bartholomew as the same man. "Bartholomew" is patronymic (naming the father), meaning Son of Tolmai, so its bearer would also possess another name, such as Nathanael.

48 Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee.

49 Nathanael answered and saith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel.

50 Jesus answered and said unto him, Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? thou shalt see greater things than these.

51 And he saith unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man.

Jesus Turns Water Into Wine

2 And the third day there was a ^amarriage in ^bCana of Galilee; and the ^cmother of Jesus was there:

2 And both Jesus was ¹called, and his disciples, to the marriage.

3 And when they ¹wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.

4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.

5 His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.

6 And there were set there six waterpots of stone, ^aafter¹ the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three ²firkins apiece.

7 Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

1:48. When thou wast under the fig tree: This was a favorite place used by the Jews for meditation. Jesus evidently meant a specific time which Nathanael understood. And if Nathanael had been praying concerning the promised Messiah (v. 45), this would explain his remarkable response in verse 49, where he confesses Jesus' deity and messiahship.

1:49. Nathanael believed readily because of the witness of Philip (v. 45), and the sincerity of his heart (no guile, v. 47). But he was not gullible; he questioned anyone from Nazareth (v. 46), and the impact of the presence of Jesus (v. 47, 48). Nathanael was from Cana in Galilee (see 21:2); in chapter 2 we find Jesus also at Cana. Perhaps chapter 2 records Nathanael's wedding.

1:51. Here is another reference to Jacob, who saw angels ascending and descending (Gen. 28:12). We have no record of when the disciples saw this prophecy fulfilled. In this passage the angels were ascending first, then descending; perhaps a reference to prayers sent heavenward and then answered. Jesus is presented as the stair between heaven and earth.

2:1. According to Jewish marriage customs, the betrothal lasted about a year. In the evening, the bride was led to the bridegroom's home for the ceremony, which was followed by a supper. The festivities often lasted more than a day. Jesus' mother, Mary, may have been responsible for the arrangements. (See also v. 5.) Her name never appears in John's gospel; she is merely referred to as the mother of Jesus. Cana is only about seven miles north of Nazareth. Jesus attended the wedding, blessing the festive and joyful occasion. Some of His disciples also attended—Andrew, Simon, Philip, Nathanael, and John. His presence at such legitimate functions prompted the Pharisees to call Jesus a "winebibber."

2:4. The term woman in Greek (gunē) is one of respect (cf. 19:26). Mine hour is not yet come (cf. 7:8, 30; 8:20; 17:1) refers to His crucifixion hour, His greatest concern. It was not yet time for Him to reveal His messiahship (cf. 8:20).

2:6. Waterpots were normally used for washing feet. Firkins were about nine gallons, so each pot held 18 to 27 gallons (total capacity: 108 to 162 gallons).

SON OF MAN

1:51. The primary name Jesus used of Himself was "Son of man" (e.g., 12:34). It emphasized His messianic office and uniquely identified His humanity. The messianic nature of this title is tied to Daniel's vision of the Ancient of Days. Illustration: When Stephen spoke of seeing "the Son of man standing on the right hand of God" (Acts 7:56), he clearly referred to the Messiah. Application: As Messiah, Jesus fulfilled the three anointed offices of Prophet, Priest, and King. He is today: our Prophet, spokesman for God; our Priest, representative before God; and our King, ruler in the lives of God's subjects. (First Reference, Gen. 14:17–24; Primary Reference, John 1:51; cf. John 18:6.)

2:1 Cana of Galilee is a village west of the Sea of Galilee. It is mentioned only in John's gospel and only on three occasions. First, it is identified as the place where Jesus performed His first miracle—changing water to wine (vv. 1, 11). Second, here Jesus spoke the word that healed a nobleman's son who lay sick in Capernaum (4:46–54). Third, Cana is named as Nathanael's hometown (21:2). The exact geographical location of Cana has not yet been ascertained, but two sites are commonly proposed. The first is about four miles northeast of Nazareth. The second, which most scholars identify as the probable location of the ancient village, is nine miles north of Nazareth. It bears the Arabic title Khirbet Qana, highly reminiscent of the biblical name.

9 When the ¹ruler of the feast had tasted ^athe water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the ¹governor of the feast called the bridegroom,

10 And saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is ¹worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now.

11 This ^abeginning of ¹miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, ^band ²manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him.

Nicodemus Questions Jesus

3 There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 ^aThe same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for ^bno man can do these

2:9. Much has been written about the wine Jesus created. Oinos is the New Testament word for the fruit of the vine, but it implies nothing concerning fermentation. Whatever Jesus re-creates (water) is better than it was and better than man can make it (fermented wine).

2:11. Jesus' miracles always had a purpose. This miracle resulted in the manifestation of His glory (cf. 1:14), and in His disciples' belief in Him (cf. 20:31).

2:14. Changers of money: Pilgrims to Jerusalem carried all sorts of currencies, but they brought no animals for sacrifices. Exchanges and purchases could be made at the temple.

2:15. Drove them all out: The synoptic Gospels report that Jesus cleansed the temple, but only during the last week before the Crucifixion (Matt. 21:12-27; Mark 11:15-33; Luke 19:45—20:8). John alone describes such a cleansing early in Christ's ministry.

2:23-25. Many believed in Jesus when they witnessed His miracles, but Jesus did not entrust His fate to their hands, for He knew what was in man. The same word, pisteuō ("believe," or "commit"), is used in verses 23 and 24. Jesus knew men's hearts. This is illustrated by His subsequent interviews with Nicodemus, the woman at the well, and the nobleman.

3:1. Nicodemus was a Pharisee, a ruler of the Jews (member of the Sanhedrin), and a master of Israel (a rabbi, v. 10).

3:2. By night: Probably he feared criticism. John refers several times to "fear of the Jews" (see 7:13; 9:22; 12:42, 43; 19:38). Nicodemus accepted Jesus as a teacher and a rabbi from God who worked miracles, ¹miracles that thou doest, except ^cGod be with him.

3 Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, "Except a man be born ¹again, he

4 Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

but Jesus was not impressed with the depth of Nicodemus's belief or understanding. Many unbelievers still agree that Jesus was "a great man."

3:3. Verily, verily (lit., "amen, amen") occurs only in John's gospel, and then always for emphasis.

Born again may be translated either "again" or "from above." Perhaps both ideas should be combined here, to indicate the repetition of an act from another source. John might have said "again" had he wished to indicate repetition of an act from the same source.

God So Loved the World

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe, if I tell you of heavenly things?

13 And "no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven.

14 "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so ^bmust the Son of man be lifted up:

15 That whosoever ^abelieveth in him should not perish, but ^bhave eternal life.

16 "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten ^bSon, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

17 "For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

18 "He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already,

Only John uses this expression in the Gospels. This concept of the New Birth includes these implications: (1) It undercuts Jewish dependence on being sons of Abraham (cf. 8:39). (2) It reveals that there must be a work of God "from above," since the Jews considered children (new births) to be God's blessing. (3) It teaches the necessity of a new beginning.

3:5. Born of water implies natural, physical birth, since Spirit refers to supernatural spiritual birth.

3:13. Son of man was a messianic title. See Daniel 7:13 for the Old Testament source.

3:14. Serpent: Nicodemus was a follower of Moses. Numbers 21 tells of the Jewish murmuring, the fiery serpents, the brass serpent, and the healing of the people who looked in faith (cf. 2 Cor. 5:21, showing that Jesus was made "sin for us").

3:18. This verse answers the question, "Why do people go to hell?" It is because they do not believe in Jesus.

3:1 Nicodemus was the ruler of the Jews who secretly came to Jesus during the night. He was a Pharisee and a teacher (v. 10), who like Joseph of Arimathea (another secret disciple) was a member of the Sanhedrin. Nicodemus is mentioned three times in the New Testament, all in John's gospel. In these three passages, John seems to focus on the progression in his spiritual life. In chapter 3 he comes to Jesus without any change evident in his life. In John 7:50 a change is observable in that he defends Jesus against the charges of the Sanhedrin. At the Crucifixion both Nicodemus and Joseph boldly and publicly stand as disciples of Jesus (19:38, 39). (Primary Reference, John 3.)

LOVE OF GOD

3:16. Love is both an attribute of God and a description of His being. He alone is the epitome of divine love and the source of all true love. His love is unconditional and consistently seeks the highest good of the one who is loved. Illustration: God's love was clearly demonstrated at Calvary when Jesus died for all our sins (1 John 3:1). Application: Because God first loved us, we ought to love others as well (1 John 4:11). (First Reference, Gen. 2:16, 17; Primary Reference, John 3:16; cf. James 1:17.)

ONLY BEGOTTEN

3:16. The Greek word monogenēs is used by John to convey only the unique relationship between God the Father and Jesus as the Son of the Father. It serves to distinguish Christ as the only Son of God, in contrast with the many children of God. The uniqueness of this relationship is further emphasized by the fact that we become the children of God whereas Jesus always was the Son of God. Illustration: Though unique in His relationship to God, Jesus is described by Paul as the firstborn among many brethren. Application: Christians' relationship to God may not be the same as that of Christ to the Father, but Christians can call God their Father. As children of God we should always seek to be as obedient as the only begotten Son of God. (First Reference, Ps. 2:7; Primary Reference, John 3:16.)

because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, ^athat ¹light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil.

20 For ^aevery one that ¹doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be ²reproved.

21 But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are ^awrought in God.

John Testimony About Jesus

22 After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judaea; and there he ¹tarried with them, ^aand baptized.

23 And John also was baptizing in Aenon near to ^aSalim, because there was much water there: ^band they came, and were baptized.

24 For ^aJohn was not yet cast into prison.

25 Then there arose a question between some of John's disciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and said unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, ^ato whom thou barest witness, behold, the same baptizeth, and all men ^bcome to him.

27 John answered and said, ^aA man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourselves bear me witness, that I said, ^aI am not the Christ, but ^bthat I am sent before him.

29 ^aHe that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but ^bthe friend of the bridegroom, which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is fulfilled.

The Woman at Jacob's Well

4 When therefore the Lord knew how the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made and ^abaptized more disciples than John,

2 (Though Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples,)

3 He left Judaea, and departed again into Galilee.

4 And he ¹must needs go through Samaria.

5 Then cometh he to a city of Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the ¹parcel of ground that ^aJacob ^bgave to his son Joseph.

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jesus therefore, being wearied with his journey, sat thus on the well: and it was about the sixth hour.

3:22-24. Here are the concurrent ministries of Jesus and John. Sometimes the other gospels may leave the impression that John's ministry ended when Jesus' began. Although it did decrease, it continued for a season (cf. Acts 19:1-7).

3:23. Much water suggests that John's baptism was probably by immersion.

3:34. God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him: Some manuscripts read: "He gives the Spirit without measure," which would then refer to the sending of the Holy Spirit (cf. 7:37-39; Acts 1:5; 11:15, 16).

4:4. Go through Samaria: The circuitous route taken by strict Jews from Jerusalem to Galilee was toward Jericho, across the Jordan River to the east side, north through Perea (bypassing the hated Samaritans), and finally recrossing the Jordan into Galilee. See verse 9 below.

4:5. Sychar was the Old Testament Shechem (Gen. 33:18-20).

7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink.

8 (For his disciples were gone away unto the city to buy ¹meat.)

9 Then saith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, askest drink of me, which am a woman of Samaria? for ^athe Jews have no dealings with the ^bSamaritans.

10 Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the ^agift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee ^bliving water.

11 The woman saith unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then hast thou that living water?

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himself, and his children, and his ¹cattle?

13 Jesus answered and said unto her, Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again:

14 But ^awhosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him ^bshall be in him a ¹well of water springing up into everlasting life.

4:9. The Samaritans had intermarried with Gentiles during the Assyrian captivity (2 Kin. 17:24-41). They acknowledged only the Pentateuch as Scripture, and around 400 B.C. built a temple on Mount Gerizim.

4:10. The living water refers to the Holy Spirit (cf. 7:38, 39).

4:20. This mountain means Gerizim. See the note on verse 9.

4:24. The original stresses the idea of God's nature or being as spiritual (cf. 5:37).

4:4 Samaria is the name of both a city and a region in the heart of Palestine. The region has as its east-west boundaries the Jordan River and the Mediterranean, and for its north-south boundaries Galilee and Judea. Its major cities are Shechem (Sychar) and Samaria (Sebaste) in the center, and Joppa and Caesarea on its western coast. The city of Samaria was the Old Testament capital of the northern kingdom. Herod the Great completely rebuilt it between 30 and 20 B.C. and named it Sebaste. It is to this city that Philip takes the gospel (Acts 8:5-25); and Peter, by the laying on of his hands, confirms that this work among the Samaritans is one with the Jewish work in Jerusalem (Acts 8:14-17). The Samaritan people had been despised by the Jews since Old Testament times due to their intermarriage with the Gentile peoples among whom they lived (cf. 2 Kin. 17:24-33), and due to their belief that Mount Gerizim, not Jerusalem, was the place appointed by God for sacrifice (cf. v. 20). When Christ first commissioned the Twelve, He forbade them to go to the Samaritans; Israel needed to repent first, Matthew 10:5, 6. Later, however, Christ specifically sent them to the Samaritans (Acts 1:8). Christ treated the Samaritans graciously, as is evident from His dealings with the Samaritan woman at the well (vv. 9-26), and from His teaching in the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:29-37) and His healing of the 10 lepers, in which the thankful one was a Samaritan (Luke 17:11-19). Samaria was ruled alternately by the Herods and the Roman procurators: Herod the Great and Archelaus until A.D. 6; procurators, including Pilate, from A.D. 6 to 41; Herod Agrippa I from A.D. 41 to 44; and procurators thereafter, including Felix and Festus (Acts 24-26).

27 And upon this came his disciples, and marvelled that he talked with ¹the woman: yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why talkest thou with her?

28 The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, 29 Come, see a man, ^awhich told me all things that ever I did: ¹is not this the Christ?

30 Then they went out of the city, and ¹came unto him.

31 In the mean while his disciples ¹prayed him, saying, ²Master, eat.

32 But he said unto them, I have ¹meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ¹ought to eat?

34 Jesus saith unto them, ^aMy ¹meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to ^bfinish his work.

The Belief of the Samaritans

39 And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him ^afor the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all that ever I did.

40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they ¹besought him that he would ²tarry with them: and he ³abode there two days.

41 And many more believed because of his own ^aword;

42 And said unto the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy saying: for ^awe have heard him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world.

Jesus Heals a Nobleman's Son

43 Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee.

44 For ^aJesus himself testified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.

45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galilaeans received him, ^ahaving seen all the things that he did at Jerusalem at the feast: ^bfor they also went unto the feast.

46 So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, ^awhere he made the water wine. And there was a certain ¹nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and ¹besought him that he would come down, and heal

4:25. Messias: Compare to Deuteronomy 18:15-22.

4:35. Fields ... white already to harvest: Jesus may have pointed to the multitudes who came from Sychar to see Him because of the testimony of the woman.

4:39-42. At first they believed because of the woman's testimony. But to people of this culture, this was not adequate. They would have to hear for themselves. Jesus' acceptance of the woman in her new role shows that He did not share this condescending attitude toward women.

DEFINITION OF GOD

4:24. John gives three descriptions of God. He is Spirit (John 4:24), love (1 John 4:8), and light (1 John 1:5). God is a spiritual being who is invisible and without a body; He is a divine person who reveals Himself in perfect intellect, emotion, and will; He is the source and personification of all material and spiritual life; He is self-existent; He is eternal in relationship to time; He is unlimited in relationship to the immensity of space; He is immutable in His nature; He is the unity of all existence; and He is consistent in His being—that is, He corresponds in actual fact to His nature and attributes as they are revealed to us. (First Reference, Gen. 1:1; Primary Reference, John 4:24.)

his son: for he was at the point of death.

48 Then said Jesus unto him, “Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe.”

49 The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ¹ere my child die.

50 Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way.

51 And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth.

52 Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to ¹amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole ¹house.

54 This is again the second ¹miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judaea into Galilee.

A Healing at the Pool of Bethesda

5 After ^athis there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus ^bwent up to Jerusalem.

2 Now there is at Jerusalem ^aby the sheep ¹market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of ¹impotent folk, of blind, ²halt, ³withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain ¹season into the pool, and ²troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

5 And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that ¹case, he saith unto him, “Wilt thou be made whole?”

7 The ¹impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is ²troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

8 Jesus saith unto him, “Rise, take up thy bed, and walk.”

9 And immediately the man was made ¹whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and ^aon the same day was the sabbath.

10 The Jews therefore said unto him that was cured, It is the sabbath day: “it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.”

11 He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then asked they him, What man is that which said unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was ^ahealed ¹wist not who it was: for Jesus had ²conveyed himself away, a multitude being in that place.

4:54. This was only the second miracle worked in Galilee. Evidently Jesus had performed others in Judea. See 2:23; 3:2.

5:1. Jerusalem: Previously Jesus had dealt primarily with individuals. Now He confronts the Jewish leaders. John 5:1—10:42 reveals the rising controversy and the opposition that finally resulted in His crucifixion. A feast was taking place in Jerusalem, but which one is not clearly stated (see Introduction). There were three major Jewish feasts: Passover (in the spring), Pentecost (50 days later), and the feast of Tabernacles (in the fall).

5:2. Bethesda means “House of Mercy.”

5:5. Thirty and eight years indicates that the man had been infirm since before Jesus was born. We are not told his condition, but it kept him from walking. Perhaps it was the result of sin (cf. v. 14).

5:9–18. Sabbath: Two charges are brought against Jesus for healing on the “wrong” day of the week (vv. 9b, 10, 16). The Pharisees had added many oral traditions to the written law. First, no burden-bearing was allowed. People could not even carry a needle in their clothing, write anything, or put out a lamp. Certainly they could not carry their own beds. Second, no medical practices were permitted on the Sabbath, except to prevent death.

5:2. The Pool of Bethesda was a series of pools connected by five porticos, probably constructed by Herod the Great. The ruined remains of these pools can be seen today near the Crusader Church of St. Anne, north of the temple mount. The porticos and colonnades involved a series of steps and various levels which would have been difficult for the lame to traverse. The connection of this pool to healing probably predated Herod’s time, and archaeological remains found there even indicated that the Romans themselves sought healing there after their occupation of Jerusalem in A.D. 135.

14 Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: "sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole.

16 And ¹therefore did the Jews "persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had done these things on the sabbath day.

17 But Jesus answered them, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews "sought the more to kill him, because he not only had broken the sabbath, but said also that God was his Father, ^bmaking himself equal with God.

All Judgment Given to Jesus

19 Then answered Jesus and said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise.

20 For "the Father loveth the Son, and ^bsheweth him all things that himself doeth: and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and ¹quickeneth them; "even so the Son ¹quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man, but "hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

5:17, 18. Jesus' response is considered blasphemy. He spoke of His Father. The Jews realize that He is equating Himself with God.

5:17. I work: Jesus manifested power in two capacities that are prerogatives of deity: judgment (vv. 22, 27, 30), and resurrection (vv. 21, 25, 26, 28, 29). Jesus was submissive to the Father, but not subordinate to Him (vv. 19, 30).

5:31-47. Jesus said there were six possible witnesses to His person (already evident in John): (1) He did

DEITY OF CHRIST

5:18. Christ, the second person of the Trinity, is equal to the Father in nature, separate in person, yet submissive in duties; as such, He is God. The arguments for His deity are His applying the titles of deity of Himself, His speaking of God as uniquely His Father, His making claims to deity, His using the Yahwistic "I Am," and His claiming to be equal with God in nature. In deity, Jesus is God, and was unalterably God. Such a claim would have been the highest form of blasphemy had it not been true. Illustration: Our Lord was not the only one to be recognized as God in New Testament times. When Herod accepted praise from his subjects—that he spoke as a god—he was destroyed by worms sent from God (Acts 12:23). In contrast, when Paul and Barnabas were called gods, they denied any deity in themselves, instead preaching the living God to their audience (Acts 14:11-18). Application: Christians should allow Christ to live His divine life in them, so others will see His influence and glorify God (Matt. 5:16). (First Reference, Gen. 3:16; Primary Reference, John 5:18; cf. Luke 2:52.)

Five Loaves and Two Fishes

6 After ^athese things Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of ^bTiberias.

2 And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his ¹miracles which he did on them that were ^adis-eased.

3 And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

4 ^aAnd the passover, a feast of the Jews, was ¹nigh.

5 ^aWhen Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great ¹company come unto him, he saith unto ^bPhilip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?

6 And this he said to ¹prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.

7 Philip answered him, ^aTwo hundred ¹pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 One of his disciples, ^aAndrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him, 9 There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: ^abut what are they among so many?

10 And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

11 And Jesus took the loaves; and not yet claim His own witness to Himself (vv. 31, 32). Contrast this with His later claim in 8:14. (2) John the Baptist was a witness (vv. 33–35). (3) His works or miracles are a witness (v. 36). (4) The Father witnessed to His sonship (vv. 37, 38). (5) The Scriptures bear witness to Him (vv. 39, 40). (6) Moses wrote of Him (vv. 45–47).

6:1. Tiberias: John is the only gospel writer to call this sea "Tiberias." Following the destruction of Jerusalem (A.D. 70), the Sea of Galilee was renamed Tiberias, after Tiberias Caesar (Luke 3:1), who ruled A.D. 14–37.

6:2–14. The feeding of the five thousand with five loaves and two fish is the only miracle included in all four of the Gospels (Matt. 14:13–21; Mark 6:30–44; Luke 9:10–17). John's is the only gospel to mention Philip, Andrew, and the lad.

6:4. This is the third passover during Jesus' ministry. See 2:13; 5:1.

6:7. Two hundred pennyworth: Two hundred denarii was two hundred days' wages. The denarius ("penny") was the average day's wage of a working man.

when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were ¹set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they ²would.

12 When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

14 Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth ^athat prophet ¹that should come into the world.

15 When Jesus therefore perceived that they ¹would come and take him by force, to make him a ^aking, he departed again into a mountain himself alone.

Jesus Walks on the Sea

16 ^aAnd when ¹even was now come, his disciples went down unto the sea,

17 And entered into a ship, and went over the sea toward Capernaum. And it was now dark, and Jesus ¹was not come to them.

18 And the sea arose by reason of a great wind that blew.

19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty ¹furlongs, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing ²nigh unto the ship: and they were ^aafraid.

20 But he saith unto them, “It is I; be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ship: and immediately the ship was at the land whither they ¹went.

Jesus Is the True Bread from Heaven

25 And when they had found him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him, Rabbi, when camest thou hither?

26 Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Ye seek me, not because ye saw the ¹miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 ^aLabour not for the ¹meat which perisheth, but ^bfor that ¹meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: ^afor him hath God the Father sealed.

28 Then said they unto him, What shall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jesus answered and said unto them, “This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent.

30 They said therefore unto him, ^a“What sign ¹shewest thou then, that we may see, and believe thee? what dost thou work?

31 ^a“Our fathers did eat manna in the desert; as it is written, ^bHe gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 Then Jesus said unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but ^amy Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

6:15–24. The Jews attempted to make Jesus a King (v. 15). Hunger was common and a Messiah who could multiply food was the one most people were ready to follow. Jesus departed to a mountain. Other gospels add to pray.

6:19. The disciples took a boat from Tiberias to Capernaum. During the night Jesus came to them walking on the sea. Only Matthew (14:25–31) tells of Peter’s walking on the water on this occasion.

6:27. Meat which endureth: See the water that satisfies in 4:14; 6:28, 29.

6:28. The works of God meant to believe on Jesus (Heb. 11:6; Rom. 14:23b).

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 "Then said they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jesus said unto them, "I am the bread of life: ^bhe that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never ^cthirst.

36 "But I said unto you, That ye also have seen me, and believe ^bnot.

37 "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and ^ahim that cometh to me I will ¹in no wise cast out.

38 For I came down from heaven, "not to do mine own will, ^bbut the will of him that sent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath sent me, "that of all which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

40 And this is the will of him that sent me, "that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day.

The Murmuring of the Jews

41 The Jews then ¹murmured at him, because he said, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

42 And they said, "Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? how is it then that he saith, I came down from heaven?"

43 Jesus therefore answered and said unto them, ¹Murmur not among yourselves.

44 "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me ^bdraw him: and I will raise him up at the last day.

45 "It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. ^bEvery man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

59 These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

Many Disciples Fall Away

60 "Many therefore of his disciples, when they had heard this, said, This is ¹an hard saying; who can ²hear it?"

6:35. I am the bread of life means the bread that gives life. The life of which He speaks is spiritual and eternal.

6:38. I came down from heaven is another indication of Jesus' deity (cf. 3:13).

6:53. Blood: The Jews were forbidden to drink blood (Lev. 7:26, 27). This was a "hard saying" (v. 60) because they missed His point (cf. Lev. 17:11). Jesus came to bring and sustain spiritual life, yet they were still thinking of physical life (cf. v. 63).

61 When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples ¹murmured at it, he said unto them, Doth this offend you?

62 “What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?”

63 “It is the spirit that ¹quickeneth; the ^bflesh profiteth nothing; the ^cwords that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life.”

64 But ^athere are some of you that believe not. For ^bJesus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who should betray him.

65 And he said, Therefore ^asaid I unto you, that no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father.

66 “From that ^{time} many of his disciples went ¹back, and walked no more with him.

67 Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away?

68 Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast ^athe words of eternal life.

69 “And we believe and ¹are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.

70 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, ^band one of you is a devil?

71 He spake of ^aJudas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should ^bbetray him, being one of the twelve.

The Disbelief of Jesus' Brothers

7 After these things Jesus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in ¹Jewry, ^abecause the Jews sought to kill him.

6:64. Betray refers primarily to Judas, who has not yet been named in this gospel, but will be in verses 70, 71.

6:67. Here is the first mention of the twelve in John's gospel (cf. Mark 3; Luke 6). Only five of them have been named thus far: John, Andrew, Peter, Philip, and Nathanael (vv. 68, 69). Perhaps this is John's account of the confession of Simon Peter at Caesarea Philippi (cf. Matt. 16:16).

6:70. Devil (Gr. diabolos, “adversary” or “devil”) means “slanderer.” Compare this with 13:27, “Satan entered into him.”

6:71. This is the first occasion in John where Peter and Judas appear in contrast (cf. vv. 68, 69). See also chapters 13 and 18.

debated by His half brothers, about six months prior to the Crucifixion. During this feast, for six consecutive days a procession of priests carried water in golden vessels into the temple area. This pouring of water was thought to have physical and spiritual significance. On the seventh day, the “great day” (v. 37), no water was carried. It was then that Jesus stood and taught of the “rivers of living water” (v. 38), an especially significant reference to the Holy Spirit.

7:3–5. The advice of Jesus' unbelieving half brothers was to go to the feast. Notice that Mary had other children by Joseph, but they were as yet unbelievers (cf. Acts 1:14).

7:6–8. My time refers to His death. This moment of His glorification (cf. 17:4, 5) was not yet come (cf. 2:4; 7:30; 8:20; 17:1).

The Jews Marvel at Jesus' Teaching

14 Now about the ¹midst of the feast Jesus went up into the temple, and "taught.

15 ^aAnd the Jews marvelled, saying, How knoweth this man letters, having never ¹learned?

16 Jesus answered them, and said, "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me.

17 "If any man will do his will, he shall know¹ of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself.

18 "He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that ^bseeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and 'no unrighteousness is in him.

19 "Did not Moses give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? ^bWhy go ye about to kill me?

20 The people answered and said, "Thou hast a ¹devil: who goeth about to kill thee?

21 Jesus answered and said unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.

22 "Moses therefore gave unto you circumcision; (not because it is of Moses, ^bbut of the fathers;) and ye on the sabbath day circumcise a man.

23 If a man on the sabbath day receive circumcision, that the law of Moses should not be broken; are ye angry at me, because "I have made a man ¹every whit whole on the sabbath day?

24 "Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.

7:15. How knoweth: Jesus had probably received the normal synagogue training of Jewish boys (cf. Luke 2:47, when Jesus was 12 years old at the temple). But He had not attended a school for rabbis in Jerusalem, as Paul did under Gamaliel. Jesus claimed that His ability to teach should prove the divine origin of His message.

7:17. Obedience will help to determine true doctrine. Unfortunately, most people seek to reverse this order. They want to know more than is necessary before they act.

7:21. One work probably refers to the healing of the infirm man in chapter 5 (cf. 7:23). For the Jews, the conflict was between the commands to keep the Sabbath and to circumcise on the eighth day.

7:25-52. This passage focuses on Jesus' claim to messiahship. There is no question in the minds of

A Division Among the People

25 Then said some of them of Jerusalem, Is not this he, whom they seek to "kill?

26 But, lo, he speaketh boldly, and they say nothing unto him. "Do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Christ?

27 "Howbeit we know this man whence he is: but when Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jesus in the temple as he taught, saying, "Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and ^bI am not come of myself, but he that sent me ^cis true, ^awhom ye know not.

29 But ^aI know him: for I am from him, and he hath sent me.

31 And "many of the people believed on him, and said, When Christ cometh, will he do more ¹miracles than these which this man hath done?

32 The Pharisees heard that the people murmured such things concerning him; and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

33 Then said Jesus unto them, "Yet a little while ¹am I with you, and then I ^bgo unto him that sent me.

His listeners about His claim, which He had made clear to them. But their response is confused and divided (v. 43). There were three very good reasons for accepting His claim: (1) the hesitancy of the rulers to stop Him (vv. 25, 26, 30, 32, 44); (2) the miracles He did (v. 31); and (3) the excellence of His speaking (vv. 40, 46). However, they found three reasons for rejecting His claim: (1) It was commonly believed that the Messiah would come in a spectacular fashion (Mal. 3:1), but Jesus' supposed origin was well known (v. 27). (2) The Messiah was to sit on the throne of David and therefore must be a Judean from Bethlehem, the city of David (Mic. 5:2), but they thought Jesus was born in Galilee (vv. 41, 42, 52). (3) The Messiah was to be a defender of the law—yet Jesus seemed indifferent to it (vv. 47-49) by healing on the Sabbath.

35 Then said the Jews among themselves, Whither will he go, that we shall not find him? will he go unto “the ¹dispersed among the ²Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?”

36 What manner of saying is this that he said, Ye shall seek me, and shall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come?

37 “In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, ^bIf any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.

38 “He that believeth on me, as the scripture hath said, ^bout of his ¹belly shall flow rivers of living water.

39 (“But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet ^bglorified.)

40 Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is “the Prophet.

41 Others said, This is “the Christ. But some said, Shall Christ come out of Galilee?”

42 “Hath not the scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, ^bwhere David was?”

43 So “there was a division among the people because of him.

44 And “some of them would have taken him; but no man laid hands on him.

The Pharisees' Unbelief

45 Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees; and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

46 The officers answered, “Never man spake like this man.

47 Then answered them the Pharisees, Are ye also deceived?

48 Have any of the rulers or of the Pharisees believed on him?

49 But this ¹people who knoweth not the law are cursed.

50 Nicodemus saith unto them, (“he that came ¹to Jesus by night, being one of them,)

51 “Doth our law judge any man, before it hear him, and know what he doeth?”

52 They answered and said unto him, Art thou also of Galilee? Search, and look: for “out of Galilee ariseth no prophet.

53 And every man went unto his own house.

Jesus Forgives an Adulterous Woman

7:49. This people: The Pharisees despise the rural people who do not rigidly observe the law.

7:50, 51. It is not known whether Nicodemus was saved at this point. He was probably John’s source for this event.

7:52. Out of Galilee ariseth no prophet: Of course they were wrong. Jonah came from Gath-hepher in Galilee (2 Kin. 14:25); Nahum was from El Kosh, which may have been Capernaum (lit., “Village of Nahum”), renamed in honor of the prophet (cf. Nah. 1:1). Also, Hosea is believed to have been from Galilee.

7:53–8:11. Certain ancient manuscripts do not contain this passage, while others place it later in John’s gospel, or in Luke’s. Certainly the passage records a historical event in the life of Jesus, so we need not doubt its authenticity.

INDWELLING OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

7:39. One of God’s purposes since the beginning has been to dwell with humanity and enjoy fellowship with us. He does it in this dispensation through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The indwelling of the Holy Spirit (1) occurs automatically when a person is saved; (2) is not an “experience,” but produces spiritual experiences; (3) remains permanently; (4) is the basis of all the other ministries of the Holy Spirit; and (5) is the source of new life in the believer. Illustration: When Paul met 12 disciples of John who did not know of the Holy Spirit, he knew they needed to be saved. So he preached the gospel to them (Acts 19:1–5). Application: The Holy Spirit’s indwelling should motivate the believer to be careful not to harm his body nor indulge his body in sin (1 Cor. 6:19, 20). (First Reference, Ex. 35:31; Primary Reference, John 7:37–39; cf. 1 Cor. 12:13.)

6 This they said, ¹tempting him, that they ^amight ²have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.

7 So when they continued asking him, he ¹lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.

8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

9 And they which heard it, ^abeing convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last: and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

8:4. This woman: Women caught in adultery were not normally brought to Jesus. The scribes and Pharisees were seeking to trick Him to see whether He would uphold the law—or defend the sinner. The dilemma they posed was designed either to accuse Him of breaking Jewish law which called for execution, or Roman law, which forbid execution without Roman approval.

8:5. Moses ... commanded: They quoted the Old Testament accurately, if not completely (Lev. 20:10; Deut. 22:22-24).

8:9. The eldest left first, readily admitting they were sinners.

8:11. Jesus was the only one who could have condemned her—but He did not, partly because such cases demanded two or more witnesses. Also, He knew (cf. 2:25) she was repentant, which explains why she did not flee when her accusers left. Jesus did not take her sin lightly; rather He commanded her, Sin no more. Neither do I condemn: The prerogative to forgive sins is a divine one, so in this instance Jesus demonstrates His deity (cf. Luke 5:23, 24).

8:12, 13. Jesus claimed to be the light of the world (cf. 1:4, 5; 9:4, 5; 11:9, 10; 1 John 1:5), but the Pharisees disputed His authority because He witnessed to Himself.

8:14-18. My record is true: Contrast this with 5:31 where Jesus did not claim Himself as a witness. Jesus said His own witness agreed with the witness of the Father, satisfying the law's requirement of two witnesses.

8:21-29. The Jews' spiritual preparation is inadequate. They could not become His disciples because (1) they are of this world (v. 23); (2) they do not believe in Jesus (v. 24); and (3) they do not understand (v. 27).

8:28. Lifted up the Son refers to the Crucifixion (cf. 3:14).

8:30-36. Jesus identifies the true disciples as those who (1) believed in Him (v. 30); (2) continued in His word (v. 31), unlike the Jews in verses 37, 43, 47; (3) will be freed from sin by the truth (vv. 32-36). They will not be sinless, but blameless—free from the power of sin.

8:37-59. Jesus shows that discipleship depends on having the right Father. They had the wrong father. He refers to your father (vv. 38, 41, 44). They claimed to be sons of Abraham (v. 39), but Jesus shows this to be false in verses 39 and 40. They are Abraham's physical seed (v. 37), but he is not their spiritual father. They also claim to be sons of God (v. 41), which Jesus shows to be false (v. 42). When you love the Parent, you will not hate the Son. Finally, Jesus says they are sons of the devil (v. 44), the father of lies, for they were knowingly doing his works (vv. 38, 41, 44).

8:46. Whether Jesus was a sinner was often debated by His enemies. See 9:24; 18:38; 19:4, 6.

Jesus Heals a Man Blind from Birth

9 And as Jesus passed by, he saw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his disciples asked him, saying, ¹Master, ^awho did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: ^abut that the works of God should be ¹made manifest in him.

9:8 ¹ previously

8:53. The question is: Who is Jesus? (cf. 4:10).

8:56. Abraham saw the promise of Christ from a distance (Heb. 11:13). This probably refers to the universal scope of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen. 12, 13, 15, 17).

8:58. This clear statement of deity caused the Jews to try to stone Him. Before Abraham was [historical], I am [egō eimi—eternal]: Abraham had a beginning—Jesus is eternal. The Jewish audience clearly understood Jesus’ claim to deity by applying the sacred name I am to Himself (cf. Ex. 3:14). John’s seven “I am” declarations seem to be based on this central affirmation (cf. 5:35; 8:12; 10:7, 11; 11:25; 14:6; 15:5).

8:59. Going through the midst: While they are preparing to stone Him, Jesus makes Himself inaccessible to them.

9:1—10:42. The controversy arose during the Feast of Dedication. See notes on 10:22.

9:2. There was a Jewish belief that all suffering was punishment for sin (cf. v. 34). But how could a person have sinned before birth? The Jews considered human life to begin at conception (cf. Ps. 51:5; 139:13–16; Jer. 1:5; Gal. 1:15). Thus, they thought one could theoretically sin even before birth.

9:5. Light of world (cf. 1:4, 9; 8:12) means “as long as I am in the world.” When He is no longer in the world, then believers become the light of the world (Matt. 5:14).

9:7. Faith to go and wash in the pool of Siloam is required before the healing.

said, He is like him: but he said, I am he.

10 Therefore said they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He answered and said, ^aA man that is called Jesus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and wash: and I went and washed, and I received sight.

12 Then said they unto him, Where is he? He said, I know not.

The Pharisees Question the Healing

13 They brought to the Pharisees him that ¹aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the sabbath day when Jesus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Pharisees also asked him how he had received his sight. He said unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed, and do see.

16 Therefore said some of the Pharisees, This man is not of God, because he ¹keepeth not the sabbath day. Others said, ^aHow can a man that is a sinner do such miracles? And ^bthere was a division among them.

17 They say unto the blind man again, What sayest thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He said, ^aHe is a prophet.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind, and received his sight, until they called the parents of him that had received his sight.

19 And they asked them, saying, Is this your son, who ye say was born blind? how then doth he now see?

20 His parents answered them and said, We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now seeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; ask him: he shall speak for himself.

23 Therefore said his parents, He is of age; ask him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, ^aGive God the praise: ^bwe know that this man is a sinner.

25 He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

31 Now we know that ^aGod heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

9:14. Once again the issue of healing on the Sabbath arises. Surely Jesus healed on other days as well—but John chooses to record healings that dramatize the conflicts between Jesus and the Jews.

9:16. A division: The confusion of the Pharisees is shown by their handling this case in a group, and by their repeated questions: How did He do it? (v. 15), What do you say of Him? (v. 17), How does he now see? (v. 19), What did He do to you? (v. 26), and "Are we blind also?" (v. 40). See also 10:19, 21.

37 And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and^a it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he said, Lord, I believe. And he^a worshipped him.

39 And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world,^b that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind.

40 And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, ^aand said unto him, Are we blind also?

41 Jesus said unto them, “If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth.

9:31–33. Jesus could not work miracles if He were a sinner as they said (vv. 31, 33). See also verses 16 and 24; compare 2 Chronicles 16:9a, and Psalm 66:18.

9:35–37. Jesus confirms His deity once again.

10:1. Door is the one who stood in the opening of the (stone) fold. The thieves and robbers were the Pharisees. See also verse 8.

10:3. Sheep know only their own shepherd’s voice. In the Near East several flocks belonging to different shepherds may be in one fold (a fenced-in area). But only a shepherd’s own sheep will follow him out of the fold. Cattle can be driven, but sheep must be led.

10:10–16. Good shepherd: When Jesus uses this terminology, thoughtful Jews remember Psalm 23, “The LORD is my shepherd,” and even understand Jesus’ claim to be God. In verse 11 Jesus again predicts His crucifixion (cf. v. 15).

10:12. A hireling (a servant for pay) will flee in time of personal danger, because he is working for money, and neither owns nor loves the sheep.

10:16. The other sheep are Gentiles who will be saved later (cf. John 11:52; Eph. 2:13–22).

10:17, 18. Jesus does more than predict His crucifixion and resurrection. He also shows that He has the power to lay down His life and take it up again, once more asserting His deity.

10:22. The feast of the dedication celebrated the cleansing of the temple by Judas Maccabeus after its desecration by Antiochus Epiphanes in 165 B.C. It began on the twenty-fifth of Kislev (or Chislev, November-December) and lasted eight days. It was called Hanukkah (Heb. for “Dedication”).

10:27–29. Never perish: These verses declare the assurance that all believers will be utterly safe from any creature that might wish to destroy them.

10:30. Here is the plainness of speech they desire, a clear indication of His deity (cf. v. 24).

10:33. Blasphemy: They understood that He claimed to be God.

10:34. Ye are gods (cf. Ps. 82:6) refers to Hebrew judges who interpret God’s Law and justice. His point is not to deny deity, but to deny that He had said anything that could necessarily be construed as the crime of blasphemy. He was also demonstrating His superior knowledge of Scripture.

10:35. Scripture cannot be broken means that the Scriptures are a binding authority. Jesus understood the Old Testament Scriptures to be inerrant.

10:36–39. Essentially, Jesus’ claim to deity is attested not so much by His verbal witness, but by His works—and they are conclusive (v. 38).

THE SECURITY OF THE BELIEVER

10:28. The doctrine of eternal security teaches that God is able to complete the good work of eternal life that He has begun in every believer (Phil. 1:6). The eternal security of the believer is guaranteed by the person and work of God. He is true and just, and cannot deny Himself. Therefore anyone who has eternal life, has it forever. God promises that no one can ever be separated from His love (Rom. 8:33–39). Illustration: Some argue that this doctrine leads to antinomianism, that is, allowing Christians to live in sin. This charge, however, denies the very nature of salvation, which involves union with Christ and death to sin (cf. Rom. 6). But to the extent that a Christian fails to serve God, his reward may be lost, though he will be saved from everlasting wrath (1 Cor. 3:15). Application: The Christian is saved and secured by faith, but in love and gratitude to Christ will seek to faithfully serve Him. (First Reference, Gen. 15:6; Primary Reference, John 10:28; cf. 2 Cor. 6:17.)

39 ^aTherefore they sought again to take him; but he escaped out of their hand,

40 And went away again beyond Jordan into the place ^awhere John at first baptized; and there he ¹abode.

42 And many believed on him there.

5 Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was sick, ^ahe ¹abode two days still in the same place where he was.

10:40. And went away: Jesus retreated to a ministry in Perea on the east side of the Jordan.

11:1–44. The raising of Lazarus from the dead is the last and greatest miracle during the active ministry of Jesus. The locale is the home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus, in Bethany, a village on the Mount of Olives on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho.

AUTHORITY OF THE SCRIPTURES

10:35. The Scriptures (both Old and New Testaments) were recognized by the early church as the final authority on all matters of faith and practice. Jesus spoke of the letters (Matt. 5:18) and verb tenses (Matt. 22:31, 32) as being significant and authoritative. Part of Paul's argument against the legalism in Galatia was based upon a simple noun that the apostle held as authoritative (Gal. 3:16). Jesus said the Scripture could not be broken, that is, treated as though it does not exist (v. 35). Illustration: A brief reading of Matthew shows how authoritative the Old Testament was to early Christians. That this authority applied also to the New Testament is illustrated by Paul in 1 Timothy 5:18. There Paul quotes from both Old and New Testaments (Deut. 25:4; Luke 10:7) in biblical support of his argument. Application: As we study the Scriptures, we must be careful to be doers of the Word and not hearers only. (First Reference, Gen. 3:1; Primary Reference, John 10:35; cf. John 17:17.)

10:41. The Tomb of Lazarus is associated with el-Azariyeh, which preserves the name of Lazarus in Arabic. It is located at Bethany, about 2 miles from Jerusalem on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives. The traditional location of Lazarus's tomb is very old. Eusebius noted that it was a place of Christian pilgrimage in his time (fourth century A.D.). Excavations at Bethany have uncovered the remains of ancient Christian churches at this site dating back to at least the fourth century A.D.

11:1 Lazarus, the brother of Martha and Mary of Bethany, was raised from the dead. When Jesus heard of Lazarus's illness, though He tarried in order to enhance the miracle (vv. 4, 15), He finally went and performed one of His greatest miracles—resurrection. Though Jesus had performed two earlier resurrections (Luke 7:11–17; 8:40–56), this one was most noteworthy, for no one could question Lazarus's death, since he had been dead for four days and was buried. So convincing was this miracle that the priests plotted to kill Lazarus (12:9, 10). Unlike Martha and Mary, nothing specific is known concerning Lazarus's character. Something did, however, endear both him and his sisters to Jesus (vv. 3, 36). Only John 11 and 12 refer to him; all other history is silent. Even the silence in John is noteworthy, for not one word spoken by Lazarus is recorded, nor any account of his post-death experiences. This Lazarus must not be confused with the beggar who died and was carried to "Abraham's bosom" (Luke 16:20–22).

11:1 Bethany is a village about two miles east of Jerusalem on the lower eastern slope of the Mount of Olives. It is located on the winding road from Jericho to Jerusalem. In the Scriptures it is primarily known as the home of Martha, Mary, and Lazarus. The notable events that occurred there include the raising of Lazarus from the dead (ch. 11) and the anointing of Jesus by Mary, which was symbolic of His death (Mark 14:3–9; John 12:1–8). Bethany was one place where Jesus commonly lodged when in Jerusalem (Matt. 21:17; Mark 11:11). Today an Arab village with a population of about one thousand occupies the site, which is called el-Azariyeh ("The Place of Lazareth"). The tomb at Bethany associated with Lazarus has been so identified since the fourth century.

7 Then after that saith he to his disciples, Let us go into Judaea again.

8 His disciples say unto him, ¹Master, the Jews of late sought to “stone thee; and goest thou thither again?”

9 Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? ^aIf any man walk in the day, he stumbleth not, because he seeth the ^blight of this world.

10 But ^aif a man walk in the night, he stumbleth, because there is no light in him.

11 These things said he: and after that he saith unto them, Our friend Lazarus ^asleepeth; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep.

12 Then said his disciples, Lord, if he sleep, he shall do well.

13 Howbeit Jesus spake of his death: but they thought that he had spoken of taking of rest in sleep.

14 Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

Martha's Assurance of the Resurrection

17 Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the ¹grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was ¹nigh unto Jerusalem, about fifteen ²furlongs off:

19 And many of the Jews came ¹to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him: but Mary sat still in the house.

21 Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now, ^awhatsoever thou wilt ask of God, God will give it thee.

“beyond the Jordan” where John baptized (10:40) and not in Judea (v. 7). The journey to Bethany would require about one day. (It was approximately 18 miles minimum.) A summary of the four days helps answer the above question:

On the first day, the messenger travels from Bethany east across the Jordan to find Jesus. The next two days Jesus lingers (v. 6). On the fourth day Jesus travels west across the Jordan to Bethany. Since Lazarus had already lain in the grave four days when Jesus arrived (vv. 17, 39), he must have already been in his grave when the messenger reached Jesus at the end of the first day. (Jews normally buried a person on the day of the death.) Thus, Jesus did not tarry two days waiting for Lazarus to die.

Some Jews apparently believed that the soul hovered near a body for three days hoping to reinhabit the body. By the fourth day they believed the soul abandoned hope and left. Perhaps Jesus tarried two days so that the resurrection would take place after the fourth day—and convince even those who felt His earlier resurrection miracles could be explained by this theory about the soul. (The others had taken place shortly after death, or in the case of the son of the widow of Nain in Luke 7, and Jairus’s daughter in Matthew 9, apparently on the very day of death.)

11:11. Death is often compared to sleep (cf. Matt. 9:24; Mark 5:39; Luke 8:52; 1 Thess. 4:13–17), but this euphemism applies only to believers.

11:16. Die with him refers to with Jesus, not Lazarus. The Jews in Judea had tried to kill Jesus on His previous visits (7:1, 19, 25; 8:37, 40, 59; 10:31, 39). Didymus means “Twin.” Perhaps Thomas was a twin brother of Matthew since they appear together in lists of the apostles. See Matthew 10:3; Mark 3:18; Luke 6:15.

11:18, 19. Jews from Jerusalem are present on this occasion. Some were enemies of Jesus. This explains why Martha called Mary “secretly” (v. 28). Bethany was less than two miles from Jerusalem.

11:16 Thomas was one of the 12 disciples. Other than in John’s gospel, Thomas is mentioned only in the listings of the Twelve. On three of four occasions where John mentions Thomas, he also refers to him as Didymus. Thomas is an Aramaic name meaning “twin” (Didymus in Greek). He seems to be inquisitive and impulsive. In John 11:16, thinking that Jesus is going to Bethany to die with Lazarus, he exhorts his fellow disciples to go and die with Jesus. When Jesus speaks of His return to heaven, Thomas confesses his ignorance of where Christ is going (14:5). Thomas thus reveals that he was spiritually ignorant and was lacking in faith, as were also the majority of the disciples during Christ’s earthly ministry. Thomas is remembered primarily for his doubts concerning Christ’s resurrection (20:24–29). He was absent at Christ’s first appearance to the disciples and refused to believe without tangible evidence. Jesus’ later appearance removed Thomas’s doubts. Several apocryphal books that are associated with Thomas speak of a phenomenal ministry that he allegedly fulfilled in India, but they lack credibility. (First Reference, Matt. 10:3; Primary Reference, John 20:24–29.)

23 Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

24 Martha saith unto him, ^aI know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day.

25 Jesus said unto her, I am ^athe resurrection, and the life: ^bhe that believeth in me, though he ¹were ^cdead, yet shall he live:

26 And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believeth thou this?

27 She saith unto him, Yea, Lord: ^aI believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world.

28 And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The ¹Master is come, and calleth for thee.

29 As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jesus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 ^aThe Jews then which were with her in the house, and comforted her, when they saw Mary, that she rose up ¹hastily and went out, followed her, saying, She goeth unto the grave to weep there.

Jesus Weeps

32 Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she ^afell down at his feet, saying unto him, ^bLord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.

33 When Jesus therefore saw her weeping, and the Jews also weeping which came with her, he groaned in the spirit, and was troubled, 34 And said, Where have ye laid him? They said unto him, Lord, come and see.

The Plan to Kill Jesus

45 Then many of the Jews which came to Mary, ^aand had seen the things which Jesus did, believed on him.

11:25. I am the resurrection is one of Jesus' greatest "I am" statements, signifying His power to give eternal life.

11:35. Jesus wept: The verb wept is used only here in the New Testament, meaning a shedding of tears, a deep grief (cf. Heb. 5:7). Although Jesus was God, He was also Man. John recognizes and records this expression of a very human emotion. He affirms the full humanity of Christ as well as His deity. John is not a Docetist, one who believes Jesus was merely a phantom.

11:45-48. The Pharisees had tried to kill Jesus on several occasions, always by the orthodox Jewish method of stoning. The Sadducees were willing to accomplish it through their political union with the Roman power. Thus prophecy was fulfilled (Ps. 22:1-18). Of course the Sadducees were particularly agitated by Lazarus's resurrection, since they did not believe in the resurrection. However, their main concern with Jesus was that He might cause a messianic uprising (v. 48). Unlike the Pharisees, their interests were political, not theological: blasphemy or healing on the Sabbath did not particularly disturb them.

ways to the Pharisees, and ^atold them what things Jesus had done.

47 ^aThen gathered the chief priests and the Pharisees a council, and said, ^bWhat ¹do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him ¹thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans shall come and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them, named ^aCaiaphas, being the high priest that same year, said unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

50 ^aNor consider that it is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people, and that the whole nation perish not.

51 And this spake he not ¹of himself: but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus should die for that nation;

52 And not ^afor that nation only, ^bbut that also he should gather together in one the children of God that were scattered abroad.

53 Then from that day forth they ¹took counsel together for to ^aput him to death.

54 Jesus ^atherefore walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called ^bEphraim, and there ¹continued with his disciples.

55 ^aAnd the Jews' passover was ¹nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to ^bpurify themselves.

Mary Anoints the Feet of Jesus

12 Then Jesus six days before the passover came to Bethany, ^awhere Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 ^aThere they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took ^aMary a pound of ¹ointment of ^bspikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the ²odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, ^aJudas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ¹ointment sold for three hundred ²pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and ^ahad the ¹bag, and ²bare what was put therein.

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: ¹against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For ^athe poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

9 ¹Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there: and they came not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, ^awhom he had raised from the dead.

10 ^aBut the chief priests ¹consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11 ^aBecause that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

12:1-8. Here is a character study of Martha, Mary, and Judas. Note that Martha served (v. 2). Nothing has changed since the earlier and similar occasion recorded in Luke 10:38-42. The place of this supper is the house of Simon the leper. (See Matt. 26:6-13; Mark 14:3-9.) Jesus and Lazarus are honored guests. Mary worshiped (v. 3). She anoints Jesus for His burial (cf.

19:39, 40). In John's gospel she anoints His feet, but Matthew and Mark record how she pours the ointment on His head. Evidently she does both. There would be no time for anointing later (cf. Mark 16:1). Observe that Judas covets (vv. 4-6). The three hundred denarii was almost a year's wages; one denarius was a day's wages for a laborer. The other disciples evidently agree with Judas that this is wasteful (Matt. 26:8). John portrays Judas as a thief. He had the bag, that is, he was the treasurer (cf. 13:29).

Jesus Enters Jerusalem

12 ^aOn the next day ¹much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 Took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna: “Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

15 ^aFear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ¹ass’s colt.

16 These things ^aunderstood not his disciples at the first: ^bbut when Jesus was glorified, ^cthen remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

Jesus Washes the Feet of the Disciples

13 Now ^abefore the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that ^bhis hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he ^cloved them unto the end.

2 And supper being ended, ^athe devil having ¹now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him;

3 Jesus knowing ^athat the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was ^bcome from God, and ^cwent ¹to God;

4 ^aHe riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself.

5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and ¹Peter saith unto him, Lord, ^adost ²thou wash my feet?

7 Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou ^aknowest ¹not now; ^bbut thou shalt know hereafter.

8 Peter saith unto him, Thou shalt never wash my feet. Jesus answered him, If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me.

9 Simon Peter saith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head.

10 Jesus saith to him, He that is ¹washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is ²clean every whit: and ^aye are clean, but not all.

12:45-47. This is a further claim to deity (cf. 10:30; 14:8-11). He came first to save, not to judge (cf. 3:17). He will judge later at the judgment seat of Christ (2 Cor. 5:10), and at the Great White Throne (Rev. 20:11).

13:4, 5. Began to wash the disciples' feet: Washing the guests' feet was always done by the humblest of the servants. It was considered a menial task. Perhaps Jesus had waited for one of the disciples to perform this task, but they were evidently debating who should be the greatest (cf. Luke 22:24-27). The purpose of the action was to set an example (v. 15), not to establish an ordinance. He said, "Do as I have done to you," not "Do what I have done to you." It was a lesson on humility and service they sorely needed.

13:9, 10. If a guest had bathed properly at home, only his feet needed cleansing. Jesus says the whole bath is not necessary because Peter has already been washed (saved). Jesus uses Peter's comment to suggest that a traitor was in their midst. One of them needs the whole bath, but it is not Peter. Washed (leloumenos) should be translated "bathed." The whole body needed this. Wash (nipsasthai) is properly translated. Only the hands and feet needed this. This same word is used in verses 5, 6, 8, 12, and 14. In verse 13, washing their feet did not mean that He was not their Lord; rather it showed that the work of the Lord was service (cf. Phil. 2:6-8).

11 For ^ahe knew who ¹should betray him; therefore said he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 “Ye call me ¹Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am.

14 “If I then, your Lord and ¹Master, have washed your feet; ^bye also ought to wash one another’s feet.

15 For ^aI have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you.

16 “Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his ¹lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him.

17 “If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.

Preparing for His Betrayal

18 I speak not of you all: I know whom I have chosen: but that the ^ascripture may be fulfilled, ^bHe that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel against me.

19 “Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.

13:28 ¹reason

13:14, 15. Wash one another’s feet: Jesus is merely setting an example, not establishing an ordinance. There is little evidence that the early church practiced foot-washing, except as a social custom. The practice is not mentioned in Acts. The only other mention in the New Testament is 1 Timothy 5:10, where widows may be provided for by the church only if they have practiced this custom specifically on the saints.

13:23. One of his disciples: The disciple whom Jesus loved was John. Peter beckoned to him to ask Jesus to identify the betrayer. Peter was carrying a sword (cf. 18:10). Perhaps he intended to use it on the culprit on this occasion.

13:26. A host would often distinguish an honored guest by giving him a choice morsel dipped in the sauce and placing it on his tongue. Contrast this with Judas’s kiss in the garden. Evidently only John heard the explanation of this act. See verse 28.

13:30. And it was night: Given the light versus darkness imagery in John’s writing, this observation should not go unnoticed. The Lord Jesus is about to engage the forces of darkness. This is the “hour” He has long awaited.

FOOT WASHING

13:10. Some denominations see the example of foot washing as a third ordinance of the church. Although early Christians washed feet as an act of hospitality (1 Tim. 5:10), they never practiced this as a church ordinance. The real meaning of Jesus’ actions was twofold. First, washing feet was a slave’s task, so Jesus washed the disciples’ feet out of humility, attempting to teach them the principle of servant leadership. Second, foot washing symbolized cleansing. Illustration: Although Christians are clean, having been “bathed” with the washing of regeneration (Titus 3:5), sins committed after salvation “soil our feet,” hindering our fellowship with God and renewing the need for a cleansing to restore fellowship. When a Christian senses sin in his life, he should confess this sin to God, who will forgive and cleanse (1 John 1:9). Application: Jesus said, “He that is washed”—referring to salvation—“needeth not save to wash his feet”—cleansing for renewed fellowship. He could not get saved again—“Ye are clean.” (First Reference, John 13:4-17; Primary Reference, John 13:10-17; cf. 1 Pet. 5:1-4.)

29 For some of them thought, because ^aJudas had the ¹bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of ²against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.

30 He then having received the ¹sop went immediately out: and it was night.

Peter to Deny Jesus

31 Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, ^aNow is the Son of man glorified, and ^bGod is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and ^ashall ¹straightway glorify him.

33 Little children, yet a ^alittle while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: ^band as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say to you.

34 ^aA new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 ^aBy this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I ^ago, thou canst not follow me now; but ^bthou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will ^alay down my life for thy sake.

13:31. Now ... glorified refers to Christ's death, burial, and resurrection (cf. 12:31).

13:37, 38. Peter's profession reveals his pride. Jesus predicts just the opposite response from Peter than Peter claims would occur. This is the second of three times when John contrasts Peter with Judas. See also chapters 6 and 18.

14:1. Let not your heart be troubled refers to Peter, Jesus having just told him of his imminent denial of his Lord (13:38). But the larger reference is to all the apostles, through whom Jesus is going to lay the foundation of the church. His comfort also includes instruction about His departure, the sending of the Holy Spirit, the promise of spiritual power, of answered prayer, and of peace, but especially the promise of His return.

14:6. Jesus does not tell them about the way, nor does He show them the way. He does not even guide them along the way. He says He is the way!

14:9. Seen me ... seen the Father: There are no

HEAVEN

14:2. Heaven is a place and the eternal hope of the saved. Scripture describes it as a beautiful city where the redeemed will live for eternity. The activities in heaven include singing (Rev. 15:3), worship (Rev. 5:9), serving (Rev. 22:3), ruling (2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 22:5), fellowship with others (Matt. 17:3), and eating (Rev. 2:17). Illustration: The quality of existence in heaven is a life of fellowship with God (Rev. 22:4), a life of rest (Rev. 14:13), a life of service (Rev. 22:3), a life of growth (Rev. 22:2), and a life of worship (Rev. 19:1). Application: The glories of heaven belong only to those who have personally trusted Christ for their salvation. Christians who work to win souls are gathering friends who will spend eternity with them in heaven. (First Reference, Gen. 1:1; Primary Reference, Rev. 21:1–5; cf. Is. 24:1.)

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? ^ahe that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

attributes of deity that the Son does not possess. This statement is most powerful. Everything that is true of God the Father is also true of the Son. The doctrine of the Trinity in the New Testament may be inscrutable, but it is also inescapable.

14:11. Works' sake: Jesus reiterates what He had said to the Pharisees (10:38), but here His words fall on receptive ears. The works have evidential value to the unsaved (to convince of the truth), and the saved (to assure them of the truth).

14:12. Greater works: Greater in quantity, certainly not quality. Christ's ministry was primarily to Israel. His followers were going to reach the limits of the world.

14:13, 14. In my name means "as My agent." The promise of answered prayer is based on the disciple acting as the agent of Jesus' will (cf. 16:23-26). It is also linked here especially in the accomplishment of the "greater works." The promise is for unlimited resources to do the works of God.

14:16. Another (allon) stresses that the Holy Spirit would be "another" like Jesus. A Comforter (Paraclete) is an advocate called alongside for aid in time of trouble. See the same word in 1 John 2:1, "Advocate."

14:17. The Spirit ... shall be in you: Compare with 7:37-39. The ministry of the Holy Spirit, promised to believers of this age, is unique since it is given to all believers alike, and is permanent (dwelleth, that is, "takes up residence"). See verse 23.

14:20. I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you (cf. 10:27-30): The believer is secure in Christ, and Christ is in God.

TRUTH OF GOD

14:6. The word truth is used in Scripture in two ways: true as contrasted with false; and genuine as contrasted with unreal. Although both apply to God, when we speak of the truth of God, normally His genuineness is contrasted with false gods of other religions. The Scriptures in this sense declare Him "the only true God" (John 17:3). Illustration: When Elijah confronted the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel, he challenged them to evaluate the genuineness of the Lord and of Baal (1 Kin. 18:21). The true God answered by fire. Application: Because the Lord is God, we are obligated to Him in all He demands. (First Reference, Deut. 32:4; Primary Reference, John 14:6; cf. Acts 17:31.)

COMFORTER

14:16. The Greek word paraklētos literally means "one called alongside to help," hence the idea of a comforter. The Holy Spirit is called another comforter because this is also one of Christ's titles (1 John 2:1, transl. "advocate"). Illustration: The Father is also known as The God of All Comfort (2 Cor. 1:3). Though those in the early church often endured persecutions, they found their comfort in the Holy Spirit (Acts 9:31). Application: Today, Christians can find comfort in the Holy Spirit when trials come. (First Reference, John 7:37-39; Primary Reference, John 14:16-18; cf. John 7:39.)

15 I am the ¹true vine, and my Father is the ²husbandman.

2 ^aEvery branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit, he ¹purgeth it, that it may bring forth ^bmore fruit.

3 ^aNow ye are clean ¹through the word which I have spoken unto you.

4 ^aAbide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much ^afruit: for without me ye can do ^bnothing.

15:4 ^aJohn 17:23; Eph. 3:17; [Col. 1:23]

15:5 ^aHos. 14:8; [Gal. 5:22, 23] ^b2 Cor. 3:5

14:23. If a man love me ... we will come ... and make our abode: The divine indwelling is conditional on love, and obedience to Jesus' words. The Word of the gospel is primarily (though not exclusively) in view here.

14:26. Comforter ... whom ... he: The Holy Spirit is a person, not a force. Bring ... to your remembrance: The Holy Spirit would enable the apostles to remember all the words and works of Jesus when they were writing the New Testament.

14:28. My Father is greater than I (cf. vv. 7–11): The Father is greater in authority, not being. See also 1 Corinthians 15:27, 28.

14:30. The prince of this world is the Devil (cf. 12:31; 16:11): Perhaps Jesus is referring to Judas, that is, the Devil within him (cf. 13:27).

15:1–16:4. In John 14 Jesus tells His disciples what He would be doing for them, and in John 15 He tells them what they would be doing for Him. Probably the words of chapters 15 and 16 are spoken as they walk from the upper room (14:31) through the streets of Jerusalem toward Gethsemane (18:1).

15:1–9. Jesus explains the divine-human relationships by the analogy of a grapevine. Jesus is like the main vine. The disciples are compared with branches. The Father tends the branches like a gardener. At that time of year, branches of grapevines would be budding in Jerusalem.

15:2. Taketh away: He is not dealing here with the loss of salvation, but with the bearing of fruit (cf. Gal. 5:22–26).

UNION WITH CHRIST

15:5. The uniqueness of the Christian experience results from the union of Christ and the believer. This is expressed in Scripture as Christ being in the believer and the believer in Christ. Ten times Paul uses the Greek preposition sun ("together") to describe this relationship. Believers were crucified (Gal. 2:20), dead (Col. 2:20), buried (Rom. 6:4), quickened or made alive (Eph. 2:1–5; Col. 2:13), raised (Col. 3:1; Eph. 2:6), seated (Eph. 2:6), and glorified (Rom. 8:17) together with Christ. Illustration: Jesus used the image of the vine and its branches to describe His union with the believer. Application: On the basis of this union, the apostle Paul showed how the successful Christian life can be opened with four key words in Romans 6: know (v. 6), reckon (v. 11), yield (v. 13), and obey (v. 17). The Christian can conquer sin because Christ lives in him (Gal. 2:20). (First Reference, John 7:37, 38; Primary Reference, John 15:1–5; cf. 1 John 5:13.)

6 If a man abide not in me, ^ahe is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words ^aabide in you, ^bye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done ¹unto you.

8 ^aHerein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; ^bso shall ye be my disciples.

9 As the Father hath ^aloved me, so have I loved you: ¹continue ye in my love.

10 ^aIf ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and ^athat your joy might be full.

12 ^aThis is my ^bcommandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 ^aGreater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 ^aYe are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; ^afor all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 ^aYe have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ^bordained¹ you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father ^ain my name, he may give it you.

17 These things I command you, that ye love one another.

The World Will Hate Jesus' Followers

18 ^aIf the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 ^aIf ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but ^bbecause ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 Remember the word that I said unto you, ^aThe servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; ^bif they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also.

21 But ^aall these things will they do unto you for my name's sake, because they know not him that sent me.

22 ^aIf I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: ^bbut now they have no ¹cloke for their sin.

23 ^aHe that hateth me hateth my Father also.

24 If I had not done among them ^athe works which none other man did, they had not had sin: but now have they both ^bseen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to pass, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, ^aThey hated me without a cause.

26 ^aBut when the ¹Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, ^bhe shall testify of me:

27 And ^aye also shall bear witness, because ^bye have been with me from the beginning.

Words of Warning

16 These things have I spoken unto you, that ye ^ashould not be ¹offended.

16:1 ^aMatt. 11:6 ¹made to stumble

15:6. This refers to the judgment of believers at the judgment seat of Christ (2 Cor. 5:10).

15:7. See the note on 14:13, 14.

15:10-17. Several results of obedience are indicated here: (1) abiding in His love (v. 10); (2) full joy (v. 11); (3) love for one another (vv. 12, 13, 17; cf. 13:34, 35); (4) friends, not servants (vv. 14, 15); (5) fruit remains (v. 16); and (6) answered prayer (v. 16).

15:16. I have chosen you: By Christ's appointment, not by their choice, they were taken out of the world (v. 19) and sent out to bear fruit.

15:26, 27. The Comforter refers to the Advocate beside us as we bear witness to Christ (cf. 14:15, 16). Compare verse 27 with John 18:21. See also Luke 1:2. Proceedeth: The Holy Spirit, like the Son, is God from God. The Son is "generated" or "begotten," whereas the Holy Spirit "proceeds" from God. Again, while the Trinitarian relationships are a mystery to us, they are nonetheless very evident in the New Testament.

2 “They shall put you out of the synagogues: yea, the time cometh, ^bthat whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service.

3 And ^athese things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me.

4 But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. And these things I said not unto you at the beginning, because I was with you.

5 But now I ^ago my way to him that sent me; and none of you asketh me, Whither goest thou?

6 But because I have said these things unto you, ^asorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth; It is ¹expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the ²Comforter will not come unto you; but ^aif I depart, I will send him unto you.

8 And when he is ^acome, he will ¹reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment:

9 ^aOf sin, because they believe not on me;

10 ^aOf righteousness, ^bbecause I go to my Father; and ye see me no more;

11 ^aOf judgment, because ^bthe ¹prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to say unto you, ^abut ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit when he, ^athe Spirit of truth, is come, ^bhe will guide you 16:2. This verse refers to the fulfillment of the prophecy. See Acts 7:57–60.

16:8–11. The work of the Holy Spirit is to reprove (elegchō), to point out a fault or an error, or to expose something as it really is (cf. 3:20). The Holy Spirit reproves concerning three topics. (1) Sin (v. 9): the Holy Spirit reveals the need of redemption. Because they believe not on me: the greatest sin is unbelief (3:18), while the greatest work is belief (6:29). (2) Righteousness (v. 10): the Holy Spirit reveals the possibility of redemption. Because I go to my Father: Christ goes to the Father after a righteous life, and a death that will impute this righteousness to others. (3) Judgment (v. 11): the Holy Spirit reveals the reality of redemption. Because the prince of this world is judged: the power of Christ to judge Satan and to overthrow his kingdom is not future, but at the Cross and the Resurrection. “Is judged” (kekritai) means “has been judged” (cf. 13:31). For “the prince of this world” see also 12:31 and 14:30.

PROCESSION OF THE SPIRIT

15:26. The action of the word translated “proceedeth” is “in the process”—“continually proceeds.” The eternal procession of the Spirit means that He continually proceeds from beside, not out of, the Father. If the Holy Spirit came out of God, He would be less than God. To be more specific, the Holy Spirit not only proceeds from the Father, but also from the Son. This means the Father and the Son continually send the Holy Spirit. This in no way suggests the Spirit is less in deity than are the Father or Son. Instead it explains the relationship among the three eternal persons of the Trinity. Illustration: Just as Jesus came to do the will of His Father, so the Holy Spirit is sent to speak not of Himself, but of Christ (16:13). Application: In this sense the Holy Spirit is the Promise of the Father who has been given to every Christian (Acts 1:4; 2:39). (First Reference, John 15:26; Primary Reference, John 15:26; cf. Gen. 1:2.)

CONVICTION OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

16:8. The word conviction embraces a number of biblical expressions in its meaning. Originally it derived from two Latin terms meaning “cause to see.” The New Testament uses the terms reproof, conviction, and illumination to communicate the ministry of the Holy Spirit whereby He causes the individual to “see” (understand) truth. Illustration: When the Holy Spirit came at Pentecost, many who had no prior conviction of sin were convicted by the Holy Spirit, which led to their salvation (Acts 2:36, 37). Application: Christians today should also depend upon this ministry of the Holy Spirit to help them understand truth and respond accordingly. (First Reference, Gen. 6:3; Primary Reference, John 16:8; cf. 2 Thess. 2:7.)

PERSONALITY OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

16:13. The Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity—equal with the Father and Son in essence, separate in person, and submissive in duties. Since one major aspect of God’s nature is that He is a person, it follows that the Holy Spirit is a person. The Scriptures clarify this by ascribing the attributes of personality to the Holy Spirit, addressing Him as a person, describing the personal actions of the Holy Spirit, and ascribing masculine pronouns to the Holy Spirit (John 14:17; 16:13). Illustration: Ananias and Sapphira lost their lives in a foolish attempt to deceive the Holy Spirit. This was because He is a divine person who is omniscient, omnipresent, and omnipotent. Application: Because He is God, the Holy Spirit is worthy of receiving believers’ adoration, love, and worship; also, the Christian can engage in fellowship with the Holy Spirit. (First Reference, Gen. 1:2; Primary Reference, John 14—16.)

17:1–26. This is the real “Lord’s Prayer” and is often called the High Priestly Prayer of Christ, because He prays first for Himself and then for His own—the Twelve, in verse 6, and all who will believe, in verse 20.

17:1. His hour had finally come (cf. 2:4; 7:8–30; 8:20). This refers not only to His death, but also to His resurrection and exaltation. Glorify refers to the Cross and the Resurrection. Verse 2 means that the giving of eternal life directly depended on the glorification of the Son.

17:3. Eternal life is more than an endless existence. It is a personal relationship with God.

17:4. I have finished (teleiosas) means “I have made perfect or completed.” This verb is in the active voice, indicating Christ had finished His active ministry (cf. 4:34). He now assumes a passive role. In 19:30 (“It is finished”) the passive voice suggests that He has by then finished His passive ministry as well.

17:5. Jesus gives clear testimony to His preexistence (cf. 1:1).

17:12. The son of perdition was Judas (cf. 2 Thess. 2:3).

GLORIFICATION OF CHRIST

17:5. The celestial glory that Jesus had from the beginning was temporarily hidden (veiled) during His earthly life. At the ascension of Christ, Jesus was both glorified and transfigured. Illustration: It is interesting to contrast the post-resurrection appearances of Christ with the post-ascension revelations. In the former, Christ often concealed His glory to the point that He was not recognized, such as by the disciples at Emmaus (Luke 24:16, 31), or by Mary Magdalene who thought He was the gardener (20:14). The post-ascension revelations involve His radiant appearance. The difference between John’s meeting with Christ in John 21 and in Revelation 1 was that of seeing the Resurrection body (not glorified) and of later seeing the transformed and celestial body (glorified). Application: Someday Christians will also be glorified together with Christ (Rom. 8:17). (First Reference, John 17:1; Primary Reference, Rev. 1:13–16; cf. 1 John 2:1.)

INERRANCY

17:17. When applied to Scripture, the term inerrancy means that what God revealed and inspired is accurate, reliable, authoritative, and without error. Since all Scripture is inspired, every Word of God is true. Just as a book often reflects the character of its writer, so the Scripture is without error because God is without fault. Illustration: Jesus upheld the principle of inerrancy when He preached in Nazareth. He carefully stopped reading in the middle of a verse before announcing the fulfillment of Scripture that day (cf. Is. 61:1, 2; Luke 4:18). The rest of the Isaiah passage will be fulfilled at His second coming. Application: As we read the Scriptures, we can have total confidence in their reliability and accuracy. (First Reference, Ps. 119:160; Primary Reference, John 17:17; cf. Jer. 36:27.)

18 “As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And “for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.

Jesus’ Prayer for Believers

20 Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word;

21 “That they all may be one; as ^bthou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the “glory which thou gavest me I have given them; ^bthat they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, “that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 “Father, I ¹will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: ^bfor thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, “the world hath not known thee: but ^bI have known thee, and ^cthese have known that thou hast sent me.

26 “And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love ^bwherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

Betrayal in the Garden

18 When Jesus had spoken these words, “he went forth with his disciples over ^bthe brook ¹Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his disciples.

2 And Judas also, which betrayed him, knew the place: “for Jesus ¹oft-times resorted thither with his disciples.

3 “Judas then, having received a ¹band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, cometh thither with lanterns and torches and weapons.

4 Jesus therefore, “knowing all things that should come upon him, went forth, and said unto them, Whom seek ye?

5 They answered him, “Jesus ¹of Nazareth. Jesus saith unto them, I am he. And Judas also, which ^bbetrayed him, stood with them.

6 As soon then as he had said unto them, I am he, they ¹went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then asked he them again, Whom seek ye? And they said, Jesus of Nazareth.

8 Jesus answered, I have told you that I am he: if therefore ye seek me, let these go their way:

18:9 ^a [John 6:39; 17:12]

17:17. Sanctify means to “set apart” or “separate for God’s purposes.”

17:18. Sent me ... sent them means the mission of the church, corresponding to that of Christ. Their tasks are alike—in fact, in purpose, and in results, as this prayer shows.

17:21. They ... may be one conveys spiritual unity, not organizational unity (cf. 1 Cor. 12:13; 2 Cor. 1:11; Eph. 2:19; 4:3–16; Heb. 10:25).

18:1—19:42. The passion (suffering) narrative was probably the first portion of Christ’s life and ministry to be recorded. It circulated orally for several years before it was put into writing. It was developed because an understanding of Jesus’ death was so vital to the preaching of the early church. The early disciples were forced by the nature of the case to explain why the innocent Savior was crucified as a criminal. The story they told revealed not only the blameless passion of Jesus, but also the evil passions of the men who caused His death.

18:1. The brook Cedron is a ravine on the east side of Jerusalem toward the Mount of Olives. The “garden” was Gethsemane, though John does not give its name. Nor does he give an account of Jesus’ prayer there, or of the disciples’ sleepiness (cf. Matt. 26:36–46).

18:2–4. Judas brought the band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees (the Sanhedrin) with lanterns, torches (it was night), and weapons. They hunted the Light of the World with flickering lanterns and torches. Band of men is a Roman cohort (three hundred to six hundred Roman soldiers). John’s account of the betrayal and arrest does not mention Judas’s kiss. It does, however, supply many other interesting details not given in the synoptic Gospels. Jesus knew the future; He knew they sought Him.

18:5–8. I am (egō eimi) recalls His earlier use of this expression (see Introduction).

18:9. Fulfilled: Compare with 17:12.

Jesus Is Questioned About His Doctrine

18:10, 11. Only John gives us the name of the disciple who cut off the servant's ear. It was Peter. (Peter and John were often together—see Introduction.) And only John gives us the servant's name (Malchus), yet he does not record the healing of Malchus's ear. See Luke 22:51.

18:12–27. There were three stages of this Jewish trial: (1) a preliminary arraignment before Annas, given only by John here; (2) an informal trial before Caiaphas and the Sanhedrin before dawn (v. 24), reported fully in Matthew 26:57–68 and Mark 14:53–65; (3) a formal trial by the Sanhedrin after dawn, reported fully in Luke 22:66–71, and briefly mentioned in Matthew 27:1 and Mark 15:11.

18:15. Another disciple was probably John.

18:24. John does not record Jesus' arraignment before Caiaphas (cf. Matt. 26:57).

18:25–27. Peter's denials were predicted by Jesus

I AM

18:6. In the Gospel of John, Jesus says "I Am" seven times while revealing Himself as the Bread of Life (6:35); the Light of the World (8:12); the Door (10:9); the Good Shepherd (10:11); the Resurrection and the Life (11:25); the Way, the Truth, and the Life (14:6); and the Vine (15:5). His use of "I Am" without a predicate complement (4:26; 8:24; 18:5, 6, 8) demonstrates His identity with Yahweh in the Old Testament, who was first revealed to Moses as "I AM THAT I AM" (Ex. 3:14). Illustration: Yahweh was the covenant name of God in the Old Testament and was most often used to express God's relationship with His people. Jesus took on human flesh that He might bring humanity into an everlasting relationship with God. Application: All of our needs in the Christian life, from salvation through glorification, are met in the "I Am." (First Reference, Ex. 3:13, 14; Primary Reference, John 18:6; cf. John 1:1.)

Jesus Is Brought Before Pilate

28 “Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the ¹hall of judgment: and it was early; ²and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the passover.

31 Then said Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

37 Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou ¹sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, ^athat I should bear ^bwitness unto the truth. Every one that ^cis of the truth ^dheareth my voice.

in 13:38 (cf. 21:15–17; also Matt. 26:69–75; Mark 14:66–72; Luke 22:54–62).

18:28–19:15. This Roman trial, although certainly unjust, was probably technically legal, since Christ was not a Roman citizen with legal rights.

18:28–31. Defiled: They will not enter the house of a Gentile and thus cause ceremonial defilement—but they are willing to commit murder. When Pilate asks for the accusation, they admit there is none deserving of death by Roman law (vv. 30, 31). Pilate realizes that Jesus has been delivered to him on account of their jealousy.

18:32. Fulfilled: This is a fulfillment of 12:32, 33. If the Jews, rather than the Romans, had slain

Him, it would have been by stoning.

18:35–38. Pilate’s only concern is whether Jesus has incited rebellion against Rome. Jesus’ answers show this is not the case. For this reason Pilate finds no fault with Him.

19:1–3. Scourging (whipping) often preceded crucifixion. The Roman flagellum consisted of a whip, split into several strips, into which sharp bones were embedded so as to cut the flesh. The crown of thorns, the purple robe, and the mocking Hail were used to ridicule His claim to be a king (cf. 18:36). When the soldiers hit Him in the face and body it was probably with their fists (contrast with 18:22).

6 “When the chief priests therefore and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because ^bhe made himself the Son of God.

8 When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment hall, and saith unto Jesus, ¹Whence art thou? ^aBut Jesus gave him no answer.

10 Then saith Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? knowest thou not that I have ¹power to crucify thee, and have ¹power to release thee?

11 Jesus answered, “Thou couldst have no ¹power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore ^bhe that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him: but the Jews cried out, saying, If thou let this man go, thou art not Caesar’s friend: “whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Caesar.

13 “When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 And “it was the preparation of the passover, and about the sixth hour: and he saith unto the Jews, Behold your King!

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him.

Pilate saith unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The chief priests answered, “We have no king but Caesar.

Jesus Is Crucified at Golgotha

17 ^aAnd he bearing his cross ^bwent forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha:

18 Where they crucified him, and ^atwo other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the ¹midst.

19 “And Pilate wrote a title, and put it on the cross. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified was ¹nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the chief priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written I have written.

23 “Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also his ¹coat: now the ¹coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout.

24 They said therefore among themselves, Let us not ¹rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled, which saith, “They parted my ²raiment among them, and for my ³vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.

19:7. Here the Jews acknowledge the real reason they favor Christ’s crucifixion: He claimed to be God, and they were accusing Him of blasphemy (Lev. 24:16).

19:9. No answer: Compare to Isaiah 53:7.

19:10, 11. Pilate’s assertion and Jesus’ response are reminiscent of Jesus’ third exchange with Satan (Matt. 4:8–10). God alone is Sovereign of the universe.

19:14. The preparation was on Friday before the Sabbath, so that no work would have to be done on the Sabbath. The sixth hour: John uses Roman time, which would be six o’clock in the morning.

19:15. No king but Caesar is said by the chief priests or Sadducees (politicians). Would any Pharisee have been willing to make such a blasphemous statement when God alone was to have been their King?

19:17. Jesus carries His own cross, as was the custom, to the place of a skull or Golgotha (cf. Matt. 27:33). His path through Jerusalem has been called the Via Dolorosa (“Sorrowful Way”).

19:18–27. These verses record the first three hours on the cross, from nine o’clock in the morning to noon.

19:23. This is a fulfillment of Psalm 22:18. Psalm 22 is a messianic Psalm. See especially verses 1a, 7, 8, 14–18.

25 “Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother’s sister, Mary the wife of ^bCleophas,¹ and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and ^athe disciple standing by, whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, ^bWoman, behold thy son!

27 Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her ^aunto his own home.

Joseph and Nicodemus Bury Jesus

38 ^aAnd after this Joseph of Arimathaea, being a disciple of Jesus, but secretly ^bfor fear of the Jews, ^bbesought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jesus: and Pilate gave him ²leave. He came therefore, and took the body of Jesus.

39 And there came also ^aNicodemus, which at the first came to Jesus by night, and brought a mixture of ^bmyrrh and aloes, about an hundred ¹pound weight.

19:25. Four women attend the Crucifixion, and they remain while the disciples flee (except for John, who returns). Several women, including these mentioned here, have accompanied Jesus and His disciples on their journeys, taking care of their daily needs.

19:28–30. These verses record the second three hours on the cross from noon to three in the afternoon. Here is the fulfillment of Psalm 69:21. Notice that the only words Jesus spoke indicating pain or discomfort were I thirst. It was not that He did not suffer, but only that He did not complain.

19:30. It is finished: His passive (Lat. patior, “suffering”) ministry is now completed. (See the note on 17:4.) The words of Jesus on the cross are significant: The first words concern the Roman soldiers who were crucifying Him: “Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do” (Luke 23:34). The second statement is made to the penitent thief: “To day shalt thou be with me in paradise” (Luke 23:43). The third statement comes while looking at His grief-stricken mother: “Woman, behold thy son!” To John He says, “Behold thy mother!” (vv. 26, 27). The fourth cry is addressed to God at the ninth hour and comes from Psalm 22: “My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?” (Matt. 27:46; Mark 15:34). The fifth statement is

“I thirst” (v. 28), followed by His taking of vinegar from a sponge. The sixth cry is “It is finished” (v. 30). (See comments on 17:4.) The seventh cry was addressed to His Father: “Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit” (Luke 23:46).

19:31. The preparation was Friday, the day before the sabbath (cf. vv. 14, 42). (See especially Mark 15:42.) It was a high day because it was the Sabbath during the Passover week. The Jews did not mind putting an innocent man to death, even the Son of God, but they were very careful not to break the Sabbath.

19:36. A bone of him shall not be broken is a fulfillment of Psalm 34:20. It was also a requirement of the Passover lamb (Ex. 12:46; Num. 9:12) that no bone be broken. Christ is our Passover according to 1 Corinthians 5:7. Compare this with John 1:29, where John calls Him the Lamb of God.

19:37. This verse fulfills Zechariah 12:10.

19:38. The other gospels tell us that Joseph of Arimathaea was rich (Matt. 27:57), and that this accomplishment required boldness (Mark 15:43). Joseph was likely a member of the Sanhedrin. See Luke 23:51.

19:39. Nicodemus did the only anointing of Jesus’ body before the burial (cf. 12:3, 7). Jesus was raised before the women arrived on Sunday with the spices.

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and ^awound¹ it in linen ²clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new ¹sepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 ^aThere laid they Jesus therefore ^bbecause of the Jews' preparation day; for the sepulchre was ¹nigh at hand.

20 The ^afirst day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the ¹sepulchre, and seeth the ^bstone taken away from the sepulchre.

2 Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the ^aother disciple, ^bwhom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the ¹sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 ^aPeter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and ¹came to the sepulchre.

4 So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulchre.

5 And he stooping down, and looking in, saw ^athe linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulchre, and seeth the linen clothes lie,

7 And ^athe ¹napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but ²wrapped together in a place by itself.

Mary Magdalene Sees Jesus

11 ^aBut Mary stood ¹without at the sepulchre weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre,

12 And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 ^aAnd when she had thus said, she turned ¹herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and ^bknew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have ¹borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, ^aMary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, ¹Master.

17 Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ^aascended to my Father: but go to ^bmy brethren, and say unto them, ^cI ascend unto my 19:40. Notice that Jesus' body was wound, not mummy style, but with linen cloths lengthwise, from head to foot, according to the Jewish custom. Lazarus was also wrapped this way, but Lazarus was unable to free himself (11:44) because his hands and feet were tied together.

19:41. The other gospels tell us it was Joseph's sepulchre (Matt. 27:59, 60).

19:42. This work of Joseph and Nicodemus prevented the body of Jesus from being thrown into the valley of Hinnom, as was often the case with the bodies of unclaimed crucified criminals.

20:1–21:25. John records four post-resurrection appearances of Jesus to His followers: to Mary Magdalene outside the tomb on Resurrection morning (20:1–18); to 10 disciples in the Upper Room—Thomas is absent (20:19–23); to 11 disciples in the Upper Room (20:24–29); and to seven disciples in Galilee (21:1–25).

20:1–10. Several other women were present on this first visit (cf. Matt. 28:1–8; Mark 16:1–8; and Luke 24:1–12). His clothes lay in an orderly fashion. Had His body been stolen, the grave-clothes would not have been left.

20:8, 9. Believed. For as yet they knew not: They believed Jesus was alive, not yet knowing the details of His resurrection.

20:11, 12. This was Mary's second visit (vv. 11–18; cf. Mark 16:9–11).

20:17. Touch me not is a present imperative, forbidding the continuation of an action already begun. "Stop clinging to me" is a helpful paraphrase. Compare with verse 27, where, one week later, we

Father, and your Father; and to ^amy God, and your God.

18 ^aMary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

20:19. This was Sunday evening of the Resurrection. The doors are shut, and Jesus appears in His Resurrection body. Evidently He could appear, disappear, pass through material, and defy the law of gravity (as He did at the Ascension) in His Resurrection body.

21 Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: "as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe.

26 And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and ^areach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not ^bfaithless, ¹ but believing.

Jesus' Appearance by the Sea

21 After these things Jesus shewed himself again to the disciples at the ^asea of Tiberias; and ¹on this wise shewed he himself.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and ^aThomas called Didymus, and ^bNathanael of ^cCana in Galilee, and ^dthe sons of Zebedee, and two other of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter saith unto them, I ¹go a fishing. They say unto him, We also go with thee. They went forth, and entered into ²a ship immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: but the disciples ^aknew not that it was Jesus.

5 Then ^aJesus saith unto them, Children, have ye any ¹meat? They answered him, No.

6 And he said unto them, ^aCast the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. They cast therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore ^athat disciple whom Jesus loved saith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he ¹girt his fisher's coat unto him, (for he ²was naked,) and did cast himself into the sea.

8 And the other disciples came in a little ship; (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits,) dragging the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus saith unto them, Bring ¹of the fish which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and 20:22. Here the disciples are anointed by the Holy Spirit preliminary to Acts 2. This corresponds to the Holy Spirit's special ministries in the Old Testament. Such ministries were for special tasks. Soon the Holy Spirit would come and permanently abide with them (Acts 2).

20:23. Remit ... sins: This is a divine prerogative (cf. Mark 2:7). The anointing of the Holy Spirit makes this possible.

20:28. Lord ... God: These words from Thomas form the climax to John's gospel and summarize its theme.

20:30, 31. John tells us here he wrote this gospel for purposes of conversion, that ye might believe, and of sanctification, that believing ye might have life.

21:7. Naked (i.e., stripped for work): Peter was wearing no outer garment. He swam the hundred yards to shore.

21:8. Little ship is the small skiff attached to the main fishing vessel.

drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus saith unto them, “Come and¹ dine. And none of the disciples ²durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jesus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now ^athe third time that Jesus shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead.

15 So when they had ¹dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I ²love thee. He saith unto him, “Feed my lambs.

17 He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, ¹lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, “¹ Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, ^a“thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I ²love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

When thou wast young, thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldst: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldst not.

19 This spake he, signifying ^aby what death he should glorify God. And when he had spoken this, he saith unto him, ^bFollow me.

20 Then Peter, turning about, seeth the disciple ^awhom Jesus loved following; ^bwhich also leaned on his breast at supper, and said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and ¹what shall this man do?

22 Jesus saith unto him, If I will that he ¹tarry^a till I come, what is that to thee? follow thou me.

23 Then went this saying abroad among the brethren, that that disciple should not die: yet Jesus said not unto him, He shall not die; but, If I ¹will that he ²tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

24 This is the disciple which ^atestifieth of these things, and wrote these things: and we know that his testimony is true.

25 ^aAnd there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they should be written ¹every one, ^bI suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Amen.

21:14. This is the third appearance to the disciples, although there had been appearances to other people (cf. comments after 20:18).

21:15–17. This interview was probably conducted within the hearing of the other six disciples. Peter had publicly professed his loyalty before the Crucifixion and Jesus wants the other disciples to understand Peter's restoration. Jesus uses his old name Simon, not “Rock,” his new spiritual name. More than these is a reference to the other disciples (cf. Matt. 26:33, where Peter claimed he would be loyal when all others failed). Jesus repeats the question three times, no doubt to remind Peter of his three denials of his Lord.

21:18, 19. Jesus predicts the manner of Peter's death. A late tradition suggests that Peter was crucified upside down in Rome by Nero (c. A.D. 68), but this is questionable since it is not recorded until the fourth century.

21:20–23. Perhaps John added this account to counteract a commonly believed notion that Jesus had predicted that John would not die. He did outlive all of the other disciples. In fact, all of the others were probably dead by the time John wrote this beloved gospel in about A.D. 85.

DOUBLE VERILIES

21:18. Twenty-five times in the Gospel of John, Jesus uses the expression Verily, verily to introduce a concept the hearer might have difficulty believing. This intensive expression emphasized that what was stated was true just as God is true. In the Old Testament, a person who might be doubted would use such an expression to insist that he was telling the truth (Num. 5:22). Illustration: In the New Testament, Peter confessed he found some of Paul's epistles hard to understand; nevertheless he accepted them with the other Scriptures (2 Pet. 3:15, 16). Application: When a Christian approaches his Bible, he should do so with a commitment to believe the whole Word of God and not just part of it. (First Reference, John 1:51; Primary Reference, John 21:18; cf. Rom. 1:17.)

THE ACTS

of the Apostles

Theme. The Acts of the Apostles is a unique and therefore crucial book of the New Testament. It alone presents an extensive picture of early church life and history. The title as we know it comes from the second century and only partially discloses the theme of the document. The book focuses primarily on the acts of two apostles, Peter and Paul. And it proposes to show the continuation “of all that Jesus began both to do and teach” (1:1). It contains the acts Jesus carried out after His ascension, through the Holy Spirit, in establishing the church. The author evidently follows the Great Commission in developing this theme, showing the beginning in Jerusalem, the outreach to Judea and Samaria, and the expansion to the distant city of Rome (1:8).

Authorship. Verse 1 demonstrates clearly that the unnamed author of Acts is the same person as the unnamed author of the third gospel (cf. Luke 1:3 with Acts 1:1, 2). The Gospel of Luke and the Book of Acts form a single, two-volume work. The author quite certainly was Luke for the following reasons: First, the author was a companion of Paul. The best evidence for this is contained in the three “we” passages where the author, by using the first person plural pronoun, evidently places himself into the narrative with Paul (16:10–17; 20:5–21:18; 27:1–28:16). The author distinguishes himself from Paul’s other companions in Acts by naming them. Of Paul’s unnamed companions only Titus and Luke could have been with Paul during each of the three “we” passages. As the Book of Acts closes, the author places himself beside Paul at the Roman imprisonment. Paul in his epistle states that Luke, not Titus, was with him at that time (Philem. 24). Second, the author gives some evidence of being a physician by the attention he gives to medical detail (Luke 8:43) and the technical Greek terms he uses (3:7). Luke was called “the beloved physician” (Col. 4:14). Third, the early church writers attribute the third gospel and the Book of Acts to Luke. Since Luke is an otherwise little-known figure, there is no logical reason to attribute the authorship to him, unless he is in fact the author.

Date. Luke nowhere mentions the date for the writing of this document, yet the manner in which he closes the book suggests a date. Luke stops abruptly after mentioning the duration of Paul’s Roman imprisonment. He mentions neither the progress of the church nor the plans of Paul. Therefore, it seems as if Luke stops where the history ends; he describes the events up to the current time. If so, the date is about A.D. 62.

Purpose. Luke wrote to convince Theophilus of the “certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed” (Luke 1:4). Theophilus was probably a Gentile official who had been won to Christ, and Luke desires that he may understand more clearly the historical events that underlie his Christian faith and practice.

Second, Luke’s purpose is not to write the history of the early church. Nothing is said of the spread of the gospel eastward or even southward into Egypt. Virtually nothing is recorded for large segments of time (e.g., A.D. 35–44). Luke is not a chronicler seeking to record every event. But he does write a history that shows the beginning and spread of the church. He focuses on the important initial events and those that give meaning to the epistles of Paul by tracing Paul's ministry. Chronologically, the book divides into three periods: (1) Luke concentrates on the several years involved in the beginnings of the church among the Jews (ch. 2), the Samaritans (ch. 8), and the Gentiles at Caesarea (ch. 10), from 1:1 to 11:18. (2) A period of virtual silence covering about 10 years follows. Glimpses of these times can be caught in 9:31 and 11:19–21. (3) The period A.D. 44–62 focuses around the ministry of Paul, and so might be designated the Pauline period.

Third, Luke wrote to provide a unity between Christ's works in the gospels and the apostles' labors after His ascension. That which Theophilus experienced in his church in A.D. 60 was vastly different from all he had read in Luke's gospel. Acts explains those changes. It shows the transition from Christ's message of a coming kingdom to the apostles' message of one new body of Jew and Gentile in Christ, called the church (Eph. 2:11–3:12). Often the experiences of Acts reveal a transitional event rather than advocate a doctrinal truth. The apostles in their epistles explain the doctrinal truths that are intended to be normative for God's people today. Thus, Luke's purpose in Acts is more to provide a bridge for understanding these changes than to provide a basis for universal doctrinal truth.

Finally, Luke wrote to show to the Roman world that Christianity is not a subversive political movement. Unlike some of the Jews of Judea, Christians were not seeking to overthrow Rome. Though they spoke of another King and rejected the emperor as "lord," they submitted to political authority. Though the apostles were often imprisoned, they were always exonerated. Sometimes God Himself intervened (5:18–20; 9:1–5; 12:5–10; 16:24–26; 28:3–6); other times the governmental authority did (16:35–39; 18:12–17; 19:37–41; 23:29; 26:32). But each time they were vindicated.

Application. Few biblical books are as misused as the Book of Acts. Some denominations have collected their distinctive and divisive teachings from their interpretation of Acts. The Book of Acts provides examples of how to do things but also how not to do them, of what to do but also what not to do. We cannot properly interpret the Book of Acts by merely teaching the experiences the apostles had. We must experience the things they taught. The apostles taught out of their experiences, and we ought to do the same thing. When the apostles experienced something early in the church age, yet later taught contrary principles, we must realize God does not desire us to practice that today. For example, the apostles cast lots in Acts 1; we should not, for we possess the inner leading of God's Spirit (Rom. 8:14, 26, 27; Gal. 5:18). The early church shared all things communally (chs. 2, 4). We are instructed to be faithful stewards who freely and cheerfully share (2 Cor. 9:6–8). Some regard the absence of musical instruments in Acts as a mandate to exclude them from church services today. The apostles do not so instruct us. Some teach us to receive the Holy Spirit as in Acts 2; others, as in Acts 10. The apostles teach, however, that everyone who receives Christ also receives the Spirit (Rom. 8:9; 1 Cor. 12:13; Eph. 1:13; 1 John 3:24; 4:13). "We must not make the tragic spiritual mistake of 'teaching the experiences of the apostles,' but rather 'experience the teachings of the apostles'" (Laurin, Acts: Life in Action, p. 157).

OUTLINE OF ACTS

1:1. The former treatise must refer to Luke's gospel. Both books were written to an otherwise unknown Theophilus. Theophilus probably was a Roman official, since Luke designates him as "most excellent Theophilus" (Luke 1:3). The Greek term (kratistos) is used only three other times in the New Testament. Each of these is used to address a Roman official: Felix (23:26; 24:3) and Festus (26:25). In the Book of Acts Luke continues the ministry of Christ he began in his gospel. Christ's ministry in Acts is carried on by His Spirit through His disciples.

1:3. For some specific proofs see Luke 24:36-43.

1:4, 5. Compare Luke's gospel account of John the Baptist's words where a baptism of fire is also predicted (Luke 3:16, 17). Christ excluded that work from what would shortly occur on Pentecost, for it refers to a more remote work involving judgment (cf. Luke 3:17).

1:6-8. The disciples' question concerning the nearness of Christ's literal kingdom is not incongruous with Old Testament promises (Is. 9:6, 7; Dan. 2:44, 45), nor with the gospel teachings (Luke 19:11; 21:31; 22:18). Jesus does not rebuke or correct the question as if the disciples had misunderstood God's kingdom program. The words restore again the kingdom to Israel imply four facts: (1) this kingdom had once literally existed with Israel; (2) this kingdom is not now present; (3) this kingdom will come in God's unrevealed time (cf. Matt. 24:36, 42); and (4) this kingdom will be the same, literal kingdom that once existed, only now with the promised Christ as King.

1:8. The first part of this verse is better translated, "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you." The disciples were to be concerned with world evangelism and discipleship. This Great Commission still applies today since the promise underlying it, the Holy Spirit, still applies (cf. Matt. 28:20). This commission may also provide the key to Luke's plan in developing the Book of Acts: witness in Jerusalem (chs. 1-7), witness throughout Judaea and Samaria (chs. 8-12), and witness to the distant parts of the earth (chs. 13-28).

Jesus' Ascension into Heaven

9 ^aAnd when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, ^bhe was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight.

10 And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them ^ain white apparel;

11 Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, ^ashall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

The Upper Room

12 ^aThen returned they unto Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jerusalem a sabbath day's journey.

13 And when they were come in, they went up ^ainto an upper room, where ¹abode both ^bPeter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James ^{the son of} Alphaeus, and ^cSimon ²Zelotes, and ^aJudas ^{the 3}brother of James.

1:9-11. While they beheld suggests several things that are not apparent. Unlike the appearances and disappearances of the former 40 days in which Jesus instantly appeared and vanished, this was a gradual and visible departure. This was different and final. He would no longer appear to them. His next appearance on earth will be at the Second Coming when He visibly (Rev. 1:7) and bodily sets His feet on Mount Olivet (Zech. 14:4).

1:12. A sabbath day's journey was the distance a Jew was allowed to travel on the Sabbath (about 3/8 mile).

1:16. For the prophetic statement see John 13:18, 19 and then Psalm 41:9.

1:18. This verse needs to be correlated with Matthew 27:3-10. The simplest explanation may be found in the principle that, whereas in Acts Luke records all events (such as the acts of Judas), Matthew distinguishes between what Judas did and what the priests did. Just as the priests were the ones who purchased Potter's Field with Judas's money after his death, so Judas may have fallen only in that he was thrown down upon the rocks of that field.

ASCENSION OF CHRIST

1:9. After His resurrection, Christ ascended physically to heaven to reassume His glory and enthronement. He also began His high priestly ministry in heaven for believers which continues until this day. Illustration: It is doubtful that the disciples who watched His physical ascension completely understood all that it signified at first. Application: When the Christian understands the ascension of Christ, he looks forward to His imminent return and appropriates His present ministry as well. (First Reference, John 16:28; Primary Reference, Acts 1:9; cf. John 17:5.)

23 And they ¹appointed two, Joseph called ^aBarsabas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, ^a“which knowest the hearts of all men, shew ¹whether of these two thou hast chosen,

1:26. Prior to Pentecost the casting of lots was a divinely approved method of discerning God’s will (Josh. 18:8). Proverbs 16:33 states: “The lot is cast into the lap; but the whole disposing thereof is of the LORD.” Nowhere else in Acts is there any record of a New Testament church using lots. The Holy Spirit now provides that direction (16:6, 7; Rom. 8:14, 26, 27; Gal. 5:18).

2:1. Before Pentecost the Holy Spirit’s work had been: (1) from without (“Spirit came upon”); (2) temporary; and (3) exceptional. After Pentecost the Spirit’s work is: (1) from within (He indwells—John 7:37–39; 14:17; 1 Cor. 6:19; 1 John 3:24; 4:13); (2) permanent (Rom. 8:9); and (3) normal, involving all (1 Cor. 12:12). Under the Old (Mosaic) Covenant God’s work with Israel had been external, but under the New Covenant it is internal (Ezek. 36:26, 27; Heb. 8:9, 10).

2:2, 3. On the Day of Pentecost God provided two symbols of the Spirit’s presence: the wind, which was associated by the Jews with the Spirit (Ezek. 37:9–14; John 3:8), and the fiery tongues which divided and rested upon each one, showing that the Spirit’s baptism included all. The purpose here for the sign gift of tongues was not to make possible the hearing of the gospel but to seize the attention of all, so they would listen. The hearers were not pilgrims, but foreign-born inhabitants (v. 8). They were not merely visiting, but living in Jerusalem (vv. 5, 14). Only those from Rome are identified as visitors (v. 10). Also, when the gospel is preached, Peter speaks to them all in one language.

2:4. Though verse 4 mentions only the filling with the Spirit, both the filling and the baptism occurred.

Christ promised that the baptism would occur (1:4, 5) and Peter later affirms that it did happen at Pentecost (11:15, 16). The filling and baptism are two different works performed by the Holy Spirit. Note their contrasts: (1) Following Pentecost every believer receives the baptism of the Spirit (1 Cor. 12:13); hence the New Testament never commands the Christian to receive it. But the filling of the Spirit is not experienced by all believers, and so is commanded (Eph. 5:18). (2) The baptism is permanent, happening but once for all. The filling is ongoing, occurring continuously as seen in the present tense imperative of Ephesians 5:18, that is, “Keep on being filled.” The verse commands: “And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess [riotousness]; but be filled with the Spirit.” Since Paul compares the influences of wine and the filling of the Spirit, the word control can aptly express the idea of either. The filling of the Spirit is the controlling influence of the Spirit within the believer. Such control is neither universal nor unending, thus it must be commanded and does recur within the believers (cf. 4:8, 31; Peter and others had been previously filled on Pentecost, v. 4). The adjective full expresses the abiding character of a Spirit-filled man (6:3, 5; 7:55; 11:24), but the participle form filled (used in 2:4; 4:8, 31; 9:17; 13:9) expresses an action performed at that moment. The baptism is the act by which Jesus, through the Spirit, at conversion brings the believer into relation with Himself and makes the believer a part of God’s people, the church. The filling is the continuous experience within the Christian whereby the Spirit, who already indwells him, keeps control over his life.

^awhosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved.

22 Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man ¹approved of God among you ^aby miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, ^abeing delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ^bye have taken, and by ¹wicked hands have crucified and slain:

24 ^aWhom God hath raised up, having ¹loosed the ²pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be ³holden of it.

25 For David speaketh concerning him, ^aI foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand, that I should not be ¹moved:

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope:

27 Because thou wilt not leave my soul in ¹hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see ^acorruption.

28 Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy ¹with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you ^aof the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his ¹sepulchre is with us unto this day.

30 Therefore being a prophet, ^aand knowing that God had sworn

2:16-21. Peter does not say that Pentecost is the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy concerning the last days (Rev. 6:12). Peter does not see a celestial cataclysm (vv. 19, 20). Yet it is that of which Joel speaks, because it is the beginning of that fulfillment. Peter did not see the Spirit coming upon all people, but he did see Him coming upon 120. It was the beginning, but surely not the complete fulfillment. Peter understood, as we should, that the last days had already begun, even with the birth of Christ (Heb. 1:2; 1 Pet. 1:20).

2:22-36. The main point of Peter's sermon is to prove that Jesus is both God and the Messiah (v. 36). Peter seeks to prove this through Christ's miraculous works (v. 22), His resurrection (vv. 23-32), and His sending of the Holy Spirit (vv. 33-35).

2:27. Hell is the word hadēs and does not refer to the eternal lake of fire but to the intermediate state of the Old Testament dead. In the New Testament the term also refers to the grave. Peter states that David's words of Psalm 16:10 are a prophecy concerning the immediate resurrection of the Messiah, of whom David is a type.

OUTPOURING OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

2:17. One of the characteristics of the future reign of Christ is the abundant outpouring of the Holy Spirit. On the Day of Pentecost, Peter recognized that the outpouring anticipated an even greater outpouring yet to come (v. 17). Illustration: The frequent outpourings of the Holy Spirit in this age are the source of the great spiritual revivals and spiritual awakenings. Because of the great blessings received in times of revival, Christians have often used descriptions from the future kingdom age to describe their experiences (cf. 3:19). Application: While the believer looks forward to the coming kingdom of Christ, he may also pray for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in revival today. (First Reference, Joel 2:28; Primary Reference, Acts 2:17; cf. Gal. 5:22.)

THE JEWISH DIASPORA IN THE TIMES OF JESUS

with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne;

31 He seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, ^athat his soul was not left in ¹hell, neither his flesh did see corruption.

32 ^aThis Jesus hath God raised up, ^bwhereof we all are witnesses.

33 Therefore ^abeing by the right hand of God ^bexalted, and ^chaving received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he ^dhath shed forth this, which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into the heavens: but he saith himself, ^aThe LORD said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35 Until I make thy foes thy footstool.

36 Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 Then Peter said unto them, ^aRepent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the ¹remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.

39 For the promise is unto you, and ^ato your children, and ^bto all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this ¹untoward generation.

41 Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls.

42 ^aAnd they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 And fear came upon every soul: and ^amany wonders and signs were done ¹by the apostles.

44 And all that believed were together, and ^ahad all things common;

2:38. Repent means “to change one’s mind.” Here, as throughout Scripture, one aspect of conversion is commonly used to represent all aspects: believing and calling as well as repenting. The grammatical name for allowing part of something to represent the whole is called synecdoche. Repentance is something every person must do (17:30). For several reasons be baptized should not be joined with for the remission of sins to teach baptismal regeneration. First, the context of this passage demonstrates that only the repentance is connected with the removal of sin at salvation: “Whosoever shall call ... shall be saved” (v. 21). Peter’s next recorded sermon states only: “Repent ... that your sins may be blotted out” (3:19). Second, throughout Acts men demonstrate their faith and salvation prior to baptism (cf. 10:43–47). Third, the soteriological passages throughout the New Testament do not include water baptism in the salvation experience—John 3:16; Acts 16:31; Romans 4:10; Ephesians 2:1–10; 1 Peter 1:18, 19. Thus this verse more clearly reads, “Repent for the remission of sins, and you will receive the gift which is the Holy Spirit; and let each of you be baptized in the name of Christ.” Though water baptism does not save or wash away our sins, it is a command that needs to be obeyed speedily after conversion. Jesus commanded it (Matt. 28:19, 20), as does Peter here. This is the consistent pattern throughout Acts (16:31–34; 18:8).

2:40. Untoward means “morally crooked” or “perverse.”

2:41, 42. The pattern set here for new believers is normative throughout this age. They publicly profess their faith through baptism and join in fellowship, edification, and service within the assembly of God’s people.

APOSTLES' DOCTRINE

2:42. The word doctrine derives from the Latin term for teaching and refers to the content that was taught in the New Testament. The proper teaching of Scripture was called “the apostles’ doctrine,” meaning that which the apostles taught. This contrasted with erroneous teaching called “doctrines of devils” (1 Tim. 4:1), meaning that teaching whose source is not God but the messengers of Satan, whose desire it is to substitute false religion for Christianity (2 Cor. 11:13–15). Illustration: The apostles’ doctrine was true, not because an apostle taught it, but because it was consistent with the Scriptures. The Bereans examined the teaching of Paul in light of the Scriptures before accepting it (17:11). Also, the church at Ephesus examined some who called themselves apostles and found them liars (Rev. 2:2). Application: A Christian should attempt to understand and believe true doctrine, while rejecting all that disagrees with the Word of God (1 John 4:1). (First Reference, Acts 2:42; Primary Reference, Acts 2:42; cf. Titus 3:10.)

45 And sold their possessions and goods, and ^aparted¹ them to all men, as ²every man had need.

46 ^aAnd they, continuing daily with one ¹accord ^bin the temple, and ^cbreaking bread from house to house, did eat their ²meat with gladness and ³singleness of heart, 47 Praising God, and having favour with all the people. ^aAnd the Lord added to the church daily such as ¹should be saved.

Peter Admonishes the Onlookers

11 And as the lame man which was healed ¹held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch ^athat is called Solomon's, greatly ²wondering.

2:44, 45. Communal sharing was practiced for a brief time by the early church but not throughout Acts. These believers were expecting the very soon return of Christ (as Peter demonstrates in his sermons of chs. 2 and 3), and they therefore sold their possessions. This did not last. Such communal life is not taught by the apostles. Rather we are taught to be good stewards of that with which God has entrusted us and to share willingly and cheerfully (2 Cor. 8, 9). Further, this does not correspond to communism, because this resulted from a spiritual unity among the people and was a voluntary act (cf. 5:4).

3:1. According to Jewish reckoning, the day began at 6 A.M. Hence, the ninth hour is 3 P.M. The Jewish prayer time was held in conjunction with the evening sacrifices and offering of incense (cf. Luke 1:8–10; Rev. 8:3, 4). Peter and John commonly went to the temple to pray at this hour. The Greek imperfect tense could well be translated “used to go up.”

3:2–16. This passage demonstrates some important truths regarding Bible miracles: (1) They always involve demonstrable, physical needs so that they are signs (2:43). (2) They involve a complete and perfect work (even in Mark 8:22–26). (3) They involve genuine, biblical faith. That is, there is nothing special about the lame man's faith (vv. 4–7) nor about Peter's (v. 12). Rather, faith is man responding to God's word and will. Faith is believing God concerning what He has said, knowing God's will, and then acting on it. This man was healed because God willed it as a sign, and then because Peter acted on what God's Spirit witnessed to him. Salvation is a supernatural work of God, but it is never described in Scripture as a sign or miracle.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE

2:42. One of the first religious exercises of the New Testament church after Pentecost was persevering in the apostles' doctrine. Doctrinal purity was essential in New Testament church. The local churches placed themselves under God's authority by accepting the discipline of the Word of God. The proclamation of the Scriptures became a positive discipline, developing correct beliefs and life-style. When Christians need to be confronted and rebuked for sin or false belief, either individually or corporately, negative discipline will correct the error and bring the church back to its biblical role. When an assembly of people removes itself from the authority of Scripture, that assembly ceases to be a New Testament church. Illustration: Although the church at Sardis had quite a reputation in its community Jesus viewed it as having already died (Rev. 3:1). Application: All Christians should carefully evaluate the beliefs and practices of a church by the standards of God's Word. Then they should associate with and support the one that meets the New Testament standards. (First Reference, Matt. 18:17; Primary Reference, Acts 2:42; cf. Matt. 28:19.)

12 And when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so ¹earnestly on us, as though by our own power or ²holiness we had made this man to walk?

Peter and John Are Arrested

4 And as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the captain of the temple, and the ^aSadducees, came upon them,

3:12-26. Peter's second sermon also focuses on the person of Jesus Christ, showing (1) that He is the Healer of this man (vv. 12-16); (2) that His suffering demonstrates Him to be the Messiah (vv. 17, 18); and, (3) that the delay in His kingdom is due to their unbelief (vv. 19-26). Peter literally commands in verse 19, "Repent ... [so that] times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord." The word translated when is used over 50 times in the New Testament and only here is translated "when." It should be translated "that," showing the purpose for or the result of the promised forgiveness. Israel's nationwide repentance will precede the return of Christ to establish His kingdom (Zech. 13:8—14:4; Rom. 11:24-26; Rev. 7:3-10). Peter's sermon teaches these three things: (1) God's ancient program concerning His kingdom is unchanged. (2) This program awaits the return of Christ. (3) Israel will share in it.

4:1. Luke gives an extended account here of the arrest and trial of Peter and John, as he does later with Paul, to demonstrate that Christianity is not an illegal sect even though continually attacked.

4:2. The annoyance to the Jewish leaders was twofold: (1) the presumption of the apostles to teach people as if they were recognized rabbis (cf. v. 13); and (2) the teaching of the resurrection, which was denied by these Sadducees (cf. 23:6).

4:4. Their phenomenal results may also have had something to do with their arrest. Five thousand men, plus women and children, have now turned to Christ in Jerusalem.

number of the men was about five thousand.

Peter's Sermon to the Council

5 And it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes,

6 And ^aAnnas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the ¹kindred of the high priest, were gathered together at Jerusalem.

7 And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, "By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?"

8 "Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel,

9 If we this day ¹be examined of the good deed done to the ²impotent man, by what means he is made whole;

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, "that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, ^bwhom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.

17 But that it spread no further among the people, let us ¹straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name.

Peter and John Must Speak

18 ^aAnd they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus.

19 But Peter and John answered and said unto them, "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye."

20 "For we cannot but speak the things which ^bwe have seen and heard."

21 So when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing ¹how they might punish them, ^abecause of the people: for all men ^bglorified God for ^cthat which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing ¹was shewed.

A Prayer for Boldness

23 And being let go, ^athey went to their own ¹company, and reported all that the chief priests and elders had said unto them.

24 And when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said, Lord, "thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is:

25 Who by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, "Why did the heathen rage, and the people ¹imagine vain things?"

26 The kings of the earth ¹stood up, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

4:6. Annas was the patriarchal, ex-high priest. His son-in-law Caiaphas held the political office (cf. Luke 3:2).

4:12. The name of Jesus Christ is the center of contention (v. 7, 10, 12) and ever will be. Salvation for Jew and Gentile alike is exclusively through the name of Jesus Christ (cf. John 14:6).

4:13. The Greek words literally say that Peter and John were "unlettered" men and "commoners." They were unlettered or uneducated in the technical, rabbinical teachings. They were commoners in that they possessed no official positions nor special abilities. But the priests do clearly note that these men have been with Jesus. This explains their boldness and power.

27 For ^aof a truth against ^bthy holy ¹child Jesus, ^cwhom thou hast anointed, both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles, and the people of Israel, were gathered together, 28 ^aFor to do whatsoever thy hand and thy ¹counsel determined before to be done.

29 And now, Lord, behold their threatenings: and grant unto thy servants, ^athat with all boldness they may speak thy word, 30 By stretching forth thine hand to heal; ^aand that signs and wonders may be done ^bby¹ the name of ^cthy holy ²child Jesus.

31 And when they had prayed, ^athe place was shaken where they were assembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, ^band they spake the word of God with boldness.

Distribution of Possessions

32 And the multitude of them that believed ^awere of one heart and of one soul: ^bneither said any of them that ¹ought of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.

33 And with ^agreat power gave the apostles ^bwitness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and ^cgreat grace was upon them all.

solation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37 ^aHaving land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

Ananias and Sapphira

5 But a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession,

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife also being ¹privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet.

3 ^aBut Peter said, Ananias, why hath ^bSatan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own ¹power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias hearing these words ^afell down, and ¹gave up the ghost: and great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men arose, ^awound¹ him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the space of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter answered unto her, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together ^ato ¹tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out.

10 ^aThen fell she down ¹straightway at his feet, and ²yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in,

4:27. Child (Gr. pais, vv. 27 and 30) would better be translated "servant" in this context.

4:31. As with Peter in verse 8, so now the whole body of believers experiences a renewal of the controlling influence or filling of the Spirit. See the note on 2:4.

5:3, 4. The deity of the Holy Spirit is evident within this passage. In verse 3 Peter states that Ananias has lied to the Holy Spirit. Then in verse 4 Ananias is told that he has lied to God.

5:4. Communal sharing is still being practiced some weeks or months after Pentecost, but it was totally voluntary. Ananias's sin was not that of keeping back part of what he sold, but his hypocrisy about it.

5:5. Though God does not judge every believer's sin with death, in some situations God does (1 Cor. 11:30; 1 John 5:16). As with Achan, this first act in a new era serves as an example (Josh. 7:10-26).

and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.

11 ^aAnd great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things.

Many Signs and Wonders

12 And ^aby¹ the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders ²wrought among the people; (^band they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And ^aof the rest ¹durst no man join himself to them: ^bbut the people ²magnified them.

14 And believers were ¹the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.)

15 Inasmuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, ^athat at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might ¹overshadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing ^asick folks, and them which were ¹vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one.

The Apostles Suffer Persecution

17 ^aThen the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him, (which is the sect of the Sadducees,) and were filled with ¹indignation, 18 ^aAnd laid their hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 But ^athe angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20 Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people ^aall the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. ^aBut the high priest came, and they that were with him, and called the council

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned, and ¹told,

23 Saying, The prison truly found we shut with all ¹safety, and the keepers standing ²without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now when the high priest and ^athe captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these things, they ¹doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one and told them, saying, Behold, the men whom ye put in prison are standing in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence: ^afor they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the council: and the high priest asked them, 28 Saying, ^aDid not we ¹straitly command you that ye should not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, ^band intend to bring this man's ^cblood upon us.

29 Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, ^aWe ought to obey God rather than men.

31 ^aHim hath God exalted with his right hand to be ^ba Prince and ^ca Saviour, ^dfor to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 And ^awe are his witnesses of these things; and so is also the Holy Ghost, ^bwhom God hath given to them that obey him.

5:12. Solomon's porch refers to the colonnaded eastern wall of the temple courtyard. The early Christians commonly gathered here for mass meetings (cf. 3:11). Few places could better accommodate the thousands.

5:21. Both council and senate refer to the Jewish Sanhedrin. It functioned both as the high court and legislative body of the Jews. See the note on 23:6. 5:29. Peter is not sanctioning civil disobedience, as he makes clear in his first epistle (1 Pet. 2:13-17; cf. Rom. 13:1-7). We are to obey civil government, but when it goes contrary to the explicit commands of God, we must obey God and be ready to suffer the consequences.

Gamaliel's Counsel

33 When they heard that, they were ^acut¹ to the heart, and took counsel to slay them.

34 Then stood there up one in the council, a Pharisee, named ^aGamaliel, a ¹doctor of the law, ²had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apostles forth ³a little space;

35 And said unto them, Ye men of Israel, take heed to yourselves what ye intend to do as ¹touching these men.

36 For before these days rose up Theudas, boasting himself to be somebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themselves: who was slain; and all, as many as ¹obeyed him, were scattered, and brought to ²nought.

37 After this man rose up Judas of Galilee in the days of the ¹taxing, and drew away much people after him: he also perished; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were dispersed.

38 And now I say unto you, ¹Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought:

39 ^aBut if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even ^bto fight against God.

Seven Spirit-Filled Men

6 And in those days, ^awhen the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the ^bGrecians¹ against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected ^ain the daily ²ministration.

2 Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, ^aIt is not ¹reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.

3 Wherefore, brethren, ^alook¹ ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this ^bbusiness.

4 But we ^awill give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word.

5 And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, ^aa man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and ^bPhilip, and not receiving the same care as the other widows. The apostles have become overburdened serving tables (not waiting on, but dispensing communal funds) and seek others to assist them. Though these seven are not deacons as such, that office later arises to meet similar needs (1 Tim. 3:8-13). The biblical principles for the care of widows should not be gleaned merely from this historical incident. One must always look for the full teaching of the Scriptures. The apostle Paul provides extensive teaching on this subject in 1 Timothy 5:3-16.

6:5-7. The gracious nature of the early church is seen in its diligence and willingness to correct the irritation. This graciousness can be seen in that all seven men who are chosen have Greek names. The result: God prospers the work.

5:34. Gamaliel was a respected Pharisee, a prominent teacher at Jerusalem, a member of the Jewish high council (the Sanhedrin), and the teacher of Paul. Jewish tradition states that Gamaliel's grandfather was Hillel, the prominent rabbi who represented the liberal wing of the Pharisees in opposition to the more rigid, and conservative wing led by Shammai. When the lives of the apostles were in jeopardy before the Sanhedrin, Gamaliel quieted them with his persuasive and pragmatic speech. Gamaliel is mentioned only twice in Scripture: Acts 5:34 and 22:3.

Stephen Charged with Blasphemy

8 And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great ^awonders and miracles among the people.

9 Then there arose certain of the synagogue, which is called the synagogue of the ¹Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia and of Asia, disputing with Stephen.

10 And ^athey were not able to resist the wisdom and the spirit by which he spake.

11 ^aThen they ¹suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and against God.

Stephen's Council Speech

7 Then said the high priest, Are these things so?

2 And he said, ^aMen, brethren, and fathers, hearken; The ^bGod of glory appeared unto our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in ^cCharran,

3 And said unto him, ^aGet thee out of thy country, and from thy ¹kindred, and come into the land which I shall shew thee.

4 Then ^acame he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was ^bdead, he removed him into this land, wherein ye now dwell.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: ^ayet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God spake ¹on this wise, ^aThat his ²seed should sojourn in a 7:2-53. The theme of Stephen's speech concerns Israel's repeated rejection of God's messengers, despite God's grace. Using primarily Joseph and Moses, Stephen shows how Israel rejected first their own brother Joseph (v. 9), then Moses as the deliverer (v. 27), and later Moses as the God-appointed leader (v. 39). It was the Sanhedrin and the nation, not Stephen, who blasphemed Moses (v. 37) and the Law (v. 53). Stephen, through indirect suggestion, shows that Christ has been rejected like Joseph and Moses. Such rebellion is not a characteristic of God's redeemed people.

7:6. Four hundred years is the round number used (as in Gen. 15:13) to express the 430 years in Egypt (Ex. 12:40).

6:9. The synagogue was the assembly of the Jews similar to the Christian assembly, but founded before Christ. There evidently were synagogues in Jerusalem composed of various ethnic groups. The Libertines were slaves who had been freed along with their descendants. Stephen has an active ministry among these Hellenistic Jews.

6:11-13. Stephen is falsely accused of blaspheming in three areas: (1) God, verse 11; (2) Moses or the law, verses 11, 13; and (3) the temple, verse 13. Stephen answers these charges in his sermon.

7:2. God spoke to Abraham in Ur before he moved to Haran (cf. Gen. 12:1; 15:7; Josh. 24:2, 3; and Neh. 9:7).

6:5 Stephen was one of the seven chosen to assist the apostles in the administrative affairs of the early Jerusalem church. His name and activities strongly suggest that he was not a Jew of the strictest Palestinian tradition, but a Hellenist. That is, he was one of those who accepted at least some Greek customs. Among the seven, he seems to be noted for his outstanding character. He was full of the Spirit, faith, wisdom, and power. His career was brief but illustrious. He was a forceful apologist and a worker of miracles. God's approval of Stephen's work was evident by the angelic countenance given to him (v. 15). Nevertheless the Jews, led by a young radical named Saul (later Paul), rejected his message and martyred him. Stephen is mentioned only in Acts 6-8; 11:19; and 22:20.

7 ^aAnd the nation to whom they shall be in bondage will I ^bjudge, said God: ^cand after that shall they come forth, and serve me in this place.

8 ^aAnd he gave him the covenant of circumcision: ^band so Abraham begat Isaac, and circumcised him the eighth day; ^cand Isaac begat Jacob; and ^dJacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

Joseph Sold by the Patriarchs

9 ^aAnd the patriarchs, moved with envy, ^bsold Joseph into Egypt: ^cbut God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, ^aand gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt and all his house.

11 ^aNow there came a ¹dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no sustenance.

12 ^aBut when Jacob heard that there was ¹corn in Egypt, he sent out our fathers first.

13 And at the ^asecond time Joseph was made known to his brethren; and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 ^aThen sent Joseph, and called his father Jacob to him, and ^ball his kindred, threescore and fifteen souls.

15 ^aSo Jacob went down into Egypt, ^band died, he, and our fathers, 16 And ^awere carried over into Sychem, and laid in ^bthe ¹sepulchre that Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of ²Emmor the father of Sychem.

17 But when ^athe time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, ^bthe people grew and multiplied in Egypt,

Through Moses God Delivered Israel

20 ^aIn which time Moses was born, and ^bwas ¹exceeding fair, and nourished up in his father's house three months:

21 And ^awhen he was ¹cast out, ^bPharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him ²for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was ^amighty in words and in deeds.

23 ^aAnd when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel.

24 And seeing one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppressed, and smote the Egyptian:

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood how that God by his hand would deliver them: but they understood not.

26 And the next day he shewed himself unto them as they strove, and would have ¹set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thrust him away, saying, ^aWho made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

7:14. The number 75 should not be seen as in conflict with the Old Testament accounts. Genesis 46:26 identifies the number as 66, in referring to those who accompanied Jacob to Egypt. Exodus 1:5 gives the number 70, but refers to all those who came out of Jacob's loins, including Joseph, his two sons, and Jacob himself. Stephen here includes within that number all his kindred, totaling 75.

31 When Moses saw it, he ¹wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, ^a*I am* the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and ¹durst not behold.

33 ^aThen said the Lord to him, ¹Put off thy ²shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest is holy ground.

34 ^aI have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them. And now come, I will ^bsend thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they refused, saying, ^aWho made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer ^bby the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush.

7:38. The reference to the gathering of the Israelites in the wilderness as a church is unfortunate. In Acts the Greek term (ekklesia) sometimes possesses its general sense of congregation or assembly. Here it is used for the gathering of the nation of Israel when it received the Law. In Acts 19 it is used of the town meeting of the unbelieving mob of Ephesus (vv. 32, 39, 41). The 111 other occurrences of the word refer to the church of Jesus Christ.

7:43. Moloch or Molech is a Canaanite title for deities to whom human fiery sacrifices were offered (cf. Lev. 18:21; 2 Kin. 23:10; Jer. 32:35). Remphan or Rephan probably comes from the Egyptian name for the god associated with the planet Saturn.

Persecution of the Church

8 And Saul was consenting unto his death. And at that time there ¹was a great persecution against the church which was at Jerusalem; and ^athey were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles.

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and ^amade great lamentation over him.

3 As for Saul, ^ahe made havock of the church, entering into every house, and ¹haling men and women committed them to prison.

Philip Preaches in Samaria

4 Therefore ^athey that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word.

5 Then ^aPhilip went down to ¹the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

6 And the ¹people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For ^aunclean spirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with ¹palsies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

Simon's Attempted Purchase

9 But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city ^aused¹ sorcery, and ²bewitched the people of Samaria, ^bgiving out that himself was some great one:

7:60. Stephen's prayer demonstrates that he was speaking the truth in love, not in malice.

8:1-4. The earlier persecutions of chapters 4 and 5 involved persecutions of the Christian leaders, the apostles, by the Jewish leaders, primarily the priests. This persecution is much more severe, since it involves the laypeople and since it comes from the unrelenting hands of Saul. Yet God's work prospers in that the gospel is widely spread outside Jerusalem.

8:5 Philip was one of the seven chosen by the Jerusalem church to assist the apostles in the administration of daily affairs. Like Stephen, Philip was far more than an assistant helping with physical needs. He was a Spirit-filled evangelist (21:8). When the Christians were scattered beyond Jerusalem due to the intense persecution by Saul, Philip was the first to take the gospel to non-Jewish people. God confirmed his message with miracles (vv. 6, 7) so that many believed. God also sent Philip to a Gentile from Ethiopia (v. 27), and so used Philip to expand the work into North Africa. Philip had a brief itinerant ministry throughout Judaea and Samaria which ended at Caesarea (v. 40). He apparently settled there, for Caesarea is described as his home when he is introduced over 20 years later (21:8). Philip the evangelist must not be confused with Philip the apostle (cf. John 1:43; Acts 1:13). (First Reference, Acts 6:5; Primary Reference, Acts 8.)

10 To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God.

11 And to him they ¹had regard, because that of long time he had ²bewitched them with ³sorceries.

12 But when they believed Philip ¹preaching the things ^aconcerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.

13 Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and ¹wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done.

14 Now when the ^aapostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, ^athat they might receive the Holy Ghost:

16 (For ^aas yet he was fallen upon none of them: only ^bthey were baptized in ^cthe name of the Lord Jesus.)

17 Then ^alaid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost.

18 And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.

20 But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because ^athou hast thought that ^bthe gift of God may be purchased with money.

The Ethiopian Eunuch's Baptism

26 And the angel of the Lord spake unto ^aPhilip, saying, Arise, and go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is ^ddesert.

27 And he arose and went: and, behold, ^aa man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and ^bhad come to Jerusalem for to worship, 28 Was returning, and sitting in his chariot read Esaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he ¹desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

32 The place of the scripture which he read was this, ^aHe was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb ^ddumb before his shearer, ^bso opened he not his mouth:

8:14–17. The ministry of Peter and John must be understood in the light of the unique historical situation. As at Pentecost, God is initiating a new work—the beginning of the church among a distinct ethnic group. The Samaritans were Jews of mixed blood whom the other Jews despised. At Pentecost, no human instrument was involved in the baptism of the Holy Spirit. Here God delays the outpouring until after the arrival of Peter and the laying on of his hands. Thus, the Jerusalem church and the Samaritan church are united into one work, one body. Without Peter's involvement, this work may not have been accepted by some Jews. Thus schism was avoided from the start.

8:18–24. Simon the sorcerer made an outward profession of faith (v. 13), but his response demonstrates his lack of spiritual life. Early Christian writings substantiate this fact. Simon, like Elisha's servant, Gehazi (2 Kin. 5:20–27), sought to use God's miraculous gift for his own benefit.

33 In his humiliation his ^ajudgment¹ was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is ^btaken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, ^aand began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch said, See, here is water; ^awhat doth hinder me to be baptized?

37 And Philip said, ^aIf thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, ^bI believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

38 And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

Saul's Conversion

9 And ^aSaul, yet breathing out threatenings and ¹slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high priest,

2 And ¹desired of him ^aletters to Damascus to the synagogues, that if he found any of ²this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

3 And ^aas he journeyed, he came near Damascus: and suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven:

8:37. Acts 16:32–34 and 18:8 demonstrate that faith precedes baptism.

8:40. Philip appears to have established his ministry in Caesarea, since about 20 years later he and his family are still there (21:8).

9:1. The persecution described in chapters 7 and 8 continues for some time, since Saul will not allow it to cease. Even after the Christians are scattered from Jerusalem and Judea, Paul travels 150 miles to Damascus to harass them.

9:1 Paul was called Saul before his conversion and missionary journeys. He was the most prominent apostle in the early church due to his effectiveness in starting so many churches. Paul was from Tarsus of Cilicia and was born into a well-to-do home. Paul, as a rabbi, was required to learn a trade and so labored in the low-paying, menial task of tentmaking. But two facts demonstrate the social status of his family: (1) his Roman citizenship (22:28); (2) his opportunity to study in Jerusalem under the foremost teacher, Gamaliel (22:3). Paul's primary attribute, however, was not his education but his zeal, which was as much a part of his life before his conversion as afterward. Paul was the first to martyr the Christians (7:48) and to wreak havoc in the Jerusalem church (8:1, 3, 4), pursuing them even as far as Antioch. At that time God graciously saved him and commissioned him (Gal. 1:13–17). Paul became the Apostle to the Gentiles (Gal. 2:9; Rom. 11:13) and immediately preached in Damascus, Jerusalem, Tarsus, and throughout Syria and Cilicia (Gal. 1:21–23). About 10 years later while serving in Antioch, Paul was sent to Cyprus and Galatia in what is called his first missionary journey (chs. 13, 14). He later evangelized Greece (chs. 16–18) and then Asia Minor (called Asia in Acts 19). When he returned to Jerusalem he was arrested and imprisoned: two years in Caesarea (chs. 23–26) and two years in Rome (ch. 28). During his missionary journeys he wrote Galatians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, 1 and 2 Corinthians, and Romans. While in Rome he wrote the so-called Prison Epistles: Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon. The books of Acts and 2 Timothy (along with the statements of church history) imply that Paul was released from prison, preached in Spain and the Aegean Sea area, wrote 1 and 2 Timothy and Titus, was rearrested, and was finally martyred by Nero. Paul was neither physically impressive nor an orator (2 Cor. 10:10; Gal. 4:13–15), but his unquenchable zeal and love, plus his powerful pen, have endeared him not only to Christians of the first century but also to those of the last 20 centuries. (First Reference, Acts 7:58; Primary References, Acts 9, 13–28; Galatians 1, 2; 2 Corinthians 11, 12.)

9:2 Damascus is a very ancient city, the capital of Old Testament Syria (Is. 7:8). It is located about 150 miles northwest of Jerusalem in a fertile plain somewhat surrounded by mountains with desert on the east. Though it lacks sufficient rainfall, the region is well watered by the Abana and Pharpar rivers. During the New Testament era Damascus had a large Jewish population, and thus many Jewish Christians fled there when Saul (Paul) was persecuting the church (8:1; 9:1, 2). Paul was bound for Damascus on a mission of destruction when God graciously saved him. Damascus is mentioned in the New Testament only in Acts (chs. 9, 22, 26) and twice by Paul (2 Cor. 11:32; Gal. 1:17), all in reference to Paul's conversion. Today Damascus is the capital of Syria and has a population of about 800,000.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, "why persecutest thou me?"

5 And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: it is hard for thee to kick against the 'pricks.

6 And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do.

7 And ^athe men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the earth; and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.

9 And he was three days without sight, and neither did eat nor drink.

Ananias and Saul

10 And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, "named Ananias; and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here, Lord.

11 And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and enquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, "of Tarsus: for, behold, he prayeth, 12 And hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight.

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, "how much ¹evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem:

14 And here he hath authority from the chief priests to bind all ^athat call on thy name.

15 But the Lord said unto him, Go

9:5. Saul is depicted as a rebellious beast that fights against the prod of its master (cf. 26:14). He is persecuting Jesus in that he is afflicting the body of Christ. When someone does something for or against a Christian, Jesus Christ not only knows but feels it just as we do (cf. Matt. 25:35-40). He is moved with the feeling of our infirmities (Heb. 4:15).

9:7. The men which journeyed with Saul are important as witnesses to this event. Saul is not experiencing some emotional or traumatic seizure. Someone is communicating with Saul as these men bear witness. A study of Paul's two parallel accounts in chapters 22 and 26 makes the events clearer. This verse says that the men stood speechless. But this must be understood to say that whereas Saul continued to lie on the ground as Jesus spoke with him, these men were able to get up, because they all had fallen to the ground (26:14). This verse says that the witnesses heard a voice, whereas 22:9 says they did not hear the voice. This seeming contradiction has two possible explanations. First, 9:7 could be saying that the witnesses heard Saul's voice but did not see anyone to whom Saul could be speaking, whereas 22:9 says, "They heard not the voice of him that spake to me." They neither saw nor heard anyone. The second explanation takes note of the Greek grammar and seems to fit the meaning of the passage better. Chapter 9 says that the witnesses heard a voice (Gr. phōnēs, genitive case); chapter 22 says that they did not hear the voice (Gr. phōnēn, accusative case). The first form allows hearing that may or may not involve understanding; the latter form involves hearing with understanding. Hence chapter 9 apparently says that the witnesses heard without understanding the voice of the One who spoke to Saul. Chapter 22 says that they did not hear with understanding, thus saying the same thing. A comparable situation occurred when God spoke from heaven to Jesus, but many in the crowd only discerned it as thunder (John 12:28, 29).

9:10 Ananias was a common name among the Jews, which in its Hebrew form was Hananiah. Three men have this name in the New Testament. The most important of the three was the disciple from Damascus whom God used to minister to Saul (Paul) after his conversion. Paul describes him as "a devout man according to the law," with a good testimony before others (22:12). When Ananias laid hands upon Saul, he received his sight and was filled with the Holy Spirit. It is significant that Ananias was simply a disciple (not an apostle) in that Paul's apostleship was not founded on the ministry of another apostle (Gal. 1:1, 12). Tradition says that Ananias later became bishop of Damascus and died a martyr.

Another Ananias, together with his wife Sapphira, was part of the early church at Jerusalem (5:1-10). Their act of selling property to appear as though they were giving like the others (4:32-37), and then keeping back part of the money, resulted in God's judgment of their hypocrisy with death.

The third Ananias was the high priest and president of the Sanhedrin at the time of Paul's arrest (23:2). He was appointed high priest in A.D. 48 and remained until 58. His haughtiness at the time of Paul's arrest was characteristic of his whole tenure. His apparent cooperation with the conspirators who were seeking to assassinate Paul (23:12-15) further reveals his unscrupulous character. In A.D. 66, when the Romans came to subdue the Jewish people, Ananias was himself murdered by assassins for his collaboration with the Romans.

21 But all that heard him were amazed, and said, ^aIs not this he that destroyed them which called on this name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that ¹intent, that he might bring them bound unto the chief priests?

22 But Saul increased the more in strength, ^aand confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, proving that ¹this is very Christ.

The Disciples Save Saul from Death

23 And after that many days were fulfilled, ^athe Jews ¹took counsel to kill him:

9:15-17. Note that even Saul's commission does not come directly from God but through a God-appointed disciple. By contrast, his apostolic authority did come directly from Christ, not by succession through one of the apostles (cf. Gal. 1:1, 11, 12).

9:23. The many days of this verse allow for Saul's lengthy stay in Arabia (cf. Gal. 1:17, 18). Apparently after his conversion and brief stay in Damascus, Saul spent over two years alone with God in a desert region receiving revelation (Gal. 1:12). Then after another brief ministry in Damascus he fled to Jerusalem, returning to that city three years after he first left for Damascus (Gal. 1:18).

9:31. This verse summarizes a period of almost 10 years in the life of the early Jewish churches, during which peace and prosperity prevailed, and about which the Book of Acts is otherwise silent.

9:30 Tarsus was the capital of the Roman province of Cilicia and was located in the southeast corner of Asia Minor 10 miles inland from the Mediterranean. The extent of its ruins has caused some to estimate the population as exceeding half a million during Roman times. Tarsus was a noted academic center, being surpassed only by Athens and Alexandria. It was known for its school of Stoic philosophers. Tarsus is mentioned only in Acts and always with reference to Paul's life. Paul was born there (22:3), and though he spent much of his youth in Jerusalem, shortly after his conversion he returned and probably remained about 10 years (cf. v. 30 with 11:25). During those years Paul no doubt helped establish many churches in Cilicia, including Tarsus. Paul implies this by stating that he went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia during this time (Gal. 1:21), and then confirms it by going back several years later (second journey) to strengthen those same churches (15:41).

Cornelius's Vision

10 There was a certain man in ^aCaesarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the ¹band called the Italian ^{band},

9:32. About the time that Saul traveled to Damascus and Philip headed toward Caesarea, Peter had an itinerant ministry throughout Judea and Samaria which ultimately brings him to Caesarea.

10:1. A centurion was a Roman military officer who commanded about one hundred men. The importance of the Cornelius incident in the history of the early church is evidenced in that, not only does chapter 10 record the historical account, but chapter 11 reiterates it. Herein is recorded the conversion of the first Gentiles (cf. 11:1, 18). Gentiles who had become circumcised proselytes had no doubt already been saved (2:10; 8:27), but not those uncircumcised (and so unaccepted by the Jews for fellowship). This event happened very early in the history of the church (cf. 15:7, 14).

9:36 Joppa was the seaport city that before the time of Christ served as the harbor for Jerusalem and Judea (cf. Jon. 1:3). It is about 35 miles northwest of Jerusalem. Shortly before the birth of Christ, Caesarea with its harbor was developed and the commerce of Palestine shifted from the Jewish city of Joppa to the Gentile city of Caesarea. Joppa is mentioned in the New Testament only in Acts 9—11. At Joppa Peter raised the godly woman Tabitha from the dead. Shortly thereafter he received a vision of a sheet let down from heaven, which God used to prepare him to take the gospel to the Gentiles at Caesarea. Until that time no one had taken the gospel to uncircumcised Gentiles. Cornelius would be the first to accept the gospel (11:1, 18; 15:7, 14). Today, Joppa is a major city named Jaffa and is part of the Tel Aviv-Jaffa municipality.

10:1 Cornelius was a Roman centurion at Caesarea who would have been under Pontius Pilate's authority until A.D. 36, and who was in command of approximately a hundred men. He is mentioned only in Acts 10 but he is important because he was the first known Gentile to be saved (cf. 11:1, 18; 15:7, 14). Philip had gone earlier to the Samaritans and to the proselyte from Ethiopia (ch. 8), but both of these had undergone circumcision and were following the law. So they were not a major offense to the Jews. The Jews could, according to the law, fellowship with such men. But such was not the case with an uncircumcised Gentile like Cornelius, even though he was a "God-fearer" who gave alms and prayed to God. Hence, God used four supernatural events (11:4—17) to persuade Peter to go to the Gentiles and to convince the Jerusalem Jews to accept them.

2 ^aA devout man, and one that ^bfeared God with all his house, which gave ¹much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway.

3 ^aHe saw in a vision ¹evidently about ²the ninth hour of the day an angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now ^asend men to Joppa, and call for one Simon, whose surname is Peter:

6 He lodgeth with one ^aSimon a tanner, whose house is by the sea side: ^bhe shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the angel which spake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his household servants, and a devout soldier of them that waited on him continually;

8 And when he had declared all these things unto them, he sent them to Joppa.

Peter's Trance and Vision

9 On the ¹morrow, as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, ^aPeter went up upon the housetop to pray about ²the sixth hour:

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but while they made ready, he fell into a trance,

11 And ^asaw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet ¹knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were all manner of fourfooted beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

14 But Peter said, Not so, Lord; ^afor I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

16 This was done ¹thrice: and the vessel was received up again into heaven.

17 Now while Peter ¹doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen should mean, behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius had made enquiry for Simon's house, and stood before the gate, 18 And called, and asked whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

10:2-4. Though Cornelius's good works and prayers served as a memorial, they did not save him. He was saved after he heard the gospel of Jesus Christ. See verse 44; 11:10-14.

10:5, 6. Philip probably was already in Caesarea (8:40), but God required Cornelius to send for Peter. Peter's presence here was just as important as it was in Samaria (8:14-17). On each of the three occasions where God initiates a new aspect of the church age (at Pentecost among the Jews, then among the Samaritans, and here among the Gentiles), God chooses Peter for the task, thereby providing unity and equality among each of these groups within the church. Note that even Peter comes under attack for his actions (11:1, 2). How much more any other man!

10:15. God uses the sheet vision to teach Peter two important truths: (1) God has now cleansed all animals for food, contrary to the dietary codes of the Mosaic Law; (2) all men are fit for salvation (v. 28).

10:1 Caesarea was a magnificent Roman city built about 10 years before the birth of Christ by Herod the Great in honor of the Roman Emperor Caesar Augustus. It was situated on the Mediterranean coast 65 miles northwest of Jerusalem at a site formerly called Strato's Tower. Caesarea was the official residence for both the Herodian kings and the Roman procurators who at various times governed Judea and Samaria. This Gentile city was a busy commercial center, handling both inland trade between Egypt and the north (Tyre) and the maritime trade made possible by its man-made harbor. Three significant New Testament events occurred at Caesarea, which is mentioned only in Acts. First, this is where the door of the church age was opened in somewhat of a second Pentecost for the Gentiles (11:1, 18; 15:7, 14), through the Roman centurion Cornelius (vv. 1-48). Second, evidently Caesarea became the base for Philip the Evangelist's lifelong ministry (cf. 8:40 with 21:8). Third, Paul stopped there several times, and later he was imprisoned there for two years (24:27) before being shipped to Rome for another two years of imprisonment (28:30). Today, the city is in ruins. Its interesting features are the enormous Roman theater and aqueduct, and the fort built by the Crusaders.

19 While Peter thought on the vision, ^athe Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.

20 ^aArise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing: for I have sent them.

21 Then Peter went down to the men which were sent unto him from Cornelius; and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?

22 And they said, Cornelius the centurion, a just man, and one that feareth God, and ^aof good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear words of thee.

26 But Peter ¹took him up, saying, ^aStand up; I myself also am a man.

27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know how ^athat it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or come unto one of another nation; but ^bGod hath shewed me that I should not call any man common or unclean.

42 And ^ahe commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify ^bthat it is he which was ordained of God to be the Judge ^cof quick and dead.

10:36-43. Peter's preaching presents in clear fashion the gospel: how Christ lived and died, was raised from the dead, and how He did this sacrificially and vicariously for our sins.

43 ^aTo him give all the prophets witness, that through his name ^bwhosoever believeth in him shall receive ^cremission¹ of sins.

45 ^aAnd ¹they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, ^bbecause that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost.

12 And ^athe Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover ^bthese six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house:

13 ^aAnd he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter;

14 Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, ^aas on us at the beginning.

10:44-47. Cornelius's household was saved when they heard the gospel (11:13-15). Note that they receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit at the moment of their belief without the laying on of hands (11:15-17), just as the apostles teach that we receive the Holy Spirit when saved (Rom. 8:9; Eph. 1:13; 1 John 3:24; 4:13). Note also that the receiving of the Holy Spirit precedes water baptism, indicating that salvation precedes water baptism, since only Christians possess the Holy Spirit. Spirit baptism is no substitute for water baptism. The demonstration of tongues seems to have been given for the benefit of the Jewish brethren rather than for Cornelius and his household (v. 45).

11:1-18. Although there was joy in heaven over the conversion of Cornelius, there was little joy in Jerusalem, for Peter had fellowshiped with uncircumcised ... Gentiles. Peter defends his action by reciting all of the phenomenal things God has done in bringing this about. Peter did not go by choice.

11:15, 16. First, Peter says the Holy Spirit came on these Gentiles as on us. What happened to Cornelius is parallel to what took place at Pentecost. This is a "Gentile Pentecost." Second, Peter relates this event to what had happened to the Jews at the beginning. Peter thus describes Pentecost as the beginning of something. It is most easily understood as the beginning or birth of the church. Third, Peter says, then remembered I how Christ promised that He would baptize in the Holy Spirit. It would seem that Peter has seen few dramatic outpourings of the Holy Spirit involving tongues, as he did at Pentecost and here with Cornelius. Both served as signs to Jews who were slow to accept the work God was doing.

11:19. The events of this verse expand on what was stated in 8:4. Due to Saul’s persecution the believers went everywhere preaching including Phenice, Cyprus, and Antioch. This early preaching predates Cornelius’ conversion and so was to the Jews only. As with any history one must not suppose that all events are in a strictly chronological order. The events, for example, of Paul’s ministry at Jerusalem and Tarsus in chapter 9 are several years later than this.

11:20–22. Several years, possibly as many as 10, after the gospel was first preached in Antioch, men from Cyprus and Cyrene come preaching to non-Jews. When the Jerusalem church heard of this, they sent another Cypriot, Barnabas, to minister there.

11:26. The believers were called Christians first in Antioch. The name Christian was at first a derogatory term, referring to the people of the Christ. Obviously the Antiochenes, constantly hearing the name of Christ, name these people such. The Jews would never label them as Christians, because that would 11:19 Antioch of Syria was situated on the Orontes River about 15 miles from the Mediterranean and was located along important land routes between Asia Minor, Syria, and Palestine. It was about three hundred miles north of Jerusalem. Antioch was founded during the time of the Greek Empire (300 B.C.) and served as the capital of Syria during the Seleucid and Roman times. At its height, it probably had a population exceeding half a million and was the third largest city of the Roman Empire, surpassed only by Rome and Alexandria. Since many Jews lived in Antioch, Josephus’ statement that the Seleucids encouraged Jews to immigrate to Antioch, giving them the rights of full citizens, may be true. Antioch of Syria is mentioned in the New Testament only in Acts and in Galatians (2:11). Here the followers of Christ were first called “Christians” (11:26). Antioch became the center of Paul’s labors in that Paul began each of his three missionary journeys there. The modern Turkish city of Antäkyä (pop. 60,000) occupies the ancient site.

11:22. Barnabas was one of the leaders in the early Jerusalem church and was later a missionary to the Gentiles. His name was Joses, but the apostles called him Barnabas, which is an Aramaic name meaning “Son of Prophecy,” and which Luke translates “Son of Consolation” or “Son of Encouragement.” He was a Levite from the island of Cyprus, but is first seen in Jerusalem (4:36). He was generous with his possessions (4:37), showed a kind spirit toward others (9:27), and was godly in his character (11:24). When the Jews in the Jerusalem church heard of the Gentile conversions at Antioch, they chose Barnabas to go to them. For a year he stayed and accomplished a great work among them. Then, when God called Paul to begin his missionary work, He also called Barnabas (13:2). They severed their relationship before Paul’s second missionary journey over the issue of John Mark’s reliability, since Mark had abandoned them on their first journey (15:36–41). Barnabas does not appear again in the narrative of Acts. He is identified by Tertullian as the author of Hebrews. Clement of Alexandria reports that Barbabas was one of the Seventy (Luke 10:1) and was the author of a so-called Epistle of Barnabas. But all of these reports are probably incorrect. (First Reference, Acts 4:36; Primary Reference, Acts 13.)

they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

4 And ^awhen he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four ¹quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after ²Easter to bring him forth to the people.

5 Peter therefore was kept in prison: but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

6 And when Herod ¹would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains: and the ²keepers before the door kept the prison.

The Angel of the Lord Frees Peter

7 And, behold, ^athe angel of the Lord ¹came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

be tantamount to saying that these were the people of the Messiah. The term Christian occurs in only two other biblical passages: 26:28; 1 Peter 4:16.

11:27, 28. Agabus is the first prophet of the church to be so called. He predicted a famine, which occurred during the reign of Claudius (A.D. 41–54). Josephus, the first-century Jewish historian, describes such a famine occurring in Judaea about A.D. 46.

12:1. About that time, during which the famine occurred, Herod Agrippa I, king of Palestine, and grandson of Herod the Great, began persecuting the church. According to Josephus's reckoning this was shortly before the closing events of chapter 11, because Agrippa died in A.D. 44. See the note on 25:13.

12:2–4. James's death is the first and only apostolic martyrdom recorded in Scripture. Herod intended to make Peter the second martyr and took extreme measures to secure his imprisonment, leaving four soldiers to guard him at all times. Though Easter does communicate correctly the time of year, the Greek word must be translated "Passover."

11:28. Claudius Caesar, the nephew of Tiberius Caesar, reigned from A.D. 41 to 54. Despite both physical and mental disabilities, Claudius ruled well during his early years. Due to his several marriages, his latter years were marred by suspicion and intrigue as various mother-son duos schemed to inherit the empire. One of his later wives, his niece Agrippina, persuaded him to make Nero, her son of a former marriage, heir instead of his own son, Britannicus. In A.D. 54 Claudius chose to restore Britannicus as his successor, but before he could proclaim this, Agrippina poisoned him. Claudius's reign corresponds in time to the core events of Acts, so Luke fittingly refers to him twice (v. 28; 18:2). No other emperor is personally mentioned in Acts. The Caesar to whom Paul appeals for justice, though unnamed, is Nero (25:8–12).

12:1 Herod Agrippa, referred to only as Herod, was the grandson of Herod the Great, nephew of Herod Antipas, and brother of Herodias (Matt. 14:1–11). Agrippa was schooled in Rome but lived as a prodigal both in Rome and Palestine. When his friend Caligula became emperor in A.D. 37, Agrippa received the title of king and part of Palestine to rule. When Antipas requested the same honor, he was deposed and Agrippa received his realm. Shortly afterward he was given all of Palestine. He is mentioned only in Acts 12 when he beheaded James and intended to do the same to Peter. But God intervened and it was Herod Agrippa who died violently under God's judgment. Three of Agrippa's children are mentioned in Scripture: Drusilla (24:24), Bernice, and Agrippa II (who alone is referred to as Agrippa in Scripture—25:13). (Only Reference, Acts 12.)

12:10. The text implies that the guards themselves unwittingly opened the first two gates for Peter, and then through the miraculous hand of God the last gate opened of its own accord (Gr. automatē) or “automatically.”

12:12–16. Though the prayer of the church was fervent due to Peter's situation (v. 5), there was a deficiency in faith (vv. 15, 16). Evidently they did not believe God would answer in this miraculous way, or so soon.

12:12 John Mark was apparently a Jew and a native of Jerusalem. His mother, Mary, was a woman of means, since her home was large enough to house church meetings and since she possessed at least one maidservant (vv. 12, 13). Mark was the cousin of Barnabas, and went with him on Paul's first missionary journey. But he abandoned that mission (Acts 13:5, 13). At the beginning of the next journey Barnabas desires to give Mark another chance, but Paul rejects the idea, and Barnabas and Paul separate (15:36–40). After Mark matures, he is found again with Paul during the apostle's Roman imprisonment (Col. 4:10; Philem. 24). Several years later, when Paul is imprisoned again, the apostle speaks words of high praise about Mark, charging Timothy to “take Mark, and bring him with thee: for he is profitable to me for the ministry” (2 Tim. 4:11). Mark had close ties with Peter also (1 Pet. 5:13), and this association made Mark a well-informed author for the second gospel. (First Reference, Acts 12:12; Primary Reference, Acts 15.)

12:20 Tyre was an ancient city in the center of Phoenicia on the Mediterranean coast and was a major trade and shipping center during the Old Testament era. It remained autonomous most of the time and successfully resisted both the Assyrians and Babylonians. It was, however, destroyed by Alexander the Great in 332 B.C. The city was rebuilt on an adjacent site and possessed some of its former importance during New Testament times. It is mentioned in the Gospels and Acts: Christ had a brief ministry in the region (Mark 7:24–30), and Paul ministered briefly in a church there (21:3–7).

13:5 ^a [Acts 13:46] ^b Acts 12:25; 15:37 ¹ as their assistant

13:1. Three factors demonstrate the shift that takes place in chapter 13. (1) The spread of the gospel in the earlier chapters was often the result of persecution. Now it becomes the result of a program—missions. (2) As this evangelism spreads to the Gentiles the focus passes from Peter to Paul. (3) Likewise, the base of operations passes from Jerusalem to Antioch of Syria. Antioch was the capital of the province of Syria and the third largest city within the Empire, being surpassed only by Rome and Alexandria. It was a cosmopolitan and commercial center. The list of men who are leaders in the church at Antioch represent a wide spectrum within society, from Simeon called Niger (the black) to Manaen, the boyhood companion of Herod Antipas. This may be the man who carried Christ's cross (Mark 15:21; Luke 23:26), called Simon of Cyrene (North Africa). Men from Cyrene had begun the ministry among the Gentiles in Antioch (11:20).

13:2–4. The commissioning of Barnabas and Saul for this missionary endeavor was the work of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit most likely spoke through one of the prophets since there were prophets within this group and that was the usual means of communicating the Spirit's message (1 Cor. 14). This sending forth was the work of the Spirit rather than the church. From the text it appears that both sent them. But the Greek words are different. Indeed, they were sent forth (ekpempthentes) by the Holy Spirit, whereas they were "released" (apelusan) by the church. This word denotes a releasing from any tie, whether contract or relationship, such as the contract of marriage through divorce. The church released them from their ministry at Antioch, but the Holy Spirit sent them.

ORDINATION

13:3. This act is the symbolic laying of hands on a candidate for the ministry, after he has been examined by the church and it has been verified that he is called by God and equipped to provide leadership for the church. Following ordination, he is generally recognized to lead the church in ministry, to determine its soundness of doctrine, to administer its ordinances, and to educate its adherents. Ordination does not imply the communication of power or authority but rather recognizes the minister's being called and gifted by God. Illustration: In the Old Testament, God's servants were often anointed with oil before undertaking a work to which He had called them. The practice of laying on of hands was a biblical act of identification and accreditation and was practiced by New Testament Christians in the initiation of ministries (6:6; 13:1–3). Application: Jesus taught that all Christians are ordained to bear fruit and have their prayers answered (John 15:16). (First Reference, Num. 28:6; Primary Reference, Acts 13:3; cf. Mal. 3:10.)

13:4 Cyprus is a large island in the northeast corner of the Mediterranean, 60 miles from both the Syrian coast to the east and the Asia Minor coast to the north. The island is 140 miles long and 60 miles at its widest point. Though it has been ruled by the Phoenicians, Persians, Greeks, Egyptians, and Syrians, the ancient Mycenaean culture of southern Greece influenced Cypriot life more than the others. It was made into a Roman province in 58 B.C. Most of the references to Cyprus in the New Testament relate to Barnabas; all are found in Acts. When Barnabas led the new missionaries on their first journey, they traveled first through the island of Cyprus (13:4 ff). It was Barnabas's home (4:36). When Paul and Barnabas separated (15:39–41), Barnabas returned to Cyprus; Paul apparently never did. For that reason Cyprus seldom enters into the narrative of Acts, even though churches had been established there since the early days of the church age (11:19).

6 And when they had gone through the isle unto Paphos, they found ^aa certain sorcerer, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus:

7 Which was with the ¹deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, ²a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and ³desired to hear the word of God.

8 But ^aElymas the sorcerer (for so is his name ¹by interpretation) ²withstood them, seeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul, (who also is called Paul,) ^afilled with the Holy Ghost, ¹set his eyes on him,

10 And said, O full of all ¹subtily and all ²mischief, ^athou ³child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease ⁴to pervert the ⁵right ways of the Lord?

16 Then Paul stood up, and beckoning with his hand said, Men of Israel, and ^aye that fear God, ¹give audience.

17 The God of this people of Israel ^achose our fathers, and exalted the people ^bwhen they dwelt as strangers in the land of Egypt, and with ¹an high arm ^cbrought he them out of it.

18 And ^aabout the time of forty years ¹suffered he their manners in the wilderness.

19 And when he had destroyed ^aseven nations in the land of Chanaan, ^bhe divided their land to them by lot.

20 And after that ^ahe gave unto them judges about the space of four hundred and fifty years, ^buntil Samuel the prophet.

21 ^aAnd afterward they desired a king: and God gave unto them ^bSaul the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, ¹by the space of forty years.

13:7. Sergius Paulus, the Roman ruler over the island of Cyprus, becomes one of Paul's first prominent converts. Though translated deputy, Luke's word calls him a proconsul (Gr. anthypatos). Proconsuls normally were former Roman senators who had been commissioned by the Senate to govern the affairs of the peaceful provinces throughout the Roman Empire. Over more turbulent provinces the emperor himself would send legates (like Cyrenius [Quirinius] in Syria, Luke 2:2) or procurators in lesser provinces (like Felix and Festus over Judea, chs. 24—26). See the note on 23:24.

13:9–13. Whether or not Saul changed his name to Paul due to his prominent convert Sergius Paulus, Luke at least uses this opportunity to change his name to Paul. Also, this is the point at which Paul takes the reins of leadership. The former designation had always been Barnabas and Saul; now it becomes Paul and his company. This as much as anything may have prompted Barnabas's relative, John Mark (Col. 4:10), to abort the mission and return home to Jerusalem (Acts 12:12).

13:16–41. In Paul's first recorded message, he emphasizes that Jesus is the Christ. Similarities can be seen between this sermon and Stephen's (ch. 7), which may have been the first Christian sermon Paul ever heard. Both Stephen and Paul narrate Israel's history and prophecies, and warn their Jewish audiences not to reject God's message as their fathers have done. But there are also distinct differences within the two messages. Whereas Stephen focuses on Joseph and Moses as prototypes of Christ's rejection, Paul focuses on David as the "prophet" of Christ's birth and resurrection.

13:20. The four hundred and fifty years in the Greek text precedes the references to the judges. This phrase, therefore, chronologically covers the period mentioned from verse 17 through verse 19; that is, the Jews sojourned in Egypt for four hundred years, wandered in the wilderness for 40 years, and spent about a decade conquering Canaan. So verse 20 could be translated, "After these things [namely, the events spanning the 450 years in verses 17–19] God gave them judges until Samuel the prophet."

22 And ^awhen he had removed him, ^bhe risen up unto them David to be their king; to whom also he gave testimony, and said, ^cI have found David the son of Jesse, ^da man after mine own heart, which shall fulfil all my will.

47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, ^asaying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: ^aand as many as were ordained to eternal life believed.

49 And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region.

50 But the Jews stirred up the devout and ¹honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and ^araised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their ²coasts.

51 ^aBut they shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the disciples ^awere filled with joy, and ^bwith the Holy Ghost.

Paul and Barnabas at Iconium

14 And it came to pass in Iconium, that they went both together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both of the Jews and also of the ^aGreeks believed.

2 But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles, and made their ¹minds ²evil affected against the brethren.

3 Long time therefore abode they speaking boldly in the Lord, ^awhich gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and granted signs and ^bwonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was ^adivided: and part held with the Jews, and part with the ^bapostles.

13:46. Paul's missionary principle was always to go to his own people, the Jews, first (Rom. 1:16), but he always went to the Gentiles, too, and indeed was known as the Apostle to the Gentiles (Gal. 2:7, 8; Eph. 3:6-8).

13:51. This verse helps to demonstrate the important principle that just because the apostles did something in the Book of Acts does not make it normative, to be performed by Christians today. More importantly we must listen to the teachings of the apostles in the Epistles. When the teachings differ from the experiences of Acts, we must follow the teachings. When they agree we must perform them. We cannot safely apply Acts apart from a knowledge of the Epistles. Paul obtained this symbolic gesture of shaking dust off his feet from the Twelve (Matt. 10:14). So, should preachers do it today? Was Paul required to do it? Paul thought not, for on the next occasion he shakes out his clothing (18:6).

14:4. Others beyond the Twelve are called apostles, as is Barnabas here and in verse 14. Though these apostles should not be regarded as of the same stature as the Twelve, they had witnessed the resurrected Christ and received some special call (cf. 1:21, 22; 1 Cor. 9:1). Other such apostles include James the Lord's brother (Gal. 1:19) and some unnamed in 1 Corinthians 15:7.

14:11, 12. Passing strangers were commonly regarded as gods among the Greeks (and later the Romans) due to the mingling of the gods with mortals in their myths. Jupiter and Mercurius were the Roman names for Zeus and Hermes. The Roman poet Ovid records a local myth involving the coming of these two gods disguised as mortals. They were turned away by all except an old couple. According to the myth a flood came and in judgment destroyed all but the old couple. These superstitious people seem to fear a similar fate.

14:17. Even though all men have not received the special revelation of God's written Word, all have received God's general revelation which is witnessed through the creation and man's own nature, making man without excuse if he rejects this (Rom. 1:18-20:

2:14, 15). Romans 1 states that the context of general revelation is that God is holy and all-powerful. Acts 14:17 further states that He is good.

14:19. Luke does not clearly indicate whether the stoning killed Paul. Maybe Paul himself did not really know. Though this incident is commonly correlated with Paul's testimony of being caught up into the third heaven (2 Cor. 12:1-5), the time of the events does not fit. The stoning of Acts 14 occurred about A.D. 48. Paul says that his experience of 2 Corinthians 12 occurred 14 years before he wrote the book, that is, about A.D. 41. Nevertheless, one can glean from 2 Corinthians 12 that Paul on this occasion did not realize whether he was dead or alive. If he were dead, he did not miss his body; if he were alive, his body did not hinder him.

23 And when they had ^aordained¹ them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.

24 And after they had passed throughout Pisidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia:

26 And thence sailed to Antioch, from whence they had been ¹recommended to the grace of God for the work which they fulfilled.

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, ^athey ¹rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had ^bopened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 And there they abode long time with the disciples.

A Dispute Over Circumcision

15 And ^acertain men which came down from Judaea taught the brethren, and said, ^bExcept ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved.

2 When therefore Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and ¹disputation with them, they determined that ^aPaul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.

4 And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church, and of the apostles and elders, and they ¹declared all things that God had done with them.

5 But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying, That it was ¹needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses.

6 And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter.

7 And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, ^aMen and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe.

11 But ^awe believe that through

14:23. At the end of this missionary tour Paul returned to the young churches and ordained ... elders to carry on the work. The word ordain (Gr. cheirotoneōsantes) originally meant "to elect" by the raising of the hand, but later developed the meaning "to appoint." Either meaning is possible here, but several factors make the former preferable. (1) This exact word is used only one other time in Scripture (2 Cor. 8:19), and there it has the sense of congregational selection. (2) The selection of the Seven in chapter 6 was the act of the congregation, not an appointment by the leaders. (3) If Luke had desired to express the idea of appointment, several other words could have served more precisely.

14:26. Paul considered his work now finished in that he had strengthened the believers, organized the church with leadership, and committed them into God's hands. These churches are not under the authority of Jerusalem, Antioch, or even Paul himself. They are under the authority of Christ alone, and Paul will treat them accordingly.

15:1. During the early decades of the church, some professing Jews who had lived under Judaism disrupted the church by saying that no one could be saved apart from the Law and especially circumcision. These Judaizers came from Jerusalem proclaiming their message. The message of salvation involving works is as old as the need of salvation itself. Jesus and the apostles clearly teach that salvation is by God's grace through faith alone (2:21; 16:31; John 3:3, 36; 5:24; Rom. 3:24; 4:4, 5, 21-24; 5:1; 10:9, 10, 13; Eph. 2:8, 9; Titus 3:5; 1 Pet. 1:18, 19; 1 John 5:11-13; Rev. 1:5; 5:9). The Book of Galatians extensively deals with this problem.

15:7-11. The primary speakers at this conference, often called the Jerusalem council, were Peter, Paul, Barnabas, and James. Peter begins by relating how God had clearly saved Cornelius and the other Gentiles with him apart from any works of the Law (vv. 7-9). In fact, Peter acknowledges that not only do the Gentiles not need to become like Jews to be saved, but conversely we, the Jews, need to be saved as they, the Gentiles (v. 11). The works of the Law for salvation will not even aid a Jew.

15:21 ^a Acts 13:15, 27; 2 Cor. 3:14

15:22 ^a Acts 1:23

15:15–17. James’s use of Amos’s prophecy (Amos 9:11, 12) concerning Gentiles in God’s kingdom does not equate the church with the messianic kingdom, making them one. James does not say that the church is fulfilling the prophecy but that what is happening in the church does agree with what will happen later in the kingdom. James further clarifies this point by changing Amos’s words “in that day” to after this, by which he may suggest that after the church age God will restore the kingdom, wherein the redeemed Gentiles will fully share God’s blessing.

15:20. Though redeemed Gentiles are not under the Mosaic Law, four restrictions are placed upon them. These are not the usual four prohibitions preached during the twentieth century, but they were amazingly comprehensive and were important to the first-century church. They involve religious, moral, and physical purity. They also concern the primary element separating Jews from Gentiles—dietary regulations. These principles did much to remove offensive practices without establishing legalism. Paul more appropriately enunciates two timeless principles for governing Christian conduct apart from the Law: (1) Live by love. (2) Live by the Holy Spirit (Gal. 5:13–16).

15:13 James was the half brother of Jesus and so grew up in a carpenter’s home in Nazareth (Matt. 13:55). Like his brothers he did not believe in Jesus as Lord until the end of Christ’s earthly ministry (John 7:1–5). But following the resurrection of Jesus he witnessed a special appearance of Jesus (1 Cor. 15:7), experienced Pentecost (1:14), and became the leader of the Jerusalem church throughout most of the period of Acts (v. 13; 21:18). Paul referred to him as a “pillar” and acknowledged his prominence in the Jerusalem fellowship (Gal. 2:9, 12). He later became known as “The Just” because of his fervent piety, which won the respect of Christian and Jew alike. James authored one of the earliest books of the New Testament (Epistle of James) and sent it to the believing Jews who had been scattered from their homeland. Josephus, the first-century Jewish historian, states that James was martyred about A.D. 62. The discovery of an ossuary (bone box) bearing the name “James son of Joseph brother of Jesus” was identified in 2002. However, the credibility of the inscription is still greatly debated.

15:22 Silas, who was also called Silvanus, was Paul’s coworker along with Timothy on the second missionary journey. He traveled with Paul through Syria, Asia Minor, and Europe (Macedonia and Greece). At the end of the second missionary journey, when Paul leaves Corinth, Silas appears to remain behind and is not mentioned again in Acts. From what is recorded in Acts we know that Silas was a leading member of the Jerusalem church (v. 22), a prophet (v. 32), and probably a Roman citizen (16:37–39). The man whom Paul calls Silvanus (1 Thess. 1:1; 2 Thess. 1:1; 2 Cor. 1:19) is likely the same man whom Luke in Acts calls Silas (a contracted form of Silvanus). Silas had ministered with Paul and Timothy in Thessalonica (17:4) and in Corinth (18:5). Very probably the Silvanus involved with Peter in the writing or sending of his first epistle (1 Pet. 5:12) is the same man. (First Reference, Acts 15:22; Primary Reference, Acts 16–18.)

23 And they wrote ¹letters by them after this manner; The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia:

Timothy Joins Paul and Silas

16 Then came he to ^aDerbe and Lystra: and, behold, a certain disciple was there, ^bnamed Timothy, ^cthe son of a certain woman, which was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek:

2 Which was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lystra and Iconium.

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and ^atook and circumcised him because of the Jews which were in ¹those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek.

Paul's Macedonian Vision

6 Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia and the region of ^aGalatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in ¹Asia, 15:36. The opening events of Paul's second missionary journey begin here. This journey ends at 18:22.

15:37–40. Both Paul and Barnabas were spiritual men; both are described as full of the Holy Spirit. Yet they disagreed and made mistakes. Luke implies that Paul's decision was less emotional (thought and chose rather than determined) and does state that he was recommended or commended (Gr. paradotheis) by the brethren. Silas was a good choice being (1) a prophet (v. 32); (2) one of the two commissioned by the Jerusalem church to proclaim the decree of the council (v. 22); and (3) a Roman citizen (16:37).

16:3, 4. At first the circumcision of Timothy seems strange in light of the recent decrees of the Jerusalem council (cf. 15:1–5, 24), the decrees Paul is now proclaiming. But the context makes it clear that Paul's purpose in the circumcision was not for salvation, but for service, in that he wanted Timothy to go forth with him. Paul knew that Timothy's ministry to the Jews would be hampered if he remained uncircumcised. Paul's practice was to do all things that would help to win men to Christ. He was willing to give up all of his personal rights (1 Cor. 9:19–23).

16:6–9. Paul's call to Macedonia (Europe) was preceded by other directives from the Spirit. After passing through the central part of Asia Minor, Paul attempted to swing down through the southerly province of Asia. The Spirit forbade him. He then attempted to turn back through the northern province of Bithynia. Again the Spirit stopped him. After guiding Paul to the west coast of Asia Minor at Troas, the Holy Spirit finally gave him the positive direction for which He had been preparing him.

16:1 Timothy, often spelled Timotheus, was Paul's spiritual son in the faith and loyal coworker. In the New Testament Timothy appears with Paul more than any other man. Though Timothy's mother was Jewish and taught him the Scriptures (2 Tim. 1:5; 3:15), his father was Greek. Timothy grew up in Lystra (or possibly Derbe) in southern Galatia, and when Paul passed through on his second missionary journey he chose Timothy to join him. Timothy not only served with Paul on the second and third journeys but also traveled with him to Jerusalem (20:4), was with him during the Roman imprisonment (Col. 1:1), and traveled with him on a fourth journey, staying on at Ephesus (1 Tim. 1:3). During Paul's second Roman imprisonment (not recorded in Acts) Timothy is summoned (2 Tim. 4:9, 21) and is himself imprisoned, then later released (Heb. 13:23). Timothy was a reserved young man whom Paul repeatedly encouraged to overcome his timidity and fear (1 Cor. 16:10, 11; cf. 2 Tim. 1:7). His strengths include his great compassion and absolute loyalty (Phil. 2:19–22). (First Reference, Acts 16:1; Primary References, Acts 16–20; 1 and 2 Timothy.)

7 After they were come to Mysia, they ¹assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit ²suffered them not.

8 And they passing by Mysia ^acame down to Troas.

9 And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a ^aman of Macedonia, and ¹prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10 And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavoured to go ^ainto Macedonia, ¹assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.

12 And from thence to ^aPhilippi, which is the ¹chief city of that part of Macedonia, ^{and} a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 And on the sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was ¹wont to be made; and we sat down, and spake unto the women which ²resorted thither.

14 And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of ^aThyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose ^bheart the Lord opened, ¹that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.

15 And when she was baptized, and her household, she ¹besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And ^ashe constrained us.

16:10. For the first time, the author of Acts places himself in the narrative by means of the first person plural personal pronouns—we and us. Luke seems to join the missionary team at Troas, then at the end of chapter 16 remains at Philippi when the others leave. Interestingly, the “we” passages resume about six years later, at the end of Paul’s third journey as he passes through Philippi (20:5, 6). The third “we” passage of Acts involves Paul’s transport as a prisoner to Rome in chapter 27.

16:13. Jews often gathered by a riverside on the Sabbath when their community lacked enough Jewish males to establish a synagogue. Since the institution of the synagogue is usually dated with the Exile (as in Ezek. 11:16), this practice may also have arisen from Ezekiel (1:1; 3:15).

16:14. Paul’s first European convert was from the very province (Asia) where Paul had recently been forbidden to go (16:6). Thyatira was famous for its purple dye.

16:6 Galatia in New Testament times referred to two entities: one ethnic, the other political. More than two hundred years before Christ, the Gauls moved into north central Asia Minor and established an independent kingdom known as Galatia. In 25 B.C. Caesar Augustus made it a Roman province. The province of Galatia during the New Testament era was comprised of much that was neither ethnically nor linguistically Galatian, including the cities of Lycaonia (Lystra, Derbe) and the cities of Phrygia (Pisidian Antioch, Iconium). The boundaries of this province changed many times. Thus, the meaning of the term “Galatia” in the New Testament is much debated. Does it refer to the ethnic, northern part of Galatia, or to the political, southern part? To whom did Paul write the Book of Galatians? The evidence seems to favor the southern view. First, Paul did have an extensive ministry during the first journey in southern Galatia (chs. 13, 14). Second, Paul’s alleged ministry in northern Galatia was brief, even if he did pass through there at Acts 16:6 and 18:23. This is unlikely since the grammar describes the area as one Phrygian-Galatian region. Third, the location of the Roman roads favors the south, not the north. Further, since the churches of Galatia were included among those who sent an offering for the poor of Jerusalem (1 Cor. 16:1), it is significant that the only Galatian city cited among the list of messengers (20:4) is the southern city of Derbe.

16:12 Philippi was a prominent city in the eastern part of Macedonia, which Philip, the father of Alexander the Great, enlarged and fortified in the fourth century B.C. It was located on the eastern end of the Via Egnatia, the military road that connected Rome with the east, and eight miles north of the seaport of Neapolis. Luke describes Philippi as “the chief city of that part of Macedonia” (v. 12). Several readings and translations have been proposed regarding this difficult statement in that Thessalonica, not Philippi, was the capital of the province of Macedonia. Luke may be saying that Philippi was the chief city of this part of Macedonia, since at one time Macedonia had been divided into four districts, or he may be saying that this was the first great city as one enters Macedonia from the east (as Paul and Luke did). Luke also describes it as a colony, having the same rights and privileges as a city within Italy itself. Philippi was not ruled by the proconsul at Thessalonica but was self-governing. Paul entered Europe by divine leading (v. 9) and ministered first at Philippi. He evidently left Luke there, and when he returned five years later at the end of his third journey, Luke rejoined Paul. After his first Roman imprisonment Paul probably returned to Philippi at least one more time (1 Tim. 1:3).

16 And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel ^apossessed with a spirit of divination met us, which brought her masters ^bmuch gain by ¹soothsaying:

17 The same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation.

16:17. The strange words of the demon-possessed girl, that Paul is proclaiming the way of salvation, reveal Satan's insidious attack upon the work of God. His method is to counterfeit that which is genuine, thereby confusing and corrupting it (cf. Luke 4:41; 2 Cor. 11:13-15).

16:25-31. Verse 25 is the key to the prison episode, since the earthquake was not intended to deliver Paul but to convert the jailer. God knew that Paul would be released the next day; therefore the earthquake was not merely for Paul and Silas's benefit. The earthquake would have been meaningless had not the jailer and prisoners heard Paul's testimony in prayer and song. Their singing brought about the divine intervention in the earthquake, and all would understand its significance. Hence, the jailer would run to Paul asking how he could be saved. God's purposes of Peter's deliverance of chapter 12, and Paul's of chapter 16, are apparent. The purpose of Peter's imprisonment was his execution; for Paul, the intention was only to threaten him. Surprisingly, Peter sleeps whereas Paul prays and sings. Neither is controlled by his circumstances. In Peter's case God puts the guards to sleep and delivers Peter by means of a silent angel. The guards are executed. In Paul's case God awakens the sleeping jailer with an earthquake. The jailer is saved; Paul chooses to remain in jail.

16:14 Thyatira was one of the seven cities of the Roman province of Asia addressed in Revelation 2 and 3. It was situated over 50 miles northeast of Smyrna and about 30 miles southeast of Pergamum on the road from Pergamum to Laodicea. Thyatira was a busy commercial center famous for its purple cloth and "fine brass" (bronze) works, especially armor. Lydia was apparently a salesperson traveling hundreds of miles from her hometown. Archaeologists have uncovered many inscriptions at Thyatira revealing a more diversified manufacturing center here than among the more renowned cities like Ephesus or Smyrna. These crafts included wool, linen, leather, bronze, dyeing, tanning, and pottery. Thyatira today is called Akhisar (pop. 47,000).

Preaching at Thessalonica

17 Now when they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to ^aThessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews:

2 And Paul, as his ¹manner was, ^awent in unto them, and three sabbath days ^breasoned with them out of the scriptures,

3 ¹Opening and ²alleging, ^athat Christ must needs have suffered, and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ.

4 ^aAnd some of them ¹believed, and ²consorted with Paul and ^bSilas; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

Jason's House Assaulted

5 But the Jews which ¹believed not, moved with ^aenvy, took unto them certain ²lewd fellows of the ³baser sort, and gathered a ⁴company, and set all the city on an uproar, and ⁵assaulted the house of ^bJason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 And when they found them not, they ¹drew Jason and certain brethren unto the rulers of the city, crying, ^aThese that have turned the world upside down are come hither also;

7 Whom Jason hath ¹received: and these all do contrary to the decrees of Caesar, ^asaying that there is another king, one Jesus.

8 And they troubled the ¹people and the rulers of the city, when they heard these things.

16:32-34. Some assume that the baptism of the jailer's household implies infant baptism. This is an unfortunate inference. Note carefully that they all heard the word preached (v. 32) and were all baptized (v. 33) after they all had believed (v. 34—Gr. perfect tense). All who hear and receive the gospel of Jesus Christ are fit candidates for baptism. Hearing, believing, and being baptized are the consistent pattern in Acts. See 18:8.

16:37. Luke's purpose for the Book of Acts as an apologetic to the Roman world, showing that Christianity is not subversive, is demonstrated here. Though Paul does not claim his Roman citizenship to protect himself, he will not quietly leave Philippi, allowing the citizens to assume that the church was begun by a criminal.

17:1 Thessalonica was the capital of the Roman province of Macedonia. It was founded after Macedonia became a world power (c. 316 b.c.) and became the principal city of Macedonia. It is situated on the northern tip of the Thermaic Gulf of the Aegean Sea and lies at the junction of two main land routes: the renowned Via Egnatia between east and west, and the main route from the Aegean area to the Danube. Paul, during his second missionary journey, established the Thessalonian church and shortly thereafter wrote to them two of his earliest epistles. He returned at the end of his third trip (20:1) and probably several times later (Phil. 1:25, 26; 1 Tim. 1:3). The present city is called Thessaloniki (or Salonika) and has a population of nearly half a million.

9 And when they had taken security of Jason, and of the ¹other, they let them go.

The Night Journey to Berea

10 And ^athe brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither went into the synagogue of the Jews.

11 These were more ¹noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and ^asearched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

12 Therefore many of them believed; also of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few.

13 But when the Jews of Thessalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and stirred up the ¹people.

Paul Waits in Athens

16 Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, ^ahis spirit was ¹stirred in him, when he saw the city ²wholly given to idolatry.

17 Therefore ¹disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the ²devout persons, and in the ³market daily with them that ⁴met with him.

18 Then certain philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountered him. And some said, What will this ¹babblor say? other some, He seemeth to be a ²setter forth of strange gods: because he preached unto them ^aJesus, and the resurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto ¹Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 (For all the Athenians and

17:18, 19. The economic and political importance of Athens had waned, yet it remained an intellectual center throughout the New Testament era. The leading schools of thought were the Epicurean and Stoic philosophies. Epicurus (c. 300 B.C.) had taught that though gods exist they are not interested in human affairs. Denying any future life, he regarded freedom from fear and pain, that is mental tranquility, as the highest goal in life. Not merely pleasure, but mental pleasure is to be the goal of life. Do that which brings tranquility. Zeno at about the same time taught in the Porch (Gr. stoa)—thus his followers became known as Stoicks. He was a pantheist and so had taught that men need to live in harmony with nature, practicing self-discipline and virtue. The Stoics would strive to deny the flesh, whereas the Epicureans would ignore it, seeking not to become its slave. Paul was regarded by these philosophers as a babblor (Gr. spermologos, “seed picker”). Like the birds that flutter around the marketplace picking up chance seeds, what significant thing could Paul have to say? Nevertheless, they permitted him to speak at the Areopagus (Mars’ Hill), where philosophical, moral, and religious matters were heard and evaluated.

17:10 Berea was a small city in southern Macedonia. It lay about 50 miles southwest of Thessalonica and was situated on the eastern slope of the Olympian range. It is now of no historical, political, or even commercial importance, but it was prosperous during New Testament times. It contained a colony of Jews with whom Paul commenced his work at Berea during the second missionary journey. The present city is named Verroia (pop. 26,000).

17:16 Athens was the chief city of the ancient city-state of Attica. After the Roman conquests it was given the status of a free city and exemption from paying taxes to Rome. Though it lay within the province of Achaia, it was free from the rule of the proconsul (governor) at Corinth. Athens is located 50 miles east of Corinth and five miles from the Aegean Sea on a narrow plain surrounded by mountains. During the New Testament era Athens was no longer as politically and economically influential as had once been the case, but it remained a major intellectual center of the Roman Empire. Paul ministered there during the second missionary journey but had few converts and may never have returned. Athens continued to decline through the centuries and in the early 1800s had only five thousand residents. Today it is the capital of Greece and has a population exceeding 600,000, with nearly two million in the metropolitan area.

¹strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.)

Paul Completes His Journey

18 After these things Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth;

2 And found a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla; (because that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome:) and came unto them.

17:22, 23. Paul does not condemn the Greeks in his introduction, calling them too superstitious. The word (Gr. deisidaimonesterous) could better be translated "religious." Paul is seeking to establish rapport with his audience by commending them for their zeal in worshiping THE UNKNOWN GOD. Paul will declare this true God to them.

17:24-31. With the Jews Paul could use the Old Testament as common ground. With the Athenians, however, he must begin with the general revelation that every man possesses. He proclaims the true God as Creator and therefore transcendent above His creation (vv. 24, 25). He proclaims that this true God is sovereignly involved in the affairs of men (v. 26). In fact, the true God is near them, within the reach of those who seek Him (vv. 27, 28). Therefore all peoples must repent and turn to Him, because a resurrection and a judgment day are coming.

17:34. An Areopagite was a member of the Athenian high council.

18:2. Claudius Caesar expelled the Jews ... from Rome in about A.D. 49. Paul's arrival in Corinth should be dated about A.D. 50 since the arrival of Gallio (v. 12) probably occurred in the summer of A.D. 51.

JUSTICE OF GOD

17:31. The justice of God is the active extension of the holiness of God into matters of decision. It implies that God has the authority and ability to establish the standard for all relationships and that He will be consistent in relating to His obedient and disobedient creatures. The justice of God is both legislative and distributive. Illustration: When Abraham attempted to prevent the destruction of Sodom, he appealed to God's justice: he knew the Judge of all the earth would do right (Gen. 18:25). Application: So today, everyone can have confidence that God will deal with him justly, but the believer may additionally plead God's mercy. (First Reference, Gen. 3:14; Primary Reference, Acts 17:31; cf. Mark 10:18.)

18:13–15. Judaism was a “legitimate religion” under Roman law. Christianity was afforded that same advantage as long as it was identified with Judaism. These Jews are seeking to sever that identification, but Gallio does not agree.

18:1 Corinth was the capital of the Roman province of Achaia (southern Greece). It lay on the western end of a four-mile isthmus between the Peloponnesus and central Greece. Good harbors existed on both sides of the isthmus: Cenchrea on the east and Lechaem on the west. In ancient times ships were dragged across the isthmus on rollers to avoid the stormy seas to the south. As early as New Testament times men (Nero) sought to build a canal through the isthmus, but it was not accomplished until 1893, after the invention of dynamite. In 146 b.c. the Romans crushed the Achaean League and destroyed Corinth. One hundred years later (46 b.c.) Julius Caesar rebuilt Corinth as a Roman city, and Augustus later made it the capital of Achaia. At its height this new city had a population of well over half a million. Corinth was known for its immorality even from ancient times, due partly to the temple of Aphrodite, goddess of love, with its thousand priestesses who engaged in prostitution. In New Testament times Corinth was a place of wealth and indulgence. Hence, “to live as a Corinthian” meant to live in luxury and immorality. Many of these problems affected the Corinthian church, as Paul’s epistles reveal. Paul spent over 18 months during his second journey (vv. 9–11) seeking to establish a strong church. An inscription found at Delphi in 1908 dates Paul’s stay in Corinth as occurring in the very early fifties, the inscription dating the beginning of Gallio’s term of office as A.D. 51 or 52. Modern Corinth (pop. 16,000) is four miles from the ancient site.

18:2 Priscilla (Prisca) and Aquila were Christian workers who moved from place to place, seeking to help establish churches. Aquila was a Jew born in Pontus in northern Asia Minor. He lived in Rome until Emperor Claudius expelled the Jews in about A.D. 49. Paul first encountered them at Corinth where he and they worked together as tentmakers and as church planters. The couple’s total involvement included opening their home as the meeting place for the church in Ephesus (1 Cor. 16:19; cf. 16:8), in Rome (Rom. 16:3–5), and probably again at Ephesus (2 Tim. 4:19). Priscilla and Aquila are also significant for their instruction of Apollos at Ephesus (vv. 24–28).

18:12 Achaia was the Roman province that included southern (the Peloponnesus) and central Greece. The name was used by Homer to designate the people of this region and by others to designate all Greeks. Caesar Augustus, in 27 b.c., divided Greece into two provinces: Macedonia and Achaia. Achaia was organized as a senatorial province with Corinth as its capital. This status was lost from A.D. 15 until A.D. 44 at which time Claudius restored it as a senatorial province. Therefore, when Paul arrived in Corinth about A.D. 50, Achaia was a province, with the Roman Gallio wielding power.

18:16, 17. The judgment seat (Gr. bēma) from which Gallio judged the affairs of Achaia and before which Paul stood was located in the market area. The Corinthians no doubt passed it often. Paul uses this to teach graphically that all those who know Christ will stand before His judgment seat, His bema judgment.

Paul's two references to Christ's bema are (1) to the church at Corinth (2 Cor. 5:10) and (2) in a letter he wrote from Corinth—Romans (Rom. 14:10). See also 1 Corinthians 3:12-15.

The Baptism of John's Disciples

19 And it came to pass, that, while ^aApollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the ^bupper ¹coasts came to Ephesus: and finding certain disciples, returning to the church at Antioch of Syria. The term gone up is often a technical phrase in the Gospels and Acts meaning to “go up to Jerusalem.” To “go down” meant to leave Jerusalem.

18:24–28. When Paul returned to Antioch he left Aquila and Priscilla in Ephesus. They encounter a follower of John the Baptist named Apollos. They inform him of the progress of God’s work and revelation through the apostles. Apollos is eloquent and zealous, and ministers successfully both in Ephesus and Corinth (1 Cor. 3:4–6).

19:1–5. This incident is unique in that here are 12 men whom the text presents as believers who are, nevertheless, rebaptized. They, like John the Baptist, had received Christ and were baptized. But they knew nothing of the church age or the coming of the Holy Spirit, even though these had happened 20 years earlier. Paul deems it necessary to rebaptize them. The evidence that they had already been saved is substantial. First, Luke refers to them as disciples. Second, Paul speaks of them as those who have believed. Third, if they were saved through Paul’s witness here, it would be fitting that they receive the Holy Spirit and the demonstration of tongues at the moment of belief (as with Cornelius, 10:44) rather than after their baptism. It seems best to understand these disciples of John as men who had been saved before Pentecost, but who had never been informed of its occurrence. Hence, they would not have received the baptism of the Spirit when saved back then, and no later event brought it about as Pentecost did for the 120 in the Upper Room. Obviously, therefore, John the Baptist did not initiate the church age; otherwise, the rebaptism of these men would have been unnecessary, as well as the demonstration of tongues.

18:24 Apollos was an Alexandrian Jew who arrived in Ephesus not long before Paul’s arrival during his third missionary journey. Apollos had received the message of Christ but knew nothing of the Spirit’s coming and the church age. He was an eloquent speaker with a good command of the Old Testament. When Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they informed him concerning all the recent wonderful works and revelations of God. Before Paul arrived, Apollos sailed for Corinth and powerfully proclaimed the Old Testament Scriptures proving that Jesus was the Messiah. He became so popular with some that factions arose (1 Cor. 3:1–4). Apollos returned to Ephesus and was with Paul even as he wrote his epistle dealing with the faction (1 Cor. 16:12). Little else is known about him except for a brief allusion in Titus 3:13. Martin Luther first suggested, and many have agreed, that Apollos was the author of Hebrews due to his Alexandrian background and his skill in the Old Testament.

19:1 Ephesus was located halfway up the western coast of the Asia Minor. Situated on the Aegean Sea at the mouth of the Cayster River, it lay 250 miles due east of Athens. Though Pergamum was the capital of the province of Asia, Ephesus was its most important city. With its one-third of a million people, Ephesus was impressive. A 70-foot-wide colonnaded street (Arcadian Way) ran through the city down to the sea. Ephesus was also the home of the fertility goddess, Diana (Artemis). The temple of Diana was described by ancient writers as four times the size of the Parthenon in Athens and was regarded as one of the seven wonders of the world. During New Testament times, however, the city experienced economic decline as its harbor began to silt shut. Today Ephesus lies in ruins. Paul initiated the work of the gospel in Ephesus when he placed Aquila and Priscilla there at the end of his second missionary journey. He returned shortly (third journey) and spent three years (20:31) establishing the churches throughout the province of Asia (v. 10). Several prominent men ministered in Ephesus during the New Testament era: Paul, Apollos (18:24), Timothy (1 Tim. 1:3), and John the apostle (according to Irenaeus and Eusebius).

2 He said unto them, ¹Have ye received the Holy Ghost ²since ye believed? And they said unto him, ^aWe have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost.

3 And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they said, ^aUnto John's baptism.

4 Then said Paul, ^aJohn verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized ^ain the name of the Lord Jesus.

6 And when Paul had ^alaid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and ^bthey spake with tongues, and prophesied.

God's Miracles Through Paul

11 And ^aGod wrought ¹special miracles by the hands of Paul:

12 ^aSo that from his body were brought unto the sick handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

13 ^aThen certain of the ¹vagabond Jews, exorcists, ^btook upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We ²adjure you by Jesus whom Paul ^cpreacheth.

14 And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, and chief of the priests, which did so.

15 And the evil spirit answered and said, Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?

19:2. Paul's question here is better translated, "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?" The manner and time of the receiving of the Holy Spirit in the Book of Acts does not follow a set pattern. Therefore, to base one's beliefs on any one passage in this transitional book is precarious. (Note 2:4; 8:15-17; 9:17, 18; 10:44; 13:48, 52; 16:31-34; 18:8; 19:6.) Rather, we must listen to what the apostles understood concerning these circumstances. Follow the consistent teachings of the apostles rather than their diverse experiences. Every person at the moment of his salvation receives the Holy Spirit without the laying on of hands and without any outward sign. See Romans 8:9; 1 Corinthians 12:13; Ephesians 1:13; 1 John 3:24; 4:13.

19:6. The experience of tongues is found only three times in Acts. It may have occurred at other times; certainly the text suggests that it did not occur commonly. (See the note on 11:15, 16.) Even if it did occur more commonly, Luke through the Holy Spirit has preserved for us only the occurrences at Pentecost (ch. 2), Cornelius's house (ch. 10), and here at Ephesus. In each of these situations tongues serve as a sign to Jews who seem slow to believe all that God is doing. Also, each of these three occurrences relates to one of the geographical regions involved in the spread of the church. First, at Jerusalem God gives this gift of tongues as a sign to the unsaved Jews to show that they need to heed the message of the apostles. Three thousand do. Second, in Judea and Samaria God uses tongues through Cornelius to convince the Jews there with Peter and later those in Jerusalem that the Gentiles have received everything that the Jews have, and that they are equal in the church of God. Third, in the distant city of Ephesus, God grants this gift of tongues for the benefit of the speakers themselves. It is a sign to all those who have followed John's message, showing that these teachings are incomplete and much more can be had, so listen to Paul.

19:11, 12. At Ephesus God worked special or unusual miracles so that even handkerchiefs were used in healing the sick. But this was very unusual even for the apostles. At other times Paul was unable to perform even a single healing. See 2 Corinthians 12:8; 2 Timothy 4:20.

19:10 Asia identifies three geographical areas: (1) the Roman province of New Testament times encompassing the western third of Asia Minor; (2) the westernmost peninsula of the Asian continent, known as Asia Minor (roughly equivalent to modern-day Turkey); and (3) the continent. All of the 21 references to Asia in the New Testament involve the Roman province, of which Ephesus was the prominent city. Ephesus and Asia were the target of Paul's third missionary journey (ch. 19). When Luke records that "all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word" (v. 10) during Paul's two-year ministry, he certainly has reference to the province, not the continent.

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks also dwelling at Ephesus; and ^afear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified.

18 And many that believed came, and ^aconfessed, and shewed their deeds.

19 Many of them also which ¹used curious arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 ^aSo mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

21 ^aAfter these things were ¹ended, Paul ^bpurposed in the spirit, when he had passed through ^cMacedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, ^dI must also see Rome.

22 So he sent into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, ^aTimotheus and ^bErastus; but he himself stayed in Asia for a ¹season.

is in danger ¹to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana ²should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshippeth.

28 And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole city was filled with confusion: and having ¹caught ^aGaius and ^bAristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the theatre.

30 And when Paul would have entered in unto the people, the disciples ¹suffered him not.

31 And certain of the ¹chief of Asia, which were his friends, sent unto him, ²desiring him that he would not ³adventure himself into the theatre.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was confused; and the ¹more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And ^aAlexander ^bbeckoned with the hand, and ¹would have made his defence unto the people.

34 But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 And when the townclerk had ¹appealed the people, he said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is there that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is ²a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image which fell down from ³Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that these things cannot be spoken against, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing rashly.

19:19, 20. The burning of these occultic books, valued at over one million dollars by current standards, might be considered a senseless waste by some (cf. 1 Sam. 15:1-3, 9-22). The sale of these scrolls could only provide financial resources. The rejection of and separation from them resulted in God's blessing, and so mightily grew the word of God and prevailed.

19:27. The temple of the great goddess Diana (Artemis was her Greek name) at Ephesus was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blasphemers of your goddess.

38 Wherefore if Demetrius, and the craftsmen which are with him, have a matter against any man, the law is open, and there are deputies: let them implead one another.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it shall be determined in a lawful assembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in question for this day's uproar, there being no cause whereby we may give an account of this course.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the assembly.

3 And there abode three months. And when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia Sopater of Berea; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 These going before tarried for us at Troas.

Eutychus Is Raised from the Dead

7 And upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight.

1 spoke 2 the next day 3 message

19:37. Robbers of churches (Gr. hierosulous) should be translated "robbers of temples." Paul and his companions had not plundered the temple of Diana where vast wealth was deposited.

20:4. The men traveling with Paul at the end of this journey are probably those delegated by their churches to carry offerings for the collection Paul is taking to the needy Judean Christians. See 24:17; Romans 15:25, 26; 1 Corinthians 16:1-4; 2 Corinthians 8, 9.

20:6. Luke, the author of the book, rejoins Paul at Philippi as indicated by we. See the note on 16:10.

20:7. This passage provides the clearest evidence that the New Testament churches assembled on the first day of the week. In fact, this was the primary service of the week. Paul stayed in Troas one full week. Then on Sunday, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them. He consistently preached on the Jewish Sabbath, because that was the day the Jews would gather in the synagogues. On Sunday it would be virtually empty. But when Paul gathered for fellowship with the church it was on Sunday, as revealed here and in 1 Corinthians 16:2. Sunday was the day they received offerings; Sunday was the day they observed the Lord's Supper. The teachings of the apostles agree with this practice. Only once do the apostles mention the Sabbath in teaching its proper place (Col. 2:16). Several other times reference is clearly made to the Sabbath (Rom. 14:5, 6; Gal. 4:9-11). In each of these passages Christians are urged not to allow the Sabbath to become an issue. Normally, Christians observe Sunday because of Christ's resurrection on Sunday and because of the early church's example. Neither Saturday nor Sunday is, however, the Christian's Sabbath. We worship a Person, not a day. Every day is to be holy to the Lord. Remember the weekday to keep it holy.

20:5 Troas was an important seaport on the Aegean Sea in northwest Asia Minor and was the main port between Asia Minor and Macedonia (Europe). It was the ideal place for God to lead Paul when sending him into Europe with the gospel (16:6-10). Troas was 10 miles south of ancient Troy, made famous by Homer. Troas was founded by the successors of Alexander the Great in 300 B.C. and named Alexandria Troas. Paul was in Troas at least three times. Early in Paul's second missionary journey, while at Troas, he received the vision leading him to Macedonia. Luke, the author of Acts, apparently joined the missionary party at Troas, for he begins to use the first person pronoun (we) to narrate the events (16:10). About seven years later, at the end of the third journey, Paul entered Troas for the second and third times. When he first left Ephesus on his way to Macedonia (vv. 1, 2) he passed through Troas preaching the gospel and expecting to meet Titus there (2 Cor. 2:12). Then, after several months in Macedonia and Achaia, he spent seven days in Troas (vv. 5, 6). Paul evidently had a fourth visit, during which he left some essential possessions that he later needed during his second Roman imprisonment (2 Tim. 4:13).

8 And there were many lights ^ain the upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and as Paul ¹was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third ²loft, and was taken up dead.

10 And Paul went down, and ^afell on him, and embracing him said, ^bTrouble not yourselves; for his life is in him.

11 When he therefore was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, so he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 And we went ¹before to ship, and sailed unto Assos, there intending to take ²in Paul: for so had he ³appointed, ⁴minding himself to go afoot.

14 And when he met with us at Assos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus.

16 For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for ^ahe ¹hasted, if it were possible for him, ^bto be at Jerusalem ^cthe day of Pentecost.

17 And from Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church.

18 And when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know, ^afrom the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all ¹seasons,

20:17. These church leaders from Ephesus are called elders (Gr. presbuteros) and overseers or bishops (Gr. episkopous) in verse 28. Two names are given for one office—the former designating their character, the latter their responsibility to superintend.

20:31. This does not contradict the statement in 19:10. Paul spent a total of three years in Ephesus; two in the school of Tyrannus.

32 And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and ^ato the word of his grace, which is able ^bto build you up, and to give you ^can inheritance among all them which are sanctified.

4 And finding disciples, we ¹tarried there seven days: ^awho said to Paul through the Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.

5 And when we had ¹accomplished those days, we departed and went our way; and they all ²brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and ^awe kneeled down on the shore, and prayed.

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another, we took ship; and they returned ^ahome again.

7 And when we had finished our ¹course from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and ²saluted the brethren, and ³abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Paul's ¹company departed, and came unto ^aCaesarea: and we entered into the house of Philip ^bthe evangelist, ^cwhich was one of the seven; and abode with him.

9 And the same man had four daughters, virgins, ^awhich did prophesy.

10 And as we ¹tarried there many days, there came down from Judaea a certain prophet, named ^aAgabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's ¹girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, ^aSo shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this ¹girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard these things, both we, and they of that place, ¹besought him not to go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, ^aWhat

20:35. Here alone is a quotation from Christ that is not recorded in the Gospels.

21:4. Whether Paul was right to go up to Jerusalem at this time has long been debated. This verse probably more than any other could be used to demonstrate that Paul was wrong in going. Yet, the total evidence seems to favor his decision. First, though the word Spirit is capitalized here, the same word is not in 20:22 but could be. Thus, Paul may be saying, "I go bound in the Spirit unto Jerusalem." Second, Paul was often very sensitive to the leading of the Spirit (16:6-19). Third, Paul's reasons for going were proper (20:24; 24:11, 17). Fourth, Paul never felt that he had made a mistake (21:14; 23:1; 24:16). Fifth, Paul considered his life as well as his words ordained of God, which he states while in Roman bondage resulting from this trip to Jerusalem (Phil. 3:17; 4:9). Sixth, these warnings were probably preparatory rather than prohibitive since the trip and the persecution conform to Paul's commission (9:15, 16).

21:9. Philip's four daughters are not described as women possessing the office of a prophet (cf. v. 10) or possessing any leadership role. In the early church the Spirit gave the gift of prophecy to anyone. He might choose: leader or layman, man or woman (cf. 2:17; 1 Cor. 11:5). The prophet was merely the mouthpiece for some truth God desired to make known.

24 They take, and purify thyself with them, and ¹be at charges with them, that they may ^ashave their heads: and all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing; but that thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law.

25 As ¹touching the Gentiles which believe, ^awe have written and ²concluded that they observe no such thing, save only that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from ³fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them ^aentered into the temple, ^bto ¹signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, ²until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

27 And when the seven days were almost ended, ^athe Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and ^blaid hands on him,

28 Crying out, Men of Israel, help: This is the man, ^athat teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and further brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath ¹polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had seen ¹before with him in the city ^aTrophimus an Ephesian, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the temple.)

30 And ^aall the city was ¹moved, and the people ran together: and they ²took Paul, and ³drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were shut.

31 And as they went ^aabout to kill him, ¹tidings came unto the ²chief captain of the ³band, that all Jerusalem was in an uproar.

22:6-11. For an explanation of the conversion events, see the note on 9:7.

22:16. Some believe that this statement teaches baptismal regeneration, that baptism is required for salvation. Several factors must be considered. (1) The historical narrative of Paul's conversion in chapter 9 shows that he was saved and filled with the Holy Spirit before his baptism. (2) The same is true of Cornelius's conversion in chapter 10. He was clearly saved and baptized with the Spirit before he was baptized in water (10:47). (3) More importantly, one must listen to Paul's teaching on this subject. Regeneration, not water baptism, washes away our sins (Titus 3:5). In fact, Paul helps us to see more properly the relation of baptism to regeneration by minimizing baptism (1 Cor. 1:14-17). (4) The other apostles agree with these teachings. The redeeming blood of Christ washes away our sins (1 Pet. 3:21; 1 John 1:7; Rev. 1:5). (5) The means by which sins are washed away is indicated by the participle calling on. The verse may then be rendered, "Be baptized, and wash away thy sins by calling on the name of the Lord." Water baptism is an outward action symbolizing what regeneration has already accomplished in the Christian's life.

22:17, 18. Paul provides an inside look at his first post-conversion trip to Jerusalem. In the historical narrative (9:26-30) Luke gives the concerned urging of his brethren as the reason for Paul's departure from Jerusalem. Here Paul informs us that the reason also involved God's command. Paul, in a trance, was told by God to get ... out of Jerusalem quickly. An important aspect of biblical interpretation is illustrated here: compare Scripture with other Scripture, especially with parallel accounts.

25 And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, ^a“Is it lawful for you to ¹scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?”

26 When the centurion heard that, he went and told the ¹chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman.

Paul Addresses the Council

23 And Paul, earnestly beholding the council, said, Men and brethren, ^a“I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.

2 And the high priest Ananias commanded them that stood by him ^a“to smite him on the mouth.

6 But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Pharisees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, ^a“I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: ^bof ¹the hope and resurrection of the dead I am ²called in question.

7 And when he had so said, there arose a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 ^a“For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel, nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both.

9 And there arose a great cry: and 22:21, 22. The Jews listen with some restraint to Paul’s account of God’s dealing in his life. But when Paul speaks one word, Gentiles, these Jews break into a frenzy. They cannot believe that God would send him to the Gentiles. Compare the similar reaction of the Jews in Rome (28:25–29).

23:6. After the captain learns that he will not be allowed to beat the truth out of Paul since he is a Roman citizen, he determines to discover the truth by bringing Paul before the Jewish high council, the Sanhedrin. As Paul communicates with the council, he discerns a very strong and hostile religious division. One faction, the Sadducees, were a small, elite group composed of the priestly family. The Sadducees were known for what they denied. They rejected all aspects of the supernatural: miracles, angels, and the resurrection. They rejected all of the Old Testament Scriptures except the Pentateuch, the five books of Moses. Politically, they were liberal in order to win the favor of Rome. They were, therefore, able to control the office of the high priest, which was appointed by Rome. By contrast, the Pharisees were associated more with the common people and so exerted a stronger influence over them. They accepted all of the Old Testament Scriptures but also much tradition, which they regarded as the Oral Law handed down from the time of Moses. They did accept the supernatural: miracles and the resurrection. Paul’s family had for several generations been Pharisees; so Paul now identifies himself with them and appeals for support for his belief in the Resurrection. Paul was able to direct the hostility of the Jewish council from himself toward its own members.

the scribes that were of the Pharisees' part arose, and ¹strove, saying, "We find no evil in this man: but ^bif a spirit or an angel hath spoken to him, ^clet us not fight against God.

10 And when there arose a great dissension, the ¹chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the ²castle.

11 And ^athe night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in ^bJerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at ^cRome.

13 And they were more than forty which had ¹made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief priests and ^aelders, and said, We have bound ourselves under a great ¹curse, that we will eat nothing until we have slain Paul.

15 Now therefore ye with the council ¹signify to the ²chief captain that he bring him down unto you to morrow, as though ye would enquire something ³more perfectly concerning him: and we, ⁴or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

16 And when Paul's sister's son heard of their ¹lying in wait, he went and entered into the ²castle, and told Paul.

Paul Taken to Caesarea

23 And he called unto him two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to ^aCaesarea, and horsemen ¹threescore and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at ²the third hour of the night;

24 And provide them ¹beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lysias unto the most excellent governor Felix sendeth greeting.

23:12-15. Over 40 men vow to kill Paul and then explain their scheme to the priests. These would-be murderers, in presenting this illegal plot to the priests, must have regarded them as corrupt and blinded by hatred. This band of men may have included those called the Sicarii (dagger-men) who roamed Judea assassinating their enemies with short daggers. The Roman captain had earlier suspected Paul of being one of these murderers (Gr. sikariōn, Acts 21:38).

23:24. The governor (Gr. hēgemonā) technically refers to Felix's office as Roman procurator. Third-rate provinces received men from the equestrian order rather than men of nobility. By contrast, the procurators were noblemen. (See the note on 13:7.) Other procurators who governed Judea were Pontius Pilate and Festus, though technically in Judea procurators were called prefects before A.D. 44. Pilate governed A.D. 26-36; Felix A.D. 52-59(?).

27 ^aThis man was ¹taken of the Jews, and ²should have been killed of them: then came I with ³an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

28 ^aAnd when I ¹would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their council:

30 And ^awhen it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent straightway to thee, and ^bgave commandment to his accusers also to say before thee what they had against him. Farewell.

31 Then the soldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned to the ¹castle:

33 Who, when they came to ^aCaesarea, and delivered the ^bepistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him.

Paul's Defence Before Felix

10 Then Paul, after that the governor had ¹beckoned unto him to speak, answered, Forasmuch as I know that thou hast been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully answer for myself:

11 Because that thou mayest understand, that there are ¹yet but twelve days since I went up to Jerusalem ^afor to worship.

12 ^aAnd they neither found me in the temple disputing with any man, neither ¹raising up the people, neither in the synagogues, nor in the city:

25 And as he reasoned ¹of righteousness, ²temperance, and judgment to come, Felix ³trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient ⁴season, I will call for thee.

26 He hoped also that ^amoney should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

27 But after two years Porcius Festus ¹came into Felix' room: and Felix, ^awilling² to shew the Jews a ³pleasure, left Paul bound.

Paul Appeals to Caesar

25 Now when Festus was come into the province, after three days he ¹ascended from ^aCaesarea to Jerusalem.

2 ^aThen the high priest and the chief of the Jews informed him against Paul, and ¹besought him,

3 And ¹desired favour against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, ^alaying² wait in the way to kill him.

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Caesarea, and that he himself would depart shortly thither.

25:3 ^a Acts 23:12, 15 ¹ asked ² while they lay in ambush

24:5. The Jews would not call the believers Christians, the people of the Christ (Messiah). They used other terms like the sect of the Nazarenes. This nickname was derived from Jesus' hometown of Nazareth.

24:24. Drusilla, the wife of Felix, was the daughter of Herod Agrippa I (ch. 12) and the sister of Agrippa II and Bernice (25:23). Though Felix possessed no nobility of his own, he successively married three wives of royal birth.

24:25. Men often put off receiving Christ as Savior, waiting for a convenient season. Rarely does that time come. There is no record that Felix ever found the right moment. God says, "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2).

24:26. Felix hoped that the detention of Paul might cause Paul to offer him money. Paul's family probably did possess substantial resources, having sent Paul abroad to study at Jerusalem under one of the most prominent teachers of the day (22:3). More likely, however, Felix had heard of the large financial aid that Paul had brought for the Jews from the Gentile churches. Compare verse 17, and see the note on 20:4.

24:27 Felix and Festus were successive procurators of Judea and Samaria during the time of Paul's ministry just as Pilate had been during Christ's earthly ministry 30 years earlier. Procurators ruled over troublesome provinces (like Judea) and so were under the authority of the emperor rather than the Roman senate. Caesarea on the Mediterranean coast was the seat of their government, though they often traveled to Jerusalem for such Jewish feasts as Passover and Pentecost. Felix was a greedy and cruel official; Festus was a just and capable one. Felix unjustly left Paul in prison two whole years, hoping to receive a bribe and to appease the Jews (vv. 26, 27). Felix governed from A.D. 52 to 59; Festus from A.D. 59 to 62.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you ¹are able, go down with me, and accuse this man, ^aif there be any wickedness in him.

6 And when he had ¹tarried among them more than ten days, he went down unto Caesarea; and the next day sitting on the judgment seat commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, ^aand laid many and ¹grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove.

8 While he answered for himself, ^aNeither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Caesar, have I offended any thing at all.

9 But Festus, ^awilling to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, ^bWilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?

10 Then said Paul, I stand at Caesar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.

11 ^aFor if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I ¹refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. ^bI appeal unto Caesar.

12 Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, Hast thou appealed unto Caesar? unto Caesar shalt thou go.

King Agrippa Visits Festus

13 And after certain days king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Caesarea to ¹salute Festus.

14 And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, ^aThere is a certain man left ¹in bonds by Felix:

15 ^aAbout whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, ¹desiring to have judgment against him.

16 ^aTo whom I answered, It is not the ¹manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, and ²have licence to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him.

17 Therefore, when they were come hither, ^awithout any delay ¹on the morrow I sat on the judgment seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth.

18 Against whom when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed:

19 ^aBut had certain questions against him of their own ¹superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And because I ¹doubted of such manner of questions, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these matters.

21 But when Paul had ^aappealed to be reserved unto the ¹hearing of 25:6. Regarding the judgment seat, see the note on 18:16, 17.

25:13. King Agrippa, historically identified as Agrippa II, was the son of the Herod of chapter 12, Herod Agrippa I. When Agrippa I died in A.D. 44 (12:23), Agrippa II was considered too young to rule over the entire Palestinian kingdom of his father. Thus Cuspius Fadus was appointed as procurator over the troublesome province of Judea. Felix and Festus later occupy this same office. By the time of chapter 25 (c. A.D. 59), Agrippa II had become king of Galilee, other northern regions, and part of Perea. King Agrippa had no authority over Festus. Rome often allowed Eastern rulers to use the popular title of king. Each governed his own realm. King Agrippa came to Caesarea merely to salute (greet) the new procurator. A similar situation exists in the Gospels between Herod Antipas and Pilate (Luke 23:6, 7, 12). See also the note on 23:24.

25:13 Herod Agrippa II, called simply Agrippa in Scripture, was the son of the Herod in Acts 12. Bernice and Drusilla (24:24) were his sisters. Since he was young when his father died, he did not receive his father's realm. But as the years passed he received one part and eventually the rest. He had a long reign, from A.D. 50 until about A.D. 100. His incestuous relations with his sister Bernice became a subject of gossip as far away as Rome. (Only Reference, Acts 25, 26.)

Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I might send him to Caesar.

22 Then ^aAgrippa said unto Festus, I ¹would also hear the man myself. To morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

Festus Orders a Hearing

23 And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and was entered into the ¹place of hearing, with the ²chief captains, and ³principal men of the city, at Festus' commandment ^aPaul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom ^aall the multitude of the Jews have ¹dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying that he ought ^bnot to live any longer.

25 But when I found that ^ahe had committed nothing worthy of death, ^band that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that, after examination ¹had, I might have ²somewhat to write.

27 For it seemeth to me unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

Paul Appears Before Agrippa

26 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself:

2 I think myself ^ahappy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer ^bfor myself this day before thee ¹touching all the things whereof I am ^caccused of the Jews:

8 Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?

9 ^aI verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of ^bJesus of Nazareth.

10 ^aWhich thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority ^bfrom the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I ¹gave my voice against them.

11 ^aAnd I punished them ¹oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly ²mad against them, I persecuted them even unto ³strange cities.

Paul Describes His Conversion

12 ^aWhereupon as I went to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests,

13 At midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me and them which journeyed with me.

14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew ¹tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? it is hard for thee to kick against the ²pricks.

26:10. The word translated voice (Gr. psēphon) is the word for the pebble used by ancient juries in voting: a black one for conviction, a white one for acquittal. Paul cast his vote against the Christians. This lends some support to the opinion that Paul had been a member of the Sanhedrin or some lesser council.

26:12–18. For the interpretation of the events at Paul's conversion, see the note on 9:7.

15 And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest.

16 But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, “to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will ¹appear unto thee;

17 Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, “unto whom now I send thee, 18 “To open their eyes, and ^bto turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, ^cthat they may receive forgiveness of sins, and ^dinheritance among them which are ^esanctified¹ by faith that is in me.

19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision:

20 But “shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the ¹coasts of Judaea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do ^bworks ²meet for repentance.

21 For these causes the Jews ¹caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, saying none other things than those “which the prophets and ^bMoses did say should come:

23 “That Christ should suffer, and ^bthat he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and ^cshould¹ shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

Almost Persuaded

24 And as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice,

26:28. Agrippa confesses that he is close to believing what Paul has proclaimed. But another interpretation is possible. Almost (Gr. en oligōi) can be translated “in a short time.” Understanding Agrippa’s words as a question the verse would read: “In a short time are you trying to persuade me to be a Christian?”

26:32. Though Agrippa’s comment certainly did not help Paul, it did have apologetic value for Luke in demonstrating Paul’s innocence despite his years in prison.

Paul, “thou art beside thyself; much learning ¹doth make thee mad.

Paul Sent to Rome

27 And when “it was determined that we should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other prisoners unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus’ ¹band.

2 And entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we ¹launched, meaning to sail ²by the coasts of Asia; one ^aAristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, being with us.

27:2. Paul’s companions during his trip to Rome were Aristarchus and Luke, the author of Acts. Luke’s presence is evident by his use of the pronouns we and us. (See the note on 16:10 for the other “we” passages.) Aristarchus had come with Paul to Jerusalem (20:4), and he now travels to Rome and remains with Paul throughout his imprisonment. Paul refers to him as his “fellow prisoner” (Col. 4:10), implying either Aristarchus’s faithful devotion or Paul’s own incarceration. Also, the centurion in charge of the soldiers was himself kind (v. 3) and helpful (v. 43) to Paul.

3 And the next day we ¹ touched at Sidon. And Julius ^a courteously² entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refresh himself.

4 And when we had launched from thence, we sailed ¹ under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 And when we had sailed over the sea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia.

6 And there the centurion found a ship of ^a Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come over against Cnidus, the wind not ¹ suffering us, we sailed ² under ^a Crete, ³ over against Salmone;

8 And, ¹ hardly passing it, came unto a place which is called The fair havens; nigh whereunto was the city of Lasea.

9 Now when much time was spent, and when sailing was now dangerous, ^a because ¹ the fast was now already past, Paul admonished them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with ¹ hurt and much ² damage, not only of the ³ lading and ship, but also of our lives.

11 Nevertheless the centurion believed the ¹ master and the owner of the ship, more than those things which were spoken by Paul.

12 And because the haven was not ¹ commodious to winter in, the ² more part advised to depart thence also, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an ³ haven of Crete, and ⁴ lieth toward the south west and north west.

26 Howbeit ^a we must ¹ be cast upon a certain island.

27:3. Luke carefully records much nautical detail, which is hardly significant for showing the spread of the church. Three explanations for this extended coverage seem plausible. (1) Maybe since Luke is an eyewitness, he carefully records minute detail. Chapters 16, 20, and 21 demonstrate much the same amplification when Luke is with Paul on those occasions. (2)

Maybe it is because of Paul's leadership and counsel even though he is a prisoner. (3) Maybe it is to show generally how God governs in the daily affairs of life.

27:9. The fast refers to the one required fast of the Old Testament, the Day of Atonement (Lev. 23:27-32). This would place the date as late September or early October.

The Shipwreck

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria, about midnight the shipmen ¹deemed that they drew near to some ²country;

28 And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

29 Then fearing lest we should ¹have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day.

30 And as the ¹shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the ²boat into the sea, under ³colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the ⁴foreship, 31 Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the ¹boat, and let her fall off.

33 And while the day was coming on, Paul ¹besought them all to take ²meat, saying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have ³tarried and continued ⁴fasting, having ⁵taken nothing.

2 And the ^abarbarous¹ people shewed us ²no little kindness: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, because of the present rain, and because of the cold.

4 And when the barbarians saw the venomous ¹beast hang on his hand, they said among themselves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet ²vengeance ³suffereth not to live.

5 And he shook off the ¹beast into the fire, and ^afelt² no harm.

27:31. This verse with verse 24 illustrates the relation between divine sovereignty and human responsibility. Though God has unconditionally promised to Paul that every life would be spared, Paul warns that the sailors must stay on board to man the ship. The sailors had a responsibility to fulfill (vv. 39, 40).

28:8, 9. According to verse 8 God miraculously healed (Gr. iasato) Publius's father through the laying on of Paul's hands. Verse 9 states that many came and were healed. But a different word is used (Gr. ether- apeuonto), and any mention of laying on of hands is missing. Consequently, the healings of verse 9 could have been by medical means, through the hands of Luke the Physician.

28:16 Rome, according to tradition, was founded in 753 B.C., organized as the republic in about 510 B.C., and had its first emperor, Caesar Augustus, before the birth of Christ. Rome is located on the Tiber River 15 miles from the Mediterranean. During New Testament times it enjoyed the height of its splendor. The population far exceeded one million and represented nations from Arabia to Britain. Close to half of these people were slaves; and the others, free citizens, thought it degrading to do manual labor. Decadence was setting in; Rome desperately needed the gospel. Scripture does not state how Rome first received the gospel. That an apostle (like Peter or Paul) began the work is most unlikely. In Paul's Epistle to the Romans, the church there appears unstructured and ungrounded in the basic doctrines, which no apostle would allow. Also, Paul declares to these very believers that he avoided building on another man's work (Rom. 15:20); yet he would be doing exactly that if another apostle had established it. From the information that Scripture provides, it is likely the visitors from Rome who were in Jerusalem at Pentecost (Acts 2:10) began the work. That Paul did get to Rome and did minister there evidently is important to the development of Acts, since this occupies the last several chapters (cf. 23:11; 28:30, 31).

29 And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, and had great ¹reasoning among themselves.

30 And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own ¹hired house, and received all that came in unto him, 31 ^aPreaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

28:25–29. As it was with the Jews in Jerusalem, so now in Rome. These Jews listen until Paul mentions that God has sent him to the Gentiles. The Jews have corporately rejected the Gospel from Jerusalem to Rome. The pattern is established. The church is becoming a largely Gentile entity.

28:30, 31. During Paul's two-year confinement at Rome he associated with many coworkers. Along with Luke and Aristarchus the following men spent some time with Paul in Rome: Onesimus and Tychicus (Col. 4:7–9), Epaphras (Col. 1:7, 8), Epaphroditus (Phil. 4:18), Mark and Demas (Col. 4:10, 14), and Timothy (Col. 1:1). Paul's ministry, though limited in its breadth, was not limited in its depth. Paul continued to preach, winning men to Christ. He also wrote four epistles: Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians, and Philemon. Luke closes the document with the westward spread of the gospel to Rome, not with the end of Paul's life. Paul's two-year detention may have ended in a trial in which Paul was acquitted. More likely, though, the matter ended in default without ever coming to trial. Since early church tradition refers to a later ministry by Paul in the west (Spain) and the Pastoral Epistles (1 and 2 Timothy and Titus) refer to a later ministry in the Aegean Sea area, Paul no doubt was released and several years later rearrested (2 Tim. 1:16; 4:6–18) and martyred. If, indeed, Paul had been acquitted, Luke the apologist would have sought to exonerate Paul. Luke's silence concerning a trial or its outcome strongly suggest there never was one.

ROMANS

Romans has been called “The Constitution of Christianity,” “The Christian Manifesto,” and “The Cathedral of the Christian Faith.” It is noteworthy for being the most complete compendium of Christian doctrine.

Historical Setting. The Epistle of Romans was written between A.D. 56 and 58 from Corinth during Paul’s third missionary journey. Before his departure for Jerusalem, Paul stayed in Corinth for three months (cf. Acts 20:22). In Romans 15:25, 30–32, Paul anticipated his departure for Jerusalem. Following his trip to Jerusalem to deliver the collection for the Jerusalem saints, Paul intended to make a fourth missionary journey to the western extremity of the Roman Empire (15:24). He wanted the Roman church to assist him with making that journey and wrote this epistle to establish contact with the Roman church in preparation for the anticipated visit.

The church at Rome was most likely founded by converts of Peter’s ministry at Pentecost, or perhaps of Paul’s ministry, who had migrated to Rome. Rome was the center of the Roman Empire. Because of the Roman passion for road construction, travel was relatively easy and the saying “All roads lead to Rome” was literally true. The Greek language was common throughout the Roman Empire, for it was the language of culture. Latin was the language of government. Citizens moving to Rome would have no trouble communicating in their new environment.

The church was primarily made up of Gentiles and had very little central organization or local church government. Small groups of believers met all over the city (cf. 16:5, 10, 11, 14, 15). This is the reason that the epistle is not addressed to the “church” at Rome but to “saints” (1:7). This is different from 1 and 2 Corinthians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, and Galatians, which are addressed to the churches in those cities. It is possible that the Gospel of Mark was written in A.D. 68 to this same group of saints.

The apostle Paul desired to visit Rome (1:10–15) and planned to fulfill that desire (15:22–33). He wanted to instruct them in his gospel (cf. 16:25). Phoebe was in Corinth and was going to make a trip to Rome (cf. 16:1, 2). This gave Paul an opportunity to send the letter by her.

The apostle Paul had three objectives in writing this epistle: (1) to teach them the fundamental doctrine of salvation in order to fortify them against the Judaizers (chs. 1–3); (2) to explain the unbelief of Israel and vindicate the faithfulness of God in His dealings with Israel (chs. 9–11); and (3) to give practical instruction concerning Christian living in the society of his day (chs. 12–16).

Authorship. We know from 1:1 that the author of this epistle is Paul. In addition, the author makes some personal references that are only applicable to Paul (cf. 11:13; 15:15–20). The case for Pauline authorship is conclusive and practically unquestioned both in the history of the church and in modern scholarship.

The Just Shall Live by Faith

16 For ^aI am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for ^bit is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; ^cto the Jew first, and also to the Greek.

1:13 ^a[1 Thess. 2:18] ^bPhil. 4:17 ¹planned ²hindered
1:16 ^aPs. 40:9, 10 ^b1 Cor. 1:18, 24 ^cLuke 2:30; Acts 3:26; Rom. 2:9

1:1. Called to be an apostle means “an apostle by way of God’s sovereign call.”

1:3, 4. Was made of the seed of David: This emphasizes the humanity of Christ and His human lineage (cf. 2 Sam. 7:13; Jer. 33:17). Declared (lit., “marked out”) ... Son of God: Jesus could not come to be God. He could only receive this designation as a recognition of an eternal truth. By the resurrection: The proof of Jesus’ deity is His resurrection from the dead. The spirit of holiness is the Holy Spirit.

1:5. Grace (Gr. charin, “unmerited favor”) and apostleship: “Grace” emphasizes the ministry in relation to Paul; he did not deserve or earn it. “Apostleship” emphasizes the ministry in relation to others: to teach revelation authoritatively and establish churches.

1:7. Called to be saints: This tells how they got to be saints, namely, by way of God’s call (cf. 8:30). Grace is the typical Greek greeting, whereas peace is the traditional Hebrew greeting. Note Paul’s greeting in his other epistles for this characteristic expression of Paul.

1:9. Whom I serve: The word for service (Gr. latreuō) signifies “priestly service.” Here the reference is to his regular intercession on their behalf.

1:11. Spiritual gift: Anticipates the discussion in 12:1–8.

1:12. Mutual faith: See Jude 3.

1:13. Let (lit., “hindered”). Fruit: See John 4:36, 15:16; Philippians 1:22; Colossians 1:6.

1:14. Debtor signifies one who is morally obligated. Because of his call and gift of apostleship (1:1, 5), Paul was obligated culturally to the Greeks. These people were cultured and refined. To the Barbarians: These were strangers to the Greek language and culture. Educationally, he was indebted to the wise, whether they were wise in handicraft, the affairs of life, the sciences, or learning. He was also indebted to the unwise, or unlearned. This was Paul’s way of expressing his burden to get the gospel to everyone.

1:16. The power of God: The English words dynamite and dynamo are derived from the word “power.” If Paul were writing today he would probably speak of atomic power. The gospel is so powerful that it takes people all the way into heaven. Salvation: This is past (cf. Luke 7:50; Rom. 1–3); present (cf. Rom. 6:3–11), and future (cf. 2 Cor. 4:16–5:10; Rom. 8:16–25). Paul will develop the full breadth of this truth throughout this epistle. Every one that believeth: The basis of salvation is God’s gracious provision (Rom. 3:23–26). But the only means by which the sinner can appropriate this gift is faith (10:9–17). The gospel is the essential content of that faith. This is why Paul is so burdened to preach Christ to the world.

17 For ^atherein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, ^bThe just shall live by faith.

God's Wrath Against Ungodliness

18 ^aFor the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and ^bunrighteousness of men, who ¹hold the truth in unrighteousness;

19 Because ^athat which may be known of God is ¹manifest ²in them; for ^bGod hath shewed it unto them.

20 For ^athe invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and ¹Godhead; so that they are without excuse:

1:17. Righteousness, God's essential attribute, is revealed. It is not man's invention; it is God's revelation. Left to himself, man would never have thought of it. From faith to faith: Its source and end are the same. To those who possess God's righteousness Paul pronounces, The just shall live by faith. What one believes does make a difference. If he believes the gospel he has life (union with God); otherwise he has death (separation from God).

1:18. The wrath is not the revelation of a future judgment of God or of the Great Tribulation, but a present revelation that parallels the present revelation of God's righteousness (cf. 1:17). This revelation comes from heaven. Ungodliness is failure in the religious realm. Unrighteousness is failure in the moral sphere or injustice toward man. Who hold (lit., "hold down," "suppress") the truth in unrighteousness. They received the truth concerning the wrath of God but hindered it and prevented it from completing its work.

1:20. God's creation reveals two things about Him: his eternal power and Godhead (Gr. theiotēs, "divine nature," "divinity"). Creation reveals that God is powerful; hence, man is obligated to Him and the fact that He is God. Without excuse: No man is able to stand before God and say that he turned away from God because God did not give any light. All men have had the revelation of God; therefore, all men are accountable to Him.

FAITH—DEFINITION

1:17. Six kinds or expressions of faith occur in Scripture. Doctrinal faith, called "the faith," refers to the content of Christian belief (Jude 3). Saving faith is trusting in Christ and in Him alone for salvation (Acts 16:31). Justifying faith is the believer's reliance on the fact that God has declared him righteous (Gen. 15:6). Indwelling faith is trusting God's Word in and through us (Gal. 2:20). Daily faith is that day-by-day dependence on God which is part of the sanctification process (2 Cor. 5:7). The gift of faith is a special ability of faith, resulting in a vision of what God can do, faith that is the means by which we can achieve that vision, and the power with God to get answers to prayer (Heb. 11:1-3). Illustration: God's hall of faith (Heb. 11) identifies a number of Old Testament saints who experienced God's blessing as a result of their faith. Although they did not all experience the same kind of victories, all pleased God by faith (Heb. 11:6). Application: The Christian should remember that it is impossible to please God without faith (Heb. 11:6). (First Reference, Gen. 15:6; Primary Reference, Rom. 1:17; cf. Rom. 4:20.)

WRATH OF GOD

1:18. In order to express His nature (holiness, truth, and justice), God must punish sin. Since sin personally offends God, no one should be surprised that sin makes God angry. To deny His anger is to reject the necessity of Christ's reconciling work on the cross. God's wrath is revealed both in nature and in the Scriptures. Illustration: The rage that today is vented against sin will someday be completely unleashed in hell against those who refuse to accept the satisfaction (propitiation) that Christ made on the cross for sin. Application: Since this propitiation by Christ suffices for the whole world, there is no reason anyone should spend eternity in hell unless he voluntarily rejects God's truth. (First Reference, Gen. 49:7; Primary Reference, Rom. 1:18; cf. John 14:2.)

COSMOLOGICAL ARGUMENT FOR THE EXISTENCE OF GOD

1:20. The argument from cause and effect is one logical argument for the existence of God. As everything that exists must have an adequate cause, so an all-powerful and intelligent God is an adequate cause to explain the universe. The Scripture identifies that "cause" as the creative power of God (Gen. 1:1; Rom. 1:19, 20). (First Reference, Gen. 1:1; Primary Reference, Rom. 1:20; cf. Ps. 94:9.)

God's Righteous Judgment

2 Therefore thou art ^ainexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: ^bfor wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things.

2 But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou ^athe riches of his goodness and ^bforbearance and ^clongsuffering; ^dnot knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But after thy hardness and impenitent heart ^atreasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath and revelation of the righteous judgment of God;

1:24-32. God gave them up (cf. vv. 24, 26, 28): This giving is not permissive (i.e., God lets them do what they want to do) or privative (i.e., God withdraws His gracious help); it is judicial. They were blinded not because God withdrew His light, but because of the judicial acts of God whereby He delivered them over to the natural result of their unbelief and action. When they followed the lie they began to walk in conformity to the lie. This is the kind of life-style described. Three results of the Gentiles' rejection are given: God gave them up to all forms of uncleanness and its consequent actions (vv. 24, 25); God gave them up to all forms of sexual depravity and its consequent actions (vv. 26, 27); and God gave them over to a mind that would not retain Him in its knowledge and its consequent actions (vv. 28-32).

2:1. Thou ... that judgest: Paul now turns his attention to the self-righteous moralist.

2:3. Escape the judgment of God: Jewish tradition taught that Abraham sat at the gate of hell to prevent any Jew from entering. They were not ignorant of God, but of God's design to bring them to repentance.

JUDGMENTS

2:1-16. Throughout the Scriptures, God is presented as a Judge. In the Old Testament, the judgment of God is observable through the Flood, the destruction of Sodom, and the collapse of various nations, including both Israel and Judah. In the New Testament, judgment tends to occur in eight areas: (1) the Cross judgment (John 16:11); (2) the believer's self-judgment (1 Cor. 11:31); (3) the chastisement by the Father (Heb. 12:6-11); (4) the Bema (judgment seat) of Christ (2 Cor. 5:10); (5) the Tribulation (Ezek. 20:37, 38); (6) the judgment of Gentile nations (Matt. 25:31-46); (7) the Great White Throne judgment (Rev. 20:11-15); and (8) the judgment of angels (1 Cor. 6:3). Illustration: the fundamental principle of divine judgment is that God will judge according to truth (v. 2), deeds (v. 6), light (vv. 11-15), and the gospel, which reveals human thoughts and motives (v. 16). Application: Christians should live their lives accountable to God for their attitudes and actions. (First Reference, Gen. 3:15; Primary Reference, Rom. 2:1-16; cf. Obad. 15.)

Cautions Against Hypocrisy

17 Behold, ^athou art called a Jew, and ^bretest in the law, ^cand makest thy boast of God,

2:17 ^a [Matt. 3:9]; John 8:33 ^b Mic. 3:11; John 5:45; Rom. 2:23; 9:4 ^c Is. 48:1, 2

2:6. In this parenthetical discourse setting forth the controlling principle of God’s judgment, Paul explains how and why God will judge, and how He can judge both Jew and Gentile and be completely fair in the process. The controlling principle will be according to ... deeds because deeds give incontrovertible proof of what is in the heart.

2:7–10. For the regenerate the judgment will result in eternal life; for the unregenerate it will result in indignation and wrath. To the Jew first: Unbelieving Jews will have prominence in condemnation; believing Jews will have prominence in reward.

2:11–15. God can judge on the basis of works because He is impartial and because the law is immaterial. The Gentile will not be judged on the basis of the Jews’ law, and the Jew will not be excused by the Gentiles’ lack of law. Works demonstrate the heart’s true condition. Conscience is sufficient grounds for condemnation because it establishes a framework of right and wrong and reflects the law written in their hearts.

2:17, 18. Five phrases express the Jews’ five God-given privileges: Called a Jew (Gr. Ioudaios) emphasizes a national difference resulting from the theocratic appointment of Genesis (12:1–3). Restest in the law: The Jews have the objective revelation of God’s law whereas the Gentiles had only the variable law of conscience. Makest thy boast of God: God was revealed as the God of Israel, and Israel was the only nation to have unique relationship to the only God of the universe. Knowest his will, and approvest the things that are more excellent: They gave approval to the things that were in keeping with the character of God, because they were instructed out of the law. The “law” was their teacher and taught them God’s specific will.

ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARGUMENT FOR THE EXISTENCE OF GOD

2:15. The existence of man as a moral and intellectual being is an argument for the existence of a moral and intellectual being called God. This is true because man was created in the image and likeness of God (Gen. 1:26), and even after the Fall he has the law of God written in his heart (v. 15). Illustration: When people follow God, they often follow the God they see in the lives of others. Paul taught the Corinthians to follow him as he followed the Lord (1 Cor. 11:1). Application: So today, Christians ought to be careful to reflect the character of God in their lives and not become a stumbling block to the gospel. (First Reference, Gen. 1:26; Primary Reference, Rom. 2:15; cf. 1 John 4:8.)

CONSCIENCE

2:15. Deep within man is the consciousness of God (John 1:9), and the sense of what God requires (v. 15). The conscience of man dwells in the heart (see the Key to Doctrine at Prov. 4:23), acting as a moral regulator of what is right or wrong. The implied meaning of the word conscience is “a knowing within oneself.” Since memory and thinking are functions of the heart, that is the apparent location of the conscience. Illustration: The heart is the place where God communicates to the individual. However, continually stifling the conscience renders it inoperative (1 Tim. 4:2). An incapacitated consciousness of God is called a “seared” conscience. Application: A wise Christian will be careful not to engage in activities that bother his conscience. (First Reference, John 8:9; Primary Reference, Rom. 2:15; cf. 1 John 2:15,16.)

2:19, 20. Them which are in darkness: This is a reference to those without a specific revelation from God (cf. Is. 9:2). Form of knowledge: As Jesus was “in the form of God” (Phil. 2:6), the Jews possessed in the law the very “form” of that sacred knowledge which would impart salvation (2 Tim. 3:15).

2:24, 25. Israel’s superior privileges should have produced a corresponding life-style, but they did not.
This inconsistency has caused the name of God to be blasphemed among the Gentiles. In addition, their circumcision is made uncircumcision. The rite of “circumcision” was distinctively characteristic of the Jews. It was a testimony of the father’s belief in the promises given to Abraham (cf. Gen. 17:9 ff.). The rite without the reality of personal devotion to God is meaningless and is really unrighteousness.

3:1. Circumcision made Israel a distinctive nation, so Paul has national superiority and privilege in view. The question is, “What benefit is there to being a member of the Jewish race?”

3:2. Oracles of God refers to the words of the Old Testament, which Paul, like other New Testament writers and even Jesus Himself, regarded as divinely inspired.

3:3, 4. God forbid (Gr. mē genoito, “may it never be,” “perish the thought”): This direct denial is a formula of negation in which the individual recoils with horror at something that is previously suggested.
It occurs in Paul’s writings more than 60 times. Let God be true refers to God’s keeping His promises to Israel. God’s faithfulness does not depend upon the faithfulness of man.

No One Is Righteous

9 What then? are we better than they? ¹No, in no wise: for we have ²before proved both Jews and ³Gentiles, that ^athey are all under sin;

10 As it is written, ^aThere is none righteous, no, not one:

3:9. Are we better than they? The sense seems to be: "Are we any less deserving of God's judgment than the Gentiles? For we Jews have rejected God's revelation (2:18-29) and God's Messiah" (3:1-8).

3:10-18. Paul quotes Scripture to prove universal guilt. Scripture, not Paul, is the judge. See Psalm 5:9; 10:7; 14:1-3; 140:3; Isaiah 59:7, 8.

3:20. By the law: The purpose of the law was to bring conviction and prove guilt, not for justification. The law never justified anyone; its purpose is to reveal sin.

3:21. The righteousness: The emphasis here is on the gift of personal relationship to God imparted to those who trust Christ (cf. 5:17). But now: Paul's emphasis shifts to the new age or dispensation. He is not contrasting Jew and Gentile but the time when the law held sway and the present time when grace prevails.

3:22. Faith of [or "in"] Jesus Christ: Jesus Christ is the only valid object in which man must place his faith.

3:23. For all have sinned: The human need and the divine provision are alike applied universally. Come short of the glory of God: Man can exceed his own standards but never, left to himself, can he attain to God's standard of righteousness.

3:24. Being justified (Gr. dikaioumenoi) indicates being declared righteous. It signifies the believer's judicial standing before God. Freely: There is no just cause in man to warrant justification. By his grace: Unmerited favor is bestowed through the redemption (release on payment of ransom). Christ's death is the ransom. The sinner is released on the basis of the ransom's having been paid.

3:25, 26. Through faith: Christ's death satisfies the Father's righteous demands. Its benefits are appropriated only through faith in His finished work. In his blood: The emphasis is not on the blood as

PERSONAL SIN

3:23. A personal sin may be one of commission (doing something that is prohibited) or a sin of omission (failing to do what is required of us). It may also express itself in either an act or attitude.

Illustration: Sin is portrayed in Scripture as falling short of God's glory (v. 23), going astray like a wandering sheep (Is. 53:6), transgressing or overstepping the law (Ps. 51:1; Luke 15:29), and trespassing, which means exercising our own wills in the realm of divine authority (Eph. 2:1). Sin brings hideous results, affecting not only our relationship with God, but also our relationship with others. If not checked, sin will destroy the natural process of every person. Application: Christians should not sin; but if they do, they should remember their Advocate (Jesus Christ), and confess their sins in order to restore fellowship with God (1 John 1:9-2:2). (First Reference, Gen. 3:6; Primary Reference, Rom. 3; cf. Ps. 51:5.)

26 To declare, I say, at this time his righteousness: that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus.

Justification Through Faith

4 What shall we say then that ^aAbraham our ^bfather, as pertaining to the flesh, hath found?

2 For if Abraham were ^ajustified by works, he hath whereof to ¹glory; but not before God.

3 For what saith the scripture? ^aAbraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness.

4 Now ^ato him that worketh is the reward not reckoned ¹of grace, but ¹of debt.

5 But to him that worketh ^anot, but believeth on him that justifieth ^bthe ungodly, his faith is ¹counted for righteousness.

6 Even as David also ^adescribeth the blessedness of the man, unto whom God imputeth righteousness ¹without works, it coursed through Christ’s veins, but as it was shed for our sins. This is how the propitiation was accomplished. Just, and the justifier: God can remain just (true to His nature) and still declare sinners to be righteous only because Christ has paid for sin and satisfied (propitiated) His holy law. The sinner is not rendered guiltless but pardoned. Christ has taken the sin on Himself and has imputed His righteousness to the sinner.

3:27–31. Paul gives three reasons why the principle of justification by faith does not vitiate the law: (1) because it omits any ground of boasting; (2) because the same God establishes both; and (3) because Jesus Christ fulfilled the law; He did not destroy it.

4:1. Abraham is a classic example of the principle of justification by faith. In this chapter Paul uses Abraham’s experience as evidence that this is not a new principle, but the same one God has always used in justifying the ungodly. Abraham our Father: Abraham is important for two reasons: He is the acknowledged father of the Jewish nation, and God justified him before the law was ever given.

4:4. Worketh ... debt: Wages received are not a manifestation of grace; they are earned. Works remove grace from salvation. Justification is by faith alone.

4:5. Faith is counted for righteousness: Faith is not a work performed to earn righteousness. Rather, it is the means through which God can impute the righteousness of Jesus Christ to the sinner. He is thus “accounted” righteous, not “made” righteous. The former is the work of justification. The latter is the process of sanctification. See chapters 6–8.

4:6–8. David: The appeal to David, the second most esteemed man in the history of Israel, shows that the giving of the law subsequent to Abraham does not abrogate the principle of justification by faith. It is still in force.

PROPITIATION

3:25. Propitiation is the act of God, motivated by His immense love, whereby He accepts the blood of Christ as the complete and satisfying sacrifice for all human sin, thus establishing a means of reconciliation between God and man. While the offering of the blood of Christ was a sufficient propitiation for the sins of the whole world (1 John 2:2), the complete benefits of His sacrifice are available only to those who by faith accept this provision for sin. Illustration: The first occurrence of the Greek word for propitiation in the New Testament is in an expression used by Peter, sometimes translated as “God have mercy on you” (Matt. 16:22). Ironically, it was only because mercy was not extended to Christ in His suffering that propitiation was made for Peter and for the world. Application: Those of us who have benefited from this expression of God’s love ought also to love one another (1 John 4:10, 11). (First Reference, Lev. 16:2; Primary Reference, Rom. 3:25; cf. 1 Pet. 1:18, 19.)

JUSTIFICATION

3:28. Justification is the act of God whereby our legal standing in heaven is changed and we are declared righteous. The verb justify and the adjective righteous are linked in Scripture, since both share a common Greek root. When we express saving faith in God, He adds righteousness and perfection to our record. God is the source, with the power to declare righteous, and man is the recipient, being declared righteous. Illustration: Abraham is the first person the Bible describes as being justified. This does not mean he was the first child of God, only that his is the first recorded case of justification. With Abraham, as with others later, justification was the result of saving faith (Gen. 15:6; Rom. 5:1). Application: Anyone who comes to God and trusts Christ for salvation will be justified. (First Reference, Gen. 15:6; Primary Reference, Rom. 3:28; cf. Eph. 3:2–8.)

7 Saying, ^aBlessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.

8 Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin.

9 Cometh this blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? for we say that faith was ¹reckoned to Abraham for righteousness.

10 How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision.

11 And ^ahe received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised: that ^bhe might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumcised; that righteousness might be imputed unto them also:

12 And the father of circumcision to them who are not of the circumcision only, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father ^aAbraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised.

be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect:

15 Because ^athe law worketh wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression.

16 Therefore it is of faith, that it might be ^aby¹ grace; ^bto the end the promise might be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham; ^cwho is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, ^aI have made thee a father of many nations,) before him whom he believed, even God, ^bwho ¹quickeneth the dead, and calleth those ^cthings which be not as though they were.

18 Who ¹against hope believed in hope, that he might become the father of many nations, according to that which was spoken, ^aSo shall thy seed be.

19 And being not weak in faith, ^ahe considered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred years old, ^bneither yet the deadness of Sarah's womb:

20 He ¹staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was ²strong in faith, giving glory to God;

21 And being fully ¹persuaded that, what he had promised, ^ahe was able also to perform.

22 And therefore ^ait was imputed to him for righteousness.

4:9-12. This blessedness is a reference to the twofold blessedness of having God's righteousness imputed (v. 7) and of not having sins imputed (v. 8). Circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision: Paul anticipates the argument that circumcision, not faith, brought about Abraham's justification. Again, Abraham establishes Paul's point in that he was justified 24 years before he was circumcised. The sign of circumcision: Circumcision is a sign (a testimony) or a seal. It has no value in itself, but represents the value another places on the thing sealed. Circumcision represented the value that Abraham placed on the promises of God and which he demonstrated by taking this "sign" in his flesh. Abraham was not justified because he was circumcised; he was circumcised as a testimony to the fact that he was justified.

4:13. The promise: Many Jews thought that the privileges they enjoyed came from their adherence to the Mosaic Law. This is false. The promises were given to Abraham 430 years before the law was given; hence the law does not annul the Abrahamic covenant. It was merely added alongside until Christ should come to fulfill it (cf. Gal. 3:17-19).

4:13. Heir of the world: This promise is not stated directly but is drawn from Genesis 12:3. Paul understands this as being fulfilled in Jesus Christ (cf. Gal. 3). The Messiah would rule more than the geographical area promised to Abraham (Gen. 15:18-21). Hence, both the law and the promise have their ultimate focus and fulfillment in Jesus Christ.

4:16. Father of us all: Only those who have the faith of Abraham are the spiritual seed of Abraham, whether Jew or Gentile.

4:17-22. There are five essential characteristics of faith. (1) Faith must have a valid content. Paul quotes Genesis 17:5; the content of Abraham's faith was valid because that content was the revelation of God (v. 17a). (2) Faith must have a valid object. The object of Abraham's faith was God, the giver of the revelation (v. 17b). (3) Faith is contrary to hope and yet rests upon hope. This is a hope in which there is no element of uncertainty (v. 18a). (4) Faith has a purpose. The purpose of Abraham's faith was that he might become the father of many nations, realizing the promises given him in the Abrahamic covenant (cf. Gen. 12:1-3; v. 18b). (5) Faith produces works. Abraham's faith conditioned the way he lived. He staggered not at (did not doubt) God's promises.

23 Now ^ait was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him;

24 But for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe ^aon him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead;

25 ^aWho was delivered ¹for our offences, and ^bwas raised again ¹for our justification.

Justified by the Blood of Christ

5 Therefore ^abeing justified by ^bfaith, we have ^bpeace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ:

2 ^aBy whom also we have access by faith into this grace ^bwherein we stand, and ^crejoice in hope of the glory of God.

3 And not only so, but ^awe glory in tribulations also: ^bknowing that tribulation ¹worketh patience;

4 ^aAnd patience, ¹experience; and experience, hope:

4:23–25. But for us also: The principle of justification valid for Abraham is valid for all believers. Raised again for our justification: Because Jesus was raised from the dead we know that His sacrifice on Calvary was accepted in God's sight and Jesus' righteousness is available for all.

5:1–4. Justified by faith (lit., "because we have been justified by faith"): It was God's doing, not man's. Peace with God: This is not a feeling but a standing. God and the believer are no longer at enmity but have been reconciled (cf. 5:10, 11; 2 Cor. 5:18). This is a primary result of our justification. Access: We can come directly into the presence of God. Jesus Christ is not only our Redeemer, but He is also our Advocate. By Him we gain entrance and acceptance before the Father (cf. 1 John 2:1, 2). Wherein we stand: This is the answer to the psalmist's question: "If thou, LORD, shouldst mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?" (Ps. 130:3). Rejoice (lit., "we boast") in hope denotes the absolute certainty the believer has of God's deliverance.

5:5. Holy Ghost ... given: The believer has the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit. This is not a "second blessing," but is just as much a certitude as the believer's justification (cf. 1 Cor. 12:13).

5:8. Christ died for us: His death was vicarious. That is, He did not die merely for our benefit but in our place. His was a substitutionary sacrifice.

FAILURE OF FAITH

4:20. There are six New Testament expressions that trace the decline of faith in an individual. Before a person is saved, he may have: (1) "vain faith" or belief in the wrong doctrine (1 Cor. 15:14–17); or (2) "dead faith," or belief in orthodox doctrine without personal belief in Christ (James 2:19, 20). After a person is saved, he can experience the following varieties of faith: (1) a kind of unbelief—experienced by believers who fail to accept the whole work of Christ (Mark 16:11–14); (2) "little faith"—a mixture of faith and unbelief (Mark 7:26); (3) "weak faith"—referring to belief expressed as mere legalism (14:1); or (4) "strong faith"—faith that is rooted in the promises of God (v. 20). Illustration: As Christians mature, they should grow in faith. This was the experience of Abraham. Early in his pilgrimage with God, he could not trust God to protect him in Egypt. This was weak faith (Gen. 12:10–20). He was later able to trust God, in sacrificing his son Isaac. This was strong faith (Heb. 11:17–19). Application: The Christian life is a continual growing adventure in faith. (First Reference, Gen. 15:6; Primary Reference, Rom. 4:20; cf. Rom. 8:16.)

SUBSTITUTIONARY DEATH

5:8. One of the historic fundamentals of the faith is the vicarious Atonement, in which Christ died as a substitute for sin. Illustration: In the Old Testament, this was taught typologically by the offering of an animal sacrificed for sin, looking forward to that ultimate sacrifice for sin, Christ (cf. Gen. 22:8). In the New Testament, Christ is described as having died in the place of the Christian (v. 8), of the church (Eph. 5:25), and of the world (Heb. 2:9). The concept of substitutionary death is illustrated by the offering of a ram in the place of Isaac (Gen. 22:13). Though Abraham was willing to offer his son as requested, God was prepared to accept a substitute that He had provided. Application: Because Jesus died for everyone, Christians should take the message of the gospel to "every creature" (Mark 16:15). (First Reference, Gen. 3:21; Primary Reference, Rom. 5:8; cf. Eph. 1:5.)

10 For ^aif, when we were enemies, ^bwe were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, ¹being reconciled, we shall be saved ^aby his life.

11 And not only so, but we also ^ajoy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the ¹atonement.

The Abundant Grace of Christ

12 Wherefore, as ^aby one man sin entered into the world, and ^bdeath by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned:

13 (For until the law sin was in the world: but ^asin is not imputed when there is no law.

¹ the free gift is not like the false step
² Adam
 5:16 ¹ the gift is not like that which came through the one who sinned

14 Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the ¹similitude of Adam's transgression, ^awho is ²the figure of him that was to come.

15 But ¹not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of ²one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded ^aunto many.

16 And ¹not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences unto justification.

5:9, 10. By his blood ... by his life: The death of Christ and His shed blood effect salvation (Eph. 1:7; 2:13; Col. 1:14; Heb. 9:12-15), but the life of Christ sustains it. The reference is to the abiding results of Jesus' death and resurrection (cf. 4:25).

5:12-21. In this passage Paul compares the imputation of Christ's righteousness with the imputation of Adam's sin. Just as Adam's sin resulted in a sinful race, the gift of grace through the righteous act of Christ results in a spiritual race. The principle of imputation that reduces all men to the same ultimate condition also provides for all men the same ultimate answer—the righteousness of Jesus Christ. By one man sin entered: The entry of sin into the world is traced to its human source from which all mankind came. All have sinned refers to a point in time when all sinned. It points to the moment when all were in one man, Adam. When he fell the entire human race was "constituted sinners" (lit. sense of 5:19).

5:13, 14. Sin was in the world: This gives evidence to the universal presence of sin. Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses: The point of verses

13 and 14 is that since there was no specific law between Adam and Moses by which men could be held accountable, the very fact that they all died indicates that God was holding them responsible for the transgression of Adam. This is not unjust, because the principle also works in reverse. Sinners can be constituted righteous, and hence live, through Jesus Christ.

5:15-17. Paul sets forth three contrasts. The first contrast shows that if Adam's sin caused many to die, Christ's gift by grace also abounds to the many (i.e., it is equally extensive in its outreach). The second contrast indicates that Adam brings about judgment and condemnation, while Christ brings justification. The third contrast is that Adam's transgression issues in a reign of death, while Christ's righteous obedience results in a reign of life. Note however that the two groups are not coextensive. Paul is not teaching that everyone will be saved. Adam's sin affects all who are part of the human race. Christ's righteousness is for all who are a part of His spiritual race. The former includes everyone. The latter includes only believers.

HEADSHIP OF ADAM

5:12. Adam, the federal head of the human race, was also the seminal head. The word seminal (seed) implies that everyone existed in seed form within Adam, and that he was the head of the human race. We were all in the body of Adam when he sinned, just as Levi was in the body of Abraham when he met Melchizedek (Heb. 7:10). In that sense, every member of the human race played a part in the fall of man. When Adam sinned, we were actually sinning with him. Adam was also the federal head of the race. In this sense, Adam's vote for sin is similar to the vote of a representative in the legislature (Congress or Senate), who by his vote obligates his constituents for certain indebtedness. While Adam's disobedience resulted in the human race being plunged into sin, the obedience of Christ (the Second Adam) gives Christians the power to overcome sin in their lives. (First Reference, Rom. 5:12; Primary Reference, Rom. 5:12-21; cf. Gen. 2:24.)

IMPUTED SIN

5:12. The meaning of impute is "to ascribe to" or "reckon." The imputation of sin occurred originally when the sin of Adam was charged to the account of every person. The imputation of sin is not arbitrarily charging people with sins for which they are not naturally responsible, but reckoning to them the guilt they deserve. Imputation of sin is charged to all because we all are connected with Adam's race. Illustration: God not only imputes the sin of Adam to the race; He also offers to do the same with the righteousness of Christ (v. 21). When God imputes the righteousness of Christ to the account of a believer, He makes the person's record as good (or as perfect) as Jesus Christ's. Application: Imputed righteousness is the only remedy for imputed sin. (First Reference, Rom. 5:12; Primary Reference, Rom. 5; cf. Jer. 3:23.)

17 For if by one man's offence death reigned by ¹one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ.)

18 Therefore as by ¹the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by ²the righteousness of ^aone the free gift came ^bupon all men unto justification of life.

19 For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the ^aobedience of one shall many be made righteous.

20 Moreover ^athe law entered, that the ¹offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much ^bmore abound:

21 That as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ our Lord.

5:18, 19. Paul's reference to Adam shows that he understood Adam to have been a real person. Adam was not a mythological figure any more than Jesus was.

6:1. Shall we continue in sin that grace may abound? If sin generates grace, should we encourage sin in order to cause more grace to be granted?

6:2. God forbid (Gr. mē genoito): Perish the thought; may it never be; don't even think that way. This expression of unthinkable horror occurs in Paul's epistles more than 60 times. He uses it whenever the thought suggested is too repugnant to entertain. Sin is singular in this verse and throughout this chapter. It refers to the sin nature.

6:3. Baptized into Jesus Christ: Baptism joins the believer to Christ. This is a reference to the work of the Holy Spirit at salvation (cf. 1 Cor. 12:13). Water baptism symbolizes this union. It separates the believer from his old life and identifies him, in resurrection, with new life in Christ. In this chapter Paul will dwell on baptism's profound practical significance. Into his death: We were identified with all Christ accomplished. His death forever broke sin's control over us.

6:4. We also should walk in newness of life: We should live our everyday lives manifesting resurrection life, free from sin's control.

6:6. Our old man: This is our old self, the person we were before we were crucified with Christ. Might be destroyed (lit., "rendered inoperative"). The believer now has the power to serve Christ instead of his old master, sin.

6:7. Freed from sin: The believer has been delivered from the guilt and penalty of sin and is set free to serve Christ.

BAPTISM

6:4. The word baptism derives from a verb meaning "to immerse" or "to identify with." Spiritual baptism happens when the new believer is united with Christ and His people (1 Cor. 12:13), and is identified with Him in death, burial, and resurrection. Water baptism should be practiced by every Christian after conversion, hence it is sometimes called the first step of faith. There are many reasons why every Christian should be baptized, but perhaps Christ's example is the compelling one. Water baptism is the act of immersing the new believer in water as a testimony that he has experienced the reality of the conversion experience. The act is not to be equated with salvation. Illustration: Paul reminds the Romans of baptism's symbolic significance. First, it represents redemption, picturing the gospel (v. 4). Second, baptism represents our hope in a future resurrection (v. 5). Ultimately, baptism symbolizes our new life (v. 6). Application: Every believer should be baptized but only of his own free will. (First Reference, Matt. 3:6; Primary Reference, Rom. 6:4-10; cf. 1 Cor. 11:20.) death hath no more dominion over him.

6:11. Reckon (Gr. logizesthe, “reckon,” “take into account,” “calculate”). The believer is to calculate all the facts as to his identification with Christ and his separation from sin, then live accordingly.

6:12. Let not (lit., “stop letting”): The believer is to stop letting sin have mastery over his life.

6:13. Neither yield ye (lit., “stop presenting”): In the day-to-day confrontations with sin, stop giving in. But yield (lit., “present yourselves”): Paul calls for a determined commitment.

6:15. Shall we sin? Paul now asks a slightly different question than he did previously. In 6:1 he sought to correct any misunderstanding as to the relationship of the believer to grace. Now he wishes to correct any misunderstanding that might arise as to the believ-er’s relation to the law. Neither the submission to the former, nor release from the latter, is to be construed as an encouragement to sin.

6:17. That form of doctrine (lit., “pattern of teaching”) which resulted in their conversion. Doctrine profoundly affects one’s life. The life tells the type of doctrine that has shaped it.

6:18. The believer is not free to do whatever he wants. He is free only to do that which is consistent with the character of God. True freedom is freedom from sin.

6:19. Holiness: They are set apart from the practice of sin and set apart to the practice of righteousness.

6:23. Wages: Emphasizes what we deserve. Gift of God: Emphasizes God’s unmerited favor.

CONVERSION

6:17. The term conversion refers to the human response to the gospel, while regeneration is God’s creation of a new nature in the one who believes. Conversion requires the commitment of the total personality, intellect, emotion, and will. This is how people respond to the message of the gospel, when they understand the nature of Christ’s atonement, feel the guilt of conviction, love God, and surrender their wills to the offer of salvation. The result of conversion is the changed life. Illustration: Paul noted that the Romans had been servants of sin, but had “obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine,” that is, the gospel. Application: Just as conversion results in our obtaining salvation and ultimate liberty from sin, so a continuous yielding of our will to God as Christians is the key to spiritual victory (v. 13). (First Reference, Heb. 11:4; Primary Reference, Rom. 6:17; cf. Luke 13:3.)

Deliverance from the Law

7 Know ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2 For ^athe woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law ¹of her husband.

3 So then ^aif, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man.

4 Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become ^adead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should ^bbring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were in the flesh, the ¹motions of sins, which were ²by the law, ^adid work in our members ^bto bring forth fruit unto death.

The Struggle Against Sin

7 What shall we say then? Is the law sin? ¹God forbid. Nay, ¹I ²had not known sin, but by the law: for I ²had not known ³lust, except the law had said, ^bThou shalt not covet.

8 But ^asin, taking ¹occasion by the commandment, ²wrought in me all manner of ³concupiscence. For ^bwithout⁴ the law sin was dead.

9 For I was alive without the law once: but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died.

10 And the commandment, ^awhich was ordained to life, I found to be unto death.

11 For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me.

12 Wherefore ^athe law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good.

13 Was then that which is good made death unto me? ¹God forbid.

7:1–6. Know ye not? This question connects chapter 7 with chapter 6 and further explains the statement “ye are not under the law” (6:14). Paul is still on the same subject—the sanctified life in Christ. But now he changes the metaphor. Instead of the analogy of slavery, he uses the analogy of marriage. So long as he liveth: Only death breaks the marital union. Loosed from the law of her husband: In the event of the husband’s death the wife is free from obligation to her husband and may either remain unmarried or may remarry. Called an adulteress: Under Roman law polygamy and polyandry were forbidden. To marry another while one’s spouse was still living and without a legal divorce was adultery. Marriage is an indissoluble union which in general is broken only by the death of one of the partners. Through the believer’s identification with the death of Christ he is now freed from the law (6:15), but joined to Christ to bear fruit unto God.

7:5. In the flesh means before we were saved. We are delivered from the law: Paul is still answering the question raised in 6:15. Its force is especially appropriate for the legalist who sees no legitimate reason for holiness unless there is a rule dictating it.

The motivation to holiness in Christ and under grace is equally valid but with a new dynamic (cf. Eph. 2:10).

7:7, 8. Is the law sin? It might be concluded that the law is sinful. Because of what the law does, it appears to be the culprit. Paul shows that the law is not sinful and examines its precise relation to sin in order to dismiss this suggestion. Paul answers his question (1) by giving a direct denial, God forbid (Gr. mē genoito, “may it never happen,” “don’t even think that way”) and (2) by giving positive instruction. The law reveals the fact of sin, for I had not known sin, but by the law. Sin is unknowable without some law. The law also reveals the power of sin.

7:9. I was alive without the law once: There was a time when Paul lived a complacent life insensitive to the demands of the law. I died: When Paul understood the law he realized that he was accused, guilty, and marked for death.

7:12, 13. The law is holy, ... just, and good: The law is an expression of God’s righteousness and is intrinsically good. Sin, not the law, produced death. The law shows us that we are helplessly under the control of sin and points us to Christ, the only One who can help us.

PENALTY OF SIN

6:23. The penalty of sin is death, both spiritual and physical. The moment Adam sinned he died spiritually; in that sense, everyone is born dead in sin (Eph. 2:1). Physical death, described as the separation of the body and spirit (James 2:26), is the ultimate result of sin (cf. Gen. 3). People who die in their sin (in an unsaved state) will have to face a “second death” portrayed as a “lake of fire” (Rev. 20:15). Application: The only escape from this second death is to receive the gift of eternal life in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. (First Reference, Gen. 3:14–24; Primary Reference, Rom. 6; cf. Rom. 8:13.)

But sin, that it might appear sin, ²working death in me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful.

14 For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am ¹carnal, ^asold under sin.

15 For that which I do I ¹allow not: for ^awhat I ²would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I.

16 If then I do that which I would not, I ¹consent unto the law that it is good.

17 Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

18 For I know that ^ain me (that is, in my flesh,) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me; but how to perform that which is good I find not.

19 For the good that I ¹would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.

20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me.

21 I find then a law, that, when I ¹would do good, evil is present with me.

22 For I ^adelight in the law of God ¹after ^bthe inward man:

The Spirit of Life

8 There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who ^awalk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

2 For ^athe law of ^bthe Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from ^cthe law of sin and death.

3 For ^awhat the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, ^bGod sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and ¹for sin, condemned sin in the flesh:

4 That the ¹righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who ^awalk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

5 For ^athey that are after the flesh ¹do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit ^bthe things of the Spirit.

6 For ^ato be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

7 Because ^athe carnal mind is enemy against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, ^bneither indeed can be.

8 So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

7:14. The law is spiritual: The law has the characteristics of the Spirit and is consistent with the character of God. I am carnal: What follows is autobiographical and designed to reveal the real struggle the apostle experienced in the flesh. His experience is also exemplary, for it shows the problems all believers experience in their battle with sin.

7:18. Flesh: This term is used by Paul in a variety of ways. Sometimes it simply refers to the physical body (Eph. 2:15; Philem. 16). Sometimes it refers to physical descent (1:3; 9:3). Here it is used in an ethical sense to refer to a condition of being dominated by sin and sinful pursuits. See also verse 25; 8:5-7; Galatians 5:17.

7:23. Law of my mind: Paul seems to equate this with "law of God after the inward man" (v. 22). This no doubt connects with the new dynamic for service spoken of in verse 6 as the "newness of spirit." It refers to the influence of the Holy Spirit in the believer's life to obedience and good works. In 8:2 he refers to it as "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus." Law of sin: The law caused sin to "revive" (v. 9), literally, "become alive." Sin takes on an active force throughout this passage, which climaxes in this expression, "the law of sin." It refers to that in man which is sold under sin. It is "the law of sin and death" in 8:2. Apart from the indwelling Holy Spirit, the law of sin would dominate in Paul's life.

7:24. O wretched man: The reference here is to Paul's tragic condition of defeat and frustration with sin. The body of this death is not the physical body, but the inherited sin nature received from Adam. It is that in him which is continually inclined toward thoughts and deeds that yield only death.

8:1. Many manuscripts omit "who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

8:2. Law of the Spirit of life: See the note on 7:23.

8:3. Law ... was weak: There is nothing inherently wrong with the law. The presence of sin renders the believer powerless to do what the law demands. The likeness of sinful flesh: Christ was truly human but not a sinner (2 Cor. 5:21).

8:6. To be carnally minded means to have one's life dominated by the sin nature. To be spiritually minded is to be controlled by the Holy Spirit.

9 But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his.

10 And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

11 But if the Spirit of ^ahim that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, ^bhe that raised up Christ from the dead shall also ¹quicken your mortal bodies ²by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

Led by the Spirit

12 ^aTherefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh.

20 For ^athe ¹creature was made subject to ²vanity, not willingly, but

8:9. None of his: Any who lack the Spirit are unsaved. The Holy Spirit abides in all who are regenerated (cf. 8:4; 1 Cor. 12:13).

8:10. The body is dead: It is still mortal and subject not only to death but also to the temptation of sin. The Spirit is life anticipates verse 11 and the hope of resurrection.

8:11. Quicken your mortal bodies: Resurrection is “bodily.” Resurrected believers will, like Christ, receive new physical forms (1 Cor. 15:44).

8:12. Debtors: The word places emphasis on Paul’s moral obligation. He uses the same term in 1:14.

8:13. Mortify: Death signifies separation. Here it denotes separation from the sinful deeds of the flesh.

8:15. The Spirit of adoption: The Holy Spirit places the believer as a son in God’s family. Abba (Aram. for “father”): This is the intimate name used only by members of the family. Its use here denotes the intimacy of the believer’s relation to God.

8:17. Joint-heirs with Christ: All believers share all of the inheritance together. They also have the promise of glorification if their lives are lived devotedly and sacrificially unto the Lord.

8:18. The sufferings of this present time: See 2 Corinthians 4:17, 18. The glory which shall be revealed: The blessed hope of the Christian looks ahead with anticipation to this great moment. See also 1 Thessalonians 4:15-18; Titus 2:13.

8:19. The creature, or creation, eagerly looks forward to the revelation of the sons of God in the Millennium (Christ’s thousand-year earthly reign) because that is the time when the curse will be lifted and creation will be restored to Edenic conditions.

FLESH

8:13. The Scriptures use the word flesh in five ways. It may refer to: (1) the body or physical being; (2) the old nature or sin nature; (3) the epidermis (skin); (4) man’s immaterial nature; or (5) the whole being of man. Paul uses the term in each of these verses in this chapter. Flesh itself is not evil (cf. Job 19:26), yet Paul uses it to represent humanity’s evil nature, which cannot please God (v. 8). Application: Christians should glorify God in their physical bodies (flesh) as well as in their spirits, since both belong to God (1 Cor. 6:20). (First Reference, Gen. 2:21; Primary Reference, Rom. 7:14-8:9; cf. Gen. 7:17.)

WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT

8:16. The witness of the Spirit is the inner assurance of God’s truth. One of the conditions of this inner conviction concerning the things of God is obedience to His known will (John 7:17). God uses this ministry of the Holy Spirit to convince us of truth that cannot be understood other than through divine help (Matt. 16:17). Illustration: This witness was obvious in Peter’s confession of Christ (Matt. 16:16, 17). Even though others had observed Christ and drawn certain erroneous conclusions, Peter received spiritual insight from God as to who Jesus really was (Matt. 16:17). This enlightenment did not mean he had nothing more to learn, because perhaps within minutes of his confession, he was being rebuked by Jesus for his lack of spiritual insight (Matt. 16:23). Application: Christians should be careful always to obey the clearly revealed will of God, so as not to hinder this ministry in their lives. (First Reference, Matt. 16:17; Primary Reference, Rom. 8:16; cf. Heb. 6:1, 2.)

28 And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them ^awho are the called according to his purpose.

ness," "frailty," "folly") is a reference to the curse of Genesis 3:14–19 and considers the whole thing as unnecessary. Creation did not actively participate in the Fall.

8:21. Delivered from the bondage of corruption: There will be no more death. The creature (or Creation) looks forward to the Millennium when redeemed man is glorified and will never again have to face God's curse.

8:22. Groaneth and travaileth in pain refers to Adam's Fall, which has caused misery from then until the present. The present sufferings of creation are the "birth pangs" of the new age to be born, the Millennium. From the Fall until now, creation has been groaning over the pointlessness of having been made subject to a curse. It eagerly looks forward to the time when the curse will be lifted (v. 19).

8:23. The firstfruits of the Spirit: The Holy Spirit is the first installment of the glory yet to follow (Eph. 1:13, 14). Groan: The believer groans because of the conflict experienced in 7:14–24, from which he needs a final and complete deliverance. This is the ultimate answer to 7:24. Christ will deliver us by the resurrection and glorification of our bodies.

8:26, 27. Our infirmities may refer to the presence of sin (cf. 7:14 ff.). Groanings: The Spirit also groans along with creation and the believer. The reference is to the Spirit's interpretation of the believer's innermost feelings, which cannot be put into words. Searcheth the hearts: Denotes divine omniscience (cf. 1 Chr. 28:9; Ps. 139:1, 23; Jer. 17:10; 1 Cor. 4:5; Heb. 4:12, 13).

8:28. To them that love God is the human perspective. God is working all things together for good, but those who love God are best able to appreciate that fact because they love Him no matter what (cf. Job 13:15). To them who are the called is the divine perspective. Scripture often refers to believers as "the called" or "the elect."

8:29. Foreknow: This is not simple prescience or advance knowledge. This knowledge should also not be understood in the sense of "being acquainted with," but in the sense of "bringing into a special relation with," as "Adam knew Eve his wife" (Gen. 4:1), "You only have I known of all the families of the earth" (Amos 3:2), "I... know my sheep" (John 10:14), and "I never knew you" (Matt. 7:23). Foreknowledge is God's determination from eternity to bring certain ones into a special relationship with Himself. (See also 11:2.) Predestinate: See Ephesians 1:5. To be conformed to the image of his Son: The goal of predestination is not to send some to hell and some to heaven, but is the believer's glorification, to make every Christian increasingly more like His Son.

FOREKNOWLEDGE

8:29. Foreknowledge speaks of God's awareness of the actual and potential future (Acts 2:23; 26:5; Rom. 8:29; 11:2; 1 Pet. 1:2, 20; 2 Pet. 3:17). The word means "foreordination" (Acts 2:23; 1 Pet. 1:20). Those whom God foreknew, He also loved and ordained to be conformed to the image of His Son. Illustration: On the Day of Pentecost, the apostle Peter vividly illustrated the harmony between God's sovereignty and man's personal responsibility. Even though the Cross was in the eternal plan of God and part of His sovereign will, those who crucified Christ did so as a rebellious act of their will. Therefore they bore personal responsibility for the Christ's death. Application: We too are responsible for our personal actions and behavior (Acts 2:23). (First Reference, Rom. 11:2; Primary Reference, Rom. 8:29; cf. Rom. 6:17.)

31 What shall we then say to these things? ^aIf God be for us, who can be against us?

8:30. Called: The calling of 8:28 is pretemporal; it occurred before the creation of the world (Eph. 1:4). The calling here is temporal and refers to the effectual communication of the gospel, resulting in salvation.

Justified: See 3:24. Glorified: Glorification is God's doing. While God's foreknowledge and predestination take place in eternity, and while God's calling and justification are realized in history, God's glorifying is yet future. It is as certain, however, as the previous works. Hence glorified is in the past tense. From God's point of view it is already accomplished.

8:32. For us all: This does not teach or necessitate limited atonement (the view that Christ died only for the elect), for Christ died for all the sins of all the world (2 Cor. 5:19). His death is effective unto salvation, however, only for those who call upon the name of the Lord (cf. 10:13, 17).

8:33, 34. God's elect: See 8:28. Lay any thing to the charge: No charge is admissible, because the Father justifies, in that the Son died, was raised, and now intercedes for us.

8:38, 39. We cannot be separated from God's love, because it is set forth in a person who is God Himself, Jesus Christ, our Savior. God's desire to redeem believers cannot be frustrated, because He is infinitely greater than any potential enemy. His plan will be realized because it is His purpose (cf. v. 28).

9:3. My kinsmen according to the flesh expresses Paul's sorrow for Israel. The question he now undertakes concerns the privilege and subsequent spiritual blindness of the Jewish nation. It is a natural question following chapter 8. Has the promise of God failed Israel—and could His promise fail in our case?

9:4, 5. Paul recites Israel's privileges bestowed because of their relationship to God. They are called Israelites (the name sovereignly bestowed upon Jacob by God, Gen. 32:28). The adoption, with the definite article, may look at a particular event: when Moses was instructed to stand before Pharaoh and tell him that Israel was God's son (Ex. 4:22). The glory refers to the glory cloud that led Israel from Egypt to Israel (cf. Ex. 13:20–22; 16:10). The covenants refer to Israel's four great unconditional covenants that govern all that God will do for and with Israel—the Abrahamic covenant, Genesis 12, 13, a nation forever; the Palestinian covenant, Deuteronomy 30, a land forever; the Davidic covenant, 2 Samuel 7, a king forever; and the new covenant, Jeremiah 31, a redeemed people forever. The giving of the law refers to Sinai (Ex. 19–31). The service of God refers to the offerings, priesthood, and levitical institution (cf. Heb. 10:1–5). The promises refer particularly to the messianic promises (Gen. 3:15; 49:10; Num. 24:15–19; Deut. 18:15–22). The fathers refers to the Old Testament patriarchs and leaders: Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, David, and so on. Christ is their national fruit. Humanly, He came from Israel. God blessed for ever is probably not a doxology but rather a spontaneous and explicit assertion of Christ's deity.

hath taken none effect. For ^bthey are not all Israel, which are of Israel:

7 ^aNeither, because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: but, In ^bIsaac shall thy seed be called.

8 That is, They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God: but ^athe children of the promise are counted ¹for the seed.

9 For this is the word of promise, ^aAt this time will I come, and Sarah shall have a son.

10 And not only this; but when ^aRebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac;

11 (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of ^ahim that calleth;)

13 As it is written, ^aJacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated.

God Shows Mercy as He Wills

14 What shall we say then? ^aIs there unrighteousness with God? ¹God forbid.

15 For he saith to Moses, ^aI will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion.

16 So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy.

26 ^aAnd it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people; there shall they be called the ¹children of the living God.

27 Esaias also crieth concerning Israel, ^aThough the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, ^ba remnant shall be saved:

9:6. They are not all Israel, which are of Israel:

The contrast is between Abraham's physical descendants and his spiritual descendants. Not all of Abraham's physical descendants are to be recipients of His spiritual blessing. What follows in verses 7-18 shows how God's eternal purpose played a hand in Israel's history.

9:13. Loved ... hated (Gen. 25:23; Mal. 1:2, 3) are not matters of emotion; they are matters of the Father's will. In the papyri (ancient secular writings dating to biblical times), the expressions "loved" and "hated" are used of a man who could afford to adopt only one of two twin orphaned boys. He was said to have "loved" the one he adopted and "hated" the one he did not adopt. Here all that is signified is that Jacob was blessed and Esau was not.

9:19, 20. Who hath resisted his will? Does all this lead to fatalism? Paul does not answer this question directly, for it is absurd and raised by one who is ignorant of the righteous character of the infinite God and the finite character of man. Paul rather deals with the heart attitude that would produce such a question and reminds man of his limited understanding of the unlimited and sovereign God.

9:23. The glory is to be recipients of God's righteousness and heaven.

9:25-29. Paul documents his teaching by quoting Hosea 2:23 to show that the Old Testament teaches that vessels of mercy are to be found among the Gentiles (vv. 25, 26), Isaiah 10:22, 23 to show that the Old Testament prophesied that only a remnant of Israel would be saved (vv. 27, 28), and Isaiah 1:9 to show the conclusion of the whole matter (v. 29). This anticipates the subsequent discussion in chapter 11.

28 For he will finish the work, and cut it short in righteousness: ^abecause a short work will the Lord make upon the earth.

29 And as Esaias said before, ^aExcept the Lord of Sabaoth had left us a seed, ^bwe ¹had been as Sodoma, and been made like unto Gomorrhah.

Israel Stumbles

30 What shall we say then? ^aThat the Gentiles, which followed not after righteousness, have attained to righteousness, ^beven the righteousness which is of faith.

31 But Israel, ^awhich followed after the law of righteousness, ^bhath not attained to the law of righteousness.

32 ¹Wherefore? Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law. For ^athey stumbled at that stumblingstone;

33 As it is written, ^aBehold, I lay in Sion a stumblingstone and rock of offence: and ^bwhosoever believeth on him shall not be ¹ashamed.

Israel's Rejection of Christ

10 Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

2 For I bear them ¹record ^athat they have a zeal ²of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 For they being ignorant of ^aGod's righteousness, and going about to establish their own ^brighteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.

4 For ^aChrist is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth.

righteousness which is of the law, ^aThat the man which doeth those things shall live by them.

6 But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, ^aSay not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to bring Christ down from above.)

9 That ^aif thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

9:32. They sought it not by faith: Israel mistook the possession of the law as a means of righteousness, when the law was given only to confirm the Fall and to show the need of God's righteousness (cf. 5:20). Stumblingstone: This is a reference to Messiah (cf. Is. 7:14; 1 Pet. 2:8).

10:4. Christ is the end of the law: Israel mistook the purpose of the law. The law pointed to the righteousness that is attainable only by belief in Christ. Israel also mistook the scope of the law. The righteousness to which it pointed was universally available to all who responded to God's revelation of Himself through the law. But by Paul's time many had substituted works for faith. Rather than seeking redemption in God's mercy, they pinned their hopes on their own religious achievement.

10:6-9. Paul skillfully weaves together quotations from Deuteronomy 9:4 and 30:10-14, which speak of God's initiative in grace and man's humble obedience to it. He then applies this truth to the gospel of Christ.

10:10, 11. Confession is made unto salvation: One is not saved by his mouth's confession, but rather, the mouth testifies readily of the grace of God in Christ which has been received by faith.

10:13. Whosoever: As chapter 9 stressed divine sovereignty in salvation, this passage stresses human responsibility. Scripture does not view these two principles as paradoxical or contradictory, but as mutually compatible truths.

10:14, 15. In presenting the universal proclamation of the gospel, Paul presents the reasons why a 15 And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

A Remnant Remains

11 I say then, "Hath God cast away his people? ^bGod¹ forbid. For ^cI also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 God hath not cast away his people which ^ahe foreknew. ¹Wot ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to God against Israel, saying, universal proclamation is necessary: First, because the call must be preceded by faith; second, because faith must be preceded by hearing. This shows that knowledge is essential to belief. Faith must have a valid content (cf. 4:18ff.); third, because hearing requires a preacher; fourth, because preaching requires being sent. The One who sends is God. Salvation is completely from God.

6 And "if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work.

10:17. The word of God: Better, "the word of Christ." The reference is to the oral communication of the gospel. (The word translated "report" in v. 16 is translated "hearing" here.) Notice that it is not faith in what is heard, but faith that comes about by what is heard. This is what Paul meant in 1:16 when he said the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation." Saving faith is not man doing his part in response to God's having done His part (synergism). Saving faith can come about only through the gospel. Salvation is God's work alone (monergism). This also shows that there is no other way to be saved but by the explicit gospel of Christ.

11:1. Hath God cast away his people? The question is asked in such a way that we know Paul expected a negative answer. The question is answered by a direct denial, God forbid. This chapter is designed to show that God has not abrogated all His promises to Israel. She is only temporarily laid aside. When God has finished with His largely Gentile work in the church, Israel will once again be restored and flourish with the blessing of God. Notice that the church does not take over all the promises to Israel. They are two very distinct works of God.

11:2-6. His people which he foreknew: Those with whom He was once intimately related. This deals with national and not individual destiny and is a strong argument to show that God has not terminated His program for Israel.

11:7, 8. The election (lit., "the chosen ones"): These

SALVATION

10:13. Salvation is the most common biblical expression used to identify the subjective changes in people's lives, when by faith they have received the benefit of Christ's death and resurrection. The term implies deliverance, safety, preservation, healing, and soundness. It occurs in Scripture in three phases. First, the Christian has been saved from the guilt and penalty of sin (Eph. 2:5, 8). Second, the Christian is being saved from the habit and dominion of sin in this life (Gal. 2:19, 20). Finally, when the Lord returns, the Christian will be saved from all the physical results of sin and of God's curse on the world (8:18-23). Illustration: Although Jesus used this word only once (Luke 19:9), He used many other expressions to describe salvation. The dramatic change in Zacchaeus was proof of his salvation. Application: The Christian today should also demonstrate a change in his life to confirm this "so great salvation." (First Reference, Gen. 3:15; Primary Reference, Romans; cf. 2 Cor. 5:19.)

are the believing Israelites, like Paul (v. 1) who have believed and are being saved today. Were blinded: This is a judicial blindness. Like Pharaoh (9:18), Israel is blinded. This fulfills Isaiah 29:10 (cf. Matt. 13:14).

11:9, 10. Paul quotes from David (Ps. 69:22, 23) to show that David anticipated that such an experience would be Israel's. God is working according to His eternal plan. The hardening of Israel will reach its height in the middle of the Tribulation. Scripture anticipates the condition of Israel as it is today. God is not surprised; neither should we be. If it were otherwise, we should be troubled.

11:11. Have they stumbled that they should fall? This is to ask whether Israel has stumbled so badly that they have fallen completely out of God's program. Is there no future for Israel? Paul shows that Israel's apparent rejection is not permanent because of God's purposes for Israel's rejection, and the promise of her restoration.

11:15. Israel's rejection brought the greatest blessing the Gentile world ever had—the preaching of the gospel to the world. When she is restored the blessings to accrue to the world will be even greater. Paul anticipates worldwide millennial blessing and salvation.

11:16. The root: The root of the tree is the covenantal promise to Abraham, which anticipated blessing to Jew and Gentile. Israel's essential nature is holy (set apart for God's purpose). The firstfruit signifies Abraham; the branches refer to Israel individually.

11:17. Some of the branches ... broken off: Israel is set aside, but there is a remnant. Wild olive tree ... grafted in among them: The Gentiles do not displace Israel. They merely partake of the root and fatness of the olive tree. Paul recognized both a unity of the church with Israel as enjoying the same blessing, and a diversity—neither usurping the other.

11:19-24. When God is finished with the Gentiles He will reinstate Israel. Israel was set aside because of unbelief. The Gentiles have favor because of their belief. Therefore they should not be proud, but realize that intrinsic nature does not matter to or deter God. They should realize that God is capable of setting the Gentiles aside and of grafting Israel in again. This is precisely what He will do.

26 And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, ^aThere shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob:

27 ^aFor this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins.

28 As concerning the gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but ¹as touching the election, they are ^abeloved for the fathers' sakes.

12:3 ^aRom. 1:5; 15:15; 1 Cor. 3:10; 15:10; Gal. 2:9; Eph. 3:7 ^bProv. 25:27

11:25. Mystery: Compare Matthew 13:11; Romans 16; 1 Corinthians 1:7-10; Ephesians 3:3. The fulness of the Gentiles refers to the time when the last Gentile will have been saved and the church will be removed from the earth by the Rapture. It is distinct from the Time of the Gentiles (Luke 21:24), which refers to the period of time from the Babylonian captivity (587 B.C.) to the rapture of the church.

11:26-32. And so all Israel shall be saved: National salvation will come to Israel. This is the ultimate fulfillment of the new covenant (cf. Jer. 31:31-34) and will be realized when Jesus returns to the earth to set up His kingdom. Paul weaves together Psalm 14:7, Isaiah 59:20, 21, and Jeremiah 31:31 to show that he understood the Old Testament literally and that the Old Testament prophesied Israel's deliverance from sin. God cannot do otherwise because of His promises to the fathers and His unconditional covenants. God has set Israel aside temporarily for the sake of the Gentiles, but He has not forgotten them because of His promise to the fathers.

11:36. God is the source of all things—of him; God is the channel of all things—through him; God is the goal of all things—to him; and Man's only proper response to God is to worship Him.

12:1. By the mercies of God summarizes all that God has accomplished for the believer in Romans 1—11 in justifying the believer (chs. 1—5), enabling the believer to live a righteous life (chs. 6—8), and being faithful to Israel (chs. 9—11). That ye present refers to a definite act of presentation. The verb is used of offering a sacrifice that became "holy" under the Levitical system (cf. Ex. 29:37). This shows that the Christian life begins with total commitment and irrevocable presentation. Your bodies: The body has been an instrument of sin (ch. 6). Now it is to be presented to God as a channel through which the righteousness of God is manifested.

12:2. Be not conformed (lit., "stop conforming yourselves"): They are to resist being poured into the mold of the present thinking, value systems, and conduct of this world. This term is used only here and in 1 Peter 1:14.

12:3. The righteousness of God will cause the believer to conduct himself in humility in the local church (vv. 3-8). Paul meets two dangers that the individual faced in the exercise of his spiritual gifts. He might overestimate himself and try to exercise a gift God never gave him. Or he might underestimate himself and fail to exercise the gift God has given to him. Paul shows that God has given each believer specific gifts to enable him to do what God wants him to do. No one is excluded.

God hath dealt ^cto every man the measure of faith.

4 For ^aas we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same ¹office:

5 So ^awe, being many, are one body in Christ, and ¹every one members one of another.

12:9. Without dissimulation (lit., “without hypocrisy”). The Christian’s conduct in the local church toward fellow believers is to be a volitional caring for others, loving faithfully in spite of the response received. The love is to be genuine and unfeigned.

12:11. Fervent (lit., “boiling over”).

12:14. Bless (lit., “speak well of”).

12:19-21. Give place unto wrath: Paul quotes Deuteronomy 32:35 to show that only God has the right to avenge, and He certainly will avenge. Heap coals of fire on his head (cf. Prov. 25:22): This may refer to a sense of shame or remorse engendered when we treat an evildoer kindly. Paul is discussing personal, not national enemies. He is not teaching pacifism.

13:1. Let every soul be subject: Subjection to the government is the obligation of all mankind, not just Christians. It is not optional, but an absolute necessity. The higher powers are established by God. See Titus 3:1; 1 Peter 2:13. But see also Acts 5:29.

DEDICATION TO THE WILL OF GOD

12:1, 2. God’s will refers to His purpose for the life of the believer. It implies His guidance or direction in all of life’s decisions. Dedication is an act of surrender or submission to His will for our lives whereby we become a “living sacrifice.” Daily dependence on God results in our transformation into the image of Christ. Illustration: When we seek to discern the will of God we must also be committed to doing the will of God as it is revealed in the Word of God (John 7:17). Application: The believer should evaluate every decision on the basis of biblical principles, knowing that obedience brings God’s blessing. (First Reference, Gen. 22:12; Primary Reference, Rom. 12:1.)

2 Whosoever therefore resisteth ^athe ¹power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves ²damnation.

3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. ¹Wilt thou then not be afraid of the ²power? ^ado that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same:

13:2. Damnation (Gr. krima, "judgment"): This is not a reference to eternal judgment, but is still a judgment by God, because God has delegated authority to human government.

13:3, 4. The minister of God to thee for good: The purpose of human government is to uphold the good and punish the evil. Right and wrong is determined by the state. The Christian citizen is to fear and obey the government, as long as the government does not demand citizens to violate God's Word. Governmental officials hold office by virtue of God's appointment and are primarily the servants of God in their offices. The political leader is to actively uphold the good. The sword is a symbol representing the authority given to government to protect its citizens by punishing those who do what it has determined is wrong. It is important for Christians to be actively involved in government so that the government's values are consistent with the Word of God.

13:8. Owe no man any thing: Paul is not setting down the fiscal policy of paying only cash for everything, but is talking about the Christian's social responsibility of not acting in such a way toward his fellowman that he incurs any debt other than to love him. This debt is never paid up. In doing this the believer will actually perform the righteousness to which the law could only point.

13:11, 12. Sleep means insensitivity to the demands of Christ on the Christian's life. Now is our salvation nearer: The coming of Christ to deliver us from this sinful world grows nearer every day. The night is the time while Christ is out of the world, and the world has been delivered into the control of the prince of the power of the air (Eph. 2:2). The day is a reference to the time when Christ will return and establish His reign of righteousness.

13:14. Make not provision for the flesh: One should not seek opportunities to satisfy the deep-seated desires of the sin nature, but should seek occasion to manifest works that are consistent with the new life in Christ.

14:1-3. Weak in the faith: The weak brother is sick with reference to the faith. The contention of which Paul speaks is over things that in themselves are morally indifferent. The weak brother attributes a moral value to them and feels he must abstain from certain practices that are in fact not sinful in themselves. The strong brother is to take the weak brother to himself with tenderness. Not to doubtful disputations: The strong brother is not to "split hairs" with the weak the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God.

We Are All Accountable

12 So then ^aevery one of us shall give account of himself to God.

13 Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that ^ano man put a stumblingblock or an occasion to fall in his brother’s way.

14 I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, ^athat there is nothing unclean of itself: but to him that ¹esteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean.

15 But if thy brother be grieved ¹with thy ²meat, now walkest thou not charitably. ^aDestroy not him with thy ²meat, for whom Christ died.

16 ^aLet not then your good be evil spoken of:

17 ^aFor the kingdom of God is not ¹meat and drink; but righteousness, and ^bpeace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

18 For he that in these things serveth Christ ^ais acceptable to God, and approved of men.

19 ^aLet us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith ^bone may ¹edify another.

20 ^aFor ¹meat destroy not the work of God. ^bAll things indeed are brother. In receiving people with diverse convictions in questionable areas, receive them tenderly, recognize their different convictions or practices, and let them alone. See 1 Corinthians 8 for discussion as to why the eating of meat was a problem for some in the early church.

14:5, 6. One day above another: This, along with the diet problem (v. 3), reflects some of the tension the early church incurred as it brought Jews and Gentiles together in one body, the church. See also 15:8–13; Ephesians 2:11–22; Colossians 2:16, 17.

14:10. The judgment seat of Christ: See 1 Corinthians 3:10–15; 2 Corinthians 5:10. The judgment seat of Christ is not punitive. It is for the sake of rewards, and every believer will be there, though some will receive special rewards for faithfulness.

14:11, 12. Paul quotes Isaiah 45:23 to point out that a day is coming when every believer will give account to God concerning why he did or did not do everything. At this time the weaker and stronger brothers will give their own explanations to God for their divergent practices.

14:13. Let us not therefore judge one another any more: Only the Lord has the right to judge, and He will judge the believer’s use of his freedom in amoral things (matters of conscience, not clear biblical teaching). Judgment must stop now, because it mars the harmony in the church by focusing attention on something that is of secondary importance to God. A stumblingblock is conduct that is offensive or causes shock to another. In this case it brings an occasion to fall. It causes a believer to imitate the conduct of another, with the result that he is conscience-stricken and feels that he has sinned against God.

14:16–19. Let not your good be evil spoken of: The stronger brother might destroy his testimony. The stronger brother says his liberty comes from God, but the weaker brother says it comes from Satan. True spirituality is not shown in the manifestation of liberty, but in the manifestation of the Spirit. True liberty may be shown by refraining from the exercise of one’s liberty. The stronger brother might disrupt the peace of the body, so he should forego his liberty in the interest of peace in the assembly.

pure; ^cbut it is evil for that man who eateth with offence.

21 It is good neither to eat ^aflesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.

22 Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he ¹alloweth.

23 And he that doubteth is ¹damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for ^awhatsoever is not of faith is sin.

Be Likeminded

15 We ^athen that are strong ought to bear the ¹infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.

2 ^aLet every one of us please his neighbour for his good to ¹edification.

3 ^aFor even Christ pleased not himself; but, as it is written, The ^breproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me.

Glorify God Together

6 That ye may ^awith one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Wherefore ^areceive ye one another, ^bas Christ also received us to the glory of God.

8 Now I say that ^aJesus Christ ¹was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, ^bto confirm the promises made unto the fathers:

9 And ^athat the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy; as it is written, ^bFor this cause I will confess to thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy name.

10 And again he saith, ^aRejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.

11 And again, ^aPraise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and laud him, all ye people.

12 And again, Esaias saith, ^aThere shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles trust.

13 Now the God of hope fill you with all ^ajoy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost.

Paul Ministers to the Gentiles

14 And ^aI myself also am ¹persuaded of you, my brethren, that ye also are full of goodness, ^bfilled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another.

14:21, 22. It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine: Avoid anything that might be a stumbling block. If “flesh” had special significance in the early church, “wine” does today. The highest good is not in the use of liberty, but in the recognition of liberty and refraining from offense. Paul makes two recommendations. In the area of practice, have it (the faith that one’s actions are not sinful) ... before God. But recognize the responsibility that goes with liberty. If you practice something that is not sinful but may nevertheless offend others, don’t make an issue of it. In the area of experience, happy [Gr. makarios, “happy,” “blessed,” the same word used in the Beatitudes, Matt 5:3ff.] is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth. If he has not seen anything about it in the Word of God and concludes he has liberty in the matter, he should still not allow his exercise of Christian liberty to become an occasion for a weaker brother to stumble.

14:23. He that doubteth is damned (“condemned”): The one who is uncertain in his practice of amoral things is conscience-stricken because he does not really feel he has liberty in the matter. He does not fully believe he has the liberty he is exercising.

Whatsoever is not of faith is sin: The weaker brother is led into sin because he “feels” he has sinned, and as far as he is concerned, it is sin.

15:1-3. Strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak: The strong brother is morally obligated to take the initiative and bear with the weak brother in those things that bother him. The stronger brother must forego his liberty for the good of the weaker, so he is not offended or impaired in his spiritual life. The best example is Christ, who took our sins upon Himself.

15:8-12. Since God’s purpose has been to unite both Jew and Gentile into one body, diverse convictions and practices in doubtful matters should give way to harmony and unity. Paul quotes from the Psalms (18:49; 117:1), the Law (Deut. 32:43), and the Prophets (Is. 11:1, 10) to show that this unity has always been God’s plan.

15:13. The power of the Holy Ghost is the means by which unity will be accomplished as the Holy Spirit enables the strong and weak brothers to see the other’s positions and to refuse to let their differences mar the unity that they have in Christ. This is true spiritual freedom and maturity.

15 Nevertheless, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you ¹in some sort, as ²putting you in mind, ^abecause of the grace that is given to me of God,

16 That ^aI should be ¹the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God, that the ^boffering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost.

17 I have therefore ¹whereof I may glory through Jesus Christ ^ain those things which pertain to God.

18 For I will not dare to speak of any of those things ^awhich Christ hath not wrought by me, ^bto make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed, 19 ^aThrough mighty signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God; so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the gospel of Christ.

20 Yea, so have I ¹strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, ^alest I should build upon another man's foundation:

21 But as it is written, ^aTo whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: and they that have not heard shall understand.

15:15. As putting you in mind: This statement gives possible support for the view that the church of Rome was founded by Paul's converts. It suggests that he had taught them originally. It might also mean that Paul views the epistle as a "reminder" to the Roman Christians of things they already knew in part from other Christian leaders.

15:19. Unto Illyricum: In the western Balkan sea-coast region.

15:20, 21. The principle that Paul used in his ministry was not to build upon another man's foundation. He sought to preach where Christ had not previously been preached. He quotes Isaiah 52:15 to show that he has done what the Old Testament said would be done, that is, the message of Christ would be brought to those in ignorance.

15:22. Paul desired to come to the Romans, but states his past prohibition, I have been much hindered. Many interruptions have been interfering with his plans to come to Rome.

15:24. Journey into Spain: He will not remain in Rome, but plans to go on to the western extreme of the Roman Empire.

15:31, 32. That I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judaea: This prayer was granted. Although Paul was seized by the Jews (Acts 22:24-27) and his life endangered (Acts 23:12), he survived to journey to Rome and preach the gospel (Acts 28:16-31).

15:33. Amen brings the formal part of the epistle to a conclusion. All that remain are personal greetings and a word of warning.

16:1, 2. A servant (Gr. diakonon, lit., "deacon"): This is one passage used in support of the office of deaconess. No precise specifications however are given of such an office. Such women are better viewed as being either the wives of deacons (cf. 1 Tim. 3:11) or godly widows who were supported financially by the church (cf. 1 Tim. 5:9, 10). Here it is best to understand Phoebe's role to be that of "helper." Cenchrea is the little town east of Corinth from which Paul wrote Romans.

16:3-7. Priscilla and Aquila: See Acts 18:2, 26; 1 Corinthians 16:19; 2 Timothy 4:19. Laid down their own necks: We do not know the specific incident of which Paul speaks. The church... in their house: Apparently there were a number of small local churches that met in various houses and collectively were the "church at Rome." See also 1 Corinthians 16:19; Colossians 4:15; Philemon 2. Who are of note among the apostles: Better "well known to the apostles." The New Testament knows only the 12 apostles plus Matthias (Acts 1:26) and Paul. The office of apostle was not extended beyond this number. Andronicus and Junia (a woman) are not apostles, but they were well known to many of the apostles.

16:10. Aristobulus is thought by some to be the grandson of Herod the Great.

16:17. Words of warning concerning danger threatening the church. Paul does not want the unity implied in verses 3-16 to be broken, marred, or impaired. Paul delivers the command to mark them who are the source of divisions and stumbling blocks in the assembly, because they cause divisions and offences (cf. 14:13b). They are to avoid them or "turn away" from them. They are not to try to argue with or convert them (cf. 14:1).

16:18. Serve not our Lord: Anyone who mars the unity or harmony of the local church does not serve the Lord Jesus Christ, regardless of his claim. He puts his interest above the welfare and interest of the local church.

16:20. Shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly: The underlying imagery is found in Genesis 3:15. In freeing themselves from those who were causing division and marring the unity of the church, they would wrote Romans (cf. 1 Cor. 1:14). Erastus the chamberlain was probably the city treasurer (cf. 2 Tim. 4:20). He is mentioned as being a resident of Corinth. His name has been found on a pavement he donated to Corinth.

16:24. Many manuscripts omit this verse.

16:25, 26. Mystery: Paul explains his use of this term in these verses. It is a truth previously unknown but now made plain. See also Ephesians 3:3–7.

The First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the CORINTHIANS

First Corinthians both complements and contrasts Paul's great doctrinal epistle to the saints in Rome. While Romans emphasizes matters of biblical theology, 1 Corinthians is concerned with practical theology and its application to a particular local assembly.

The City of Corinth. Corinth was a wealthy commercial center located on a narrow neck of land (four miles wide) that connected the Peloponnesus and northern Greece. Situated as it was, it became a crossroads for travel and commerce, both north and south, and east and west. It had two harbors, one (Lechaeum) facing Italy and the other (Cenchrea) facing Asia. The wealth of Corinth was acquired by hauling freight and smaller vessels across the isthmus, and by levying tolls on such commerce.

The original city of Corinth rose to wealth and fame during the period of the Greek city-states. It was known for its cosmopolitan culture and luxurious temples. A shining sanctuary to Aphrodite, Greek goddess of love and beauty, was located on the gray, rocky hill to the south of the city (called Acrocorinth). Visible far out to sea, this temple was serviced by a thousand slave girls who doubled as prostitutes and entertainers for the city's nightlife. Corinth's fortunes fell dramatically in 146 B.C. when Rome besieged and sacked the city.

Julius Caesar built a new city on the same site in 46 B.C. When Paul came to Corinth in about A.D. 51, it was again a thriving metropolis, the capital of the senatorial province of Achaia. It was ruled by a Roman proconsul ("deputy," Acts 18:12).

Religiously, the city had every type of cult its pluralistic society could bring to it. There was also a synagogue and a large contingency of Jews. From such a diverse cultural hub, a strong gospel witness might well be heard all over the world. No wonder Paul felt constrained to bear a testimony to such a city.

The moral depravity of Corinth, legendary even in the ancient pagan world, vividly reflected the spiritual need of the city, which was known as a seaman's paradise and moral cesspool. "Easy" women roamed the streets, and the atmosphere was polluted with the alluring aura of sin. The city may furnish some of the background for the catalog of man's sins in Romans 1:18-32 (written by Paul while a guest of Gaius in Corinth).

Origin of the Church. Luke records the origin of the church at Corinth in Acts 18:1-17. Paul came to Corinth in about A.D. 51 after a courageous evangelistic effort at Athens (Acts 17:16-34).

Perhaps running short of funds on his arrival, Paul accepted the hospitality of Aquila and his wife Priscilla, Jews exiled from Rome. During the week, he worked with them making tents (Acts 18:1-4). On the Sabbath he would go to the synagogue where he reasoned with the Jews concerning Christ.

Paul ministered in Corinth some 18 months (Acts 18:11), and during that time he also wrote 1 and 2 Thessalonians. Note that another church apparently was started in the eastern port of Corinth in Cenchrea (cf. Rom. 16:1). Whether Paul had a hand in ministering to this fellowship directly is not known for certain. In any case, Apollos, an eloquent preacher from Alexandria, assumed the leadership of the main Corinthian assembly at the conclusion of Paul's first visit (Acts 18:24—19:1). Paul then moved on to Ephesus where he enjoyed what appears to be his longest ministry ever in one place.

Purpose. At least two factors prompted Paul's letter. First, he had received word from two sources of division in the church (1:11; 16:17). Paul shows them that this is totally incompatible with the gospel of Christ.

Second, Paul had apparently received a letter from the assembly requesting answers to a series of questions (7:1). He felt obliged to respond.

Furthermore, other reports not recorded (such as that mentioned in 5:1) apparently concerned the apostle. Thus Paul purposes to (1) rebuke the party spirit in the assembly, (2) encourage them to moral purity, (3) instruct them regarding specific doctrinal problems, (4) urge their participation in the collection for Jerusalem, and (5) inform them of his immediate plans.

Authorship. The authorship of 1 Corinthians is well attested. The writer calls himself Paul (1:1; 3:4, 6, 22; 16:21). The epistle harmonizes well with Acts and other Pauline letters. Frequent mention is made in 1 Corinthians of contemporaries of the mid-first century. Christian writers around A.D. 100 quote the epistle. Virtually all scholars agree that this is a genuine Pauline writing.

Date and Place of Writing. Paul indicates that he is writing from Ephesus (1 Cor. 16:8, 19). If this letter comes at the end of Paul's stay there, as seems likely, the time would be about the spring of A.D. 55.

Theme. The theme of this, Paul's longest epistle is that believers are called into the fellowship of Jesus Christ (1:9). A number of vital concerns are wrapped up in this theme.

Paul is deeply disturbed that the Cointhians do not seem to understand the nature of the gospel and the need for discipline and submission to the authority of Christ and of Paul, Christ's apostle.

Certain terms are used repeatedly, such as knowledge, wisdom, discern, love, holy, and sanctify.

Chapter 13 contains perhaps the greatest chapter in the Bible on love. Chapter 15 is a classic passage on the Resurrection.

Throughout the epistle, Paul reflects the intense concern of a spiritual father struggling to bring his problem children back into fellowship and submission. The thrust throughout is practical. As each situation warrants, the letter takes the form of instruction, correction, rebuke, or edification. But always one sees the heart of this great pastor-apostle reaching out to a congregation with much potential, but also with many problems.

Argument. Paul opens the epistle with a rebuke of the disorders in the assembly, namely, misconceptions regarding the nature of the body of Christ, the message of the gospel, and the nature of the ministry (chs. 1—4). Then he deals with matters of discipline as necessary in the case of lust, lawsuits, and license (chs. 5, 6). Having taken care of these matters, Paul next answers the specific questions addressed to him on matters of doctrine and church government. Here he focuses his attention on Christian marriage, Christian liberty, worship, and spiritual gifts (chs. 7—14). Finally his chapter on the Resurrection is directed to an additional problem of certain Greeks in the assembly who had problems with the doctrine of the bodily resurrection (ch. 15). This is the only doctrinal error as such that Paul has to deal with in the epistle, and it does not appear to have been one of the questions asked by the Corinthians.

Contentions in the Church

10 Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ,

1:9 ^aDeut. 7:9; Is. 49:7; 1 Cor. 10:13; 2 Cor. 1:18; 1 Thess. 5:24; 2 Thess. 3:3 ^b[John 15:4]

1:1. Apostle (lit., “one who is sent”): There is particular stress on Paul’s authority as an apostle through divine call. Sosthenes was not a fellow apostle, but certainly a fellow minister of the gospel. He was probably the ruler of the Jewish synagogue mentioned in Acts 18:17.

1:2. Sanctified in Christ Jesus could be rendered “made holy by virtue of your relation with Christ Jesus.” Here Paul has special reference to the Corinthians’ right relationship with God. They are set apart for God’s special use. His aim in the epistle is to bring the Corinthians’ actions and life-style into closer harmony with God’s expectations for those He has made His own.

1:3. Grace ... and peace: In the former, Paul contemplates all that is understood by God’s gracious unmerited favor as it is extended to sinners. The latter has in mind benefits that fall from the exercise of God’s love.

1:7. While gift has a wide variety of meanings, here it probably has reference to spiritual gifts, a theme developed later in the epistle.

1:8. Confirm (strengthen, establish, make firm): Historically, the gospel had been confirmed in them. Now they anticipate the prospect of that blessed event when Jesus Christ shall also confirm them blameless before the throne of God.

1:9. Unto the fellowship of his Son: The term fellowship includes both union and communion. The Corinthian believers had been brought into union with the Lord Jesus Christ. Accordingly, this great truth implies that they had been brought into communion with one another. Here in a nutshell is the theme of this epistle.

1:10. Now is transitional. With this, Paul turns to his appeal for unity. No divisions: The first major concern of this epistle has to do with the divisive spirit in Corinth. Paul approaches the problem by first “that ye all ¹ speak the same thing, and that there be no ² divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment.

11 For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are ¹ contentions among you.

12 Now this I say, ^a that every one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of ^b Apollos; and I of ^c Cephas; and I of Christ.

13 “Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you? or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?”

14 I thank God that I baptized ^a none of you, but ^b Crispus and ^c Gaius;

15 Lest any should say that I had baptized in mine own name.

16 And I baptized also the household of ^a Stephanas; besides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: ^a not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

The Foolishness of the World's Wisdom

the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent.

20 “Where is the wise? where is the scribe? where is the ¹ disputer of this world? ^b hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?”

21 For after that in the ^a wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of ¹ preaching to save them that believe.

22 For the ^a Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom:

23 But we preach Christ crucified, ^a unto the Jews a stumblingblock, and unto the Greeks ^b foolishness;

24 But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ ^a the power of God, and ^b the wisdom of God.

25 Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

Glory in the Lord

26 For ¹ ye see your calling, brethren, how that ^a not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called:

27 But ^a God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to ¹ confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to ¹ confound the things which are mighty; denouncing their factional tendencies (vv. 10–31), then by demonstrating the quality of divine wisdom as contrasted with human wisdom (ch. 2). In chapter 3, he considers those qualities that make for mature Christian service. Finally in chapter 4, he defends his own ministry, and that of Apollos and the apostles, contrasting personal discomfort which he himself endured with the arrogance of the Corinthians who are now criticizing him.

1:14. I baptized none of you: In view of the divisions in the assembly, Paul is thankful that very few in Corinth were baptized by him. The implication of this is significant. Baptism has no saving power, or else the apostle would have been giving thanks to God that he was instrumental in saving so few!

1:17. Lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect (Gr. kenōō, “to empty of substance” or “make of no effect”): The success of the gospel lies in the plain doctrine of a crucified Lord. In spite of his learning at the feet of Gamaliel (Acts 22:3), the apostle Paul lays his learning aside when he preaches the simple gospel of Christ. This truth needs no artificial dress. It alone carries with it the “power of God unto salvation” (Rom. 1:16).

1:18. The preaching [lit., “word”] of the cross (i.e., the message about Jesus’ atoning death): In its effect on man, Paul singles out two groups. Those who perish deem the word of the Cross foolishness. But to the saved, the simple message of the Cross is the power of God.

1:19, 20. It is written: The “wise” of Corinth are no more effective in the saving of souls than the “wise” of Judah are in staving off the threat from Sennacherib in Isaiah’s day. God will destroy human wisdom, and make the wisdom of this world foolish. See Isaiah 19:12; 29:14; 33:18.

1:21. Preaching (lit., “the thing preached”): Paul’s emphasis here is not on the act of preaching, but on the content of preaching, namely the message of the Cross (cf. v. 18).

1:26. Not many wise: The nature of Paul’s argument tells us that most of the Corinthian congregation were of the poor class of Corinthian society.

1:27–29. God hath chosen: The selection by God is designed to silence the wisdom of man. He chooses the foolish to shame the wise. He chooses weak things to shame things deemed by man to be mighty and things men do not even realize exist to counteract

28 And ¹base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to ²nought things that are:

The Wisdom of God

6 Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are ¹perfect: yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the ²princes of this ³world, that come to ⁴nought:

7 But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ¹ordained before the ²world unto our glory:

8 Which none of the ¹princes of this ²world knew: for ^ahad they known it, they would not have ^bcrucified the Lord of glory.

9 But as it is written, ^aEye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But ^aGod hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, ¹save the ^aspirit of man which is in him? ^beven so the things which are, powers and institutions erected and relied upon by man.

1:30. Of him [because of the Father's work] are ye in [intimate with] Christ Jesus: Paul concludes that all the riches of salvation exist in Christ Jesus. All that the Corinthian believers are, they owe to Him. Thus it is not in oneself, or in party alignment, or in supposed human ability that any believer ought to glory. Paul tabulates the qualities that belong to the believer in Christ. Wisdom is not merely the acquisition of intellectual skills but the gaining of spiritual discernment based on the wisdom of God as demonstrated in the Cross. Righteousness is a legal concept and has in mind the righteousness that is applied to the believer's account the moment he believes (Rom. 5). Sanctification has already been mentioned in verse 2, "sanctified in Christ Jesus." This contemplates the work of Christ "in" the believer, as opposed to that which he does "for" the believer in justification. Redemption underlies all the above. Christ's redemptive work opened the way for God to extend His grace to sinful man and to pour out upon him such benefits as wisdom, righteousness, and sanctification.

2:1, 2. Testimony of God: This was not Paul's testimony of God, but God's testimony of Himself (namely, "the Cross"). I determined (lit., "I decided"): The implication is that Paul gave careful thought to his approach, and resolved to lay aside the ornaments of speech and philosophical skill to announce Jesus Christ, and him crucified. Paul's message and method reflected divine wisdom.

2:4. Paul's mention of the Spirit here is significant. The Corinthians thought they knew a great deal about the Holy Spirit, for more than most churches in apostolic times, perhaps, they had experienced various manifestations of the Spirit's power.

2:6. Perfect refers to the morally and spiritually mature. Paul cannot resist the use of irony here. In verse 4 he denies the use of wisdom; now he admits to using it—but only among those capable of comprehending and appreciating it (namely, the perfect).

2:7. In a mystery: In may be instrumental (i.e., "by a mystery"), modal ("in the form of a mystery"), or local ("hidden in a mystery"). Mystery refers to some work or purpose of God unrevealed until now (Rom. 16:25, 26). In this case, the reference is to the hidden wisdom, which God ordained... unto our glory. The purpose of God concerning our salvation was designed by God from eternity and is directed toward the everlasting glory that believers will enjoy in His presence.

2:8. Lord of glory: See Psalm 29:1; Acts 7:2; Ephesians 1:17; and James 2:1.

2:10. Revealed... unto us: Unto us is in the emphatic position in Greek, emphasizing the enormous privilege granted the recipients of divine revelation. The magnificent treasure of God's revealed truth is accessible to the mature believer.

2:10-13. The apostle deals with three vital doctrines. In verse 10 he touches on the doctrine of revelation. The truth Paul is talking about is contained in the record God has given to us—the Bible. This is the eternal and unchanging truth of God. Verse 11 deals things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received, not the ¹spirit of the world, but ^athe spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13 Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual.

14 ^aBut the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

15 But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man.

16 ^aFor who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? ^bBut we have the mind of Christ.

with the doctrine of illumination, which has to do with human understanding of divine truth. The subject of verses 12 and 13 is the doctrine of inspiration. In verse 12 Paul talks about the content of inspiration. In verse 13 his concern is with the communication of inspiration. Paul's message was not of human contrivance. He was a channel, simply communicating God's truth (cf. Gal. 1:11, 12).

2:13. Comparing spiritual things with spiritual: The term comparing occurs only here and in 2 Corinthians 10:12 where the meaning is clearly "compare." However, in classical Greek, the term was always used in a sense of "to compound" or "to interpret." Probably the most satisfactory interpretation is "combining spiritual things with spiritual words." After speaking of spiritual "things," (vv. 11–13), Paul now speaks of the "forms" in which they are conveyed. Spiritual truth is conveyed in language that is given by God's Spirit.

2:14. Natural man (lit., "unspiritual man") is un-receptive. He does not admit the truth into his heart (cf. Luke 8:13; Acts 8:14; 11:1; James 1:21). As spiritual discernment is generated only by the Holy Spirit, the capacity to know spiritual truth is beyond the innate powers of the natural man. Spiritually discerned: The fundamental idea of discerned is that of "examination" or "scrutiny." It is used only by Paul and Luke, and mostly of "judicial examination" (cf. Luke 23:14; Acts 4:9; 1 Cor. 9:3; 10:25, 27). On the spiritual plane, the natural man does not have the ability to sift the facts.

2:15. The difference between the natural man and the spiritual man is primarily that the spiritual man has founded his faith on God's revelation. He can judge now both earthly and heavenly things. He can discern what is and what is not of the gospel and salvation, and whether a man truly preaches the truth of God.

2:16. We have the mind of Christ means that Christians possess the Lord's own understanding, that is, His thoughts, opinions, judgments, plans, and so on. This answers the question that Paul puts in the same verse, Who hath known the mind of the Lord? The answer is, "We do!" The term we includes the apostle Paul and to some extent all true believers, though believers today are prudent to acknowledge the superiority of apostolic insight into spiritual matters to that of their own.

3:1–3. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: In the case of newborn babes, this would be natural and to be expected (1 Pet. 2:2). But it is embarrassing at this stage in their development. Milk figuratively stands for elementary Christian instruction, and meat refers to advanced doctrine. Carnal (lit., "fleshy"): The warfare between the flesh and the spirit receives continual emphasis in Paul's writings (cf. Rom. 7:14–8:13; Gal. 5:17). The factions that have destroyed the unity in Corinth indicate that these believers were not walking by the Spirit, but were allowing the flesh to direct their behavior.

3:4. Carnal: A number of early manuscripts read "men." In such a case, Paul is saying, "Are you not mere men?"

3:8, 9. We are labourers together with God (lit., "God's fellow workers") is the key to this chapter. This, in effect, restates the phrase in verse 8, he that planteth and he that watereth are one.

10 ^aAccording to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid ^bthe foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11 For other foundation can no man lay than ^athat is laid, ^bwhich is Jesus Christ.

12 Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, ¹stubble;

13 Every man's work shall ¹be made manifest: for the day ^ashall declare it, because ^bit shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall ²try every man's work of what sort it is.

14 If any man's work ¹abide which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward.

15 If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as ¹by fire.

The Temple of God

16 ^aKnow ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man ¹defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

18 ^aLet no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this ¹world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise.

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, ^aHe taketh the wise in their own craftiness.

20 And again, ^aThe Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are ¹vain.

21 Therefore let no man glory in men. For ^aall things are yours;

22 Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours;

23 And ^aye are Christ's; and Christ is God's.

Ministers and Stewards

4 Let a man so ¹account of us, as of ^athe ²ministers of Christ, ^band stewards of the ³mysteries of God.

2 Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.

3 But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's ¹judgment: yea, I judge not mine own self.

4 For I know nothing ¹by myself; yet am I not hereby justified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord.

5 ^aTherefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to ^blight the hidden things of darkness, and will ¹make ^cmanifest the ²counsels of the hearts: and ^dthen shall every man have praise of God.

6 And these things, brethren, I

3:13. The day is the day of the judgment seat of Christ (cf. 4:5; 2 Cor. 5:10). Fire is figurative for judgment, more specifically, the absolutely righteous judgment of God. Fire is used here to denote, not enlightening power, but consuming power. Of the six types of material mentioned, three are combustible and three are incombustible. See also Deuteronomy 4:24; Malachi 3:2; 2 Thessalonians 1:8; Hebrews 12:29.

3:14. Reward (lit., "wages," cf. 3:8): Of course, even the "wages" mentioned here are entirely a gift of grace (cf. 1 Cor. 9:17; 2 John 8; Rev. 11:18).

3:15. Saved: Such a one does not suffer the loss of his salvation, but the loss of reward. The stress in this entire passage is not on a person's relationship to Christ, but on service to Christ.

3:16. Temple of God: The temple here is the local church, not the individual believer (2 Cor. 6:16; Eph. 2:21). But see the note on 6:19.

3:17. Destroy is a stronger expression than "suffer loss" (v. 15). Paul seems to have in mind unsaved people who may or may not be in the assembly, but who are in fact false believers. The prospect for such a one is fearful.

3:21, 22. For all things are yours: The one who belongs to Christ is a child of God, and his Father will do anything for him. The absurdity of their division over allegiances to any of these men is that God gave them "all" to the Corinthians.

4:1, 2. Ministers (lit., "a subordinate," or "servant"): This term is used only here in Paul's epistles. It differs from the word translated "ministers" in 3:5 in that it has the idea of an attendant or helper who assists a master. The apostle or minister of Christ is simply an attendant of Christ. He takes orders and executes them.

4:4. I know nothing by myself (lit., "I know nothing against myself"). This sort of total commitment gave Paul the authority to make such a statement as "be ye followers of me" (cf. 1 Cor. 4:16; 11:1).

4:6. Not to think... above that which is written is a proverbial expression. Paul is telling the Corinthians not to go beyond Scripture. In other words, learn to live by the Book, and stop following men.

have ¹in a figure transferred to myself and to Apollos for your sakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be ²puffed up for one against another.

7 For who ¹maketh thee to differ from another? and ^awhat hast thou that thou didst not receive? now if thou didst receive it, why dost thou glory, as if thou hadst not received it?

8 Now ye are full, ^anow ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us: and I ¹would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you.

Fools for Christ's Sake

9 For I think that God hath ¹set forth us the apostles last, as ²it were appointed to death: for we are made a ^aspectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.

10 We are ^afools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; ^bwe are weak, but ye are strong; ye are ¹honourable, but we are ²despised.

11 Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are ¹naked, and are ²buffeted, and ³have no certain dwellingplace;

12 ^aAnd labour, working with our own hands: ^bbeing reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we ¹suffer it:

13 Being ¹defamed, we ²intreat: ^awe are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day.

4:9. Spectacle (Gr. theatron, lit., "a theater"): The apostles were like exhibits in a sideshow. Notice the verb form of this term in Hebrews 10:33.

4:10-13. We are fools for Christ's sake [lit., "on account of Christ"], but ye are wise: The apostles are considered fools because they knew and preached nothing but Christ. On the other hand, the Corinthians used their Christianity as another philosophy to extend their reputation as wise and enlightened people.

4:15. I have begotten you: I is emphatic, producing the thought, "I—rather than your ten thousand instructors—am responsible for the beginning of the Christian assembly." The term begot does not so much denote the conversion of these people, but that Paul laid the foundation (3:10). Through the gospel: Their salvation was not through the power of Paul's personality, or through his sagacity, but through the gospel of Christ and Him crucified (cf. 2:1-5).

5:1. Have his father's wife: One of the members of the church had taken his stepmother (cf. Lev. 18:8) and had married her (the expression to have a woman always means "to marry," cf. Matt. 14:4; 22:28; 1 Cor. 7:2, 29). Hence, this man's crime is worse than adultery. It is incest.

5:3-8. Discipline in the early church was perhaps administered in the following manner. The congregation was called together, with an apostle presiding if available, and the person accused was arraigned before them. After the evidence had been heard, and the accused had given a defense of himself, the judgment of the congregation was pronounced. Paul, though absent in person, yet pictures himself present and presiding in spirit, and he leaves them in no doubt concerning the proper verdict: the offense should be condemned and the offender excommunicated.

5:5. To deliver... unto Satan: Several observations must be made concerning this difficult and obscure passage. (1) It involved excommunication from the church (v. 2). (2) It involved the chastisement of the man. The reference seems to be to the destruction of the physical appetites that prompted this gross immorality. (3) Paul has the ultimate restoration of the offender in view, that the spirit may be saved. This last purpose shows that the phrase destruction of the flesh cannot mean that the person could be brought to death. God does not want him killed; He wants him restored (cf. Matt. 18:15; 2 Cor. 2:1–11; Gal. 6:1).

5:6. A little leaven leaveneth the whole: No sin can be considered an isolated event. Just as with the sin of Achan (Josh. 7), the sin had to be purged, or else it would contaminate the whole lump. The stress is on the church as a unity.

5:7. Here the old leaven does not signify the sinful man as such, but evil of any kind. The background for this metaphor is Exodus 12:19 and 13:7. The larger scope of the apostle’s imagery here is that he sees Christ as the fulfillment of the Old Testament Passover Feast of Unleavened Bread. The Passover foreshadowed Christ’s vicarious death on behalf of mankind. He is “the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world” (John 1:29). The Feast of Unleavened Bread accompanied the Passover. It involved a period of seven days during which no leaven was to be found in the homes of the Israelites. This was symbolic of the holy life that was to accompany partaking of the Paschal lamb.

5:8. Keep the feast (lit. “go on keeping”): Not surprisingly, the apostle uses the Passover as an illustration here. First Corinthians was written just before the Passover (cf. 16:8), and the celebration of the feast is on Paul’s mind.

5:9. I wrote unto you in an epistle: This is the “previous epistle.” This letter is now lost, but we know that at least one subject discussed in this letter was that they were not to keep company with fornicators.

5:11. Not to keep company: The term translated “to keep company” is found only here, in verse 9, and in 2 Thessalonians 3:14. It is a compound of three Greek terms, and means “to mingle together with.” It has the idea of close, habitual association.

6:1. The terms unjust and saints are generic, referring to unbelievers in general as opposed to believers

POLLUTION BY SIN

5:6. Even a little sin has a corrupting and polluting influence in the life of the saved or the lost.

Illustration: Man in his sin is compared to a snake (“adder” or “viper”) for its venom (Job 20:16; Ps. 140:3), a donkey for its stubbornness (Job 11:12), a bear for its cruelty (Dan. 7:5), a dog for its uncleanness (Prov. 26:11), a fox for its cunning (Luke 13:32), a leopard for its fierceness (Dan. 7:6), a moth for its appetite (Job 27:18), a sheep for its stupidity (Is. 53:6), a spider’s web for its flimsiness (Is. 59:5), a pig for its filthiness (2 Pet. 2:22), and a wolf for its ferociousness (John 10:12). Application: By contrast, Christians should be characterized by the evident fruit of the Holy Spirit in their lives (Gal. 5:22, 23). (First Reference, Gen. 3:6–24; Primary Reference, Rom. 3; cf. Rom. 6:23.)

2 Do ye not know that ^athe saints shall judge the world? and if the world shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall ^ajudge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have ¹judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them to judge who are least esteemed in the church.

5 I speak to your shame. Is it so, that there is not a wise man among you? no, not one that shall be able to judge between his brethren?

6 But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers.

7 Now therefore there is ¹utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. ^aWhy do ye not rather ²take wrong? why do ye not rather suffer yourselves to be defrauded?

as a group. How incredible that the just should go before the unjust for justice!

6:2, 3. The saints shall judge the world: See Daniel 7:22; Matthew 19:28; Revelation 2:26; 3:21; 20:4.

We shall judge angels: See Isaiah 24:21; 2 Peter 2:4; Jude 6.

6:4. Set them to judge who are least esteemed: In the Greek, this may be taken either as imperative or interrogative. If it is the former, Paul is being sarcastic: "If you are going to go to a civil court, you might just as well appoint your least qualified members as jurors." If it is a question, it is emphatic, "Are you setting them to judge who are least esteemed (i.e., the heathen) in the church?" This would elicit expressions of shock and surprise that they were doing such a thing. The latter seems more in keeping with the context.

6:9, 10. The unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God: There were evidently some in the Corinthian assembly who had professed Christianity as a system of doctrine, but not as a rule of life. The apostle warns that this is a fatal mistake. Be not deceived: No one who can allow himself the indulgence of known sin in his life can be saved. This passage proves that Paul and James are in basic agreement. Both affirm that genuine faith produces good works (cf. Eph. 2:8-10), and that the absence of good works indicates the absence of saving faith (cf. James 2:14-26).

6:12. Paul's principles may be summarized in three words: Lawful, expedient, and power. The first is the principle of liberty. When Paul says "all things," we cannot take this in an absolute sense. Obviously, what God forbids can never be allowed. Rather, it refers to those things about which the Scriptures are not explicit. Such matters are left to the Christian's own judgment. The apostle is careful not to weaken the important doctrine of Christian liberty by leading these people back under Judaistic legalism. Rather, his intent is to circumscribe its application through proper restrictions. These are expressed in the principle of "expediency." Not everything is beneficial. A second restriction is expressed in the words, I will not be brought under the power of any. This is the principle of self-control. Certain forms of indulgence become wrong when they bring the person into bondage.

6:13, 14. Paul's use of the pronoun us shows that his use of the term body goes beyond its normal usage to signify the whole man. (Note also its connection with the second personal pronoun in verse 19.) On the destiny of the body, see also 15:15, 20, 35-56; Romans 8:11; 2 Corinthians 4:14; Philipians 3:21; 1 Thessalonians 4:14.

6:15, 16. The verb joined is used in Genesis 2:24 of the relationship of husband and wife. It is also used of man's relationship to God (Deut. 10:20; 11:22; Jer. 13:11).

17 “But he that is joined unto the Lord is one spirit.

18 “Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is ¹without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth ^bagainst his own body.

6:17. One spirit suggests the highest possible unity between the believer and the Lord. The sheep may wander from the shepherd, the branch may be cut off from the vine, the member may be severed from the body, the child alienated from the father, and even the wife from the husband, but when two spirits blend in one, nothing can part them.

6:18. The present tense of flee in Greek denotes standard procedure for Christians: “Always flee fornication” or “Make it your habit to flee fornication.”

6:19. Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost: Not only is the local church a temple of the Holy Spirit (cf. 3:16), but the individual believer’s body itself also is a temple of the Holy Spirit.

6:20. Bought with a price: The blessed fact that our body is the temple of the Holy Spirit has two sides: one, that He is ours; the other, that we are His. The believer was purchased on Golgotha’s hill. The price paid was the blood of God’s only Son (Acts 20:28).

This has profound significance for the believer (cf. 1 Tim. 4:10; 1 Pet. 2:9).

7:1, 2. Now concerning (Gr. peri de; see also v. 25; 8:1; 16:1, 12): This recurring formula indicates that Paul is dealing in turn with the issues the Corinthians had raised in their letter. Good (“morally good,” cf. 9:15; Matt. 17:4): That the apostle does not intend to teach that marriage is morally wrong as compared with celibacy is clear from verses 2, 7, 9, and 26. See also Genesis 2:18; Romans 7:4; 2 Corinthians 11:2; Ephesians 5:28–33; 1 Timothy 4:3.

7:6. Commandment: The apostle does not take sides with the extreme Jewish view that held that it was a sin if a man reached 20 without being married. Instead, he regards the matter as optional.

7:7. Myself: Paul wished his readers were content, not necessarily single. He himself was probably a widower. The point is that every man hath his proper gift of God (cf. vv. 17, 20, 24, and 27). Both marriage and celibacy are gifts of the Holy Spirit.

SERVING GIFTS

7:7. A spiritual gift is a sovereignly given ability to minister to others in the power of God, with an evident manifestation of the Holy Spirit through the Christian as he serves God. Such gifts are sometimes identified as enabling and task gifts. The enabling gifts of the Spirit are given to all Christians and include faith (Rom. 1:11; 1 Cor. 12:9), knowledge (12:8), wisdom (12:8), and discernment (12:10). These gifts help the believer to use his specific task gifts. These task gifts include prophecy (Rom. 12:6; 1 Cor. 14:3), teaching (Rom. 12:7), exhortation (Rom. 12:8), shepherding (Eph. 4:11), showing mercy (Rom. 12:8), ministering (Rom. 12:7), helping (12:28), giving (Rom. 12:8), ruling (Rom. 12:8), governing (12:28), evangelism (Eph. 4:11), and hospitality (1 Pet. 4:9). Some would add to this list martyrdom (13:3) and celibacy (Matt. 19:11, 12). Every Christian has at least one spiritual gift (v. 7) and may have more. The apostle Paul apparently had and exercised every spiritual gift. Application: Christians should use their gifts to serve God in some area of ministry that calls for the gift(s) they possess. (First Reference, Luke 11:13; Primary Reference, Rom. 12:3–8; cf. Eph. 5:18.)

uncircumcised. Is any called in uncircumcision? ^alet him not be circumcised.

19 ^aCircumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but ^bthe¹ keeping of the commandments of God.

20 Let every man abide in the same calling wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a ¹servant? care not for it: but if thou mayest be made free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the Lord, being a servant, is ^athe Lord's freeman: likewise also he that is called, being free, is ^bChrist's servant.

23 ^aYe are bought with a price; be not ye the servants of men.

Unmarried Men and Women

25 Now concerning virgins ^aI have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my judgment, as one ^bthat hath obtained mercy of the Lord ^cto be faithful.

26 I suppose therefore that this is good for the present distress, I say, ^athat it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed. Art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But and if thou marry, thou hast not sinned; and if a virgin

7:10, 11. Not I, but the Lord: No doubt the apostle has in mind explicit instruction of our Lord recorded in Matthew 5:32; 19:3-9; Mark 10:2-12; Luke 16:18.

7:12, 13. Not the Lord: This is not to be taken as marking a contrast between inspired Scripture and what Paul is about to say. On the contrary, while on the earth the Lord explicitly gave instructions about marriage and divorce. However, He did not make any special reference to the case of a mixed marriage. Thus it is incumbent on the apostle Paul, under inspiration of the Holy Spirit, to give additional instructions regarding this kind of situation.

7:14. Is sanctified: This is not to indicate that the children or the spouse of a believer are automatically born into the family of God. The words holy and unclean in this text are equivalent to "sacred" and "profane." The apostle's thought has Old Testament antecedents (cf. Hag. 2:11-13). The unbeliever and the children are considered holy in a positional sense. Hence, the principle of the communication of uncleanness given in the Old Testament does not apply here (cf. also Rom. 11:16). Together with the believer, they share in God's blessing, and are more likely to become converted.

7:15. Depart is in the middle voice and is almost a technical term for divorce. Bondage: There is no conflict here between Paul's advice and that of our Lord in Matthew 5:32. The point is that the divine standard cannot be imposed on the unregenerate. There is nothing the believer can do but submit to the divorce.

7:24. Abide with God: The prescription for peace and holiness in marriage is to remain in communion with God.

7:25. Virgins: See the note on verses 36-38. Again Paul is about to deal with another subject about which the Corinthians had written him (cf. 7:1). No commandment of the Lord: In our Lord's instruction regarding marriage and divorce recorded in the Gospels, there is no record of His speaking directly to this issue.

7:26. Present distress: This expression is probably best understood in light of 15:30, 31 and 2 Corinthians 11:21-33. Paul had already experienced intense persecution and no doubt anticipated it would get worse. History records all too well that he was right.

7:28. Trouble in the flesh: The Greek term thlipsis probably indicates that Paul understands this trouble will not come from within, as though marriage would marry, she hath not sinned. Nevertheless such shall have trouble in the flesh: but I spare you.

29 But ^athis I say, brethren, the time is short: it remaineth, that both they that have wives be as though they had none;

30 And they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy, as though they possessed not;

31 And they that use this world, as not ^aabusing it: for ^bthe ¹fashion of this world passeth away.

32 But I would have you without ¹carefulness. ^aHe that is unmarried careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may please the Lord:

33 But he that is married careth for the things that are of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman ^acareth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit: but she that is married careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speak for your own profit; not that I may ¹cast a snare upon you, but for that which is ²comely, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction.

36 But if any man think that he behaveth himself ¹uncomely toward his ²virgin, if she pass the flower of her ³age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he sinneth not: let them marry.

37 Nevertheless he that standeth stedfast in his heart, having no necessity, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart

Food Sacrificed to Idols

8 Now ^aas ¹touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all have ^bknowledge. ^cKnowledge puffeth up, but ²charity ³edifieth.

2 And ^aif any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

4 As concerning therefore the eating of those things that are offered in sacrifice unto idols, we know that ^aan idol is nothing in the world, ^band that there is none other God but one.

necessarily be accompanied by turmoil and distress; rather, this trouble would come from without. This fits well with his emphasis on the persecution and trouble confronting the church at that time.

7:32–35. Paul's argument here is not that the married life is less spiritual than the celibate life, but that the celibate life is less distracted by worldly cares. Hence, the single man or woman, enjoying greater freedom, therefore enjoys greater potential in terms of service. The focal point of Paul's advice is the promotion of faithful, undistracted devotion to the Lord.

7:36–38. It will help in understanding this passage to remember the control the father had over the marriage of his daughter in ancient times. The virgin referred to is an unmarried daughter.

7:39, 40. I think (Gr. dokēō) does not suggest doubt in any way (cf. 12:22; Gal. 2:6). The phrase is better translated, "I consider also that I have the Spirit of God."

8 But ^ameat¹ commendeth us not to God: for neither, if we eat, are we the better; neither, if we eat not, are we the worse.

9 But ^atake heed lest by any means this ¹liberty of yours become ^ba ²stumblingblock to them that are weak.

10 For if any man see thee which hast knowledge ¹sit at meat in the idol's temple, shall not ^athe conscience of him which is weak be emboldened to eat those things which are offered to idols;

11 And ^athrough¹ thy knowledge shall the weak brother perish, for whom Christ died?

12 But ^awhen ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ.

13 Wherefore, ^aif ¹meat make my brother to ²offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to ²offend.

8:9. Liberty means “freedom of choice,” or “right to decide.” The availability of an option does not necessitate its exercise, especially when love and concern for someone else becomes a factor. The most serious danger in an unrestrained approach to Christian liberty is the possibility of causing sin in the weaker brother.

8:11. Perish: This is tantamount to what Paul says in Romans 14:23. “He that doubteth is damned if he eat.” In other words, he is under the sure judgment of God for his sin. The most extreme application of this principle would involve sinning unto death (cf. 5:5; 11:30; and 1 John 5:16, 17).

8:13. I will eat no flesh: In order to avoid offending a brother, Paul would permanently exclude meat from his diet. The passage does not refer to legalists desirous of imposing their narrow-minded scruples on others. Such are not weak brethren, but headstrong brethren desirous of glorying in the subjection of others to their tenets (cf. Gal. 6:11–13). This is tyranny, and Christianity must always be on guard against this.

Note further in this verse that the decision to follow the path of love rests with Paul, not with the weak. The strong are to yield to love's appeal voluntarily, not because the weak demand it. Legalists always demand subjection to their laws.

9:1. Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? This follows to substantiate his claim to apostleship (cf. Acts 1:21, 22; 9:3–9, 17). All the questions in this verse expect a positive answer.

9:5. Lead about a sister: Paul had the prerogative to take a wife and bring her on his journeys with him as other apostles. The brethren of the Lord, and Cephas: This shows the fallacy of those who promote celibacy among the clergy by citing the example of the apostles (cf. Matt. 8:14).

9:11, 12. Spiritual things ... carnal things: Paul, as their minister and teacher, imparted to them spiritual things. Would it then be improper if he should expect remuneration to sustain the body? The former (spiritual) refers to things of infinite value, the latter (carnal) to things of only temporal value.

13 ^aDo ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the ^btemple? and they which ¹wait at the altar are partakers with the altar?

14 Even so ^ahath the Lord ¹ordained ^bthat they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel.

15 But ^aI have used none of these things: neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me: for ^bit were better for me to die, than that any man should make my ¹glorying void.

16 For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for ^anecessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel!

17 For if I do this thing willingly, ^aI have a reward: but if against my will, ^ba ¹dispensation of the gospel is ²committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? Verily that, ^awhen I preach the gospel, I may ¹make the gospel of Christ without charge, that I ^babuse not my ²power in the gospel.

9:14. Live of the gospel (i.e., make a living by preaching the gospel): The ministers of the gospel in the New Testament have no less holy a vocation than the priests of the Old Testament and have the right to receive remuneration for their work.

9:17. If against my will: The apostle is not implying that he was an unwilling servant of the Lord (cf. 15:9; Rom. 1:5; 11:13; 15:15, 16; Gal. 1:15, 16; Eph. 3:8). He is simply drawing a distinction between what was optional for him and what was obligatory for him. Paul was given a dispensation, a "commission" or "stewardship" to preach. That was enough (cf. 4:1, 2; Luke 17:10). A steward received no pay. He was merely a slave doing his assigned task faithfully.

9:19. That I might gain the more: His foremost interest was to preach the gospel and win men to Jesus Christ. Whatever it took in terms of loss of personal freedom, he was prepared to pay the price.

9:24. Paul draws on a scene familiar to his Corinthian readers in order to drive home his point. The Isthmian Games were an athletic event known to all of his readers. They were held on alternate summers in the vicinity of Corinth. It was an event not to be missed by anyone of importance in all parts of Greece. As a national institution, it was as familiar to his readers as modern football to most Americans.

9:27. I keep under my body (i.e., discipline my body): The expression I keep under loses much of

LIBERTY AND RESPONSIBILITY

9:19. One of the results of redemption is the liberty of the believer. Christians are free from depending on the law and free from the bondage of their old nature. Christian liberty releases us to accomplish all our potential. But that liberty should not be abused to justify hedonistic behavior. Although believers live in a state of freedom, concern for reaching others with the gospel and helping weaker believers grow will result in voluntary self-restraint in areas that might offend others, or hinder our efforts in reaching and helping people. Illustration: Paul referred to the example of eating meat offered to idols. He had the freedom to eat such meat, but he suggested that believers abstain because the practice acted as a stumbling block for weaker believers (Rom. 14). Application: Believers should act responsibly in exercising their liberty if they wish to be most effective in service to Christ. (First Reference, Lev. 25:10; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 9:19; cf. Matt. 7:7.)

the original sense. It has the idea of to "give one a black eye," "buffet," or "bruise." Paul's readers knew that in the Isthmian Games, the boxers wore gloves consisting of ox-hide bands covered with knots and nails, and loaded with lead and iron. To prepare for such an event, a man would have to brace himself to endure all forms of physical abuse. Lest that by any means ... I myself should be a castaway (lit., "So that ... I myself will not be disqualified"): Paul was not afraid of losing his salvation: his subject is still Christian liberty. The point is that the believer must discipline himself to avert both being disqualified from Christian ministry, and forfeiting the rewards for such service.

10:1. How that all: The five alls in verses 1-4 emphasize the five downward moral steps of verses 5-10. The very same people who enjoyed great privilege from God also fell into serious apostasy from God. Under the cloud: This speaks of divine guidance and protection (cf. Num. 9:15-23; 14:14; Deut. 1:33; Ps. 78:14). Passed through the sea: This has reference to divine deliverance (cf. Ex. 14:15-22; Ps. 66:6).

10:2. Baptized unto Moses: This is a figurative use of the term baptism. The people were immersed under Moses' authority. Thus the expression speaks of divine leadership (cf. Ex. 14:31; Gal. 3:24).

10:3. Same spiritual meat: Paul does not intend to imply that the manna was not literal food. It was clearly designed for ordinary nourishment (cf. Neh. 9:15; John 6:49). It was spiritual in the sense that it was supernaturally provided by the Spirit of God. Likewise, the water that was received from the rock was real water. It was spiritual in the sense that it was given through God's direct intervention.

10:4. That Rock was Christ: The Rock was not a theophany (a visible revelation of God). Rather, it was a "type" of Christ. It prefigured the provision that Christ would ultimately make for His people. But also it is intended to mean that the source of supply was Christ and not the rock. This passage is an impressive affirmation of the preexistence of Jesus Christ (cf. also v. 9; John 8:58; 12:41; Heb. 11:26; and Jude 5).

10:8. In one day three and twenty thousand is not a mistake. In Numbers 25:9 the total of people who died is given as 24,000. The apparent discrepancy may be accounted for in at least two ways. The actual figure may be midway between 23,000 and 24,000; in this case the figure is rounded off. But note that Paul refers to the number slain in one day. Numbers refers to the total number that died. In either case, the discrepancy is resolved by recognizing that the number is given in approximate terms.

10:11, 12. Ensamples (lit., "Now these things happened to them typically"): The expression emphasizes God's providential control over all affairs of men (cf. Gen. 50:20; Prov. 21:1). Written for our admonition: One of the reasons God caused Moses to record the experiences of the children of Israel was that He had Paul and the Corinthian believers in mind. He knew that the Corinthians were going to face similar crisis situations. When that time came, the example of the children of Israel would provide the deterrent to guide them from sin and to lead them to spiritual victory. Ends of the world: That is, "for us who are living in the end times." Paul considered the second coming of Christ to be imminent.

10:13. Make a way to escape (lit., "an egress" or "way out"): In early Greek usage, this term had the not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to ²bear it.

14 Wherefore, my dearly beloved, ^aflee from idolatry.

15 I speak as to ^awise men; judge ye what I say.

16 ^aThe cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the ¹communion of the blood of Christ? ^bThe bread which we break, is it not the ¹communion of the body of Christ?

18 Behold ^aIsrael ^bafter the flesh: ^care not they which eat of the sacrifices ¹partakers of the altar?

19 What say I then? ^athat the idol is any thing, or that which is offered in sacrifice to idols is any thing?

20 But I say, that the things which the Gentiles ^asacrifice, ^bthey sacrifice to ¹devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with devils.

sense of a landing place for a ship. The idea is thus not that He will enable us to escape temptation, but that He will enable us to land intact on the other side.

10:14. Wherefore (Gr. dioper, a strengthened form of dio, lit., "for this very reason"): This term appears only here and in 8:13.

10:18. Partakers of the altar: When a sacrifice was brought to the altar, it was not entirely consumed. Rather, a portion was divided between the priest and the offerer (cf. Lev. 7:15; 8:31; Deut. 12:18). Thus it became an act of mutual sharing and worshiping God. This passage must not be construed to indicate that the Lord's Supper is a sacrifice. The point of correspondence was not sacrifice, but communion.

10:20. Devils (lit., "demons"): Of grave concern to the apostle is that behind the idols are fallen angels, evil spirits. This is in keeping with Deuteronomy 32:17 and Psalm 96:5. Since Paul has already established that these religious feasts involved fellowship with the altar, if the Corinthians attend a heathen feast, they will be having fellowship with devils. And this was the last thing Paul hoped for his young converts at Corinth.

10:23, 24. All things: Paul is speaking in a restricted sense (cf. 6:12). He means all matters of indifference.

10:25. The shambles (Gr. makellon, a term used only here in the New Testament, refers to the market): In the sacrifices, usually only a part of the animal was consumed. The rest was given to the priest or sold again in the market. Anyone might therefore unknowingly purchase meat offered to idols.

14 Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a ¹shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a covering.

Unworthy Communion

17 Now in this that I declare unto you I praise you not, that ye come together not for the better, but for the worse.

18 For first of all, when ye come together in the church, ^aI hear that there be divisions among you; and I partly believe it.

19 For ^athere must be also ¹heresies among you, ^bthat they which are approved may be ²made manifest among you.

11:3. Head of Christ is God: The concept of headship does not denote qualitative or essential difference. It denotes responsibility and accountability, not superiority. The prototype is seen in the persons of the Trinity. The Father and Christ are coequal, yet they fulfill different functions (cf. 15:28; John 6:38-40; 10:29, 30; Phil. 2:6). Paul is not a male chauvinist. On the contrary, he argues here for the equality of the sexes in personal worth but distinction in function and responsibility.

11:5. Head uncovered: The covering is symbolic, indicating the authority that exists above the woman, yet still under Christ.

11:6. It be a shame for a woman to be shorn: In Corinth it was not uncommon for prostitutes and loose women to shave their heads and wear blonde wigs, signifying their availability to the men in the streets. Just as no respectable Christian woman would go out in public dressed as a prostitute, it is equally important that she not participate in public worship without a head covering.

11:7. The image and glory of God: This does not infer that the man is in the image of God, and the woman is not. Genesis 1:26, 27 states that God created man in His own image, "male and female created he them." But Paul uses the term image here in a restricted sense. The only sense in which the man is uniquely in the image of God is that to him was given dominion over the earth. This was done before the creation of the woman. That is, whatever dominion and authority she has is delegated.

11:10. Angels: The reference is to the holy angels, who elsewhere are spoken of as "ministering spirits" (cf. Heb. 1:14). The keynote of Paul's thought is submission to the divine order of things. Women should demonstrate the same sense of submission to God in recognizing their true position, and fulfilling its claims, as do the angels who know nothing of insubordination among their ranks.

11:12. Even so is the man also by the woman: Just as the principle of submission is supported by the order of creation, so the principle of mutual dependency is supported by the order of procreation.

11:14, 15. If a man have long hair: It cannot be said that he has in mind a specific kind of haircut. He is simply saying that it is shameful for a man to wear his hair in an effeminate way.

11:16. We have no such custom: In other words, there is no other precedent. To violate this principle is to go against a standard that is maintained in every church known to Paul.

11:19. For there must be also heresies (lit., "factions," the term is used in a nonecclesiastical sense. Note Acts 5:17 and 15:5, translated "the sect"): Paul was certain that some division would occur in the assembly, if only to bring to light those who defend the truth.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's supper.

21 For in eating every one taketh ¹before other his own supper: and one is hungry, and ^aanother is drunken.

22 What? have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye ^athe church of God, and ^bshame ¹them that have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

11:21. For in eating: In the early church, the Lord's Supper was commonly preceded by a fellowship meal, later known as the agapē or love feast. Eventually, so many problems accompanied these feasts that at the Council of Carthage (A.D. 397) they were strictly forbidden.

11:24. This is my body is certainly not literal, but figurative. His actual body was there in the midst, participating with the disciples in eating the element of the bread which signifies His incarnation.

11:25. New testament: Christ is the Mediator of the New Covenant, who "by his own blood ... entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us" (Heb. 9:12-15). Notice the emphasis on the blood. This signifies our Lord's death, which in turn signifies the grounds on which an eternal salvation is applied to the heart of the believing sinner.

11:29. Damnation is best rendered "judgment." The kinds of judgment the apostle has in mind are enumerated in the following verse.

11:30. Many sleep: The verb koimaomai, "sleep," when referring to death, usually refers to the death of believers (cf. 15:6, 18, 20, 51; John 11:11, 12; Acts 7:60; 1 Thess. 4:13, 14, 15; 2 Pet. 3:4). Our word cemetery is related to this word.

LORD'S SUPPER

11:20. The Lord's Supper is the distinctive symbol of Christian worship instituted by the Lord on the eve of His death, being a spiritual partaking of bread and the fruits of the vine. These elements are presented as a thankful expression of Christ's sacrifice, taken in fellowship with Him and with one another. It is a memorial conducted in remembrance of Christ's atoning death, anticipating His return to earth. The two symbols of this ordinance are the bread, representing the broken body of Christ, and the cup, representing His shed blood. Christians are divided as to whether the table should be "open" or "closed." The chief argument supporting open communion is that it is the Lord's Supper, not a ceremony of a particular religious denomination. Those who believe that the table should be restricted argue that the church should not allow a person to eat unworthily or bring judgment on his own head (vv. 27-30). "Close" (not "closed") communion is an attempt to have the best of both. The pastor reminds everyone of the need for self-evaluation. But after this instruction, the pastor leaves the decision to participate up to the individual. Illustration: God judged some Corinthian Christians with sickness and death for their failure to properly observe this ordinance. Application: Every Christian should use the Lord's Supper to examine his own spiritual progress and attitudes before partaking. (First Reference, Matt. 26:26; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 11:20-34; cf. John 13:10.)

11:33, 34. Set in order refers to an outward, practical arrangement (cf. 9:14; 16:1; Matt. 11:1; and Gal. 3:19).

12:1. Spiritual gifts (Gr. pneumatikon, "spiritual"): This term may be either masculine or neuter, referring to either men or gifts. The context is determinative. Here it is better understood as neuter, denoting "spiritual gifts" (cf. v. 4 and 14:1, where the neuter term is used). I would not have you ignorant: This is a common Pauline expression to denote a subject of importance (cf. 10:1; 14:38; Rom. 1:13; 10:3; 11:25; 2 Cor. 1:8; 2:11; 1 Thess. 4:13).

12:2. Dumb idols: The pagan worship at Corinth involved a pagan exercise of "tongues." The practice of "ecstatic utterances" was common in the cults and in the worship of various Greek gods and goddesses.

12:8-10. Gifts of healing: This has in mind gifts whereby the sick were healed (cf. Acts 4:30). The emphasis is on the results, not on the process. The gift does not produce divine "healers" but divine healing (cf. James 5:14, 15). Prophecy is the communication of special revelation from God. It could have been in the sense of foretelling (Acts 11:28) or simply forth telling. Most of the New Testament epistles fall into this latter category. This was a temporary gift, no longer needed after the canon of the New Testament was completed. Its major counterpart today is preaching. Tongues: The gift of speaking in tongues in the Book of Acts appears to have been limited to speaking in "known [foreign] languages" (cf. Acts 2:4; 10:46; and 19:6). Paul uses the expression in precisely the same way.

12:13. Are we all baptized into one body: This is not the baptism of water but the baptism of the Spirit. This has the same meaning as the expression and have been all made to drink into one Spirit: This

BAPTISM OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

12:13. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is an act whereby the individual believer becomes united with Christ. Even though the effects of the Holy Spirit are realized at a believer's conversion, which is thus experiential, the baptism of the Holy Spirit is not experiential. Illustration: The fact that all the Christians at Corinth were baptized in the Spirit shows that the baptism of the Holy Spirit does not itself eradicate the sin nature. Some Christians are confused as to when the baptism occurs. There are four biblical answers to this question: The theological answer states the baptism of the Spirit is the effect of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ and that the believer is united with Christ by this baptism (Gal. 2:20). Initially, the baptism of the Holy Spirit occurred on the Day of Pentecost when the new church was baptized in the Spirit (Acts 2:2). Personally, a Christian is baptized in the Spirit at the moment of conversion (v. 13). As the believer submits to water baptism, he testifies of the baptism of the Holy Spirit (Rom. 6:4-6). Application: Because all Christians have been baptized by the Holy Spirit into the body of Christ, they should also submit to the biblical ordinance of water baptism and become a part of a local church. (First Reference, Matt. 3:11; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 12:13; cf. Eph. 1:13.)

fulfills Matthew 3:11; John 1:33; and Acts 1:5. That this baptism is common to all believers at Corinth is implied by the fact that Paul does not exhort them to be baptized by the Spirit. Rather, he asserts that they have all been baptized. The believer does not tarry or pray for this baptism. It occurs at the moment of regeneration. This passage is clear that all believers have received the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

12:27. In one succinct statement, the apostle expresses both the unity and the diversity of the body of Christ. The absence of the definite article in Greek (ho, “the”) before the expression body of Christ emphasizes character: since they are Christ’s body, their actions and attitudes toward one another should reflect His character.

12:31. But covet earnestly the best gifts: This expression explains why the apostle has arranged the list in verse 28 in order of priority. He wants his readers to be clear in their own minds as to which gifts are the best. Obviously, his intent is to steer them away from the more spectacular gifts such as tongues. Covet here is not to be construed negatively but means “earnestly desire.” A more excellent way: The import of this statement is to be seen in chapter 13. Paul will show that a better way is not through contentious striving but through loving. Many feel that Paul is here showing how the gifts are to be administered, that is, in love. However, the use of way (Gr. hodos) in the sense of “a path” instead of the way (Gr. tropos) in the sense of “manner,” and the statement of 14:1, indicates that Paul was pointing out a path of life superior to a life spent seeking and displaying spiritual gifts. Paul’s interest here is not to instruct his readers in how they may best use their gifts, but how to have their priorities straight. They should strive for love, not spiritual gifts.

BODY OF CHRIST

12:27. The church in the New Testament is called the “body of Christ,” and reflects the spiritual organism of the whole church on earth. When the local church is called the body of Christ, the spiritual aspect is emphasized. Illustration: As the church is considered to be the body, so individual members are seen as parts of the body. For any church to function properly, every member must do his or her part in a harmonious spirit of cooperation with the other members. Had the church at Corinth learned this lesson, many of their problems would have been solved. Application: When Christians disrupt the harmony of a church, they bring reproach on the body of Christ. (First Reference, Matt.

16:18; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 12:27; cf. Matt. 16:18.)

13:1. Tongues of men and of angels: Such was the association of tongues speaking in pagan worship at Corinth. When a priest or devotee spoke in tongues, it was considered that he spoke in the language of the gods.

13:8. Tongues, they shall cease: The Greek term paúō was the most appropriate term in the Greek language that the apostle could use to speak of the cessation of an activity involving speaking (cf. Luke 11:1; Acts 5:42; 6:13; 20:31; Eph. 1:16). The middle voice in Greek is to be translated: "Tongues shall cut themselves off." The imagery is that of immediate cessation.

13:9, 10. That which is perfect is best understood, in light of 2:6, in the sense of "mature" (cf. also Col. 3:14; Heb. 6:1). It is neuter in the Greek and could refer to the completeness or fullness of Scripture, not to the coming of Christ. Then that which is in part shall be done away: The body, growing up as a perfect man (cf. Eph. 4:13), will eventually outgrow the need for certain things associated with immaturity, as verse 11 will show.

13:11. Paul's use of spake, understood, and thought seems to correspond respectively to "tongues," "prophecy," and "knowledge." The point of this passage is to explain that partial revelation via tongues, and so forth, will cease when the full revelation of God in Scripture is completed. This occurred by the end of the apostolic age when the New Testament was completed.

13:12. Now we see through a glass, darkly (lit., "Now we see through a mirror in a riddle," that is, indistinctly or dimly): Paul seems to be alluding to the incident in Numbers 12:8. On another occasion Paul says the writings were an enigma compared to the revelations contained in the gospel (cf. 2 Cor. 3:12, 13).

14:1. Follow after charity (lit., "pursue love"): This ties the preceding thought to what follows (cf. 12:31; 13:13). But rather that ye may prophesy: Now, as for desiring spiritual gifts, it is only proper to seek gifts that will best fulfill the mandate of love. Since prophecy issues in the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people, it is only appropriate that one seek that gift above all others. Thus, Paul advocates the greater value of speaking God's message in a known language.

14:2. Unknown tongue (lit., "tongue"): Omit unknown in this chapter whenever it occurs with tongues; it was supplied by the translators. Paul's discussion of tongues follows the same idea as the tongues in Acts which were foreign languages miraculously heard and translated by the recipients.

tongues, but ¹rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that prophesieth than he that speaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the church may receive ²edifying.

7 And even things without life giving sound, whether ¹pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle?

9 So likewise ye, except ye utter by the tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air.

10 There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without ¹signification.

11 Therefore if I know not the meaning of the voice, I shall be unto him that speaketh a ¹barbarian, and he that speaketh shall be a barbarian unto me.

12 Even so ye, forasmuch as ye are zealous of spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel to the edifying of the church.

16 Else when thou shalt bless with the spirit, how shall he that occupieth the ¹room of the ²unlearned say Amen ^aat thy giving of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest?

17 For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 I thank my God, I speak with tongues more than ye all:

19 Yet in the church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue.

21 ^aIn the law it is ^bwritten, With men of other tongues and other lips will I speak unto this people; and yet for all that will they not hear me, saith the Lord.

22 Wherefore tongues are for a ^asign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe.

23 If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those that are ¹unlearned, or unbelievers, ^awill they not say that ye are ²mad?

24 But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced ¹of all, he is judged ¹of all:

25 And thus are the secrets of his heart made manifest; and so falling down on his face he will worship God, and report ^athat God is in you of a truth.

14:11. Paul's use of barbarian here simply has the general sense of "foreigner" (cf. Acts 28:4; Rom. 1:14; Col. 3:11).

14:12. Excel to the edifying of the church: If you must be zealous about spiritual gifts, seek one that will benefit the entire church. The context of the chapter emphasizes that the most beneficial gifts are those communicated in a known language.

14:21. In the law it is written: Law means the entire Old Testament Scriptures. Here Paul refers specifically to Isaiah 28:11, 12 (cf. John 10:34; Rom. 3:20).

14:22. Tongues are for a sign: This is best understood as a general reference of divine power evidenced in the exercise of the gift. Its purpose was to demonstrate divine power to the unbeliever. However, if an unbeliever should visit a congregation where gifts are being exercised without regard for order or understanding, the results will be just the opposite. The very purpose of the gift is destroyed by the unbridled exercise of it.

The Author of Peace

26 How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, ^ahath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. ^bLet all things be done unto edifying.

27 If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course; and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself, and to God.

29 Let the prophets speak two or three, and ^alet the other judge.

30 If any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, ^alet the first ¹hold his peace.

35 And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church.

36 What? came the word of God ¹out from you? or came it unto you only?

37 ^aIf any man think himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord.

38 But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 Wherefore, brethren, ^acovet ¹to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues.

40 ^aLet all things be done decently and in order.

15 Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel ^awhich I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and ^bwherein ye stand;

2 ^aBy which also ye are saved, if ye ¹keep in memory ²what I preached unto you, unless ^bye have believed in vain.

14:32–35. Let your women keep silence in the churches: Obviously, this must be interpreted in light of 11:5 where it is clear that Paul understood that women were permitted to prophesy and to pray in public. The expression possibly has reference to what is alluded to in verse 35. They were not allowed to interrupt the service by speaking in tongues.

15:1. The only doctrinal error to which the apostle addresses himself in this epistle is contained in this chapter. What were the historical factors behind this problem? Probably the best view understands this question in light of Acts 17:32. The tenets of Greek Platonic philosophy had generally pervaded the Hellenistic world. Generally, the material universe was considered unsuited to a spiritual existence. The Gnostics, for example, even went as far as to suggest that the body was intrinsically evil. This kind of skepticism formed the background for both chapter 15 and Colossians 2:8–23. See also 2 Timothy 2:17, 18.

15:2. Vain, occurring six times in this chapter, translates three Greek words with different nuances.

(1) Eikēi: Not retaining the gospel will show the Corinthians to have “believed in vain” (v. 2), that is, “without effect.” A temporary faith makes no appreciable difference in one’s life because the gospel fails to take effect.

(2) Kenos: Divine grace granted Paul “was not in vain” (v. 10), that is, “without success,” for he “labored more abundantly” than the other apostles. If Christ had not been resurrected, apostolic preaching was vain (v. 14), or “without truth.” Believers’ “faith is also vain” (v. 14), that is, “without basis.” But since believers will someday be resurrected, Christian “labour is not in vain” (v. 58), that is, “for nothing.”

(3) Mataios: If Christ was not really raised from the dead, believers’ “faith is vain” (v. 17), or “useless.” Thus, “Ye are yet in your sins.”

GOSPEL

15:1. The most important message of Scripture is summarized in the word gospel, meaning “Good News.” The gospel is both a proposition and a person. As a proposition, it embraces the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ (vv. 3, 4). But the gospel is also a person—the person of the Lord Jesus Christ (Mark 1:1). To alter this gospel in any way is to subject ourselves to a curse from God (Gal. 1:8, 9). To be saved, we must believe the gospel. This requires that we both receive the person of Christ as Savior (Rev. 3:20) and trust in His death, burial, and resurrection to save us from sin (Rom. 10:9, 10). Application: Every Christian is responsible for sharing the Good News with others. (First Reference, Matt. 4:23; Primary Reference, 1 Cor. 15:1–8; cf. Rom. 10:13.)

3 For ^aI delivered unto you first of all that ^bwhich I also received, how that Christ died for our sins ^caccording to the scriptures;

4 And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day ^aaccording to the scriptures:

5 ^aAnd that he was seen of ¹Cephas, then ^bof the twelve:

6 After that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some ¹are fallen asleep.

7 After that, he was seen of James; then ^aof all the apostles.

8 ^aAnd last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.

9 For I am ^athe least of the apostles, that am not ¹meet to be called an apostle, because ^bI persecuted the church of God.

10 But ^aby the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all: ^byet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.

11 Therefore whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so ye believed.

15:3, 4. Four vital truths are asserted here, introduced by that Christ died for our sins. This is a substitutionary and propitiatory sacrifice (cf. Rom. 3:23-26). He was buried: This evidences the reality and totality of his death. He rose again: The perfect tense stresses abiding results—He was raised in the past and remains alive now. According to the scriptures: The facts of the gospel are not only important historically, but prophetically as well. They occurred as had been predicted (cf. Ps. 16:10; John 20:9; Acts 26:23).

15:5-7. Five hundred brethren: It is not certain when this last event occurred. The likely possibility is shown in Matthew 28:16-20. Since Jesus had previously announced this meeting (cf. Matt. 26:32; 28:10, 16) it is unlikely that anyone would have intentionally missed it. This James is probably the Lord's brother (Matt. 13:55). He was mentioned earlier as an unbeliever (cf. John 7:5) and later with the assembly of believers (cf. Acts 1:14). Subsequently, he was a leader in the Jerusalem church (cf. Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18). One wonders if this was not the turning point of his life.

15:12. No resurrection: Paul has established first of all that resurrection is an essential fact of the gospel. He now mentions some logical consequences of denying the resurrection of believers.

15:13-19. The first consequence of denying the resurrection of believers is that Christ would still be in the grave. Not only that, but our preaching is vain, that is, "without basis." And not only so, but we are found false witnesses of God (false witnesses against God). Further, ye are yet in your sins: Since the resurrection of Christ is essential to our justification (Rom. 4:25), then the denial of it undermines the forgiveness of sins. Not only that, but they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If our hope in Christ does not take us beyond this present life, then we are of all men most miserable.

15:20. Firstfruits (cf. Lev. 23:9-14): The "first fruits" in Israel always anticipated a harvest.

15:23-26. Order (lit., "group"): Afterward they that are Christ's at his coming: When Christ comes for the church at the Rapture, believers will also experience resurrection (cf. 1 Thess. 3:13; 4:14-18).

25 For he must reign, ^atill he hath put all enemies under his feet.

27 For he ^ahath put all things under his feet. But when he saith all things are put under him, it is ¹manifest that he is excepted, which did put all things under him.

28 ^aAnd when all things shall be subdued unto him, then ^bshall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 And ^awhy stand we in jeopardy every hour?

The Resurrection Body Explained

35 But some man will say, ^aHow are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

36 Thou fool, ^athat which thou sowest is not ¹quickened, except it die:

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but ¹bare grain, ²it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

38 But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also ¹celestial bodies, and bodies ²terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 ^aSo also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in ¹corruption; it is raised ²in incorruption:

43 ^aIt is sown in dishonour; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power:

44 It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

45 And so it is written, ^aThe first man Adam was made a living soul;

15:27, 28. Then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him: This is a difficult expression and has often been misunderstood to suggest that the apostle subordinated the Son to the Father. However, two facts must be accounted for here. First, when Paul says that the Son is subject to the Father, he is not speaking of the Son in terms of His essence, but in terms of His function, or ministry, as the incarnate Son. Second, the thrust of Paul's statement is best understood dispensationally. At this present time the administration of the messianic kingdom is given to the Son (cf. Matt. 28:18). However, at the conclusion of the messianic kingdom, this function will be returned to the Father that God may be all in all.

15:29. Baptized for the dead: The practice of vicarious baptism appeared as early as the second century. Some suppose that this custom had already been introduced at Corinth. It is extremely doubtful that the apostle would have made reference to this heretical practice without in the same breath condemning it. The expression probably refers rather to young converts who took the place of the older brethren in the church who had died, so that it would be properly rendered "baptized in the place of." The Greek preposition hyper admits this sense (cf. 2 Cor. 5:15; Philem. 13).

15:31. I die daily: This does not teach that Paul mortified the flesh every day. The context tells us that he, in effect, faced wild beasts every day. Paul's life was in such constant jeopardy that he never knew when he might be called on to give his life for the gospel.

15:43, 45. The last Adam: The expression last Adam was coined by the apostle Paul as a reference to Christ (cf. also Rom. 5:14). The contrast here is not so much between the soul and the spirit as it is between "living" and "life-giving." The principle of life is common with all men. The second Adam offers infinitely more than that (John 5:26).

^bthe last Adam was made ^ca ¹quickening spirit.

46 Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 ^aThe first man is of the earth, ^bearthy: ¹the second man is the Lord ^cfrom heaven.

48 As is the ¹earthy, such are they also that are earthy: ^aand as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And ^aas we have borne the image of the ¹earthy, ^bwe shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that ^aflesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and ^athis mortal must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, ^aDeath is swallowed up in victory.

55 ^aO death, where is thy sting? ^aO grave, where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin; and ^athe strength of sin is the law.

15:52. At the last trumpet: This is not the last trumpet of Revelation 11:15, but the last trumpet of 1 Thessalonians 4:16. It is so designated because it signals the end of the present age. Two groups are distinguished. The dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed: The term dead refers to those who have died in Christ. The term we refers to those who are still living at the time of the Rapture.

16:1. Now concerning (Gr. peri de) is the common formula used in this epistle to introduce matters about which the Corinthians had questioned the apostle. (See the note on 7:1.) In this case it had to do with the collection for the saints. The believers at Corinth were aware that the apostle was gathering funds for the Jerusalem church, and apparently they had written to inquire how they could participate in this collection.

16:5. Now I will come unto you, when I shall pass through Macedonia: Paul here changes his original itinerary and subsequently came under the charge of being fickle (cf. 2 Cor. 1:15-17).

16:9. Many adversaries: The apostle seems to have in mind his pending trip through Macedonia and is accounting for why he is staying a little longer in Ephesus (cf. 15:32; Acts 19:1-4).

16:10. Timotheus come (cf. Acts 19:22): At this time Timothy was traveling through Macedonia, and the apostle anticipated that he would be reaching Corinth eventually (cf. 4:17). Without fear: The apostle hoped that the Corinthians would not intimidate Timothy, since he was apparently a somewhat timid individual (cf. 1 Tim. 4:12; 5:21–23; 2 Tim. 1:6–8; 2:1, 3, 15; 4:1, 2).

16:19. Aquila and Priscilla: Paul first met this couple in Corinth. After they were exiled from Rome (Acts 18:2) they moved to Ephesus (cf. also Rom. 16:3–5).

16:20–24. Greet ye one another with an holy kiss

(cf. Rom. 16:16; 2 Cor. 13:12; 1 Thess. 5:26; 1 Pet. 5:14): In the custom of the day, this was an expression of mutual affection and friendship. Anathema means “devoted to destruction” (cf. 12:3; Rom. 9:3; Gal. 1:8, 9). Maranatha: Properly, two words in the Aramaic. It expresses one of two possible ideas. It may be taken in the sense of “our Lord is come,” signifying the Incarnation. Or it may mean “our Lord cometh,” signifying the Second Coming. The latter seems to be in view here. It is much like John’s concluding remarks in Revelation: “Even so, come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:20).

The Second Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the CORINTHIANS

Paul's so-called second letter to the Corinthians is actually the fourth letter that he wrote to Corinth (see the Introduction to 1 Corinthians). A "previous epistle" was written prior to 1 Corinthians and 2 Corinthians. Several features distinguish the second canonical letter. The first epistle is both practical and instructional, but this one is intensely personal and autobiographical.

Authorship. Second Corinthians as a Pauline letter is attested in Polycarp, the Letter to Diognetus, Athnagoras, Theophilus of Antioch, Tertullian, Clement of Alexandria, Irenaeus, the Muratorian Canon, and Marcion's Apostolocon. It is also found in the old Syriac and the old Latin versions, along with the first epistle. By the end of the second century the attestation is very full.

The internal evidence is also very strong. The writer calls himself Paul (1:1; 10:1). Scholarship is virtually unanimous in its agreement that the Pauline authorship of this epistle is unmistakable, not only in content but in style and vocabulary.

Background. Second Corinthians is written to the assembly that was founded on Paul's first visit to that city. Since his departure and subsequent ministry in Ephesus, the apostle has learned a great deal about the serious problems fermenting in this assembly. Problems with worldliness, internal wranglings, and doctrinal defections continue to fester in spite of Paul's efforts in the first epistle.

Opposition to Paul's ministry continues to mount, especially coming from the party that associated itself with "Christ" (cf. 10:7; 11:13). The leader of this group seems to have been especially hostile to the apostle (10:7–11.) The charges leveled against the apostle by this group are indicated in a number of passages. For example, he was accused of fickleness (1:17), authoritarianism (1:24), ministering without proper credentials (3:1), cowardice (10:1, 10), failure to maintain proper clerical dignity (11:7), presumption (10:13–17), and fleshliness (10:2). Likewise, the apostle has a few things to say about his accusers. For example, they corrupted the Word (2:17); they were deceptive (3:1); they were Jews masquerading as ministers of Christ (11:23–27); they were domineering (11:20); they were bold (11:21); they lacked the spiritual courage to step out and start their own ministry (11:23–27). Thus it was no small wonder that the apostle was seriously concerned about the spiritual well-being of the church at Corinth.

Purpose and Argument. In light of their problems, Paul wrote 2 Corinthians in order (1) to explain his sufferings in Asia (1:3–11); (2) to justify himself in his change of plans about returning to Corinth (1:12–2:4); (3) to instruct them in the treatment of the offender (2:5–11); (4) to express his joy at the good news of their progress (2:14–17); (5) to bring about their full reconciliation with himself (6:11–7:16); (6) to urge the Corinthians to participate in the collection for the church at Jerusalem (chs. 8, 9); and (7) to establish his authority as an apostle (10:1–13:10).

Greeting

1 Paul, ^aan apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and ^bTimothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, ^cwith all the saints which are in all Achaia:

2 ^aGrace be to you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

The Comfort of God

3 ^aBlessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort;

4 Who ^acomforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any ¹trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.

5 For as ^athe sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our ¹consolation also aboundeth by Christ.

6 And ¹whether we be afflicted, ^a*it is* for your consolation and salvation, which is ²effectual in the enduring of the same sufferings which

Deliverance from Suffering and Death

8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of ^aour ¹trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were ²pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life:

9 But we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should ^anot trust in ourselves, but in God which raiseth the dead:

10 ^aWho delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us;

11 Ye also ^ahelping together by prayer for us, that ^bfor the gift ¹bestowed upon us by the means of

1:1. Timothy: This companion of Paul is not mentioned in the introduction to 1 Corinthians, presumably because Timothy had already been sent to Corinth (1 Cor. 4:17; 16:10). His appearance here indicates that he has since rejoined the apostle, given his report concerning the affairs at Corinth, and traveled with him from Ephesus to Macedonia. Achaia: This would embrace at least the Christians who were in Athens (cf. Acts 17:34) and in Cenchræa, the eastern port of Corinth (cf. Rom. 16:1).

1:2. Grace be to you and peace: For Paul, grace always precedes peace. Peace is subsequent and comes because God's grace has been received by faith. Nothing brings this peace as much as the undiluted gospel of God's grace (cf. Eph. 2:14; Phil. 4:7; Col. 1:20; 3:15). From: The single preposition apo links the Father and the Son in an indissoluble union, thus pointing to the deity of Christ.

1:3, 4. Blessed (Gr. eulogētos, "well spoken of") is used in the New Testament of God, (e.g., Eph. 1:3). It is a term of adoration and praise. The Father of mer- cies: The mercies in view here include everything from deliverance from the world, sin, and Satan, to participation in sonship, light, and life. But the force is even more than this. The stress is that the Father is characterized by mercy (cf. Ps. 86:5; Dan. 9:9; Mic. 7:18).

1:5. So our consolation also aboundeth by Christ: As the problems increase, so does the consolation. Both, in this case, are measured by this experience of Christ (cf. Luke 24:26, 46; Phil. 3:10; Col. 1:24; 1 Pet. 1:11). Paul's use of the terms abound and abundant is significant throughout this epistle (cf. 4:15; 8:2, 7; 9:8, 12).

1:6, 7. Many ancient manuscripts differ in the order of the clauses in these verses. But the sense in every case is basically the same: "If we are afflicted it is for your good, or if we are comforted it is for your good." Everything else in these verses is subordinated to these two main ideas. Paul does not glory in suffering in itself. But he knows that suffering for Christ identifies us with Him and with His church (cf. Rom. 8:17).

many persons thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

Simplicity and Godly Sincerity

12 For our ¹rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in ²simplicity and ³godly sincerity, ^bnot with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have ³had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you-ward.

13 For we write none other things unto you, than what ye read or ¹acknowledge; and I trust ye shall ¹acknowledge even to the end;

14 As also ye have ¹acknowledged us in part, ^athat we are your ²rejoicing, even as ^bye also are ours in the day of the Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence ^aI was minded to come unto you before, that ye might have ^ba second benefit;

16 And to pass by you into Macedonia, and ^ato come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be ¹brought on my way toward Judaea.

17 When I therefore was ¹thus minded, did I use lightness? or the things that I ²purpose, do I purpose ^aaccording to the flesh, that with me there should be yea yea, and nay nay?

18 But as God is ^atrue, ¹our word toward you was not yea and nay.

19 For ^athe Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, even by me and ^bSilvanus and ^cTimotheus, was not yea and nay, ^dbut in him was yea.

20 ^aFor all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us.

2 But I determined this with myself, ^athat I would not come again to you in ¹heaviness.

2 For if I make you ^asorry, ¹who is he then that maketh me glad, but the same which is made sorry by me?

3 And I wrote this same unto you, lest, when I came, ^aI should have sorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice; ^bhaving confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For out of much affliction and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears; ^anot that ye should be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

2:5 ^a[1 Cor. 5:1] ^bGal. 4:12 ¹be too severe with

1:15, 16. I was minded to come unto you: In Paul's initial itinerary he intended to go immediately from Ephesus to Corinth. Second benefit must not be misconstrued as Paul's second visit to them, since he had already visited them twice (cf. 12:14); the meaning is that in his trip he would be seeing them twice. Of you to be brought on my way toward Judaea can mean (1) "to be escorted by some of you to Judaea," or (2) "to be helped [with food, money, arrangements for lodging, etc.] by you on my journey to Judaea," or (3) both.

1:20-22. Amen is equivalent to yea. Whether one is a Gentile (yea; Gr. nai) or a Hebrew (amen), the promises of God are sure. But the force of Paul's analogy is that his word is as good as the gospel, because he which stablisheth us with you in Christ ... is God. Sealed us: The sealing of the Holy Spirit has a threefold significance in the New Testament: (1) to indicate ownership; (2) to indicate genuineness; (3) to preserve and keep safe (cf. Eph. 4:30; 2 Tim. 2:19; Rev. 7:2, 3). This last idea is amplified with the earnest of the Spirit. The Holy Spirit Himself is the down payment, or pledge, of redemption. The indwelling Spirit is the surety and the "security" of all that is to follow in the final salvation of the believer (cf. Rom. 8:9-11, 23; 2 Cor. 5:5; Eph. 1:14).

2:1. Come again to you: While there is no mention of it in the Book of Acts, it is clear from 12:14, 21, and 13:1 of this epistle that Paul had already visited the Corinthian assembly after writing 1 Corinthians, for the purpose of correcting abuses and dealing directly with those who were challenging his ministry and authority. Paul had vowed within himself that he would not allow this to happen again.

2:5. If any have caused grief: Paul is generalizing in order to state a principle. At the same time he is speaking specifically to the situation recorded in 6 Sufficient to such a man is this punishment, which was inflicted^a of many.

7 ^aSo that contrariwise ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, lest perhaps such a one should be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow.

8 Wherefore I beseech you that ye would ¹confirm your love toward him.

9 For to this end also did I write, that I might ¹know the proof of you, whether ye be ^aobedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it in the ¹person of Christ;

11 Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which always ¹causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the ²savour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 For we are unto God ¹a sweet savour of Christ, ^ain² them that are saved, and ^bin² them that perish:

16 ^aTo the one we are the ¹savour of death unto death; and to the other the ¹savour of life unto life. And ^bwho is sufficient for these things?

17 For we are not as many, which ^acorrupt¹ the word of God: but as ^bof sincerity, but as ²of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

Ministers of the New Testament

3 Do ^awe begin again to commend ourselves? or need we, as some others, ^bepistles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

1 Corinthians 5. He hath not grieved me, but in part: that I may not overcharge you all: The sentence structure is awkward here, and the sense is difficult to derive from the KJV. Here Paul is saying, to paraphrase, "If someone has caused grief in the assembly, his offense is not so much against the apostle as it is against the local assembly, to put it mildly." For this reason the obligation of discipline lies not on the shoulders of the apostle, but on the leadership of the local church, and Paul is prepared to go along with their decision (cf. v. 10).

2:6. Sufficient: Your discipline of this individual is enough. Paul sensed that they had gone far enough in bringing this person to repentance.

2:10. To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: Paul awaits the church's decision. He was prepared to sanction their ruling on the matter. Notice here that there is no hierarchical structure dictating to the local assembly. The ruling authority was the local church.

2:11. His devices: Paul knows that Satan can and will use this incident to distract and diminish the work of God in the Corinthian assembly, unless it is properly handled. The main target of Satan's attack is the gospel (cf. 4:4). If he can bring disunity to the church, which is the agent of propagating the gospel, then he will also bring dishonor on the gospel. The church that God can best use is the church that exudes God's forgiveness and consolation. On Satan's devices, see also 10:3, 4; 11:3, 12-14.

2:14-17. Triumph (cf. Col. 2:9-15): The imagery conveyed in the use of this term is of the Roman general who marched in victory with his entourage, consisting of two groups: them that are saved and, ... them that perish. The former group referred to those allowed to live as slaves of the empire. The latter group comprised the condemned, who were being led to their death. Each group carried burning incense. The one was, verse 16, a savour of death unto death, the other was a fragrance of life unto life. Calvary was the mighty display of the infinite power of a sovereign God. The human race was divided into two categories: those of life unto life and those of death unto death.

3:1. Epistles of commendation to you: Such letters of introduction constituted a common practice in the early church (cf. Acts 9:1, 2; 18:27). Due to the prevailing social, political, and religious climate, such letters were both advisable and necessary. Paul here does not disparage their use. He can only be amazed that the Corinthian believers require it of him.

2:13 Titus was one of Paul's most trusted coworkers. Yet little is known about Titus due to the absolute silence of Acts concerning him. He was a Greek (Gal. 2:3) who joined Paul not later than the conclusion of Paul's first journey. No mention is made concerning where they met or where he was from. Paul used Titus in laboring with the Greek peoples: Corinth, Crete, and Dalmatia. During Paul's absence from Corinth, he sent Titus as his representative to work with this troublesome church. Paul spoke only words of praise concerning Titus's character and pastoral work (8:16, 17). (First Reference, 2 Cor. 2:13; Primary Reference, 2 Cor. 7, 8.)

2 ^aYe are our epistle written in our hearts, known and read of all men:

3 Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ^aministered¹ by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not ^bin ²tables of stone, but ^cin fleshy ²tables of the heart.

4 And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward:

5 ^aNot that we are sufficient of ourselves; but ^bour sufficiency is of God;

6 Who also hath made us ¹able ^aministers of ^bthe new ²testament; not ^cof the letter, but of the ³spirit: for ^athe letter killeth, ^ebut the spirit giveth life.

The Glory of the Lord

7 But if ^athe ¹ministration of death, ^bwritten and engraven in stones, was glorious, ^cso that the children of Israel could not ²stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was ³to be done away:

8 How shall not ^athe ¹ministration of the ²spirit be ³rather glorious?

9 For if the ¹ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ¹ministration ^aof righteousness exceed in glory.

3:13; 2 Thess. 3:13 ¹ do not lose heart

3:6. The new testament (lit., “New Covenant”) is both new in time (not being inaugurated until Christ—Matt. 26:28; Luke 22:7–23; 1 Cor. 11:25; Heb. 8:8) and new in quality (providing better spiritual blessings than did the old Mosaic covenant). Letter, but of the spirit: This expression corresponds to the thought of verse 3 contrasting “ink” with the “Spirit.” The contrast is between the externalism inherent in the Old Covenant and the internalism inherent in the New Covenant. The letter killeth: Since certain Jews in the assembly at Corinth were concerned with Paul’s defection from Moses’ law, Paul here explains his position. The best the law could do was to condemn the sinner. It is not here implied that the law of Moses was evil. On the contrary, it is holy, just, and good (Rom. 7:12). This can be asserted because it brought men to the end of themselves, to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

3:13. And not as Moses: What follows is an allegorization of the account given in Exodus 34:29–35. The veil was not intended to hide the glory but to obscure it. The people saw his brightness, but not directly. Not only did this veil actually conceal the full brightness of the glory, but it also concealed the end of that which is abolished. The transience of the glory that accompanied the Old Covenant was not evident to the children of Israel. And for Paul this has typical significance.

3:15. Veil is upon their heart: Unfortunately, as far as the Jews are concerned, Christ is still a stumbling block they cannot see (cf. 1 Cor. 1:23). For the apostle this is no light matter and a concern that caused him great anxiety (cf. Rom. 9:1–4). But now the veil is not so much on the revelation of the glory as on their own hearts (cf. Luke 24:25; Acts 13:27–29).

3:18. Beholding as in a glass: The term beholding can have the sense of “reflecting.” The believer himself “reflects” the glory of the Lord just as the face of Moses reflected the glory of the Lord. For Moses the glory eventually faded away, but under the New Covenant the believer is changed into the same image. This transformation takes place by the abiding presence of the Spirit of God.

be made manifest in our mortal flesh.

12 So then death worketh in us, but life in you.

13 We having ^athe same spirit of faith, according as it is written, ^bI believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak;

14 Knowing that ^ahe which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you.

15 For ^aall things are for your sakes, that ^bthe abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many ¹redound to the glory of God.

16 For which cause we ^afaint ^anot; but though our outward man ²perish, yet the inward man is ^brenewed day by day.

17 For ^aour light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory;

18 ^aWhile we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.

An Eternal Building in the Heavens

5 For we know that if ^aour ¹earthly house of this ²tabernacle were ³dissolved, we have a building of God, an house ^bnot made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 For in this ^awe groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven:

4:4. The god of this world: On Satan's control of the world system see Matthew 4:8, 9; John 12:31; 14:30; 1 Corinthians 10:20; Ephesians 2:2; 6:12; 2 Timothy 2:26. The "lost" of verse 3 are the unbelievers of verse 4. They are so controlled by Satan that he effectively shields them from the light of the glorious gospel of Christ. The apostle thus categorizes those who find his message difficult to accept. In effect, he is saying that the person who is criticizing his ministry at Corinth is not even saved. He is lost, unbelieving, and has been blinded by Satan.

4:7. Earthen vessels: In the wilderness under the old covenant, God's presence dwelt in a tent. Today He dwells in the believer's heart. This is unspeakable truth and forms a theological basis for holy living (cf. 1 Cor. 6:19, 20). But the stress here is on earthen. An earthenware jar is brittle. It depicts humanity in its weakness. The gospel is not a product of human genus or clever intellect (humanity in its strength). Yet it resides in men of clay, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

4:13. Spirit of faith: That is, the same Spirit of 3:17, who is the Holy Spirit, often designated by the effects He produces. For example, He is called the Spirit of adoption (Rom. 8:15), the Spirit of wisdom (Eph. 1:17), the Spirit of grace (Heb. 10:29), and the Spirit of glory (1 Pet. 4:14). Here He is so called because He is the Spirit who produces faith.

5:1. Earthly house: Earthly here has the sense of "terrestrial," that which is on the earth (cf. 1 Cor. 15:40). Tabernacle is best rendered as "tent." The figure has reference to the physical body and its transient character. Building of God, an house ... eternal is a reference to the resurrection body, sometimes associated with the redemption of the body (cf. Rom. 8:23; Eph. 1:14; 4:30).

3 If so be that ^abeing clothed we shall not be found naked.

4 For we that are in *this*¹ tabernacle do groan, being burdened: not for that we would be unclothed, but ^aclothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath ¹wrought us for ²the selfsame thing is God, who also ^ahath given unto us the ³earnest of the Spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord:

7 (For ^awe walk by faith, not by sight:)

8 We are confident, I say, and ^awilling rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord.

9 Wherefore we ¹labour, that, whether present or absent, we may be ²accepted of him.

10 ^aFor we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; ^bthat every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

The Constraining Love of Christ

11 Knowing therefore ^athe terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but 5:5. The earnest of the Spirit (lit., “the guarantee” or “pledge that is the Spirit”): Paul views this in a twofold sense. First, the abiding presence of the Spirit is a continual reminder of the certainty of Jesus’ promises. Second, the Spirit Himself generates those inner longings within the believer which will be satisfied only when he sees Christ face-to-face (cf. Rom. 8:23).

5:10. The judgment seat of Christ: The judgment seat (Gr. bēma) was an elevated seat in the square at Corinth where Roman magistrates sat to administer justice, and where the athletes who distinguished themselves in the arena received their reward. The judgment in view here is not of the unbeliever but of the believer (cf. 1 Cor. 4:5; Col. 3:4). While it is true that for the Christian there is “no condemnation” (Rom. 8:1), it is not correct to assume that God will not hold him responsible for the deeds done in the body. Paul has already stated this truth in 1 Corinthians 3:10–15.

A New Creature in Christ

17 Therefore if any man ^abe in Christ, he is^b a new ¹creature: ^cold things are passed away; behold, all things are become ^anew.

in the general sense of “the fear of the Lord” as it is found throughout the Scriptures (cf. 7:1; Acts 9:31; Rom. 3:18; Eph. 5:21). It denotes a deep reverence for God, here particularly in view of the judgment seat before which all must stand.

5:17. If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: What Paul particularizes in verse 16 he generalizes in verse 17. Paul could no longer think of Christ in purely carnal terms, because of the universal truth that has been applied to him personally. That is, when a man comes into vital union with the risen and glorified Lord, he is a “new creation” (cf. John 3:3; 15:5; Rom. 8:1, 9; Gal. 6:14, 15) and perceives Christ in a new way. Old things are passed away: The aorist tense indicates a decisive break with the old life at the moment of salvation. Behold, all things are become new (lit., “new things have come to be”): Paul changes to the perfect tense to stress the abiding results of the Christian’s union with Christ (cf. Is. 43:18, 19; 65:17; Eph. 4:24; Rev. 21:4, 5).

5:10 Judgment Seat is the English translation of the Greek bēma (cf. Rom. 14:10). These were large rectangular stone structures that served as platforms for official public proclamations which were read to the local citizens assembled before them. They were also places where individuals were required to appear before Roman officials. Bēmas are mentioned as the places where Pilate tried Jesus in Jerusalem (Matt. 27:19; John 19:13), where Paul appeared before Festus (Acts 25:1–12) and where Paul appeared before Gallio in Corinth (Acts 18:12–17). The bēma at Corinth has been excavated and is clearly visible today at the side of the street by the ancient agora (marketplace).

18 And all things are of God, ^awho hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation;

19 ¹To wit, that ^aGod was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

Give No Offence in Any Thing

3 ^aGiving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed:

4 But in all things ¹approving ourselves ^aas the ministers of God, in much ²patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses,

5 ^aIn stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labours, in ¹watchings, in fastings;

6 By pureness, by knowledge, by longsuffering, by kindness, by the Holy Ghost, by love ¹unfeigned,

7 ^aBy the word of truth, by ^bthe power of God, by ^cthe armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left,

8 By honour and dishonour, by evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true;

9 As unknown, and ^a*yet* well known; ^bas dying, and, behold, we live; ^cas chastened, and not killed;

5:19. Not to impute sin means to forgive (cf. Rom. 4:5–8; Col. 2:13; 2 Tim. 4:16). The present tense here emphasizes a continuous action (cf. 1 John 1:9).

5:21. Three aspects of Paul's concept of imputation are seen in this passage. In verse 19 God imputes not iniquity (cf. Ps. 32:2). Then He imputes sin to Christ, the spotless Lamb of God (cf. John 1:29; 1 Pet. 1:19). Finally, God imputes the righteousness of Christ to the sinner's account. This truth may be viewed from the side of justification, whereby the sinner is declared righteous based on the merits of Jesus Christ (cf. Rom. 3:24, 25), or it may be viewed from the side of sanctification, wherein the righteousness of Christ is daily applied. This latter sense is probably in view here. Compare 3:18; see also 1 Corinthians 1:2.

6:1. That ye receive not the grace of God in vain (lit., "not receive the grace of God to no purpose"): There is no hint here that the salvation of the Corinthian believers is in jeopardy. The grace of which he speaks has reference to 5:21. That they have received this grace clearly indicates that the people to whom he is speaking are genuinely born again. But a judicial pardon does not guarantee practical Christian living. Paul has in mind the application of the "righteousness of God in him" (5:21) on a practical level (cf. 1 Pet. 1:22; 2:9).

6:2. I have heard thee in a time accepted: The sense of the Hebrew of this Old Testament passage is somewhat lost here. Literally, the expression reads, "In a favorable time I answer you." In the day of salvation have I succoured [helped] thee: Consistent with Hebrew parallelism, this is intended to echo the previous expression. In Isaiah the two expressions constituted a promise to the Servant of the Lord to sustain Him in the time of His ministry. However, the passage not only has messianic implications; it is also addressed to the Messiah's people, who represent Him. This is the sense here.

6:4–10. A careless reading of verses 4–10 might lead one to think that the apostle is spontaneously tabulating disjointed thoughts as they come to his mind. A closer look, however, will reveal a very careful and logical arrangement. There are 27 categories, divided into three groups of nine each. In verses 4 and 5 his thoughts are on his trials, in verses 6 and 7, on divine provision, and in verses 8–10, on his resultant victory over circumstances.

6:7. The word of truth refers to the "preaching of the truth" (cf. 4:2).

RECONCILIATION

5:19. Reconciliation is the act whereby God on the basis of Christ's death, has eliminated the cause of hostility between Himself and humanity, making possible a complete and maturing fellowship. (The hostility was caused by sin, and was eliminated by the Cross.) Illustration:

When David prepared to fight the Philistines, they feared he might betray them in battle in order to become reconciled with Saul. They answered that such an act would greatly please King Saul and be sufficient to restore a decayed relationship between Saul and David. Application: Those who have become reconciled to God have also been given the ministry of reconciliation, which is fulfilled when they engage in soul-winning (v. 19). (First Reference, Lev. 6:30; Primary Reference, 2 Cor. 5:19; cf. Rom. 3:25.)

7:3 ^a 2 Cor. 6:11, 12 ¹ die together ² live together

6:11. O ye Corinthians: Paul addresses his readers by name in only two other places (Gal. 3:1; Phil. 4:15). In each case it reflects deep emotion. Our mouth is open unto you (i.e., opened to speak frankly): On the significance in this passage, see 3:12. Our heart is enlarged (Gr. peplatuntai, from platus, “broad”): This is a common expression from the Septuagint, or Greek version of the Old Testament (cf. Gen. 9:27; Ps. 4:1; 119:32). To enlarge the heart is to increase its capacity for sympathy and understanding.

6:15. Belial (lit., “worthlessness” or “wickedness”): The expression may also be used in the sense of “wicked one” (cf. 2 Sam. 23:6; 1 Kings 21:10). Here it is used as a reference to Satan (cf. the parallel use of ho ponēros, “the wicked one” in 1 John 2:13, 14).

6:16. Temple of God: In Scripture this expression has a variety of meanings. (1) It may have reference to heaven as God’s dwelling place (cf. Ps. 11:4; Hab. 2:20). (2) It may refer to the church as God’s temple (1 Cor. 3:16; Eph. 2:20, 21). (3) It may have reference to the individual believer as a temple of God (1 Cor. 6:19). The plural pronouns (namely, them, their, they, v. 16; “you,” v. 17) in the Old Testament quotation suggest that Paul had the second idea in mind in this passage. That is, collectively they constitute the temple of God. Accordingly, the promise of God in Exodus 29:45 and Leviticus 26:11, 12 applies to their situation as well.

6:17, 18. In citing these promises from the Old Testament, Paul has a twofold purpose. The first is edification. He reflects on what he has just written. The “ministry of reconciliation” (5:18) was motivated by the fear of the Lord (5:11), energized by the “love of Christ” (5:14), exemplified by the experience of Paul (6:1–10), and qualified by the promises of God (6:16–18). The second purpose is exhortation. Here Paul anticipates what he is about to write. Paul always roots practical Christianity in sound Bible doctrine. The exhortation is to holiness before God and reconciliation with the apostle.

7:2. Receive us: The biblical definition of separation has both a negative and a positive side. The negative, expressed in 6:14–17, is that the believer abstains from spiritual fellowship with all who are opposed to God. But the positive side is that the believer is open to all who are truly the children of God. Paul places himself in this category.

SEPARATION

6:17. A Christian should live a holy life that reflects the nature of God, who saved him (1 Pet. 1:16). He should separate himself from actions, influences, or people that will contaminate him. A Christian should apply the biblical principles of separation and avoid what is (1) against a biblical standard of purity (1 Cor. 6:17–20; 2 Cor. 10:4, 5); (2) against a biblical prohibition (Ex. 20:3–17); (3) an association that will harm (v. 14–18); (4) harmful to the body (1 Cor. 6:19); (5) harmful to a weaker brother (1 Cor. 8:8–13); (6) offensive to the conscience (James 4:17); or (7) failure to follow the example of Christ (1 Pet. 2:21). Illustration: The Corinthian church was an immature congregation, with problems in many areas, but victory was available through Christ (1 Cor. 15:57). Application: Correct relationship to the Holy Spirit will make a believer “holy” and “spiritual.” (First Reference, Gen. 6:2; Primary Reference, 2 Cor. 6:17; cf. 1 Pet. 2:9.)

4 ^aGreat is my boldness of speech toward you, ^bgreat is my ¹glorying of you: ^cI am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation.

5 For, ^awhen we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but ^bwe were troubled on every side; ^cwithout¹ were fightings, within were fears.

6 Nevertheless ^aGod, that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by ^bthe coming of Titus;

7 And not by his coming only, but by the ¹consolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earnest desire, your mourning, your ²fervent mind toward me; so that I rejoiced the more.

8 For though I made you ^asorry with a letter, I do not ¹repent, ^bthough I did ¹repent: for I perceive that the same epistle hath made you sorry, though it were but for a ²season.

Godly Sorrow

9 Now I rejoice, not that ye were made sorry, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye were made sorry ¹after a godly manner, that ye might ²receive damage by us in nothing.

10 For ^agodly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be ¹repented of: ^bbut the sorrow of the world worketh death.

12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, nor for his cause that suffered wrong, ^abut that our care for you in the sight of God might appear unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted in your comfort: yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, because his spirit ^awas refreshed by you all.

14 For if I have boasted any thing to him of you, I am not ashamed; but as we spake all things to you in truth, even so our boasting, which I made before Titus, is found a truth.

Macedonians an Example of Giving

8 Moreover, brethren, we ¹do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia;

7:5, 6. The coming of Titus refers to his arrival from Corinth with the news that the church had accepted Paul's letter (the "severe letter," 2:3, 4).

7:8-10. Repentance: See Matthew 3:8; Luke 5:32; Acts 5:31; Hebrews 12:17.

8:1-9:15. These chapters concern the offering for the poor saints at Jerusalem. Pentecost and poverty have long distinguished the Christian church (Acts 2:45). But the problem facing the church at this time was especially acute. On March 23, A.D. 37, in the reign of Caligula, there occurred a great earthquake. It was followed by another in the reign of Claudius, accompanied by widespread crop failures. The Christians, the poorest of all, had their source of help in the church of Antioch. Agabus, the prophet, had announced a famine at hand (Acts 11:28), and the fellowship determined to send relief. Saul and Barnabas were chosen to take the contribution to the elders at Jerusalem (Acts 11:30). A few years later, at the council of Jerusalem (A.D. 50), a special plea was added to the decree. Both the Diaspora (Jews living outside of Palestine) and the Gentile Christians were to remember the suffering and the poverty of the Judean Christians (Acts 15:23-29). And this, Paul later says, he was very anxious to do (Gal. 2:10). From that point on a definite plan of missionary giving becomes a primary part of every church Paul establishes (1 Cor. 16:1-4), and he urges it upon all those to whom he writes (Rom. 15:26, 27). But Corinth had failed, though she had been first to pledge. Now special attention and instruction are necessary.

8:1, 2. The grace of God refers not to salvation grace, but to an unusual divine blessing. It is identified as the riches of their liberality, that is, "their rich generosity." Christians are not naturally generous; it must be divinely cultivated. Generosity is a wonderful blessing to be coveted like other gifts of God (v. 7), and it leads to the reception of other blessings: the assurance that all of one's needs will be met (9:8), an increased personal capacity to give more (9:10), personal enrichment in every way (9:11), the meeting of the saints' needs (9:11), God's glorification (9:12), and the earnest prayers of the recipients in behalf of the givers (9:14).

2 How that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and ^atheir deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 For to their ¹power, I bear ²record, yea, and beyond their power they were willing of themselves;

4 ¹Praying us with much ²intreaty that we would receive the gift, and take upon us ^athe fellowship of the ministering to the saints.

5 And this they did, not as we hoped, but first ^agave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the ^bwill of God.

6 Insomuch that ^awe ¹desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also.

7 Therefore, as ^aye abound in every thing, in faith, and ¹utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see ^bthat ye abound in this grace also.

8 ^aI speak not by commandment, but by ¹occasion of the forwardness of others, and to ²prove the sincerity of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, ^athat, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be ^brich.

10 And herein ^aI give my advice: for ^bthis is ¹expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, ²but also to be ^cforward a year ago.

Titus's Love for the Corinthian Church

16 But thanks be to God, which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you.

17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation; but being more ¹forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent with him ^athe brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches;

19 And not that only, but who was also ^achosen of the churches to travel with us with this ¹grace, which is administered by us ^bto the glory of the ²same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind:

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have often-

8:6. Titus: In Titus's previous visit, he no doubt had already begun discussing the collection (cf. 1 Cor. 16:1). At Paul's suggestion Titus assumes the responsibility of overseeing the offering at Corinth.

8:9. Though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor: On the self-emptying of Christ, see Philippians 2:7 and Hebrews 1:2, 3. The intent of Paul's argument is not unlike that of verse 8. Sacrificial love was exemplified by the Macedonian churches. But the supreme example of such love is demonstrated by our Lord.

8:10, 11. You, who have begun before (see 9:2): It is only right for Paul to expect the Corinthian church to participate. This was their expressed desire more than a year before.

8:18–21. The brother: All that is known of this individual is what is given here. Since his name is not given, it is useless to conjecture who he was. Like Titus, he seems to have been selected by the churches to assist the apostles in overseeing the collection for Jerusalem. Most likely, he was one of the men cited in Acts 20:4. These men were chosen so that no one would question how the funds were acquired or what was subsequently done with them. Especially in financial matters, the apostle is scrupulously aware of his vulnerability to criticism.

8:22. Our brother: Along with the previously unnamed individual (v. 18), one other will accompany Titus when he visits Corinth.

times proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, upon the great confidence which I have in you.

23 Whether any do enquire of ^aTitus, he is my partner and ¹fellow-helper concerning you: or our brethren be enquired of, they are ^bthe ²messengers of the churches, and the glory of Christ.

24 Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our ^aboasting on your behalf.

Ministry to the Saints

9 For as touching ^athe ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you:

2 For I know the ¹forwardness of your mind, for which I boast of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready ^ayear ago; and your zeal hath ²provoked very many.

3 ^aYet have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this behalf; that, as I said, ye may be ready:

4 Lest haply if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (¹that we say not, ye) should be ashamed in this same confident boasting.

God Loves a Cheerful Giver

5 Therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they would go ¹before unto you, and make up beforehand your ²bounty, whereof ye had ³notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of ⁴bounty, and not as of ⁵covetousness.

8 ^aAnd God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work:

9 (As it is written, ^aHe hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth for ever.

10 Now ¹he that ^aministereth ²seed to the sower both ³minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your ^brighteousness;)

14 And by their prayer for you, which ¹long after you for the exceeding ^agrace of God in you.

15 Thanks be unto God ^afor his ¹unspeakable gift.

9:6. One's return is determined by his investment (cf. Prov. 11:24; Luke 6:38; Gal. 6:7). The expression ep' eulogiais ordinarily translated "with blessings" here has the sense of "generously." While it does not suggest indiscriminate giving, it does denote "unrestrained" giving.

9:7. Cheerful giver: The giver is to have a willing heart and a sincere desire to participate in the offering. Paul is not so much interested in their money. Nor is God, for that matter, as the passage from Proverbs 22:9 indicates. The Greek term hilaron, from which the English "hilarious" derives, is best rendered as the English text suggests, "cheerful." Giving is not a joke. It is serious business, but it is a delightful experience all the same.

9:9. His righteousness [prosperity] remaineth for ever: Neither Paul nor Psalm 112:9, cited here, advocates "prosperity theology," that is, that every generous believer will be financially wealthy. Both experience and the context (cf. 8:2) deny this. This statement only says that the generous believer will always prosper in two ways: (1) financially, all his needs will be met, so that he will be able to keep giving (v. 8); and (2) spiritually, he will increase in everything (v. 12).

9:10. This verse may be translated, "Now He who supplies seed to the sower and bread to eat will supply and multiply your seed and will increase the harvest [yield] of your righteousness [prosperity]."

9:11. Being enriched is better translated, "You will be enriched."

Mighty Weapons of Warfare

10 Now ^aI Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, ^bwho in presence am ¹base among you, but being absent am bold toward you:

2 But I beseech you, ^athat I may not be bold when I am present with that confidence, wherewith I ¹think to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war ¹after the flesh:

4 (^aFor the weapons ^bof our warfare are not ¹carnal, but ^cmighty through God ^dto the pulling down of strong holds;)

5 ^aCasting down ¹imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ;

6 ^aAnd having in a readiness to ¹revenge all disobedience, when ^byour obedience is fulfilled.

7 ^aDo ye look on things after the outward appearance? ^bIf any man ¹trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that, as he is Christ's, even so are ^cwe Christ's.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more ^aof our authority, which the Lord hath given us for ¹edification, and not for your destruction, ^bI should not be ashamed:

9 That I may not seem as if I would terrify you by letters.

God's Rule of Measure

12 ^aFor we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves: but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise.

13 ^aBut we will not boast of things ¹without our measure, but according to the measure of the ²rule which God hath ³distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you.

14 For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure, as though we reached not unto you: ^afor we are come as far as to you also in preaching the gospel of Christ:

15 Not boasting of things without our measure, that is, ^aof other men's labours; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you ¹according to our rule abundantly,

16 To preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's ¹line of things made ready to our hand.

17 ^aBut he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

18 For ^anot he that commendeth himself is approved, but ^bwhom the Lord commendeth.

Guard Against False Preaching

11 Would to God ye could bear with me a little in ^a*my* folly: and indeed ¹bear with me.

10:1—13:14. Paul's tone changes drastically. For this reason some suggest that this section constitutes the text of the "severe letter" of 7:8. However, as has been noted, the change in approach may be more readily accounted for by a change in the direction of Paul's words. In the remaining chapters he turns his attention to a small pocket of resistance that continues to voice opposition to his ministry.

10:1. I Paul myself is a very strong expression; it reminds the readers of his apostleship and asserts his authority. The change in Paul's tone is therefore immediately evident.

10:2. According to the flesh: The charge is not that he is carnal, but that he is lacking divine unction in his ministry and has usurped the apostolic office to himself.

10:3–5. Though we walk [live] in the flesh [in a body], we do not war [fight] after [according to] the flesh (human standards): The first phrase of verse 5 looks back to verse 3 and expresses the manner in which believers conduct spiritual warfare. It is by casting down [destroying] imaginations (false arguments), such as Paul's opponents have raised.

10:17, 18. Lest the Corinthians interpret what Paul has to say as an expression of conceit, Paul shows that, in the final analysis, his commendation comes from Christ. Paul was always careful to show that any success he enjoyed in the ministry was not due to his own innate ability, but to Christ working in him (cf. Rom. 15:17, 18).

11:1. My folly: The apostle is uneasy about what he has to do. For him it is "foolishness."

2 For I am ^ajealous over you with godly jealousy: for ^bI have ¹espoused you to one husband, ^cthat I may present you ^das a chaste virgin to Christ.

3 But I fear, lest by any means, as ^athe serpent ¹beguiled Eve through his ²subtilty, so your minds ^bshould be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.

4 For if he that cometh preacheth another Jesus, whom we have not preached, or if ye receive ¹another spirit, which ye have not received, or ^aanother¹ gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him.

5 For I ¹suppose ^aI was not ²a whit behind the very chiefest apostles.

6 But though ^aI be ¹rude in speech, yet not ^bin knowledge; but ^cwe have been thoroughly made manifest among you in all things.

7 Have I committed an offence in ¹abasing myself that ye might be exalted, because I have preached to you the gospel of God ^afreely?²

8 I robbed other churches, taking wages of them, to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you, and ¹wanted, ^aI was ²chargeable to no man: for that which was lacking to me ^bthe brethren which came from Macedonia supplied: and in all things I have kept myself from being burdensome unto you, and so will I keep myself.

10 ^aAs the truth of Christ is in me, ^bno man shall stop me of this boasting in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? ^abecause I love you not? God knoweth.

11:2. For introduces the reason the Corinthians must "bear with" Paul (v. 1): it is for their own well-being. They were in danger of turning from Christ by being set against Paul's ministry. So he must keep their affection and confidence to help them persevere with Christ.

11:7. Have I committed an offence in abasing myself? (1 Cor. 9:1-18): Irony fairly drips from his pen. Their only legitimate criticism was his self-effacing manner. I have preached to you the gospel of God freely: In 18 months of ministry he never once extracted from them a living wage.

11:8. I robbed other churches is hyperbolic and intended to shame them. Taking wages of them: Paul no doubt has the Philippian church primarily in mind (Phil. 4:15, 16). He could have mentioned the fact that he worked with his own hands to sustain a living on his first arrival in Corinth. It is indicative of his restraint that he does not.

11:14. Angel of light: The passage calls to mind the culmination of our Lord's discussion with the Pharisees in John 8. The specific allusion Paul makes is not clear. Perhaps it is to Job 1:6.

11:23-27. If his enemies are ministers of Christ as they claim to be, then he is more. Discipleship cannot be purchased at bargain prices (Luke 9:23). The cost exacted of the apostle Paul is measured by the tabulation which follows. Forty stripes save one: Deuteronomy 25:3 forbids the Jews to inflict more than 40 stripes on an offender. Scrupulous in their observance of Moses' law, they were in the habit of giving no more than 39 so as not to go over the limit of the law. Stoned [Acts 14:19] ... I suffered shipwreck: Since Paul penned this letter long before the shipwreck recorded in Acts 27, it must be reckoned that the incidents of which he speaks find their mention in Scripture only here. There are numerous occasions recorded in Acts 13:1-20:5 when Paul traveled by sea. Since Luke, the author of the Book of Acts, did not accompany Paul much of that time, some of the incidentals have been omitted from this account. Perils of waters (lit., "perils of rivers"): Along the roads traversed by Paul numerous rivers seasonally swelled with floodwaters. To this day they are legendary for the perils they pose for the traveler. Perils of robbers: The area from Perga to Antioch in Pisidia (Acts 13:14) was especially known for this peril. Fastings often: The context does not view this as the ritualistic observance practiced by the Pharisees. Rather, it is voluntary abstinence. There is a touch of irony here. No doubt Paul's Jewish adversaries at Corinth made a practice of ritualistic fasting and took pride in it.

11:29, 30. Who is offended, and I burn not? That is, "Who is caused to stumble, and I am not indignant?" The apostle is deeply concerned about the weaker brethren, and he burned with indignation when he thought of those who would lead them into sin.

12:1. This passage is centered on the concept of glory (Gr. kauchaomai, "boast"). Paul's adversaries were boasting after the flesh (11:18). Paul's boasting is of another sort. Visions and revelations of the Lord: These were visions of which the Lord was the Author, not the object. Paul may very well have seen the Lord at this time, although if he did, he does not say. That is not the point. What follows is not intended to point attention to the one who received the vision, but to God who gave it.

12:2. Above fourteen years ago: The date is not precise enough to pinpoint the exact time or event to which the apostle alludes. Some suggest that this occurred when he was stoned in Acts 14:19. Others date it to the time when he was at Tarsus, waiting for the Lord to point out his work, somewhere between Acts 9:30 and 11:25. Caught up (Gr. harpazō, "to snatch away"): This term is used in regard to Philip (Acts 8:39) and the Rapture (1 Thess. 4:17).

12:3, 4. Paradise: This term is used in the Septuagint, or Greek version of the Old Testament, in describing the Garden of Eden (Gen. 2:8). In Paul's day it was used commonly by Jewish writers to speak of heaven (Luke 23:43; Rev. 2:7). Whether the third heaven is viewed on the way to heaven or synonymous with it, Paul's celestial journey eventually took him to heaven.

4 How that he was caught up into ^aparadise, and heard ¹unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

5 Of such an one will I ¹glory: yet of myself I will not ^aglory, but in mine infirmities.

6 For though I would desire to glory, I shall not be a fool; for I will say the truth: but now I ¹forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or that he heareth of me.

Paul's Thorn in the Flesh

7 And lest I should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a ^athorn in the flesh, ^bthe messenger of Satan to ¹buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure.

8 ^aFor this thing I ¹besought the Lord ²thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my ¹strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore ^awill I rather glory in my ²infirmities, ^bthat the power of Christ may rest upon me.

10 Therefore ^aI take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: ^bfor when I am weak, then am I strong.

14 ^aBehold, the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdensome to you: for ^bI seek not yours, but you: ^cfor the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

19 ^aAgain, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? ^bwe speak before God in Christ: ^cbut we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 For I fear, lest, when I come, I shall not find you such as I ¹would, and that ^aI shall be found ²unto you such as ye ¹would not: lest there be ³debates, envyings, wraths, ⁴strifes, backbitings, whisperings, ⁵swellings, tumults:

12:7. Paul's thorn in the flesh is characterized further as a messenger of Satan. Just what Paul means by this is not clear. Among the views suggested are (1) temptations from the Devil, (2) Paul's opposition from his adversaries, (3) some intense bodily pain, (4) a recurring physical affliction such as eye trouble, or (5) even some form of mental or psychological distress. Whatever the case, it was a tool of Satan, it was painful ("thorn"), and it was accompanied by shame or embarrassment to the apostle. A fairly strong argument can be sustained in favor of the view that it was eye trouble (ophthalmia). See also Acts 13:9; 23:1; Galatians 4:14, 15; 6:11.

12:13. I myself was not burdensome to you: The only fault of his ministry was that he showed them preferential treatment. To such ingratitude Paul's irony deals a mortal blow.

13:5. Except ye be reprobates (lit., “Unless you are counterfeiters”): The challenge is to ascertain whether they are genuine believers or fakes.

13:6. We are not reprobates: Regardless of how the Corinthians come out in the test, they are assured that Paul was genuine. There is a play on words between proof (Gr. dokimēn, “evidence,” v. 3) and reprobates (Gr. adokimoi, “counterfeits”).

13:11. Finally, brethren: In the first nine chapters

Paul addressed the majority of the faithful brethren in the Corinthian assembly. In 10:1—13:10 his words have been directed primarily to those who questioned his integrity. Paul is not even certain if these are true believers. But in his farewell address the apostle turns his attention once again to those who really love and appreciate him. Thus he calls them brethren.

13:14. In his concluding benediction, Paul provides one of the clearest expressions in the New Testament on the doctrine of the Trinity. The deity of the Son, of the Father, and of the Holy Spirit are affirmed by virtue of their relation to one another. The distinctive personalities of each are implied by the independent activity denoted in the threefold operation of grace, love, and communion.

The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the
GALATIANS

Authorship. The letter to the Galatians claims the apostle Paul as its writer (1:1, 5:2), and this is attested by the brief autobiography in 1:12-24, as well as by the epistle's language, style, vocabulary, and theology.

Recipients. The letter is addressed "unto the churches of Galatia" (1:2), and its readers are called "Galatians" (3:1). The term Galatia was originally used in an ethnic manner, referring to north central Asia Minor settled by the invading Gauls. Later "Galatia" was employed in a political sense, referring to the Roman province that included the cities south of the Gaulish territory: Lystra, Derbe, Iconium, and Pisidian Antioch. While it is uncertain whether the letter was sent to North or South Galatia, this problem has little bearing on the value or understanding of the epistle.

Date and Place of Writing. If the letter was sent to North Galatia, Paul and his missionary team planted the Galatian churches during his second missionary journey. So the epistle was written to them from either Ephesus (A.D. 54) or Macedonia (A.D. 55) while on his third missionary journey. But if the letter was addressed to the political (South) Galatia, then Paul started the churches on his first missionary trip, writing to them at the end of this journey from his home church in Antioch (A.D. 49).

Occasion. Paul had led the Galatians to Christ (3:1). They had made a good start in the Christian life (3:3) and were doing well spiritually (5:7).

Later, some Jewish teachers (called Judaizers) taught the Galatians that to be saved one must not only believe in Christ, but must also obey the Mosaic Law, the sign of which is circumcision. In preaching this heresy, they also attacked Paul's apostleship and gospel. Their false gospel had a detrimental effect on the Galatians: it was beginning to hinder their obedience to God (5:7), they were starting to observe some parts of the law (4:10), and they were considering a complete acceptance of the law (1:6; 4:9).

Purpose. Paul seeks to expose the error of the Judaizers' gospel and their impure motives (6:12, 13). His ultimate goal is to prevent the readers from embracing a false gospel and to encourage them to retain their spiritual freedom in Christ (5:1). The apostle does not want his dear converts to be tied up with all the now abolished rules and regulations of the Mosaic Law, which will lead them into legalism.

Theme. The central feature of the letter is justification by God's grace through faith.

In chapters 1 and 2 Paul defends his gospel, arguing that it is the true message of salvation since he received it directly from Christ. Then in chapters 3 and 4 he defines exactly what his gospel is: man is justified (saved) not by keeping the law, but by God's grace alone, that is, through his faith in Christ's atoning death. Last, in chapters 5 and 6 the apostle briefly applies his gospel to various areas of daily living.

OUTLINE OF GALATIANS

I. Introduction
A. Salutation	1:1-5
B. The problem: The Galatians currently contemplate the acceptance of a false gospel	1:6-10
II. Paul's gospel defended 1:11—2:21
A. Divine in origin	1:11-24
1. He did not receive the gospel while in Judaism	1:13, 14
2. He received the gospel from Christ, not from the apostles	1:15-24
B. Divine in nature	2:1-21
1. It was acknowledged by the apostles as authentic	2:1-10
2. Paul's rebuke of Peter proves the genuineness of his gospel	2:11-21
III. Paul's gospel defined: Justification through faith in Christ without the law 3:1—4:31
A. Proved by the Galatians' own experience	3:1-5
B. Proved by Scripture	3:6-14
1. Positively: The Old Testament says Abraham was, and Gentiles would be, justified through faith	3:6-9
2. Negatively: The Old Testament says man is cursed if he relies on the law for salvation	3:10-14
C. Proved by the Abrahamic covenant	3:15-18
D. Proved by the purpose of the law: It pointed man to Christ	3:19-29
E. Proved by the law's temporary nature: God's adult sons are no longer under elementary religion	4:1-11
F. The Galatians are parenthetically urged not to subject themselves to the law	4:12-20
G. Proved by allegory: Law makes men spiritual slaves by works; grace frees men by faith	4:21-31
IV. Paul's gospel applied 5:1—6:17
A. Spiritual freedom is to be maintained and not subjected to legalism	5:1-12
B. Spiritual freedom is not a license to sin, but a means of serving others	5:13-26
C. The morally fallen Christian is to be restored to fellowship by his brethren	6:1-5
D. The Galatians' giving is to support their teachers and to help other needy people	6:6-10
E. Conclusion: Judaizers seek to avoid persecution for Christ, but Paul gladly accepts it	6:11-17
V. Benediction 6:18

Pervert Not the Gospel

6 I marvel that ye are so soon ¹removed ^afrom him that called you into the grace of Christ unto ²another gospel:

1:1. Paul vehemently denies that his apostleship is due to human agency—he was not commissioned an apostle by any group (not of men) nor by any mortal individual (neither by man), but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead: Unlike the other apostles, Paul received his call from the resurrected, glorified, and exalted Jesus. This special reference to the Lord's resurrection implicitly confirms Paul's appointment as an apostle.

1:4. Who gave himself for our sins ("Since He gave Himself for our sins"): This confirms the divine desire expressed in verse 3. In view of Jesus' sacrificing Himself for believers, it is certainly His wish that they may receive "grace" and "peace." That he might deliver us is more accurately rendered "that He alone might deliver us." The expression He alone means Jesus rather than anyone else. This strikes the epistle's keynote, for the gospel is an emancipation from a state of spiritual bondage. And the clause also strikes at the Galatians' theological error of trying to rescue themselves by their own effort through the law.

1:6, 7. Ye are so soon removed can be translated,

9 As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you ^athan that ye have received, let him be accursed.

10 For ^ado I now ^bpersuade men, or God? or ^cdo I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ.

"you are so quickly deserting." The Galatians are in the initial stages of defecting from God to another gospel. The Greek word rendered "another" is heteron which means "another of a different kind." The Judaizers' gospel is not the same one Paul preached to the readers. In verse 7 the apostle goes on to affirm that their gospel is not another. The Greek word here translated "another" is allo which means "another of the same kind." So the message of salvation proclaimed by the legalists is vastly different from the true one.

1:8. This verse shows that the message, not the messenger, is of utmost importance. The Galatian controversy is not over teachers or personalities, but over truth and error. Even a heavenly angel, if he preaches error, is to be accursed, that is, eternally condemned.

1:10. For explains the harsh language of verses 3-9: If Paul were to persuade men (i.e., court their favor) or seek to please them by preaching a false gospel they want to hear, he should not be the servant of Christ.

1:11, 12. In verses 6-9 Paul implied that his gospel was the only true one; the message he preaches is the yardstick by which all others are to be measured. The reason for this is that his gospel is human neither in nature (not after man, v. 11) nor in origin (I neither received it of man, v. 12). The apostle's gospel is genuine, because he received it directly from the risen Lord (was I taught it ... by the revelation of Jesus Christ).

1:13-24. For begins to confirm his assertion of receiving the gospel straight from God and not from men (v. 12). Neither before (vv. 13, 14) nor after (vv.

15-22) conversion did Paul obtain a knowledge of salvation from any human source. Prior to conversion he was an enemy of the gospel, interested not in learning it but only in destroying it. During the 14 years following his conversion he was not with the apostles long enough to have been adequately instructed by them in the gospel. The point is that he received the message of salvation from Christ, not from man (v. 12).

1:13. My conversation in time past means my former conduct.

1:14. This verse could be translated, "I was progressing in Judaism ahead of many contemporaries in my nation, because I was far more zealous for my ancestral traditions."

1:15, 16. Since Paul's conversion to Christianity was due to God and not man, and since he did not consult with men subsequent to his conversion, then the apostle could not possibly have received the gospel from any but the Lord. To reveal his Son in [to] me: The divine disclosure to man of the person and work of Christ is the essence of the gospel.

1:17. Following his Damascus road conversion Paul made no trip to Jerusalem, where the apostles were, but spent approximately three years in Arabia. It is implied that he conferred with God there. During these three years he was not taught by men.

1:18. When Paul did first go to Jerusalem as a Christian, the purpose of his visit was to see Peter. The verb to see means "to get to know." Paul's purpose, then, was to become acquainted with Peter, not to be instructed by him.

22 And was unknown by face unto the churches of Judaea which ^awere in Christ:

23 But they had ^aheard only, That he which ^bpersecuted us in times past now preacheth the faith which once he destroyed.

 1 Thess. 2:4; 1 Tim. 1:11
 2:8 ¹worked effectively

1:21-23. From 2:1 Paul apparently spent about 14 years in the regions of Syria and Cilicia (v. 21). During this period he preached the faith which once he destroyed (v. 23). Because of his absence from Jerusalem, he was unknown by face unto the churches of Judaea (v. 22). Throughout this lengthy evangelistic activity in the north, Paul was too far removed from the apostles in Jerusalem to have received any instruction from them. Had he been a student of theirs at this time, he would have doubtlessly worked in, and been personally known by, the Judean churches.

2:1-21. The argument in 1:11-24 was that Paul's gospel is divine in its origin. The argument in 2:1-21 is that his gospel is divine in nature. This is proved in two ways: (1) The Pauline gospel was acknowledged by the apostles to be authentic (vv. 1-10); (2) Paul's rebuke of Peter for his reinstating the law attests the authenticity of the Pauline gospel (vv. 11-21).

2:1. Paul's second trip to Jerusalem came 14 years after his first visit when he had met Peter (1:18). Two important figures accompanied him on this occasion—Barnabas and Titus.

2:2. The reason for this second trip was by [because of] revelation; that is, by prompting him to go, God foresaw the necessity for this consultation with the apostles. In Jerusalem, Paul communicated (laid before) his gospel to the apostles. The Greek word rendered "communicated" means "to refer something to another party for his opinion of it." So Paul privately sought the judgment of them which were of reputation (the Jerusalem apostles) regarding the gospel he had been proclaiming for 14 years. Why did Paul seek the apostles' opinion? He had no doubt as to the validity of his gospel, for he had received it directly from Christ; so his consultation with John, James, and Peter was not to ascertain whether his gospel was correct. Rather it was to obtain their approval of the way he was bringing Gentiles into the church: they were admitted without circumcision on the basis of their faith in Christ. Apart from the apostles' consent, Paul's ministry among the heathen would be hindered—he would run [labor] ... in vain.

2:3-9. These verses reveal the outcome of Paul's submission of his gospel to the apostles for their opinion. That they acknowledged his gospel to be genuine and to be the same gospel they preached is seen in three ways: (1) Circumcision was not required of the uncircumcised Titus (v. 3). Had Paul's gospel been lacking in this respect, Titus would have been circumcised. (2) The Jerusalem apostles (they who seemed to be somewhat in conference) added nothing to me (v. 6), that is, they found nothing lacking in his gospel so as to require the addition of something (e.g., circumcision). (3) The apostles gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship (v. 9). In antiquity the giving of the right hand was a sign of agreement made between peers. The Jerusalem apostles viewed Paul and Barnabas as partners in the gospel ministry. The apostles would never have done this had they looked upon Paul's gospel as erroneous.

2:4. Unawares brought in means "smuggled in." These false brethren tried to get Titus circumcised (v. 3). These unbelievers came in privily (sneaked in) or infiltrated Christian churches. Their purpose was to spy out and carefully examine the believers' liberty or freedom from the Mosaic Law. The ultimate aim of this spying was to bring the Christians into bondage by tying them up with all the rules and regulations of Judaism.

2:5. Paul refused to submit to the Judaizers' demands of imposing the law on Christians. To have done so would have corrupted the pure truth of the gospel.

2:7. The gospel of the uncircumcision: The apostles perceived that Paul had been divinely entrusted with the gospel to Gentiles, while Peter was entrusted with the gospel to Jews. They had been entrusted with the very same gospel, but sent to two different peoples.

^acircumcision, ^bthe same ¹was ^cmighty in me toward the Gentiles.)

9 And when James, ¹Cephas, and John, who seemed to be ^apillars, perceived ^bthe grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; ^cthat we should go unto the ²heathen, and they unto the circumcision.

10 Only they would that we should remember the poor; ^athe same which I also was ¹forward to do.

that Barnabas also was carried away with their ²dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to ^athe truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter ^bbefore them all, ^cIf thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

16 ^aKnowing that a man is not ¹justified by the works of the law, but ^bby the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by ²the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: for ^aby the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

17 But if, while we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found ^asinners, is therefore Christ the minister of sin? ¹God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things which I destroyed, I make myself a transgressor.

2:10. The one request the apostles made of Paul was that he would remember [help] the poor. Paul willingly complied, saying that he was forward [zealous] to do so.

2:12. Them which were of the circumcision: This refers to Jewish Christians from Jerusalem who were troubled about the Jewish Christians in Antioch, who were taking meals with Gentiles, thus probably eating forbidden foods. The question in Jerusalem was this: were Gentile Christians obligated to observe the law, of which circumcision is the sign? The answer was no (vv. 1-10). Peter's action in Antioch of withdrawing from Gentile meals raised another issue: were Jewish Christians also free from the law?

2:13. Dissembled could be said, "acted hypocritically." The detrimental effect of Peter's action was to influence other Jewish Christians to separate themselves from their Gentile brethren. Even the spiritual giant Barnabas, who had championed Gentile freedom in verses 1-9, was carried away with their dissimulation (hypocrisy). The hypocrisy here was the false impression left by their behavior; they really believed it was all right to eat with Gentiles, but acted as though these convictions were not theirs.

2:14. They walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel: that is, "They were not acting rightly regarding the truth of the gospel." The gospel teaches that a person is saved by grace, not by law. Therefore he is not obligated as a Christian to live under the law. Thou ... livest after the manner of Gentiles: Peter was living like a Gentile in that he was mixing freely with Gentile believers and not observing Jewish customs. He was eating Gentile foods. Yet Peter compelled the Gentiles to live as do the Jews in separating himself from them. By refusing to eat with them he left Gentile believers no alternative but to either adopt Jewish dietary regulations, or suffer a split in their church. In short, Peter was forcing them to become Jewish proselytes. Peter's hypocrisy lay not in his observing Jewish laws, but in making Gentiles keep them.

2:15. Sinners is a derogatory term almost synonymous with Gentiles. Since Gentiles did not live under the law, their immorality was usually worse than that of the Jews, whose behavior was generally restrained by the law. So in Jewish opinion Gentiles were, by the nature of the case, sinners.

2:15, 16. Even though Jews are in some respects not outwardly "sinners" like Gentiles, they still know one cannot be justified by observing the law but only by faith in Christ. Paul therefore affirms that even we [Jews] have believed in Jesus Christ in order to be saved. To be justified is to be accounted by God as acceptable to Him. This occurs not ... by the works of the law [meritorious works], but by the faith of [in] Jesus Christ (i.e., by relying on Christ's atoning death).

2:17. The Judaizers' objection to this doctrine of justification by faith alone is this: If a Jew seeks to be justified by Christ apart from the law he is then outside the law and thus a sinner like the Gentiles. The Judaizers fear that a Christian outside the law will lead an immoral life since his conduct is no longer restrained by the law. Followed to its logical conclusion, under this theory Christ is the minister of sin. That is, He promotes sin and encourages His followers to transgress. But the apostle's exclamation, God forbid, denies this false teaching.

2:18. For confirms the denial that Jesus, by the doctrine of justification alone, would encourage sin. To build again is to reinstate the things (the demands
